Human Energy in Foods

Protein is the foodstuff that builds muscular tissue, says a well-known authority on domestic science.

Carbohydrates furnish heat and energy.

The fats in butter and cream are also heat and energy producers.

A wise selection of food for the average person, for one day, would be as follows:

- 4 portions of food rich in fat
- 3 portions of food rich in sugar
- 9 to 12 portions of food rich in starch
- 6 to 8 portions rich in protein
- 3 to 4 portions rich in mineral substances

The following tables give the approximate necessary to supply the required amount as given above:

Foods Rich in Fat

Butter, 1 tablespoonful	Heavy Cream, 2 tablespoons
Suet, 1 tablespoonful	Ice Cream, 2½ tablespoons
Lard, 1 tablespoonful	Walnuts, shelled, 8 halves

Foods Rich in Starch

Cornmeal, 3½ tablespoons	Corn Starch, 4 tablespoons
Rolled Oats, ⅓ cup	Rice, 2 tablespoons
Flour, ¼ cup	Potato, 1 medium

Foods Rich in Sugar

Granulated Sugar, 2 table- spoons	Dates, 4
Molasses, 1⅔ tablespoons	Maple Syrup, 1⅔ table- spoons
Raisins, 30	Honey, 1⅔ tablespoons
Prunes, 3 to 5	Plain Cake, small piece

Foods Rich in Protein

Milk, ⅔ cup	Roast Beef, 1 small slice
Cheese, 1½ inch cube	Boiled Ham, 1 small slice
Dried Peas, 2 tablespoons	Cod or Haddock, 5 ounces

INTRODUCING COTTAGE CHEESE

THE contents of this book have been carefully selected from nearly 300 choice recipes, approximating the highest skill in Cottage Cheese cookery, and exemplifying the most satisfactory results in conservation, flavor, originality, texture and appearance.

Each recipe passed under the careful observation of a committee of Food experts, and it is to their conscientious efforts, as judges, and to the wholehearted co-operation of a goodly number of patriotic housewives, that we are indebted for this opportunity to assist the Federal Food Administration in its great educational campaign, and to aid our friends, the Public, in maintaining the highest standard of health and physical efficiency, at a trifling cost.

It also emphasizes the fact, that every pound of Cottage Cheese consumed in one's home, means an approximate in food value, to that furnished by a pound and a half of good beef, and the saving of that much meat for the boys in the trenches.

This is all rather difficult to appreciate until, by personal experience, you have learned how many appetizing delicacies can be easily and cheaply made from this simple product of the dairy. It is certainly worth a trial, and with these prize-winning recipes for a guide, you will find the task a decidedly pleasant one.

And, having done this, see that your friends are supplied with copies of this magic cookbook, too. It surely will be appreciated and the cost is little—10 cents, mailed to any address in the United States.

To all Gridley patrons, a copy will be sent free, on request.
