"Courage"

We must face life with confidence. We must believe that all is well; we must believe with the "Socrates"; that "to the good man no evil thing can happen." It will help us to endure whatever we have to face.

We must seize our opportunities with eagerness and zeal; we must be willing to run the risk of taking chances; we must not win if life is not a bed of roses.

Men have borne the best of the day for us; men have suffered agony and died; that life for us might be enriched. We live in a free land because in other days men fought to make their country free with the courage that has written their names in letters of gold across the pages of history; and shall we fail our Country now? Shall we be unworthy of the glory that is ours?

Let us hold fast, but let us stand firm, let us be strong and do good courage.

RUMORS OF KAISER RETURN WORRY FOR DUTCH PARLIAMENT

From the Hague comes a report that constant and persistent rumors that the Kaiser, who is seventy-three years old, has been pulling political strings in Germany from his snug refuge at Doorn, is causing considerable uneasiness among members of the Dutch Parliament. So tense is the matter the government has been asked by members of Parliament what it means to do about Wilhelm von Hohenzollern's activities.

Recently agitation was increased when the former kaiser sent a message to the "League of the Upright" meeting in Germany in which he quoted Christ in the following statement:

"Without me ye can do nothing."

The League had been permitted to hold its first meeting since being suppressed ten years ago, and the fact that it almost coincided with the birthday on October twenty-second of the kaiser's first wife, the late Empress Augusta Victoria, was in official circles regarded as most significant.

Although the Versailles Treaty forbids a Hohenzollern dynasty again in Germany in recent months the names of the former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm and his four brothers have bobbed up frequently in association with right wing politics in Germany. The fifty year old former Crown head and Prince Oscar, the younger son of the former kaiser, made flying visits to Doorn recently which also has caused speculation to arise.

F. Vos, an independent, and Herr Wynkoop, a communist, have been deputies most insistent in demands for a statement of the government's plans. The government spurned request of some allied governments to expel the ex-kaiser but it has promised to be on guard against any political activities of him. Unconfirmed reports were that a Dutch official visited Doorn several times recently to convey official warnings. RAY HESS.

The gardens in the Camp look rather sad after the Big Blow. The gardeners were sad, too, for a few days, but you can't keep a gardener sad very long. Things go wrong, blights and plagues, various kinds may visit the garden, but a real gardener will rise to the occasion with a smile.

When the high winds of the storm last week had subsided, many of the heretofore protected plants were found to be "burned" by the salt in the air. The leaves wilted and gave the appearance of having been frosted, but the sunshine of the past few days has brought the buds out once more. Now that the ground is thoroughly soaked—and how thoroughly it was soaked—vegetation of every kind is growing with astonishing rapidity. In a short time all signs of the storm will be obliterated; our gardens should be prettier than ever.

One of man's best friends in Aruba is his radio. A friend who will talk to you when you want him to talk, and never talk about you. In this wonderful modern invention is combined a means of instruction and entertainment. With a good receiving set, it is possible to keep in touch with important world happenings. Newspapers from the States are seven days old at least when they reach us. Via the radio the daily news comes to us just as quickly as it does to those living in New York or London.

BELLEZAS ARQUITECTONICAS

Desde el nuevo edificio R.C.A. tomó la fotografía que vemos aquí de la catedral St. Patrick, en el corazón de New York, que el ingeniero había diseñado una cruz perfecta como techo de dicha catedral. Para tener una idea de la altura del edificio mencionado podrán nuestros lectores, fijándose en la fotografía, ver que esta tomada, verticalmente con la máquina enfocada hacia abajo, sobre las torres de la catedral.

EL FRACASO

El simple hecho de que un hombre haya fracasado en sus negocios, en cualquiera de sus empresas, no quiere decir mucho mientras no sepamos qué hizo después de su fracaso. Hay que estudiar al hombre que se encuentra detrás de un fracaso antes de que podamos juzgarle, aunque ese sea el fin o el comienzo de tal hombre. Si no vuelve a hacer un esfuerzo, si se cruza de brazos y pierde toda iniciativa; si se abstiene de toda tentativa por que su primer barca naufragó; si se ha convertido en un pesimista, porque no llegó desde luego al puerto del buen éxito; si después de uno o dos fracasos se ha quedado descorazonado, abatido, y se considera fuera de combate, lo más probable es que su nombre no vuelva a oírse nunca en ninguna parte. Pero si su alma está bien templada; si su corazón está bien puesto en su sitio, volverá a la brega. Si hay una fuerza espiritual, a semejanza de una pelota, cuanto más fuerte su caída será mayor su ascenso... Todo depende de lo que hay de bueno en el interior del hombre. Ningún hombre es un fracaso mientras no pierda el ánimo y mientras no deje de luchar. No existe el fracaso para el que nunca se considera vencido.

touch with the Stock Market by means of their radio, and do their trading from news gleaned in this manner. It is indeed a privilege to have the music of the world right in your own bungalow. It is of especial interest this radio reception—in a locality which offers so little musically. Aruba is not correctly situated geographically to get grand opera or musical comedies in any form other than in the movies or radio. Thanks to the development of the short wave radios, Aruba may now enjoy these privileges equally as well as a country further from the tropics and its attendant static. There are many excellent makes on the market today—several of the best may be purchased from Oranjestad merchants.

The Kitten Ball season is drawing to a close. The present season has brought many thrills and interesting games, but it has failed to produce a team that can down the high-powered Accounting Office boys. Through two seasons they have gone with a clean slate—no defeats have as yet been chalked up against them. With their present lineup, it is unlikely they will experience any difficulty in maintaining the winning pace they have set, and copping the top honors when the play-off

In Paramount's "Hot Saturday," the camera lens has to adjust itself to the altitude of two big men, Cary Grant at six feet one and a half and Randolph Scott at half an inch less.

Others who top the six foot mark are Clark Gable, John Boles, Ralph Bellamy, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., George Brent, the two new Universal stock actors—Onslow Stevens and Carlton Kadell, Joel McCrea and Ralph Graves.

Hardly any in the new ranks of stars are under six feet. Here are some of the newcomers and survivors from the pre-superman era who are all six feet or over: William Powell, Kent Taylor, George O'Brien, Richard Dix, Ricardo Cortez, Bruce Cabot, Nils Asther, Lionel Barrymore (without his stoop), Wallace Beery, Robert Montgomery, Walter Huston and Boris Karloff.

Harry Brand insists on telling this one again:

Al Jolson was having difficulty impressing his dignity on a youth on the set at United Artists.

"You're not old enough to give me orders," said the boy.

"Say, how old do you think I am?" asked Jolson.

"You're about 42," was the answer, "because my brother is 21 and he's half-witted!"

After spending $100,000 preparing "Laughing Boy," Carl Laemmle, Jr., has indefinitely postponed its production.

Reason: Inability to find a suitable type for the title role.

The lucky youth, if they ever find him, must have a Lew Ayres personality with an authentic Indian physiognomy. Lew, himself, is out because of his blue eyes.

Universal brought candidates from every part of the country and from all the Indian reservations. They have tested 75 youths without success. Included in the candidates were Chester Morris, Richard Arlen, William Bakewell and Leslie Fenton.

La novia con su traje blanco cual flotante espuma y la blanca sien ornada de azahares hacía reflejar mas la pureza de su alma. El novio a su lado con la faz sonriente se sentía orgulloso ante tan preciosa joya.

El salón era un jardín y cada dama una flor bella, y los caballeros inocentes mariposas que ignoraban cual mas linda escoger, hasta que embriagados por los vapores del delicioso Champan se entregaron ya sin reserva a las preciosas flores para las delicias del baile que duró hasta altas horas de la noche.

Three-Minute Journeys -:- The Sudan—Earth's Most Fascinating Wilderness -:- By TEMPLE MANNING.

SEARCHING for new and interesting scenes, many travelers, in recent years, have made repeated trips to both North and South Africa. A trip to Egypt is quite a commonplace affair, but now ever so many visitors journey on up the Nile and visit the Sudan. That immense tract of land has held a fascination for explorers ever since man first ventured centuries ago into its mighty area.

One realizes the great expanse of the Sudan only when looking at a map and marking the fact that it is bounded on the north by Egypt, on the east by the Red Sea and Abyssinia, on the south by Kenya, Uganda and the Belgian Congo, and on the west by French Equatorial Africa. It embraces an area of more than one million square miles, its length from north to south being about 1,800 miles, while from east to west it varies in width from 500 to more than 1,000 miles. Through its great desert trekked the caravans of the Pharaohs, where now the Cape to Cairo traveller rides in soft comfort.

The Historic Towns

When explorers started their search for the source of the Nile they began to attract interest to the Sudan. After about 1820, the Egyptians, themselves, began to open up and occupy the northern parts of the desert tract. Wars, rebellions, decades of bloodshed and famine have halted the occupation and development of the Sudan, but nothing has stayed its progress, and now there are thousands of miles of railroad, river fleets navigating 2,400 miles of waterways, colleges and hundreds of schools where before was only a wilderness.

The opening of the Sennar Dam has brought under cultivation more than half a million acres of land. Much cotton is now grown where side by side with a highly organized system of cultivation can be seen a civilization as primitive as any in Africa.

In the northern zone of the Sudan are some towns that have historic associations. Omdurman and Khartoum are two spots connected with the Mahdi Rebellion of 1881, that was put down by General Gordon. Khartoum particularly is rich in associations of this kind. The shimmering waters of the Blue Nile, the White Nile, the gorgeous sunsets over the surrounding desert and the cool northerly breezes make Khartoum a pleasant spot in which to linger.

On the desert plain of Kerreri, across the Nile, is to be seen one of the greatest native cities of all Africa, for Omdurman is the home of more than 100,000 people, including representatives of every native race of Africa. There are unique bazaars, where craftsmen of every type can be seen at work, and a marvellous collection of articles for sale. There are the ruined tomb of the Mahdi and other reminders of the rebellion. The streets of Omdurman offer a fascinating panorama of native life, and on the main street is an ornate mosque.

The Lure of the Sudan

An interesting journey out of Khartoum is a short steamer trip up the White Nile to Kosti, thence by auto to Sennar Dam and Geszeri, then back to Khartoum by road and rail. Every variety of bird can be seen, while on the mud flats and sandbanks crocodiles sun themselves lazily and seemingly quite peaceful.

All these towns and trips are only on the fringe of the Sudan in its most northerly limits. From these towns, the desert stretches in apparently interminable wastes. So interested do travellers become in the Sudan that sooner or later most of them journey on into the desert to visit the strange and primitive peoples who seem untouched by progress, and to invade the big game forests which for so many of us hold all the lure of the Dark Continent.
