Abstract: This action established a new primary category of aircraft and new, simplified procedures for type, production and airworthiness certification, and associated maintenance procedures. These aircraft are of simple design intended exclusively for pleasure and personal use. This action also added a new section addressing the falsification of documents submitted as part of certification for products and parts. This action was considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Airport Noise and Capacity Act of 1990

Abstract: This action established more efficient methods of allocating existing capacity at high density airports in order to provide improved opportunities for operation by new entrant air carriers. In addition, this rulemaking added a new definition of a "limited incumbent," allocated all newly available slots to new entrants and limited incumbents, amended the use-or-lose provisions, and created a special pool of slots for use by new entrants and limited incumbents. This rulemaking was considered significant because of substantial congressional and public interest.

The Department of Transportation and the FAA believed that the most productive and efficient means of initiating the rulemaking required by the Airport Noise and Capacity Act of 1990 would be to incorporate Notice Number 88-18 (53 FR 51628, December 22, 1988) into this rulemaking.

Therefore, the supplemental notice of proposed rulemaking represented a continuation of the rulemaking initiated in Notice Number 88-18, as well as the Department of Transportation's action in compliance with the requirements of the Act. The comments received in response to Notice Number 88-18 were addressed, together with the additional comments received in response to the supplemental notice. CFR Citation: 14 CFR 91; 14 CFR 121; 14 CFR 125; 14 CFR 135

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action amended several sections of the Federal Aviation Regulations. Several proposals provide the FAA with the means to enforce certain safety regulations. Others made current operator practices regulatory requirements. Several proposals established regulations on child restraint systems, safety belts aboard airships, and flight crewmember use of shoulder harnesses aboard aircraft. Two of the proposals clarified the regulations concerning fire extinguishers and protective breathing equipment, and one obsolete section of the regulations and several obsolete references to particular dates were removed. This action will reduce the number of passenger violations and enhance safety aboard aircraft. This rulemaking was considered significant because of substantial public interest and safety implications.

Abstract: This final rule revises the Federal Aviation Regulations to require improved access to Type III emergency exits (typically smaller over-wing exits) in transport category airplanes with 60 or more passenger seats. These changes are the result of tests which were conducted at the FAA's Civil Aeromedical Institute, and are intended to improve the ability of occupants to evacuate an airplane under emergency conditions. They affect air carriers and commercial operators of transport category airplanes as well as the manufacturers of such airplanes.

Abstract: This action updated the regulations for certificating aviation maintenance technician schools (AMTS) to accommodate the increasing demand for maintenance technicians with higher levels of skill and knowledge. This action (1) modified portions of the current rule that have been open to subjective judgments by the FAA and the AMTS industry and (2) modified the portions that specify the skill and knowledge requirements for an aviation maintenance technician. In addition, this action revised the core curriculum to ensure that a person graduating from an aviation maintenance technician school will be prepared to function in the current technological environment. This rulemaking was considered significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This amendment revised the airworthiness standards for transport category airplanes concerning flutter, divergence, vibration, and buffet. It clarified the requirement to consider flutter and divergence when treating certain damage and failure conditions required by other sections of the Federal Aviation Regulations. It revised the safety margins related to aeroelastic stability to make them more appropriate for the conditions to which they apply. These changes are intended to provide consistency with other sections of the Federal Aviation Regulations, to relieve a design burden which is now unnecessary as a result of advances in technology, and to improve certain safety margins as a result of the evolution in the design of transport airplanes. This action was considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This final rule amends the Federal Aviation Regulations to allow Part 91 operators to continue flight, or ferry certain aircraft, in the event that the flight recorder and/or cockpit voice recorder is inoperable. This change provides Part 91 operators similar relief to that afforded air carriers and commercial operators operating under Part 91 of the Federal Aviation Regulations. Additionally, this change permits Part 91 operators to operate for up to 15 days with an inoperative flight recorder or cockpit voice recorder. These amendments are intended to prevent Part 91 operations from being forced out of service unnecessarily. This rulemaking was considered

Abstract: This action complies with the Order of the President of the United States to prohibit the takeoff from, landing in, or overflight of the territory of Libya, other than takeoffs, landings, or overflights expressly approved by a United Nations special committee. This action also prohibits the landing in, takeoff from, or overflight of the territory of the United States by any aircraft on a flight from or to any intermediate destination, if the flight's origin or ultimate destination is Libya. This action is taken to prevent an undue hazard to the aircraft that would be engaged in such a flight, as well as to persons involved in the flight, arising from international adherence to or enforcement of UN Security Council Resolution 748 (1992) mandating, inter alia, an embargo of most air traffic with Libya. operation of all aircraft in the airspace above Grand Canyon National Park up to an altitude of 14,500 feet above mean

Abstract: This amendment established a new termination date for Special Federal Aviation Regulation (SFAR) No.
38-2, which contains the certification and operating requirements for persons conducting commercial passenger or cargo operations. This was necessary to establish a new termination date for SFAR 38-2 to allow time for the FAA to complete the rulemaking process that will consolidate the rules regarding certification and operating requirements and incorporate SFAR 38-2 into the Federal Aviation Regulations.
Therefore, the expiration date of 06/01/92 was extended to 06/01/93.
However, if a final rule, which consolidates those rules, is issued before the new termination date, the FAA intends to publish a notice rescinding SFAR 38-2 concurrently with the publication of the final rule in the Federal Register.

Abstract: This action was initiated to improve identification systems for truck and bus drivers as identified by the Congress in the Truck and Bus Regulatory Reform Act of 1988. Alternatives that were considered included retinal eye scans and advanced fingerprint technologies. After (1) further review (2) a careful analysis of public comments submitted to the ANPRM and (3) a review of demonstration project results, the FHWA has determined that current technology has not progressed to the point where an identification system could be established nationwide in a cost-effective manner and still provide the benefits for which a system was intended. Therefore, the FHWA has published an informational notice to summarize the results of the pilot study and the comments to the ANPRM to demonstrate how the technologies studied fall short of the demands in a commercial licensing environment. When information is available that the technologies would be beneficial to the CDL program and after completing additional studies on the accuracy of the current systems, the FHWA will propose standards for the biometric identifier. This project is considered significant because of substantial (cont)

Abstract: 23 U.S.C. 303 requires the Secretary of Transportation to issue regulations for State development, establishment, and implementation of systems for managing highway pavement of Federal-aid highways; bridges on and off Federal-aid highways; highway safety; traffic congestion; public transportation facilities and equipment; and intermodal transportation facilities and systems. The Secretary also must issue guidelines and requirements for the State development, establishment, and implementation of a traffic monitoring system for highways and public transportation facilities and equipment. States must be implementing each management system in Federal fiscal year 1995, or the Secretary may withhold up to 10% of funds apportioned under Title 23, U.S.C., or under the Federal Transit Act for any fiscal year beginning after September 30, 1995. The primary purpose of these systems is to improve the efficiency of, and protect the investment in, existing and future transportation infrastructure. The systems will provide additional information needed to make informed decisions for optimum utilization of limited resources. (continued)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) proposes to amend a portion of the hours of service regulations for commercial motor vehicle drivers. This rulemaking, if promulgated, would permit the on-duty-time limitation of 60 hours in 7 consecutive days or 70 hours in 8 consecutive days to begin anew after the driver had an off-duty "recovery period" of 24 consecutive hours or more. Through this action, the FHWA intends to provide the opportunity for improved efficiency in commercial motor vehicle operations consistent with highway safety. This action is significant because of substantial public interest.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rulemaking would revise the FHWA regulation on construction contract equal opportunity compliance procedures in order to clarify changes in policy and overall program implementation. Additionally, the proposal has been written with the consideration that the FHWA no longer has equal employment opportunity (EEO) contract compliance responsibilities under Executive Order (E.O.) 11246, but clearly has the responsibility to ensure that federally assisted highway contractors are providing equal opportunity under 23 U.S.C. 140. The proposed regulation should provide greater uniformity in the equal opportunity contract compliance program and should provide greater flexibility in overall program administration.

Abstract: The FHWA requested public comment on how, under section 411(h) and 416(b) of the Surface Transportation Act of 1982 (STAA) (PL 97-424, 96 Stat. 2097), the Secretary may determine which safety or efficiency-enhancing devices are to be excluded when measuring the length and width of vehicles for compliance with federally mandated dimensions. The present system of employing rulemaking proceedings is too time-consuming and cumbersome to meet the needs of industry and is needlessly burdensome for FHWA. Therefore, a new approach will be proposed.

The Act also directs the FHWA to initiate a rulemaking by December 18, 1992 on the need to require training of all entry-level drivers of CMVs. This rulemaking must be completed by December 18, 1993. If the FHWA determines as a result of the rulemaking proceedings that it is not in the public interest to issue a rule that requires training for all entry-level drivers, the FHWA must submit a report to Congress by January 18, 1994, on the reason for the decision, together with the results of a cost-benefit analysis conducted as part of the rulemaking proceedings.

Abstract: This action will amend the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations to implement provisions of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1990 (section 15 of PL 101-500). This enactment prohibits a motor carrier that receives an "unsatisfactory" safety rating from operating commercial motor vehicles to transport hazardous materials in quantities for which vehicle placarding is required or to transport more than 15 passengers, including the driver. The prohibition is effective 45 days after receipt of an unsatisfactory rating and remains in effect until a satisfactory rating is secured. This action is considered significant because of substantial public and congressional interest.

Abstract: This action would ban radar detectors from all commercial vehicles as defined in the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations in 49 CFR 390. The proposal responds to the Congressional mandate in section 342 of PL 102-143 and to a petition filed jointly on July 18, 1990, by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety and seven other organizations. FHWA is considering whether such a ban would further highway safety by enhancing commercial motor vehicle driver compliance with speed laws. This action is considered significant because of anticipated substantial public interest and controversy involving the use of radar detectors.

Abstract: In response to the President's memorandum of January 28, 1992, "Reducing the Burden of Government Regulation," the FHWA, as lead agency for implementing the Uniform Act, proposes several amendments to the governmentwide rule implementing the Uniform Act. The amendments would enhance the relocation benefits available to displaced businesses and replace the language in Subpart G, relating to the application for certification, with a simplified provision. Also a proposed technical amendment would conform the language of one paragraph to the two statutes cited therein. The monetary relocation assistance benefits provided in the regulation are primarily established by the Uniform Act. This action is significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Abstract: The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) requested comments on a proposed amendment to the design standards which apply to interstate highway construction and reconstruction projects eligible to receive funding under the Federal-aid highway program. A revised publication approved by the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials (AASHTO) entitled "A Policy on Design Standards--Interstate System, AASHTO 1988" would be substituted for the previous version of these standards last revised June 20, 1967. If the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) adopts the 1988 document, the new AASHTO publication would constitute the FHWA's policy on geometric design for all federally assisted construction and reconstruction projects on the interstate highway system.

Abstract: This document amends 49 CFR part 396, Inspection, Repair and Maintenance, of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSRs). The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) delayed the compliance date to July 1, 1990, when motor carriers are required to implement the periodic inspection requirements contained in the final rule, Inspection, Repair and Maintenance, published on December 7, 1988, (53 FR 49402). On December 12, 1988, the FHWA clarified that provisions of the final rule were to be complied with by December 7, 1989 (53 FR 49968) except as provided for in part 396. This document also included recent interpretations, made minor technical amendments to clarify the rule and eliminated certain items from the inspection report. These interpretations were made in response to many requests the FHWA has received to clarify the intent of the final rule. The elimination of some of the items that were to be included in the inspection report was made to simplify the recordkeeping requirements. The final rule (delay in compliance date) became effective (cont)

Abstract: The FHWA would eliminate the requirement that motor carriers submit accident reports to the FHWA and notify the FHWA of fatal accidents as currently required by 49 CFR 394. Instead, the FHWA, in cooperation with the States, would implement a new accident reporting system based on State-required police reports, which will be electronically transmitted from the States to the FHWA through the SAFETYNET accident reporting system. The FHWA would adopt the National Governors' Association's (NGA) recommended guidelines for collection of accident data in an effort to increase the levels of accuracy, consistency, and uniformity in that data. Motor carriers would be required to keep certain information on file regarding accidents, and make that information available to an authorized representative or special agent of the Federal Highway Administration upon request or inquiry.

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 393

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: By an Interim Final Rule published on 11/24/89, the FHWA amended 49 CFR 393, Parts and Accessories Necessary for Safe Operation, of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSRs). The amendment allows Mexican motor carriers operating commercial motor vehicles in border commercial zones time to comply with the requirement that every commercial motor vehicle be equipped with brakes acting on all wheels. This action will facilitate the flow of trade and traffic between the two countries without interruption. The FHWA also removed the exception (paragraph (b)) from 393.1 which deferred application of part 393 to certain Mexican commercial motor vehicles until November 18, 1989. In this Interim Final Rule the FHWA requested comments on all issues addressed, and expects to proceed to final action.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: To reconcile the training needs of the motor carrier industry with the requirements of the commercial driver's license (CDL) program and the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1989, the FHWA is proposing additional minimum Federal standards for State-issued learner's permits that allow drivers to be trained in the operation of commercial motor vehicles (CMVs). Among the alternatives under consideration: Applicants for Commercial Driver Instruction Permits (CDIPs) might need to possess drivers' licenses and undergo record checks analogous to those now required for CDLs; CDIP transactions might be entered in the Commercial Driver's License Information System (CDLIS); and CDIP holders might be explicitly subject to the same disqualifications as CDL holders. Since driver training is nationwide in scope, the FHWA is proposing options that would allow a State to issue a CDIP to a driver trainee, or a 90-day CDL to a trained driver, without regard to his/her State of domicile.

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 658Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking proposes to designate as specialized equipment van-type, drop-frame beverage semitrailers whose length, when equipped with an upper coupler plate that extends in front of the semitrailer, exceeds 28 feet, as illustrated in the appendix to the preamble. The resulting configuration would be subject to certain limitations in that the kingpin may not be mounted more than 28 feet from the rear of the semitrailer, exclusive of rear-mounted devices not measured in determining semitrailer length, and the upper coupler may not extend beyond the semitrailer's swing radius (measured from the center line of the kingpin to the front corner of the semitrailer). The rule would prevent States from imposing an overall length limit on such vehicles operating in semitrailer or double-trailer combinations and would guarantee tractor-semitrailer combinations of such vehicles the same access to points of loading and unloading as "pup" semitrailers in 23 CFR 658.19(a).

This action would amend the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR's) to exempt from parts 390 through 399, motor carriers and drivers operating in interstate commerce that are providing direct assistance as a part of regional and local emergency relief efforts. Motor carriers and drivers would be exempt from parts 390 through 399 during certain emergencies declared by the President of the United States, governors of States, regional directors of the FHWA's Office of Motor Carriers, and federal, State, or local police officers who have declared emergencies or who have requested assistance as proposed. Abstract: This action would determine the procedures necessary for implementation of section 1054 of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 (ISTEA), which provides for a temporary waiver of State matching funds. Section 1054 of the ISTEA allows a State to request an increase in the Federal share of the construction costs of a qualifying Federal-aid highway project, based on certification by a State's governor that sufficient funds are not available to pay costs of the non-Federal share. A State may receive up to 100 percent of Federal funds on a project for a period through September 30, 1993. Should the State fail to make timely reimbursement, 50 percent would be deducted per year from the State's apportionment funds until the deferred amount is paid.

Abstract: As a result of recent enactment of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA), Federal funds became available to the States to, among other things, remove nonconforming signs to comply with the Highway Beautification Act of 1965. This action was to consider options to ensure effective State programs for compliance, and was considered significant because of substantial public interest. However, further amendment of ISTEA has subsequently given the States discretion as to whether to use highway funds for removal of nonconforming signs; therefore, the NPRM no longer reflected current law and was withdrawn.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC app 2507; 49 USC app 2508

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 355

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Sections 207-209 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984 establish a process whereby any State law or regulation pertaining to commercial motor vehicle safety in interstate commerce will be reviewed and analyzed by the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Regulatory Review Panel (Safety Panel). The Safety Panel is to determine if such law or regulation has the same effect as, is less stringent than, or is additional to or more stringent than the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations. The proposed regulations would provide guidelines for a continuous regulatory review of State laws and regulations; would establish deadlines for a State to achieve compatibility with the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations; and would establish procedures for the Federal Highway Administrator to determine whether or not a State law or regulation may be in effect and enforced with respect to interstate commercial motor vehicle safety.

Abstract: This rulemaking amended section 391.43 of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSRs) to permit certain licensed health care professionals to perform physical examinations of commercial motor vehicle drivers. The FHWA addressed this issue in response to numerous requests received from motor carriers, medical facilities, physicians, physician assistants (PAs), and nurse practitioners (NPs) to allow PAs and NPs to perform physical examinations under the supervision of licensed doctors of medicine or osteopathy. This action permits drivers to have their physical examinations performed at more convenient times and locations and perhaps at a lower cost. This action requires health care professionals, who perform the physical examination, to become more knowledgeable of the FMCSRs requirements. The certification and determination that a driver is physically qualified in accordance with the requirements of 49 CFR 391 would remain with the licensed doctor of medicine or osteopathy.

Significance: Nonsignificant

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 24; 49 CFR 1.48(cc)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule amended 49 CFR 24.103(d), which concerns the qualifications of appraisers who value property for Federal and federally assisted projects. The amendment provides that, if a detailed appraisal is necessary, and the agency employs a contract (fee) appraiser to perform the appraisal, such appraiser must be certified in accordance with Title XI of the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA), PL 101-73, 103 Stat. 183, 511, August 9, 1989. Title XI of the FIRREA requires the establishment of State programs for the licensing and certification of appraisers performing appraisals for federally related transactions under the jurisdiction of Federal financial institution regulatory agencies. Using such certified appraisers for detailed appraisals of property subject to the Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisition Policies Act (Uniform Act), 42 U.S.C. 4601-4655, will strengthen the integrity of the appraisal process. This rule applies to the real property acquisition activities of 18 Federal agencies including the Department of Transportation.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1401

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.208

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In 1988, NHTSA added a provision to Standard No. 208, Occupant Crash Protection, allowing vehicles that fail one or more of the injury criteria in the standard to still be considered as complying with the standard if the manufacturer could show it had exercised "due care" in the design and construction of the vehicle. The Motor Vehicle Safety Act requires all safety standards to be expressed in "objective terms." Further, the courts have held that compliance with safety standards must be determined by objective measurements and without recourse to any subjective determinations. The inherently subjective nature of a "due care" determination precludes the use of that concept as an aspect of compliance with the safety standards. Therefore, the "due care" provisions would be proposed to be deleted from the crash protection standard.

Proposed Rule Stage

Abstract: On April 17, 1991, the agency published a final rule to extend its requirements to multipurpose passenger vehicles, trucks, and buses with a gross vehicle weight rating (GVWR) of 6,000 pounds or less (56 FR 15510, effective September 1, 1993). This notice proposes to delay for one year the effective date of the final rule requirements to light trucks. Abstract: On October 30, 1990 (55 FR 45722), the agency amended standard 214 to amend the current side door strength requirements in passenger cars to add dynamic side impact protection requirements. The NHTSA Authorization Act of 1991 directed the agency to initiate rulemaking to extend these requirements to light trucks and vans having a GVWR of less than 10,000 lbs. In response to this statutory mandate, the ANPRM announced that the agency is considering the issuance of this proposal. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1657; 15 USC 2002

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 531

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: NHTSA terminated a rulemaking proceeding to amend the MY 1990 CAFE standard, having decided that retaining the statutory standard, instead of lowering it, would not have any adverse safety consequences. However, the court ruled that NHTSA had not adequately analyzed the safety issue and it was remanded to the agency for further explanation. The agency is soliciting comments from all interested persons on the effect on highway safety. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 208 requires safety belt systems in the front outboard seating positions of passenger cars to adjust automatically by means of emergency locking retractors. Horkey and Associates petitioned the agency to prohibit the use of emergency locking retractors as it is alleged they do not provide adequate protection against occupant rebound in rear impacts. The petition, and a related one from Environmental Research and Safety Technologists of Flagstaff, Arizona, were granted (RIN 2127-AD08).

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1407; 15 USC 1410

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 552; 49 CFR 571

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard (FMVSS) No. 301 specifies requirements for the integrity of motor vehicle fuel systems so that fires that result from fuel spillage during and after motor vehicle crashes may be reduced. This standard applies to passenger cars and school buses, and to multipurpose passenger vehicles, trucks, and buses that have a gross vehicle weight rating of 10,000 pounds or less. The California Highway Patrol (CHP) petitioned the agency to specify requirements in FMVSS No. 301 to reduce fuel spills from the fuel tank or fuel lines on heavy trucks and truck tractors over 10,000 pounds. The fuel spills, according to the CHP, are due to damage caused by road debris. On May 2, 1988, the agency published a grant of petition for rulemaking in the Federal Register for the CHP petition. However, the agency is granting the petition pending the results of its forthcoming investigation of fuel-tank fires in over-the-road trucks, on which research is presently underway.

Abstract: Accidents involving heavy trucks have a disproportionate (higher) fatality rate than all other motor vehicles. This rulemaking proposes to reinstate stopping distance performance requirements in Standard 121 so as to help improve heavy vehicle braking performance and hence reduce the number of accidents involving these vehicles. Although a court decision found that Standard 121, as it then existed, was unenforceable, additional accident data and technical review have persuaded NHTSA that the court's requirements can now be met.

One of the specified injury criteria is the Head Injury Criterion, or HIC, which was developed to assess the likelihood of head injuries. The available evidence indicates that belted occupants in frontal collisions are not at risk for a serious head injury when their head does not contact any vehicle surface or component but may be at risk for neck injury in those non-contact crashes. This action will propose to substitute a neck injury criterion for the HIC in non-contact crashes.

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.108

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: NHTSA proposes a comprehensive review of headlighting requirements of FMVSS No. 108 which may be simplified, while being consistent with motor-vehicle safety. The agency has concentrated its efforts into five principal areas. This action addresses the first of these, which is the feasibility of a standard directed toward onboard original-equipment headlighting performance rather than toward performance of individual aftermarket headlamps in a laboratory environment. This action is considered significant because of safety implications. Based on comments received, a second NPRM was issued.

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On January 8, 1981 (46 FR 2136) the agency published a notice of proposed rulemaking on rear underride crashes relative to small vehicles colliding with the rear of a heavy vehicle (a vehicle with a gross vehicle weight rating (GVWR) greater than 10,000 pounds). Rear underride occurs when the front of the smaller vehicle slides under ("underrides") the rear end of the larger vehicle. The agency received over 100 comments on the proposal, some of which raised issues about possible alternatives to the proposal and about the burdens of the proposal on small businesses. The SNPRM sought to retain the safety benefits of the earlier proposal while meeting the concerns about potential small business impacts. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 1.50; 49 CFR 571.214

Abstract: This action proposes to amend standard 214 to clarify how the quasi-static door strength test procedure is to be conducted in case of several types of vehicles. During rulemaking that extended the quasi-static test requirements to trucks, buses, and multipurpose passenger vehicles with a gross vehicle weight rating of 10,000 pounds or less several issues were raised concerning the application of the current test procedure to certain types of vehicles. This action solicits comments on this proposal to amend the standard to resolve these issues. This proposal addresses the positioning of the loading cylinder in testing four different types of doors: 1) a door whose lower edge is not at all points parallel to the sill; 2) a door whose lower or rear edge has molding; 3) double cargo doors; and 4) a door which does not have a window. This action is considered significant because of the public safety implications.

Abstract: This rulemaking to establish a new standard for passenger-car brake systems grew out of NHTSA's efforts to harmonize its standards with international ones. After review of comments to the NPRM and SNPRM, a second SNPRM proposed refined and revised test procedures and performance requirements which should achieve harmonization while being fully consistent with the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act. The new standard 135 would replace standard 105 as it applies to passenger cars. This action was originally considered significant, but subsequent events have resulted in fewer issues to be resolved, and this project is no longer considered as such.

Abstract: The NPRM proposal for a roadway illumination system to serve as a vehicle-based alternative to existing equipment-based headlighting systems will not proceed at this time. Instead, the SNPRM proposed minimum photometric values for certain lower beam test points and test zones above the horizontal where only photometric maxima are presently specified, so as to maintain headlighting systems' ability to illuminate overhead traffic signs. The SNPRM also proposed to ensure that replaceable light sources intended for replacement purposes, other than the HB types presently incorporated, would have the dimensions and performance of the original replaceable light source and would require the manufacturers of such light sources to file dimensional information with NHTSA in a public docket pursuant to a new regulation, proposed part 584, "Replaceable Light Source Dimensional Information."

2503. AIR-BRAKE SYSTEMS; PNEUMATIC TIMING REQUIREMENTS

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The NPRM proposed to require for towing vehicles that actuation at the interface between towing vehicles and trailers be at least as fast as actuation at the towing vehicle brake chambers; however, review of comments determined the requirement would lead to loss of manufacturing flexibility by requiring more custom design at unjustified additional cost. Therefore, that portion of this project was terminated in the SNPRM. In that same document, different requirements were proposed concerning control line pressure differential. The final action amended the pneumatic timing requirements as to control line pressure balance by adopting a new dynamic test procedure for determining the control signal pressure differential.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.213

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Center for Auto Safety was granted a petition for rulemaking to amend FMVSS 213. Child Seating Systems, to delete Section S5.5.2(i), which allowed the use of warning labels to notify consumers of adjustment positions which should not be used in an automobile. This final action will prevent child-seat manufacturers from resorting to using warning labels to permit adjustments to dangerous positions as long as the seat has a label warning consumers not to do so.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1407

Abstract: This action permits a new item of glass-plastic, Item 15B, tempered glass-plastic glazing, to be used anywhere in a motor vehicle, excluding the windshield. However, there was insufficient data to support removal of Test No. 1 for Item 3 glazing and action on that issue was deferred.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 45 USC 431; 45 USC 438; PL 100-342

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 218

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: FRA regulations prescribe minimum requirements for certain railroad operating rules and practices, including blue signal protection of railroad employees engaged in the inspection, testing, repair and servicing of rolling equipment. Such activities may require employees to work on, under, or between such equipment and subject them to the danger of personal injury posed by any movement of such equipment. Train and yard crews are excluded from blue signal protection, unless assigned to perform such work on railroad rolling equipment that is not part of the train or yard movement and that they have been called to operate. FRA proposes to restate the exclusionary language to accommodate augmentation of a crew by using a "utility" employee which will permit increased efficient use of employees by the railroads. Alternative safety procedures are proposed to prevent injury. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest for safety of railroad employees.

Abstract: Historically, the source document for the Passenger Origin-Destination Survey was the auditor's coupon of the ticket. Until recently, these coupons provided all the information that was needed for the Survey. In the last few years, the carriers have begun using trip passes in conjunction with the tickets, thereby eliminating some of the data that is required to be reported in the Survey. Other innovations used by the industry, such as funnel flights and code-sharing, have impacted the Survey and obscured some of the data that is required to be reported, such as change of planes and junction points. This rulemaking will explore whether there are alternative sources for the data and modernize the collection system to keep pace with the industry.

Abstract: The Sanitary Food Transportation Act of 1990 (SFTA; Pub. L. 101-500) requires the Secretary of Transportation, in consultation with the Secretaries of Agriculture and Health and Human Services and the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, to issue regulations concerning the transportation of food, food additives, drugs, devices, and cosmetics in motor and rail vehicles also used to transport nonfood products that could pose an unreasonable danger to human or animal health when so transported. This rulemaking will implement the statutory requirements. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public and congressional interest.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, November 1, 1989.

Abstract: Maintenance of appropriate information about pipelines is essential for emergency response, compliance with safety standards, and other purposes. As part of a continuing policy to adopt similar requirements for gas and hazardous liquid pipelines where appropriate for safety, this action proposes to equalize as far as possible the requirements that gas and liquid operators keep maps and records to show the location and other characteristics of pipelines. Operators would also be required to keep an inventory of pipe and annually report mileage and other facts. In addition, operators would be required to provide certain information to State agencies upon request. This is a significant action because of congressional and State concerns about the need for appropriate public officials to have pipeline information.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed action would amend the reporting requirements of 14 CFR 234 to require the on-time reporting performance of all flights, in response to an Inspector General's audit finding and recommendation, and to various industry comments. Under the current regulations, flights that are cancelled or late by 15 minutes or more because of a mechanical problem are not reported. The proposal would also require reporting of the aircraft tail number and wheels-up and wheels down time for each flight. This data would be used, among other things, to reduce airport delays. Abstract: Currently commuter air carriers providing scheduled passenger service file two quarterly traffic schedules. One schedule summarizes nine traffic elements while the other schedule provides the origination and destination for each carrier's on-line passengers. The Department has installed a new traffic and market data system for certificated and foreign air carriers called the T-100 system. This system could be used for commuter air carriers, providing the Department with one automated traffic and market data system for all carriers. Abstract: The Federal pipeline safety standards governing hazardous liquid pipelines do not apply to pipelines operated at 20 percent or less of the specified minimum yield strength of the pipe. When the standards were issued in 1969, these pipelines were thought not to pose an unreasonable risk to public safety because of their low operating stress levels. Since then, however, a number of accidents have been reported on low stress level pipelines, particularly involving harm to the environment. This rulemaking action would assess the need to extend the Federal safety standards to cover these low stress level pipelines (except gathering lines), and, if warranted, apply the standards to those pipelines.

2576. + HYDROSTATIC TESTING OF CERTAIN HAZARDOUS LIQUID PIPELINES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2002

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Recent accidents involving petroleum pipelines demonstrate the potential for catastrophic losses if a large spill occurs in a populated area. Studies have shown that accidents attributable to latent material or construction defects can be prevented by restricting operation to not more than 80 percent of a prior test or operating pressure. In this regard, significant results have been achieved by imposing such an operating restriction on pipelines that carry highly volatile liquids. This rule would extend this existing safety standard to all hazardous liquid pipelines that are subject to Part 195. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest in the safety implications.

proven effective in minimizing the potential for accidents. Gas operators are required to have such procedures, but the existing requirements lack the clarity and specificity needed to assure a uniform, broad-based level of safety for all pipelines. Therefore, this proposal would clarify the existing requirements, make them more comprehensive, and, where appropriate, similar to the more detailed requirements applicable to the operation and maintenance of hazardous liquid pipelines. Also, a few additions and clarifying changes would be made to the hazardous liquid pipeline requirements. This is a significant action because of the need for adequate procedures to provide a basis for training and qualifying operator personnel.

2579. + EXCAVATION DAMAGE PREVENTION PROGRAMS FOR GAS AND HAZARDOUS LIQUID PIPELINES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672(a); 49 USC 2002(e)

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192; 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Each year a large percentage of gas and hazardous liquid pipeline accidents are caused by excavation damage. Based on existing rules intended to reduce damage to gas pipelines in populated areas, this action would require hazardous liquid and carbon dioxide pipeline operators to provide damage prevention programs, and gas operators would have to expand their programs to cover rural areas. This is a significant action because of widespread interest in the use of "one-call" programs to prevent damage to buried pipelines. Where appropriate, operators would have to participate in "one-call" programs.

The rule is necessary to implement annex III of the 1973 International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships, to increase the level of safety associated with the transportation of

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Corrosion is a major cause of gas and hazardous liquid pipeline accidents. A safety standard applicable to liquid pipelines requires operators to examine exposed pipe for evidence of external corrosion and, if harmful corrosion is found, to investigate further to determine the extent of the corrosion. As part of a continuing policy to adopt similar requirements for gas and liquid pipelines where appropriate for safety, this action proposes that exposed gas pipelines with evidence of harmful corrosion be investigated to determine the extent of the corrosion.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672; 49 USC 1804

Abstract: In a few reported instances, excessive amounts of hydrogen sulfide were introduced into natural gas pipelines. High concentrations of hydrogen sulfide are very detrimental to steel pipelines and extremely toxic. This action examined the need to establish a maximum allowable concentration and other control measures. Based upon public comments and the views of its gas pipeline advisory committee, RSPA has decided that the proposed rule is unnecessary to public safety.

Abstract: Many gas distribution operators look for signs of dying vegetation as a leak survey technique. This technique is not as effective as other available methods, and leaks have occurred in areas found safe by vegetation surveys. This action would require the use of alternative methods to meet the leak survey requirements, where appropriate, and clarify that leakage surveys must be conducted at least at 3-year minimum intervals on cathodically unprotected pipelines that are not electrically surveyed for corrosion.

Abstract: This proposal was to eliminate or qualify the "grandfather clause" in the gas pipeline safety regulations that permits operation of an existing rural or offshore gas pipeline found to be in satisfactory condition at the highest actual operating pressure to which the segment was subjected during the five years preceding July 1, 1970, or, in the case of an offshore gathering line, July 1, 1976. Abstract: The gas pipeline safety standards in 49 CFR part 192 currently incorporate by reference the National Fire Protection Association Standards Nos. 58 and 59 for the design, installation, and operation of petroleum gas systems. However, these NFPA standards are not referenced for the design, installation, and operation of peak shaving plants used to supply petroleum gas to an otherwise natural gas distribution system, although NFPA Standard No. 59 is meant for that purpose. This action would extend the incorporation by reference of Standard No. 59 to include peak shaving plants. It also would redefine the term "petroleum gas" consistent with commercial usage.

Significance: NonsignificantLegal Authority: 46 USC app 1114CFR Citation: 46 CFR 340Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This revision would broaden the scope of the regulations to include chassis (a specialized trailer used in transporting a container) and chassis suppliers in the scheme of priority use and allocations of shipping services, containers and port facilities and services for national security and defense related operations to ensure that chassis are available for use by a defense agency in time of deployment of U.S. Armed Forces. The rule would be exempt from APA requirements of section 553(a)(1), since "a military or foreign affairs function of the United States" is involved.

Abstract: This final rule amends MARAD's regulations regarding transfers of interests in U.S. documented vessels and approval of vessel mortgagees and trustees pursuant to PL 100-710. Publication of an interim final rule permitted implementation of the new law without a hiatus and minimized transitional uncertainty among the corporate and financial communities that are affected. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest. Significance: Agency Priority
Legal Authority: 46 USC app 1114(b)
CFR Citation: 46 CFR 383
Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Revision of 46 CFR part 383 conforms many of its provisions to those in the regulations governing the calculation of guideline rates by the Maritime Administration (MARAD) for bulk preference cargoes carried on bulk vessels (46 CFR part 382). MARAD's experience in administering the bulk vessel regulations has demonstrated the need for comparable provisions in the liner regulations. The principal amendment is that MARAD would use the actual operating costs of each vessel type in the carriage of preference cargoes, rather than use a system of combined average and actual costs that has not accomplished its objectives. This rulemaking was considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: These amendments affect those subsidized vessel operators receiving maintenance and repair (M&R) subsidy under their subsidy agreements. One amendment eliminates the disallowance of M&R subsidy payment where the operator does not timely file a repair summary or supplement with MARAD. The other clarifies that the Department of Transportation (DOT) Office of Inspector General (OIG) performs the required audit of an operator's M&R cost, pursuant to agreement between MARAD and the OIG.

2660. DEFINITION OF "BRAND LABEL" FOR WINE; AND STANDARD WINE CONTAINERS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 27 USC 205(e)

CFR Citation: 27 CFR 4

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: ATF is proposing to amend the regulations to provide that standard wine containers shall be so made and formed so as not to mislead the purchaser. Wine containers shall be held (irrespective of the information container on the label) to be so made and formed as to mislead the purchaser if the Director determines, based on industry practice, or consumer understanding, that the size and shape of the container when considered in conjunction with the placement of the label and the packaging of the product, are likely to mislead the purchaser as to the identity of the product. ATF is proposing to amend the definition of "brand label" to make it consistent with the principal display panel approach of the Fair Packaging and Labeling Act. On September 8, 1992, the standard wine and distilled spirits container issue was withdrawn from the notice of proposed rulemaking.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation will allow winemakers to use new wine treating materials and processes in the production, cellar treatment, and finishing of wine, if such materials and processes are found by the wine industry to be in accordance with "good commercial practice." No alternatives are being considered. No cost is associated with this action. This action will benefit winemakers by giving them more tools to produce quality wine and will benefit consumers by ensuring that more quality wine is available for purchase. This regulation will also allow a slightly more liberal alcohol label tolerance for wines under 7 percent alcohol by volume. This action is being taken because of the difficulty producers of the new light wine cooler products have in meeting the current alcohol label tolerance requirements. No other alternatives are being considered. No cost is associated with this action. This action will benefit producers of light wine cooler products by liberalizing alcohol label tolerance requirements which have been found to be too restrictive.

the following: securities underwriter, letter of credit enhancer, originator of loans to collateralize the debt securities, or a commercial credit provider. Such multiple roles may serve to reduce the quality of disinterested services provided to both issuers and investors and further expose the bank and the depositors to significant liabilities if investors or issuers suffer losses as a result of a bank trustee's failure to act in their best interests. To the extent possible, the OCC would like to ensure that national banks do not assume conflicting roles which may become unmanageable if the security goes into default. Although the opportunity for national banks to serve in more than one capacity with respect to a debt security issue is not new, there appears to be an increased interest by national banks to undertake multiple roles. This regulation will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial (cont)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 12 USC 93a

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 3

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, June 19, 1993.

Abstract: The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991 requires the Federal banking agencies to review their capital standards to ensure that those standards take adequate account of interest rate risk, concentration risk, and risks from nontraditional activities. National banks may become exposed to interest rate risk due to the composition of their asset, liability and off-balance sheet portfolios. This rulemaking will formulate a methodology to include an assessment of interest rate risk in the OCC's capital standards. In addition, this rulemaking will formulate standards to take into account concentration risk and risks from nontraditional activities. The effect on small entities will be considered in the development of this rulemaking.

This proposed rule amends the risk-based capital guidelines to include in the 50% risk weight category certain loans secured by qualifying multifamily residential properties. This proposed rule also will have an effect on the risk weighting of certain privately issued mortgage-backed securities (MBSs). The proposed rule amends the risk-based capital guidelines to permit MBSs to qualify for a 50% risk weight if at the time of origination of the MBSs, they are secured by qualifying multifamily residential property loans which have performed in accordance with the terms of the loans for at least one year. Significance: Regulatory Program

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, August 1, 1993.

Abstract: The OCC is proposing a regulation to implement section 39 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, as added by section 132 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991. Section 39 requires the OCC and other Federal banking agencies to prescribe certain safety and soundness standards for the insured depository institutions and depository institution holding companies for which it is the primary Federal regulator. Standards must be prescribed in three principal areas: (1) Operational and managerial; (2) asset quality, earnings, and stock valuation; and (3) employee compensation. If an insured depository institution does not meet one of these standards, section 39 requires that the institution establish a plan to achieve compliance with the standard that is acceptable to the primary regulator of the institution. The effect on small entities will be considered in the development of this rulemaking.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The OCC, as part of an interagency task force, has designed a uniform multi-agency criminal referral form. The form will facilitate financial institutions' compliance with criminal activity reporting requirements, and will enhance law enforcement agencies' ability to investigate the matters reported in the criminal referrals. The information from the form will also be entered into a new interagency data base which will enhance the regulatory and law enforcement agencies' ability to track criminal and administrative cases. This uniform criminal referral form is intended to replace the various criminal referral forms currently used by Federal bank, thrift, and credit union regulatory agencies and by financial institutions. The purpose of this proposed rule is to conform OCC's regulations to the new procedures for completion and submission of the uniform criminal referral form. This action is intended to improve reporting of crimes relating to financial institutions and to serve as a basis for a new interagency computer data base. This regulation will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

Abstract: The OCC is removing its receivership regulation found at 12 CFR 5.49. The OCC presently makes an "insolvency" determinations when placing a national bank into receivership. Section 133 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991 provides the OCC, and the other Federal banking agencies, with uniform grounds for appointing either a conservator or a receiver. With these statutory changes, the OCC will no longer be required to make this "insolvency" determination; and the receivership regulation will no longer be necessary. This rule will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

Abstract: The OCC is amending its recordkeeping and confirmation requirements for securities transactions undertaken by a national bank for its customers. This final rule broadens an exemption from requirements that banks maintain certain records and establish certain policies and procedures. The exemption for banks with an average of less than 200 securities transactions per year is expanded to 1,000 transactions per year, exclusive of transactions in U.S. Government and Federal agency obligations. The purpose of broadening the exemption from 200 transactions per year to 1,000 transactions per year is to reduce the regulatory burden on banks of all sizes that engage in a low number of securities transactions per year. With respect to transactions, as agent, in U.S. Government and Federal agency obligations, the OCC is amending its regulations to make the OCC's recordkeeping and confirmation requirements consistent with requirements under the Government Securities Act of 1986 (GSA), which governs Government securities brokers and dealers. Abstract: The OCC is proposing a regulation to implement section 304 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991 which requires the Federal banking agencies to adopt uniform regulations prescribing standards for real estate lending. Section 304 defines real estate lending as extensions of credit secured by liens on interests in real estate or made for the purpose of financing the construction of a building or other improvements to real estate, regardless of whether a lien has been taken on the property. In establishing these standards, the agencies are to consider: The risk posed to the deposit insurance funds by such extensions of credit; the need for safe and sound operation of insured depository institutions; and the availability of credit. The agencies are proposing to establish loan-to-value (LTV) ratio limitations on real estate lending by insured depository institutions. Certain transactions would be excluded from the LTV ratio limitations. The effect on small entities will be considered in the development of this rulemaking.

Abstract: This final rule eliminates the requirement for regulated institutions to obtain appraisals by certified or licensed appraisers for real estate-related financial transactions having a value, as defined in the rule, of $100,000 or less; permits regulated institutions to use appraisals prepared for loans insured or guaranteed by an agency of the Federal Government if the appraisal conforms to regulations or other written requirements of the federal insurer or guarantor; excepts appraisals involving one- to four-family residential properties from certain minimum appraisal standards under specified conditions; and adds a definition of "real estate" and "real property" to clarify that the appraisal regulation does not apply to transactions involving mineral rights, timber rights, growing crops, or similar interests in real estate when the transaction does not involve the associated parcel or tract of land. Abstract: The OCC has adopted its proposal to amend its regulations on assessments to increase the assessment schedule marginal rates by 30 percent and set asset brackets for all national banks. Also, the OCC is changing the method used to index the assessment schedule for inflation or deflation. The OCC will now adjust the marginal assessment rates. In the past, the OCC adjusted the asset size ranges against which the marginal assessment rates were applied. This final rule affects national banks, District of Columbia banks supervised by the OCC and federally licensed branches and agencies of foreign banks. This final rule is intended to provide adequate funding for the increased examination requirements necessitated primarily by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991, but also by other changes in the industry. This regulation will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

Abstract: The OCC is adopting a final rule to implement section 38 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, as added by section 131 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991. Section 38 requires each Federal banking agency to implement prompt corrective action for the institutions that it regulates. The agencies have also revised their rules of practice for hearings to establish procedures for the issuance of directives and other actions required under prompt corrective action. Section 38 requires or permits the agencies to take certain supervisory actions when an insured depository institution falls within one of five specifically enumerated capital categories. It also restricts or prohibits certain activities and requires the submission of a capital restoration plan when an insured institution becomes undercapitalized. The regulation is necessary to establish the capital levels at which institutions will be deemed to come within the five capital categories. The regulation also establishes procedures for issuing and contesting prompt corrective action directives including directives requiring the dismissal of directors and senior executive (cont)

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

General

Section 5 of Executive Order 12291

and section 602 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act both require that a semiannual agenda of regulations under development and review be published in the Federal Register. The next semiannual agenda of the Internal Revenue Service will be published in the Federal Register in April of 1993.

Description

This semiannual agenda of regulations lists all projects within the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) as of July 31, 1992, for the development of regulations to appear in the Code of Federal Regulations. This agenda lists existing regulations under development by the Offices of the Assistant Chief Counsel (Corporate), Assistant Chief Counsel (Field Services), Assistant Chief Counsel (Financial Institutions and Products), Assistant Chief Counsel (Income Tax and Accounting), Assistant Chief Counsel (Passthroughs & Special Industries), Assistant Chief Counsel (Criminal Tax), Assistant Chief Counsel (General Litigation), Associate Chief Counsel (Employee Benefits and Exempt Organizations), and Associate Chief Counsel (International) of the Office of Chief Counsel, IRS. The following information is provided for each regulation project: The title, priority status; its effect, if any, on small business; the part of the Code of Federal Regulations affected; the legal authority for issuing the regulation; a brief description of the problem to be addressed in the regulation; and a timetable of action taken and to be taken. Under Additional Information, there is provided the control number of the project within the Chief Counsel's office and the names and telephone numbers of the drafting and reviewing attorneys.

In an effort to reduce burden and promote growth, the IRS and Treasury continually review existing regulations and regulation projects. In Notice 92-12 in the Internal Revenue Bulletin (I.R.B. 92-16), issued in April 1992, the Internal Revenue Service proposed to close 113 regulation projects and withdraw 9 proposed regulations. This review was intended to identify areas where the IRS could, by closing or withdrawing the project or regulation, reduce the regulatory burden without a significant diminution in the availability of necessary guidance. Many of these projects have become virtually obsolete or involve guidance in an area in which the operative requirements are fairly straightforward and taxpayers are proceeding comfortably without the need for an overlay of regulatory requirements. This semiannual agenda reflects the closing and withdrawing of 84 regulation projects as a result of that effort.

By direction of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Shirley D. Peterson,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 382 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Except as provided in regulations, sections 382(b)(3)(A) and (d)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 provide that income or net operating loss for the taxable year that includes the change date is allocated ratably. Notice 87-79, 1987-2 C.B. 387, states that regulations will, in certain cases, provide taxpayers with an election to allocate income and loss between the periods ending with and after the change date on the basis of a closing of their books. This regulation project provides a closing of the books election, and in cases where the closing of the books election is not made, provides that (1) extraordinary pre-change items are allocated to the pre-change period to net extraordinary pre-change loss that would otherwise be ratably allocated if the post-change period exceeds a threshold and (2) extraordinary post-change items are similarly allocated.

Abstract: A tax matters partner (a "TMP") of a partnership must keep each partner informed of all administrative and judicial proceedings for the adjustment at the partnership level of partnership items. A TMP also may file a petition for readjustment, file an administrative adjustment, and extend the statute of limitations on behalf of all partners. A partnership may only designate a general partner as the TMP. If a partnership does not designate a TMP, a general partner will be designated as the TMP either by statute or by the Internal Revenue Service. If it is impractical to designate a general partner as the TMP, the Service will designate a limited partner as the TMP. Because a limited liability company does not have a general partner, a limited liability company cannot designate a TMP. Guidance is needed that will allow a limited liability company to designate a TMP.

2781. ● TO CLARIFY THAT THE SERVICE HAS AUTHORITY TO AMEND THE STANDARD INDUSTRY FARE LEVEL (SIFL) AIRCRAFT VALUATION FORMULA

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 61(a) Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Taxpayers want more timely publication of the Standard Industry Fare Level (SIFL) rates, preferably publication in the last quarter of the year before the year in which the rates will be applicable. Difficulties arising from the need to coordinate with the Department of Transportation which furnishes the rates make it virtually impossible to satisfy the request for timeliness under the current system. Therefore, the Service proposes to adopt a Cost of Living adjustment to be published in the last quarter of each year. The rate adjustment will be applied to a base SIFL rate. The Service believes that adopting a COLA adjustment will meet taxpayers needs for timely information and that it will significantly reduce the volume of telephone calls that the Service currently receives on this issue.

2818. SCOPE OF GENERAL UTILITIES REPEAL

Legal Authority: 26 USC 337(d) Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Tax Reform Act of 1986 (the "Act") repealed the last vestiges of the General Utilities doctrine ("GU repeal"), thereby requiring corporations to recognize gain in most cases upon the distribution of appreciated property to their shareholders. The Act granted the Secretary authority to promulgate regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Act. It has been determined that GU repeal can be circumvented by conversion of for-profit corporations to tax-exempt entities and other transactions involving tax-exempt entities. This project will develop regulations to assure corporate gain or loss recognition in such transactions.

years during which the income was earned by the trust. This is accomplished by including, for purposes of tentative computations, a fraction of the income received from the trust in the beneficiaries' income for 3 of the 5 preceding years. Those 3 years are determined by taking from the 5 preceding years the year with the highest taxable income and the year with the lowest. The fraction of the income included in each of the 3 years is based upon the number of years during which the income is accumulated by the trust. The average yearly additional tax determined by recomputing the tax for the 3 years is then multiplied by the number of years during which the distribution was accumulated. The resulting tax so computed may be offset by a credit for any taxes previously paid by the trust with respect to the accumulated income. (cont)

The alternatives are 1) to conclude the foreign partner is engaged in U.S. trade or business because any member of the tiered partnership arrangements is; and 2) to conclude the foreign partner is not engaged in a U.S. trade of business where the first tier partnership is not so engaged. Other considerations include the meaning of "principal place of business" and whether an entity may have more than one, and attribution rules applicable to the entities. A problem with the second alternative is that it arguably gives priority to form over substance, however, there are several methods by which the first alternative could be avoided and their appears to be no policy reason to prefer one form of doing business over another. Furthermore, no additional tax would be collected by following alternative 1.

Abstract: Section 1398(g) which enumerated certain attributes of individual debtors that pass to the bankruptcy estate in cases under chapter 7 of or chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code was enacted in 1980. 1984 (TRA 1984), Public Law 98-369. As a result of the new method of taxing life insurance companies enacted in the TRA 1984, the bottom-line consolidation abuse potential is eliminated, thus eliminating the need for section 1.1502-47(d)(12)(C). Removing this provision will remove an unnecessary restraint on transactions, and a potential device to voluntarily deconsolidate.

2954. CLARIFICATION OF PERIOD DURING WHICH INTEREST IS ALLOWED WITH RESPECT TO CERTAIN OVERPAYMENTS

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 301

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under section 6611(b)(1), if an overpayment is credited against an underpayment, interest on the overpayment runs from the date of the overpayment until the due date of the amount against which the credit is taken. Section 301.6611-1(h)(2)(v) of the regulations provides that in the case of a credit against assessed interest, the due date is the assessment of such interest. Section 301.6611-1(h)(2)(vi) of the regulations provides that in the case of a credit against an amount assessed as an additional amount, addition to the tax or assessable penalty, the due date is the date of assessment. A literal application of these regulations' provisions may give a taxpayer interest where none should be paid. The proposed regulations correct this problem by changing the due dates of interest and certain additions to the tax.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 6695 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1.6695-1 (b)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 1.6695-1 (b) currently requires that, with one exception, income tax return preparers must manually sign returns or claims for refund signed by them. The exception does allow preparers of returns and refund claims for nonresident aliens to use facsimile signatures under certain circumstances. Section 645 (a) of the Internal Revenue Code, added by section 1403 (a) of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, requires trusts, with certain limited exceptions, to use a calendar taxable year. The calendar year requirement means that, instead of being able to spread their duty to sign trust returns over the entire course of a year, preparers must now sign all trust returns before April 15 in order to present them to clients for timely filing. To alleviate this hardship, we are examining the advisability of permitting income tax return preparers of Forms 1041, U.S. Fiduciary Income Tax Returns, to use facsimile signatures and under what conditions such use would be permitted and appropriate.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 7425 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 301Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 301.7425-4(b)(3)(ii), which deals with excess expenses incurred by a purchaser of property after a foreclosure sale and before redemption, provides that the Service may request a written itemized statement from the purchaser regarding excess expenses. If the purchaser does not respond within 15 days, it shall be presumed that no excess expenses are payable. However, even after the 15-day period expires, a payment for excess expenses shall be made after the redemption within a reasonable time following the verification by the district director of a written itemized statement submitted by the purchaser. There is no specific time frame set for the purchaser to submit his claim after the redemption and after the expiration of the 15-day period. We are examining the feasibility of establishing a 30-day time limit within which a final claim for excess expenses must be submitted by the purchaser after the sale of the property. This will eliminate claims for reimbursement of expenses that may be submitted after redemption and sale of the property, where the liens were fully satisfied and released, and all surplus funds returned to the taxpayer.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 7426 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 301Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The existing language of the regulations under IRC section 7426 is ambiguous and confusing. It has been used in at least one court case as support for the proposition that whenever the Service attempts to seize property of a delinquent taxpayer that is in the custody of a Government agency, regardless of the form of the seizure (i.e., service of a Notice of Levy or of a Request for Setoff), such a seizure is always a setoff, and any third party injured by such a seizure has no cause of action under IRC section 7426. This is not the Service's position. The regulations should be clarified to rectify this misinterpretation.

The regulations will address the use of the tables, which will be published separately, and will contain rules for making an election where charitable transfers are involved. It will also include rules for rounding the applicable interest rates. ### 3069. TAXATION OF SETTLEMENT FUNDS

Legal Authority: 26 USC 468B Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: If a liability requires payment to another person and arises out of tort, the obligor is permitted a deduction only as payments are made to such person. See IRC Section 461(h)(2)(c). The obligor is not permitted to accrue a deduction when it makes payment to a settlement fund; rather, it is permitted to accrue a deduction only as payments are made from the settlement fund to the person to which the liability is owed. IRC Section 468B provides that under certain limited circumstances a payment to a settlement fund in respect of tort liability is deductible by the obligor. The provision applies only to payments made to a designated settlement fund. The regulations will address the taxation of a designated settlement fund along with escrow accounts and other similar funds. Under prior law, income earned on amounts deposited in settlement funds were not subject to tax until distribution to the claimants. See Rev. Rul. 71-119, 1979-1 C.B. 103; Rev. Rul. 70-567, 1970-2 C.B. 133. (cont)

Treasury believes that in order to fully implement the Congressional intent, the regulations under section 708(b)(1)(B) of the Code need to be amended to insure that the pre-contribution gain or loss is properly accounted for when a partnership liquidates and is reformed. Abstract: The regulations are proposed as part of Treasury's ongoing simplification efforts. The proposed regulations would modify the computation of earnings and profits (E&P) of foreign corporations by allowing taxpayers to account for inventory costs using capitalization methods used for financial accounting purposes rather than the uniform capitalization rules required by section 263A. The proposed regulations would also permit reliance on financial accounting conventions in computing depreciation for foreign corporations deriving less than 20% of gross income from U.S. sources and maintaining assets with tax bases not materially different from financial book bases. Use of these simplified rules may result in an accounting method change which would ordinarily require the filing of Form 3115 (Application for Change in Accounting Method). However, the proposed regulations waive this filing requirement if its conditions are met.

Abstract: These regulations concern the source, character and income tax treaty treatment of substitute interest and dividend payments made pursuant to a transfer of securities described in section 1058(a) or a substantially similar transaction between a U.S. person and a foreign person. To determine the source and character of cross-order substitute payments, a substitute payment will be treated as interest or dividend income received with respect to the transferred security. Where a treaty looks to U.S. law to define a payment subject to a withholding tax, a substitute payment will be treated as interest or dividend income with respect to the transferred security.

Abstract: The temporary regulations under section 382 of the Code require loss corporations to identify their five percent shareholders and any five percent shareholders of the loss corporation's corporate shareholders. Foreign corporations do not always have the ability to identify their five percent shareholders. This project will consider whether the attribution, aggregation, and segregation rules under section 382 should be modified when applied to foreign corporate shareholders of a loss corporation, and whether the Service should substitute a more convenient inquiry for foreign corporate shareholders than the current five percent shareholder identification.

Abstract: On June 28, 1983, the Internal Revenue Service issued news release IR-83-88 requiring new information reporting by trustees of individual retirement accounts and issuers of individual retirement annuities (including accounts and annuities that are simplified employee pensions). Form 5498, Individual Retirement Arrangement Information, was prescribed in the news release as the information return to be used for this purpose. This regulation project will amend the regulations under section 408 to conform them to the reporting requirements announced in the news release. In addition, section 147 of the Tax Reform Act of 1984 amended section 408 (i) of the Code to require that contributions be identified as to the taxable year to which they apply. This amendment will be included in this regulation.

Abstract: Grantor trusts would file 1099's or nothing at all with the Service, and provide a statement of earnings deductions and credits to each grantor. This will enable the Service to match the reported income from grantor trusts with the grantor's tax return. Different procedures will be required for trusts with single grantors as opposed to multiple grantors. Corporation grantors will be included. Other considerations will be whether backup withholdings rules apply and whether there is a legal basis for requiring a payor to report income directly to the grantor rather than the trust.

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Tax Reform Act of 1986 eliminates the requirement that there be a mirrored system of taxation in Guam and the CNMI, and coordinates the tax system of these possessions and of American Samoa with the U.S. tax system. Guam, the CNMI and American Samoa are granted full authority over their own local income tax systems, with respect to income of bona fide residents sourced within or effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within any of these possessions. This grant of authority is effective, however, only if and so long as an implementing agreement is in effect between the possession at issue and the United States which provides for elimination of double taxation, prevention of evasion or avoidance of U.S. tax exchange of information and other administrative matters. Regulations are needed to clarify who qualifies as a bona fide resident and to determine sourcing rules.

Section 1274 of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 clarifies the filing obligations of individuals in the Virgin Islands. Bona fide residents of the Virgin Islands are required to file only one return with the Virgin Islands in which they report worldwide income and identify the sources of income from the Virgin Islands will be required to file two identical tax returns one with the US and one with the Virgin Islands and pay a pro rata amount of tax to each. Regulations are needed to clarify who qualifies as a bona fide resident. It is anticipated that the regulations will provide a facts and circumstances test for determining bona fide resident status. It is unknown what the operational costs will be.

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1.1502-3(f)(2)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Provision would amend section 1.1502-3 of the regulations when dealing with the transfer of section 38 property between members of an affiliated group. Currently section 1.1502-3(f)(2) provides that a transfer of section 38 property between members is not a "disposition" within the meaning of section 47 of the Code. The area of concern has been sales of section 38 property outside the group immediately after the transfer. The amendment to section 1.1502-3(f)(2) would incorporate the holding in Rev. Rul. 82-20, 1982-1 C.B. 6 which would require recapture.

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1.1502-32(T); 26 CFR 1.1502-32(k)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: When a subsidiary declares a dividend while a member of a consolidated group, but pays the dividend after disaffiliation from the consolidated group, the basis of the subsidiary's stock is not reduced by the amount of the dividend. The problem is caused by a difference in timing of the two events (declaration of dividend and payment of dividend) and its effect on earnings and profits and basis. This regulation will alleviate the problem by providing that basis of the subsidiary's stock will be reduced when the subsidiary declares a dividend.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 1502 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1.1502-13

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 1.1502-13 of the Income Tax Regulations provides the general rule that the term intercompany transaction means a transaction during a consolidated return year between corporations which are members of the same group. Section 1.1502-13(f) provides as a general rule that deferred gain attributable to a selling member will be triggered when the asset leaves the group. The regulation, in effect, does not deal with a situation where a selling member exchanges property subject to Section 1.1502-13 rules in a nontaxable exchange to an outside party. Moreover, the current regulations do not adequately cover tax free transactions between members. This proposed regulation will provide rules for certain common nontaxable exchanges within the affiliated group.

Abstract: Currently, the information reporting requirements in the Internal Revenue Code and the Income Tax Regulations allow substitute 1099 Forms to be furnished to recipients in most instances. The requirements for the substitute forms vary, some allowing "substantially similar" forms or "reasonable facsimiles" while some sections actually require copies of official Forms 1099. This project will amend the regulations to specify the requirements for substitute information reporting statements, which will be standardized.

Abstract: In January, 1989, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the predecessor to the OTS, issued an advance notice of proposed rulemaking on early intervention which proposed defining a particular level of capital below which a savings association would be in unsafe and unsound condition to transact business. On December 19, 1991, the President signed into law FDICIA, which addressed this matter under "prompt corrective action".

TREAS—OTS

Completed Actions

The OTS has issued a final rule to implement section 131 of FDICIA which established a regulatory framework that requires or permits the OTS to take certain supervisory actions when savings associations fall within specifically enumerated capital categories. Certain activities are restricted or prohibited and a capital restoration plan must be submitted once a savings association has become undercapitalized. The rule sets forth five capital categories and proposed procedures for issuing and contesting prompt corrective action.
