Abstract: The rulemaking would update category C-24 access permits to include the U-AVLIS technology and provide for an applicant qualifying for a permit to pay $100,000 for an access permit authorizing access to Restricted Data in subcategory A or $200,000 for an access permit authorizing access to Restricted Data in subcategory B. The rule is related to Government initiation of an industrial participation program to encourage private sector participation in the Government's uranium enrichment enterprise. The Department is considering terminating this action.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7101 et seq Department of Energy Organization Act; 15 USC 751 et seq Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 1001; 10 CFR 205.90 to 205.98; 10 CFR 205.191; 10 CFR 205.199D; 10 CFR 205.199E

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations related primarily to procedures for the issuance of Notices of Probable Violations, Interim Remedial Orders for Immediate Compliance, Notice of Proposed Disallowance, Proposed Orders of Disallowance, and Orders of Disallowance, and with other proceedings relating to applications and petitions, pursuant to the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973.

These regulations were eliminated because the statutory predicate for each regulation had previously expired by its terms or been expressly or effectively rescinded or superseded by subsequent legislation. For essentially the same reasons, DOE determined that these rule eliminations did not require prior public comment. The final rule was issued and effective on June 5, 1992.

This action was DOE initiative in implementing the President's regulatory review program.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7112(3); 42 USC 7112(8); 42 USC 7191(e); 42 USC 7254

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 595

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On June 1, 1992, DOE transmitted to the Federal Register for publication a final rule by means of which it eliminated 10 CFR part 595, "Certification of Use of Natural Gas to Displace Fuel Oil," because the program which required the use of the part 595 procedures was itself eliminated in 1983. The part 595 regulations, however, inadvertently were not removed from the Code of Federal Regulations at that time. This correction was one action in implementing the President's regulatory review program.

Additional Information: TIMETABLE CONT: DOE determined that this rule elimination did not require prior public comment because the part 595 regulations became unused in 1983 but inadvertently were not removed from the Code of Federal Regulations at that time. Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On August 17, 1992, DOE published final rules to: eliminate 10 CFR part 220, entitled "Strategic Petroleum Reserve Crude Oil Allocation"; eliminate 10 CFR part 300, entitled "Coal Loan Guarantee Program"; and eliminate 10 CFR part 320, entitled "University Coal Research Laboratories Program." DOE had proposed these eliminations because it no longer perceived a need for the regulations. DOE received no comments on the proposed rescissions. Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7254; 42 USC 7256; 31 USC 6301 to 6308

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 600.31

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action amends DOE's Financial Assistance Rules to permit recipients of research awards, in certain cases, to submit requests for continuation funding without detailed budgetary information on how funds are to be spent in the upcoming period. This will be permitted in those situations in which a new or renewal application contains detailed future year budgets which permit the DOE to evaluate the future years at the time the initial award is made. Should there be a significant change in the direction of the project or the budget, a detailed budget could still be required for a continuation award. This rulemaking was a DOE initiative in implementing the President's regulatory review program.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 2182; 42 USC 5908; PL 99-661

Abstract: The regulation provides procedures and standards for obtaining a waiver of the Government's rights in inventions made under DOE research and development contracts with entities that are not small businesses or nonprofit institutions, and terms and conditions of such waivers. Currently, DOE waiver policy is provided in DOE Procurement Regulations (41 CFR 9-9.109-6). Legal Authority: 42 USC 7254; 5 USC 301; 28 CFR 1621

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 202

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The intent of this regulation is to establish an agencywide procedure for processing and responding to subpoenas or requests for Department of Energy records or testimony by Department of Energy officers and employees. A regulation intended to fulfill this purpose currently exists.

However, relocating its position in the Code of Federal Regulations and some minor language changes would clarify its applicability. In addition, efficient application of the regulation will be promoted by more closely modeling it on the comparable Department of Justice regulation, since the Department of Justice is usually responsible for representing the Department of Energy in such matters. The cost of this action is expected to be de minimis and could effect a savings, since clarification and recodification of the existing regulation may avoid needless litigation.

For those of you who must keep informed about Presidential Proclamations and Executive Orders, there is a convenient reference source that will make researching these documents much easier.

Arranged by subject matter, this edition of the Codification contains proclamations and Executive orders that were issued or amended during the period April 13, 1945, through January 20, 1989, and which have continuing effect on the public. For those documents that have been affected by other proclamations or Executive orders, the codified text presents the amended version. Therefore, a reader can use the Codification to determine the latest text of a document without having to "reconstruct" it through extensive research.

Special features include a comprehensive index and a table listing each proclamation and Executive order issued during the 1945-1989 period—along with any amendments—an indication of its current status, and, where applicable, its location in this volume.

in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR)

GUIDE: Revised January 1, 1992

The GUIDE to record retention is a useful reference tool, compiled from agency regulations, designed to assist anyone with Federal recordkeeping obligations.

The various abstracts in the GUIDE tell the user (1) what records must be kept, (2) who must keep them, and (3) how long they must be kept.

The GUIDE is formatted and numbered to parallel the CODE OF FEDERAL REGULATIONS (CFR) for uniformity of citation and easy reference to the source document.

Compiled by the Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Administration.

953. UNIFORM ADMINISTRATIVE REQUIREMENTS FOR GRANTS AND COOPERATIVE AGREEMENTS

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 74; 45 CFR 92

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: OMB is in the process of issuing updated fiscal and administrative guidance on requirements governing grants (including cooperative agreements). Separate guidance will be provided for grants awarded to governments and those awarded to colleges and universities and other nonprofit organizations. In separating grant rules for governments from those of other recipients, OMB recognizes the unique competence of States to administer grants and embraces the concept of Federalism. HHS regulations governing grants to these entities will have to be updated to accommodate these changes. HHS regulations governing grants to governments which implement OMB Circular A-102 are codified in 45 CFR part 92. Those governing grants to colleges and universities and other nonprofit organizations which implement OMB Circular A-110 are codified in 45 CFR part 74.

958. TITLE VI OF THE CRA OF 1964, SUBPART B-NATIONAL ORIGIN DISCRIMINATION IN PROGRAMS RECEIVING FED. FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE FROM THE DHHS AGAINST PERSONS OF LIMITED ENGLISH PROFICIENCY

Legal Authority: 42 USC 2000d-1

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 80

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 prohibits discrimination based on race, color, or national origin in programs and activities that receive Federal financial assistance. This addition as Subpart B to the Department's Title VI regulation will address a serious barrier to equal access to health and human services--the denial of services and other unequal or discriminatory treatment to persons of Limited English Proficiency (LEP). Persons of LEP tend to be disproportionately represented in certain national origin groups. The inability to communicate with persons of LEP therefore may have the effect of discriminating against certain persons on the basis of national origin. This regulation will establish standards for compliance by recipients and provide guidance to OCR Regional Offices in conducting complaint investigations and compliance reviews. Compliance with these regulations would improve access to services for persons regardless of national origin. The alternative would be to do nothing about the identified problem, which would be detrimental to LEP persons.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: PL 100-93

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 1001; 42 CFR 1005

Abstract: This rule explicitly sets forth the Department's position on the applicability of exclusion authorities contained in 42 CFR 1001. This clarification states that the exclusion provisions are to apply to both (1) the OIG in imposing and proposing program exclusions, and (2) the administrative law judges, the Departmental Appeals Board, and Federal courts in reviewing the imposition of exclusions by the OIG.

968. IMPLEMENTATION OF THE EQUAL ACCESS TO JUSTICE ACT IN AGENCY PROCEEDINGS

Legal Authority: 5 USC 504(c)(1)

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 13

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Equal Access to Justice Act requires agencies to pay attorney fees to parties prevailing against the Government in certain types of administrative proceedings. It requires each agency to issue rules implementing the Act as it applies to these proceedings. As originally enacted, the Act had a sunset clause. A statutory amendment eliminated the sunset provision and made other changes in the Act. The instant regulation would amend 45 CFR part 13 (HHS's regulation implementing the Act) to eliminate the corresponding sunset provision and to make other changes conforming with the statutory changes.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302; 42 USC 405; 42 USC 1383

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404.1500ff, appendix 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Sections 1.00 and 101.00 of appendix 1 to the Disability Regulations (404.1501 through 404.1599) describe those musculoskeletal impairments which are considered severe enough to prevent a person from doing any gainful activity or, in the case of a child under age 18, age-appropriate activities. We are proposing comprehensive revisions to these sections to ensure that the medical evaluation criteria are up to date and consistent with the latest advances in medicine. The Supplemental Security Income program incorporates by reference and uses the same medical criteria as the Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance program.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Sec. 2615 of Pub. L. 98-369 amended sec. 1127 of the Social Security Act to eliminate windfalls that permitted some people who were paid Old-Age, Survivors and Disability Insurance (OASDI) and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits retroactively to receive more in total benefits for the same period than if they had been paid the benefits when regularly due. The two main changes are: (1) SSI benefits will be reduced where retroactive OASDI benefits have been paid before the SSI benefits. Under prior law, reductions could be made only in retroactive OASDI benefits and only when the retroactive SSI had been paid first. (2) OASDI or SSI benefits payable upon reinstatement following a period of suspension or termination will be reduced by the amount of SSI benefits that would not have been paid if the OASDI benefits had been paid when regularly due. We will amend our regulations to conform to the statutory changes. The program savings to SSA are estimated at $5 million a year. Any costs/savings are associated with the legislation being implemented and not with the regulations themselves.

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404.468; 20 CFR 404.469 (New)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing regulations at 20 CFR 404.468(d) provide a vocational rehabilitation exception to the nonpayment of benefits to prisoners provision described at 20 CFR 404.468(a). Under the exception, the nonpayment provision does not apply if a prisoner who is entitled to benefits on the basis of disability is actively and satisfactorily participating in a rehabilitation program which has been specifically approved for the individual by a court of law. In addition, the Secretary must determine that the program is expected to result in the individual being able to do substantial gainful activity upon release and within a reasonable time. No benefits will be paid to the prisoner for any month prior to the approval of the program. The proposed regulations would set out more definitive criteria for applying the exception and would define terms, such as "rehabilitation program," "court of law," and "reasonable time," for purposes of applying the exception.

Abstract: We propose to amend our regulations on redeterminations of Supplementary Security Income eligibility. Our current rules do not include in the redetermination period the month of eligibility, the month of application, or the month of the last redetermination or eligibility update. The redeterminations omit these months and, as a result, we do not have an accounting of all living arrangements, income, and resources for the period of eligibility. We propose to change our rules to include in the redetermination period all months from the first day of the month of eligibility, month of application, or month of eligibility update for the first redetermination and all months from the first day of the month of the last redetermination for subsequent redeterminations.

On a limited basis, we will test procedures designed to improve the disability claims process. These models are designed to provide us with comprehensive information regarding the effect of these procedures on the disability process. They will enable us to measure whether, and to what degree, the disability process may be improved, especially with respect to obtaining the correct decision earlier in the process and shortening aggregate processing times. We will measure costs and determine the feasibility of each model. The intended result of testing these models is to enable SSA to make recommendations for national implementation of improvements to the disability process.

Abstract: Under the current SSI rules, three different formulas are used to calculate the amount of income deemed to an eligible child from his or her ineligible parent(s) when they are living together. The formulas produce different results depending on the type of income (earned versus unearned) and the number of children in the household. This sometimes creates anomalies. The rule would resolve the anomalies by providing that one formula be used regardless of the type of parental income. The formula to be used is the formula now used when the parent(s) has both earned and unearned income.

The first NPRM for revising 42 CFR part 84 was published in the Federal Register on August 27,

Legal Authority: 21 USC 321(h)

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 800

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: As a prerulemaking activity, FDA is developing guidance for manufacturers respecting how FDA would apply existing statutory requirements to the regulation of computer products (i.e., both hardware and software) when such products meet the definition of a medical device under the act.

On September 25, 1987, FDA made available a draft policy guidance intended to clarify how FDA would apply existing statutory requirements to the regulation of such products to provide opportunity for public participation in this activity.

Upon analysis of the public comments on the complex issues pertaining to the regulation of computer products, the agency will decide whether any additional steps are necessary to clarify which computer products meet the definition of a medical device and what level of regulation, if any, is appropriate under the act.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 264

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: FDA will request public comment and information on a plan to promulgate requirements related to the collection, processing, and distribution of human sperm intended for artificial insemination (sperm banking). FDA's intent in regulating sperm banking is to assure that communicable disease is not transmitted through artificial insemination. FDA will request the submission of both scientific and economic information to help the agency in designing a regulatory program that will meet the agency's objectives while being of minimum economic burden to the industry.

Abstract: Acceptable evidence and information exist to show that a subgroup of asthmatics is at moderate to severe risk for a severe reaction upon exposure to sulfites. The agency's primary tool for handling a situation where population subgroups may be at increased risk from a food ingredient that is safe for most people is to use labeling to inform those persons who need or want to avoid the ingredient. The agency issued a final rule, effective January 7, 1987, that requires that when a sulfiting agent is present in a finished food at 10 parts per million or greater, the sulfiting agent must be declared on the label. In addition, FDA issued a final rule, effective August 8, 1986, prohibiting the use of sulfiting agents on raw fruits and vegetables intended to be served or sold raw to consumers (e.g., in salad bars). On December 10, 1987, FDA announced its tentative conclusion that there is no longer a basis to find that the use of sulfiting agents on "fresh" potatoes served or sold unpackaged to consumers is GRAS. On December 19, 1988, FDA proposed to affirm, with specific limitations, that certain other uses of sulfiting agents are GRAS (cont)

CONT: and to establish labeling requirements for sulfiting agents in standardized foods.

On March 15, 1990 (55 FR 9826), FDA issued a final rule prohibiting the use of sulfiting agents on "fresh" potatoes (55 FR 9826) and requested data and information concerning the use of sulfiting agents on frozen potatoes (55 FR 9834).

On August 3, 1990, the United States District Court for the Middle District of Pennsylvania declared the final rule concerning fresh potatoes to be "null and void" based on perceived procedural defects in the rulemaking proceeding. The Government appealed the district court's decision. On May 22, 1991, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit en banc affirmed, by an equally divided vote and without opinion, the decision of the district court invalidating on procedural grounds FDA's final rule revoking the GRAS status of the use of sulfiting agents on fresh potatoes.

FDA's repropoed rule will include the GRAS status of sulfiting agents on both fresh and frozen potatoes.

Abstract: The agency currently requires that all blood and blood components intended for the manufacture of any product be tested for antibody to human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). In instances when the blood of a donor is found to contain antibodies to HIV, some blood centers have initiated a program of voluntary "look-back" to notify consignees of blood and blood components obtained from the donor's prior donations. Consignees may withdraw or destroy such blood and blood products, and may trace and notify recipients. A well-conducted look-back program can provide an effective mechanism for identifying, testing, and counseling transfusion recipients who are at increased risk of HIV infection--those who receive blood from a donor later found to be infected with HIV. The agency is considering a proposal to establish a mandatory look-back program. The proposal would require blood collection facilities to develop a procedure to notify

Abstract: In light of the public health concerns raised by continuing findings concerning the effects of low levels of exposure to lead, particularly exposure by pregnant women, infants, and children, the agency is undertaking a comprehensive effort to further reduce lead levels in food where controllable or avoidable sources of lead addition to food can be identified. The goal of FDA is to reduce consumer's exposure to lead in the diet to the lowest level that can be practicably obtained. FDA has identified several potential sources of dietary lead exposure that it intends to address in proposed rules in its initiatives to reduce exposure to lead in the diet. The agency is also considering rulemaking concerning lead glazed

Abstract: The agency issued an advance notice of proposed rulemaking on August 8, 1989, requesting public comment on possible changes in the labeling of food products regulated by FDA. The agency sought public comment on five areas: 1) whether to revise the requirements for nutrition labeling; 2) whether to change the nutrition label format on food packages; 3) whether to revise the requirements for ingredient labeling; (4) whether to formally define commonly used food descriptions and/or reconsider the use of standards of identity for foods; and (5) how to reasonably permit the use of messages on food labels that link food components to the prevention of disease. The agency also held four public hearings (see September 20, 1989; 54 FR 38806) to gather first-hand the views of consumers, industry, health professionals, and State and local government officials about labeling revisions. The agency issued three proposed regulations on July 19, 1990, that addressed nutrition labeling. On November 8, 1990, the President signed into law the Nutrition Labeling and Education Act of 1990. ### 1070. MANDATORY HACCP SEAFOOD INSPECTION PROGRAM

Legal Authority: 21 USC 342 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 371 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 374 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 42 USC 264 Public Health Service Act

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 123

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Food and Drug Administration is considering incorporating additional Hazard Analysis Critical Control Point (HACCP) principles into its proposal of mandatory seafood inspections. HACCP involves the identification and monitoring of "critical control points" in a processing or other operation the failure of which can render a product adulterated. HACCP has been strongly endorsed by the National Academy of Sciences for incorporation by the seafood industry.

Legal Authority: 21 USC 341; 21 USC 343(h); 21 USC 349; 21 USC 371(a)

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 103

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory.

Within 180 days of EPA final action.

Abstract: In fulfillment of its mandate under the Safe Drinking Water Act, EPA is currently in the midst of reviewing and establishing standards for contaminants in public drinking water such as pathogenic bacteria, pesticides and organic chemicals. When EPA establishes such standards for public drinking water, FDA is required to take appropriate action to amend its regulations for bottled drinking water or state its reasons for not doing so.

1072. ● REPORTING OF ERRORS AND ACCIDENTS RELATING TO BLOOD SAFETY AND WITHDRAWAL OF PREVIOUSLY PROPOSED RULE

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 21 USC 321 Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 331; 21 USC 351 to 353; 21 USC 355; 21 USC 360; 21 USC 360i; 21 USC 371; 21 USC 374; 42 USC 216 Public Health Service Act; 42 USC 262 to 264

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 600; 21 CFR 606

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: All licensed blood establishments are required to notify FDA promptly of errors or accidents in the manufacture of products that may effect the safety, purity, or potency of any biological product (21 CFR 600.14). The reporting of certain errors or accidents occurring in the manufacture of blood and blood components is necessary so that FDA can respond where the public health may be endangered and provide added assurance as to the continued safety, identity, quality, purported quality, and purity of blood and blood components. FDA has determined that errors and accidents that are detected and corrected before a finished unit is removed from the unprocessed inventory and made available for release and distribution do not affect the safety of the blood supply and need not be reported to the agency. The proposed rule not only makes this clear but also provides definitions of "error," "accident," "reportable error," and "reportable accident." The proposed rule would require licensed establishments, unlicensed establishments, and transfusion services to report and keep records. The cost to licensed establishments would be minimal (cont)

Unlicensed establishments are already required to keep records and conduct investigations. Under the proposed rule they would have to establish reporting procedures and report to FDA. The transfusion services would have to assure their recordkeeping and investigation procedures are sufficient and establish reporting procedures. Reporting by transfusions services is expected to be minimal.

1077. ● MEDICAL DEVICES; INFANT APNEA MONITOR; DEVELOPMENT OF MANDATORY STANDARD*Legal Authority: 21 USC 360dCFR Citation: 21 CFR 800Legal Deadline: None

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 312Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The agency has determined that several steps should be taken to facilitate the early phases of clinical investigations of drug and biologic products, as part of the larger effort to speed the development and approval of promising new therapeutic products, without jeopardizing the safety of human study subjects or the quality of the data obtained. These steps are intended to eliminate the need by investigators to submit, and for FDA to review and approve, protocols that present minimal risk to subjects and do not require FDA involvement as part of an efficient drug development effort.

FDA is considering an amendment to 21 CFR Part 312 to exempt certain clinical investigations from the investigational new drug (IND) requirements, provided that specific requirements are met. The investigator would have to submit protocols for qualified studies to an institutional review board (IRB) rather than FDA.

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 170; 21 CFR 171; 21 CFR 174Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is proposing a policy for determining when the likelihood/extent of migration of a component of a food contact article is so trivial as not to require regulation as a food additive. A substance considered under this Threshold of Regulation Policy would undergo an abbreviated review by the FDA, as opposed to the extensive review and formal issuance of a regulation required for other food additives. This proposal lists the criteria which must be met for a food-contact material to be reviewed under this policy and identifies the types of data that FDA will need for its review.

FDA has examined the economic implications of the proposed rule as required by Executive Order 12291 and finds that this proposed rule is not a major rule as defined by the Executive Order. However, this policy will reduce regulatory cost and delays and thereby bring important and innovative products to market faster.

1081. NEW ANIMAL DRUG APPROVAL PROCESS*Legal Authority: 21 USC 360b Federal, Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 371 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic ActCFR Citation: 21 CFR 514.1; 21 CFR 514.8Legal Deadline: NoneAbstract: On December 17, 1991, the Agency published a proposed revision of the existing regulations that are consistent with the current procedural regulations for human drugs where appropriate. The New Animal Drug Application (NADA) revisions would articulate general requirements in regulations containing performance standards and would complement them through detailed guidelines on, among other matters, appropriate ways of meeting requirements for submission of chemistry, pharmacology, and statistical data that would better address the intricate scientific issues involved. A separate proposed rule for reporting requirements for marketed animal drugs also published on that date.

1082. PROPOSED RULE TO IMPLEMENT THE ORPHAN DRUG AMENDMENTS TO THE FEDERAL FOOD, DRUG, AND COSMETIC ACT*Significance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Authority: PL 97-414 Orphan Drug Act; PL 100-290CFR Citation: 21 CFR 316Legal Deadline: NoneAbstract: The Orphan Drug Act is intended to provide incentives for drug companies to invest in the development of drugs for rare diseases or conditions. Certain incentives are necessary because "orphan drugs" are unlikely to be profitable. The agency is required to carry out provisions of the Orphan Drug Act, e.g., by designating a drug as an orphan drug, by providing protocol assistance, and by granting seven years of exclusive approval status. The proposed rule was published on January 29, 1991 that would establish procedures whereby drug sponsors can take advantage of the incentives to encourage development of orphan drugs. Several provisions of the Orphan Drug Act call for promulgation of regulations to provide the framework and guidance for implementing a program of incentives to drug sponsors and manufacturers.

before 1962. Title I opened up the ANDA policy to generic copies of products approved after 1962. On July 10, 1989 (54 FR 28872), FDA proposed regulations to implement Title I. The proposal provides for the submission of abbreviated new drug applications for generic versions of drug products first approved after 1962. These new provisions will benefit consumers by making generic drug products available more quickly.

The agency is reviewing the public comments submitted in response to the proposed rule and preparing the final rule in two segments. The first segment will establish requirements for format and content of an ANDA, suitability petitions, and certain administrative actions. The second segment will establish requirements for patient certification and exclusivity.

1084. METHADONE IN MAINTENANCE TREATMENT OF NARCOTIC ADDICTS; JOINT FDA AND NIDA PROPOSED REVISION OF CONDITIONS OF USE

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 21 USC 355; 21 USC 371(a); 21 USC 823(g); 42 USC 257a; 42 USC 290ee-3

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 291Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Food and Drug Administration and the National Institute on Drug Abuse have proposed to revise the conditions for the use of methadone in the maintenance treatment of narcotic addicts. The proposal would allow programs to provide minimum service (interim) maintenance treatment to patients awaiting placement in comprehensive maintenance treatment and require programs to provide counseling on avoidance of human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) transmission. These requirements are being considered in response to the HIV epidemic and are intended to allow more narcotic addicts into treatment more quickly, thereby decreasing the incidence of intravenous drug abuse and the transmission of HIV. Comments on the proposal revealed a large number of differing opinions on both the desirability of adopting interim maintenance standards and on a number of related issues. Because it was necessary to improve the administrative record before making a decision regarding any final action based on the proposal, FDA and NIDA held a public hearing on February 28, 1990, to solicit additional information. After careful review of the administrative record, including information received (cont)

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 21 USC 351 to 357; 21 USC 371; 42 USC 262

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 312Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In the Federal Register of October 21, 1988 (53 FR 41561), FDA issued an interim rule effective upon date of publication, with opportunity for public comment, that set forth procedures designed to speed the availability of new therapies to desperately ill patients, while preserving appropriate guarantees for safety and effectiveness. These procedures are intended to facilitate the development, evaluation, and marketing of such products, especially where no satisfactory alternative therapies exist. These procedures reflect the recognition that physicians and patients are generally willing to accept greater risks or side effects from products that treat life-threatening and severely-debilitating illness. These procedures also reflect the recognition that the benefits of the drug need to be evaluated in light of the severity of the disease being treated. The procedures apply to life-threatening or severely debilitating illnesses. The agency is reviewing the public comments submitted in response to the interim rule and preparing a Federal Register document that will respond to these comments. The (cont)

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 312; 21 CFR 314; 21 CFR 320

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On November 8, 1990, FDA issued an interim rule effective upon date of publication, with opportunity for public comment. The interim rule requires the retention for a specified period of reserve samples of the drug products used to conduct bioavailability or bioequivalence studies of drug products and, when specifically requested, to release the reserve samples to FDA. The agency has reviewed the public comments submitted in response to the interim rule and is preparing a Federal Register document that will respond to these comments.

Abstract: In the Federal Register of October 4, 1991 (56 FR 50248), FDA issued an interim rule effective on November 4, 1991 with opportunity for public comment, revising the fee schedule for insulin certification services. The fees are intended to recover the full costs of operation of FDA's insulin certification program, including the unfunded liability of the Civil Service Retirement Fund and appropriate overhead costs of the Public Health Service and Department of Health and Human Services. FDA is also considering similar amendments to the regulations governing fees for the color additive certification program.

1089. ● NEW DRUG, ANTIBIOTIC, AND BIOLOGICAL DRUG PRODUCT REGULATIONS; ACCELERATED APPROVAL

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 21 USC 351 to 357; 21 USC 371; 42 USC 262

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 314; 21 CFR 601

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In the Federal Register of April 15, 1992 (57 FR 13234), FDA published proposed procedures under which the Agency would accelerate approval of new drug, antibiotic, and biological products used to treat life-threatening, very serious, or severely debilitating conditions when the condition lacks satisfactory alternative therapy. The procedures set forth in this proposed rule would accelerate approval of new drug, antibiotic, and biological products for serious or life-threatening illnesses, with provisions for continued study of the drugs' clinical effects after approval or, if necessary, with restrictions on use. Products approved under this proposal will have met the requisite statutory standards for safety and effectiveness, and will have full approval for marketing.

1090. ● CURRENT GOOD MANUFACTURING PRACTICE IN MANUFACTURE, PROCESSING, PACKAGING, OR HOLDING; REVISION OF CERTAIN LABELING CONTROLS

Significance: Agency PriorityLegal Authority: 21 USC 321(n); 21 USC 351 to 352; 21 USC 355 to 357; 21 USC 371CFR Citation: 21 CFR 211Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: An agency study of drug product recalls over a 5-year period identified label mixups as the leading cause of recall incidents involving mislabeled products. An analysis of the recall incidents attributed to label mixups showed that the use of cut labels, labels of similar size, shape, or color, and deviations from existing current good manufacturing practice (CGMP) labeling requirements were the leading causes of such mixups. On June 23, 1989 (54 FR 26394), the agency proposed to amend the CGMP regulations to specify conditions for the use of gang-printed or cut labeling, exempt from CGMP labeling reconciliation requirements manufacturers that use automated 100-percent labeling inspection systems, and to require manufacturers to identify filled drug product containers that are not immediately labeled. This final rule, thus, establishes as requirements the proposed revisions to the CGMP regulations.

Abstract: The agency has proposed to require that human drugs in solid oral dosage form (e.g., tablets and capsules) be imprinted with a product specific code. The proposal would apply to both over-the-counter (OTC) and prescription drugs. Drug identification by imprinting serves a number of important public health functions such as identifying drugs in drug overdosing, alerting patients to drug substitution, identifying illicit products, and aiding FDA and other drug regulatory authorities in tracking counterfeit and defective drug products. The agency is reviewing the public comments submitted in response to the proposed rule and preparing a Federal Register document that will respond to those comments.

Abstract: This regulatory action is being taken to improve FDA's surveillance and enforcement activities with respect to new drug and abbreviated new drug applications (NDA's and ANDA's) and supplemental applications consistent with the agency's efforts to address certain fraudulent practices found during investigations of the generic drug industry. This regulation will amend the regulations governing the approval for marketing of new drugs and antibiotic drugs for human use (21 CFR Part 314) to require the submission by applicants of NDA's, ANDA's, and supplemental applications of an additional copy of the chemistry, manufacturing, and controls section of their applications. The additional copy will be used by FDA investigators during a preapproval inspection to audit application commitments and statements against actual manufacturing practices used by applicants. The regulation will also require the submission of certain information about the batches of a drug product used to perform bioavailability, bioequivalence, and stability tests.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: FDA has become aware through various sources of numerous reports of complications including permanent physical injuries, severe psychological disabilities, other serious injuries and deaths that have been attributed to incorrect supervision, handling or application of protective restraint devices by medical or paramedical personnel. Complications associated with protective restraint devices frequently result from misuse of the devices. To address potential misuse, it would be advisable for manufacturers to include specific directions for use, to the extent that such directions are not currently available or not attached to or kept with the garment. Revocation of the premarket notification exemptions will allow FDA to collect information about the current availability and actual employment of directions for use and to monitor the introduction into commerce of new and changed protective restraints. Revocation of the Current Good Manufacturing exemption will allow FDA to require the necessary labeling. FDA is also considering educational programs to address this problem. FDA anticipates total first year costs of $930,000 for this regulation. (CONT)

Abstract: Section 1138 of the Social Security Act requires Medicare and Medicaid participating hospitals that perform organ transplants to be members of and abide by the rules and requirements of the Organ Procurement and Transplantation Network (OPTN) as established by section 372 of the Public Health Service Act. Section 1138 also requires that for organ procurement costs attributable to payments to an Organ Procurement Organization (OPO) to be paid by Medicare or Medicaid, the OPO must be a member of and abide by the rules and requirements of the OPTN. No other entity (for example, a histocompatibility laboratory) is required to be a member of or abide by the rules of the OPTN under the provisions of the statute. It is the Department's position that no rule, requirement, policy, or other issuance of the OPTN will be considered to be a "rule or requirement" of the Network within the meaning of section 1138 unless the Secretary has formally approved that rule. The OPTN is currently in operation and these rules will impose no further cost or provide any benefit other than that which now exists.

Section 312 of PL 99-660 requires the Secretary to propose regulations to amend the Vaccine Injury Table, based on the findings of the Institute of Medicine (IOM) study, (cont)

Abstract: The National Vaccine Injury Compensation (NVIC) Program, administered by the Secretary, and governed by subtitle 2 of title XXI of the Public Health Service Act, as enacted by the National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act of 1986 (the Act), provides a system of no-fault compensation for certain individuals who have been injured by specific childhood vaccines. The nature of the injuries, disabilities, illnesses, conditions, and deaths which will be presumed to result from the administration of specific vaccines, and the time period in which the first symptom or manifestation of onset must occur for this presumption to apply, are outlined in section 2114 of the Act in what is known as the Vaccine Injury Table. This NPRM proposes to make refinements to the Vaccine Injury Table to more accurately reflect current scientific knowledge about the conditions that result from vaccines which will result in appropriate compensation for injuries related to vaccines.

Abstract: Abstract LRP -- This amendment revises section 62.25(a) of the interim rule for the National Health Service Corps Loan Repayment Program (LRP) as published April 3, 1989. The LRP authorizes the Secretary to repay a participant's graduate and undergraduate educational loans in exchange for health services provided in a federally designated health professional shortage area for a certain period of time. Loan repayments by the Secretary in advance of a participant's service are limited to one month or less. This amendment removes the provision which limits the Secretary's payment to one month in advance of services before the restrictive payment schedule has had an adverse affect on the successful implementation of the LRP. Deleting the payment limitation permits the program lump-sum payments at or near the beginning of the participant's service thereby increasing the attractiveness of the program. Other subparts of the interim rule will be revised to reflect the National Health Service Corps Revitalization Amendments of 1990 and will be published as an NPRM (see RIN 0905-AC65) in the near future. These amendments do not address the payment schedule issue.

Abstract: This NPRM proposes to revise the regulations under 42 CFR part 67 governing grants for health services research and grants for health services research centers made by the former National Center for Health Services Research and Health Care Technology Assessment (NCHSR).

Public Law 101-239, enacted on December 19, 1989, established the Agency for Health Care Policy and Research, replacing the NCHSR, and provided the new agency with a much expanded role in health services research. The NPRM will incorporate applicable provisions of the new law.

Abstract: This notice outlines the steps that HCFA intends to take to streamline Medicaid claims processing by developing and requiring the use of a universal Medicaid claims processing form, as well as electronic data transmission standards. These steps are part of a strategy developed by the Department to reduce administrative costs and burden throughout the health care system. We anticipate that the increased use of electronic claims will help reduce administrative costs by eliminating the need for burdensome paperwork and duplication of effort.

Abstract: This proposed rule would implement section 9401 of Pub.L. 99-272, which provides that, under Medicare, a physician must request from the Peer Review Organization (PRO) preadmission review for certain surgical procedures. Under section 9401, if the PRO determines that the procedure is not appropriate and medically necessary, the PRO will deny payment under Medicare. If the PRO cannot determine whether a surgical procedure is medically necessary and appropriate, the beneficiary would obtain an opinion from a second physician, or where the opinion of the second physician differs from the first physician, the beneficiary may obtain an opinion from a third physician. In addition, as required by section 4096(b) of Pub.L. 100-203, if an assigned claim by a physician or supplier or any claim by a provider is denied because the services furnished are not reasonable and necessary or constitute custodial care and the physician, supplier or provider, but not the beneficiary, knew, or reasonably could be expected to know, that the services were not covered by Medicare, (cont)

Abstract: This rule would amend or establish regulations relating to appeal rights and procedures for Medicare beneficiaries who are enrolled in health maintenance organizations (HMOs), competitive medical plans (CMPs), and health care prepayment plans (HCPPs). Specifically, the proposed rule would extend to HMO and CMP members the right to request review by a PRO of early hospital discharges; impose a 60-day limit for HMOs and CMPs to process requests by beneficiaries for reconsideration of decisions on denied services or claims; and require HCPPs to establish appeal procedures for enrollees who are Medicare beneficiaries. ## Proposed Rule Stage

Section 6205(b)(2) of PL 101-239 required that a proposed rule be published before July 1, 1990 and that a final rule not be effective before 10/01/90.

Abstract: This proposed rule would set forth our policy for the payment of the costs of approved nursing and allied health science programs, an action directed by section 6205(b)(2) of PL 101-239. For the most part, the provisions set forth in this proposed rule restate or clarify our current policies governing these costs, which have been previously set forth in the provider reimbursement manual and other documents, but have never been included in the regulations. In addition, we are proposing to amend the list of approved programs and clarify payment rules for certified registered nurse anesthetist programs. This proposed rule would also implement section 4004 of PL 101-508, which provides that, effective with cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1990, under certain conditions, costs incurred by a hospital or educational institution related to the hospital for clinical training are treated as pass-through costs and paid on the basis of reasonable cost even though the hospital does not operate the education programs.

1164. COST REPORT SETTLEMENT ADJUSTMENT FACTOR FOR SKILLED NURSING FACILITIES AND HOME HEALTH AGENCIES (BPD-702-P)

Legal Authority: PL 101-239; Sec 6024; 42 USC 1302

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 413.3(b)(2)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 6024 of PL 101-239 required the Secretary to update the skilled nursing facility (SNF) cost limits effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1989 in accordance with regulations that require the use of cost reports submitted by SNFs for cost reporting periods beginning not earlier than October 1, 1985. Many of the cost reports that HCFA uses to update limits on SNFs' costs are "as submitted" and therefore not "settled." Since using only "settled" cost reports is not always feasible, due to the lengthy time needed to receive and audit cost report data, HCFA is proposing that the adjustment factor be applied uniformly to all "as submitted" cost reports, contained on the SNF data base and the home health agency data used to establish future cost limits to adjust for the overstatement of costs that occurs in those reports. This rule sets forth the proposed adjustment factors and the methodology used to complete the factors.

Abstract: This rule would incorporate provisions of section 6113 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 (OBRA '89) and section 4157 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (OBRA '90). Section 6113 of OBRA '89 provides coverage for the services of clinical psychologists (CPs) and clinical social workers. It requires CPs to agree to consult with the patient's primary care or attending physician. Also, it eliminates the dollar limitation that previously applied to mental health services although the 62.5 percent limitation still applies. OBRA '89 also defines the term "clinical social worker services" and places two exceptions on where such services can be covered. These exceptions include services provided to inpatients of hospitals and skilled nursing facilities that are Medicare participating. Section 4157 of OBRA '90 unbundled CP services from the definition of "inpatient hospital services."

Abstract: This rule would implement section 1902(k) of the Social Security Act by defining Medicaid Qualifying Trust (MQT); establishing rules for counting as available income or resources the maximum amount that could be paid to or on behalf of a Medicaid applicant or recipient from the body of the MQT, from income to the trust, or from both; and permitting States to waive the application of the rule in situations in which its application would result in undue hardships.

Abstract: This rule would require State Medicaid agencies to refer Medicaid families with an absent parent to child support enforcement (CSE) agencies. Section 9142 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 required CSE agencies to provide all CSE services to such Medicaid families who have assigned to the State their rights to medical support. ("Intermediaries" and "carriers" are the contractors that process Medicare claims and bills under Part A (Hospital Insurance) and Part B (Supplementary Medical Insurance) of the Medicare program, respectively.) These rules will set forth the conditions under which physicians in teaching settings will be paid on a

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 1, 1989.

Abstract: This regulation will implement section 1915(d) of the Social Security Act, which allows a State to obtain a waiver of certain Medicaid requirements to permit Federal financial participation for home and community based services provided to individuals age 65 or older who are shown by an evaluation to be likely to require the level of care provided in a skilled nursing facility (SNF) or intermediate care facility (ICF), (nursing facility (NF) effective October 1, 1990), the cost for which could be paid by Medicaid. The statute allows for waivers of statewideness, comparability, and income deeming. Under the waiver provisions, the total amount expended by the State for home and community based services, SNF services, and ICF services (NF effective October 1, 1990) for individuals over age 65 may not exceed a "projected amount," determined under the methodology provided in these regulations. For States electing this option the waiver would replace home and community based waivers available under section 1915(c) of the Act, for individuals in this age category.

Abstract: Historically the Department has regulated laboratories by "location," rather than by types of tests they perform. Amendments to the Clinical Laboratories Improvements Act of 1988 change this approach. The amendments require that the Department "regulate by test," using what is commonly referred to as the "complexity model." A final rule with comment period was published February 28, 1992, that set forth standards for all laboratories based on complexity and responds to public comments on the proposed standards. Abstract: This rule responds to comments we received on the proposed rule relating to the Medicare Economic Index (MEI). It would revise the procedure used to calculate the MEI in order to more accurately reflect year-to-year economic changes affecting the cost of providing physician services, thus insuring that Medicare payments for those services do not increase more than is justified. The final rule also amends current regulations to specify dates of services to which the revised MEI applies and to provide a procedure for further revisions of the MEI methodology.

This rule creates a uniform policy for all types of facilities that participate in the Medicare and Medicaid programs. Abstract: This final rule with comment period amends the Medicare and Medicaid regulations by removing obsolete long-term care survey forms, guidelines, and procedures used by State agencies when they evaluate a Medicare skilled nursing facility or a Medicaid nursing facility for compliance with Federal certification requirements. Effective October 1, 1990, the application of new Federal participation requirements for these facilities with an increased focus on actual or potential resident outcomes has made the survey forms and process in existing regulations outdated. Retention of the outdated items could cause confusion in connection with directions State survey agencies must follow in determining facility compliance.

Abstract: This final rule with comment period updates the Medicare regulations to add or conform them to certain self-implementing provisions on coverage of services and payment requirements under the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990. In some cases, certain self-implementing provisions of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 and the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Repeal Act of 1989 have been included so that the OBRA '90 provisions could be accurately reflected in the regulations.

The immediate update of the regulations will remove existing conflicts between the regulations and the statute, thus preventing possible public confusion. A final rule may be published in response to public comments.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302; 42 USC 1396a

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will delete a requirement in Medicaid regulations pertaining to State survey agencies, which certify facilities as meeting the requirements for participation in the Medicaid program. Specifically, we will delete the requirement that State survey agencies, when certifying facilities with deficiencies, must provide written documentation that the deficiencies do not jeopardize resident health and safety or seriously limit the facility's capacity to furnish adequate care. Because there are already other written requirements for documentation of these deficiencies, this revision will eliminate a duplicative administrative burden, while ensuring patient health and safety.

Section 4401 amended title XIX of the Social Security Act to add specific requirements for payment for covered outpatient drugs. In general, the requirements concern: denial of Federal technical participation unless rebate agreements and drug use review are in effect; prohibiting State plan drug access limitations for drugs covered under a rebate agreement; and the content of the rebate agreements. The drug rebate agreement was previously published in the Federal Register on February 21, 1991 (56 FR 7049).

Significance: Agency PriorityLegal Authority: 42 USC 1395m; 42 USC 1302CFR Citation: 42 CFR 414.224Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule establishes criteria to be applied in determinations whether a wheelchair qualifies for treatment as a customized item for payment purposes. Section 4152(c)(4)(B) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 established a broad definition, effective for items furnished on or after January 1, 1992, that could have the effect of encompassing many more items than are presently being determined to be "customized" for payment purposes. However, that section also provides that the statutory criteria will not become effective if the Secretary develops specific criteria prior to January 1, 1992, for the treatment of wheelchairs as customized items for purposes of Medicare payment.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The final rules will make minor changes in the interim rule which implemented statutory provisions effective in December 1991. They will amend the Medicare and Medicaid regulations governing provider agreements and contracts to establish requirements for States, hospitals, nursing facilities, skilled nursing facilities, providers of home health care or personal care services, hospice programs and prepaid health plans concerning advance directives. An advance directive is a written instruction, such as a living will or durable power of attorney for health care, recognized under State law, relating to the provision of health care when an individual's condition makes him or her unable to express his or her wishes. The intent of these provisions is to enhance an individual's control over medical treatment decisions. These rules implement sections 4206 and 4751 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990.

Abstract: This rule provides for Medicare coverage of the drug erythropoietin (EPO) when used at home by ESRD patients who dialyze at home. This makes it more convenient for home dialysis patients, who previously had to go to a dialysis facility or a physician's office to have the drug administered. The rule establishes requirements to ensure that only patients found capable of home use of the drug are approved for it, and that those patients are properly monitored during home use of the drug. Section 4201(d)(1)(C) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 provides for Medicare coverage of EPO effective July 1, 1991, subject to methods and standards established by the Secretary in regulations for the sale and effective use of the drug.

Abstract: In this final notice, we would recognize the accreditation program of the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO) for Home Health Agencies (HHAs) that wish to participate in the Medicare or Medicaid programs. We have found that the accreditation process of this organization provides reasonable assurance that HHAs accredited by it meet the conditions required by Federal law and regulations. As a result of this determination, HHAs accredited by JCAHO would be "deemed" to meet the Medicare conditions of participation for HHAs, and therefore would not be subject to routine inspection by State survey agencies to determine their compliance with Federal Requirements. They would, however, be subject to validation and complaint investigation surveys.

Our current policy on this issue has been in effect under manual issuances since January 1, 1989, but it has not been published as a regulation. On May 31 1991, the U.S. District Court for Puerto Rico in Medics, Inc. et al. v. Louis Sullivan ordered the Secretary to publish a notice and comment rulemaking document in the Federal Register that sets forth rules concerning the meaning of continuous use as it applies to the rental of durable medical equipment under Medicare. Rather than imposing a cost-neutrality component, as is the case in home and community based care waiver programs under section 1915 of the Social Security Act, this rule imposes two cost "caps" which are applied independently. One cap prohibits States from spending more than 50 percent of the amount Medicare would pay for certain nursing facility care, the second cap is an aggregate limit on the amount of Federal funding. This rule would implement section 4711 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990.

Abstract: The final notice with comment period sets forth an updated schedule of limits on skilled nursing facility (SNF) inpatient routine service costs for which payment may be made under the Medicare program. The limits will be developed using the most recent hospital wage data and SNF market basket inflation rates. It implements the requirement in section 4008(e)(2) of Pub. L. 101-508 that we provide for an update to the per diem cost limits for SNFs for cost reporting periods "beginning on or after October 1, 1992 and every two years thereafter."

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1395w-4

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 415.24

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On November 25, 1991, we published in the Federal Register the Fee Schedule for Physicians Services. In that final rule, which contained over 10,000 relative value units (RVUs), we indicated our intention to publish annual notices indicating adjustments to the RVUs. Because it was believed there was insufficient opportunity for the public to comment on the proposed RVUs which appeared in a proposed rule of June 5, 1991, and because many values changed after publication of the proposed rule, the values published in the final rule were considered initial values on which we accepted public comments. This final notice announces additions or revisions to the RVUs. Changes will be effective January 1, 1993.

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, September 30, 1992.

This notice is being published in accordance with the provisions of Section 1923(f)(1)(c) of the Social Security Act. That section requires the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services, before the

Abstract: This rule revises the Medicare regulations governing the procedures for replacing checks issued by our fiscal intermediaries and carriers that are lost, stolen, defaced, mutilated, destroyed, or paid on forged endorsements. Since State has an established legal process for pursuing a claim for check replacement and recovery under these circumstances it is inefficient to provide duplicative Federal requirements. Our revised regulations would provide that any replacement or reclamation proceedings will be carried out in accordance with applicable State banking laws. We will continue to reissue only checks that have not been negotiated.

The rule implements changes to the LIHEAP statute which were made by the Augustus F. Hawkins Human Services Reauthorization Act of 1990 (Pub. L. 101-501) and which affect grantee administration of the LIHEAP program in fiscal years 1991 and 1992. These changes involve the Department's response to formal complaints, a reduction in the percent of LIHEAP funds that grantees may carry forward from one fiscal year to the next, waiver authority to increase the percent of LIHEAP funds that grantees may use for weatherization from 15% to 25%, a requirement for additional outreach and intake services under certain circumstances, and a new leveraging incentive program.

[Docket No. N-92-3493; FR-3304-N-01]

Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Department of Housing and Urban Development.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda, under Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, of regulations expected to be issued and under review.

SUMMARY: In accordance with section 5 of Executive Order 12291 "Federal Regulation," the Department is publishing its agenda of proposed regulations already issued or expected to be issued and of currently effective rules that are under review. Also, under section 602 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, the Department has prepared a regulatory flexibility agenda of regulations expected to be proposed or promulgated, which are likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. As permitted by Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, the two agendas are combined for publication.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Grady J. Norris, Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Room 10276, 451 Seventh Street SW., Washington, DC 20410, (202) 708-3055. (This is not a toll-free number.)

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291 "Federal Regulation," issued on February 17, 1981 (46 FR 13193), requires each agency to publish semiannually an agenda of regulations that the agency has issued or expects to issue and of currently effective regulations that are under agency review.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601-612, requires each agency to publish semiannually a regulatory flexibility agenda of rules expected to be proposed or promulgated, which are likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of "small entities," meaning small businesses, small organizations, or small governmental jurisdictions.

Executive Order 12291 and section 605 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act each permits incorporation of the agenda required with any other prescribed agenda. Accordingly, the agenda set out below combines the information required by the Executive order and by the Regulatory Flexibility Act. In addition, the agenda contains certain information not required by either the Executive order or by the Act which the Department considers useful, both better to inform the public and to enhance the Department's own inventory control over its body of regulations.

For purposes of Executive Order 12291, "regulation" or "rule" is defined as "an agency statement of general applicability and future effect designed to implement, interpret, or prescribe law or policy or describing the procedure or practice requirements of an agency" subject to certain exceptions. The agenda published below concentrates upon regulatory material contained or expected to be contained in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) (or incorporated therein by reference) following publication in the Federal Register. As appropriate, however, issuances in the nature of general statements of policy may be published in the Federal Register but not for coordination in the CFR.

The Department also is subject to certain requirements involving congressional review of rulemaking action, including publication of an agenda. Section 7(o) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act (42 U.S.C. 3535(o)) requires that the Secretary transmit to the congressional committees having jurisdictional oversight (the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs and the House Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs) a semiannual agenda of all rules or regulations which are under development or review by the Department. A rule appearing on the agenda cannot be published for comment before or during the first 15 calendar days after transmittal of the agenda. If, within that period, either committee notifies the Secretary that it intends to review any rule or regulation which appears on the agenda, the Secretary must submit to both committees a copy of the rule or regulation, in the form it is intended to be proposed, at least 15 calendar days before it is published for comment. The semiannual agenda published today is the agenda transmitted to the committees in compliance with the foregoing requirement.

The agenda items are divided first by program office. Within each program office, the agenda items are divided into four groups: (i) Prerulemaking actions, (ii) publication or other implementations of notices of proposed rulemaking, (iii) publications or other implementations of final rules, and (iv) completed actions. Within each grouping, rules are listed in chronological order by the part number of the CFR affected. Where a rule affects multiple parts of the CFR, the rule is listed by the first affected part number. Priority rules include all regulations designated for priority development by the Department.

Items listed in this agenda are from the following offices within the Department: Office of the Secretary; Office of Housing; Office of Public and Indian Housing; Office of Community Planning and Development; Office of Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity; Government National Mortgage Association; and Office of Administration.

Dated: August 25, 1992.

Frank Keating,

General Counsel.

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend existing 24 CFR 24.305, a part of the HUD Debarment Regulation. A recent United States District Court decision, involving an appeal of a debarment action taken by the Department, has greatly reduced the effectiveness of Section 24.305(d). The purpose of this rule is to correct the effect of the District Court's decision, and to clarify the Department's established and unchanged policy regarding causes for debarment.

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 50

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule proposes to revise the regulations that govern environmental review and decisionmaking by HUD staff and officials for projects under all HUD programs except for programs for which State or local governments exercise these responsibilities (under 24 CFR part 58). The rule will take account of pertinent legislative changes to the authorizations for established programs. It will include any changes as may be required under new authorizations, including those programs of the National Affordable Housing Act of 1990 for which HUD retains environmental review responsibility. In addition, the rule will propose language to amend the current interim rules; to clarify provisions based on HUD experience with those rules; to reduce regulatory burdens and procedural details consistent with environmental laws and other authorities; and to assure policy consistency with Part 58 on matters common to both rules.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would restrict nepotism in employment and contracting by officials or grantees receiving grants from the United States Department of HUD. Under this rule, grantee officials may not employ relatives or participate in contracting with an entity in which a relative has a financial interest, unless the relationship is fully disclosed and a waiver is granted by the HUD Assistant Secretary responsible for the program under which the grant is provided. Now the statute provides that the preference for assisting families that occupy substandard housing, who pay more than 50 percent of income for rent, or who are involuntarily displaced, applies not to all the units but to 70 percent of units in project-based assistance programs and 90 percent of units in the tenant-based program (Housing Voucher and Certificate Program.) ## Final Rule Stage

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule amends the regulations at 24 CFR parts 203 and 234 to make certain changes to the FHA Single Family Mortgage Insurance program regulations in support of the new HOPE Grant Programs, authorized by Title IV of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act (NAHA). In the single family FHA mortgage insurance programs, there is a requirement for a down payment by the mortgagor in cash or the equivalent. The NAHA creates an exception to this requirement for the HOPE programs. The NAHA provides that the required down payment may be paid by a corporation or person other than the mortgagor if the mortgage covers a unit under the HOPE program. Accordingly, this rule amends the regulations at parts 203 and 234 to reflect this exception.

Abstract: The Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act amended the McKinney Act to create a new program for the homeless called Shelter Plus Care. The program provides rental housing assistance, in connection with supportive services to be provided by the recipient from sources other than this program, to homeless persons with disabilities (primarily persons who are seriously mentally ill, have chronic problems with alcohol, drugs, or both, or have AIDS and related diseases). Abstract: Section 802 of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act establishes a revised congregate housing services program which supersedes the Congregate Housing Services Program under the Congregate Housing Services Act of 1978. The new statutory provisions authorize provision of supportive services to enable frail elderly persons and persons with disabilities to live independently and also the provision of assistance for the retrofitting of dwelling units and common space to meet the special physical needs of residents. HUD and the Department of Agriculture are directed by Section 802(m) to jointly issue any necessary regulations within 180 days after enactment. Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would amend HUD's regulations governing the location of assisted housing projects (site and neighborhood standards) to establish a quantitative standard by which HUD determines whether the location contains an undue concentration (high proportion) of poverty-level population. The existing regulations do not specify how an undue concentration determination will be made. The rule would require projects to be located only in census tracts in which the percentage of people with incomes below the poverty level is less than a stated, fixed percentage, with certain exceptions. The purpose of this rule is to provide for a more objective standard for determining undue concentration of lower-income households.

1389. PRE-FORECLOSURE SALE OPTION (H-12-89; FR-2682)

Legal Authority: 12 USC 1710

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 1064 of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Amendments Act of 1988 authorizes HUD to add pre-foreclosure sales to its roster of servicing options, as a means of saving the Department money and of assisting qualified mortgagors to avoid foreclosure of their FHA-insured mortgages. The Department is now able to pay a claim to a mortgagee to "bridge the gap" between the proceeds of a sale of the property to a third party buyer at current fair market value, and the original owner's indebtedness under the note. Until the Department received the authorization to pay these claims, such pre-foreclosure sales (or "short sales," as they are also known) were impracticable. At this time, a six to twelve month demonstration of pre-foreclosure sales is being conducted in five local HUD offices; subsequently, full implementing regulations will be issued to introduce the pre-foreclosure sale option throughout the Department.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 203.402(f); 24 CFR 203.402(g)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Currently, section 203.402(g) authorizes mortgagees to be reimbursed 100% for all allowable expenses made for preservation and protection of properties until conveyance to HUD. There is little incentive for mortgagees to keep costs down. HUD has experienced problems with mortgagees exceeding established limits without approval and submitting claims for inappropriate expenditures. Requiring a two-thirds cap on reimbursements will provide a financial incentive for the mortgagees to cooperate in reducing expenses.

Tighter internal controls within a mortgagee's own operation ideally would improve due to the sharing of expenses and this would decrease demands on HUD's insurance funds.

24 CFR 203.402(g) would be changed to reflect a two-thirds reimbursement. Additionally, HUD is recommending removing the reference in 203.402(g) to eviction costs and moving it to 203.402(f), which covers foreclosure and other costs of acquiring the property.

(1) 291.105 provides that the closing costs HUD will pay may not exceed 6%. (2) 291.110 permits direct sales to government entities and nonprofit organizations at a discount of 10% off the list price. It is now proposed, for both (1) and (2), that the pre-set amount(s) be discontinued and that the Assistant Secretary for Housing have the discretion to determine the amount(s) as circumstances warrant. (3) 291.130 requires any request to extend the closing date to be accompanied by a predetermined fee. It is now proposed that owner-occupant purchasers be granted the initial 15 day extension at no cost if documentation is provided which indicates that proper and timely loan application was made, that the delayed closing is not the fault of the buyer, and that mortgage approval is imminent.

Abstract: Section 8(c)(2)(B) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 permits HUD to adjust contract rents covering Section 8 assisted units to reflect increases in certain specified costs of owning and maintaining. Section 542 of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act amended Section 8 (c)(2) to provide the Secretary with the authority (subject to the availability of appropriations) to provide for rent adjustments where a project's operating, maintenance, and capital repair expenses have been substantially increased primarily as a result of the prevalence of drug-related activity. This section limits the rent adjustments to a level no greater than 120% of the project rents, to cover the costs of maintenance, security, capital repairs and reserves required for the owner to carry out a strategy acceptable to the Secretary for addressing the problem of drug-related criminal activity.

Abstract: Section 10 of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA) establishes limits on the amount that lenders/servicers can collect in escrow accounts associated with federally related mortgage loans. When Regulation X, implementing RESPA, was published in 1976, no explication of this section was made. However, in recent years, the Attorneys General of several States have charged that lenders/servicers were over-escrowing, in contravention of the RESPA limitations in Section 10. The Department has studied this situation, including making an analysis of servicers' practices of all the major servicers, and has concluded that a rule issued by the Department would be advantageous to the servicing industry in clarifying the allowable practices under Section 10 of RESPA.

Abstract: This final rule removes from the Code of Federal Regulations language concerning the Temporary Mortgage Assistance Payments (TMAP) program that has never been made effective. Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 207

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Current regulations require a mortgagee to furnish a survey and a policy of title insurance or its equivalent as a prerequisite to the closing of an insured multifamily housing loan. If a mortgagee subsequently chooses to exercise its right to assign a mortgage to HUD, it must submit an owner's title policy in favor of HUD that is effective on the date that the project is conveyed to the Secretary. This rule would amend HUD regulations deleting the phrase "it will become an owner's policy running to the mortgagee or the Secretary as the case may be," and substituting "it will continue to provide the same coverage as the original policy, and will run to the mortgagee or the Secretary, as the case may be." This will allow HUD to decide on a case-by-case basis to either purchase an owner's policy at its own expense, or self-insure the time period between assignment and foreclosure.

The proposed rule, through amendments to 24 CFR parts 570 and 571 (the CDBG regulations), would provide that any building or facility designed, constructed or altered with grants made available under the CDBG Program, and which meets the ABA's definition of "building" is subject to the requirements of the ABA. The requirements of the ABA would apply to entitlement grants and nonentitlement grants under the CDBG Program, the Indian CDBG Program, and to the section 108 Loan Guarantee Program. The rule would provide for the ABA requirements to be applicable to funds allocated or reallocated after the effective date of the final rule. The purpose of the rule is to bring the CDBG Program into compliance with the requirements of the ABA.

4. The authority to use CDBG funds to pay special assessments for certain low- and moderate-income property owners to recover local costs incurred in providing public improvements serving an area having less than 51 percent low- and moderate-income persons, under the national objective of benefitting such persons.

5. Certain changes affecting the CDBG program that were enacted as part of the National Affordable Housing Act. Legal Authority: PL 100-242, Sec 101

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 570.202

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: A recent IG audit finding involving a sample of CDBG grantees revealed that general improvements were being undertaken in CDBG-assisted rehabilitation properties while leaving health and safety violations uncorrected. As a result of this finding, CDBG regulations need to be amended to incorporate a provision that would require the correction of all health and safety violations in CDBG-assisted rehabilitated properties before any general improvements to these properties can be undertaken. The proposed rule will also include an exception that will allow properties with uncorrected health and safety violations to still take part in rehabilitation programs that grantees have established to expressly address significant community housing needs, such as energy conservation through weatherization programs and improving the exterior appearance of deteriorating buildings through painting programs. Moreover, the proposed rule will make clear that grantees will still have the flexibility to continue to provide funding for the general improvement of properties that are free and clear of health and safety violations.

Through its experience in administering the ESG Program, the Department has determined that the low amount of unused grant funds available for reallocation do not justify the current selection process. Under this rule the Department will add unused amounts to the next fiscal year's appropriation, to be distributed to entitlement grantees on the formula basis initially applicable to ESG appropriations.

Abstract: The regulation fills a gap in the Office of the Inspector General's overall regulations (24 CFR Chapter XII) by creating rules to implement the requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974 in the OIG. The regulation incorporates the Department's existing Privacy Act regulations (24 CFR Part 16) with modifications which conform those regulations to the OIG's organizational structure. In addition, the regulation addresses needed changes in the OIG's Privacy Act exemptions. With respect to the OIG's investigative files, the applicable exemptions are clarified; the reason provided for such exemptions are more detailed than those currently found at 24 CFR 16.14 and 16.15. In addition, the regulation sets forth the exemptions that are applicable to two new OIG systems of records.

Abstract: The Low Income Housing Preservation and Resident Homeownership Act of 1990 provides the Secretary of HUD with permanent authority to deal with HUD-assisted multifamily projects where owners have the option of prepaying their mortgages. Its basic objectives are to assure that most of the inventory of HUD-assisted housing with mortgages eligible for prepayment remains affordable to low- and moderate-income households, while at the same time fairly compensating owners for the value of their properties. Section 222(e) specifies that, to prevent payment of windfall profits, the Secretary may make available incentive payments under the Act only to owners in those rental markets where there is an inadequate supply of decent, affordable housing or where necessary to accomplish other public policy objectives. The Notice explains in detail HUD's methodology for making these determinations.

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, February 14, 1991. Final, Statutory, May 25, 1991.

Abstract: This rule will amend the Indian Housing rule's provisions concerning a resident's lease and grievance procedures to conform to statutory amendments made in 1990 by the National Affordable Housing Act. Those amendments made certain criminal activity by a member of the resident's household cause for termination of tenancy and permitted an IHA to use an expedited grievance procedure concerning such a termination. It also specified elements of due process, which--if provided under local law--would eliminate the need for providing a grievance procedure for this type of termination of tenancy or eviction.

(A similar rule was published Oct. 11, 1991 for Public Housing Agencies and it became effective Nov. 12, 1991.)

Final Rule Stage

Abstract: This rule established the Public Housing Management Assessment Program (PHMAP) in accordance with Section 502 of the National Affordable Housing Act of 1990 (approved Nov. 28, 1990, PL 101-625, 104 Stat. 4079). Section 502 requires HUD to assess the management performance of Public Housing Agencies (PHAs) in all major areas of management operations and designation of troubled PHAs. PHMAP uses 12 indicators, including seven specifically listed in the section and five other indicators deemed appropriate by HUD. HUD is required to seek to enter into agreements with troubled PHAs to improve their management performance. In the event of a substantial default on an agreement, HUD may petition for the appointment of a receiver or make other management changes for the troubled PHA. HUD is also authorized to commend exemplary PHAs.

PHMAP is intended to foster a uniform, nationwide level of excellence in public housing.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: With this publication, the Department satisfies the requirement of Executive Order 12291 that the Department publish, in April and October of each year, an agenda of rules that have been issued or are expected to be issued and currently effective rules that are scheduled for review.

Simultaneously, the Department meets the requirement of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) that an agenda be published in April and October of each year identifying rules which will have significant economic effects on a substantial number of small entities; those rules which will have such effects are specifically identified in the agenda.

This agenda also identifies rules determined to be "significant" under Executive Order 12498 and which are included in this Department's 1992 regulatory program. A more comprehensive discussion of this program and the rules are contained in the Regulatory Program of the United States Government, which is published by the Office of Management and Budget.

Dated: August 26, 1992.

Abstract: The Department is currently revising its CERCLA type B procedures based on a court ruling. Section 301(c)(3) of CERCLA requires that the regulations be reviewed and revised, as appropriate, on a biennial basis. The Department will begin a review of the type B rule once it is revised. The Department will ask trustees, other interested parties, and members of the public to draw upon their experience with the type B procedures and the general assessment process to advise the Department of areas where revisions to the process and the type B procedures may be desired. If these comments and suggestions show areas where revisions to the general process or to the type B procedures are needed, a notice of proposed rulemaking will be issued to revise the rule. This review will be closely coordinated with the rulemaking of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (Commerce), which has responsibility for natural resource damage assessment rulemaking under the Oil Pollution Act of 1990.

Abstract: This proposed rule will implement in a regulatory format the Department's Implementation of OMB Circular A-110. Abstract: CERCLA allows natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. Section 301(c)(2)(A) calls for the promulgation of simplified assessment procedures. The first type A procedure for coastal and marine environments uses a computer model known as the natural resource damage assessment model for coastal and marine environments (NRDAM/CME). The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia upheld the use of an interactive computer model, but stated that such a model should incorporate restoration or replacement costs and all reliably calculated lost use values in the damage calculations. The Department will revise the type A procedure for coastal and marine environments to comply with the court's ruling and will incorporate changes in response to the first biennial review of the type A procedure at the same time.

EO 12689 directed agencies to simultaneously publish proposed rules within 6 months after resolution of differences between procurement and nonprocurement rules.

Abstract: This action proposes a revision to the Department's regulation establishing a uniform system of nonprocurement debarment and suspension. ### 1529. DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR ACQUISITION REGULATION; PATENT RIGHTS UNDER GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS AND SUBCONTRACTS FOR EXPERIMENTAL, DEVELOPMENTAL OR RESEARCH WORK

CFR Citation: 48 CFR 1400; 48 CFR 1427; 48 CFR 1452

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: PL 98-620 amended 35 USC 18 dealing with patent rights in inventions made with Federal funding. On June 12, 1989, Federal Acquisition Regulation implementation of PL 98-620 was issued through FAC 84-48. Patent rights under Government contracts are covered in FAR subpart 27.3. FAR 27.304-5(b) requires agencies to establish and publish their respective appeals, administrative due process, and fact-finding procedures related to patent rights. The proposed Department of the Interior Acquisition Regulation coverage establishes Department of the Interior policy with regard to title rights, exception determinations, appeals, greater rights determinations, retention of rights by inventors, assignment of rights, exercise of march-in rights and licensing to third parties. It also identifies key Departmental points of contact in matters concerning patent rights. The proposed coverage supplements FAC 84-48 and amends sections 14227 and 1452, as parts of 48 CFR, chapter 14.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c) CERCLA

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: CERCLA allows natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. Section 301(c)(2)(B) calls for the promulgation of a set of alternative protocols for the testing, sampling, and determining compensation for natural resource damages, referred to as the type B procedures. Final rules for the assessment of damages were promulgated by the Department consistent with those requirements. In a review of those rules, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia held that restoration or replacement costs are the basic measure of natural resource damages under CERCLA, and all reliably calculated lost use values of injured natural resources should also be recoverable, with no required hierarchy of methodologies for conducting those valuations. The Department is considering revisions to the proposed rule based on comments received as of July 16, 1991. The required biennial review of the Type B rule will await completion of this revision implementing the court ruling.

Abstract: The proposed rule would revise the regulation found at 43 CFR 4.21(a) which governs the effect of an administrative decision pending appeal before the Office of Hearings and Appeals. The current rule provides that the filing of a Notice of Appeal will automatically suspend the effect of the decision appealed from pending the decision on appeal, unless the Director, Office of Hearings and Appeals or the Appeals Board makes a special finding to the contrary. The revision would mandate that a decision remain in full force and effect pending appeal unless the appellant files a petition for a stay of the decision. In ruling on the petition the Appeals Board shall consider (1) the relative harm to the parties if the stay is granted or denied, (2) the likelihood of the appellant's success on the merits, (3) the likelihood of irreparable harm to the appellant if the stay is not granted, and (4) whether the public interest favors granting the stay.

Abstract: The agency proposes to amend its regulations in 43 CFR 4.300 through 4.308 relating to Tribal Purchase of Interests Under Special Statutes in order to provide standard procedures for implementation of two recent statutes expanding tribal purchase rights and escheat requirements, namely, Pub. L. 96-274, applicable to the Standing Rock Sioux Reservation in North and South Dakota, and Pub. L. 97-459, applicable to the Devils Lake Sioux Reservation of North Dakota. The Department's current regulations in 43 CFR 4.300 through 4.308 apply to the Yakima, Warm Springs and Nez Perce Reservations. The proposed amendments to these regulations will incorporate provisions necessary for consideration of cases arising under the two statutes cited above.

Originally scheduled: April 1985. Legal Authority: 16 USC 701 to 711

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 21.13; 50 CFR 21.14

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service is proposing to review the regulations governing the release and harvest of captive-bred waterfowl on State-licensed shooting preserves. Considerable concern has been generated about these activities and their effects on the harvest and well-being of wild populations. The possibility for introduction of diseases into wild populations remains a serious concern. Current activities may be in conflict with prohibitions against live decoys (20.21f), and baiting (20.21i).

1548. ● MIGRATORY BIRD HUNTING: HUNTING REGULATIONS FOR RESTRICTION OF SHOTSHELL LENGTH

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 703 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 20

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Before the passage of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act (MBTA), there were no restrictions on firearms or ammunition used in the taking of migratory birds. The MBTA gave rise to regulations that required shotguns used in the sport hunting of migratory birds to be not larger than 10 gauge. Recently, there has been a trend toward long shotshells, which defeats the intent of the present regulatory restriction to limit firepower to reduce crippling and unretrieved harvest of migratory birds. The 10 gauge 3 1/2 inch shotshell now in use has a larger payload than the 8-gauge, 3-inch shotshell outlawed for use earlier in this century. The intent is to limit shotshell length to the current maximum (3 1/2) to stop market competition for ever longer shells and to eliminate any waste of migratory gamebird resources that added shell length would induce.

1549. CONVENTION ON INTERNATIONAL TRADE IN ENDANGERED SPECIES OF WILD FAUNA AND FLORA (ENDANGERED SPECIES CONVENTION)

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 to 1543

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 23

Legal Deadline: Other, Judicial, June 11, 1992.

In accordance with Article XVI, paragraph 2 of the Convention, this addition will take effect 90 days after notification of all Party Nations.

Abstract: The Service adds the saffron toucanet, chestnut-eared aracari, red-breasted toucan, and the spot-billed toucanet, at the request of Argentina, and the hill myna at the request of Thailand, to Appendix II of the Endangered Species Convention. The Convention regulates import, export, re-export, and introduction from the sea of certain animal and plant species. Species for which trade is controlled are listed in Appendices I, II, and III to the Convention. The countries participating in this treaty, including the U.S., recently adopted species amendments to Appendices I and II. The U.S. did not enter a reservation on any of the listing amendments approved at the recent eighth meeting of the Conference of the Parties. These amendments will be implemented in a separate rulemaking action.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 16 USC 3111 to 3126

Abstract: This rule amends management regulations for subsistence hunting, trapping, and fishing on Federal lands in Alaska. The regulations implement the subsistence priority provisions for rural residents for Alaska under the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act and provide for issuance of subsistence hunting, trapping, and fishing seasons and bag limits. Due to a decision by State court, management responsibility for subsistence taking of fish and wildlife was assumed by the Federal land management agencies in 1990.

This rule also provides for the seasonal bag limits and dates for subsistence hunting, trapping, and fishing on Federal lands in Alaska. The seasons and bag limits are developed in cooperation with State and local governmental entities to ensure that fish and wildlife populations in the State are adequately protected.

Such reduction would cause slight risks to wild plants, but a substantial reduction of administrative and public burdens. (2) Whether to require a fitness-to-travel checklist to reduce the high mortality/morbidity in the shipment of live animals. Processing such checklists would increase costs but would also increase awareness of live animals transport requirements/needs. (3) To allow innocent infractions of regulations to be cured by issuance of permits retroactively. While such action would increase costs slightly, there would be slight reductions in the cost of processing violations and such action would encourage voluntary compliance.

Abstract: The National Coastal Wetland Conservation Grant Program was established through the Coastal Wetlands Planning, Protection and Restoration Act. Funding for this grant program is provided from a portion of the funds deposited in the Sport Fish Restoration Account of the Federal Aid program. The proposed rules for 50 CFR 84 will be used for uniform administration of this new grant program. Such rules are needed to establish procedures from the selection and uniform administration of grants funded under the Act. Since grantees are State agencies, the requirements contained in 43 CFR 12 are applicable to audits, costs, and administration of grants under this program.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 668dd

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 25; 50 CFR 26; 50 CFR 29

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would revise portions of 50 CFR 25, 26 and 29 to define and provide standards for the compatibility of permitted uses on the National Wildlife Refuge System. Congress has expressed concern that all uses permitted on national wildlife refuges be consistently "compatible" with the purposes for which the respective refuges were established.

This rulemaking would provide a uniform definition for "compatible" use and, consequently, allow enhanced protection to the national wildlife refuge system.

1564. APPLICATION FEES FOR CONTROLLED HUNTS ON NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGES

Legal Authority: 16 USC 668ddCFR Citation: 50 CFR 25Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The popularity of controlled hunts has increased greatly over the last several years. Consequently, the number of applications for hunting permits has increased proportionately to such an extent that individual national wildlife refuges have been overburdened financially, and in terms of personnel work hours, with their review of such applications for permit eligibility and issuance. The purpose of this rulemaking is to provide a regulation that will pertain to the establishment of application fees for controlled hunts on national wildlife refuges. The establishment of an application fee would defray the additional burden placed upon the individual national wildlife refuge managing a controlled hunt.

1566. ● ENDANGERED AND THREATENED WILDLIFE AND PLANTS: EMERGENCY AND PROPOSAL TO ESTABLISH ADDITIONAL MANATEE SANCTUARIES IN KINGS BAY, CRYSTAL RIVER, CITRUS COUNTY, FLORIDA

Significance: Agency PriorityLegal Authority: 16 USC 1531 to 1544CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory.

In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than 1 year after such proposal.

Abstract: The Fish and Wildlife Service proposes to establish four additional manatee sanctuaries (32 acres) in Kings

Bay, Crystal River, Citrus County, Florida. All waterborne activities would be prohibited in these sanctuaries from November 15 through March 31 of each year. The proposed action would prevent the taking of manatees by harassment resulting from waterborne activities during the winter months. The number of sanctuaries in Kings Bay would be increased from three (10.7 acres) to seven (42.7 acres) to accommodate the increase in the number of manatees using the area each winter, and to offset the harassment from increasing public use.

EXEMPTION FROM FISH AND WILDLIFE EXPORT REQUIREMENTS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 18 USC 42

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 14

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service has determined that the export of live farm-raised fish and farm-raised fish eggs does not adversely affect the wild resources. This rulemaking would exempt exporters from licensing requirements, designated port requirements, and payment of user fees. This rule will relieve exporters of the requirement of obtaining an import/export license ($125 per year), and of the payment of user fees ($25 per shipment).

1530. NATIONAL MIGRATORY BIRD HARVEST INFORMATION PROGRAM

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 701 to 711; 16 USC 742(a) to 742(d); 16 USC 742(e) to 742(j); 16 USC 712

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 20

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: There is a need to obtain better estimates of migratory bird harvests toward the end of aiding decisions affecting the ability to maintain populations at healthy levels. Names and addresses of a representative sample of migratory bird hunters are needed in order to develop improved surveys that are free from bias. The action will be to develop, through existing State and Federal hunter licensing activities, a more reliable sample of names and addresses of persons who hunt migratory birds than is currently available. One proposed alternative would require all migratory bird hunters to obtain and maintain in their possession a program card. Cards would be available through the State license vendors, with States having the option to charge a fee to recover administrative and distribution costs. More efficient and less costly means of acquiring the necessary names and addresses may exist. Therefore, the FWS will solicit recommendations for alternatives to the previously identified option. The main benefit of the proposed action will be to increase the quality and extent of migratory bird harvest information.

Abstract: The Service proposes to remove 50 CFR 17.40 (b)(1)(i)(E), the special rule which allows take of grizzly bears through a special hunt in northwestern Montana. The Service further intends to review the Grizzly Bear Special Rule to address actions needed due to population pressure within a grizzly bear population. The proposed removal of the authorization for the special hunt in Montana is to allow time to review the regulation based on current biological information. 1592. ENDANGERED AND THREATENED WILDLIFE AND PLANTS: EMERGENCY RULE TO LIST THE KANAB AMBERSNAIL

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory. In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than 1 year after such proposal.

Abstract: The Service will exercise its emergency authority to determine the Kanab ambersnail to be an endangered species. Only two populations of this snail are known to exist, both on wetlands on private lands in Kane County, Utah. A status survey completed in 1991 discovered that one population is nearly extirpated, the other has been subjected to major habitat alteration and destruction. Both populations are exceptionally vulnerable to extinction from natural or human-caused events. Immediate listing would trigger the protections in sections 7 and 9 of the Endangered Species Act. The Service finds that good cause exists to make the emergency rule effective upon publication. The emergency rule will implement Federal protection for 240 days. A proposed rule to list the Kanab ambersnail as endangered will follow the emergency rulemaking, and will allow for public comment.

This measure, required by the Endangered Species Act of 1973, corresponds with a determination of endangered status by the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS), National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. NMFS is responsible for the sockeye salmon and must decide whether a species under its jurisdiction should be classified as endangered or threatened. Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, January 29, 1989.

Section 8 of the Big Cypress National Preserve Addition Act directs the Secretary of the Interior to promulgate regulations governing nonfederal oil and gas development by 1/29/89.

Abstract: Several sections of 36 CFR part 9, subpart B contain ambiguous language which has caused confusion in interpreting the existing regulations. The NPS wants to make technical revisions to clarify requirements for both applicants and the Service. Also, the existing regulations exempt two classes of operators from compliance. Because of these exemptions, the regulations apply to only 30% of the existing operations resulting in avoidable impacts to park resources and visitor values from unregulated operations. Finally, the Service intends to propose revisions to the existing regulations to incorporate congressionally mandated requirements and timetables governing nonfederal oil and gas development in the Big Cypress National Preserve Addition. Examples of such revisions include: making the regulations applicable to all oil and gas operations within all units of the National Park System; updating terms for consistency with existing policies, practices, and laws; and removing the monetary ceiling and floor on bonds and security deposits so that bonds may be calculated and posted commensurate with reclamation costs.

1597. APOSTLE ISLANDS NATIONAL LAKESHORE: SNOWMOBILING

Legal Authority: 16 USC 3

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 7.82

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule designates routes and frozen water surfaces for use by snowmobiles at Apostle Islands National Lakeshore. The general regulations at 36 CFR 2.18 prohibit such use unless routes and water surfaces are specifically identified and promulgated as special regulations. The intended effect of this regulation is to remove that prohibition and allow the use of snowmobiles to conduct legislatively authorized fishing activities.

1598. YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK: COMMERCIAL TRAFFIC ON U.S. HIGHWAY 191 WITHIN YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 3

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 7.13

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed regulation will exempt the section of U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park from the prohibition on the use of National Park Service roads by commercial vehicles when such use has in no way a connection with operation of the park; delete the special regulations establishing the speed limit on U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park; and restrict the amount and type of hazardous materials which may be transported on U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park. The special regulation establishing the present fee schedule for commercial traffic within Yellowstone will be eliminated and the Superintendent provided the discretion to establish and adjust fees for such use on an annual basis.

These actions will clearly define the management and regulation of commercial traffic on U.S. 191 through Yellowstone and assure a certain measure of protection against hazardous waste spills.

Abstract: The existing regulations at 36 CFR part 9, subpart A, promulgated in January of 1977, contain a provision regarding the use of water in connection with mining claims within

National Park System units that creates a "catch 22" for miners seeking to use water in connection with their claims. In order to use water in a park, a miner must have a perfected water right. However, to obtain a perfected water right, a miner must use water. Herein lies the "catch 22." The National Park Service would like to rectify this dilemma through a rule change that would eliminate the perfected water right language while at the same time preserve the Service's ability to protect water quality and quantity.

Abstract: This rulemaking action is to add a new part 70 to govern the issuance of Certificates of Degree of Indian Blood (CDIB's). There has been a sharp increase in the number of requests for CDIB's over the past few years. More and more programs are requiring individuals to submit CDIB's to document possession of Indian blood. which the Bureau will base the issuance of CDIB's; and the procedures that individuals will need to follow, including any documentation requirements, to obtain CDIB's.

Final, Statutory, October 5, 1989.

Abstract: The primary purpose of the amendments to 93 USC 638 is to permit an orderly transition from Federal domination of programs for and services to Indians to effective and meaningful participation by the Indian people in the planning, conduct, and administration of those programs and services while maintaining the Federal Government's unique and continuing relationship with and responsibility to individual Indian tribes and to the Indian people as a whole. In addition to extensive consultation with the tribes and Native American groups, the Bureau of Indian Affairs is examining all of its planning administrative procedures from the perspective of maximizing tribal participation. Due to the broad scope of the review, an estimate of the potential cost and potential benefit is premature. The changes are one of process rather than increases or decreases in budget or program funding.

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 214

Abstract: The BIA is proposing to revise the regulations at 25 CFR 214 governing management of non-oil and gas minerals on Osage Reservation Lands in Oklahoma. The proposed revisions eliminate specific royalties for minerals not found within the Osage Mineral estate and give authority to the Osage Tribal Council, with the approval of the Superintendent of the Osage Agency, to set applicable royalty rates. This revision also replaces outmoded methods of exchange with modern methods, and correctly designates those officials responsible for the management of non-oil and gas minerals within the Osage Mineral estate. The proposed revisions are intended to enhance the management ability of the Department over the production of these minerals, and to eliminate various inaccuracies in the current regulations.

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs is proposing a new Part 10 in 25 CFR to establish standards for governing Indian adult and juvenile detention, holding and community residential facilities and programs. The current detention regulations in 25 CFR are over 20 years old and extremely limited. The proposed changes will cover all important issues governing detention and residential services. The standards will increase the bureau's capability to provide Indian tribes the direction to administer constitutionally sound detention and residential programs. It will also provide a preventative measure to potential litigation.

District Court for Arizona abolished 25 CFR 153, Grazing Regulation for the Joint Use Administrative Area and ordered the Secretary to promulgate new regulations for the control of grazing and livestock for the former Joint Use Administrative Area. Due to a lack of tribal concurrence, regulations were not promulgated for lands partitioned to the Navajo Tribe. Navajo tribal concurrence has been recently achieved; therefore, the BIA needs to move forward with publication of these regulations. Any cost associated with the implementation of these regulations will be assumed within the BIA annual budget. Cost associated with compliance of the provisions of these regulations will be borne by the Navajo Tribe or its members. There is no associated cost to the general public.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9; 25 USC 13

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 11; 25 CFR 12

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The present regulations contain an incomplete criminal code that does not cover many areas of the law that are usually in the laws of the States where the reservation is located. The current regulations also contain very sketchy provisions on criminal and civil procedure. This rule proposes to update the sections on criminal offenses and create new sections on criminal procedures, domestic relations, probate proceedings, appellate proceedings and juvenile proceedings. This will provide the Courts with more complete and up-to-date proceedings and rules. Courts will have a six month period from the date of publication of the final rule to the effective date in which to revise their court codes. It is not anticipated that this revision will have any effect on the annual caseload for these courts or routine additional staffing. Therefore, the initiation of these rules should not result in additional costs.

Abstract: As a result of the Indian Land Consolidation Act, PL 97-495, many of the current provisions within 25 CFR 151 require updating. These changes will have a major impact on the ability of tribes and individual Indians to manage their real estate more effectively and efficiently. In addition to those provisions that are affected by the Act, other provisions within existing regulations are in need of updating as well. Abstract: The Bureau proposes to publish regulations in 25 CFR part 225 that will govern mineral agreements for the development of Indian-owned oil and gas resources pursuant to the Indian Mineral Development Act of 1982, Public Law 97-382. This Act authorizes the tribes to enter into negotiated agreements rather than go through the previously required competitive advertising procedure.

The regulations in 25 CFR part 211 govern contracts for the prospecting and mining of Indian-owned minerals, other than oil and gas. Revisions will be made which would combine rules for the review and approval of mineral development contracts on both tribal and allotted lands into one part. This part has been redesignated from 25 CFR part 171.

As a result of the public comments on the previously proposed rules for 25 CFR parts 211 and 225, it has been determined that 25 CFR part 212 will not be removed. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 25 USC 465; 25 USC 2202

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 151

Abstract: This proposed rule will provide stronger and more consistent guidelines for reviewing trust applications than the current case-by-case review, which uses general criteria. The Secretary of the Interior announced on July 19, 1990, a new policy for Indian Tribes acquiring in trust for gaming and non-gaming purposes lands contiguous to or outside the tribe's existing reservation boundaries. This proposed revision will add two new sets of criteria that will be used in evaluating tribal off-reservation acquisition for gaming and non-gaming purposes.

Abstract: Publication of this proposed rule is necessary so that tribes, tribal organizations, and consortia of tribes who have combined memberships of 500 members or more may provide the necessary services to parents and children under six years old whose needs are not being met by existing programs. National studies show that for every dollar spent on early childhood development programs there is a return of six dollars. The benefits include increasing the literacy rate, the graduation rate, and the rate of enrollment in higher education. High quality early childhood programs can also decrease the rate of cognitive learning and emotional handicaps; teenage pregnancy; welfare dependency and the incidence of arrest and juvenile delinquency.

and related revenues from Federal and Indian mineral leases. These monies are, for the most part, collected from the current designated payor on the lease. However, if MMS is unable to collect from the current payor, it must pursue collections from a prior payor(s), the lessee, or an assignee of the lease. Existing regulations are unclear as to the responsibilities and liabilities of the parties involved. Therefore, MMS is proposing to amend its regulations to clarify payor, lessee, and assignee requirements and responsibilities.

1668. REQUIREMENTS FOR CRANES INSTALLED ON FIXED PLATFORMS IN THE OUTER CONTINENTAL SHELF

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.20

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR 250.22(c) are being evaluated to determine whether the requirements for the operation and maintenance of cranes installed on fixed platforms are adequate to promote safety on the Outer Continental Shelf. The advance NPRM will discuss current maintenance, testing, and inspection requirements contained in the regulations through incorporation by reference of the American Petroleum Institute's Recommended Practice for Operation and Maintenance of Offshore Cranes (API RP 2D). Alternative rules will be discussed in the notice. The advance NPRM will also discuss training, crane operator qualifications, and the need for certifying crane operators. The oil and gas industry and general public will be requested to comment and make recommendations concerning regulation of cranes on offshore platforms.

1669. ● ELECTRONIC DATA INTERCHANGE

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1331 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Regulations are being considered to amend the rules governing oil and gas and sulphur operations in the Outer Continental Shelf. The regulations would address plans to propose digital/electronic reporting requirements for well tests and for gas meter documents as part of the effort to move to electronic data interchange (EDI). The alternative is not to implement the new reporting requirements. The costs to lessees to implement these amendments are not expected to significantly increase over the costs of complying with the current program.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 33 USC 1321; EO 12777

CFR Citation: 30 CFR Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, August 18, 1992.

Abstract: Regulations are being developed to implement the authority of Minerals Management Service (MMS) under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (FWPCA) as amended by the Oil Pollution Act of 1990. These regulations will address oil spill prevention and response in State submerged lands as well as in the Outer Continental Shelf. A nonregulatory alternative will not meet the mandate of the FWPCA as amended. The expected costs will depend on the extent to which existing practices in State and Federal waters meet the new mandated requirements. The expected benefits will be an assurance that oil spill prevention and response capability are being addressed on all facilities in both State and Federal waters.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 217

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Federal Oil and Gas Royalty Management Act of 1982 (FOGRMA) requires that the Secretary of the Interior establish a comprehensive inspection and auditing system to provide the capability to accurately determine royalties, interest, fines, penalties, fees, deposits, and other payments owed on Federal or Indian oil and gas leases. This responsibility has been delegated to MMS. However, performance of the required audits may be delegated to States or Indian tribes pursuant to sections 202 and 205 of FOGRMA or to independent certified public accountants under contract. The FOGRMA also requires the promulgation of regulations to establish audit standards and procedures, payor requirements and responsibilities, and authorities and responsibilities which may be delegated by MMS to a State, Indian tribe, or an independent certified public accountant. The purpose of this rulemaking action is to establish the regulations required by FOGRMA.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1331 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.154

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The development of this notice of proposed rulemaking resulted from the recommendation of a task force that examined many contributing causes to recent fatal accidents in the North Sea and the Gulf of Mexico. The task force identified areas where changes in regulations should be considered. This action considers changes to the regulations concerning better communication among personnel, protection of pipeline risers, safe fuel storage, fire survivability of the accommodation, and the placement of shutdown valves on pipelines as a means to isolate the pressurized hydrocarbons in the pipeline from potential danger that could result from a fire or other damage to the pipeline. An alternative is to leave the rules unchanged.

Abstract: The current gas valuation regulations provided that when the lessee of any gas lease committed to a federally approved unitization or communitization agreement does not take the full share of production under the terms of the agreement, the entitled, but not taken, production is still subject to royalty payment and reporting requirements. This rulemaking would eliminate the requirement that the actual disposition of any part of production to which a lessee was entitled but did not take governs the valuation of that part. Under the rulemaking, the regulations would be amended to allow lessees to value their entitled, but not taken, production at prices based upon information that is accessible to the lessee. This rule will reduce the administrative burden for payors and MMS so that there is certainty in the determination of royalty values. The adoption of these rules would not affect the requirement in Indian leases and the current regulations for the performance of major portion analyses or dual accounting.

The Department of the Interior has jurisdiction over gathering pipelines on Federal offshore oil and gas leases. The Minerals Management Service will promulgate burial and inspection regulations for these pipelines. recodified at 30 CFR 256.57 and amended to broaden the rules to include enhanced oil recovery projects as recommended by the General Accounting Office as well as to encourage investment in economically borderline new production on existing producing leases. The rule would retain current incentives to continue production that has declined to its economic limit. The rule could result in a substantial increase in production of otherwise unrecoverable oil and gas. The alternative would be to leave the existing regulations in place.

However, current law does not provide for a time limitation on credit adjustments under onshore Federal or Indian leases similar to that provided in the OCSLA. This rule would add a new provision entitled "Limitations on Credit Adjustments" which would restrict credit adjustments without prior authorization to payments due within 5 years before the date of the adjustments. The rule provides that MMS could authorize credit adjustments with respect to payments made more than 5 years but less than 10 years before the date of the adjustments. However, credit adjustments with respect to any payment made more than 10 years before the date of the adjustment would be prohibited.

Abstract: The Debt Collection Act of 1982 (DCA), 31 USC 3716, provides for a Federal Agency's exercise of administrative offset to collect claims of the United States Government. The DCA instructs each Agency to prescribe regulations before collecting a claim by administrative offset. In accordance with the requirements of the DCA, the Minerals Management Service (MMS) is proposing new regulations governing collection by administrative offset of royalties, interest, and other amounts due under Federal and Indian oil, gas, and other mineral leases. Under this rule, collection by administrative offset would only be used after other attempts to collect the debt had been attempted by MMS.

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service (MMS) is proposing to amend the regulatory program by establishing new requirements for the development and production of oil and gas leases located in deepwater. CFR Citation: 30 CFR 218; 30 CFR 218

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: 30 CFR 218.40(b) and 218.40(b) authorize the Minerals Management Service (MMS) to assess an amount not to exceed $10 for each report received by the designated due date but which is incorrectly completed. The reports subject to this assessment are required to be submitted to MMS by royalty payors, lease operators, lessees, or other parties in accordance with statutes, regulations, contracts, orders, or terms of Federal or Indian mineral leases. The MMS regulations do not provide for an assessment for incorrect reports if the incorrect report is received after its designated due date. However, the administrative costs incurred by MMS to research and resolve reporting errors are identical whether or not the report is received timely or late. So that MMS may be compensated for all administrative costs incurred due to reporting errors, MMS is amending sections 218.40(b) and 218.40(b) to include as assessable, all reports that are submitted incorrectly regardless of whether or not the report was received by the designated due date or was received late.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 218

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 218.54 of 30 CFR of the MMS regulations provides for late-payment interest charges on oil and gas late royalty payments based on the rate applicable under section 6621 of the Internal Revenue Code, 26 U.S.C. 6621(a)(2) (Supp. 1987). However, MMS regulations applicable to solid minerals and geothermal resources late royalty payments provide for late payment interest charges based on the lower rate prescribed by the Department of the Treasury as the "Treasury Current Value of Funds Rate." The MMS is amending its solid minerals and geothermal resources regulations to provide for the higher interest rate authorized by section 6621 of the Internal Revenue Code. This rule amendment will provide for consistency in MMS regulations.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: MMS currently incorporates by reference 68 documents that describe recommended practices or design criteria that must be followed in conducting specific offshore operations.

Many of these incorporated documents have been revised and replaced with new editions; therefore, MMS needs to update the offshore operating regulations by incorporation of new editions of documents to those incorporated by reference. Most new editions reviewed would be adopted; however, in some cases it may no longer be necessary to incorporate a specific document into the regulations. The costs to lessees to implement these amendments are not expected to significantly increase over the costs of complying with the current program under 30 CFR 250.

Abstract: The existing regulations provide for the valuation of unprocessed gas, residue gas, or any gas plant product which is not sold pursuant to an arm's-length contract to be determined in accordance with a benchmark method. In the final regulations, MMS adopted as the first benchmark the lessee's gross proceeds received under its non-arm's-length transaction if they were equivalent to the gross proceeds received under comparable arm's-length contracts for like-quality production in the same field or area. The criteria to be considered in defining comparable contracts were also outlined. However, since the adoption of the revised regulations, numerous questions have been raised as to the interpretation of the first benchmark. These questions have identified the need to further clarify MMS's intention in this regard.

submitted to MMS on certain MMS forms. Section 250.18 specifies periods of time that certain geological and geophysical data will be protected from disclosure to the public when submitted on specific forms. The alternatives of providing guidance through an OCS order or through a Notice to Lessees and Operators on a region-to-region basis fail to ensure that information is uniformly available to the public. This rulemaking does not involve any significant additional costs. Its benefits are the removal of ambiguity in the current regulations and the clear identification of items of data and information that are made available for public information.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 218Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The MMS Auditing and Financial System (AFS) matches and applies each payment received to its corresponding report or bill. If a payment cannot be automatically matched and applied by the AFS because of inadequate or erroneous information, it must be manually matched and applied by MMS personnel. The manual matching of payments to reports and bills results in MMS incurring substantial costs so that the AFS can operate properly to account for and distribute royalties. This situation also delays the payment application process and can result in delay in distribution of royalties and related information to States and Indian Tribes and allottees. To recover the costs, MMS is proposing to amend its regulations to add a new assessment amount not to exceed $250 per incident. The new assessment would encourage payors to submit their payment, when required, together with the applicable report or copy of the bill and for the same amount as the report or bill. The new assessment would also encourage payors to adequately identify payments to the report or bill to be paid.

1691. AMENDMENT TO THE REGULATIONS CONCERNING THE REQUIREMENT FOR SUBMISSION OF A CORPORATE SURETY BOND TO INDEMNIFY THE U.S. FROM DEFAULT BY A LESSEE ON THE CONDITIONS AND TERMS OF AN OCS LEASE

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1335CFR Citation: 30 CFR 258Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would amend current regulations requiring lessee surety bonds. The monetary value of surety bonds designated in current regulations was established over 20 years ago and is seriously inadequate to protect the Government from loss due to lessee failure to meet the terms of the OCS lease for royalty payments, proper abandonment of wells, site cleanup, and ongoing lease operations. Bond requirements may be increased on a case-by-case basis, as an alternative to rule change. This might result in inconsistent requirements. The potential costs are whatever increase is incurred in obtaining a higher value bond. Benefits would be a reduced potential for Government loss and a greater protection of the public interest.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 218Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Because royalty payments are a major source of income to many Indian allottees, and the only source in some instances, it has been a longstanding Department of the Interior policy that overpayments made by lessees and other royalty payors to Indians cannot be recovered by refund. This policy was established to prevent an undue financial burden on Indian allottees who may have limited financial means to refund the overpayment. However, the adopted policy permits lessees and payors to recoup overpayments as a credit against future rental or royalty accruals due to Indian tribes or allottees. Lessees and operators were instructed to follow this recoupment policy in

"Notice to Lessees and Operators of Indian Oil and Gas Leases No. 1A" (NTL-1A), issued by the Conservation Division of U.S. Geological Survey in 1977. The MMS published revised final oil and gas product valuation regulations at 30 CFR part 206 on January 15, 1988 (53 FR 1184 and 53 FR 1230), effective March 1, 1988. Section 206.150(e)(2) of the revised regulations terminated NTL-1A. Although the Indian lease overpayment recoupment policy has been the same for many years, MMS believes that its (cont)

Abstract: There is a conflict in MMS regulations at 30 CFR 220.030 with the Federal Oil and Gas Royalty Management Act of 1982 (FOGRMA) as to the time period that an offshore net profit share lessee (NPSL) must maintain records and all other documentation pertaining to the NPSL capital account. Therefore, MMS is proposing to amend 30 CFR 250.030 to extend the time period to 6 years, from 36 months, consistent with the statutory requirement of FOGRMA. The MMS is also proposing to remove 30 CFR 220.033 which includes language that conflicts with the recordkeeping requirements of FOGRMA and MMS regulations at 30 CFR 212.50 and 212.51.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.67

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rules for Hydrogen Sulfide are being amended to revise the requirements for visual and audible warning systems, personnel protection, hydrogen sulfide (H2S) and sulphur dioxide (SO2) detection and monitoring, and the criteria for the activation of visual and audible warning systems. These amendments are necessary to be consistent with the new personnel exposure limits for H2S and SO2 established by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Amending the rule would reduce personnel exposure limits, thereby decreasing the risks associated with hazardous environments. An NPRM was published in the Federal Register on August 15, 1990 (55 FR 33326), soliciting comments. The comments received were reviewed and revisions were written. Due to the extensive nature of the revisions, a decision was made to repropose the rule soliciting further comments. The costs to lessees to implement these amendments are not expected to significantly increase over the costs of complying with the current program.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 218; 30 CFR 230

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: It is MMS's current practice to only allow the offsetting of underpayments and overpayments within an individual lease and not between leases unless both of the leases are included in the same unitization or communitization agreement. However, it may not be appropriate, in certain cases of obvious payor reporting errors, for MMS to assess late payment interest charges or deny a request for refund of an overpayment on a Federal offshore lease which is subject to the filing and reporting requirements of section 10 of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act, 43 USC 1339. This rulemaking would amend MMS regulations to allow payors to offset royalty underpayments on one lease against overpayments on a different lease (referred to as cross-lease netting) in certain cases where reporting errors do not result in harm to the royalty recipients. The rule specifies the conditions that must be met before MMS would allow cross-lease netting.

1696. OIL AND GAS AND SULPHUR OPERATIONS IN THE OUTER CONTINENTAL SHELF, REPORTING FORMS

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule amends Minerals Management Service (MMS) regulations at 30 CFR part 250 that govern Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) reporting forms used for collecting information related to oil and gas and sulphur drilling and production in the OCS. The current OCS reporting forms are being updated and modernized as part of the effort to reduce the paperwork and respondent burden imposed on the public as required by the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980 (Pub. L. 96-511, 44 USC 3501 et seq.). These revisions are a result of an analysis by an MMS task force and comments received from industry in response to several Federal Register notices published in August 1990 on the proposed forms. These changes will enable MMS to process the data submitted by industry more efficiently, reduce the reporting requirements for industry, and establish a consistent format and syntax to facilitate submission of information by electronic data transmission.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 206; 30 CFR 210; 30 CFR 218Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service (MMS) is continually reviewing its operations relative to the collection and disbursement of royalties and other revenues from Federal and Indian mineral leases for improvements that can be made to improve efficiency. As a result of this ongoing process, MMS has revised its Form MMS-2014 (Report of Sales and Royalty Remittance) to provide for the reporting thereon of all sales and royalty information from any type of Federal or Indian mineral lease. Federal and Indian mineral leases include oil and gas leases, geothermal resources leases, and solid minerals leases. Therefore, MMS is amending its regulations to remove all references to Form MMS-4014 because that form will no longer be used after the effective date of this final rule. The consolidation of all payors reporting requirements on the revised Form MMS-2014 will simplify reporting requirements on the part of the payor and improve the efficiency of MMS' collection process.

The existing financial responsibility regulations in 33 CFR 135 are being transferred to MMS' regulations and redesignated as 30 CFR 253. This action will result in no substantive change to the regulatory requirements at this time (i.e., the $35 million level of financial responsibility that exists in the regulations is retained). Rulemaking at a later date will address the new financial responsibility requirements set in the OPA.

Final Rule Stage

Abstract: On May 9, 1988, the Minerals Management Service (MMS) published a Notice of Final Rulemaking in the Federal Register (53 FR 18408) to amend its regulations to provide for lease operators to report onshore production data to MMS as a result of the transfer of accounting responsibility from the Bureau of Land Management (BLM). The transfer of responsibility from BLM to MMS has been completed. The MMS has also completed installation of a new computer system. As a result, certain sections of 30 CFR Part 216 relative to reporting requirements require amendment. The amendments are administrative changes only and will result in a reduction of operator reporting burden by the elimination of certain reporting forms. The amendments also clarify existing operator responsibilities for reporting operations information to MMS.

Abstract: The MMS regulations at 30 CFR 243.2 address the effectiveness of its Royalty Management Program decisions and orders pending administrative appeal. At the time the rule was issued in 1984, it was MMS's interpretation that most decisions and orders would not be suspended pending appeal. However, in 1986, the Interior Board of Land Appeals (IBLA) determined that unless there were special circumstances, the Director, MMS, was required to stay effectiveness of decisions and orders pending appeal provided the appellant posted adequate surety (Marathon Oil Company, 90 IBLA 236 (1986)). In view of the IBLA decision, an amendment is needed to MMS regulations at 30 CFR 243.2 to reflect clearly that MMS decisions and orders are stayed pending administrative appeal, the types of sureties which would be acceptable to MMS, and related issues.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement will propose a rule which adds two new components to existing bonding requirements. Abstract: The Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's (OSM) regulations concerning the protection of historic properties from surface coal mining operations, promulgated on February 10, 1987, were remanded by the DC District Court on October 7, 1991, for failure to comply with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA). The Court held that the rules were based on the incorrect premise that the State permitting actions are not Federal undertakings and remanded the matter to the Secretary of the Interior to bring OSM into compliance with NHPA. OSM must now propose new or amended rules to implement the court decision.

1715. ● BASIS FOR COAL WEIGHT DETERMINATION

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 870

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Some processors purchase raw coal from operators on an estimated clean coal basis. The Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's rules require reclamation fee payment on the actual gross weight of the clean or raw coal at the time of sale, transfer or use. Records required to document the basis of a coal sale are not clearly defined. Legislative changes provide OSM the authority to audit coal preparation plants, tipples and loading facilities. Records a person operating a coal preparation plant must maintain on coal purchases are not specified in regulation. A person operating a preparation plant is not liable for fee payment on coal sales that exceed purchases. This rule would allow an operator who sells coal to a processor, who actually cleans the coal, to pay fees on the same basis on which the operator is paid by the processor. The person who operates a coal preparation plant would be liable for reclamation fee payment on all coal sold that exceeds coal purchased. Records to be maintained to document the basis for coal sales would be defined in regulation.

Abstract: The proposed rule will establish standards for review and rebuttal of presumptions regarding ownership and control relationships between permit applicants and violators as well as between permittees and violators. The rule will also specify requirements for verifying whether the ownership and control information specified on a permit application is complete, require use of OSM's applicant violator computer system and other available data by regulatory authorities when conducting violation reviews and establish procedures for regulatory authorities to use in determining the status of outstanding violations. The rule will prescribe sanctions in cases where a permit applicant intentionally fails to provide complete or accurate ownership and control information. The rule will also require regulatory authorities to conduct an annual verification of certain ownership and control information for all permittees. In addition, the rule will specify measures for OSM to take should a state regulatory authority fail to implement these new requirements. The rule will state that an application to temporarily cease mining operations may be approved if the regulatory authority finds that recoverable coal reserves remain, that the bond is adequate, and that based on pre-approval inspection, the site is in compliance with all applicable requirements, including contemporaneous reclamation, drainage control, and structure certifications. The rule will specify that temporary cessation may be approved for a period not to exceed one year, after which time the permittee may file for subsequent one year renewals.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 617; 43 USC 391; 43 USC 485; 43 USC 390; 5 USC 552; 373 US 546, Arizona v. California

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 415

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Colorado River water has been apportioned for consumptive use among water users with valid water rights within the States of Arizona, California, and Nevada. Future requests for delivery of this water are expected to exceed the amount that will be available. Formal rules will help ensure that water is put to beneficial use and that unauthorized uses are eliminated. The rules will provide a basis for the Secretary of the Interior to curtail unauthorized water use and establish a due process for water users to appeal adverse action decisions. Without formal rules and an appeals process, it is likely that the Secretary would be unable to enforce an action to curtail unauthorized water use and be subject to legal action by valid water users for not preventing unauthorized diversions of water. The initial cost of implementing the rule is estimated at $125,000; annual costs thereafter - $12,000, all costs in 1991 dollars. Costs are expected to be recovered from beneficiaries.

Since Regional Directors' determinations are often based on policies issued by the Commissioner, the potential existed for the Commissioner to become the final arbiter of his/ her own decisions. Legal Authority: 43 USC 1181e; 30 USC 601 et seq

Abstract: It is necessary to amend existing regulations concerning extension of time for cutting and removal on timber sale contracts. Shorter contract terms and increased seasonal restrictions on operations have caused a problem with the reappraisal requirement for contract extensions. This regulation would allow contract extensions without reappraisal under certain conditions.

1793. ● HELIUM DISTRIBUTION CONTRACTS

Legal Authority: 50 USC 167 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 602

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Issuance of a revision to 30 CFR 602 is designed to correct a deficiency identified by the Inspector General. Under the existing rule, the Bureau of Mines has not been able to bill and collect the $5 per thousand cubic feet price premium for Bureau helium purchased for sale to Federal agencies but sold to commercial accounts. The Inspector General estimated that $293,000 and $437,000 went uncollected in 1989 and 1990, respectively. Estimates of any future benefits are uncertain because of changing market conditions.

Abstract: This regulation which requires innovation in the submission of research and development proposals to further Bureau of Mines' programs as authorized by statute is proposed for rescission because these requirements are also contained in 48 CFR, chapter 15, subpart 1515.5. 1798. NONDISCRIMINATION ON THE BASIS OF AGE IN PROGRAMS OR ACTIVITIES RECEIVING FEDERAL FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6103

CFR Citation: 28 CFR 42 subpart I (New)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation will implement the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, as amended, in program or activities assisted by the Department of Justice (DOJ). The statute requires that Federal agencies providing Federal financial assistance promulgate implementing regulations consistent with the general regulations issued by the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS), and the statute provides that such agency regulations shall not be effective until approved by HHS. In 1980 the proposed rule was published for comment, modified, approved by the DOJ Office of Legal Counsel, and on November 10, 1980, a draft final rule was sent to HHS for approval. On July 13, 1984, HHS conditionally approved the draft regulation. On August 12, 1987, DOJ submitted to HHS a draft final regulation. On August 3, 1991, HHS approved a DOJ draft final regulation.

All instances of an alien being brought to the U.S. without a visa when one is required (except for arrivals from contiguous territories) would render the carrier subject to a fine under section 273 of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Individual waivers of visas (such as 212(d)(4)) granted after arrival in the U.S. do not relieve a carrier of fine liability. Similarly, granting of parole or subsequent admission into the U.S. does not remove fine liability.

Abstract: The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (IRCA) imposes sanctions against employers who hire aliens not authorized to work. Since many of the nation's agricultural employers have become dependent upon such workers to meet production and harvesting needs, Congress created the Special Agricultural Workers (SAW) Program and the Replenishment Agricultural Workers (RAW) Program to grant permanent resident status to certain agricultural workers. To clarify the process through which employers can employ nonimmigrant seasonal and temporary agricultural workers, Congress moved agricultural employment from H-2 classification into a separate H-2A class, and incorporated a labor certification process into the statute. This rule establishes special H-2A regulatory criteria. It supplements the Department of Labor's rules covering the temporary agricultural labor certification process. This rule amends Service regulations relating therefore to temporary alien workers seeking classification under section 101(a)(15)(H) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

The existing regulations implementing the anti-discrimination provisions of section 274B of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. 1324b, need to be modified to incorporate the Immigration Act of 1990 amendments. As currently written, portions of the existing regulations conflict with the amended statute. This conflict creates a significant problem in the enforcement and the comprehension of the anti-discrimination provisions. In addition, as the case law develops under this new statute, two issues have arisen. First, many issues have not been addressed or defined by the statute or regulations. Second, while it is possible for these issues to be decided on a case by case basis, the case law is not reported by any service. This has created a significant problem in the comprehension of the anti-discrimination provisions. The main objectives of this rulemaking will be to eliminate contradictions, to incorporate additions, to promote a better understanding of the anti-discrimination

Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Labor.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of regulations selected for review or development.

SUMMARY: This document sets forth the Department's semiannual agenda of regulations that has been selected for review or development during the coming 1-year period. The agenda complies with the requirements of both Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act. The agenda lists all regulations that are expected to be under review or development between October 1992 and October 1993.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Roland G. Droitsch, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Policy, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy, Department of Labor, 200 Constitution

Avenue NW., Room S-2312, Washington, DC 20210, (202) 523-9058.

Note: Information pertaining to a specific regulation can be obtained from the agency contact listed for that particular regulation.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act require the semiannual publication in the Federal Register of an agenda of regulations.

Executive Order 12291 became effective February 17, 1981, and in substance, requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda listing all the regulations it expects to have under active consideration for promulgation, proposal, or review during the coming 1-year period. It also requires the Department to conduct a Regulatory Impact Analysis for all "major" regulations being developed.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act became effective on January 1, 1981, and applies only to regulations for which a notice of proposed rulemaking was issued on or after that date. It requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda listing all the regulations it expects to propose or promulgate that are likely to have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities" (5 U.S.C. 602). For any regulation that will have this impact, the Department must conduct a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis to gauge the economic consequences of the rule and to analyze the availability of more flexible approaches for lightening the rule's regulatory burden on "small entities."

If a proposed regulation will not have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities," the Department of Labor must publish a certification to that effect at the time of the general notice of proposed rulemaking or at the time of the publication of the final rule. That certification must be accompanied by a succinct statement explaining the reasons for the Agency's determinations.

As permitted by law, the Department of Labor is combining this publication of its agendas under the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291.

These regulatory reform requirements have more recently been amplified by requirements under Executive Order 12778 to ensure that regulations are clear and, to the extent possible, reduce litigation by the Negotiated Rulemaking Act of 1990 and by the President's direction that the Department carefully review its regulations and how they are issued.

Further improvement is certainly needed, and we are constantly seeking new and innovative approaches in pursuit of this goal. All interested members of the public are invited and encouraged to let departmental officials know how our regulatory reform process can be further improved and, of course, to participate in and comment on the review or development of the regulations listed on the agenda.

Lynn Martin,

Legal Authority: 29 USC 49 et seq; 29 USC 201 et seq; 29 USC 651 et seq; 29 USC 1801 et seq; 8 USC 1188(g)(2); 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 42

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department intends to revise its regulations for coordinated enforcement of farm protective statutes.

The rule will clarify existing regulatory language and update the regulations by making nomenclature and other technical amendments. The sections also will be reorganized for clarification. These regulations were first promulgated in 1980 to coordinate the farm labor enforcement activities of the Department's Employment and Training Administration, the Employment Standards Administration, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, and the Office of the Solicitor of Labor (45 FR 39489). The regulations establish a National Farm Labor Coordinated Enforcement Committee, which meets quarterly, consisting of the heads of the above DOL agencies, to oversee that coordination. A Regional Farm Labor Coordinated Enforcement Committee, which meets quarterly, is established in each DOL regional office. The Regional Committee is made up of the head of each of the above Agencies' regional offices. Each Regional Committee holds at least one annual public meeting to discuss farm labor issues.

Additional Information: Since 1980, a number of changes have taken place in DOL's farm labor activities, such as: The Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act has been replaced by the Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Protection Act; the title of the head of the National Committee has been changed from Under Secretary to Deputy Secretary; the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 has amended the Immigration and Nationality Act, authorizing DOL to enforce work contracts executed by employers of alien (H-2A) farmworkers; the role of States in operating the Employment Service under the Wagner-Peyser Act was enhanced in 1982; regional offices of the Employment Standards Administration no longer exist and the regional farm labor enforcement role is now coordinated by the Regional Administrator for Wage Hour; and the Assistant Secretary for Policy has assumed a role in farm labor programs at the national level. These and other changes necessitate updating the coordinated enforcement regulations.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 203

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 3(1) of the Fair Labor Standards Act requires the Secretary of Labor to issue regulations with respect to minors between 14 and 16 years of age ensuring that the periods and conditions of their employment do not interfere with their schooling, health, or well-being. The Secretary also is directed to designate occupations that may be particularly hazardous for minors 16 and 17 years of age. Child Labor Regulation No. 3 sets forth the permissible industries and occupations in which 14 and 15 year olds may be employed. In addition, this regulation specifies the number of hours in a day and in a week, and time periods within a day that such minors may be employed. The nonagricultural hazardous occupations orders which prohibit the employment of minors in such occupations are also contained in 29 CFR 570. Changes in technology and job content over the years require a review of the regulations to ensure the safety and health of such minors and at the same time avoid unnecessary restrictions on their employment opportunities. Revisions to HOs 2, 10, and 12 were published in final on 11/20/91 (CONT)

CONT: (56 FR 58626), effective 12/20/91. The Department intends to modify the hours restriction in Child Labor Regulation No. 3 for 14- and 15-year-olds to limit hours of work on evenings preceding school days (in contrast to existing limits on hours of work on school days) and to expand permissible hours under conditions that do not interfere with their schooling (e.g. allowing more hours on evenings preceding non-school days).

Significance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Authority: 29 USC 213(a)(1)CFR Citation: 29 CFR 541Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations set forth the criteria used in the determination of the application of the Fair Labor Standards Act exemption for "executive," "administrative," "professional" and "outside sales employees" from the minimum wage and overtime requirements of the Act. The existing regulation was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief. A final rule increasing the salary test criteria was published on 01/13/81 (46 FR 3010) and was scheduled to become effective on 02/13/81. On 02/12/81 (46 FR 11972) an indefinite stay of the final rule was published. On 03/27/81 (46 FR 18998) a proposal to suspend the final rule indefinitely was published with comments due by 04/28/81. As a result of numerous comments and petitions received from industry groups regarding the duties and responsibilities tests as set forth in the regulations, as well as recent case law developments, the Department concluded that a more comprehensive review of these regulations was needed and decided to reopen the comment period and broaden the scope of the review to include all aspects of the regulations. An ANPRM was published on 11/19/85 and its comment period was (cont)

1928. EMPLOYMENT OF HOMEWORKERS IN CERTAIN INDUSTRIES

Significance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Authority: 29 USC 211CFR Citation: 29 CFR 530Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation sets forth restrictions on industrial homework and governs the issuance of certificates authorizing the employment of homeworkers in certain industries, pursuant to Section 11(d) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). As originally issued, these regulations restricted the employment of industrial homework in seven industries: knitted outerwear; women's apparel; jewelry; buttons and buckles; gloves and mittens; handkerchiefs; and embroideries. The ban was removed on homework in the knitted outerwear industry by the Department on 11/9/81, following extensive hearings and public comment. This action was subsequently upheld by the District Court for the District of Columbia. However, on appeal the ban was reimposed 2/29/84 by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. On 3/27/84, the Department published a proposed rule rescinding the ban on homework in the knitted outerwear industry only. In addition to soliciting comments on the proposed rescission, the Department sought comments on various alternatives to such action (49 FR 11786). On 11/5/84, a final rule was published lifting the ban on homework for (cont)

Based on analysis of the results of its enforcement experience under the new certification procedure, and review of comments from a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking published on August 21, 1986 (51 FR 30036), a proposal was published on March 30, 1988 (53 FR 10342) which included enforcement mechanisms to enhance compliance among employers of homeworkers. The comment period was later extended to May 13, 1988 (53 FR 15063). The proposal also excluded the women's apparel industry and stated that this industry would be the subject of separate rulemaking. A final rule was published November 10, 1988 (53 FR 706). An ANPRM concerning women's apparel homework was published December 30, 1988 (53 FR 53344). Public hearings on this issue were held in seven cities during March and April 1989. The public comment period on the ANPRM closed on May 5, 1989 (54 FR 2008). The Department is considering whether it would be appropriate to modify the existing regulations in the women's apparel industry.

Abstract: The Fair Labor Standards Amendments of 1989 were enacted on November 17, 1989. Among other provisions, the amendments provide that employers may pay employees under the age of 20, under certain conditions, a wage rate of at least 85 percent of the minimum wage, but not less than $3.35 per hour, for a period to 90 days. An employee who has been paid at the training wage for 90 days can be employed by any other employer at the training wage an additional 90 days, but only if that employer provides on-the-job training in accordance with regulations required to be issued by the Department of Labor. The training wage provisions took effect April 1, 1990 and expire March 31, 1993. The statute provides that the Secretary of Labor shall issue regulations containing criteria for what qualifies as on-the-job training, and for defining what constitutes the requisite proof of previous periods of employment with other employers that is required to be provided by employees. Employers may rely on such proof of prior employment in good

Regulations 29 CFR Part 502, Reporting and Employment Requirements for Employers of Certain Workers Employed in Seasonal Agricultural Services are revised to conform to the INS changes. Hearing requests to contest civil money penalty assessments for violations of INA or these regulations must be in writing within thirty days of the notice of assessment. The regulations are revised to provide that hearing requests be sent to the official who issued the notice of civil money penalty assessment at the address appearing on the assessment notice.

Abstract: The Department has removed section 5.5(a)(4)(iv) of 29 CFR Part 5, relating to a maximum allowable ratio of two semi-skilled "helpers" for every three journeymen utilized on Federal construction projects subject to the Davis-Bacon and Related Acts. On April 21, 1992, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit held that the fixed maximum ratio contained in this section of the regulations was arbitrary and, therefore, invalid. All other provisions of the helper regulations were upheld. Thus, section 5.5(a)(4)(iv) was removed to conform to the court decision. See Building and Construction Trades Department, AFL-CIO v. An eligible protected employee is a person who has had at least 4 years of employment with a certificated air carrier as of October 24, 1978 and who loses his or her job during the ten years following such date in a bankruptcy or major employment contraction if and only if the Department of Transportation determines that the principal causes of such job loss was deregulation. On July 16, 1985, the U.S. Court of Appeals decided that the employee protection provisions of Section 43 were severable from the legislative veto provisions. Abstract: The Senior Community Service Employment Program has not published final regulations since 1976. For a variety of reasons that are no longer pertinent, proposed revisions published for comment in 1990 and 1985 were not promulgated in final. Thus statute Title V of the Older Americans Act, mandates that the Senior Community Service Employment Program is to be administered and regulations are to be issued by the Department of Labor. With reauthorization of the Older Americans Act scheduled for late 1991, but still not completed, a new opportunity presents itself. Abstract: Since 1981, Congress has enacted major changes in the Federal Unemployment Tax Act (FUTA) and Social Security Act (SSA) with respect to advances to States for the payment of unemployment insurance and the repayment of such advances and interest thereon. Promulgation of comprehensive regulations is being undertaken in two phases. The proposed rule will replace instructions contained in several Unemployment Insurance Program Letters approved under OMB No. 1205-0199 expiring November 30, 1993. This action

Under amendments effected by the Retirement Equity Act of 1984

Abstract: Regulation 29 CFR 2510.3-3(d)(2)(ii) describes the circumstances under which a plan participant receiving a distribution of benefits ceases to be a participant covered under the plan. Under the existing regulation, a participant covered under a pension plan loses his status as such where he receives an annuity contract guaranteeing his benefits from an insurance company licensed to do business in a state. Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 29 USC 1021

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 2520.101

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 101(d) of ERISA provides that when an employer maintaining a plan other than a multiemployer plan fails to make a required installment or other payment required to meet minimum funding standards under section 302 to a plan before the 60th day following the due date, the employer shall notify each participant and beneficiary of such failure. Section 101(d) also provides that the notice shall be made at such time and in such manner as the Secretary shall provide. Because OBRA 1989 added section 502(c)(3) to permit the imposition of substantial penalties upon employers who fail to give the notice required by section 101(d), there will be an increased need for regulatory guidance by the Secretary as to the time and manner in which notice under section 101(d) must be provided.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959, as amended (LMRDA), requires covered labor organizations to file an annual financial report with the Department of Labor. The regulations currently require unions to file detailed annual financial reports (Form LM-2 or LM-3). The revision will implement an abbreviated annual financial report (Form LM-4) which may be filed by unions having approximately $15,000 or less in annual receipts. The revised regulation will lessen the financial reporting burden on small labor organizations, many of which have frequent officer changes, part-time unpaid officers, and officers with minimal accounting/ bookkeeping expertise.

HOISTING AND TRANSPORTATION

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75.1403-11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Transporting persons and material has been a leading cause of fatal accidents in underground coal mines. The Agency, however, has very few mandatory standards addressing haulage hazards. The hoisting and transportation standards need to be updated to reflect advances in technology.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 56, subpart E; 30 CFR 57, subpart E

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In March 1991, MSHA's January 1991 final rule revising its safety standards for explosives at metal and nonmetal mines was challenged in the U.S. Court of Appeals (D.C. Circuit). On September 12, 1991, (56 FR 46500) after a series of stays, MSHA issued a one-year, partial administrative stay of certain provisions of the final rule. After re-examining the rulemaking record, MSHA determined that the stayed provisions needed further public input. MSHA's proposed rule addresses the following stayed provisions: definitions of "blast site," "magazine," and "storage facility," the requirements for storage of packaged blasting agents, the location of explosive material storage facilities, vehicles used to transport explosives, primer protection, loading and blasting, double trunklines in nonelectric initiation systems, hazards of excessive temperatures and burning explosive material.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 56; 30 CFR 57; 30 CFR 70; 30 CFR 71

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Hearing impairment is a serious occupational hazard in the mining industry. Many miners are consistently exposed to noise levels that are near maximum levels currently permitted by MSHA. As a result, miners may be suffering hearing impairment, notwithstanding existing MSHA noise standards. MSHA is using comments and information submitted in response to the December 1989 ANPRM to develop a proposed rule which would establish noise standards to apply to all mining.

Abstract: The advance notice of proposed rulemaking published in December 1991 requested comments on how to address the hazards of working in confined spaces. In mining operations, the majority of the fatalities associated with confined spaces occur in storage bins, hoppers, and stockpiles. The primary hazards to miners occur from being trapped by shifting piles of loose materials, falling into materials, and being struck by overhanging materials. Many hazards are identical to those confined space hazards that exist in general industry for which OSHA issued a proposed rule on June 5, 1989 (54 FR 24080).

Legal Authority: 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 14; 30 CFR 18; 30 CFR 75

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Conveyor belts are one of the leading causes of fires in underground coal mines. These mines often use many miles of conveyor belts. The remote location of the belts can allow fires to start and spread to the coal before they are detected. MSHA has developed a new, more stringent test to evaluate the flame-resistance of conveyor belts. Belts passing the revised test would be resistant to ignition and to flame propagation. This

1997. WATERLINES IN BELT CONVEYOR ENTRIES

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75, subpart L

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: MSHA currently requires waterlines to be installed along all belt conveyors in underground coal mines. Potential firefighting problems exist whenever air used to ventilate belt conveyor entries moves in an outby direction. Waterlines located in these entries are susceptible to severe damage caused by the spread of fire to the outby areas of where the water is needed to fight the fire. MSHA is currently evaluating the need to revise this regulation so that waterlines are located to effectively fight all fires, regardless of the direction of air flow.

1998. CARBON MONOXIDE MONITOR APPROVAL

Legal Authority: 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 12

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The use of carbon monoxide monitoring systems in underground coal mines can be effective in monitoring mine atmospheres to detect fires in the early stages of development. If mine operators depend on these systems for early fire detection, minimum performance criteria are necessary to ensure proper performance. MSHA intends to propose approval requirements for these systems for use in underground coal mines.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75.1101-23

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Currently 30 CFR 75.1101-23 requires each operator of an underground coal mine to adopt a program for mine evacuation in the event of an emergency, such as fire or explosion. However, the existing standard does not directly address heat sensing and carbon monoxide detection systems and the actions to be taken when such systems activate an alarm. In addition, regular review and update of firefighting and evacuation plans is not required by the existing standard. This rulemaking would address these issues.

2000. DIESEL PARTICULATE

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: During the past decade, diesel-powered equipment has been introduced into the underground coal mining industry in increasing numbers. MSHA does not have regulations that specifically address the health hazards associated with the particulate in the exhaust emitted by diesel-powered equipment in underground mines. In July 1990 the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health issued an exploratory risk assessment for diesel particulate based on an animal study. The Agency is in the early stages of developing a permissible exposure limit to control miners' exposure to diesel exhaust and reduce the incidence of illness and disease related to this substance in the mining industry. In January 1992, MSHA issued an advance notice of proposed rulemaking in which the Agency requested public comments on a series of issues relating to health effects, methods of monitoring to measure exposure, duration and frequency of exposure, and technological and economic feasibility. MSHA expects to address the appropriate exposure levels for diesel particulate in rulemaking after the public comments and data can be collected (CONT)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 18; 30 CFR 75

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would apply to high voltage longwall electric face equipment used in underground coal mines. Presently, 30 CFR 75.1002 precludes the use of high-voltage cables within 150 feet of pillar workings. Therefore, mine operators have had to file petitions for modification so that they may use high-voltage longwall equipment. High-voltage longwall equipment would still be required to comply with the requirements of part 18, but this rulemaking would address additional safety requirements for the use of high-voltage longwall equipment, including trailing cables, motor, and shearer cables.

Abstract: MSHA received many comments in response to its proposed rule on experienced miner and supervisor training that requested MSHA to address such issues as the appropriate training for different types of mining, the need for training of contractors, training for construction workers, and other suggested training changes. 2003. ● EXAMINATIONS OF SURFACE WORK AREAS

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 77.1713

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under 30 CFR 77.1713 coal mine operators are required to conduct examinations of each active working area of surface mines and active surface installations during each shift. Any hazardous conditions detected must be entered into a report of such examination along with a description of corrective actions taken. The Agency has interpreted this standard to exclude surface work areas of underground mines. The possibilities for hazards associated with such areas are numerous. The majority of the injuries and fatalities are a result of hazardous conditions not detected and corrected. This rulemaking would revise the standard to apply the on-shift examination requirement to surface such areas of underground mines. By conducting an on-shift examination of hazardous conditions in these areas, the mine operator will better guarantee a safe working environment for the miners and a reduction in accidents.

Abstract: MSHA has several existing provisions that require the certification or qualification of individuals to perform certain tasks at mines. However, the Agency has no formal procedures for revoking a person's certification or qualification when evidence indicates that the individual does not adhere to required regulatory procedures. The Agency intends to develop generic procedures for decertification of individuals who no longer meet the requirements to be certified or qualified, or who have failed to comply with the law in their role as a certified or qualified person.

2005. SAFETY STANDARDS FOR OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE OF MACHINERY AND EQUIPMENT IN UNDERGROUND COAL MINES*Legal Authority: 30 USC 811CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75.1725(c)Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Currently, 30 CFR 75.1725(c) requires that the power be cut off and the machinery be blocked against motion before repairs can be done. MSHA proposes to revise this standard to clarify that activities involved in extending or retreating conveyor belts be considered maintenance. The hazards that persons are exposed to while extending conveyor belts are essentially the same as those involved in more routine belt maintenance such as replacement or adjustment of rollers and installing and splicing new sections of belt.

Abstract: MSHA has an established mining equipment approval program which includes evaluation criteria and corresponding safety standards requiring the use and maintenance of approved equipment. However, existing approval regulations do not generally apply to the diesel-powered equipment now being used in coal mines. In July 1988 an advisory committee convened by the Secretary of Labor made recommendations to the Secretary concerning standards for the use of diesel-powered equipment in underground coal mines. Based on those recommendations, MSHA published a proposed rule that addressed the approval and use of diesel equipment, including monitoring requirements for certain diesel emissions. Public hearings were held in February and March 1991.

In preparation of the rule, MSHA has reviewed OSHA's hazard communication standard and information collected by NIOSH as well as public comments received. MSHA's proposed rule pursued a performance-oriented approach that allows employees the flexibility to develop appropriate individual programs tailored to their particular workplace conditions. Hearings were held in October 1991. MSHA is reviewing all information received to develop a final rule.

Abstract: MSHA proposed to amend the definition of "experienced miner" to mean a miner who has had one year of mining experience and, for new miners hired after October 13, 1978, has completed new miner training. MSHA proposed to strengthen the training requirements for experienced miners by adding course requirements. Also, MSHA proposed to delete the supervisory personnel exemption from the training requirements. The comments received by MSHA on its September 1991 proposed rule addressed such issues as the appropriate training for different types of mining, the need for training of contractors, training for construction workers, and other suggested training changes. MSHA is reviewing these comments to determine the appropriateness of any further changes to the Agency's training regulations. Public hearings on the proposed rule were held in July 1992. MSHA intends to complete the more limited rulemaking of the current proposal by publishing a final rule in March 1993.

Abstract: The final rule published in May 1992 establishes revised standards for ventilation that apply to all underground coal mines, while retaining requirements for each underground mine to have a ventilation system and methane and dust control plan (ventilation plan). The final rule also includes provisions for the introduction of new technology for systematic monitoring of explosive methane gas, as well as gasses that may indicate a mine fire. Other important issues addressed deal with longwall systems, including installation and removal, and the ventilation of worked out areas. The existing escapeway standards contained in 30 CFR 75.1704 are incorporated into the rule.

Abstract: On January 19, 1989, OSHA modified (54 FR 2332) the Z table permissible exposure limits of 29 CFR 1910.1000 in response to current scientific data. Section 6(b) of the Act requires where appropriate, provision for medical surveillance in each 6(b) rulemaking for a harmful substance. A generic standard for medical surveillance would satisfy the requirements of the Act thus enabling the Agency to deal directly with the narrower issues of the revision of the tables. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on September 27, 1988, (53 FR 37595) to acquire additional information. OSHA also intends to review its compliance experience with medical surveillance provisions and seek experienced medical opinion in the form of a symposium or other public discussion. In addition, OSHA initiated a survey in 1990 to collect information regarding the prevalence and effectiveness of current medical surveillance programs. In October 1992, OSHA will determine whether or not to proceed with rulemaking.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655

Abstract: Health complaints related to indoor air quality (IAQ) have increased significantly following energy conservation measures instituted in the early seventies. Such measures have generally reduced the infiltration of outside air, allowing the build-up of indoor air contaminants. Adverse health effects associated with indoor air contaminants are classified as: (1) sick building syndrome which is characterized by general complaints that may include headaches, fatigue, nausea, mucous membrane (eye, nose, and throat) irritation, coughs, and muscle pain; and (2) building-related illness which describes those specific medical conditions of known etiology which can often be documented by physical signs and laboratory findings. These include respiratory allergies and Legionnaires' disease. A particular concern with matters dealing with indoor air quality is exposure to passive tobacco smoke (PTS). A wide range of health effects caused by passive exposure to tobacco smoke have been reported by the Surgeon General, the National Research Council, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and private researchers, as well as by citizens reporting (cont)

Additional Information: ABSTRACT (CONT): health effects due to exposure to passive smoke while at work. These effects range from acute annoyance and eye and respiratory tract irritation to the development of chronic pulmonary disease, cardiovascular disease, and lung cancer. OSHA received two petitions for an Emergency Temporary Standard (ETS) in May 1987. Both requested an ETS to prohibit smoking in all indoor workplaces except certain specified areas. OSHA determined that available data did not demonstrate the existence of a "grave danger," due to workplace exposure to passive tobacco smoke, as defined in Section 6(c) of the OSH Act. OSHA, therefore, denied the petitions on September 1, 1989. In response to the OSHA denial, a suit was filed by the Action on Smoking and Health (ASH) in the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia D.C. Circuit for a review of the Agency's decision and for an order pursuant to 5 USC, Section 706 setting aside the denial. The Court upheld OSHA's decision not to issue an ETS in an unpublished decision issued on May 10, 1991. OSHA published a request for information on Indoor Air Quality September 20, 1991 (56 FR 47892). Comment period was extended to March 20, 1992.

Abstract: The present crane regulations for construction and general industry have not been revised since being promulgated in 1971. They rely heavily on outdated 1968 ANSI standards. OSHA has received comments that the existing provisions are inadequate and need revision to reflect current conditions and equipment. It has also been suggested that there is need to establish additional crane installation and use provisions, including possible certification programs for crane operators and riggers. OSHA anticipates that this project will come about in several phases due to the magnitude of the project.

Abstract: Current OSHA regulations address specific safety and health hazards or specific safety and health conditions. While this approach offers discrete instruction to employers about how to protect workers from specific exposures, the cumulative impact of these regulations often is perceived by the regulated public as resulting in duplicative, and sometimes contradictory requirements. The most obvious burden is created by the more than 200 separate standards requiring employee training on safety and health issues. The agency needs to identify methods to simplify and ease this regulatory burden without reducing the protections afforded employees. The agency believes, with almost unanimous public commentor support, the most effective way to accomplish this goal is to explore a generic training requirement in the broader context of a comprehensive workplace safety and health management program. The agency already published Voluntary Safety and Health Program Management Guidelines on January 26, 1989 (FR Vol. 54, NO. 16 Pages 3902 to 3916).

Abstract: OSHA proposes to revise and update its existing Part 1910 and Part 1926 subparts covering welding, cutting and brazing operations, and to develop performance-oriented standards designed to reduce the number of deaths and injuries due to unsafe equipment and unsafe operations. There has been no substantial revision to these subparts since their adoption in 1971. A complete and comprehensive revision is needed at this time to bring the standards into line with the current state-of-the-art and updated consensus standards. In developing its proposed revision for welding provisions in Part 1910 (General Industry), OSHA has determined that a similar revision to the Part 1926 (Construction Industry) welding provisions are warranted.

Abstract: On May 20, 1986, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) issued a report to OSHA, under Section 9(a) of the Toxic Substances Control Act, stating that EPA has reasonable basis to conclude that the risk of injury to worker health from exposure to four glycol ethers during their manufacture, processing and use is unreasonable, and that this risk may be prevented or reduced to a significant extent by OSHA regulatory action. EPA gave OSHA 180 days in which to respond to its report. OSHA published its response on December 11, 1986, stating that OSHA had preliminarily concluded that occupational exposures to the subject glycol ethers at the current OSHA permissible exposure limits may present significant risks to the health of workers. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) on April 2, 1987, (52 FR 10586). Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulatory action will complete the consolidation and updating of Parts 1915 and 1910 by providing shipyard employees with coverage under one comprehensive OSHA standard. This revision effort will involve the promulgation of 20 maritime subparts. Its completion will be done in stages and will relieve shipyard owners from the burden of having comply with two sets of rules that are complex, prescriptive, confusing and, in some cases, conflicting. OSHA has established an Advisory Committee to assist the Agency is reviewing and revising these subparts. Experts from government, industry, unions and the states are working with OSHA on this project. A previously identified project, Surface Preparation and Preservation (RIN: 1218-AA96), will be included in this project.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 657; 29 USC 673

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1904.1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Concerns about the reliability and utility of injury and illness data have been raised by Congress, OSHA, NIOSH, BLS, the National Academy of Sciences, OMB, the General Accounting Office and representatives of business and labor. The revision of the regulations, forms, and associated interpretive material are being undertaken to simplify the injury and illness recordkeeping system. OSHA is currently working on this project and has not collected sufficient information to determine the effect on paperwork burden. Benefits will include: (1) A system that is easier for employers, employees and government personnel to use; (2) increased reliability and utility of the records; (3) comprehensive records of the injury and illness experience at a given site will be available; and (4) employee involvement and awareness in safety and health matters will be enhanced.

2033. PEL UPDATE PROPOSAL FOR CONSTRUCTION, AGRICULTURE, AND MARITIME

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655; 29 USC 657

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The permissible exposure limits (PELs) promulgated by OSHA in 1971 do not reflect current knowledge of the health effects of many toxic substances. OSHA published a proposal on June 7, 1988 (53 FR 20960) to amend and expand the PELs for general industry. On January 19, 1989 OSHA set new PELs for the toxic substances originally covered in 1971 and covered new substances in a single rulemaking that applied to general industry. OSHA now plans to update the old PELs for construction, maritime, and possible agricultural sectors not covered by the general industry proceeding. The PELs for these sectors are outdated: the construction industry (29 CFR 1926) references the 1970 ACGIH TLVs; the maritime industry cites three different references--29 CFR 1918 (longshoring), "dangerous gaseous contaminants not immediately dangerous to life" and "heavy concentrations of dusts." In addition, in the agricultural section, OSHA will consider the fact that chemicals and pesticides are currently regulated by EPA. As a result of this rulemaking, OSHA expects that a unified table of PELs for toxic substances will be adopted for all industries. On June 12, 1992 (57 FR 26001), (CONT)

2034. CONTROL OF HAZARDOUS ENERGY (LOCKOUT/TAGOUT)—CONSTRUCTION (PART 1926)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910; 29 CFR 1926

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Hazards at construction sites resulting from the absence of effective lockout/tagout procedures to control hazardous energy appear to be caused by several factors, all associated with the nature of the construction industry. These factors basically relate to such considerations as the types of machines and equipment found in construction; the makeup of the industry in which employment is relatively "short term," lasting only as long as the length of the current project; the presence of multiple employers having different employer/employee relationships and the temporary nature of the "in-the-field" maintenance activity. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) expects the proposal to address lockout-related hazards in those construction work-site areas in which the available data indicate these hazards to be significant. Regulatory options involve developing a comprehensive standard covering all potentially hazardous energy sources. OSHA will consider the use of the construction advisory committee to assist in the development of this standard.

2035. POWERED INDUSTRIAL TRUCK OPERATOR TRAINING

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.178

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Nationally, fatalities due to unsafe operation of industrial vehicles and equipment account for approximately 12 percent of the private sector fatalities. This is the second leading cause of fatalities in the private sector, behind only highway vehicle fatalities. The present standard has proven to be ineffective in reducing the number of accidents involving powered industrial trucks. OSHA intends to revise the present standard to increase its effectiveness by requiring, in performance language, initial and refresher training as necessary. The frequency of the refresher training will be based upon the ability of the vehicle operator to retain the knowledge, skills and abilities to perform the job safely. OSHA will also give guidance as to what information the instruction should include. There will also be other amendments to the standard to increase its effectiveness.

2036. LEAD IN CONSTRUCTION

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: Not yet determined

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1926

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On November 14, 1978 (43 FR 52952), OSHA promulgated a standard that limited occupational exposures to lead. The standard also contained requirements for exposure monitoring, protective equipment, housekeeping and hygiene practices, medical surveillance, medical removal protection, posted areas and education and training. However, the scope of the standard did not include the construction industry. Lead exposures in the construction industry continued to be regulated by the air contaminants standard for construction (29 CFR 1926.55) which has no protective ancillary provisions such as those contained in the general industry standard. This standard adopted the 1970 American Conference for Governmental Industrial Hygienists (ACGIH) Threshold Limit Value (200 ug/m<sup>3</sup>) which is four times the current standard for general industry. OSHA recognized that this level represents a potential for material impairment of health and is in the process of developing a proposal.

2037. ● DOCUMENTATION OF ABATEMENT

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 657; 29 USC 658; 29 USC 659

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1903

DOL—OSHA

Proposed Rule Stage

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: A critical element of OSHA's comprehensive enforcement strategy under the Occupational Safety and Health act is assurance that employers have abated hazards cited during inspections. Currently, unless an employer voluntarily complies with OSHA's request to submit documentation, OSHA has no proof of hazard abatement without conducting a followup inspection. From 1972 to the present, OSHA has implemented several administrative measures to induce employers to provide abatement documentation, but some 30 percent of cited employers still do not voluntarily do so. OSHA's internal audits, the Department of Labor's Inspector General, and the General Accounting Office have pointed out this deficiency. The regulation OSHA now proposes will require cited employers to provide hazard abatement documentation. The NPRM will address the kinds of evidence to be required, what notice to employees is needed, potential penalties for non-reporting, possible certification forms for compliance, and other questions. Work on this project has not progressed to the point where costs and benefits of possible regulatory approaches can be determined.

Significance: Regulatory Program

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1000(e); 29 CFR 1910.134(a)(1)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: OSHA's policy concerning the use of engineering controls and respirators was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief in 1981. Current OSHA regulations require that employers implement feasible engineering controls to maintain air contaminant concentrations in the workplace at or below the prescribed permissible exposure limits. The use of respirators is permitted only in those cases where engineering controls are not feasible, not yet installed, or not adequate. This policy has been criticized as being inflexible, not cost-effective, and often unnecessary for employee health protection. OSHA believes that any changes to the policy for use of engineering controls must be closely coordinated with revisions in the respiratory protection regulations (29 CFR 1910.134). This rulemaking does not address the assessment and reduction of any absolute existing risks, but rather addresses the possible change in risk abatement associated with the use of respirators instead of engineering controls. OSHA published a proposal on June 5, 1989 (54 FR 23991). Hearings were held on May 30-31, 1990, and continued on July 9-10, 1990.

2043. LOGGING OPERATIONS (PART 1910)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.266 (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Logging is a very hazardous industry. It has an incidence rate nearly twice that of manufacturing, and reflecting the seriousness of the injuries incurred, a lost workday rate nearly four times as high. The purpose of the standard will be to protect workers from the ever-present hazards of chain saw operation, falling objects (trees, branches), rolling or sliding logs, falls from trees, and materials handling accidents. At present there is no OSHA standard specifically applicable to logging in general. There is a standard, 29 CFR 1910.266, applicable only to pulpwood logging; however, pulpwood logging is estimated to account for less than half of the logging activity in the United States. Development of a national OSHA standard addressing all types of logging will provide coverage for those loggers not now protected. The new regulation will provide coverage where there is no approved state regulation and will set a minimum safety level for those states that chose to develop a state regulation.

Abstract: A major area of coverage not addressed in the current OSHA electrical standards for general industry (29 CFR 1910) involves the maintenance and operation practices associated with electrical transmission and distribution lines, substations and generating stations. It is intended that the proposed standard fill this void by establishing minimum requirements for electrical safety work practices for qualified employees working on or near installations whose purpose is the generation and distribution of electricity. The proposal also revises the standards for electrical protective equipment, which is used routinely for electrical power work.

Abstract: In July 1985, OSHA was petitioned by the United Automobile, Aerospace and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW) to issue a hazard alert; issue an emergency temporary standard; and to begin work on a new permanent standard for methylene chloride (DCM). This request was based on information obtained from the Environmental Protection Agency and the National Toxicology Program indicating that DCM is an animal carcinogen and may have the potential to cause cancer in humans. In November 1986, OSHA notified the UAW that its petition had been granted, in part, and denied, in part. Specifically, OSHA issued a set of guidelines for controlling occupational exposure to DCM and OSHA denied that portion of the petition requesting the issuance of an emergency temporary standard. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed

Rulemaking on November 24, 1986 (51 FR 42257). After reviewing and analyzing the comments received in response to the ANPRM, OSHA published a proposal in the Federal Register on November 7, 1991 (56 FR 57036). The comment period closed on April 6, 1992. On June 9, 1992, OSHA published a notice of informal public hearings to be held in Washington, DC on (CONT)

Final Rule Stage

August 8, 1988, OSHA published a NPRM to modify the final rule, and provide an opportunity for public comment. Public comments have been received, hearings have been held, and OSHA will prepare a final rule based on the public record for this standard, including the record developed in earlier rulemakings. OSHA published a request for information (RFI) on May 17, 1990, (55 FR 20580) to improve the quality and representation of the information provided on the MSDS's and labels and to consider a standardize format. OSHA will determine if the rule should be reopened after the comments and other relevant information are analyzed. The comment period for the RFI expired on August 15, 1990.

Abstract: On June 20, 1986, OSHA published revised standards governing occupational exposure to asbestos, tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite in general industry and construction. In these standards, OSHA reduced the 8-hour time weighted average (TWA) permissible exposure limit (PEL) to 0.2 f/cc, and established other protective provisions. This standard was legally challenged, and as a result, the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia upheld the standard except that the court held that OSHA must reconsider several of the standard's provisions to determine if more protective regulatory provisions are available to reduce risk. One of the issues to be reconsidered was the need for a short-term limit for occupational exposure to asbestos in response to the Court's directive. This limit was established as 1 f/cc averaged over a 30-minute sampling period and a legal notification of this amendment was published on September 14, 1988, at 53 FR 35610. (cont)

Abstract: Public Law 99-499 requires the Secretary of Labor to promulgate a final standard for Hazardous Waste Operations and Emergency Response. The final standard was issued on March 6, 1989. Section 126 of Public Law 99-499 was amended by Congress on December 22, 1987 to require the Secretary of Labor to include in the final rule a training course certification program at least as comprehensive as the EPA's model program for asbestos abatement in public buildings. This proposed revision would add criteria and requirements for training course certification of training for workers involved in hazardous waste operations. Separately, OSHA has collected additional information on this rulemaking during the second half of CY 1991 on the characteristics of selected training programs for emergency response personnel for hazardous materials incidents. Accordingly, the Agency will be submitting this report to the public record in early 1992, and will be granting the public an opportunity to review and comment on the report and survey results. OSHA is presently reviewing comments submitted in response to a partial reopening of the record for this rulemaking. The notice was published (CONT)

Abstract: OSHA currently has no general regulation requiring that employers train their employees in the safe operation of motor vehicles on the job, including the required use of seat belts, although motor vehicle crashes are the single largest cause of occupational fatalities. On-the-job motor vehicle crashes, in both on-road and off-road vehicles, caused over 30 percent of traumatic work-related fatalities. In the manufacturing sector, which is the primary target of most OSHA regulations, more workers are killed by motor vehicles than by fixed machinery. The hazards faced by workers operating automobiles and trucks, both on public highways and at private facilities, could be greatly reduced by requiring employers to train their employees in safe driving techniques, including the required use of seat belts. OSHA plans to proceed with a single NPRM that would regulate all employers covered by the OSHA Act. The approach will be to develop a generic, performance-oriented standard. Various state regulations governing the use of seat belts, and related studies will be considered in this proposal. OSHA expects that the regulation could prevent as many as 684 fatalities each year.

Abstract: Concerns have been raised by Congress, OMB, OSHA, NIOSH, BLS, the National Academy of Sciences, GAO and representatives of business and labor about the reporting of fatalities and multiple hospitalizations. These include the procedures employers are required to follow, the length of time employers have to report the fatalities to OSHA, and the number of hospitalizations required before the employer must report the incident to OSHA. In particular, 48 hour reporting may allow too many workplace factors to change before OSHA can reach the worksite to perform an adequate investigation of the incident. In addition, there are concerns that the current regulation may not adequately inform employers of the need to report all occupational fatalities, including those that occur extended periods of time after the employee was originally injured. Benefits will include more accurate employer reporting of fatalities and multiple hospitalizations, an improved ability for OSHA to respond to serious accidents while evidence is still "fresh", an improved count of fatalities and multiple hospitalizations and an upgraded data base for researchers and policy officials.

Abstract: On June 20, 1986, OSHA issued revised standards governing occupational exposure to asbestos, tremolite, anthophyllite, and actinolite in general industry and in the construction industry. These standards replaced OSHA's previous asbestos standard promulgated in 1972. Since the issuance of the revised standards, OSHA received letters and petitions concerning the appropriateness of regulating nonasbestiform tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite as presenting the same health risk as asbestos. OSHA granted a temporary stay of the effective dates of the current standards as they apply to nonasbestiform varieties of tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite. This action was taken, in part, to enable the Agency to review letters and memoranda from the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health as well as submissions by the R. T. Vanderbilt Company and various other trade associations concerning the appropriateness of regulating nonasbestiform tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite in the revised standards. In addition, the temporary stay was imposed to allow sufficient time for OSHA to reopen the rulemaking record and conduct supplemental proceedings (CONT)

On February 12, 1990 (55 FR 4938), OSHA published a proposal to gather additional information and data to determine whether and how to regulate the nonasbestiform varieties. Hearings were held May 8-14, 1990, and the comment period closed on June 28, 1990. After the close of the post-hearing comment periods, the American Thoracic Society (ATS) submitted a final report on "The Health Effects of Tremolite." Abstract: 4,4'-Methylenedianiline (MDA) is a chemical used primarily to manufacture methylenediphenyl diisocyanate, which is used to make polyurethane foams and elastomers. Recent scientific data indicate that MDA is a carcinogen in animals and a potential carcinogen in humans. In 1983, OSHA and the Environmental Protection Agency participated in a joint effort to publish an advance notice of proposed rulemaking to solicit information on MDA production and use, estimates of environmental and occupational exposure, and studies of its toxic and carcinogenic effects. EPA evaluated the data received in response to the advance notice and concluded that the chemical presents an unreasonable risk of injury to the health of exposed workers. Under the provisions of section 9(a) of the Toxic Substances Control Act, EPA referred MDA to OSHA for action. OSHA responded to the EPA referral on 2/26/86. OSHA established a mediated rulemaking advisory committee composed of interested parties from labor, industry and government to assist the agency in developing a proposed standard. The Committee completed its work in June 1987 (cont)

2062. FORMALDEHYDE

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1048

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On December 4, 1987, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) published a revised standard for occupational exposure to formaldehyde (29 CFR 1910.1048). This standard contained permissible exposure limits of 1 part weighted average (TWA) and 2 ppm as a 15-minute short-term exposure limit (STEL), along with ancillary protective provisions. Several interested parties petitioned the courts to review this standard. On June 9, 1989, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit issued its decision, which upheld the standard, but remanded the standard back to the Agency for reconsideration of two issues: the assessment of the risk of cancer at 1 ppm, and the failure of the Agency to require medical removal protection (MRP). The final standard also required that hazard-warning labels be placed on containers of all products composed of greater than 0.1 percent formaldehyde or capable of releasing formaldehyde into the air under any normal condition of use at concentrations reaching or exceeding 0.1 ppm. Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT: The Formaldehyde Institute filed an application for administrative stay of the formaldehyde standard's cancer labeling requirement. Based on the confusion and misunderstanding of the standard's requirements reflected in the application and in numerous comments submitted to the Agency subsequent to the application, the Agency decided to stay the hazard communication provisions of the formaldehyde standard (29 CFR 1910.1048(m)(1)(i) through (m)(4)(ii)). The purpose of the stay is to permit the Agency to propose to revoke these paragraphs and rely on the provisions of the hazard communication standard or develop some appropriate alternative. The stay was first granted on December 13, 1988 (53 FR 50198). On June 13, 1990 (55 FR 24070), OSHA extended the administrative stay until August 13, 1990, to consider further developments in the hazard communication rulemaking in determining what regulatory action to propose on formaldehyde. Based on public comment and the rulemaking record, OSHA published a formaldehyde proposal on July 15, 1991. The comment period ended on August 14, 1991. The final standard was published on May 27, 1992 (57 FR 22290).

2063. CADMIUM

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910 (Table Z-2)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On June 18, 1986, the International Chemical Workers Union and the Public Citizen Health Research Group petitioned OSHA to issue an emergency temporary standard reducing the permissible exposure limit for cadmium to one microgram of cadmium per cubic meter of air. On June 25, 1987 the union and HRG filed a petition with the Court of Appeals requesting the Court to order OSHA to promulgate an ETS. In its July 1, 1987, response to the petitioners, OSHA stated that issuance of an emergency standard was not warranted, but that exposure to cadmium at levels permitted under the current standard represented a significant risk to worker health which would be addressed through section 6(b) rulemaking procedures. On September 26, 1988, OSHA published guidelines for controlling exposure to cadmium and recommended reduced exposure levels significantly below the permissible exposure limit. OSHA published a proposal on February 6, 1990 (55 FR 4052), and conducted hearings on June 5, 1990, in Washington, DC and on July 17, 1990, in Denver, CO. The comment period closed on October 18, 1990. OSHA reopened the record on September 18, 1991, (Cont)

Abstract: The Veterans' Reemployment Rights (VRR) law 38 USC, Sections 2012-2206 with subsequent amendments and judicial constructions has become a confusing and cumbersome doctrine. As a result, the Administration proposes to introduce legislation replacing the existing Veterans' Reemployment Rights statute. The proposed legislation requires the Secretary of Labor to issue regulations implementing and interpreting the statute. The proposal will seek to: (1) make the law understandable (2) determine the veteran's entitlement and eligibility requirement on time rather than category of service, (3) promote expedited resolution of claims and (4) provide statutory processing timeframes. The costs and benefits are intangible and relate to the ability to maintain sufficient membership in the Armed Forces, and to ensure the availability of citizen-soldiers.

Abstract: This interim final rule establishes a uniform regulation for nonprocurement Federal transactions among 29 Federal agencies. The regulation adopts and implements guidance published by the Office of Management and Budget (see 54 52306, December 20, 1989), pursuant to section 319 of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 1990. Section 319 added section 1352, "Limitation on use of appropriated funds to influence certain Federal contracting and financial transactions," to title 31, United States Code. The interim final rule, published February 26, 1990, establishes semiannual reporting requirements. There has been no final action on the interim final rule, because new legislation has been proposed by Senator Levin which, if enacted, would rescind the current requirement for semiannual reporting, and add a provision requiring registration by all lobbyists with the Department of Justice.

Agenda

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:*Background

Improvement of Government regulations is a prime goal of the Bush Administration. There should be no more regulations than necessary, and those that are issued should be simpler, more comprehensible, and less burdensome. Regulations should not be issued without appropriate involvement of the public; once issued, they should be periodically reviewed and revised, as needed, to assure that they continue to meet the needs for which they originally were designed.

To help the Department of Transportation (Department) achieve these goals and in accordance with Executive Order 12291 "Federal Regulation" (46 FR 13193; February 19, 1981) and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures (44 FR 11034; February 26, 1979), the Department prepares a semiannual regulations agenda for publication in the Federal Register. The agenda summarizes all current and projected rulemaking, reviews of existing regulations, and completed actions of the Department. These are matters on which action has begun or is projected during the succeeding 12 months or such longer period as may be anticipated or for which action has been completed since the last agenda.

The agendas are based on reports submitted by the initiating offices in January and July each year. After these reports are consolidated for and reviewed by the Department Regulations Council, the Department's regulations agenda is prepared and published in the Federal Register. The Department's last agenda was published in the Federal Register on April 27, 1992 (57 FR 17012). The next one is scheduled for publication in the Federal Register in April 1993.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

In 1980, Congress passed the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA), Public Law 96-354, which requires the designation of those regulations for which a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared; i.e., those regulations that would have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. A Regulatory Flexibility Analysis is required for a rulemaking which, in the heading "Small Entities Affected," indicates an effect on small businesses, governmental jurisdictions, or organizations. If a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared for a particular rulemaking, that fact also will be noted under the heading "Analysis."

The RFA also requires that, each year, the Department publish a list of those regulations that have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and are to be reviewed under the Act during the succeeding 12 months. The agenda includes those regulations to be reviewed under the RFA or those for which review has been concluded since the last agenda. However, it should be noted that, after a preliminary assessment of the regulations listed for RFA review, it may be found that the regulations, in fact, do not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities, and a full RFA review will be unnecessary.

Regulatory Impact Analysis

A preliminary and final Regulatory Impact Analysis is required for each proposed and final regulation, respectively, that

(1) is likely to result in:

DOT

(a) An annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more;

(b) a major effect on the general economy in terms of costs, consumer prices, or production;

(c) a major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individual industries; Federal, State, or local government agencies; or geographic regions;

(d) significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets; or

(2) the Secretary or head of the initiating office has determined requires such an analysis.

Definitions

The agenda covers all rules and regulations of the Department, including those that establish conditions for financial assistance. The following definitions are provided for ease in understanding the information in this document.

(1) Initiating office means an operating administration or other organizational element within the Department, the head of which is authorized by law or delegation to issue regulations or to formulate regulations for issuance by the Secretary.

(2) Significant regulation means a regulation that is not an emergency regulation and that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office or the Secretary or the Deputy Secretary,

(a) is a major regulation;

(b) concerns a matter on which there is substantial public interest or controversy;

(c) has a major impact on another operating administration or other parts of the Department or other Federal agency;

(d) has a substantial effect on State and local governments;

(e) has a substantial impact on a major transportation safety problem;

(f) initiates a substantial regulatory program or change in policy;

(g) is substantially different from international requirements or standards; or

(h) otherwise involves important Department policy.

(3) Major regulation means a significant regulation for which a Regulatory Impact Analysis is required to be prepared.

(4) Emergency regulation means a regulation that, (a) in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, circumstances require to be issued without notice and opportunity for public comment or made effective in less than 30 days after publication in the Federal Register or (b) is governed by short-term statutory or judicial deadlines.

(5) Nonsignificant regulation means a regulation that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, is neither a significant nor an emergency regulation.

Explanation of Information on the Agenda

The format for this agenda is required by Office of Management and Budget memorandum of June 11, 1992.

First, the agenda is divided by initiating offices. Then, in accordance with the OMB memorandum, for each initiating office, the agenda is divided into four categories: (1) Prerule stage, (2) proposed rule stage, (3) final rule stage, and (4) completed actions. For each entry, the agenda provides the following information: (1) The "significance" of the action (i.e., whether it is significant because it is on the Regulatory Program or because of agency priority or whether it is nonsignificant or routine and frequent); (2) a short descriptive title; (3) the legal basis for the action being taken or the regulation being reviewed; (4) the related regulatory citation in the Code of Federal Regulations; (5) an indication of any legal deadline and, if so, for what type of action (e.g., NPRM, final rule); (6) an abstract of the review or the proposed or final regulation; (7) a timetable, including the earliest expected date for a decision, on whether to issue the proposed or final regulation or complete the review and determine the corrective action to be taken. (The action taken can be revocation or revision of the regulation, or it can be a determination that no regulatory action is necessary because the regulation is found to be achieving its goals and the goals and objectives of Executive Order 12291 and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures.); (8) an indication as to whether the rulemaking will affect small entities and/or levels of government and which categories of small entities or governments will be impacted; (9) if there is information that does not fit in the other categories, it will be included under a separate heading entitled "Additional Information"; (10) a listing, where determined, of any analyses an initiating office will prepare or has prepared for the rulemaking document; e.g., a Regulatory Impact Analysis or Evaluation, an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS), a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis, or an Urban Impact Analysis. (It should be noted that, even though a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not required for some items on the agenda, the Department requires an economic analysis for all of its regulations. This economic analysis is contained in the Regulatory Evaluation, if a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not prepared.); (11) an agency contact office or official who can provide further information, including advice on how to obtain documents referenced in the agenda; and (12) a Regulation Identifier Number (RIN) assigned to identify an individual rulemaking in the agenda and facilitate tracing further action on the issue in the Federal Register which may occur between agenda publications. (Departmental rulemaking documents published in the Federal Register now contain RIN numbers.)

For nonsignificant regulations issued routinely and frequently as a part of an established body of technical requirements (such as the Federal Aviation Administration's Airspace Rules), to keep those requirements operationally current, only the general category of the regulations, the identity of a contact office or official, and an indication of the expected number of regulations are included; individual regulations are not listed.

If a regulatory docket number has already been established, it may be provided under the "Additional Information" heading. If a member of the public desires further information regarding a particular proposal or regulation, reference should be made to this docket number.

In the "Timetable" column, abbreviations are used to indicate the particular documents being considered for issuance by that date. ANPRM stands for Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, SNPRM for Supplemental Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, NPRM for Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, and FR for Final Rule. Listing a future date in this column is not an indication that a proposed or a final rule will be issued on that date; it is the earliest date on which a decision is expected to be made on whether to issue the document listed. Submittal of any proposed or final rule to the Office of Management and Budget for review under Executive Order 12291 must follow such a decision. For major rules, this review could take 60 days or more. If any document is issued, publication in the Federal Register would follow within a few days. In addition, these dates are based on current schedules. Information received subsequent to the issuance of this agenda could result in a decision not to take regulatory action or in changes to proposed publication dates. For example, the need for further evaluation could result in a later publication date; evidence of a greater need for the regulation could result in an earlier publication date.

Finally, a dot (●) preceding an entry indicates that the entry appears in the agenda for the first time.

Mailing Lists for Regulatory Documents

To assist the public in obtaining regulatory documents issued within the Department of Transportation, an Appendix A has been included in this document. The appendix contains instructions on how to be placed on mailing lists for or to obtain copies of specific regulatory documents, including the Department's semiannual regulations agenda issued by the operating administrations of the Department and the Office of the Secretary. There is no charge for this service; however, because of the costs involved, the number of copies of a document forwarded to an individual requestor may be limited. Persons already on mailing lists for particular documents within the Department will remain on those lists and should not reapply.

By following the instructions specified in the appendix, a person can be placed on a mailing list for future copies of the Department's regulations agenda, which will be updated and published in the Federal Register every year during April and October. By using the agenda, individuals can determine which notice or advance notice of proposed rulemaking, to be issued by elements of the Department, is of interest to them. Then, using the instructions in the appendix, such persons also can be placed on a mailing list to ensure that, after the document of interest is issued, a copy will be mailed to them for their review and comment. In this way, individuals will be relieved of the burden of having to review the Federal Register, perhaps on a daily basis. The Department expects that this process will ensure that those people placed on mailing lists will receive early notice so that their views on the document can be adequately prepared and presented within the established comment period.

General Rulemaking Contact Persons

To assist persons desiring to obtain general information concerning the rulemaking process within the Department's operating administrations, an Appendix B has been added to the agenda. This appendix sets forth the addresses and the telephone numbers of the persons who can respond quickly to requests for general rulemaking information. Please note, however, that questions related to particular rulemaking actions should still be referred to the contact person listed with the particular rulemaking on the agenda.

Public Rulemaking Dockets

To facilitate the inspection of docket files and the submission of comments by the public, an Appendix C sets forth the addresses and working hours for the Rules Docket for each operating administration.

Request for Comments

Agenda

Our agenda is intended primarily for the use of the public. Since its inception, we have made modifications and refinements that we believe provide the public with more helpful information, as well as make the agenda easier to use. We would also like you, the public, to make suggestions or comments on how the agenda could be further improved. For example, do you find the information presented in an easily understandable manner? Do you find it easy to follow a regulation's development from agenda to agenda? Do you find that the format for setting out the information enables you to use the agenda easily? Do you find that the presentation of the information in the agenda is clearly explained in the preamble to the agenda? Your responses to these questions or any other comments or suggestions you may have should be sent to Neil R. Eisner, whose address appears above.

Reviews

In an effort to comply further with the spirit of Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, we are also seeking suggestions on existing regulations that should be included in our review of existing regulations; that is, which existing regulations issued by an operating administration of the Department or the Office of the Secretary do you believe need to be reviewed to determine whether they should be revised or revoked? The Department is particularly interested in obtaining information on requirements that have a "significant economic impact on small entities" and, therefore, must be reviewed under the Regulatory Flexibility Act. If you have any suggested regulations, please send them, along with your explanation of why they should be reviewed, to the concerned operating administration or the Office of the Secretary. To ease the process for submission of suggestions of regulations warranting review by departmental entities, each operating administration and the Office of the Secretary maintains a continuously open regulatory review docket. Suggestions should be submitted to the docket section of the relevant modal administration or Office of the Secretary, attention "Regulatory Review Docket," with the following specific rulemaking docket numbers:

Federal Aviation Administration, Docket 26768;

Federal Highway Administration, Docket 92-12;

Federal Railroad Administration, Docket RSS-1-92-1;

Federal Transit Administration, Docket 92A;

Maritime Administration, Docket R-141;

National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, Docket 92-04;

Office of the Secretary, Docket 47978;

Research and Special Programs Administration, Docket RR-1;

Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, Attn: Marc Owen, Chief Counsel;

United States Coast Guard, Docket 92-005.

The addresses of the docket sections are contained in Appendix C. Multiple copies of the suggestions would be appreciated but are not required.

DOT

In accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act, comments are specifically invited on regulations that are targeted for review under the RFA. Those comments should be addressed to the "contact" person of the operating administration involved.

Purpose

The Department is publishing this regulations agenda in the Federal Register to share with interested members of the public the Department's preliminary expectations regarding its future regulatory actions. This should enable the public to be more aware of the Department's regulatory activity. Knowledge of the nature and scope of this activity, as well as the specific proposals and reviews being considered, should result in more effective public participation in the Department's regulatory activity. For example, awareness of the dates when notices may be issued seeking public comment should allow appropriate planning and more efficient use of the comment period. By providing the expected date for a decision on whether to issue a final rule, the Department expects that more appropriate planning by those concerned with the regulation will also be possible. This publication in the Federal Register does not impose any binding obligation on the Department or any of the offices within the Department with regard to any specific item on the agenda. Regulatory action, in addition to the items listed, is not precluded. If further information is desired on any of the items listed in the agenda, the public is encouraged to contact the individual listed for the particular item. Additional information concerning the agenda in general or the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures may be obtained from Neil R. Eisner, whose address and telephone number appear above.

Issued in Washington, DC, on September 14, 1992.

Andrew H. Card, Jr.,

Secretary of Transportation.

2079. + ANTIDRUG PROGRAMS FOR DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION CONTRACTORS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 322; 40 USC 486(c)

CFR Citation: 48 CFR 1226.7001; 48 CFR 1252.226-70; 48 CFR 34; 48 CFR 1.301

Abstract: Consistent with DOT antidrug initiatives for DOT employees and employees of regulated industries, DOT was considering requiring its contractors to establish antidrug programs (including drug testing and employee assistance programs) for employees performing safety-sensitive or security functions under DOT contracts. Although initially considered significant because of substantial public interest, the Department is considering withdrawing this rulemaking. Uniform, government-wide regulations to deter drug use among contractor employees have been issued to implement the Drug-Free Workplace Act.

In this petition, Mr. Donald Pevsner complains that some tour operators advertise prices which do not include additional features which must be purchased and which cost extra. He asks that the rules be amended to state that such additional features may only be priced separately if they may be purchased separately, i.e., if they are optional rather than mandatory. CFR Citation: None

Abstract: Persons authorized to conduct commercial launch activities by a license issued by the Office of Commercial Space Transportation (OCST) are required to obtain insurance or demonstrate financial responsibility, in amounts and on terms prescribed by OCST, to protect against third-party or government property damage claims resulting from the licensed activities. Licensees and other launch participants are also required to enter into reciprocal waivers of claims arising out of licensed activities. In addition, persons engaged in commercial launch operations must provide proof of financial responsibility, or offer other assurances, adequate to protect the government when its property or personnel are involved in such operations. This rulemaking codifies the procedures by which OCST sets appropriate levels and terms of insurance and financial responsibility required to be carried by persons subject to its authority. The Office must ensure that commercial space launch activities are conducted in a manner that does not jeopardize public health and safety, and the safety of property without, however, imposing unnecessary regulatory burdens on the commercial launch industry. The industry has grown in size and complexity since the original regulations were published in 1988, and the Office's licensing program continues to evolve to reflect these changes. This rulemaking would modify the current regulations to reflect a streamlined and more mature licensing regime developed over the past few years. Such changes would benefit the industry by reducing regulatory burdens, thus reducing costs.

Abstract: The Department is reviewing its regulation establishing a minority business enterprise (MBE) program in its financial assistance programs (49 CFR part 23). This regulation has been controversial, is of interest to most DOT grant recipients and contractors, and affects the operations of all DOT financial assistance programs. Section 106(c) of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 (STURAA) extended and modified the program as applied to FHWA and UMTA; similar legislation applied the same requirements to the FAA. The Department issued a final rule to make the STURAA changes in October 1987; a similar rule for FAA programs was published in May 1988. The Department intends subsequently to issue an NPRM that would propose further changes in the regulation.

prohibit age discrimination by recipients of DOT financial assistance concluded that exceptions to the statute would result in no substantive coverage of DOT programs. Moreover, the paperwork requirements for recipients, without substantive coverage, would have been counterproductive. The NPRM will be withdrawn. The Department will consider, in light of any changes in DOT programs, whether resultant substantive coverage would then warrant a new rulemaking

Abstract: The American Association of Airport Executives, the Airport

Operators Council International and the Air Transport Association of America petitioned the CAB to simplify its counter-sign requirements. Presently, airlines are required to display four different consumer protection notices on their ticket counters. The petitioners alleged that the current notices are hard to read and, therefore, do not provide much notice to passengers. They proposed replacing the four notices with one simplified counter sign. The CAB adopted an NPRM that proposed a number of alternatives, such as a long and/or short notice, where the notices would be required to be posted and whether a smoking notice should be included. DOT is now considering what action to take in response to the notice and comments filed.

Abstract: The Department of Transportation (DOT or Department) has proposed to establish procedures that must be followed when a Department employee or former employee is requested or subpoenaed to provide testimony or produce records concerning information acquired in the course of performing official duties or because of the official status of the employee. The proposed procedures and restrictions are necessary because Department attorneys and employees currently spend a considerable amount of time responding to litigants' requests for documents or testimony, often on the same matter. This rule would ensure more efficient use of Department resources, minimize the possibility of involving the Department in controversial issues not related to its mission, maintain the impartiality of the Department among private litigants, and enhance the Department's ability to respond to requests.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1381

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 255

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proceeding promulgated stronger rules necessary to enhance competition in the airline and CRS industries by eliminating various CRS vendor practices that could restrain competition. As the Department must conduct a review within 5 years after their effective date, these revised rules will terminate December 31, 1997, unless extended further and, possibly, revised. American Airlines' rulemaking petition to severely restrict the use of elapsed time as a factor for ranking flights in CRS displays was denied. Many travelers consider elapsed time an important consideration in choosing airline service. American's proposal would have denied CRS's ability to use that factor in ordering their displays. This rulemaking was significant because of substantial public and industry interest.

Proposed Rule Stage

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 165Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, August 18, 1992.

Abstract: This rulemaking partially implements sections 4202(b)(4) and 5005 of the Oil Pollution Act of 1990, P.L. 101-30 (OPA 90) concerning tank vessel and facility response plans. Section 4202(b)(4) of OPA-90 amends section 311(j)(5) of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (FWPCA), which requires owners and operators of tank vessels and facilities to develop response plans for responding to worst-case discharges (or substantial threat thereof) of oil or hazardous substances. Section 5005 requires that response plans for tank vessels operating in Prince William Sound, Alaska, and facilities permitted under the Trans-Alaska Pipeline Authorization Act provided for additional measures of oil spill preparedness. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest and environmental considerations. This rulemaking covers facility requirements. Proposed Rule Stage

Abstract: This regulation project defines the conditions and designates the waters upon which tankers may operate with an unattended engine room. Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 33 USC 1903(b)

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 151

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, December 29, 1988.

Abstract: This regulation would require certain vessels and fixed or floating platforms to maintain a record of all their garbage discharges. This record is mandated by the Marine Plastic Pollution Research and Control Act of 1987. The alternatives being considered relate to the contents of the record, whether the record should be maintained on the vessel or submitted to the Coast Guard, and what format should be used. The action's potential costs should be minimal and result from recordkeeping. This rulemaking action should reduce the number of illegal discharges of garbage, provide information for enforcement, and assist the Coast Guard in its studies of the methods of disposal being used, the problems encountered in port, and the amounts of garbage being generated at sea.

Additional Information: The Oil Pollution Act of 1990 (OPA) repealed or superseded certain oil spill liability provisions under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (33 USC 1321), Title III of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act Amendments of 1978 (43 USC 1814), the Trans-Alaska Pipeline Authorization Act (43 USC 1653) and the Deepwater Port Act of 1974 (33 USC 1517). The financial responsibility provisions of those Acts were replaced by a single financial responsibility regime under OPA and keyed to the broader liability of OPA. In addition to financial responsibility requirements under OPA, which is limited to oil, this project would include financial responsibility requirements under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act, which concerns hazardous substances. This consolidation would allow the issuance of a single, unified Certificate of Financial Responsibility for vessels, replacing separate certificates and financial responsibility regimes under the previously mentioned Acts.

Abstract: This rulemaking partially implements action 4202(b)(4) and 5005 of the Oil Pollution Act of 1990, P.L. 101-30 (OPA-90) concerning tank vessel and facility response plans. Section 4202(b)(4) of the OPA-90 amends section 311(j)(5) of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (FWPCA), which requires owners and operators of tank vessels and facilities to develop response plans for responding to worst-case discharges (or substantial threat thereof) of oil or hazardous substances. Section 5005 requires that response plans for tank vessels operating in Prince William Sound, Alaska, and facilities permitted under the Trans-Alaska Pipeline Authorization Act provide for additional measures of oil spill preparedness. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest and environmental considerations. This rulemaking covers tank vessel requirements. Facility requirements is a separate rulemaking under RIN 2155-AD82. The Coast Guard is utilizing a Regulatory Negotiation Rulemaking Committee to assist in this rulemaking. SNPRM To Address Stability and Other Small Fishing Vessel Issues	10/00/92

Small Entities Affected: Undetermined

Government Levels Affected: None

Analysis: Regulatory Evaluation 08/14/91 (56 FR 40364)

Additional Information: While the final rule addressed most areas of the NPRM, a SNPRM is being developed to address stability for vessels less than 79 feet in length, survival craft for vessels operating near shore with less than four persons on board, and exemptions for fisheries having high vessel density or of limited durations.

Coast Guard docket 86-024 titled Uninspected Fish-Processing Vessels (RIN 2115-AC34) has been incorporated into this project.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 46 USC 313

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 67

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This project would streamline the documentation process by eliminating unnecessary forms, merging forms, and simplifying procedures. In addition, the proposal would establish a fee system such that vessel owners would pay only for those services actually received and necessary. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Additional Information: The Coast Guard has combined two related dockets, CGD 89-007 and CGD 89-008a. They will be carried under docket number CGD 89-007 and RIN 2115-AD60. This action should help to avoid confusion. RIN 2115-AD30, the first phase of this project, was a completed action in the April 1991 Agenda. Coast Guard published two separate NPRMs, one dealing with forms and procedures (CGD 89-007a) and one dealing with proposed fees (CGD 89-007b). These will be combined at the final action as 89-007. In addition, the Coast Guard published a final rule reducing the need to submit declarations of citizenship, in order to provide immediate relief from this burden.

2185. + DOUBLE HULL STANDARDS FOR TANK VESSELS CARRYING OIL (90-051)

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 33 USC 1903; 46 USC 3703a; PL 101-380

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 157

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Oil Pollution Act of 1990 requires a double hull to be fitted on a tank vessel carrying oil. The Act does not provide technical standards for a double hull. This proposal would implement the requirements of the Act and establish technical standards. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial general, international, and congressional interest.

Abstract: The Coast Guard conducted a study of the need for port access routes for the approaches to Chesapeake Bay, VA. (Notice of study results published July 13, 1989, 54 FR 29627). The study concluded that the southern approach part of the traffic separation scheme should be reconfigured to incorporate a proposed deep-water route for inbound and outbound vessel traffic. Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking is intended to require marine dealers to furnish boat and engine manufacturers with serial numbers of new boats and engines sold and the names and addresses of retail first purchasers of those products. Manufacturers would use the information to locate purchasers of boats and engines recalled for defects which create a substantial risk of personal injury to the public and for failures to comply with applicable regulations. The proposed action was withdrawn because State vessel numbering and registration information is available to boat manufacturers from most issuing authorities and can also be used for defect notification. Withdrawal will allow existing records to be utilized instead of increasing information and other paperwork burdens for boat and engine manufacturers and marine dealers.

Abstract: This action was to revise and update the inland waterways navigation regulations for the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway from St. Marks, FL, to the Rio Grande River; certain frequently granted exemptions regarding length and width of tows were to be incorporated into the regulations. However, in view of comments received, the proposal was withdrawn. Granting universal permission for double-wide tows could create an increased threat of collision, environmental damage, and economic loss, a risk too great to accept.

These proposed changes are based on the service history of airplanes evaluated to the current damage tolerance requirements and are intended to ensure that, should serious fatigue damage occur within the operational life of the airplane, the remaining structure can withstand reasonable loads without failure until the damage is detected. Abstract: This notice proposed to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to update, clarify, and consolidate into one part, new Part 119, the certification and operations specifications requirements for persons who conduct passenger-carrying or cargo-carrying air operations for compensation or hire. Significant changes included defining what must be included in operations specifications; defining "scheduled" and "domestic" operations; increasing the lead-time period for application for a certificate; defining a "wet lease" operation; including in the regulations criteria to determine who has operational control of an operation; and standardizing the requirements and qualifications for management personnel. This action is needed to establish permanent minimum safety standards following the "sunset" of the Civil Aeronautics Board on December 31, 1984, and the enactment of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. Abstract: This action would amend the Federal Aviation Regulations by upgrading the standards for protecting transport category airplanes from bird impact damage by requiring that airplanes be designed such that: (1) only minor damage would result from impact with a 4-pound bird and (2) the airplane would be capable of continued safe flight and landing after impact with an 8-pound bird. These standards are needed because of possible vulnerability of new technology flight controls, flight instruments, and flight structures to bird strike damage. These proposed changes are based on research and service experience and are intended to improve survivability of the airplane by providing better protection of critical structures and systems.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice would propose to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to redefine the airplane reference stalling speed as the 1-g stalling speed in lieu of the minimum stalling speed. This notice would: (1) provide for a consistent, repeatable reference stalling speed; (2) ensure consistent and dependable maneuvering margins; (3) clarify the requirement for the use of 1-g stalling speeds in determining structural design speeds; (4) increase the head-on gust structural design requirement; and (5) provide for adjusted multiplying factors to maintain essentially equivalent requirements in areas where the use of minimum stalling speed has proven adequate. These changes are needed since the stalling characteristics of modern jet transports as determined by current methods can result in inconsistent reference stalling speeds. These changes may result in a higher level of safety where current methods have resulted in artificially low reference stalling speeds.

Abstract: Following World War II, a substantial number of surplus military airplanes were offered for sale to the public in order to meet an increased demand for civilian-use aircraft not being met by the civil aircraft industry. The current regulation permits both type and airworthiness certification for surplus military aircraft based on the particular aircraft's safety record and condition. As military aircraft have become increasingly complex and sophisticated, that practice is no longer acceptable. This action would remove the regulations for issuing type certificates for these surplus aircraft and eliminate references to obsolete standards. Surplus military aircraft would still be certificated in the normal, utility, acrobatic, commuter, transport, and restricted categories upon compliance with the applicable regulations.

unnecessary burdens by allowing, on a commuter-carrier aircraft, seating in an exit-row seat a passenger who is not able, or willing without assistance, to activate an emergency exit. The revisions would eliminate unnecessary requirements for safe evacuation in an emergency, as seating configurations in such aircraft tend to differ from standard aisle-and-row seating and frequently include single units around a central open space in the cabin, couch seats, and club seating, which provide undefined, unrestricted paths to the exits.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 91Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FAA is amending its regulations to add a Special Federal Aviation Regulation (SFAR) to Federal Aviation Regulations Part 91 to provide limited issuance of special flight authorizations that allow certain nonrevenue operations otherwise prohibited by Part 91, Subpart I, Operating Noise Limits. This SFAR is necessary because the former one (SFAR 47-3) expired on December 31, 1991. The new SFAR is also necessary because the Airport Noise and Capacity Act of 1990 provides for the operation of otherwise restricted Stage 2 aircraft in the United States if the aircraft are modified to meet Stage 3 noise levels.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 36; 14 CFR 91

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposed revisions to the aircraft type certification standards and operating rules to require that future supersonic aircraft meet noise limits consistent with those required for future subsonic aircraft. These revisions would aid the development of next-generation supersonic aircraft by establishing a noise impact goal that is consistent with noise limits for conventional (subsonic) aircraft. The FAA believes that these revisions are necessary to guide developers of supersonic aircraft and to assure consistent and equitable noise type certification standards and operating rules for both subsonic and supersonic aircraft. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This notice proposed new requirements for water survival equipment carried aboard airplanes and rotorcraft. The requirements would apply, after specified dates, to U.S.-certificate holders that conduct common-carriage operations with airplanes and rotorcraft. This proposal is in response to the Airport and Airway Safety and Capacity Enhancement Act of 1987 (PL 100-223) and relates to safety recommendations by the National Transportation Safety Board. Abstract: The current regulations need to be revised to account for the changed operational practices stemming from airline economic deregulation. This proposal would clarify or change the number of flight attendants required when passengers are on board an airplane, including at stops. This proposal includes two new requirements: (1) a revision of the reduced number of flight attendants which, under certain conditions, a carrier is permitted to have on board a passenger-carrying airplane during stops; and (2) a requirement for a demonstration of competency by the other authorized persons who may be permitted to be substituted for required flight attendants when passengers are on board the airplane during stops. This proposal would change the current rule by clarifying and specifying the training required to be completed by these other authorized persons. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

These proposals are intended to provide more consistent standards with respect to passenger seating allowed for each exit type, and the type and number of exits required for passenger seating configurations. This notice proposed to reduce the maximum inflation time of an escape slide to reflect the current state of the art. These proposals resulted from the Public Technical Conference on Emergency Evacuation of Transport Airplanes held in Seattle, Washington, on September 3-6, 1985. authorized under the original TSO issued for this equipment. The new equipment would be required for future installations. This proposal was prompted by unsatisfactory performance experienced with ELTs that are manufactured under the original TSO and relates to safety recommendations by the National Transportation Safety Board and the search-and-rescue community. Although most of the unsatisfactory field experience has been with automatic ELTs, the FAA is also proposing improved standards for survival ELTs. This proposal would save lives by increasing the number of survivors rescued after aircraft accidents. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 23Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposed changes to the airframe and flight airworthiness standards for normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes that are based on a number of recommendations discussed at the Small Airplane Airworthiness Review Conference held on October 22-26, 1984. This action arose from the recognition that updated safety standards are needed for an acceptable level of safety in the design requirements for small airplanes used in both private and commercial operations. This notice included design requirements applicable to advancements in technology being incorporated in current designs and proposed to reduce the regulatory burden in showing compliance with some requirements while maintaining an acceptable level of safety. Abstract: This notice proposed changes to the powerplant and equipment airworthiness standards for normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes that were based on certain proposals and recommendations discussed at the Small Airplane Airworthiness Review Conference held in St. Louis, Missouri, on October 22-26, 1984. These proposals arose from the recognition, by both government and industry, that updated safety standards are needed to maintain an acceptable level of safety in the design requirements for small airplanes that are used in both private and commercial operations. These proposals, if adopted, will include design requirements applicable to advancements in technology being incorporated in current designs and reduce the regulatory burden in showing compliance with some requirements while maintaining an acceptable level of safety. Final Rule Stage

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposed to amend emergency egress requirements of the airworthiness standards for normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes. These proposed rules are necessary to improve the compatibility of the requirements for emergency exit provisions of commuter category airplanes with the corresponding requirements for similar sized transport category airplanes. These proposals provide alternative emergency exit requirements, applicable to commuter category airplanes, when additional bin safety features are included in the airplane design, and include specific requirements for flight crew emergency exits, emergency exit ditching provisions, and the size requirement of the passenger entry door for commuter category airplanes. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves a cabin-safety issue.

program any time conditions are such that frost, ice, or snow could adhere to

Abstract: This action proposed changes to the airworthiness standards to improve the crash resistance of fuel systems on normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes. The FAA has determined that improved crash resistance of these fuel systems is necessary to prevent deaths and injuries due to fire in survivable crashes. The proposed design changes would limit fuel spillage near ignition sources and would provide additional time for the survivors to evacuate the airplane.

Abstract: This notice proposed to amend the airworthiness standards for transport category airplanes to require a means to alert the flight crew of potentially unsafe low fuel quantities. There have been several fuel depletion incidents involving loss of power or thrust on all engines that could have resulted in forced landings and injury or loss of life. Most of these incidents resulted from improper fuel management techniques. This proposed amendment would require new transport category airplane designs to incorporate a low fuel quantity alert system that would allow for correction of certain fuel management errors or provide the flightcrew the opportunity to make a safe landing prior to engine fuel starvation.

Abstract: This notice responded to a petition for rulemaking from Aerospace Industries Association of America, Inc., and proposed to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to incorporate new one-engine-inoperative (OEI) power ratings for multiengine, turbine-powered rotorcraft. If adopted, this proposal would enhance rotorcraft safety after an engine failure or precautionary shutdown by providing OEI power, when required, with the assurance that the drive system would maintain its structural integrity and allow continued safe flight while operating at the new OEI power ratings with the operable engine(s).

Abstract: This notice proposed to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to minimize the failure hazards of high speed powerplant rotor systems used in turboshaft engines in newly designed transport category rotorcraft. Engine rotor failures have occurred resulting in the release of high energy rotor fragments or other engine component fragments. These fragments have impacted and damaged critical rotorcraft structures, systems, controls, and adjacent engines, as well as caused serious or fatal injuries to passengers and crewmembers. This proposal, if adopted, is intended to eliminate these hazards.

Abstract: This notice proposed to modify the procedures for conducting an emergency evacuation demonstration by requiring that the flight crew take no active role in the demonstration and by changing the age/sex distribution requirement for demonstration participants. This notice also proposed to standardize the illumination requirements for the handles of the various types of passenger emergency exits. In addition, it is proposed to add a requirement for a "push to talk" switch to the public address system. These proposals are intended to enhance the provisions of transport category airplanes for egress of occupants during emergency conditions.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 27; 14 CFR 29

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposed to add comprehensive crash resistant fuel system design and test criteria to the airworthiness standards for normal and transport category rotorcraft. The proposed standards would minimize fuel (and other flammable fluid) spillage near ignition sources, minimize potential ignition sources and, therefore, improve the evacuation time needed for crew and passengers to escape a postcrash fire. These proposals, if adopted, would minimize the postcrash fire hazard, save lives, and substantially reduce the severe physiological and psychological injuries sustained from postcrash fires in otherwise survivable accidents.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 23

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposed to amend the 61-knot stall speed limitation requirement applicable to normal, utility, and acrobatic category single-engine and certain multiengine small airplanes of less than 6,000 pounds maximum weight. The proposal would require additional occupant protection requirements for those airplanes with a stall speed exceeding 61 knots. This proposal retains the current level of airplane occupant protection and permits the design and type certification of higher performance, single-engine airplanes capable of attaining an increase in cruise speeds with better specific fuel consumption. This improvement in performance and operating economies cannot be achieved without substantial increased cost and complexity if these designs are constrained by the present 61-knot stall speed limitation.
