

FORT WILLIAM, JAN. 1, 1814.

His Excellency the Right Honorable the Governor General in Council is pleased to appoint the undermentioned Surgeon and Assistant Surgeons, to perform the Medical duties of the following Civil Stations:

- Mr. Surgeon Robert Lowe, to the City of Dacca, vice Tutin, deceased.
- Mr. Assistant Surgeon J. M. Davidson, to Burdwan.
- Mr. Assistant Surgeon W. C. Scott, to Dinapore.
- Mr. Assistant Surgeon J. Watson, to Juanpore.
- Mr. Assistant Surgeon J. Smith, to Tipperah.
- Mr. Assistant Surgeon George Playfair, to Gya.

Mr. Assistant Surgeon J. Tytler, to act as the Civil Surgeon at Patna, in the performance of the Medical duties of that Station.

Captain William Collyer, of the 18th Regiment of Native Infantry, at present doing duty with the 5th Volunteer Battalion, is permitted to proceed to Europe on furlough, from the Island of Java, on account of his private affairs, under the condition, that he furnishes security to be approved by the local Government, for any retrenchment which may appear against him on the final audit and adjustment of the accounts pending between him and Government.

FORT WILLIAM, JAN. 8, 1814.

His Excellency the Right Honorable the Governor General in Council is pleased to determine, that when convalescents and sick men, are conveyed on ship-board from the Hospitals, at any of the Colonies, and the corps to which they belong are not embarked on the same vessels, that in such cases it shall be the duty of the Surgeon of the Hospital, from which they are removed, in communication with the Surgeon of the ship on which they are to be embarked, or Surgeon in charge, to specify the articles whether fresh provisions, wine, or other necessaries, that may be indispensably required, above those to be furnished from the stated allowance; and that an application shall be made by them conjointly through any superior Medical authority, that may be present, to be submitted with his sanction to the local Government, by whom Orders will be given to the Commissariat, but not to the Surgeon, to furnish the requisite supply of the articles in question.

The undermentioned Officers having produced the prescribed Certificates from the Medical and Pay Departments, are permitted to return to Europe on furlough, for the recovery of their health:—

- Lieutenant Colonel H. Worsley, of the 18th Regiment of Native Infantry.
- Major J. Ainslie, of the 9th ditto ditto.
- Lieutenant J. H. Simmonds, of the 6th ditto ditto.

Oriental Star, Nov. 13, 1813.

On Monday last, the Launch at the Dock-yard of Messrs. Kyd and Co. took place as formerly announced. During the forenoon, a great concourse of spectators of every rank had assembled to witness the spectacle, and a little before one o'clock, the arrival of His Excellency the Earl of Moira and the Countess of Loudon and Moira was announced by a salute from the guns of the yard. The superb structure left the stocks, about a quarter past one, in the finest and most majestic style, under the name of General Kyd, imposed by the Countess of Loudon and Moira, who condescendingly honored the occasion by performing the usual ceremony. The Right Honorable the Earl of Minto, Sir George Nugent, &c. were present at the scene, and the platform erected for the purpose was tastefully and appropriately adorned. The conclusion was distinguished by another salute from the guns of the yard, after which His Excellency the Governor General, the Countess of Loudon and Moira, the Earl of Minto, Sir George Nugent, &c. repaired to the Tiding apartments, and partook of the splendid refreshments prepared for the illustrious spectators. The following were among the toasts given on the occasion:—

- 1.—(By Earl Moira.)—"The General Kyd, and success to the establishment who have launched a fine ship."
- 2.—"The King."
- 3.—"The Queen and Royal Family."
- 4.—"The Prince Regent."
- 5.—"The Duke of York and the Army."
- 6.—"The Duke of Clarence and the Navy, and may the Port of Calcutta succeed in conquering the world, that it is capable of adding to the Naval strength of the Empire."
- 7.—"The East India Company."
- 8.—"The Governor General, and success to his administration."
- 9.—"The Countess of Loudon and Moira, and may this climate prove propitious to her Ladyship's Family."
- 10.—"Earl Minto, and a happy arrival in his Country."
- 11.—"Sir George Nugent."
- 12.—(By Captain Nairne.)—"Marquis Wellington, and the Heroes under him in Spain."
- 13.—"Sir Home Popham."

His Excellency, the Countess of Loudon and Moira, with their retinue, withdrew at 4 o'clock.

On Tuesday, also, the launch announced in the Star of last Saturday, took place at the dock yard of Messrs. Gilmore and Company, and was attended by an equal concourse of Spectators. His Excellency the Earl of Moira, the Countess of Loudon and Moira, and family, were on the river in the State boats in the most favorable positions for viewing the spectacle. At a quarter past two, the preparations were completed, and the ship, at the commandment of her captain from the stocks, received the name of Vansittart, from His Excellency Sir George Nugent, who presided at the ceremony. Her motion was slowly progressive into the water, affording as handsome a spectacle of the kind as was ever witnessed, and attended by "Rule Britannia" from the band of H. M. 24th Regt. and the reiterated cheers of the numerous spectators in the yard, on the tops of the adjoining houses, on the decks and in the rigging and tops of the adjacent shipping, &c. We are sorry in having to add, that by a distressing accident which occurred during the preparations, some unfortunate natives lost their lives.

Sir George Nugent, afterwards, with a numerous and respectable party, repaired to the house of Messrs. Gilmore and Co. and partook of an elegant repast, at which the Commander of the Vansittart (captain Reid) presided.

On Monday evening, the Honorable Sir Edward Hyde East landed at Calcutta, and proceeded on the morning of Tuesday to the assumption of his dignities and functions as Lord Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Judicature at Fort William, in Bengal. About half past 10 o'clock, his Lordship repaired to the Court House, and was met at the outer entrance by the officers bearing the insignia of the Court, who preceded him to the chambers of the Chief Justice. After the motions of the day had been gone thro' in the Court Room by the Puisne Judges (Sir John Royds and Sir W. Burroughs) who then presided, his Lordship having robed in his chambers, proceeded thither with the same state as he had at first entered, and on ascending the Bench delivered his Majesty's letters patent (appointing him Chief Justice) to the Senior Puisne Judge, Sir John Royds. These were handed to the reading Clerk (Mr. Macter), who read them to the Court, after which, the oaths of office being administered to his Lordship, by Sir John Royds, he took his seat, as Chief Justice, and presided during the remaining business of the Court.

The ceremonies were distinguished throughout by that solemn dignity, so suitable to the importance of the occasion, and the reverential silence and attention, which obtained from the time that his Lordship ascended the Bench until he assumed the Chair, rendered the intervening solemnities more peculiarly impressive.

On the following day his Lordship appointed James William Croft, Esq. Clerk to the Honorable the Chief Justice—and also Sealer of the Court, vice Mr. Simpson.

India Gazette, January 17, 1813.

Runjeet Sing, with his army, was encamped, in the beginning of December, at Bainwaul, a place twelve coss in advance of Rawalpindie. No recent occurrences worthy of notice had taken place in that quarter. Detachments continued to move towards Altock; and Futch Sing had set out for the purpose of taking the command of the fort as Kallahdar, of collecting tribute from the Zemindars, and bringing the district into subjection.

The distresses of Holkar's court continued, and the ministers were still held in dhirma by one of the principal Sardars. Amber Khan was shortly expected in the Bhæ's camp at Rampoorah.

The ukhbars mention a severe skirmish said to have taken place in the district of Sekrana, between a detachment of troops in the service of Ameel Khan, and under the immediate command of one Doondee Khan, and a body of the Jaypore forces. There had not, however, been any general renewal of hostilities between the two parties.

His Majesty's Ship Stirling Castle still remained at Pondicherry, down to the date of our latest advices from that part of the coast. Besides the sum of five lacs of Star Pagodas, transmitted by land to Pondicherry, a further remittance of two lacs of Pagodas was in preparation, we understand, at Madras, for shipment to England. And it was thought probable, that the Stirling Castle would remain on the coast, to receive that additional supply of treasure; though it was still uncertain, whether she would wait to take it in at Pondicherry, or would make another attempt to come on to Madras. In either case, some interval was likely to elapse before the treasure could be prepared; and it was not thought that the shipment could be completed in less than ten or twelve days.

We further understand that the Treasury of Fort St. George had been opened, for the receipt of money in exchange for Bills on Bengal.

Our accounts from Colonel Adams's detachment continue satisfactory, and hold out every prospect of an early and advantageous settlement of the recent disturbances in the Rewah district; as our readers will be enabled to judge from the following communications.

CAMP, LOWR, Jan. 4, 1814.

"The Rewah force continues encamped here at Lowr; and the Pioneers are occupied in levelling several small ghurrees in this neighbourhood. The arrangements with the Nya Ghurree chief are still undetermined."

CAMP, LOWR, Jan. 5, 1814.

"Ruffun Sing, the Nyaghurree chief, has at length, in obedience to the requisition of the Superintendent of political affairs, joined Lieutenant Colonel Adams's camp. He arrived yesterday; and this circumstance, it is supposed, closes our operations in this quarter of the Rewah jurisdiction. The detachment will move to-morrow to the South West, for the supposed purpose of selecting a spot within or contiguous to the western boundaries of the Rewah territory, for a cantonment, to command the adjacent passes of the second range or Kimoor hills. Several Ghurrees in this immediate proximity have been raised by the Pioneers.

"The Singranah district is controlled by five chiefs, whose possessions, (to the extent of 80 or 100 villages each,) are subdivided into several Zemendaries.—Of these five chiefs, Uurood Sing of Mow only is denominated Rajah; an appellation, however, merely titular, being united with no authority nor any revenue beyond that which he derives from his own territory. He is in fact no more than 'primus inter pares.' The other chiefs are those of Oomree, Joudpoor and Gangee. From all of these, the Rewah Rajah, as liege-lord, levies an uncertain tribute once in every two years.

"At no great distance from Nyaghurree, are two cataracts; and similar falls are found throughout the whole extent of the range of hills bounding the northern limits of this country, of which, from the various itineraries collected by the Engineer officers, a tolerably correct delineation will now be obtained."

The packets for the homeward-bound ship General Kyd, are expected to be closed at the Post Office in the course of the present week, and Captain Nairne will leave town to join that ship, on Saturday next, the 22d instant. The General Kyd proceeds in the first instance to Madras, and from thence to the general rendezvous at Pointe de Galle. The homeward-bound Indiamen appointed to sail from hence to Pointe de Galle direct, are not expected to be ready for sea before the middle of the ensuing month.

On Thursday last a numerous party of the principal inhabitants of the settlement were entertained at dinner, at the house of Sir Edward Hyde and Lady East; and, in the evening, Lady East received visitors. Her Ladyship, we understand, will hold a public night weekly, during the present cold season.

On Saturday evening, their Excellencies the Earl of Moira and Countess of Loudon and Moira, entertained a small party at the Government-house.

Friday evening next, the 21st instant, is at length fixed for the grand Masoic entertainment, to be given by the Calcutta Lodges at Moore's Rooms, in compliance to their illustrious patroness. Numerous cards of invitation for the occasion, have been already issued.

Calcutta, during this week, presents one continued round of gaiety. Besides the Masoic entertainment above alluded to, a grand ball and supper will be given to the community, at the Government-house, to-morrow evening, in honor of her Majesty's birth-day; the long-announced and anxiously expected representation of "Henry the Fourth," takes place at the Private Subscription Theatre this night; and tickets have been issued for the performance at Barrackpore already notified, on the evening of Thursday.

On Monday last, the trial of John Earnst, a private in His Majesty's 53d Foot, on an indictment for the murder of William Forbes, also a private in the same corps, came on at the Court-house. This case was chiefly remarkable for the entire absence of any reasonable or apparent motive in the mind of the unfortunate criminal, to account for the act of which he was accused. He was found guilty; and his subsequent confession, which has been published, ascribes his guilt to a tedium vite, proceeding from anguish and despair of mind. On Thursday afternoon, this unhappy man underwent the sentence of the law, at the usual place of execution on the glacis of Fort William near the Cooley Bazar.

GEORGE BARNWELL.

George Barnwell stood at the shop door, A customer hoping to find sir. His apron was hanging before...

Her face was rouged up to the eyes, Which made her look prouder and prouder, His hair stood on end with surprise...

Now nightly he stole out, good luck, And into her lodging would pop, sir, And often forgot to come back...

And now (for the truth must be told), Though none of a 'prentice should speak ill, He stole from the till all the gold...

In vain he entreats and implores, The weak and incurable ninny, So kicks him at last out of doors...

Cried Milwood, whole cruel heart's sore, Was so flinty that nothing could shock it, If ye mean to come here any more...

A pistol he got from his love, 'Twas loaded with powder and bullet, He trudge'd off to Camberwell Grove...

All you who attend to my song, A terrible end of the farce shall see, If you join the inquisitive throng...

Their bodies were never cut down, For granny relates with amazement, A witch bore 'em over the town...

On Tuesday, a native named Soobaram was tried and convicted for Perjury, and was adjudged to be imprisoned for the space of two years, to stand twice during that time in the pillory...

On Friday, three Europeans, named Richard Storey, John Peterson and Ernest Powell, belonging to the Honorable Company's ship Balavia, were put to the bar, on an indictment for the murder of a Calcutta Chokkydar...

On Saturday, sentence of imprisonment for one year was passed on Richard Storey; and the Sessions were then adjourned till this morning, when the Court, we understand, will meet chiefly for the purpose of fining such Jurors as have been irregular in their attendance.

THE CALCUTTA TIMES, JANUARY 25, 1814.

The following country ships have been taken up by Government for the purpose of conveying to Prince of Wales Island, Malacca, and Fort Marlborough, the troops that are destined to relieve the detachments at present serving at these stations.

Table listing ship names and captains: Troonbridge, Capt. A. Barclay; Cambridge, Toussaint; Emma, Gardin; Lady Barlow, J. Bean; Lord Minto, A. Turner; Argo, J. Mackey; Auspicious, Haram; Lady Sophia, F. H. Bean; General Browne, Kilpatrick; Venus, Brown.

The H. C.'s ship Devonshire, Captain Murray, has been also ordered to proceed on the same service.

The following Passengers proceed to England on the Vansittart: Mrs. Kelso and family, Mrs. Scott and family, Archibald Kelso, Esq.

The Grand Masonic Entertainment, given in honor of her Excellency the Countess of London and Moira, the Patroness of Masonry in Bengal, took place on Friday last, at Moore's Assembly Rooms, and afforded a very superb display of Eastern splendor.

Their Excellencies the Right Honorable the Earl of Moira and the Countess of London and Moira, with their family and suite, arrived about half past nine, and were received at the bottom of the Stairs by the Acting Grand Master, the Honorable Archibald Seton...

The dancing commenced about ten, and was continued with great spirit and elegance till half past twelve, when their Excellencies were attended to the Supper Room, and took their seats at a semi-circular table placed at the head of the Room...

which a temporary passage was constructed. The magnificence of the Entertainment, and the hilarity which prevailed throughout such a crowded party have seldom been equalled.

"The King and the Craft." "His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, Grand Patron of Free Masonry, and the Grand Lodge flourish throughout the world." "His Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex, Grand Master of England, and the Grand Lodge of England."

"Our Noble and Illustrious Brother, the Earl of Moira, Grand Master of our order in India." His Lordship then rose and returning thanks in the most handsome, eloquent and graceful manner...

"The Ladies who now honor us with their company."

The dancing recommenced after Supper with increased spirit, and their Excellencies remained until near three o'clock, when the same respectful ceremonies, which had been observed at their arrival, were repeated on their departure.

The surprising order and regularity, with which every thing was conducted, reflect certainly the highest credit on the assiduous attention exerted by the Stewards in their preliminary arrangements.

On Friday afternoon last, a very handsome ship, of 510 tons burthen, was launched from the Dock yard of Mr. M. Smith, on the Calcutta side of the river. She glided from the stocks under the name of Juliana.

The following circumstances, relative to the loss of the Lady Rollo, have been given as the report of one of her Seacummies, now in Calcutta.

"The Lady Rollo remained about a month at Amboyna, and then returned to Timor; At that port she remained about five or six days and then proceeded to Timor Koopoy, where she remained about five or six days and then left it. About the month of September last, about 6 o'clock A. M. and when we were about 2 or 3 days sail from the Island of Narrain Tokar and out of the sight of land, the brig took the ground and continued in that state till about 12 o'clock, when she was got off; and in the course of an hour after, she again took the ground, and after every exertion was used by endeavouring to tow her off with her boats and otherwise, Captain Sinclair on the following morning desired all hands on board to leave her; which being done, he set the wreck on fire, and burnt her up, with her cargo and all things on board, including our clothes and all the stores, with the exception of the clothes we had on, a bag of rice and a keg of water, and some few common necessaries which we took with us."

We copy the following interesting statement from a Sidney Gazette of the 24th July. We are sorry in not having been able, from the late hour at which we received a series of these papers, to include a variety of other interesting extracts relative to those Southern regions.

The brig Perseverance, upon the 12th of May last, made Solander's Island, and there found five men, some of whom had been there four years and a half, and the others nearly three years. Their preservation for such a length of time upon that Island, which is not more than four or five miles in circumference, and scarcely anything but a barren rock, can be attributed to nothing short of that divine interposition which, in numberless instances, no less remarkable, has imperatively exercised its gracious influence. Among them was a native of this Territory, who had lived in habits of perfect amity and good understanding with his unfortunate companions. They were clothed in seal skins, of which their bedding also was composed, and their food had been entirely made up from the flesh of the seal, a few occasionally caught, and a few sea birds that now and then frequent the Island; The birds they always salted for winter stock: the catching of fish was very precarious, and the flesh of seals they entirely lived on during the summer season. They had attempted to raise cabbage and potatoes, of which plants one of them happened to have some of the seed when unhappily driven upon the Island; but their first and every subsequent experiment failed, owing to the spray of the sea in gales of wind washing over the whole island, which rendered culture of any kind impracticable. They had long endured calamity, but had until within the last few months of their relief, entertained some hope of succour, which from a length of disappointment had gradually immersed into a state of entire hopelessness; and but a few days before the Perseverance went thither, had by general concurrence agreed to contribute as much as possible to each other's comforts, as no expectation of relief was any longer to be encouraged or indulged. The island upon which it was their misfortune to be cast is about 5 miles in circumference, of very difficult access on account of the high surf, almost perpendicular rocks, and of so forbidding an appearance as to any possibility of effecting a landing, as not to incline shipping of any kind to touch there, though they had seen several at a distance. From long observation, they reported the heaviest gales to proceed from the North west.

Bombay Courier Extraordinary, DECEMBER 23, 1813.

Yesterday evening, a small Vessel called the Pomona, Captain Street, arrived at this Port from Bussora, having left that place on the 9th of November, Bushire on the 22d of November, and Muscat on the 5th of December.

By this arrival, several private letters have been received. We hasten the publication of one which contains various interesting particulars.

It appears that further accounts from the continent of Europe were daily expected at Bussora. But that no despatches had been received since the departure of the Prince of Wales, on the 19th of last October.

The Monington Cruiser was lying at anchor off Bussora, when the Pomona sailed, and we understand that the Captain of the Pomona spoke the Begares as she was crossing the Bar to enter that Port.

Extract of a Private Letter, &c.

It appears that Lord Wellington in the action of the 21st of June, made 12,000 prisoners besides taking 150 pieces of cannon, the whole of the baggage, ammunition, waggons, plunder, &c. &c.; the Rond and Bayonne were so completely blocked up, that the remains of the French army, which were endeavouring to make their escape in that direction, were obliged to alter their course and make off in sad confusion by way of Pampeluna. Joseph was so closely pursued in his carriage, that taking advantage of a Mill-dam which obliged the Dragoons who were following him to make a round, he got upon a horse and rode off full gallop, leaving his crown, jewels, &c. &c. in the hands of our men.

The Austrians have declared war, and come into the field 350,000 strong. The Russians have entered Bohemia, and Bonaparte in consequence of Lord Wellington's splendid victory and approach to Bayonne has left the Army for Paris—He has carried off with him several thousand men in waggons, &c. to reinforce the army in Spain.

The Americans had not been able to get any assistance from France, as they had expected. Several of their sea ports have been burnt. It seems that the Captain of the Chesapeake was so secure of capturing the Shannon, Captain Broke, that he had ordered a handsome dinner on shore to regale his friends after the conquest. But

The gallant and unexpected manœuvre of Captain Broke in boarding made the American lose his dinner and ship.

The Son and Heir of Sir Gore Ouseley, our Ambassador at the Court of Persia, has been christened by the name of Wellesley Abbas, the latter of the two names being given in compliment to the Heir Apparent of Persia, at his Royal Highness's request.

Mr. Browne, the celebrated traveller, who discovered the site of the Temple of Jupiter Ammon, was murdered to the Eastward of Tabriz, a few months ago. He left that place early in July, intending to go to Herat, Balkh, &c. but unfortunately setting out contrary to advice in a Turkish Dress, without proper protection from Government or sufficient attendants, he was carried off by some Robbers a hundred miles from Tebriz, and his body and clothes have since been found. We have the satisfaction to be informed that the tribe to which the Robbers belong is known, and have every reason to hope the Robbers will meet with the punishment their crime deserves, though this will be but a poor compensation for the loss of such a man.

DECEMBER 25, 1813.

The arrival of the Pomona as communicated in our Extra Courier of Thursday, not having furnished us with any foreign Journals, we are precluded from offering to our Readers any details in addition to those received at former periods, but some interesting particulars may be collected from the private Letters, which have reached Bombay, and though we cannot publish them with that confidence which we should have felt in giving Extracts from printed Documents, we are satisfied, that they have sufficiently the appearance of truth to be entitled to much consideration. The important fact communicated to us by these letters, that Bonaparte had been obliged to leave his army and return to Paris, is the most difficult to reconcile with the ideas which we had entertained of the state of the contending powers on the Continent, for it had appeared to us, that Bonaparte was, in effect, fighting the cause of Spain in Germany, and that success or defeat there would ultimately determine the conquest or independence of the Peninsula. We are happy to observe that the letters mentioning this circumstance, are from persons of great respectability who would not hastily have stated it; and it is possible that the rapid incursions of Lord Wellington into the Southern parts of France, may have caused so violent a sensation at Paris, as to require the presence of Bonaparte to stifle the discontents and murmurs of his long suffering subjects. But it must surely be a measure of the most urgent necessity, which induces the Emperor of the French to leave his principal army, at a time when he is on the point of commencing hostilities with some of the greatest powers of Europe, who have sent into the field immense armies under the command of the most distinguished Generals of the age. Indeed, if it be true, that General Moreau is to have the command of one of the Russian armies, it is difficult to select three persons more qualified by their talents, experience and renown, to bring the contest to a victorious issue, than the Arch Duke Charles, the Prince Royal of Sweden and General Moreau; and we must repeat, that at the present crisis, it seems to us a measure of desperation in Bonaparte to quit that army, which appears to afford him the only means of effectually preserving the Napoleon dynasty.

We have the satisfaction of offering our Readers a few further particulars which we have gleaned from the private letters. The Emperor of Russia arrived on the 16th of August at Opotschna where he was received by Count Graptomondorp, a deputy from the Emperor of Austria. The French army opposed to Lord Wellington was 70,000 strong; it was composed of the Armies of the North and South and that of Portugal; the success of the British arms had caused the greatest consternation in the South of France. Lord Wellington had invested Pampeluna with 18,000 men, and it was reported that he had taken it, as well as Bayona, the opulent inhabitants of which Town had all fled.—The Cortes had unanimously voted an Estate to Lord Wellington and his Heirs, of value and extent suitable to the merits of the Marquis and the dignity of Spain, to be given him in the name of the Spanish Nation as a mark of their gratitude for his distinguished Services.

Soult, who had been appointed Buonaparte's Lieutenant in Spain, was busily employed collecting forces at Bourdeaux—and so great had been the demand for men to reinforce the French Armies, that Buonaparte had taken the Students from the Universities and the Sailors from the Marine, and all persons of the age of 16 were to bear Arms—He is also forming a Corps for his own Guard, to be composed of the Sons of the Nobility, and intends keeping them near his person as pledges of the fidelity of their Fathers—He has called out the conscription of 1814.

According to the plan of operations for the Campaign as proposed by Bernadotte, and adopted by the Allies, the Russian and Prussian Armies are in part to maintain a defensive position on the frontiers of Bohemia and Silesia, and in part to advance upon Dresden.—The Prince Royal of Sweden with 100,000 men will endeavour to pass the Elbe at Dessau. The French Army, he has observed, must act on the defensive upon the Elbe, and attack Bohemia, where the Theatre of war according to all military calculations will be established—if the Austrian Army be forced in its position the French are to be attacked by the United forces of all the Allies.

According to the most authentic accounts the Russian and Prussian troops in Silesia amounted at the end of July to 160,000 effective men; the Austrians had nearly 200,000 already in Bohemia under Schwartzburg.—A Corps of 60,000 in Upper Austria and another assembling on the Draave of 80,000.

The Prince Royal of Sweden was near Berlin with an Army of 100,000 men.

General Moreau is said to have landed in Sweden from a British Frigate and to have set off for the Head Quarters of the Emperor of Russia.

The Battle between the Chesapeake and Shannon appears to have taken place in consequence of a Challenge sent by our Commander to the American Captain, who relied on his superiority of Force, and previously to sailing out to fight, ordered a dinner for 100 persons, at which he was kind enough to say his English prisoners should partake.

It is reported that Lord William Bentinck had taken possession of Tarragona which had been abandoned by the French.

It appears that London had been the scene of great rejoicings, that Vauxhall had been illuminated, and that Ministers had been complimented even by opposition in consequence of the late brilliant successes of ourselves and our Allies.

The City of Hamburg had been suffering the greatest oppressions.—The most opulent Merchants have been reduced to work upon the fortifications, and the contributions have been rigorously enforced.

Our Letters from Persia mention that His Excellency Sir Gore Ouseley had succeeded in making a Peace between the Persians and Russians after a long and tedious series of negotiations.
