NOTE TO THE FIFTH IMPRESSION

THE present edition has been revised under my direction; Mr. F. Howard Collins having died on Nov. 16, 1910.

In going through the pages it has been noticed that a number of other persons have died since the first edition was issued; and where dates could be ascertained correction has been made. There are doubtless further entries which ought to be amended, but it would involve very great labour to verify all dates, even if material for doing so were readily available; and the question has no bearing on the correctness of the spellings adopted.

In cases where the plan of this work differs (as in the matter of single and double quotations) from the practice of the Oxford Press, Mr. Collins's plan has been left unaltered. The reasons which he had for undertaking the work originally, and the methods on which he proceeded, having been fully set out in earlier editions, are not repeated here.

HORACE HART.

NOTES AND NOTES

the first time, and in various degrees. The second will be more difficult, because there will be no one who can tell you exactly what you are looking for.
But you must be patient, and you will find the right thing. You will see how the people have changed, and how they have grown up. You will see how they have learned, and how they have become better people.

I hope you will find the experience
of writing your child's life very interesting.
And when you have finished, you will have a wonderful record of your child's life, and you will be able to look back on it with pleasure and pride. And you will be able to see how much your child has changed, and how much he has grown up. You will be able to see how he has learned, and how he has become better people.

So I hope you will find the experience
of writing your child's life very interesting.

German, abbr. Ger.; (typ.) same letters as English. There are elaborate rules for capitalization, division of words, compounding, etc. The following must here suffice. The German character is "Fraktur," the Roman "Antiqua." Fraktur has no small caps. or italics: emphasis being given by interspacing each letter. Ae, Oe, Ue, except in some proper names, are now always rendered Ä, Ö, Ü. The ligatures æ, œ, are not generally used. t is now used for th in all but proper names and foreign words, as Tal, not Thal, Rat, not Rath. The plural of many words is formed by changing a, o, u, to ä, ö, ü, as Vater (father), Väter (fathers). Division of words is by sound, but prefixed nouns, prepositions, etc., remain intact, as Erb/recht, hin/aus, ent/erben; also suffixes beginning with a consonant, as -chen, -keit, -lein, -ling, -nis. ALL NOUNS AND WORDS USED AS SUCH HAVE CAPITAL INITIALS. So also the personal pronouns of the second person, Ihnen, Ihr, Sie (to you, your, you), and adjectives from names of places and persons, as Leipziger Messe, Kantische Philosophie; but adjectives of countries l.c., as russische Sprache, deutsche Industrie. The quotation marks are two straight commas before and two turned ditto at end, " and ", or as in French.

proof (cont.).

—, one having very few printers' errors; first —, the "clean" proof, as corrected by the compositor, which the author first receives; foundry —, the final one of plate-printing; galley or slip —, a proof taken before the matter is made up into pages: usually about 18 inches long. By having the first proof in this form, alterations can be effected much more cheaply when the corrections are likely to be numerous: it is the usual custom in America; page —, or — in sheets, those made up into pages; slip — (see galley, above); — marks (see proof correction marks); — paper, that used for taking proofs; plate —, one taken from a plate; press —, the final one passed by author, editor, or publisher, for the press; —-reader, one who reads and corrects printers' proofs; —-reading, first read through for literals and misplaced letters, afterwards for sense and style (see also head-lines); rough, or reader's first —, one taken without special care.

- punctatim (Lat.), point for point.
- punctilio, pl. -s.
- punctuation.
- I. The chief difficulty lies in the use of the comma, semicolon, colon, and period. In general they correspond, in the order named, to shorter or longer pauses as heard in correct speech; but no absolute rules can be given.
1. Logic and common sense must be the supreme guides.
  2. Punctuate so as to show the meaning best.
  3. Omit every point that does not make the meaning clearer.
  4. Points are usually omitted in English legal documents and papers.

5. (typ.) Copy to be followed when so ordered.

II. apostrophe (')

1. Is placed to show an omission, as "e'er" for "ever", "it's" for "it is", "tho'" for "though", "'49" for "1849." But it is not used when the word retains the first and last letters and its original sound, as "Dr.", "Mr."

2. The plural of single letters and figures is made by adding 's, as "M.P.'s", "R.A.'s", "p's and q's"; (typ.) always set these close up.

3. Is used in Irish names, such as O'Neil, O'Connor.

4. It is not used, in place of the single turned comma, in such Scotch names as M'Gregor, etc. (see also possessive case, quotations).

- III. brace, { is used in math., and in tabular work to connect two or more lines; the explanation being central and on the opposite side. The brace should point towards the fewer number of lines, as
- |         |           |
|---------|-----------|
| Biology | { Botany. | |         | Zoology.  |

IV. brackets, [ ] (typ. crotch, or crotchet), are used to include

1. Comments, corrections, explanations, interpolations, notes, or translations, not in the original, but added by subsequent authors, editors, or others, as "I have heard him [Lord Palmerston] say" (see also XX).

2. They may also contain an omitted word, or the correct spelling of a misspelt word.

PUNCTUATION IV — VII

punctuation (cont.).

3. They are largely used in dictionaries, etc.

4. They should be used with [sic].

5. In sentences where [ ] and ( ) both occur, the main digression usually takes [ ], the subordinate ( ), thus: “[here the author contradicts himself (see page 76)].” Avoid (( )), use (( )).

V. close, heavy, or stiff, punctuation is that characterized, especially by the use of many commas: common in the eighteenth century, as:—

“He has also informed me, that those, who were the oldest Benchers when he came to the Temple, told him, the first marriage settlement of considerable length, was the invention of an old Sergeant.” (“Tatler” No. 199, 18 July, 1710.)

VI. colon (:) is used

1. When the preceding part of a sentence is complete in sense and construction, and the following part is some remark naturally arising from it and depending on it in sense, though not in construction, as “Study to acquire the habit of thinking: no habit is more important.” “We are never deceived: we deceive ourselves” (Goethe).

2. In introducing an argument, example, narrative, quotation, saying, or speech, as “Exception may fairly be taken to the sentence in which he says: ‘The law ought to forbid it, because it is not permitted by conscience.’”

punctuation (cont.).

3. It is placed after such words as, as follows: for example: namely: [Shakespeare] says: this maxim: these words: thus: to wit: as “On the last morning of his life he wrote these words: ‘I have named none to their disadvantage.’” And also where some of these words are implied but not expressed, as “Three nations adopted this law: England, France, and Germany.” When the word following commences a new paragraph, the colon should be followed by a dash, as “namely:—”

4. After words marking a new stage in an argument, as again: further: to proceed: to resume: to sum up: In these cases the immediately succeeding sentence should begin with a lower-case letter, as “To sum up: if you will conform to these conditions, I will sign the agreement.”

5. On title pages, (A) between the place of publication and the name of the publisher, as “Oxford: At the Clarendon Press”; “Cambridge: At the University Press”; (B) between the principal and the secondary title, as “The Imperial Dictionary of the English Language: a complete encyclopædic lexicon, literary, scientific, and technological.”

VII. comma (,)

1. Separates and defines the adjuncts, clauses, and phrases of a sentence. It is to be used

punctuation (cont.).

only where it unfolds the sense. In case of doubt omit.

2. Insert after each adjective (except the last) preceding and qualifying a substantive, as “he was a cautious, eloquent, intrepid, and wise man.”
(See also “and” or “, and,” or.)

3. After the complimentary salutation at the beginning of an address, letter, or speech, as My Lord, Dear Sir, Ladies and Gentlemen,

(In German, the note of exclamation (!) is mostly used in these cases.)

4. An expression enclosed between two commas may usually be regarded as parenthetical: there would be no break in the continuity, grammatical connexion, or main sense, if the expression and the two commas were omitted, as “The Government of Britain, called a mixed government and sometimes a limited monarchy, is formed by a combination”, etc. (commas equivalent to parentheses). “Its effect is produced, not so much by what it expresses, as by what it suggests” (commas not equivalent).

5. It should precede e.g., i.e., etc., and conclude the following clause, making the whole a parenthesis.

6. It separates each three consecutive figures from the right when five or more, except in math. work, as 10,135,792 (see also lac of rupees).

punctuation (cont.).

7. It should not precede nor follow the dash.

8. It should not be used after the number of a house in a street (as 51 Fleet Street); nor after points following such abbreviations as e.g. (unless the sense requires it).

(See also “and” or “, and.”)

VIII. comma (single turned) (‘) is used in the abbreviation of the Scotch “Mac”: as in M’Gregor, not the apostrophe (see also quotation marks).

crotchets, see IV.

IX. dash (the em) (—) is used

1. Where the construction of a sentence is changed or suspended, as “Heat expands bodies, cold contracts bodies—these are physical truths.” “And all this long story was about—what do you think?”

2. It separates the heading at the commencement of a paragraph, called a side-heading, from the subject-matter following, as “Extent and Boundaries. — On the north, Warwickshire.”

3. It separates the repetitions and different amplifications of the same statement, as “Cannot you, in England—cannot you, at this time of day—cannot you, a House of Commons, trust to the principle which has raised so mighty a revenue?”

4. Is sometimes used, as a kind of intensified pair of commas or parentheses, before and after a parenthetical clause,

PUNCTUATION IX — XV

punctuation (cont.).

as "The ass of Buridan —held in suspense between the equal attractions of two bundles of hay—is an immortal illustration", etc.

5. Is placed after the period which ends a quotation, and before the name of its author, as "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin."—SHAKESPEARE.

6. In dictionaries, etc., to save space, it may represent the catchword, or some other word.

7. Represents faltering, hesitating speech, and stammering: as "Well—I don't know—that is—no, I cannot accept it", "y—es", "n—o."

A series of two or three points is preferred by some for this purpose.

8. It is not to be preceded or followed by a comma.

(See also VI, 3.)

X. dash (the two-em) (—)

1. Is used where a sentence is interrupted, left unfinished, or ends quite unexpectedly, as "We cannot hope to succeed, unless— But we must succeed."

2. Denotes the omission of a word or part of a word which it is undesirable to print in full, as "he called him a —", "Mr. Niemand said d—."

(See also XII, XV.)

XI. doubling of points should be avoided:—

1. When an abbreviation precedes a colon; for instance, in the case of viz., i.e., or e.g., omit the colon.

punctuation (cont.).

2. A period may be placed before an apostrophe, as Co.'s (for Company's), not Co's.

XII. en rule (—) is used to specify a period by connecting the two terminal dates, as 1900-3, not 1900-03. [Use as few figures as suffice.] (See also IX, XV.)

XIII. extracts, to be punctuated exactly as in the original (see also quotations).

figures (see VII, 6; XXI, 3, 4).

XIV. foot-notes, references to these to be outside the point and double apostrophes, if any, as "he made a serious error."<sup>3</sup> full stop (see XXI).

XV. hyphen (-)

1. When one syllable of a word ends and the next begins with the same letter, the hyphen should be placed between them to show that they are to be pronounced separately, as co-operate, pre-eminent, re-establish, re-echo, shell-less, sword-dance, Tees-side. With two vowels the hyphen is preferable to the diæresis.

2. It joins words and syllables intimately connected and open to misconception without it, as recover (to regain), re-cover (to cover again), recreation and re-creation, remark and re-mark.

3. It is used when a prefix is added to a proper name, as anti-Darwinian, pre-Adamite, Pre-Raphaelite.

4. The use of the hyphen in such phrases as "The man was well known in the City", "He was a well-known man in the City", must be decided by the exact shade of meaning required.

5. Always to be inserted if the word be more easily recognized, or misinterpretation be possible without it, as "a poor-rate collection", "a poor rate-collection", "a pickled herring-merchant", "a pickled-herring merchant".

6. Where two or more compound words have a common base, this latter may be represented in all but the last by a hyphen, as "two-, three-, or fourfold".

7. Is used to join words that represent a single idea, as "a never-to-be-forgotten event", "peace-at-any-price principles", "a well-to-do family".

8. Is used to separate an unpleasing collocation of consonants, as Ross-shire.

9. (typ.) One should not end last line of page, or last line but one of paragraph, if avoidable. Hyphens should not occur at the ends of three consecutive lines.

(See also compass, division of words, and IX, X, XII.)

XVI. italic (typ.), punctuation marks at end of italicized words to be in roman unless evidently belonging to the italics.

XVII. note of admiration, or exclamation (!)

1. Is put after exclamatory words and

punctuation (cont.).

phrases, as "O Jealousy, thou magnifier of all things!" interjections; words or sentences expressing absurdity, command, contempt, strong emotion, enthusiasm, irony, a request, sorrow, surprise, a wish, wonder; and any impressive or striking thought, as "The Angel of Death is abroad in the land: you may almost hear the beating of his wings!"

2. It should be placed at the end of the exclamatory word or phrase, whether this be at the beginning, middle, or end of the sentence, as "O Dido, Dido, most unhappy Dido! Unhappy wife, still more unhappy widow!"

3. It is placed after sentences which, though apparently interrogative in form, are really exclamatory, as "How could he have been so foolish!", "Does Britannia rule the waves?", "Shall we never end this lamentable state of things!"

4. When a sentence contains more than one independent exclamation, it should be placed after each, as "Look, my Lord! it comes! Angels and ministers of grace, defend us!"

5. It is added to the names of plants, shrubs, etc., in botanical works to show that they are known from personal observation.

6. It should follow and not precede quotation marks, when it is not included in the sense of

punctuation (cont.).

the quotation, as—What wretched “copy”!

7. It may be placed after the interjection O, or Oh, but not after the vocative O.

8. In mathematics it is the factorial sign, as n!

9. To indicate greater intensity, double, and even treble, notes may be used.

10. [!] in brackets, suggests amusement, dissent, surprise, or wonder, at the author's views. It is sometimes used to denote rarity.

11. It should not be followed by any other point, except quotation marks.

12. In Spanish it is also put (inverted) before an exclamation, as “¡Ah, qué desgracia!”

XVIII. note of interrogation (?)

1. Should follow each and every separate question, however short, if a separate answer to each be required, as “What is civilization? Where is it? In what does it consist? By what is it excluded? Where does it commence? Where does it end? By what sign is it known? How is it defined? In short, what does it mean?”

2. If the separate questions need but a single answer, it is placed at the end only.

3. The next word should generally begin with a capital letter.

4. It is not used where no answer is required; when the question is indirect; where the sentence begins with “Query”; or when it is only said that a question was asked, as “The judge then asked the witness if he believed the man to be guilty.”

punctuation (cont.).

5. With quotation marks it must be placed according to the sense, as “He called out ‘Why?’”, “Why did he say ‘I do not know?’”

6. [?] in brackets, added to a quotation by editors, expresses doubt or irony.

7. It should not be followed by any other point, except quotation marks.

8. It may be repeated for emphasis, as ??

9. In Spanish it is also put (inverted) before a question, as “¿Por qué?”

10. In Greek the semi-colon is put after questions.

XIX. open or easy punctuation, that which avoids all pointing not clearly required by the construction: that now prevailing in the best English usage, as

“On the whole, while Pope's ‘Essay on Criticism’ may be readily allowed to be superior in execution, as it certainly is in compass, to any work of a similar nature in English poetry, it can hardly be said either to redeem the class of didactic poems on æsthetics from the neglect into which they have fallen, or to make us regret that the critical ability of our own day should prefer to follow the path marked out by Dryden when he chose to discourse of poetry in his own vigorous and flexible prose.”

PUNCTUATION XX — XXI

punctuation (cont.).

XX. parentheses, () (typ.). enclose

1. An authority, definition, explanation (as in the drama), reference, or translation.

2. In the report of a speech such interruptions by the audience as applause, exclamations, laughter, remarks, etc.

3. Interpolations and remarks made by the writer of the text himself (see also brackets IV).

4. Reference letters or figures that divide and classify statements or arguments, as (1), (a).

5. In bibliographic references, place of publication and name of publisher.

6. In foot-notes, the authority for a quotation.

7. No stop is needed before or after a mere statement in parentheses which might be omitted without altering the meaning of the sentence.

8. When only part of a sentence is within the parentheses, the point to be outside, as (.); but when the full sentence is parenthetical it should be inside (.).

9. When the matter in parentheses ends with an abbreviation, put a point after the abbreviated word, and also outside the closing parenthesis, as (1331 B.C.).

10. Where [] and () both occur see IV, 5.

XXI. period, full point, or full stop (.) is used

1. At the end of a complete sentence which does not close with a note of exclamation or of interrogation.

2. After abbreviations of English or foreign words or phrases, initials, numbering of paragraphs when not in parentheses, roman numerals (except when these refer to page numbers, are capitals, or another stop follows), and abbreviated signatures.

3. Between figures of pounds, shillings, and pence, as £11. 12s. 6d.: otherwise errors may arise if close-spaced, as £1112s. 6d. It would be much better in every way to follow the former Eng. custom and to place the £ after the figures, as they are read, and as they are written in other languages, or with other measurements, as 5 fr. 50 c., 1 ton 2 cwt., 11£ 12s 6d, when no mistakes could arise, and no points would be needed (see also lac).

4. Between figures representing hours and minutes; before the dash in side-headings (see IX, 2); and turned before decimal figures.

5. If meaning equally clear it may be omitted from all half-titles, headlines, running titles, sub-headings, title pages (but see VI, 5).

6. Three periods (not asterisks) separated by em quads (en in narrow measures) are sufficient to mark omissions in all cases. When the preceding sentence has been brought to a close, four should be used; the first to be close up.

(See also abbreviations, quotations.)

PUNCTUATION XXII — PYX

punctuation (cont.).

XXII. semicolon ( ; )

1. Separates those parts of a sentence between which there is a more distinct break than after a comma, but which are too intimately connected to be made separate sentences, as "Divide and command, a wise maxim; unite and guide, a better."—GOETHE (see also VI, 1).

2. In Greek the semicolon is equivalent to the English note of interrogation (?).

punctus (Lat.), a point; pl. same.

pundit/* (Ang.-Ind.), a learned Brahmin, not pan-; fem. -a.

Punjab, India, not -aub, Panjab, Punjab.

Punjabi, Punjab inhabitant, or dialect, not -bee.

punkah (Ang.-Ind.), a large fan, not -a.

Punkt (Ger. typ. m.), point, dot, a full stop (cap.); punktieren, to point, dot, or punctuate; Punktierung (f.), punctuation.

punteggiatura (It.), punctuation.

punto e virgola (It.), semi-colon.

pup/a (entom.), pl. -æ.

-pur (Ind.), a city, as Nag-pur, not -pore, -poor, -poore.

Purcell (Henry), 1658-95, composer.

Purchas (Samuel), 1577-1626, writer.

purchasable, not -eable.

purée (Fr. f.), a thick soup; — de pois, pea soup.

pur et simple (Fr.), un-qualified.

purgatory (not cap.).

"(1) DATE. (a) That the title page of every book should bear the date of the year of publication, i.e. of the year in which the impression, or the reissue, of which it forms a part, was first put on the market. (b) That when stock is reissued in a new form, the title page should bear the date of the new issue, and each copy should be described as a 'reissue,' either on the title page or in a bibliographical note. (c)
 That the date at which a book was last revised should be indicated either on the title page or in a bibliographical note.

"(2) BIBLIOGRAPHICAL
NOTE. That the bibliog-
