The Tennessee Blacksmith.

Near the cross-roads, not far from the Cumberland mountains, stood the village forge. The smith was a sturdy man of fifty. He was respected wherever known for his stern integrity. Ae served God, and did not fear man—and it might be safely added, nor devil either. His courage was proverbial in the neighborhood; and was a common remark, when wishing to pay any person a high compliment to say, "He is as brave as old Bradley."

One night toward the close of September as he stood by his anvil plying his labor his countenance evinced a peculiar satisfaction as he brought his hammer down on the heated iron. While blowing the bellows, he would occasionally pause and shake his head, as if communing with himself. He was evidently meditating upon something of a serious nature. It. was during one of these pauses that the door was suddenly thrown open, and a pale, trembling figure staggard into the shop and sinking at the smith's feet ex-

"In the name of Jesus protect me!" As Bradley stooped to raise the prostrate form, three men entered, the foremost exclaiming:

"We've treed him at last! There he is! Seize him!" and as he spoke he pointed to the crouching figure.

The others advanced to obey the order; but Bradley suddenly arose, and seized the sledgehammer, and brandishing it about his head as if it were a sword ex-

"Back! touch him not, or by the grace of God, I'll brain ye!"

They hesitated, and stepped back, not wishing to encounter the sturdy smith, for his countenance plainly told that he meant what he said.

"Do you give shelter to an Abolitionist?" fiercely shouted the leader.

"I give shelter to a weak, defenseless man," replied the smith. "He is a enemy," vociferated the lea-

"Of the devil!" ejaculated Bradley. "He is a spy! an Abolition hound!" exclaimed the leader with increased vehemence, "and we must have him. So I tell you, Bradley, you had better not in-terfere. You know that you are already suspected, and if you insist on sheltering him it will confirm it."

"Suspected! Suspected of what?" asked the smith, in a firm tone, riviting his gaze upon the speaker.

"Why, of adhering to the North," was the reply.

"Adhering to the North," ejaculated Bradley, as he cast his defiant glances at the speaker. "I adhere to the North. I adhere to my country-my whole country-and will, so help me God, as long as I have breath!" as he brought the sledge hammer to the ground with great force.

"You had better let us have him, Bradley, without further trouble. You are only risking your own safety by your interference."

"Not so long as I have life to defend him," was the answer.

Then pointing toward the door, he continued:

"Leave my shop !" and as he spoke he again raised the hammer.

They hesitated a moment, but the firm demeanor of the smith awed them into compliance with the order. "You'll regret this in the morning, Bradley," said the leader as he retreated. "Go," was the reply of the smith, as he pointed toward the door. Bradley followed them menancingly to the entrance of the shop, and watched them until they disappeared from sight down the road. When he turned to go back into the shop, he was met by the fugitive, who, grasping his hand, exclaimed:

"Oh, how shall I ever be able to thank you, Mr. Bradley?" "This is no time for thanks, Mr. Peters, unless it is to the Lord; you must fly from the country and that at once." "But my wife and children?"

"Mattie and I will attend to them. But you must go to-night." "To-night?"

"Yes. In the morning, if not sooner, they will return with a large force and carry you off and probably hang you on the first tree. You must leave to-night."
"But how?"

"Mattie will conduct you to the rendez-vous of our friends. There is a party made up who intend to cross the mountains and join the Union forces in Kentucky. They were to start to-night.— They have provisions for the journey and will gladly share with you."

At this moment a young girl entered the shop, and hurriedly said:

"Father, what is the trouble to-night?" Her eye rested upon the fugitive, and in a sympathizing tone she continued: "Ah, Mr. Peters, has your turn come so soon ?" This was Mattie. She was a fine rosy girl, just past her eighteenth birthday, and the sole daughter of Bradley's house and heart. She was his all-his wife had been dead five years He turned toward her, and in a mild but firm tone, said:

"Mattie, you must conduct Mr. Peters to the rendezvous immediately; then return, and we will call at the parsonage to cheer his family. Quick! no time is to be lost. The bloodhounds are upon the track. They may return sooner than we expect. So haste, daughter, and God bless you!"

This was not the first time that Mattie had been called upon to perform such an office. She had safely conducted several Union men, who had been hunted from their homes and sought shelter with her father, to the place designated, from whence they had made their escape across the mountains into Kentucky. Turning to the fugitive she said:

"Come, Mr. Peters, do not stand upon ceremony, but follow me."

She left the shop and proceeded but a short distance up the road, and then turned off into a by-path through a strip of woods, closely followed by the fugitive. A brisk walk of half an hour brought them to a small house that stood alone in a secluded spot, where they were received with a warm welcome by a party of loyal men, some of whom were engaged in running bullets, while others were cleaning their rifles and fowling pieces. The lady of the house, a hale woman of forty, was busy stuffing the wallets of the men with biscuits. She greeted Mattie drel.' very kindly. The fugitive, who was known to two or three of the party, was received in a bluff, frank spirit of kindness by all, saying that they would make him chaplain of the Tennessee Union regiment when they got to Kentucky.

When Mattie was about to return home two of the party prepared to accompany her; but she protested warning them of the danger, as the enemy was doubtless on the track of the minister. But notwithstanding they insisted and accom-panied her until she reached the road a short distance above her father's shop. Mattie hurried on, but was somewhat surprised, on reaching the shop, to find it vacant. She hastened into the house, but her father was not there. As she turned to go into the shop she thought she could hear the sound of horses hoofs clattering down the road. She listened, but the sound very soon died away. Going into the shop she blew the fire, and saw that things were in great confusion, you tell?' and that spots of blood were upon the ground. She was now convinced that her father had been seized and carried off, but not without a desperate struggle on his part.

drove up. One of them, an athletic accused of being an abolitionist and a young man of five and twenty years, got out and entered the shop.

"Good evening, Mattie, where is your father?" he said; then observing the of his whereabouts?" strange demeanor of the girl, he continu-

"Why, Mattie, what ails you? What has happened?"

The young girl's heart was too full leaning upon his shoulder, she sobbingly exclaimed:

"They have carried him off! Don't you see the blood ?"

"Have they dared to lay hands on your father? The infernal wretches." Mattie recovered herself sufficiently to narrate the events of the evening. When she had finished, he said: "Oh, that I should have lived to see the day that old Tennessee was to be disgraced. Here, Joe." At this the other person in the wagon alighted and entered the shop. He was a stalwart negro. The young man continued: "Joe, you would like your freedom?"

much to leave you, but den I so like to be free man. "Joe, the white race have maintained their liberty by their valor. Are you willing to fight for yours? Ay, fight to "I fight for pou, any time Massa John." "I believe you, Joe; but I have desperate work on hand to-night, and do not want you to engage in it without a prospect of reward. If I succeed, I will make you a free man. It is a matter of life and death-will you go?" "I will, Massa. "Then kneel dow and swear before the ever-living God that if you falter or shrink the danger, you may hereafter be consigned to everlasting fire."

"I swear, and I hope God Almighty may strike me dead if I don't go wid you through fire and water, and ebery ting,' said Joe.

"I am satisfied, Joe," said his master; and then turning to the young girl, who had been a mute spectator of this singular scene, he continued, "now, Mattie, you get into the wagon and I'll drive down to his daughter to his bosom. the parsonage, and you can remain there with Mrs. Peters until I bring you some intelligence of your father."

awaiting the return of his daughter, the party he had repulsed returned with increased numbers and demanded the minister. A fierce quarrel ensued which resulted in the seizing of the smith and carrying him off. They conveyed him to a spot a mille distant from the shop, and there he was arraigned before what was termed a vigilance committee. The committee met in a long room on the ground floor dimly lighted by a lamp which stood upon a small table in front of the chairman. In about half an hour after Bradley's arrival, he was placed before the chairman for examination. The old man's arms were pinioned, but nevertheless, he cast a defiant look upon those around him.

"Mr. Bradley, there is a grave charge against you. What have you to say?" said the chairman.

"What authority have you to ask?" demanded the smith, fiercely eyeing the interogetor.

"The authority of the people of Tennessee " "I deay it."

"Your denials amount to nothing. You are accused of harboring an Abolitionist, and the penalty of that act you know is death. What have you to say to the charge?

"I say that it is a lie, and he who utters such charges against me is a scoun-

"Simpson, what have you to say?' said the chairman to the leader of the band that had captured Bradley, and who now appeared with a large bandage about his head, to bind up a wound which was the result of a blow from the fist of Bradley.

The leader then stated that he had tracked the preacher to the blacksmith shop, and that Bradley had resisted his arrest, and that upon their return he could not be found, and that the prisoner had refused to give any information concerning him.

"Do you hear that, Mr. Bradley?' said the chairman.

"I do. What of it?" was the reply.

"Is it true?" .

"Yes. "Where is the preacher?"

"That is none of your business." "Mr. Bradley, this tribunal is not to be insulted with impunity. I again de-mand to know where Mr. Petersis. Will

"No.

"Mr. Bradley, it is well known that you are not only a member but an exhorter in Mr. Peters' church, and therefore there is some little excuse for your zeal As Mattie stood gazing at the pools of in defending him. He is from the North, blood, a wagon containing two persons and has long been suspected, and is now dangerous man. If you persist in this you must take the consequences. I ask you for the last time if you will tell me

"And again I answer no."

"Mr. Bradley, there is another serious charge against you, and your conduct in this instance confirms it. You are accused of giving comfort to the enemies for her tongue to give utterance, and of your country. What have you to say to that?'

"I say it is false, and he who made it is a villain.'

"I accuse him of being a traitor, aiding the cause of the Union,' said Simp-

"If my adherance to the Union merits for me the name of traitor, then I am proud of it. I have been for the Union -I am still for the Union-and will be for the Union as long as life lasts.'

At these words the chairman clutched a pistol that lay upon the table before him, and the bright blade of Simpson's bowieknife glittered near Bradley's breast, but before he could make the fatal plunge a swift winged messenger of death laid "Well, Massa John, I wouldn't like him dead at the feet of his intended victim, while at the same time another plunged into the heart of the chairman, and he fell forward over the table extinguishing the light, and leaving all in darkness Confusion reigned. The inmates of the room were panic-stricken. In the midst of the consternation a firm hand rested upon Bradley's shoulder; his bonds were severed, and he was hurried out of the open window. He was again a free man, but he hastened forward into the woods at the back of the tavern, and through them to road a quarter of a mile distant; then into a wagon, and driven rapidly off. In half an hour the smith was one of the party at the rendezvous, that was to start at midnight across the mountains.

"John,' said the smith, as he grasped the hand of his rescuer, while his eye glistened, and a tear coursed down his furrowed cheek, "I should like to see

Mattie before I go.'
"You shall,' was the reply.
In another hour the blacksmith clasped

It was an affecting scene; there, in that lone house in the wilderness, surrounded by men who had been driven from their homes for their attachment to the principles for which their patriot fathers fought and bled; the sturdy old While the sturdy old blacksmith was smith, a type of the heroes of other days, pressing his daughter to his breast, while the tears coursed down his furrowy cheek. He felt that perhaps it was to be his last embrace, for his resolute heart had resolved to sacrifice all upon the alter of his country, and he could no longer watch over the safety of his only child. Was she to be left to the mercy of the parrici-dal wretches, who were attempting to de-destroy the country that had given them birth, nursed their infancy, and opened a wide field for them to display the abilities with which she had endowed them?

"Mr. Bradley,' said his rescuer, after a short pause, "as you leave the State it will be necessary, in these troublesome times, for Mattie to have a protector, and I have thought that our marriage had better take place to-night.'

"Well, John,' he said, as he relinquished his embrace, and gazed with a fond look upon her who was so dear to him, "I shall not object if Mattie is willing."

"O, we arranged that as we came along." replied the young man.

Mattie blushed, but said nothing.

In a short time the hunted down minister was called upon to perform a marriage service in that house. It was an impressive scene. Yet no diamonds glittered upon the neck of the bride; no pearls looped up her tresses, but a pure love glowed in her heart as she gave utterance to a vow which was registered in

Bradley, soon after the ceremony, bade his daughter farewell, and set out with his friends to join others who had been driven from their homes, and were now rallying under the old flag to fight for the Union and, as they said, 'redeem old Tennessee.

THE STONEWALL OF DEATH. -The following thrilling incident of the unsuccessful charge at Fredericksburg, is from the pen of a correspondent of the Missouri Repubilcan:

Parts of Sumner's grand corps charged three times up the declivity in front of the enemy's works, and were as often repulsed with dreadful slaughter. Amid the groans of the dying, the shrieks of the wounded, and the defiant cries of the retreating column, which fell back cheering, "Hurrah for General McClellan." could be heard above the roar of battle, sometimes from our defeated soldiers, sometimes from the wounded, and often from the dying soldiers. The fiercest fighting in the center raged in front of a stonewall, upon the first crest of hills, in advance of the batteries of the enemy. The Rebel infantry were sheltered behind it, while their artillery played over their heads. Immediately in its front was a line of rine pits, occupied by a small force of he enemy. The order was given to charge this position, and our troops advanced upon the slope, when they were greeted with heavy cannonading. Approaching nearer, they received the fire of the Rebel sharpshooters in the rifle pits, but undaunted, they continued to advance, driving the Rebels from the rifle pits, who disappeared from behind the stonewall and in the woods beyond. The advance continued; shot and shell with desultory musketry tore through the ranks, but there was no faltering. The gaps were closed up, and the long line of bayonets approached within one hundred yards of the wall. The prospect of its being captured looked promising and once taken it would afford our troops protection in turn, and give good positions for our field batteries. As yet the enemy's infantry had not shown themselves. Occasionally a refugee from the rifle pits would arise and fire and then scamper off to the rear, but no heavy musketry told that the enemy were behind it in force. Within fifty yards was reached. The pace increased to a rush, and the line braced itself for the last encounter. Suddenly a brigade of grey coats arose from behind the wall; a long line of bright rifles flashed in the sunlight, then came a deafening roar. The advancing columns received the leaden hail, fell like grass before the scythe, wavered, reeled, turned and fled. Two thousand five hundred dead and dying were left under the guns of the enemy, and five hundred fell before the shelter of a ravine was gained. That wall was about six hundred yards in length, and every foot of it cost us two men. It was the battle of New Orleans repeated.

Staples, who is located at present at Sacramento, says the Stockton Independent, has been in town a day or two, having, we believe, been sent for by one of our police officers to take a lot of blankets belonging to the military company that left Camp Hooker some time ago for Sacramento, which had been pawned or sold by some of the soldiers for whisky. The recovered blankets were discovered in a whisky shop a mile out of the city some time ago by the officer.

School Fund.

It appears from the abstract of apportionment, made in December by the State Board of Education, that the State has again failed to pay the interest due to the School Fund, appropriated by the Act of May 14th, 1862. She has not only faled to pay the balance of interest due Jan. 1st, 1863—amounting to $16,643 25 but she cannot, or will not, pay that due on the first of July, 1862, amounting to $17,147 20. The arrears due the School Fund now amount, therefore, to $33,790

The number of children in the State, entitled to apportionment, between the ages of 4 and 18 years, 72,265, to whom the sum of $65,038 50 has been apportioned at 90 cts. each. But the amount that should have been apportioned, if the State had not neglected to pay the interest above mentioned, is $98,828 95, at $1 38 to each scholar.

The State, therefore, owes to the several School Districts of the State, in which schools have been taught for three months during the past school year, 48 cents for every child between four and eighteen years of age residing therein; but it seems that the Controller of State is not prepared to make the requisite transfer from the General Fund to the School Fund to meet this deficiency.

The State apportionment for January -amounting to $1,243 80-belonging to Yolo county, and the County School moneys that had been received by the Treasurer since Nov. 1st, 1862, were divided by the County Superintendent on the 14th ultimo, and the following sums placed to the credit of the School Districts

The Homestead Law.

The following is an abstract of the previsions of the Homestead Law, passed by the late Congress, which went into effect on the 1st of last month:

Any person who is the head of a family, or who has arrived at the age of 21 years, and is a citizen of the United States, or who shall have declared his intention to become such and who has never borne arms against the United States Government, shall from and after the 1st instant, be entitled to enter one quarter section, or a less quantity, of unappropriated public lands, upon which he may have filed a pre-emption claim, or which may, at the time the application was made, be subject to pre-emption at $1 25, or less, per acre; or 80 acres, or less, of such unappropriated lands, at $2 50 per acre, to be located in a body, in conformity to the legal subdivisions of the public lands, and after the same shall have been surveyed—provided that any person owning and residing on land may enter other land lying contiguous to his or her land, which shall not, with the land so already owned and occupied, exceed 160 acres.

The person applying for benefit of the Act is to make affidavit before the Register of the Land Office that he has complied with the provisions exacted above; and also that such application is made for his or her exclusive use and benefit, and that said entry is made for the purpose of actual settlement and cultivation. Upon filing the said affidavit with the Registrar or Receiver, and on payment of $10, he or she shall be permitted to enter the quantity of land specified-provided, however, that no certificate shall be given, or patent issued therefor, until the expiration of five years from the date of such entry. If at the expiration of five years thereafter the person making such entry -or, if he be dead, his widow, heirs or devisees-shall prove that he, she or they have resided upon the land five years immediately succeeding the time of filing the affidavit aforesaid, and shall make affidavit that no part of said land has been alienated, then he or she shall be entitled to a patent—provided further that in case-of the death of both father and mother leaving an infent child or children, the right and fee shall enure to the benefit of said infant, and the executor, administrator, guardian, within two years after the death of the surviving parent, shall sell the land for the benefit of the infants.

The Registrar of the Land Office must note all applications in his office. No lands shall become liable to the satisfaction of any debt contracted prior to the issuing of the patent therefor. If the person having filed affidavit shall have changed his or her residence for more than six months at any one time, then the land will revert to the Government. No individual is entitled to more than one quarter section. The Commissioner of the General Land Office is require to propose and issue such rules as will carry the provisins of the law into effect.

Nothing in the Act is to interfere with existing pre-emption rights All persons who may have filed their applications for a pre-emption right prior to this Act are entitled to its provisions-provided that | The Palmetto State, with Com. Ingraham | no person who has served or may serve for fourteen days in the Federal service, as regular or volunteer, shall be deprived of the benefit of this Act on account of his not being 21 years of age.

Nothing in this Act is to prevent any person who has availed himself or herself of the benefit of the first section of the act from paying the minimum price, or the price to which the same has been graduated, for the quantity of land so entered at any time before the expiration of five years, and obtaining a patent therefor from the Government, as in other cases provided by law, on making proof of settlement and cultivation as provided by existing laws granting pre-emption

THE EFFECT AT THE EAST.—The San Francisco Mercantile Gazette, in speaking of business at the east, says:

Another powerful sedative to anything like commercial activity was found in the continued uncertainty of fiscal matters The progress of depreciation was well adapted to create profound anxiety, not only among money lenders, but with all parties accustomed to sell merchandise or any species of property of credit. The capitalist who bought in July or August, commercial paper payable in six months, was receiving his pay, indeed, in the identical description of funds he parted with on making the investment, but at the same time sustaining a loss of fully twenty-five per cent. by the operation. The merchant who sold on credit, and the seller of real cstate, houses and lands, encountered the same difficult. The natural tendency of this state of things was to abbreviat; all credits, and limit the maturity of all obligations within narrow bounds. Foreign importers, it is said, have been awake to this subject for some time past, and never make a time sale without first ascertaining that the note received in payment can be disposed of immediately. On the delivery of the goods they obtain the note and turn it into cash at one, throwing the loss of the currency depreciation, or at least the risk of it, upon the American capitalist

BY OVERLAND TELEGRAPH.

The following dispatches are from the Sacramento Union of Feb. 3d:

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 .- A special Wash. ington dispatch to the Tribune says:

Gen. Butler has had several interviews with the President and Secretary of War. The proposition that he go back to New Orleans and resume command of the Department of the Gulf and Texas was formally renewed, with additional powers and responsibilities, including those attached to the organization of an African Butler now hesitates about accepting the command in the shape offered, fearing the means to be given him will be alto- federate States naval and land forces in gether disproportionate to the end to be accomplished. The Herald contains the details of the late fight near the Blackwater. On the night of the 28th, with three regiments and four detached battallions of infantry, 900 cavalry and 14 pieces of artillery, Gen. Corcoran advanced to meet the enemy, and found them posted ten miles Suffolk. Cannonading for two and a half hours caused the enemy to retreat. Corcoran then advanced his infantry, who, with fixed bayonets, drove the rebels a mile-they leaving their dead and wouned on the field. They took another position two and a half miles from the battle field, from which they were subsequently driven. Our loss was 24 killed and 85 wounded. The rebels then retired across the Blackwater.

Horace Greeley, in the Tribune, denies emphatically that he has solicited any intervention by France in our affairs.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 2 .- The Richmond Whig of Saturday, Jan. 31st, has the fol-

A dispatch was received on Thursday night, announcing the capture of the British steamer Princess Royal, while attempting to run the blockade of Charleston. The vessel had a very valuable cargo, including eight Whitworth cannon, four steam engines for gunboats, rifles, powder &c. A party of english workmen, skilled in the manufacture of projectiles, were also captured aboard her. The pilot and some of the crew escaped in boats to Charleston, bring important dispatches from Capt. Maury for the Confederate enemy's loss is reported at 135 killed and Government.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The following is from the Richmond Dispatch:

CHARLESTON, Jan. 31.—The ironclad gunboats Chicora and Palmetto State, with three steamers as tenders, went out blockading fleet. The firing began soon after one, and for a time was very rapid. Afterwards it slackened, but was continued at intervals until nine this evening. Owing to the fog the result has not yet been ascertained. Commander Ingraham is aboard the Palmetto State, and is Commander of the expedition.

A second dispatch dated this morning,

The gunboats Palmetto State and Chicora, accompanied by three small steamers, under Commander Ingraham, made an attack on the blockade and succeeded in sinking two and crippling a third. The engagement commenced at four o'clock. aboard, opened fire upon the Federal gunboat Mercedita, carrying eleven guns and 158 men, which was soon sunk in five Stelwagon, with a boat's crew, came aboard and surrendered. One shot pierced her beiler, going clear through. Capt. Tucker, of the Chicora, reports sinking another Federal ganboat, and disabling the steamship Quaker City. The latter was set on fire by the Chicora, and hauled down her flag and surrendered; but afterwards managed to escape with only one wheel. She was very seriously damage. The number of the blockading fleet outside at the time of the attack was 13, with two first class frigates, the Susquehanna and Canadaigua.

The Federal loss was very severe. The attack was a complete success on our part, with not a man hurt on the gunboats. They were not even struck. All the blockaders have disappeared. There is not one to be seen within five miles with the strongest kind of glases. Our boats are now returning to Charleston.

Our gunboats were enthusiastically cheered by an immense concourse of citizens, who assembled to greet them. Salutes were fired from the forts and batteries. Not a man was hurt on our side. Our attack on the fleet was a complete surprise to the blockaders, each one running away without caring for the others.

It is supposed that nearly all the crew of the Mercedita perished. The Palmetto State, which engaged the Mercedita, having no boats, and fighing at the time, could render her no assistance. The Quaker City was struck twice, and one of her side wheels was almost torn off.

The following is an official dispatch: ON BOARD THE GUNBOAT PALMETTO STATE.—The blockading fleet has gone southward and eastward out of sight. (Signed) D. N. INGRAHAM,

Flag Officer Commanding. [FOURTH DISPATCH.]

CHARLESTON, Feb. 1.—Yesterday afternoon, Gen. Beauregard placed a steamer at the disposal of Foreign Consuls, to see for themselves that no blockade existed. The French and Spanish Consuls, accompanied by Gen. Ripley, accepted the invitation. The British Consul, with the commander of the British war steamer Petrel, had previously gone five miles beyond the usual anchorage of the blockaders, and could see nothing of them with glasses.

At a late hour in the evening four blockaders reappeared, keeping far out. This evening a large number of blockaders are in sight, but they keep steam up and are evidently ready to run. The following is the official proclamation of Beauregard and Ingraham, dated Headquarters of the Land and Naval Forces, Charleston (S. C.), Jan. 31st:

About five o'clock this morning the Confederate States naval force of this station attacked the United States blockading fleet off the harbor of the city of Charleston and sunk, dispersed or drove army on the Mississippi. It is said that off out of sight for a time, the entire hostile fleet. Therefore we, the undersigned, commanders respectively of the Conthis quarter, do hereby formally declare the blockade by the United States of the said city of Charleston, South Carolina, to be raised by the superior force of the Confederate States from and after this, the 31st day of January, 1863. (Signed) G. T. BEAUREGAED,

General Commanding D. N. Ingraham, Flag Officer, Commanding Naval Forces.

An official dispatch to Thomas Jordan, Chief of Staff, says: The results of the naval engagement yesterday are two vessels sunk, four set on fire and the remainder driven away. Foreign consuls here held a meeting last night and were unanimously of the opinion that the blockade had been legally raised.

CHARLESTON, Feb. 1.—Twenty blockaders are off the bar to-day.

A dispatch from the headquarters of the Army of the Potomac, Feb. 1st, says: Parties who crossed the river yesterday under flag of truce state that the rebels at Fredericksburg were very judilant over the news from Charleston.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4th .- Sterling exchange, 174@175; Gold firmer, but irregular during the day, closing at 57.

CAIRO, Feb. 4 .- The captain of the steamer Bowen from Paducah, Kentucky, reports that our defense at Fort Donelson was most brilliant. The rebels are said to have been three or four thousand strong One battery of four guns was taken by the rebels in an overwhelming charge, but our boys rallied and retook it. The 50 taken prisoners. Colonel Forrest was wounded. The rebel Colonel McNiel was Generals Grant, McClernand, Sherman, McArthur and others are here, with their divisions. General Logan's is the beyond the bar this morning to attack the only one behind, and he is expected here soon. The engineers are making new surveys for the canal, but will probably decide to enlarge the old one. It is believed the transports will go through to the river, four miles below, within a week. Nothing has been heard from the force below yet. The whole peninsula is in possession of the Federal forces.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—In the Senate Trumbull of Illinois, from Committee on Judiciary, reported adversely on the resolution to increase the fees of the U. S. Marshals of California.

McDougall of California introduced a bill for the sale of certain Indian reservations in california, and the establishment of new reservations in the same State. Referred to the Military Committee.

McDougall's resolution relative to the French intervention in Mexico was taken up, the question being on the motion to fathoms water. Her commander, Capt. lay on the table, which was agreed to-

SUBTERRANEAN RAILROAD IN LON-DON .- A subterranean railroad has just FRUIT TREES FOR SALE opened in London. It runs from Victoria street, Holborn, Paddington, and three and a half miles of the route are finished. The work consists of an eliptical tunnel, perforated at the top at very short intervals, for purposes of light and ventilation, and on its construction the engineers have witnessed a huge battle between science and sewarage. The complicated system of sewers through which the tunnel passes has caused great trouble; the wet still streams on either side, and the odor is anything but agreeable. Nevertheless by dint of severe application and a great deal of ingenuity, the tunnel is gradually becoming water tight and sweet smelling, and on the experimental trip, three weeks since, 600 passengers passed through with t suffering material inconvenience. The London Daily News says: "The tunnel is a magnificent specimen of brick work throughout, with an arch overhead of 28 feet span, and a hight from the roadway to the crown of 17 feet. As we have before said, throughout the greater portion of the line there is little more than a skin between the top of the tunthan a skin between the top of the tunnel and the street overhead, but in some places, in consequence of the well known inequalities of the route, there are 44 feet of the intesvening stratum between the railway train and its rivals, the omnibusses."

More RAILROADS.-We understand that R. H. Vance of San Francisco, in connection with other San Francisco capitalists, designs to commence at an early day the construction of a branch railroad, leaving the Folsom road at a point a short | PATRONIZE HOME INDUSTRY !!! distance above the upper Stockton road, about two miles from the river, and running to Sutterville. The line is about three miles and three-quarters in length, and can be built, it is said, for about $40,000. Several surveys have also been made recently from Kadell's ranch, seven miles south of the city, to the Folsom road at Brighton. It is currently reported that the new purchasers of the Kadell and Gosling ranches design to build a road over this survey early in the season. The length of this line will be eight or nine miles. The two enterprises appear to be in separate hands, and are in no way connected with each other .-

AGAINST LEGAL TENDERS. - Judge Creanor, of the Fifth Judicial District Court lately decided that greenbacks are not a legal tender. The Stockton Independent says:

Petter sued Gann and obtained judgment, and the Sheriff levied upon a lot of wool supposed to be the property of Gann, but it turned out to belong to his wife, as she was doing business in her own name under the law in such cases. Mrs. Gann brought suit against the Sheriff to recover her property and obtained judgment for $800. The Coroner levied upon the Sheriff, and returned the execution "satisfied." Mrs. Gann went for her money, and the Coroner offered it her in legal tender notes. She refused to accept them, and sued the Coroner, and Judge Creanor decided that greenbacks are not a legal tender in this State. The case will be taken to the Supreme Court.

DEATH OF A PIONEER AND ODD FEL-Low .-- O. H. P. White, forwarding merchant, of Front street, died at four o'clock yesterday morning, at his residence on Third street, near Q. Some nine or ten days ago, he was scratched or bitten in the hand by a cat. No serious consequences were experienced until a few days ago, when erysipelas set in, and soon resulted in death. The deceased was a member of Sacramento Lodge No. 2, I. O. O. F., and also of the Sacramento Pineer Association, both of which associations meet at one o'clock P. M. to-day, to attend the funeral, which takes place at 2 o'clock. The flag at Odd Fellows' Hall was raised at half mast yesterday, out of respect to the memory of the deceased .- Union, 2d.

Time, that blunts the edge of things, Dries our tears and spoils our bliss; Time has wrought such balm to me, I can bear to speak of this.

She was seven and I was nine-Pretty people we to plan Life, and lay it grandly out-She the woman, I the man!

Sang the river on the shoals, Sang the robbin on the tree-Earth was newly made for us-Later Eve and Adam we.

Lightly fell the apple blooms, Paved the road with read and white; Sunshine floated through the day, Silvery atoms through the night.

Thirteen years have come and gone, Drop the curtain, change the scenes; Life, when one is nine years old, Does not say the thing it means.

Other arms have clasped my Eve, Other lips have called her fair-Ah! but little wind blows down Spring time castles in the air?

From this window I can see Upon the road to Meadow Farm-That is she upon the porch With the baby on her arm!
