New Depot of Seam-Face Granite Suggested

N. Y., N H. & H. R. R was put out of commission Monday afternoon when a brisk fire threatened the destruction of the old structure which has done service for nearly seventy years it was shortly before 3 P. M. when things became a little too hot for Station Agent Fred H. Langhorst and his assistant, W. B. McDonough, who were in the ticket office. The Central fire station was called by telephone, and Box 27 was sounded while the apparatus was on the way to the fire. Two lines of hose were laid, but the fire had worked into the blind attic and could not be reached easily. The railroad men had time only to remove to safety the cash, tickets and some of the records, but they lost personal clothing, etc.

The outside of the building was not seriously damaged, but the interior was a sorry spectacle, all the walls being burned or scorched. The fire probably started from carelessness in smoking

Temporary quarters for the day were established at the office of the American Railway Co., but on Tuesday were removed to the baggage room in the old depot, which was not reached by the fire. Tickets are sold through a window and there all candidates will be found on an are no inside accommodations for passengers. All the windows of the depot were boarded up Tuesday. Arrangements are being made to use the northerly end of the depot for temporary quarters.

Letters have been sent to railroad officials in Boston requesting that East Weymouth be given a new s.ation, and one writer suggested that it be built of the popular Weymouth grenite. The letter: 1

Men's Club Want New R. R. Station

The Union Men's Club held its regular October meeting in the vestry of the Congregational church on Wednesday night. About sixty men sat down to an appetizing supper of hot chicken pie, vegetables, rolls, coffee and ice cream. At a short business session Rev. Handanian spoke on the need for a new station to replace the one that was nearly destroyed by fire this week. He felt this club could take the initiative by meeting the officials of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. and see if it were not possible to secure better accommodations. He proposed a committee of three or four. A motion made was placed before the members by President Chubbuck

A CHEAP AND EASY OBESITY CURE DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN Editor of "HEALTH"

6000 OVERWEIGHT is a besetting sin of the American people. This is shown by the numerous "obesity cures," "reduction treatments" and other methods of getting thin, which are widely advertised.

Fat is simply the surplus food which

Where does this fat come from? From unnecessary food, which has been eaten by the thoughtless or gluttonous person, who is unable to control his appetite.

In spite of alluring advertisements, there is just one effective and harmless way of reducing one's weight.

It can't be done by anything put up in a bottle or a powder or a box. It can only be done by limiting the amount of food to what the body actually needs and by increasing the amount of work to a point where the

This process doesn't require an enormous amount of self-control or selfplan the diet as to furnish enough fuel without too much fat-forming food.

Cutting out cream and sugar from your coffee and substituting whole wheat bread for white bread will enable you to reduce your weight in six weeks' time from 10 to 15 pounds. The plain coffee tastes better and the whole wheat bread satisfies better than the white and one slice will do the work of two of white. This means that you will eat only half as much bread and half as much butter, while the bread that is eaten is not as fat-producing as white bread.

Substituting leafy vegetables such as lettuce, cabbage, spinach, cauliflowis good for a reduction of another 15 or 20 pounds.

By this time the health and beauty seeker has not only gotten rid of the fat deposits under the skin and around the muscles which interfered with their efficiency, as well as the fat deheart, which were hampering their action, but he has also found that he feels much better and that all of his friends are commenting on his vastly improved appearance.

And for this safe and sure "obesity Social Work will be held at the New cure" he hasn't had to pay five cents to anybody. On the contrary, he has saved money.

Use common sense and take your own chesity cure

(6. 1924. Western Newspaper Union.) WHEN YOU START THE FURNACE

When you start the furnace keep he windows open and keep the air noist. The air may be made moist n several ways. If the house is heated by the hot water system, pans of vater may be placed on the radiators f it is a hot air system with registers on the wall, a pan of water may be set inside the register. With the registers on the floor, the water should part free to allow the air to rise. Dry air makes dry skins and scalps and rritates the respiratory tract. Then we wonder why we are troubled with never-ending colds. A good deal of he trouble is caused by boxing ourselves up in a stuffy house.

That Romance of Gladys

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

SAID Mr. Powers to Mrs. Powers: "What's the matter with Gladys? I thought everything was going on smoothly between Clive Marsden and her-what's the trouble now?"

"Oh," sighed Mrs. Powers, "one of Gladys' freaks. Perhaps, if we named her Sarah Jane-after my mother, as I wanted to do, instead of Gladys, she would not have had these romantic spasms."

"Perhaps not," returned Mr. Powers, "though a Sarah Jane can be as romantic as a Gladys if she makes up her mind to it. But you haven't answered my question-what's the row?"

"The row, as you so crossly put it," replied Mrs. Powers, "is that Gladys has met an English baronet and has become obsessed with the idea of being called Lady Benton Sykes. Clive and his flourishing wall-paper business seem altogether too prosaic for

"Ah," said Mr. Powers, "so our girl is building castles in Spain?"

From the time they were children. living in adjoining houses, it had always been understood between the age, Ciive and Gladys should become man and wife. Clive and Gladys had always so understood it since they could remember.

Gladys was only twenty, you know -and Sir Benton was a most presentable young man. He had come to New York with letters of introduction to the very best people and as a quiet, unassuming youth of good character. Clive, after his row with Gladys, had gone off on a fishing expedition, telling ber that, by the time he got back, she would probably have regained her senses. That made Gladys a trifle "mad," as can be imagined. She would become Lady Benton Sykes now just for spite, if nothing else. Not that Sir Benton had formally asked her to accept that position, but he had looked it and, as she thought, intimated his intentions pretty clearly. Several times he had said: "Miss Powers, I have something serious which I want to speak to you about," and then, blushing and hesitating, had faltered: "Well, another time." Oh, Gladys was sure she had only to say "Yes."

The violent and unreasonable manner in which Clive had acted when she had told him of her decision to become Lady Sykes had angered Gladys-but yet she shed many tears in secret when she thought of the impetuous young man who was now catching fish in the Block island waters. If he had really cared for her he would have begged her to reconsider her decision. But he didn't. The brute! And then she cried some more. Mrs. Powers talked with her daughter, trying to bring her to reason. But she was only half-hearted and left the interview with a secret feeling that it would not be so bad, after all, to be the mother-in-law of a real, live baronet. Mr. Powers sputtered and called his dear child many sorts of an idiot. But, as usual in that household, Simeon only acted in an advisory capacity. Gladys and her mother formed the executive committee. Gladys received a letter from Clive which was written as if there had never been any misunderstanding between them. He told her how much he was enjoying himself. Still she told herself that she was going to accept the hand of Sir Benton Sykes-whenever he got ready to offer it. And this, she thought, would be very soon. Two days before the date fixed for the return of Clive to New York, Sir Benton called upon Gladys and when they were alone began a little speech which he had evidently prepared carefully in advance. "Miss Powers," said he, "there is a matter concerning which I have been wanting to speak to you for some

Gladys-now that the critical moment had come-suddenly suffered a revulsion of sentiment. She had been expecting a proposal from Sir Benton and had made up her mind to accept it. But now she made an about face. "Sir Benton." said she, "I am afraid be impossible for me to grant. I shall always think of you as a valued friend and hope that you will so regard me." "I am very much disappointed," replled Sir Benton, "for what I was going to ask you would have meant a great deal to me. My references are of the best. I came to America looking for an occupation. And I had hoped that you would help me to get the position of European agent for the wall-paper house conducted by Mr. Marsden." Gladys bit her lips She was almost tempted to throw the paper weight on the table before her at this ingenuous young man's head But she replied calmly: "My dear Sir Benton, I will be only too glad to convey to Mr. Marsden your request for employment. I am quite confident that as a wa'l-paper drummer you would be a success."

The baronet expressed his thanks and withdrew. Clive came home and Gladys told him the whole story.

Sir Benton is now the European agent of Marsden & Co. and is making good, and Clive and Glalys have been married a year.

Saved Obstinate Lady Some Embarrassment

The landward face of the Rock of Gibraltar stands directly opposite to a conspicuous height, called the "Queen of Spain's Chair."

This name has its origin in a legend of the great siege. It is said that the queen of Spain took up a position on this height, vowing she would not leave it till she saw the Spanish flag flying over the Rock of Gibraltar. A report of the royal lady's situation ultimately reached the governor, General Eliott, who at once most gallantly caused the Spanish flag to be waved on the summit of the Rock.

Whether the legend is true or not. it is certain that there are no more striking aspects of the Rock than those obtained by the pedestrians who make the rough ascent up to the "Queen of Spain's Chair." In traversing the Spanish town of Linea, separated from the Rock by the tongue of neutral ground some half-mile in length, pictures of primitive Spain present themselves at every turn.

In making the tower the objective, one emerges from the town by narrow footpaths and donkey tracks. The rough slopes of the hill afford pasture for numerous herds of goats, every herd tended by a shepherd with a long

A pile of naked rock crowns the summit of the hill. On the topmost of these stands an ancient watch-tower. From here the whole circle of the horizon is a magnificent panorama of sea and mountain, a picture in which the situation of the Rock presents its Powers and the Marsden families full significance, thrust out into the that, when they arrived at a proper blue Mediterranean toward the mountains of Morocco.

Tree Gives Evidence as to Age of Skull

More than four hundred years ago man died in British Columbia and Mother Nature herself erected over his grave a tombstone on which she inscribed considerable data concerning him.

The tombstone was a tree. Anthropologists, digging under its roots. found a skull of unusually narrow type in which a bie had been bored. presumably so that it could be filled with some preservative material.

How long ago did the red man practice this form of embalming his dead? For a time this question puzzled the scientists. Then they turned to the tree. Annual rings of growth indicating more than four hundred years were found on the trunk. A still greater age for the skull is probable since the outside layers of this stump had been burned off.

The studies leading to this interder the direction of Harlan L. Smith of the geological survey of Canada.

Protect Birds of Paradise

The lure of the gorgeous plumage of the birds of paradise leads many hunters to the almost inaccessible parts of New Guinea. In spite of the risk and danger, so many are in the business that this wonderful, feathered beauty is in danger of extinction. As a result the Dutch government of New Guinea is considering a law to protect them. The birds are found amid high mountains and waste, foulsmelling swamps and jungle, and hundreds of gunners, brave these perils every year. Sometimes a party is compelled to live for months amid perils of poisonous everglades surrounded by deadly reptiles, hostile savages and prowling animals. The most sought-for-variety of the plumes are those of the blue bird of paradise. As much as $500 has been paid for a single specimen, while red, brown and yellow ones command prices from $25 to $500.

The Wrong Hat

The good parson was a bit absentminded and somewhere or other during the day, possibly at the barber shop, he acquired a hat that looked very like his but belonged to someone else. That evening he dined out and when the guests were leaving the host accompanied them to the door. "This is yours, is it not?" said the host, picking up the parson's hat. "Yes," said the parson, "That is mine."

There was a queer smile on the host's face as he handed over the headgear. For pasted in the crown thereof was a card bearing this legend, meant for all and sundry: "No, you fool! This ain't your hat."-Bos ton Transcript.

Precedent Established

Seated in dignified case on a mat before his booth, a Chinese vegetable vender proceeded to arrange some measures of artichokes. A haughty citizen came along and overturned a measure, thus disclosing that the finest specimens were on top. Whereupon he upbraided the vender, saying: How is it, wily one, that you put the biggest artichokes at the top?"

"Is it not that way with life, Honorable?" responded the vender calmly. "Are not the biggest men at the top?"

Blue Hills River Route Is a Scenic Highway

vard has an able advocate in the Ded-ground in the Blue Hills, it had a bound at the contemplation of this ham Transcript. The Gazette and reason. No doubt that reason was awe-inspiring picture. Transcript believes it is a public necessity and is pleased to reprint the lators with the boundless resources following story with a map. The of this great reservation and their the coming scenic highways of Massaroute is a scenic highway of surpas- possibilities of serving the people in sing natural beauty: Any intelligent examination of a map of Norfolk county, with existing highways, must, if one is honest and unprejudiced, reach a like conclusion. What has come to be known as the Blue Hills River road is recognized at once as the logical link in the most natural, the most available, and building ever contemplated by this state or county. All that must be conadds to the sum total of reasons why the building of this much needed highway should no longer be delayed.

But this has to do with only one phase of the matter. We have considered only the practical side, the then and there. convenience, the great economic need of a thoroughfare uniting two widely ent sections of Norfolk county. We furnishing easy and rapid transit from Weymouth to Wellesley, from Quincy, Milton, and Braintree to Dedham, Westwood and Franklin, would benefit a very large number of people, from all sections of this great county, and of the Commonwealth beyond.

But this is only one side of this road question. While we have beer looking at the utilitarian side, the economic waste involved in compelling people from one end of the county to go miles out of their way and travel over unsuitable roads in order to reach the other end, we have overlooked another and a far greater reason why this motor highway through the Blue Hills reservation should be built, and that speedily, Pressing as the reasons are for building this road from the standpoint of a great public necessity, these warf into obscurity when we come face to face with the scenic wealth of this region which concerns more people in more beneficent ways. When the State of Massachusetts ex-

the Commonwealth in its plans among the Blue Hills came to the writer dureembraced in this proposed motor road. The experience of that first journey into the Blue Hills is one the most beneficial bit of highway never to be forgotten. It was a revelation, and if any question remained about either the wisdom or economy ceded. And each year's events but of spending a hundred or two hundredthousand dollars for the purpose single of bringing this wonderful experience into the lives of many thousands of people to whom this great boon is now closed, that question vanished

It would seem as if nature from the outset planned a great state highseparated and intensely interdepend- way directly over the route laid out for this proposed Blue Hill River road. have seen how a more direct highway, From start to finish it is as level almost as a parlor floor, and every step of the way is a journey through a fairyland of natural beauty

Rounding a turn in the way, we burst upon that picturesquely named and environed little sheet of water known as Whosick Whisick Pond. Gradually drinking in the natural wonders of this enchanting landscape, the zette-Transcript between now and eve wanders afield, and in the distance mounts to the towering eminence of Great Blue Hill, a sentinel on the skyline, whose undulating slopes reflect all the wondrous beauty of a radiant sunset, mirrored in the placid pool whose ripples lap the roadway at one's picturesque way narrows between the rock-ribbed banks of Blue Hill River on one side and a sheer ascent of one thousand or more feet on the other, and here nature has been lavish in her outlay of marvellous works. Gazing straight up the mountain side, one is lost in wonder. Gigantic rock formations cling to the towering pended five millions of dollars for the heights in such a riot of promiscuous

Here are but two items of Blue Hill River road pre-eminence as one of chusetts, rivalling the Mohawk Trail, and losing nothing in comparison with White Mountain supremacy. But so Something of this great purpose of far as the public is concerned, all this wonderland of the Blue Hills might as well be in the middle of Sahara, ing a recent trip through the section for it is inaccessible. A part of the people's reservation for which they have paid five million dollars, this beauty spot in a potential public institution is a reservation in name only. Access to it is only possible by foot or horse drawn vehicle, and these for most people make Blue Hill enjoyment prohibitive.

In this emergency our state and county officials have mapped out a splendidly conceived and most thoroughly executed plan for a motor boulevard over this section of the Blue Hills. The construction of this motor road has been blocked for several years. At the coming session of the General Court it is hoped, in plain justice to the thousands of people of Massachusetts who are looking forward to the enjoyment of a part of the vast preserve secured to them by the Commonwealth, that this project will assume concrete shape.

Weymouth Post held their regular meeting on Monday evening with a record attendance. Paul Harrington, a patient at the Norfolk county hospital, was accepted as a member of the Post.

The committee on the Armistice ball reported that they had secured the famous Leo F. Riesman's Hotel Brunswick orchestra to furnish the music for the dancing. This team of musicians are well known to everybody. The radio fans are loud in their praise of this aggregation as are the bon vivants who attend the dinner dances at the Hotel Brunswick. This orchestra differs from others in that they dispense jazz and at the same time produce real melody. On the evenings of Dec. 3 and 4 in the Bates Opera House the Post will hold their Thousand Dollar bazaar. The Stetson Shoe Co. of South

Weymouth has donated to Weymouth Post the sum of $1000 provided that the Post raise a-like amount prior to

Now in order to make one thousand dollars the Post will have to put on some show.

That is just what the committee intends to do. No expense will be spared to make this the greatest show ever seen in this section. They will try to eclipse the splendor of the Legion field days. This is some job but watch them do it!

After the meeting the refreshment committee did their bit toward keeping the inner man in good humor.

Little Matter That the Lawvers Overlooked

Judge Smith sat on the Circuit bench in Missouri many years ago. He was known far and wide as one of the most patient and long-suffering judges in the state. Procedure in his court was free and easy, and gross indeed was the offense if it called forth a rebuke from Judge Smith.

On one case it is told that the opposing lawyers settled down to their arguments before the jury without any time limitations and with a bountiful supply of chewing tobacco. While one argued the other chewed, and while the second one talked the first caught up with his chewing. The two lawyers talked from eight o'clock one morning until after six o'clock that afternoon. The jury listened patiently and the judge alternately slept and read. At last, however, the lawyers announced that they were through with their pleadings.

"And now, gentlemen of the jury." Judge Smith began, "these two gentlemen have spoken long and eloquently on the law in this case. However, you are not to take into consideration one way or the other any of their arguments on this point of law. The last legislature repealed the law, anyway!" -Kansas City Star.

Hair-Net Industry in China Is Extensive

The hair-net business in China has had quite a history. It was established originally by Germans, who imported the nets from Chefoo Into Germany and then exported them to the United States as European-made hair nets. There is still considerable export of human-hair nets from China to European countries.

When direct trade in human-hair nets was taken up with China, large quantities of imperfect, under-sized, and generally poor nets were exported. This finally resulted in the establishment in Chefoo and Tsinan, by the foreign and a few larger Chinese exporters, of hair-net inspection factories, some employing as many as 1,000 operatives, where hair-net cargoes are inspected and, if necessary, the nets repaired before being shipped. The net-making itself is a home or "cottage" industry; the hair is distributed around in the various villages-in the hinterland of Chefoo and in the region of the Shantung railway-and the nets usually pass through the hands of several Chinese middlemen before they are offered by the Chinese dealers to exporters.

Most Dangerous Big Game

As fierce as the tiger and more ferocious than the lion, the African elephant is known by many big-game hunters as the most dangerous of wild sands of years and delights crowds at circuses throughout the countries where carnivals are popular, there is not a single recorded instance of the African elephant being tamed. A go several years ago in the hope of teaching them to work, but the attempt failed. The African elephant sometimes bulks thrice as big as most Asiatic specimens seen at a circus, according to hunters. Their intelligence possess a keen sense of smell, being able to detect the presence of a man at least 1,000 vards away. At the crash of a gun. they stampede, fading almost noiselessly, in spite of their huge bulk, into the jungle grasses .-Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Jewish Sanhedrim

The Sanhedrim was the supreme na tional council of the Jews, traditionally supposed to have been instituted by Moses, but more probably founded by Ezra, after the return from the captivity (536 B. C.). It is first mentioned by Josephus, in connection with the reign of John Hyrcanus II (76-38 B. C.). The Sanhedrim was com posed of 70 or, as some say, 71 members; was presided over by the high priest; and exercised administrative residence and judicial functions. After the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A. D., this council led a migratory existence, and finally established itself at Babylon. It became wholly extinct in the year 425 A. D.-Kansas City Star.

Executed the Informers

Highwaymen and their depredations were the cause of much trouble and anxiety during the early part of the last century in the region of northern Mississippi. A reward of $500 for the capture of their leader was offered. Two of the band turned traitors and slew their chief to obtain the money. They concluded to take the robber's head, for identification, to the town of Natchez. The authorities paid over the reward, and then arrested, tried and executed the bandits. As no heirs appeared to claim their estate-consisting of the aforesaid $500-the money duly reverted to the treasury of the commonwealth.

The Biters Bitten

A couple of city motorists, riding near a farm orchard, stopped the car, got out, climbed the wall and gathered half a peck of rosy apples. To complete the "joke" they slowed down as they went by the farmhouse and called out to the proprietor: "We helped ourselves to your apples, old man. Thought we'd tell

"Oh, that's all right," the farmer called back, "I helped myself to your tools while you were in the orchard." -Boston Transcript.

CARELESSNESS AT GRADE CROSSINGS

Many Motorists Approach Track at Reckless Speed Without Looking.

By ERWIN GREER, President Greet College of Automotive Engineering. Chicago.)

"Cheerful Thought for Today": A safety-first bulletin informs us that eight thousand motorists will be killed during 1924 by steam and electric trains, not to mention some five thousand more to be struck down on the highways.

Investigation shows that one motorist out of every three is careless at grade crossings; approaching the tracks at a reckless speed and without taking due notice of oncoming trains. On one railroad alone during the past three years, 1,909 motor cars and trucks were wrecked at grade crossings. In 490 cases, or more than 20 per cent, the motorists deliberately ran into trains. In 122 instances motor cars plunged through the crossing gates. Nine crossing flagmen were struck down.

Wrecked by Trains. In 970 cases in which motor cars were wrecked by trains 136 persons were killed and 405 were injured. In 490 cases automobiles stalled on grade crossings were demolished. Fortythree cars actually collided with the danger signals.

Nothing-no psychological test of character analysis-reveals one's true inwardness more quickly and with greater certainty than the motor car.

Few Survive Trial. What a difference It makes: And how few survive the trial which proclaims gentlemen or roaming inconsiderates who, enthroned behind the steering wheel and feeling an eager engine beneath their feet become inebriated with speed, poisoned with the mania of haste, stripped of the thin veneer of everyday courtesy and civilized conduct.

Nothing will make the automoron a more sincere convert to the Golden Rule than the exhibition of uniform courtesy on the part of his brother motorist. This more than anything else will reduce automobile slaughter to a minimum.

Let's try it, anyhow. It costs noth-

Why a Wheel Sometimes Is Mysteriously Locked

The owner who is not vigilant and neglects the parts he does not see or which do not give trouble usually finds some time that upon starting one of the wheels becomes locked even though the brake pedal and lever are free: This is due to the fact that there is so much play in the brake linkage that when the hand brake lever is released it merely takes up the play, leaving the unlubricated mechanism set in holding position. This happened recently and a hammer had to be used to loosen the brake mechanism.

Weight of a Bump

Every moving and vital part of a car receives the impact of a blow of from nine to ten tons force every time the car hits a stone or bad bump when traveling at the rate of 25 miles an hour. This force increases with the speed of the car. If you want your car to last longer, avoid the

Motortrucks Bring Bulk of Cities' Milk Supply

The motortruck is now the most important agency for transporting milk from producer to city distributor, according to the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. The bureau has recently completed a survey of milk transportation for eight large cities and has found that the motortruck, which first entered the field in 1913, when most of the milk was transported by rail and the remaining portion by wagon, is now the major factor in the field.

Of the total amount of milk delivered to the cities investigated the amounts delivered by motortruck were as follows: Baltimore, 45 per cent; Philadelphia, 20 per cent; Cincinnati. ing a steel rack in front of the radi- 97 per cent; Detroit, 88 per cent; Mil-Minneapolis, 94 per cent.

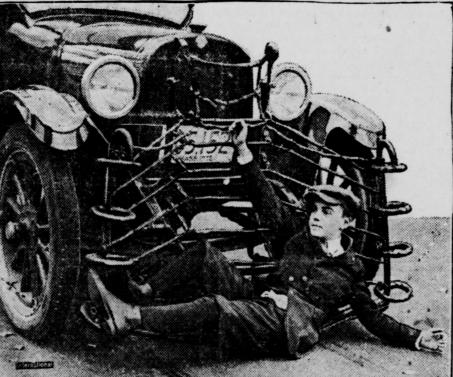

This form of transportation has than a normal load. The rack is made been of great benefit in developing new milk-producing territory for growing cities and has given the farmers headlights interfere with the rack, a more satisfactory means of delivering their product. The milk moves directly from the farmer's gate to the city's bottling plant instead of being delivered to the steam or electric railroad station, hauled by rail, and then delivered from the city terminal.

In the Baltimore area a farmers' co-operative trucking association has been organized with a city warehouse, where the milk trucks call for a return load of farmers' supplies.

Declutching on Corners Is Beneficial to Tires

While it is a wise precaution to throw out the clutch when rounding a sharp corner, it also has a beneficial effect upon the tires. Whenever the car tends to skid, due to its deflection from a straight course, a cross strain is brought to bear on the tire treads, which is directly proportional to the weight of the vehicle and the radius of the curve and proportional to the square of its velocity. If the power is applied in rounding a curve the tendency to rip off the tires is further aggravated by the backward drag due to traction. If the clutch is released, however, that factor is eliminated and the strain is thereby reduced.

NEW LIFE-SAVING AUTOMOBILE DEVICE

new life saving device that may be easily attached to the front of an automobile, is the invention of two Bostonians. Messrs. Whittaker and Assner. The device is a safety fender, which may be lifted when the car is to be cranked. This device prevents persons, hit by the car, from falling under the wheels, as it is so designed as to pick the person up as he fulls.

"Jokes" in Wills

The gayety of the French often runs into practical jokes; many of these have found their way into wills. A practical joker who died at Reaux some three centuries ago expressed the wish that representatives of the four orders of the Mendicant monks should accompany his coffin, each carrying four targe candles-which he had provided in advance. It was done, but at the most solemn moment of the funeral service the big candles exploded, scattering fire, smoke and consternation all around. They were all fonded like trick eigars. A rich Frenchman who died at Constantinople left his fortune to a nephew and niece in France-but to be given to them only after they had ridden all the way to Constantinople on a tandem bicycle to get it. # Modern Crib Will Keep Grain Safe From Rats and Ravages of Weather

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquirie William A Radford No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Corn, no matter how good at shucking time, rapidly loses its value unless it is housed where it will be safe from rats and the ravages of weather. Those farmers who have a good, modern crib and granary have no reason not be as good in May as it was when it was stored away. It has lost none of its feeding value and the same quantity that was stored is available for sale or feeding when spring comes.

marketed. This building is set on a concrete foundation and has a concrete floor. There are no rats under the floor and if there should be the animals have no chance to get at the stored grain. The building itself is of frame construction, the sides being of crib siding, each piece of lumber set far enough apart to permit a good circulation of air to prevent heating or molding, and still close enough to another to keep out rain and snow,

The building is 26 feet wide and 50 feet long. A ten-foot driveway runs through the center and on each side are double cribs. Overhead there are four grain bins, over the driveway to fear that the corn they store will The cupola permits a power elevator with adjustable spout so that the ear corn can be spouted to either of the cribs, or the grain into the bins.

Over $12,000,000 Yearly Over $12,000,000 annually is the loss from fire throughout the United States caused by defective and improperly constructed chimneys, according to the national board of fire underwriters.

Building a chimney in the proper way seems a simple matter, but this stupendous sum is the loss every year due to ignorance or willful neglect of men in the building industry who do work on chimneys. The principal object in building a chimney is to prevent the flames and sparks from entering other parts of the structure from the chimney.

Too many Americans evidently endeavor to save the cost of flue lining. metal lath and other fire-preventing materials in chimney construction, and frequently the building burns down in consequence. When buildneys are properly constructed.

Under able and business-like officials your money is wisely expended and the greatest possible value obtained from it.

In preparation for the drive the executive committee and drive chairmen met at the parsonage of the Congregational church on Monday night. Chairman Handanian presided and in turn introduced Myra Mitchell, who is the local representits results in Weymouth.

in Boston, who gave a very instructive and helpful address on the work of the Red Cross.

It is regretted that space and time do not permit an exact quotation of what Mrs. McMahon said. She spoke of the recent Red Cross activities at Lorain, Ohio; Japanese relief, and European assistance-how helpful the Junior Red Cross was becoming and how the Red Cross had successfully turned from a wartime organization to one of peace times and whose splendid work is recognized the world over. She said that one little realized how much good the dollar you subscribe annually did. The relief work is carefully supervised to the best interests for those who gave as well as those who re ceive.

MRS. CORA CHAMBERLAIN CARD OF THANKS

It would be ungrateful of me if I did not show heartfelt appreciation of the remarkable vote given me all over Norfolk county on Tuesday for reelection as County Commissioner. The large votes given me in the past for Selectman of the good old town of Weymouth were a good endorsement which seems to have satisfied voters all over the county. As in the past my watchword will be "Service." E. W. HUNT

Friendship is the wine of life .-

American Red Cross Worthy of Support

When the war came to us, many of us had our first intimate acquaintance with the Red Cross; this was not the beginning, however; the idea first came to Henri Dunant at the battle of Soferino when he saw men being stabbed that their period of suffering from their injuries might be shortened. This method was followed by the merciful acts of Florence Nightingale; she however, not only healed the sick, but built for health work of the future. So the Red Cross since that time has always wished in its relief work to build for the future.

At the begining of the World War the American National Red Cross 10 Nov. 1483-Martin Luther born organization, but grew by leaps and bounds during the war period through a vast wave of altruism and desire carried on since November, 1918, the spirit of service which not only meets the emergency but provides for the other organization in the country; it is an arm of the government. The president is the President of the U. # Do You Pay Your Bills!

You're to Blame

When you ask for credit at a store and are informed that you can't have it-Don't blame the merchant. There is no one to blame but yourself.

You make your own credit, and whether it is good or bad, it stands as a monument to your efforts. Remember your credit is based upon how you pay your bills. If you pay them promptly you deserve credit, and you get it. If you don't pay them, you don't deserve credit, and you don't get it- but whether you get credit or not depends absolutely upon you and you alone.

Slow Payers Halted DON'T deceive yourself. Do not think you can neglect paying one merchant and get what you need or credit from another. Don't think you can exhaust your credit with one set of merchants and then start in on another. This is an era of "pay as you go." Every merchant in town, through the Merchants' Credit Association can learn how you pay your bills. In unity there is strength; and the merchants have united in a Merchants' Credit Association. Pay Your Bills Promptly as You Agree and Keep Your Credit Good.

And Fireside Stories

H. B. Reed (Continued from last week) Editor Gazette-Transcript:

After the war and the tendancy was toward the big factory, the Yankees would hesitate to leave the little snop that his father and grandfather had worked in before him, but the Irish were not bound by these ties, and they were ready if there was a show to better themselves. One Yankee said he couldn't hire out to a certain shop as it was too far to walk and too near to ride.

The factory life was different; it meant a cold dinner and a certain regularity in habit which many rebelled against, and especially when machinery came in the young Irishman was ready to try it.

John O'Ragan was my father's Irishman. His son Henry was very ill with diphtheria and John said to me, as he curried off the horse, "If Dr. Tower cures Henry his fame will go over the world." Henry came through and worked for me lasting and I saw him in California in 1884, but Dr. Tower told me years after that the bill wasn't paid. Well, that's nothing! I could tell of a plenty now of that sort—not all Irish. Edward Nelligan was another of father's men. Father and Ed were standing in the stable door one day when a horse was driven rapidly by in the street. Ed gave a look and said, "Deacon, you wouldn't think to look at that horse that he was going very fast, but come to think of it you can see that he is."

Many good stories are told of Officer Allen. One time he caught some boy in Joe Dyer's grocery cellar. "How many of you is there?" called Mike. "Five," replied the boys. "Well, come up in pairs." I raised a tent on my grounds one summer and Mike said he would come through on his way to the midnight train and see that everything was all right, for the boys who slept there thought they might be disturbed, as the place was a thoroughfare. "How shall we know it's you?" "Well, I'll tell you, if it's me I'll whistle and if it aint, won't," replied Mike. Taking Michael Lynch to Quincy court, Mr. Lynch's name was called and no response from Lynch. Again it was called and no response. This was more than Mike could stand. "Call him 'Dukey,'" he sung out, and Mr. L. came forward.

John Reidy had a blacksmith shop opposite my father's and we children would stop in on our way to school. Mr. Reidy would heat the iron to white heat and strike on the anvil throwing sparks all over us. school, to school, every damn one o' ye," he'd sing out and drive us out of the shop. His own boys, Philip, John, Mike, Jake and Dan, all were good at school.

Tommy Nolan had two thumbs on one hand, so when the teacher opened up Colburn's arithmetic and asked "How many thumbs have you on your right hand?" she got a great surprise and a good joke.

Mr. Bolster claimed that Tom Garven was a typical sor of old Ireland and he ought to know for he travelled in those parts. But Tom had one failing which was common in those days. One morning he was sitting on Gordon Willis' store steps when a friend came along and inquired if he would like a drink. That formality being attended to around the corner Tom resumed his place in the sun, fell asleep and rolled over on to the concrete. The cry was raised, "Tom has had a shock." So he was bundled into the delivery wagon, hurried home and put to bed, the doctor and priest being sent for. In due time Tom came to and looking around "Where in hell am 1?" What's all this touse about?."

When the Fogg building was dedicated John Maguire, Mr. Fogg's Irishman for many years, was ushered to the front seat, but being hurried the usher didn't pull down the nob, and as John had never seen that kind of a chair he didn't, either, but sat down on the slat. After the a genius in her way and always betwo hours were over John looked about the place and soliloquized thus, "Well, Mr. Fogg have a fine hall, but I should have thought he'd made the seats more comfortable."

Speaking of Mr. Fogg reminds me that Capt. Andrew Vining had just revisited his old home, coming from San Francisco, where he had been in the post-office since the Civil War. He told this one on Mr. Fogg: "John Fogg worked for my father crimping boots in a little shack on Boxberry street. One day he asked my father if he would let him have leather enough to make a case of boots, as he had a notion of going to manufacturing. He hung up brown paper curtains on the crimp shop windows Sunday and between services he did all the work except hammering, crimping week days to pay for his living. When the case was done he borrowed an old nag, drove to Boston, sold it, and bought leather for another case. "Mr. Fogg kept a little grocery store in connection with his shoe business. One day I started the molasses to running and your uncle caught me at it and sent me home to my father, who gave me a thrashing and took me back to Mr. Fogg and asked him to give me another. 'No,' said Mr. Fogg, 'I think the boy has had enough and I am sure he won't steal again.' This confidence my father did me more good than my father to better understand a name spread all over the world.

boy's nature." Years ago I visited the Pease farm about two miles from the village of Meredith, N. H., where on a shed door was carved with a jack knife a figure of a horse with long tail.

This was made by Mr. Fogg when he was an orphan boy and worked out for Mr. Pease. This drawing resembled a horse named "Prince" which Uncle John owned in South

Peases said that the boy, John, when given permission to go to the village would run all the way down and back, so as to have all the time he could get to spend at the village. Do we wonder that he liked to live on Fogg's Corner where he could see everything going on to make up for time lost on

My uncle told me that he stood on the "loafers' row" in Boston till he got down to his last 50 cents, when Martin S. Stetson of East Abington hired him to go to work for him in the shoe factory. "Mr. Stetson was a very proud man and made me ride in the back of the wagon all the way out, hanging my feet over the tailboard of the express wagon which was filled with leather."

Mr. Fogg got acquainted with Lydia Bailey, a daughter of Gad Bailey, who was a flourishing grower at Hanover, and married her. As Mrs. Fogg said years afterward, "When I married Mr. Fogg everybody said they didn't see what I could see in him, and afterward they all wondered what he could see in me." But Mrs. Fogg was quite moaned the lack of school facilities in her youth. "How I should like to study astronomy," she once said, and find out the position of all the stars in the firmament!" A neighbor calling, asked her what she was sewing and got this answer, "I am sewing Jennie's utensils on all her clothes as she is going to Ipswich cemetery to school." His dog "Spot" was so glad to see her come into the yard that he "jumped all over me and then took a bee line right around the house." But the greatest slip she ever made with the king's English was that winter she slipped on the ice and "fell down prostitute."

Exiled Acadians in Quaker City in 1775

Longfellow's monument in the Acadian country is a reminder that the Acadians of "Evangeline" as a matter ef historic fact came to Philadelphia in three sloops in the fall of 1755.

There were 454 of these unfortunates, of whom Longfellow's hero and heroine were typical.

Anthony Benezet, whose name is perpetuated in a Germantown street, obtained funds for them from the assembly. Samuel Emlen of the wellknown Quaker family gave land for the houses which they put up with the money collected by Benezet. The little huts were erected on the north side of Pine street between Fifth and Sixth.

Here they made wooden shoes, and "linsey" cloth from rags which they solicited.

Christ church and "Old Swedes'," of course, figure in the poem; the Friends' almshouse at Walnut place has been razed. The traditional resting place of the two lovers, St. Joseph's church, is the oldest Catholic church in the country. Reached through an archway off Willing's alley between Third and Fourth streets south of Walnut, it is like the little hidden churches of London, and thousands of persons well acquainted with such historic shrines as Carpenter's hall hardly know of the existence of Greaton's one-story "masshouse" put up in the year that Washington was born.-Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Birds That Keep Up With the Procession

Many species of birds have shown that they are possessed of a progressive spirit that has prompted them to take advantage of improved conditions offered by the advance of civilization. Thus, says an exchange, the chimney swift, which before houses with chimneys were built, lived and built its nests in hollow trees, now usually finds chimneys more satisfactory and infinitely safer.

The barn swallow, which formerly built its nest on a ledge on the side of some cliff or cave, a situation still sometimes utilized in the wilder parts of the country, now generally makes use of the rafters of barns as offering better protection both from the elements and his enemies.

The natural nesting place of the phoebe is a narrow ledge on the face of some cliff, but the greater majority now find that bridges, outhouses and other man-made structures offer more advantageous situations, and a pair is rarely found occupying the former site. The martins and wrens, which y, now prefer the bird boxes built by find one before it is pre-empted by the

Wouldn't Stand for That She was a plump widow, with two charming daughters, and was beginning to wear her "weeds" lightly. All the same, when the minister called she said: "Ah! I feel the loss of my poor, dear husband very much. I never have any appetite for anything now."

The parson was all sympathy, and, in the attempt to cheer her by pointing out what a comfort to her her daughters must be, replied: "I can quite understand that but you are solaced in-" "S-I-r-r-r!" interrupted the indignant woman, "allow me to inform you that I am not faced in at all."

Ancient Wine Press

From the scanty notices contained in the Bible, it appears that the wine presses of the ancient Hebrews consisted of two receptacles at different elevations, in the upper of which the grapes were trodden, while the lower one received the expressed juice. The two vats are mentioned together only in Joel 3:13-"The press is full, the vats overflow"-the upper vat being full of grapes, the lower one overflowing with the juice that had been pressed out and had come down from the upper vat. The two vats were usually bewn out of the solid rock. Ancient wine presses so constructed are still to be seen in Palestine.

A Simple Matter

They were sitting on the piazza of summer hotel swapping stories. "Ever hear this one?" asked the dark young man. "A dog was tied to a rope fourteen feet long. Twenty feet away was a fat, juicy bone. How did the dog get to the bone?"

"Oh, that's an old gag," said his companion. "You want me to say, 'I give it up,' and then you'd say, 'That's what the other cur did." "No, you're wrong, for the dog got

"Well, how did he get it?" "Why, the other end of the rope was not tied."

the bone.'

Mending Glassware There are several good preparations for mending broken tumblers and other glassware, but the following is highly recommended by a housewife, who claims the mended article can be put into boiling water without breaking apart: To make the preparation add one part solution of bichromate of potash to five parts of gelatin. Cover the broken edges of the glass with this, press them together and stand the mended article in the direct sunlight | right place." for a few hours. If neatly done the break will not be visible.

Right Man in Right Place

By MARTHA WILLIAMS

(Copyright.) "SUPPOSE you had three wishes, what would you ask for first?" David Allen asked, not quite steadily, with a quickly averted glance at Elinor Ware.

"O! I don't know-let me see! Yes -I do know-wings-and freedom-

Elinor began. David laughed softly: "That's twoin-one, right out the box," he interrupted: "With just one more, you'd never be able to choose what it was."

"Hm! I do hate wet blankets!"

Elinor ejaculated with a mutinous grimace. David took her hand. "Wish you'd let me choose for you," he said thickly: "No need to tell you what my choice would be-" "Really! I'm no clairvoyant, Elinor said, snatching away her hand. "Better tell me straight out what you'd pick for me-that will show if you understand me the least bit."

"Here goes. A husband-six feet tall-and named D-David," the suitor cried desperately. In reward be got Elinor's best baby-stare, and:

"But where'd I find him? You're the only David I know-and unless the church built on the site of Father | you marry Nancy Tilly, your mother and the aunts will have cat-fits."

> "I'll take care they don't-if that's all there is to hinder." David said stoutly, again possessing himself of her hand. "You won't-not by several long chalks!" Elinor frung at him. "They set up an Allen as too good for a Ware. Tell 'em from me straight out, It's the other way round." "Honey-no matter what the name is, nobody in the world isn't quite good enough for you," David answered humbly. "But there may be-yes, there are-fellows who deserve you less than I do. If ever one such took you away from me-well, I'd have to kill him-that's flat." A prophetic speech, maybe-for inside a month the unexpected happened -in the concrete form of Joe Lachlin, nephew and next heir to the richest citizen of Broome county. A personable young fellow, good to look at, open handed, open hearted, but not quite at his ease. He came, saw, was conquered by Elinor-which was quite the usual thing. The unusual thing was she fell for him, nearly as hard. They had a whirlwind courtship-inside six weeks the wedding was imminent, froeks all made, cakes baked ready for the icing-and Madame Allen and her sisters the Miss Grimballs, easy in once nested in hollow trees exclusive their minds as to David-for the first kindly human beings when they can of joy in his deliverance they were a little sorry for him. He surely did take it hard-this losing of Elinor. Yet that did not make him unjust to his victorious rival-he went so far as to say to Elinor: 'It's mighty poor comfort-but all I've got-that it took a better man to beat me." Which hurt her much worse than any scorn or railing could have done-indeed when David was out of hearing, she sobbed as though her heart would break.

Time ambiing withal brought the day before the wedding. In the dawn of it the bridegroom expectant burst in upon David, lifeless and sullen of aspect, saying dully: "David-unless you'll help me, I'm bound to kill myself. Here's the whole story. I came here, the craziest fool ever-all because of a girl. The only girl-you understand. Never can be anothernot slurring Elinor, But-we had quarreled-she sent back my ring-next thing I knew she was flashing another fellow's-and he giving me the laugh up and down the country. Goin' to marry Lucy-that was her nameright out of hand-and take her to Europe, maybe all round the world. She had money, you see—as much as I'll ever have-and he made out he didn't give a thought to anything but her. Of course he lied-he was sharper, and a thief. He got round her mother, and wheedled away all her Liberty bonds, with a tale of making 'em pay her double interest-and then he persuaded the poor lady to let him have Lucy's share too-so he could double it for his weddin' present to his bride. If only I'd stood by, that wouldn't ever happened, no matter what else did-but I acted the coward, and gave him his chance. Recken you can guess how he used it-ran away with all the money-to nobody knows where. And Lucy wrote-the letter came last night-I can't talk about it-only this-she hasn't got hardly a dollar left-and she don't want anything in the world-but sight of a big lummox-named me." David sat speltbound, staring hard through the recital. He whistled his keenest at the end, stopping suddenly to say: "I see." Joe went on miserably: "All I see is-hangin's too good for me-messin' up things this way for two of the finest girls livin'. Now-you tell me what to do. Shall

I keep on with Miss Elinor?-" "Not by a jugful." David broke in stormily. "Don't you see what an insult you'd offer her marryin' her, when you love another girl?"

"You'll do no such thing," David said sternly. "We'll go together to see Elinor-and tell her everything."

When Elinor knew everything, she laughed heartily, saying as she held out a hand to each. "This is surely providential-there'll be a wedding just the same-only David will be my bridegroom-and the right man in the

Relocation of

Ralph Talbot Square

The Selectmen at the meeting on Monday afternoon appointed Selectman Fred A. Waite, Superintendent of Streets Johnson and Town Engineer Whiting to consider the matter of the relocation of Ralph Talbot Square at South Weymouth.

Joseph F. Sullivan and Harry Mullen were appointed public weighers. Minot P. Garey was granted an auctioneer's licens-

Licenses were granted the Eastern Star for a play and dance, and to St. Francis Xavier church for an entertainment.

Applications were received from James W. Coyle, 443 Bridge street, and John H. Moran, 925 Commercial street, for gasoline stations.

It was voted to renumber Columbian street from Main to Shaw streets John Frachman was given a license for pool table in his barber shop at Lovell's Corner.

The resignation of Charles A. Shaw of 63 Tower avenue as special police officer was received and accepted. The State Department of Conservation requested the board to forbid the burning of leaves and rubbish on the streets and in yards during the dry

Weymouth's Rate

Now Among Lowest

ONLY 16 of the 101 towns and cities reporting their tax rates have a smaller rate than Weymouth, a very creditable showing for Wey-

Some rates are $40 and over, and 47 are $30 or over, but Weymouth's rate is only $25. The only town in this vicinity having a lower rate is the wealthy town of Milton, long regarded as a taxpayer's retreat.

SINGING PART OF DUTIES

By GEORGE ELMER COBB

******* (C. 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

When Rodney Phail inherited the little Westbrook factory that had been the quiet, unassuming property of his deceased uncle for two decades, he posted up his one order in plant.

It was: "Sing."

"What does he mean, anyhow?" growled well-meaning but surly Jeff Dodson, the foreman. "Is there a better system in any shop along the river? 'Swear!' would suit me better when a machine breaks down."

"Maybe his advice would be good for you, then," suggested his assistant. "It doesn't do the youngsters much good to hear you rip it off when you're riled, Jeff."

"Well, the old hands here are so settled in a rut and slow and gloomylike at times, it provokes me."

"I wouldn't say slow, Jeff," submitted the assistant. "Rather it's steady. isn't it? As to being gloomy—not at all. This is such a quiet, settled community because there's no stir or amusements in the town."

"Well, yes, we're a model, respectable crowd. I'll confess, though, this singing order puzzles me."

"The new boss says it is only a suggestion. Say, Jeff, I guess he's a sort new fads.'

"That won't do with a concern paying as this one is."

'And, besides, we're in a very comfortable nest and don't like to be disturbed, eh?" chuckled the assistant. Before another day, however, all hands in the plant understood the situation clearly. The new proprietor arrived a rather serious-faced young man, but with a kindly light in his eyes and a gentle, sympathetic voice that attracted the eighty odd employees. The first thing Rodney Phail did was to call all hands into the main rest room and make them a speech.

He told them that he felt something more than mere enrichment in being the favored owner of the businessa sense of great responsibility. The same conservative business methods would be followed. Old and deserving employees would be retained. His great wish, however, was to make of them a happy family. He intended to build a clubhonse for them. where music, lectures and entertainments could be held to break the monotony of their lives. There would be a good library and a gymnasium. These faithful workmen had borne bravely the brunt of the industrial battle. They should share in the prosperity of the business. Each year twenty-five per cent of the profits of the concern should be distributed equally among the employees. Of course there was rare appreciation evinced at the mention of this liberal donation. Then Mr. Phail

"I have put up a sign reading, 'Sing.' I want to explain about that. For ten years my life has been spent on a lonely ranch, taking care as custodian of a piece of property in littgation belonging to my uncle. The solitude, the evening weariness after an uneventful day, the uneventful existence fast made of me an unsociable hermit. There was no sweetness in my life. Then, one day, a wonderful bird took up its home first above my cabin door. It sang from morning until night. It fitted the air with rare, beautiful music, and my soul with delight. When it flew away to sunnier climes with the approach of winter I missed it greatly. Then a new idea came to met I would sing myself. My friends, you do not know how his companionship of music cheered and refined me.

the subject "the new boss" briefly descanted. He showed them how, especially in the work rooms where the assembling of the plant was done at long tables, the hours could be enlivened by music, the vocal organs exercised and rhythm, poetry and good cheer engendered.

That was all-no new rules, no criticism of the old ones, no wages cut, no privileges curtailed. Just to keep on in harmony with the work life, and everybody lifted a notch higher through the esthetic features about to be introduced in the town.

The plan worked. So far as giving rise to rare and hearty companionship was concerned, it proved a wender. It got to be so that Foreman Dodson would sing out an order in deep, tragic bass. An apprentice would reply in rag-time staccato Among the girls a regular program of songs became the rule. Many a time, with a pleased smile on his honest earnest face, Rodney would linger at taking a spin with his wife. After the doorway outside a girl's work awhile he coughed deprecatingly. room, enchanted by the delivery of "My dear," he said, with a note of some sweet song attempted by some apology in his voice, "I'm sorry, but silver-tened novice who had never er I'm really afraid I've forgotten known before that she had a beautiff what one does to bring this machine to

There was so much promise to the plant, the girls especially so eager's remained to the music suggestion. "Now never mind dear," consoled that Rodney decided to go a stee but but hubband. "We'll just step at the

One especially neat, terse and comprehensive reply from a Miss Mabel Durant pleased him. A week later the young lady in question arrived upon the scene with her aged mother. Rodney had a neatly furnished cottage near the works all ready for them. For the first time in his life a woman's face attracted him in a new way. Within a week he was ardent in his approbation of the system pursued by the quiet, refined young lady, who entered with zest into taking charge of the girl work-

Rodney left all the details of management and training to Miss Durant. He heard great reports of her success and did not wonder when he met her daily that she had wound herself all of the four working rooms of the around the hearts of the girls. Then one day his whole being thrilled as he paused in his work to listen to a touching ballad she was singing in the work room. It was in the rear work room on the fourth floor of the plant, but every note was borne to his wistful hearing strong and clear.

Suddenly a jarring crash shut out the mellow harmony that so charmed him. He turned to view a great upheaval of an isolated stone building where explosive varnishes were stored. There was a blast of flame. The main building had caught. In an instant dense clouds of smoke rolled upwards.

The direful shout, echoed and repeated, rent the air. There was a rush from the building. A chill struck the heart of the anxious Rodney as he thought of the girls on the fourth

"Those narrow stairs!" he gasped, and then, thirty voices strong, there came to his ears the steady, rising notes of a song accompanying the of an odd genius and likely to work in footsteps, as clearly timed as though a company of trained soldiers was on the march.

> And so, in splendid order, the last one of the girls got safely out of the building. The structure was destroyed, but soon to be rebuilt.

But not until Rodney Phail had won a loving bride who had sung her gentle way into his heart of hearts.

Pleasure to Be Found in Writings of Bryant

Bryant belongs to classicism in the best sense of the word. His poems are not paintings-they are statues. purely classical qualities of reserve, his work, that is lacking often in more brilliant writers. His poetry is clear and cold like a mountain lake, and seems to come from an inexhaustible source. There are times when we find him colorless, for he will never satisfy the love of excitement. But in certain moods, when we are weary of doubt and struggle, weary of passion and despair, weary also of cant. affectation, and, the straining for paradox-then there is a pleasure in his pathless woods. His calm, cool, silent forests are a refreshing shelter. Some of us, like Hamlet, are too much in the sun; Bryant is a shadowed retreat.-William Lyon Phelps, in "Howell, James, Bryant and Other Essays."

Records Proved Case Records of the weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture are frequently required to settle court cases. An unusual instance of this kind occurred when a motorcyclist came into collision with a work team and farm wagon in broad daylight on an unpaved roadway. He narrowly escaped death and was in the state mental hospital for some sulting from the accident. But he subsequently entered the courts armed with weather records to prove that heavy rains prior to the collision had muddied the road, which became deeply rufted, preventing his turning aside for the team. Being in the right-hand path, it was decided that he had a legal right to expect the teamster to This was the text, and further upon yield. The teamster's memory was that the road was smooth.

Cyclones Unduly Blamed

Cyclones are blamed far too much for the damage that is done by tornadoes, according to P. H. Smyth, meteorologist at Montgomery, Ala. A tornado is a funnel-shaped twister while a cyclone is a severe but general storm that does not do the same kind of damage as a twister and seldom actually causes loss of life and widespread damage as is the case with the tornado. Tornadoes are hern above the clouds. Their estimated speed is 400 miles an hour. They are caused by an unusually warm stratum of air colliding with a cold one and causing an overturning of the currents into a rotary motion.

Crossing the Ocean in Colonial Times

A journal written by a tourist who crossed the Atlantic to New York before the year 1700 has recently been discovered. It gives a vivid picture of early shipboard accommodation. The passenger was traveling for pleasure, not emigrating. He was accustomed to the best treatment the traveler of that period could procure.

His journal records that the diminutive sailing vessel set out on its long voyage from Holland bound for New Amsterdam. He begins early in the voyage to complain of the cabin. There was no palatial lounge and writing room in those days. Although he was a first-class passenger, he could not enjoy the luxury of a private stateroom, but shared the little cabin with men, women and children. He notes that the deck above his head was so low that though seated on his trunk writing his journal, he could not sit erect. The space between decks was little more than three feet. He complains of the rough weather and of the fact that most of the cabin passengers were seasick. There is, besides, frequent comment upon the quality of the drinking water, which dld not improve in the two months required for the crossing. The bathing facilities were primitive, consisting of a few buckets of salt water enjoyed in a more or less secluded corner of the deck.

The traveler girds at the customs regulations. It is recorded that the sea chests and rolls of clothing were turned inside out with no consideration for the feelings of the owners. The writer noticed that the passengers who enjoyed political positions were not molested.

"Cheshire Cat" Grin Variously Explained

The expression, "to grin like a Cheshire cat," has never been satisfactorily accounted for. It was popularized by Lewis Carroll in his "Adventures of Alice in Wonderland." In this pretty story the Cheshire cat is a grinning cat which makes its appearance to give Alice advice. The first time the cat suddenly disappears. But after considerable persuasion by Alice the cat returns and then disappears gradually and almost imperceptibly. The last thing to vanish was the grin, says the Detroit News.

This idea, it is said, is so funny to the cats in that region that they are perpetually amused at it. A person who shows his teeth when he laughs is said "to grin like a Cheshire cat." The expression is especially applied to a forced or sneering smile.

"Healing" Powers of Flowers Some quaint superstitions still linger around many of the common flowers in rural parts of England.

Groundsel is said to be a certain cure for toothache, but the root must be dug up with an implement having is then touched five times with the fice? root.

The juice of the red flower of valerian is a cure for splinters in the flesh, while fennel flowers will heal broken bones, or, if they need to be glued together, the roots of Solomon'sseal, ground up and drunk in ale, will do the trick.

A farmer of this order had met a few of his acquaintances on the market day, and, as usual, soon monopolized the whole of the conversation, talking about his steam thresher, his reaping machine, his barns, his this and his that, until they were all heartily tired of listening to him. He was the first to go, however.

"Little Devil's Hill," which is to be found in Clay county, South Dakota. is a strange looking flat topped hill in the midst of level prairie. It is 30 yards long, 60 or 70 yards wide, and about 70 feet high. The top is a smooth level plain. The Indians made this hill a great article of their superstition. They called it the Mountain of Little People, or Little Spirits, They believed it was the abode of little devils in human form, about 18 inches high, with remarkably large heads, and armed with sharp arrows, with which they were very skilful. They were always on the watch to kill those who approached their residence. The tradition was that many had suffered from these little evil

Reisman's Orchestra For Legion Dance

Leo Reisman, whose orchestra is billed to furnish the music at the American Legion dance on November 10 at Fogg's Opera House, has achieved wide renown as the foremost exponent of the artistic form of modern dance music. His fostering of what he terms the "romantic fox trot" has gained him definite recognition among the cultural elements of New England and New York, this being conclusively attested by his ever increasing popularity at the Brunswick Hotel, Boston, and the success he scored at the Ritz Carlton, New Chief among his theatrical engagements as featured star was Reisman's sensational run in Charles Dillingham's musical comedy production, "Good Morning Dearie" on Broadway. Leo Reisman's orchestras, because of their director's striving toward the perfection of America's new musical form, have established themselves as favorite attractions at Greater Boston society functions.

Mr. Reisman has definite artistic standards of his own, and his entire career as a dance orchestra conductor has found him consistently adhering to these standards. He has eliminated from his orchestras the screech, the clatter and the banging of the average dance orchestra and instead has infused his jazz music with a soft, soothing, rhythmic charm, while stressing the beauty of the particular melody above all other things.

Weymouth Boy Hikes To See the Country

John Canterbury, a former Weymouth boy, recently arrived in Jacksonville, Florida, after a hike of ten days from New York. He made exceptionally good time despite the fact that he lost two days in the hospital at Griffin, Ga., due to an auto accident in which he barely escaped with his life. John lost none of his enthusiasm because of this setback, however, and continued courageously on his way.

John, the nephew of Miss A. M Canterbury of 38 Hillcrest road, East Weymouth, is well known in local circles having lived most of his life here. Since leaving the home town he has met with a number of varied experiences. He formerly attended a leading prep school in upper New York state where he was prominent in athletics, playing on the baseball and basketball teams.

His travels are by no means at an end. He intends to see the entire country before returning to his home in the East. John travels in a rather novel way. He works for his meals and maintenance as he tours the country and says it is the greatest experience he has ever had. He accepts lifts, which accounts for his remarkable time. Despite his journey around the country John is strong for Weymouth and believes there is no better town in the U.S.A. Here's luck to John and we hope he gets in no more automobile accidents.

MARKET REPORT

As a guide to the busy housekeeper the Gazette-Transcript will publish the prices in the Boston market as of Tuesday of the week the Gazette-Transcript is printed:

The observance of National Apple Week is now a well established yearly custom where growers and dealers cooperate in promoting a better demand for fruit while it is pentiful and generally low priced. Many of the leading stores are featuring apples at this time.

Now is the time to buy at the fruit counter. New England app'es for cooking, Baldwin drops, Tolman sweets, Greenings, Pippins, Russets, Wolf Rivers and Winter Baranas; for dessert McIntosh reds; P'ppins, Baldwins, and the Roxbury Russet are also excellent for dessert. A freight train 23 miles long is needed to bring in Boston's annual apple supply. Massachusetts spends yearly a million dollars on apples grown outside the state. Buy New England What to buy at the vegetable counter: Cabbage, squash, pumpkins, cauliflower, spinach, celery and sprouts. What to buy at the meat counter; Fresh killed ducks, beef rib roast, leg of lamb, corned beef brisket, center

What to buy at the fish counter: Haddock fillets, smoked fillet, fresh pickerel, smelts, mackerel and cod steak.

Now is the time to buy apple cider 50-55c. gallon. Vermont honey comb 33-45c. Chestnuts, 20-25c. lb.

Hamburg and Cabbage-1 lb. steak; 1 chopped onion; salt and pepper; 1 c. cooked rice; 1 small cabbage. Parboil eabbage. Separate and roll each leaf stuffed with above mixture. Pack close together in baking pan and bake one hour.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS

The month of October has been a very busy one for the Son-ge-ta-ha Camp Fire Girls.

At the first and second meetings there was outdoor cooking, which counts toward their firemaker's rank. After the meeting on Oct. 11, the girls held their first council fire of the sea son. It was a wonderful moonligh: night and the girls and their guard. ian in their ceremonial gowns, sitting around the fire, singing their Camp Fire songs, certainly was a beautiful sight. Mrs. Marden, the assistant guardian of the group, was initiated "wood gatherer" and she is now working to become a "fire maker" with Mrs. Bryant and the girls. After the awarding of honor beads the girls related their experiences at Camp Kiwanis. Mr. Jewell and some of the parents of the girls were guests at this meeting.

Weymouth Men Going to "Retreat"

Urged on by past successes, Messrs George A. Dunning and Thomas T. McCarthy, representing respectively the Holy Name Society and the Knights of Columbus, are promoting their third retreat within a year to he monastery at Brighton.

The Retreat opens Friday evening, Nov. 14, and ends on Monday morning, Nov. 17. The only one requirement for admission is that, he who knocks it the door of the monastery be wearied of the ways of the world, and for a day or two wishes to commune with his own soul. The monastery is truly a refuge-an inexhaustible mine of peace and calm—a place where weariness and worry are completely put aside, and a foretaste obtained of the "land of promise"-a "little bit of Heaven." To this monastery every Friday evening go many men of many creeds and on Monday morning they are back again at their various duties in industry, refreshed and happy. The most remarkable effect of the monastery experience is the intense enthusiasm felt by all retreatants.

The retreat group is limited to 33 men and reservations must be made early.

Wild Goose Supper of C. M. A. Men's Club

The C. M. A. Men's Club opened Fern, E. A. Whitmore, Gray Stevens, of Credit Men. the season Wednesday with a record C. A. Rogers breaking "first night" as will be seen by the large list of names below.

The "Wild Goose Dinner" is always popular, and the club was successful in getting 32 young geese and several ducks at their Slate island stand before the gunning law went into effect. The menu also included large baked potatoes and gravy, mashed squash, cold slaw, celery, apple sauce, ice cream and coffee. Members of the club carved the birds on the table and young men served as waiters.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. Eldon R. James, professor of law at Harvard, who for six years was advisor of the Rama VI, king of Siam, He gave an illustrated talk on that country, first showing a map. While other countries about have been absorbed by large powers, Siam has been successfully governed and continues independent, probably the only absolute monarchy in the world. The speaker said Rama VII was truly a

The recommendations of the speaker were made according to the following

First-A new building of the size od it has offered the comforts and the of the present one to be built of seam faced granite

Second-A building, if erected on the present site, set out in a position away from the tracks in such a way as to avoid the freight tracks which now cross directly in front of the station facing the street

Third-A sidewalk in front of the station protected by a canopy Fourth-A circular driveway in front of the station surrounding a cound grass plot Fifth-A building which would offer accommodations for the offices of the American Railway Express Co. along with the offices of the Railroad Company.

As the Gazette-Transcript goes to press there are indications that the movement for a new depot may be successful. Last week, work was started to repair the old depot, but the action of the Men's Club, and the letter from the Gazette-Transcript caused orders to be issued to stop the repair work. The fow figure quoted for Weymouth seam-faced granite has caused the railroad parts exceptionally well. TOWN GOVERNMENT

In the 80s, when there was an agitation in Quincy for a city form | The Electrical of government, similar action was suggested for Weymouth. Previous to 1880, Weymouth had a larger population than Quincy, the census of 1875 giving Weymouth 9819 and 1885 gave Quincy the necessary 12,000 entitling her to become a city, and in 1888 a city charter was adopted. Note by the figures below, how Quincy has flourished in population since adopting the city government, as compared with Weymouth.

|---|-----------|------|--------|--------|--|
|   | Census of | 1880 | 10,529 | 10,570 |  |
|   | Census of | 1885 | 12,144 | 10,740 |  |
|   | Census of | 1890 | 16,723 | 10,866 |  |
|   | Census of | 1895 | 20,712 | 11,291 |  |
|   | Census of | 1900 | 23,899 | 11,324 |  |
|   | Census of | 1905 | 28,076 | 11,585 |  |

Up to 1895, Quincy and Weymouth were in one Representative district with three men in the General Court. Some years Weymouth had two, and other years Quincy had two, an attempt being made to give each town 15 Representatives in 10 years, but politics sometimes upset this plan.

The committees representing the Republicans of Weymouth and Quincy met in 1886 and apportioned the Representative candidates for ten years as

In 1886, Weymouth 2, Quincy 1 1887 and '88 Weymouth 1 Quincy 2 1889 and '90 Weymouth 2, Quincy 1 1891 and '92 Weymouth 1, Quincy 2 1893 and '94, Weymouth 2, Quincy 1 In 1895, Weymouth 1, Quincy 2 The Democrats of the district took similar action. Now, in 1924, Quincy is in a Representative district by itself with three men in the House, while Weymouth is in a district by itself with ONLY ONE man in the House. Does Weymouth want a city government, or a town manager? Or Selectmen who will give more time to Weymouth? The Gazette-Transcript would suggest a board of THREE Selectmen who would hold sessions every morning at 9 o'clock. Men who will work for the improvement of the whole town and not for a particular ward; for a continuance of the Pilgrim Highway from Boston to the South Shore; for the building a road through the Blue Hill Reservation to connect Weymouth and South Shore with Dedham and Western Massachusetts; for a new seam face granite depot at East Weymouth now and new depots at other Weymouth stations soon; for an improvement in the auto traffic conditions; for better train service: for reduction in street railway fares or free transfers, so that two three and four fares will not be necessary to travel within the limits of the town; for better streets and sidewalks; for collection of garbage and ashes; for a new Town House, that a civic centre may be established; to promote the building of the new Laban Pratt Hospital on the best available site; for parks and supervised playgrounds, etc., etc.

Such a board of Selectmen should receive more salary than is now paid in Weymouth. Other comments on town government, and town officers will be printed next week.

Home Beautiful

A great deal of interest and enthus'asm is being shown in the model Quincy 9155. The State census of home that has been fitted up and exhibited by the Holbrook Housing Corporation at their Cedar Hills de velopment in Holbrook.

A new seven-room house of the semi-bungalow type has been very attractively and tastily furnished throughout, including all the latest labor and time-saving electrical appliances. All the furnishings and fittings seem to radiate a home atmosphere as well as being most convenient and practical for the housewife in enabling her to do her housework with the least possible expenditure of time and energy. People from the surrounding towns, as well as Holbrook and Boston people, are visiting this model home by the hundreds every day, in fact on the first after noon and evening that the house was opened to the public there were over 250 visitors, and every day sees hundreds of more visitors to inspect and admire the beautiful home and its equipment, as well as the ideal surroundings and location of the house.

Much interest is being shown in all the many labor-saving electrical appliances and especially the model "All Electric Kitchen" in which everything is done electrically, even to the washing of the dishes. The housewife who owns a kitchen like this will find that she can go out shopping or to a mah jong party in the afternoon and come home to find supper all cooked and ready to serve piping hot right out of the automatic electric range. In the back entry there is a beautiful white enamel refrigerator equipped with Kelvinator electric refrigeration. This eliminates the nuisance and bother of the ice man tracking in dirt every day, and in place of the damp cold air obtained when ice is used the box is filled with the sanitary cold dry air that preserves foods. The Kelvinator works entirely automatic and on the same simple principles as are used in the public markets and stores where they use mechanical refrigeration. So much for the advantages and conveniences and labor-savings for the lady of the house. On going down into the cellar we find the man of the house has not been forgotten either. in a sure Weymouth F. A. Shut Out by Rockland

Saturday at the Weymouth Fair Grounds the Weymouth F. A. eleven lost its second league game, to Rockland by a score of 10 to 0.

Ideal football weather prevailed and there was a huge crowd of followers of both sides on hand to witness the game.

Coach Foley's men gained good ground on end runs, but fumbles by the backfield men more than offset these gains. Weymouth showed its need of a good punter, its punts only carrying for 10 or 15 yards. Rockland's first score came in the first few minutes of the second quarter, when Baker broke through the line and blocked a Weymouth punt, scooping up the ball for a 45-yard run to touchdown. Sena kicked the extra point try for goal.

Later in the same period Rockland added three points to its score thru a dropkick by Sena from the 20-yard

In the second half Weymouth did its best to score. End runs by Mauro and Lonergan advancing the ball past midfield; but here they were held for downs and forced to punt.

Lonergan, Dwyer and N. Butler were the Weymouth shining stars, while Baker, Regan and Johnson put up a most creditable game for Rockland. Scott, the Rockland quarter. got off some great punts, averaging forty yards. Felix Sney, the Rockland "iron man," played his first game with Rockland.

mas spirit was as deceased as old Marley's ghost-dead as the proverbial doornail-or deader. "We are shekel-mad," he said in substance; "we modern men and women; even our children have become too sophisticated to believe in its milk and water myths-"

A man who will deliberately and with malice aforethought sit down before his wheezy old typing machine and whack out mildewed sentiments of that kind, without a single qualifying phrase attached, is either a born he came into the world with light mental luggage or else he wrote that article the day after the Christmas feast -three helpings of juicy, brown turkey nestling close to a sugary pyramid of cranberries, fragrant giblet gravy and biscuits-southern style-done to a golden turn; a feast in which a steaming, raisin-studded and spice-spiked plum pudding played a stellar role.

This is a day of "movements." Suppose we start a brand new one. Suppose we go out and run to earth every sour, dyspeptic, disillusioned, kill-joy old Scrooge in the land, tie ropes of popcorn, scarlet ribbons and tinsel securely around each scrawny old neck and hang them high as Haman on the biggest, brightest Christmas tree that ever made happy the hearts of tiny boys and girls. (And serve them right.) And we'll let them screech, "Humbug! Humbug!" as loudly as they choose-once they are safely strung up.

This would be a sad world, indeed, were it not for the other kind of folk. Thanks be to the gods that have kept alive the beautiful, child-like, generous spirit of them-those wonderful ores, ever young, ever remembering, though their heads be as silver, who believe in Christmas; who believe in Santa Claus, in little laughing children; in friendship's vows renewed; who believe in making the eyes of the best beloved to shine like the Christmas stars themselves.

And here are three lusty cheers for the men and women who stand boldly forth and stoutly maintain that "Ole Chris'mus" has changed not one jot or tittle throughout the ages-that it will never change as long as childhood lasts in the world, as long as family ties bind and friendship's faith remains. Bless their loving hearts! May their Christmas wish come true, be they rich or poor, of high or low degree, and in whatever place they bless with their sweet presence.

Christmas was surely meant to be a season of joy and laughter, as well as one in which we glorify the birth of the blessed Savior. Throughout the centuries a spirit of revelry has marked the tide of Yule. The observance of an annual season of merrymaking dates back even farther than the advent of Christianity. It is said that long ere the birth of the Babe of Bethlehem the ancient pagans celebrated a yearly feast near the winter solstice. Romans called this the Saturnalia. It was marked with much winedrinking, dancing and eating.

In the ancient countries of the North huge fires were kindled and as their leaping flames shot skyward human beings were sacrificed upon the altars to Thor and Oden. The Goths and Saxons called this the festival of Yule.

The Teutons selected a buge tree which they raised amid much chanting and shouting, in honor of the god of the sun. Bright objects and lights were placed in its branches to represent the light of day, the moon and stars. Animals were fastened to the branches, historians say, that the pagan gods might be propitiated in favor of their savage worshipers.

So we know that the Christmas celebrations were not in the beginning of religious significance. But with Christianity's dawn the many old customs that remained were given a religious symbolism. There are a number of our present-day customs that are picturesque and interesting because of their great antiquity.

When we tramp into the winter woods and bring home loads of scarlet-berried holly and mistletoe we are merely following in the footsteps of our pagan ancestors. When we wreathe our doorsills and windows with the beautiful, waxy white clusters of mistletoe, when we ornament the mantle above the bright fire with its darkgreen clusters we are but unconsciously repeating the pagan custom of old when the Druids, the ancient priests, performed their mystical rites upon their forest altars.

The cutting and burning of the Yule log is, today, as important as a feature of the Christmas celebrations of the manor homes of "Merrie England" as it was before the world knew the meaning of a true Christian observance of the season. The cheery, heartening salutation "Merry Christmas!" originated in England. This greeting has never been known to fail in bringing a smile to even the most woe-begone countenance.

And an English Christmas is, indeed, a wonderful thing to experience. Even the very tales of the Englishman's Yuletide make our hearts beat faster and our imaginations run riot. The time has not yet arrived when Dickens' "Christmas Carol" with its descripmoron or a shameless glutton. Either tions of the Christmas market stalls with their long rows of hanging geese decorated with bunches of sage and onions, of tarts, puddings and sweetmeats will lose its delicious charm and mouth-watering powers.

And who can write about Christmas without thinking of the humble, though none the less delectable dinner presided over by proud Bob Cratchet-and Tiny Tim seated at the board with his frail, small fingers clasping his spoon and repeating honest Bob's blessing as he gazed upon his adoring family-"God bless us, every one!" Poor little Tim with his crutch across his knee!

Some authorities state that the Christmas tree as we know it originated in Scandinavia. Others claim that the Germans first made use of it. Certain it is that we, in our own land, did not have our brightly decorated trees until after the German immigrant ar-

Christmas carols are sung in many lands; in England, in France where they are called "noels," in Wales, Ireland and Italy and in many other countries. In Italy, at the season of Advent, the Calabrian shepherds troop down from their hills and chant their unusual mountain songs in the cities. The word "carol" is derived from "contare," meaning to sing and "rola," an interjection of joy; therefore it is not a musical form peculiarly belonging to Christmas, although it is usually associated with this season. One of the most ancient, if not the very oldest carol of a religious nature is the exquisite, "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night." It was written by Nahum Tate, England's poet laureate in 1692. Quaint old English carols that are still sung are: "God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen," "Good King Wencesles" and "The Holly and Ivy." These were sung by the waits who went from house to house in the old days. A whole book could be made interesting by recounting the customs of the anclent carol singers of the different lands.

In connection with the Christmas candle which has been used as a beautiful symbol in many countries from ancient days to the present it is interesting to know that even the gypsies, those wandering, mysterious vagabonds of unknown origin and self-confessed paganism, have a legend about a burning candle that was set at a certain season to light the way of a mother and child across the darkness of a desert land. This legend is to be found somewhere in an old book-perhaps it was recounted by George Borrow-but the writer of these lines has been unable to locate it again.

After all, it is the spirit of any observance that truly counts.

Scorch May Come Out

A frequent question put to home economics workers in the United how to take out scorch. Scorch upon cotton and linen sometimes can be removed, if the fibers are not actually burned. whitewash and unslaked lime in the cellar helps to keep down micro-organisms and undesirable odors. Since the bottom of the cellar is the coolest part, foods often keep best if set on the floor, provided it is clean and dry. If the floor is damp and earthy, a layer of clean bricks may be arranged under the food. If there is a furnace in the main part of the cellar, it is generally too warm and dry for the winter storage of fruits and vegetables, but a storeroom can oftentimes be partitioned off and so ventilated that the temperature is kept constantly cool. A cool room in a dry cellar is also a good place to store canned foods:

GREEN PEPPERS ARE GOOD WHEN PICKLED

Many Steps Saved by Plac. Keg or Stone Jar Is Quice man race and the latest scientific re-Satisfactory for Brining.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Peter Piper" may have "picked a peck of peppers," but they could not very well have been "pickled" until after they were "picked." If he had an abundance of green peppers, however, he might very well have cared for them first by brining and then pickling them, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

The method recommended is as follows: First, wash the peppers, then cap and core them with a sharp kitchen knife, making a circular incision around the stem, so that the core can be twisted out. Any seeds remaining rounded by dense fog. A recent exshould be scraped away. The can is replaced and the pepper is placed in 80 per cent brine, made by using a proportion of one pound of salt to four pints of water.

As the brine must be maintained at the same strength throughout the entire process of curing, and as juices which dilute the brine are drawn out of all products, it is necessary to add salt from time to time. A salinometer, which is a simple, inexpensive piece of apparatus, is the best means of determining when the brine is of the required strength. Its use is recommended wherever possible, especially if any quantity is being handled.

A keg or stone jar is satisfactory for brining. Kegs must be well washed with hot water, and soaked overnight with fresh water, to be sure they are watertight. Round board covers, coated with hot paraffin, are used to keep the vegetable submerged in the brine. Clean bricks are used as weights. Another large round wood cover over the top of each keg is necessary to keep riders. out dirt and dust.

At frequent intervals it is necessary to remove, with a large wooden spoon, or other suitable appliance, the scum which forms on the surface. This contains wild yeast, molds and various organisms. Covers and weights should be washed and the strength of the States Department of Agriculture is brine tested whenever the scum is being cared for.

For use, peppers prepared in this way are first soaked in cold water to freshen. They are then stuffed with chopped cabbage or some form of relish and the caps replaced and fastened picks. They should then be packed For removing slight scorch stains loosely in jars, covered with spiced ************ WHEN Nebuchadnezzar carried the Jews away captive to Babylon, he told his court chamberlain to select four young Hebrew captives, "comely and without blemish," to serve in his court.

Daniel, Shadrach, Meshack and Abednego were selected and put in a school for courtiers, along with a lot of young Babylonians.

That they might have the best of food the king commanded that they be fed from his own table.

But Daniel and his companions refused the rich foods and demanded that they be fed "pulse and water."

When their training was completed the chamberlain found that the young captives were "more comely and of better appearance" than their Babylonian companions.

Why? It has taken us three thousand years to find out.

Daniel and his three friends ate plain, fresh food. The Babylonians ate heavily spiced and richly seasoned

We know now that the human body must have a certain amount of fresh, living food.

Primitive people learned this long ago. The Arabs eat dates: the Moors eat figs; the South Sea Islanders eat breadfruit and coconuts: the natives of central Africa eat bananas; the Indians ate fruits and berries.

Even the Eskimos, without fresh fruits or vegetables, eat raw seal meat or fresh blubber.

When sailing vessels made long voyages and when methods of preserving food were limited, sailors kept too long on salt meat and dry biscuits developed scurvy. The gums softened, the teeth fell out, the mucuous membranes bled and finally the men died.

The food was good enough, but there was no living matter in it.

As soon as the sailors got limes lemons, oranges, bananas, apples, even raw potatoes, the scurvy disappeared.

Recent experiments show that animals given a proper amount of green food are larger, stronger and better developed than those deprived of such feed, no matter how abundant their The substances in raw, fresh food

Merchants--Attention

It has come to the attention of the Gazette and Transcript that agents for cut (illustration) and advertising services have told local merchants that "The Gazette-Transcript recommends this service."

The Gazette advertising department recommends no advertising services except on Gazette letterheads over the signature of someone in authority on the newspaper, and very seldom does this, as many of these services are poor.

The Gazette maintains a cut service for merchants which is available at all times and will gladly give advice on others. We will be glad to recommend any outside cut service if it is considered of merit and suitable to the advertiser's needs, as the Gazette-Transcript's own service is not conducted for profit and there is no prejudice because of "competition".

For the Boudoir

That merry pair, Nanette and Rintintin, still hang around milady's boudoir, as a pretty ornament. Here they are, with heads of cotton cloth, painted faces, hair and bodies of white zephyr (wound with black for the feet). Nanette's skirt is of blue zephyr, the tunic white. Rintintin's coat is crocheted of blue and so are their hats and the cord and tassel that suspends them. They are about eight inches tall.

New Breakfast Caps

Don't forget that breakfast caps are among the lovely things that women expect at Christmas. Of the two shown here, the one at the top is of lace and ribbon, with frills of pink, plaited chiffon over the ears. The other is of net and lace with a frill of lace over the nape of the neck, a facing of ribbon at the front and knot and ends of it at the sides.

What a privilege to have been able to meet there with representatives of Red Cross chapters from all parts of these United States; representatives who, wherever they live, are carrying the Red Cross message of service and

With this meeting together, we have it borne in upon us ever more strongly that we are yet parts of the great whole: as we become engrossed in our small local problems at home, we are inclined to feel we are only a local organization: we are not only a local organization: we are the local representative of the great national body of the American National Red Cross chartered by the National Congress to relieve and prevent suffering at home and abroad in war and in peace, and as President Coolidge said in his opening address to the delegates "The Red Cross has become a part of our National life" and in the words of Judge Payne our National chairman, "It is an arm of the Government." To quote further from President Coolidge, "It knows no creed, no party, no politics, no classes or groups.

"The American Red Cross is proof that materialism is not the dominant motive of the people of the United States. I doubt if there is another country in which so great an amount of unselfish effort is put forth for social and civic betterment. "To this unquenchable altruism of our people the American Red Cross offers a practical and efficient mode of expression. By adding to lofty ideals its practical efficiency, it makes a double appeal.

"No better example of the confidence of the American people in their Red Cross could be had, than the lavish response given its appeal for funds to help Japan. Like an army the thousands of Red Cross chapters throughout the land mobilized to receive and direct the charity of our

"Its work expands from year to year without the waste of war it is yet able to broaden its usefulness "Of the willingness of the American people to stand behind the Re-Cross there can be no longer any The spirit of service can never be demobilized.

"From its inception the Red Cross has made history in the fulfillment of humanitarian ideals. Our country is proud of its record. Its realization is one of the ideals of our fore-

It shows the way to a more complete realization of truth and justice through mercy."

At the opening session, the speaker who followed the President was Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau, who briefly summar ized the relief legislation of the past year; there now appears upon the statute books a measure authorizing the hospitalization of all ex-service men of ail wars, regardless of the degree of disability and when it occurred. In the last Congress all laws affecting relief for war veterans were revised, codified and simplified so that we now have what is known as the World War Veterans Act, instead of a confusion of very many laws much misunderstood by the men themselves and those interpreting them. On June 7th, the Johnson-Reed bill was signed and became law whereby any man having an honorable discharge from service in the late war period, should be contract; Lorain people that help was coming tuberculosis, mental or nervous trouble within five years from the date of his discharge shall be entitled to the benefits of the Veterans' Bu-

There were several round tables which dealt with particular phases of soldier work and general home service, in which there developed most interesting satisfactory discus-

We learn that under the new regulations the number of men served by chapters has shown marked increase, whereas in April, a month when the peak of the season should be reached, there were 53,647 men served, in June there were 56.636. It was anticipated that this volume of work would be continued for the coming 18 months or two years.

We learn that under the Johnson-Reed bill first mentioned there were over 5000 awards made within the first thirty days after its signing.

The number in training at the present time is only 40,000, showing a very great reduction and all training will be stopped in June, 1926.

Work with the men suffering from mental trouble and tuberculosis we now find our greatest concern and interest. For some time the Bureau has required the appointment of guardians for men considered mentally incapable of handling their money. The local Red Cross chapter has always been asked to take the responsibility of making inquiries as to the person best fitted to act as guardian and see that steps were taken for the legal appointment of such guard

The Bureau itself has never until recently done anything on its own behalf, to be assured that the proper person was being selected or that. a person, once appointed, was discharging his or her duties satisfactorily. The matter was left with the court: Now a thorough inquiry is being made, a list of all guardians is being compiled and in some of the larger Bureau offices special guardianship officers have been establsihed to deal with all matters pertaining to the subject.

In connection with the care of our mental patients, there is another important service which only Red Cross home service has, been called upor to do: that is, the procuring of wha are called social histories, that is facts about the man's home environment, his own life and behavior and all possible facts which may have had a bearing upon the man's presen condition of mind. We are told b the doctors seeing the men in the hospitals, that these histories are o untold value in their contact and treatment of the patients.

Although there was slight disagreement concerning the Red Cross responsibility in this matter, the consensus of opinion was to the effect that until the Bureau was equipped to cover it the Red Cross was the rightful organization to undertake the work of obtaining social histories.

Col. Pond of the Cleveland ARC told of having been associated with soldiers for 35 years; he felt that as long as there were soldiers the Red Cross would be needed for the adjustment of dissatisfaction: as Congress adds new laws to its statute books and looks more and more for outside aid for individual soldiers he believed the Red Cross must continue to fulfill this requirement.

This came in answer to the question raised to the probable length of time the Red Cross should be needed in soldier work.

The disabled veteran is indeed our first responsibility but he will be best served by being restored as early as possible to the workings of the civilian population.

For some years now a small number of individuals have fulfilled their ideal and built up local organizations to meet the emergency, should disaster arise.

Col. Pond again of Cleveland paid his tribute to the vision of Mr. Jackson, who perfected the organization of a Disaster Committee in Cleveland and kept it in working order; that is, although members of the committee believed there never could be a disaster in Cleveland, Mr. Jackson always replied to his doubting members that it might happen at any time, adding "when it does happen it will be at the most inopportune time on a Saturday evening, Sunday or holiday." And he was quite right. Just nine days after a call had been issued for a fire drill, the trouble broke and the drill was actual service. The Lorain tornado started Saturday night after all the stores had been closed and when Mr. Jackson and many of the Home Service workers were in Toronto attending the National Conference of Social Work.

The wind started while housewives were preparing their supper, little attention was paid to it, but it gained in velocity and at its height blew about four minutes; in that time it had completely wrecked all the houses in its path and cut off light and communication with outside communities.

Someone called Col. Pond on the "It is a strong support of the gov- laid low, inquiring who was the perernment; a reliable guarantee of the continuing progress of civilization. son to undertake the matter of relieventing the situation. Within a very few minutes Col. Pond himself by telphone had set the wheels of organization in motion. First, the police were requested to despatch a flying squadron to the spot to ascertain something of the situation and the number of persons requiring attention. The army was called upon for tents and cots: nursing service was mobilizing, food was being collected from the closed shops, motor service was on call.

Through their preparedness program he knew immediately the right persons to call and these persons, when called, knew their job. Through enerous co-operation many of the problems of the early hours of the disaster were smoothed out; for example, a steamer was lving at the lock, the offer was made and this furnished a wonderful means of transporting all kinds of supplies. As it turned in at Lorain with all its lights aglow it was the first indication to

On the 8th day after the tornade Mr. Baker, National director of Disaster Relief, with his Mobile disaster unit arrived, promptly accepted the 'ocal responsibility and made an award that day. Just two months afterwards, awards had amounted to $500,000, whereas in some disasters ight months had elapsed before such sums had been awarded. Of course the job still continues. It is Mr. Baker the National director, who in alliteratives expresses Disaster Relief in terms of preparedness, personnel. publicity and prevention.

The National headquarters of the American Red Cross has been called to assist in 192 disasters during the past year at home and abroad. When we hear this we may well feel that we cannot know when our own occeasio: may rise. As Judge Payne says, "It is astonishing, the number and the persistence of the demand."

As will be seen the more persons prepared also the better team there will be on call.

We are told by the director c Nursing Service that every bit of the United States is covered by en rolled Red Cross nurses; if the nurses of our community are enrolled we have one of the most valuable assets for service in times of disaster.

The canteen service, the moto: service and production service as will be readily seen all would have their most important part to play.

There are still two more of the services in the present Red Cross program which fall in line at the time of disaster, while they have an all important place in ordinar ife. I refer to the preparation in House Hygiene with care of the sick First Aid and Life Saving.

Members of the classes in Home Hygiene have become a very definite force in furthering public health They are ready to care for family ill and give intelligent service in time of disaster, 31,500 certificates hav been issued.

First Aid and Life Eaving have ad anced by leaps and bounds durin; he past year making respectivel t 49 and a 48 per cent increase asid-rom the accrued number of nev wimmers at Boys' Camps.

Twain's Description of Missouri River Water

In one of his return trips to the state of his boyhood, Mark Twain wrote a friend he had found one thing that had not changed-the mulatto complexion of Missouri river waterand probably a score of centuries would not change it. "It comes out of the turbulent, bank-caving river," he explained, "and every thimbleful of it holds an acre of land in solution. I got this fact from the bishop of the diocese. If you will let your glass stand half an hour you can separate the land from the water as easy as Genesis, and then you will find their both good-the one to eat, the other to drink. The land is very nourishing, the water is thoroughly wholesome. The one appeases hunger, the other, thirst. But the natives do not take them separately, but together, as nature mixed them. When they find an inch of mud in the bottom of the glass, they stir it up and take a draft as they would gruel. It is difficult for the stranger to get used to this batter, but once used he will prefer it to water."-Pathfinder Magazine.

Opal Diggers Work Hard for Small Remuneration

Of all the rough "outback" jobs in Australia, digging for opal is about the worst. Coober Pedy lies in the heart of the Stewart range, 170 miles from the nearest station on the East-West railway, and its whole population of between 70 and 80 diggers lives underground in burrows scratched out of the hillside. A tin shanty, in which the diggers keep their tools, is the only sign of life showing above

Every morning the diggers come out of their holes and set out for the opal fields, to cut patiently through the rock in the hope of finding the beautiful black diamonds lying beneath. Between them they have dug many thousands of dollars' worth of opal in the last four years, though they have worked only a small area of a field said to be 40 miles long. In normal times opal is worth about $15 an ounce, but now that there is practically no demand for the gems the diggers have opal, but no money.

Almost Evened the Series

Mrs. Smith wanted to go to the movies. Mr. Smith said he had put in a hard day at the office and was tired and would rather sit at home and smoke. Knowing the Smiths, anyone telephone to say Lorain had been could have predicted that they would go to the movies!

"Let's sit down near the front," said Mrs. Smith.

"But I don't like to sit near the front," Mr. Smith protested. "When I do that the pictures hurt my eyes."

"Nonsense!" scoffed Mrs. Smith. "I like to be down close so I can watch the musicians."

Soon the two were seated within comfortable seeing distance of the or-

"Oh, don't you just love to hear the cumble of the kettledrums?" Mrs. Smith gushed

And then the worm turned, albeit ever so slightly. "Yes," Mr. Smith replied. "Keep

The first thought, even of quite unbroken the man was only the man who had just discovered a a few days. Not long ago a man Companion. with his shoes on fell from the top of a cliff at Dover, the height of which was afterward found to be 400 feet. He was picked up floating insensible in some five feet of water, but his shoes were off, which proves that he must have retained sufficient consciousness on reaching the water to enable him to draw his shoes from his feet.

New Palindrome Found

New palindromes are rare, but a western newspaper writer has revealed several especially good ones, A palindrome is merely a phrase that spells backward and forward. A classic example of the palindrome is the speech put into the mouth of Napoleon: "Able was I ere I-saw Elba." Among the new ones sent was the following purporting to be a sign which a store manager placed over a ratcatching preparation composed of Dutch cheese and tar: "Rat trap made a la Edam, part tar." Years ago when "red root" was popular as a cure-all, a druggist's sign ran: "Red root put up to order."

Doubt Anecdote of Drake

One of the features of the great historical pageant of Devon, produced at Torquay, was the use, in one scene, of the identical set of bowls with which Drake was playing when the Armada came in sight. These bowis are among the treasures of Torquay museum, says London Answers.

There are people, however, who doubt their authenticity or rather the and his celebrated game on Plymouth Hoe. There is no contemporary account of the incident, which was dein an Eighteenth century book. It is mentioned, however, in a Spanish poitical pamphlet published fre 704.

Bathing by No Means a Universal Custom

In Japan we would learn what the Japanese idea of cleanliness is. In this quaint country of beautiful sunsets and colorful costumes people bathe twice daily. And there is no question that many of them have no convenient bathroom as we do. In China the family has a large stove which is used for a bed at night so they can keep warm.

Between this picturesque empire and India, separated by miles and miles of lonely country and ocean, a great change of customs would be seen. In these out-of-the-way places we find people living in mere hovels. They enjoy no running water systems and other conveniences as the most segregated parts of our country enjoy.

In India, where plagues continually cause the death of thousands of families, you will find towns that have no water and sewerage systems. You can see the Indian women balancing on their heads huge jars which they have filled with water drawn from the town well or the sluggish and muddy

From Calcutta to Bardad, thence to Constantinople, you will see that bathing is considered only for the white man and the native aristocracy. On the deserts of Arabia, where water is necessarily used only for drinking, the desire to keep clean is accomplished in a rather "rough" manner. Instead of using water for the bath the Arab vigorously rubs himself with the sand of the desert.

Long and Short Lives in Scheme of Nature

One of the most wonderful things in Nature is the manner in which things are balanced up. The long-lived things propagate their species slowly; the short-lived, rapidly. For instance, elephants, whales, tortoises and carp have been credited with lives of anything from four hundred years downward. And at the other end of the scale we find insects which have a life of hours only. Many theories have been put forward to account for these remarkable distinctions, but the one now most commonly accepted is that the slower the creature is in reaching full maturity and the less its powers of reproduction, the greater will be its average longevity or length of natural life. Nature's object in such an arrangement is fairly plain even to our limited human intelligence. For if such creatures as locusts, breeding with incredible rapidity, had themselves a life of centuries, the world would be within a little while impossible for other existence, And the same result would occur did an elephant with a life of perhaps a couple of hundred years, breed like a locust. In some way, which as yet we may not fully understand, the principle of Nature is to maintain a balance of power in our world.

Explorer's Ruling Passion

When Columbus landed for the first time in the New world he found the Indians, who greeted him "a very poor people." His friend, Las Casas, who wrote the abstract of the Journal of the First Voyage to America, gives the admiral's own account of his interview with the natives as follows: "I was very attentive to them and Among the classic English falls strove to learn if they had any gold, Seeing some of them with little bits jack, who fell from the top of the of this metal hanging at their noses, I gathered from them by signs that by Meors to the ground, the whole dis- going southward or steering around the island in that direction there The man's skull struck some sheet would be found a king who possessed slightly injured and resumed work in new world, was of gold!-Youth's

English at Home

"When I was eyeling through England," writes R. B. W., "I started off one morning to ride from Clacton to St. Osyth. After a while I became uncertain about the road and meeting a laborer I inquired, 'Am I right for St. Osyth?' The man looked puzzled and said he never heard of any such place.

"A second wayfarer whom I asked was equally ignorant. Then came a third. This fellow scratched his head, but presently a look of comprehension dawned upon his face. 'Ay, to be sure. I have it now-it's Snosey ye mean!" -New Haven Register.

College and University The college has about the same relation to a university that a state has truth of the famous anecdote of Drake to the federal government—that is, as a rule, many colleges go to make a university. The term university. however, has been used loosely in the scribed for the first time in Britain United States, sometimes applied to an institution offering non-professional instrucțion beyond the bachelor's degree and having affiliated professional schools.

THANKS FROM PRESIDENT

Calvin Coolidge has been elected President of the United States in his own right, sweeping the country from the most northern reaches of New England to the southernmost point of California. The returns from the election gave him every state in the North, East and West, with the exception of Wisconsin and one doubtful. His popular vote promises to be the largest every polled by the presidential candidate of any party, probably 18,000,000 votes, as against 8.000,000 for John W. Davis, his Democratic opponent, and 4,000,000 for Robert M. La Follette, the radical choice. He is assured of not less than 379 votes in the Electoral College, a total that may be increased by more complete returns more than 100 in excess of the required majority.

His is a personal victory, evidence that the people throughout the land have the faith in him that he has in them. Leading his party everywhere, he has succeeded in electing a Republican House of Representatives and apparently a Republican majority in the United States Senate.

President Coolidge expressed his 'simple thanks" in this statement which he read to the newspaper men: "It does not seem possible to me to make an adequate expression concerning the presidency of the United States. No other honor equals it; no other responsibility approaches it. When it is conferred by an overwhelming choice of the American people and vote of the electoral college, these are made all the greater. I can only express my simple thanks to all those who have contributed to this result and plainly acknowledge that it has been brought to pass through the work of a Divine Providence, of which I am but one instrument. Such powers as I have, I dedicate to the service of all my country and of all my countrymen.

"In the performance of the duties of my office, I canot ask for anything more than the sympathetic consideration which my fellow Americans have always bestowed upon me. I have no appeal except to the common sense of all the people. I have no pledge except to serve them. I have no object except to promote their welfare."

Second of a series of advertisements regarding the telephone situation in New England

The principal reason why we cannot go on furnishing adequate telephone service at present rates lies in the lessened purchasing power of the dollar as reflected in higher prices for materials and labor.

Up to the war period our dollar of income was pretty well adjusted to the dollar of outgo.

Since the war, while selling you telephone service from plant built at pre-war prices, we were able to make ends meet largely through improvements in equipment and operating practices, and partly through increased rates which gave us approximately fifteen per cent additional revenue, per telephone.

But this equipment, built at pre-war prices, has been more and more replaced by new equipment built at present-day prices; furthermore, the number of new telephones connected in the past five years is the largest in any equal period of our existence an increase of thirty-six per cent for the company as a whole and of forty per cent for Massachusetts.

Telephone rates of five years ago when the average cost of plant and equipment was $138 per telephone, do not provide an adequate return today we en the average cost of plant and equipment is $178 per tel phone, and steacily increasing.

An increase in telephone rates is necessary, not only to attract the new money required to meet the demands for expansion, but also to keep up the present service.

Local History

H. B. Reed (Continued from last week) Editor Gazette-Transcript:

Capt. Vining told me this story on Rev. Mr. Attwood, who is still living among us: "Mr. and Mrs. Attwood called on me in 'Frisco on their way to Japan. I entertained them as best could, as I had all friends from the East. They sailed for Japan and then came our earthquake and I was not a little surprised one morning to be handed a cablegram from Mr. Attwood offering to let me have any sum up to $1000 to start again on. I wasn't surprised so much that a perfect stranger whom I had met only once should offer to let me have $1000 as I was to think that a Universalist minister should have $1000."

I hear that the Historical Society will soon publish as a supplement to the Weymouth History an account of the industries of Weymouth. Quincy Reed told me that there were 21 shoe factories in South Weymouth in 1861, and that reminds me of a story which illustrates how they disappeared. A colored gentleman by the name of Butler tered of barbering in South Weymouth and removed to an abandoned farm over on Pirie Hill, which he used as headquaters for peddling fish. Mr. Butler had had many interesting experiences in life including 32 children and at this time he had more dogs than children. Remarking to him one day as I called on the rundown look of everything around (for it looked like a case of nigger in a woodpile) and noticing a well of water in the front yard with no curb, I said, "Mr. Butler, I should think you'd be afraid you'd lose your children down the well. It's dangerous." "Oh no!" he replied, there's no danger, I never lost but one and no dog!" That's practically what was said when one after another the shoe shops were closed up. "Oh, that's only one, there's plenty left!" The up-to-date factory in the sixties, heated by steam, slate roof and cupola, was the Fogg shop in Columbian Square. There was a front room, furnished office, the basement where Tim Madan worked on counters and took care of the steam heating plant. The first floor of the Fogg factory was the counting room, where cases floor held the cutting room and tree- and so I wasn't called on again. ing, dressing and packing. The third floor was leased to Mrs. Cobb & Fogg for a manufactory, while the attic was empty. So in this model factory, in which was done a larger business, only about half was used by Mr. Fogg the bulk of the work being done outside. The story is told of Isaac Hollis that coming home from Boston with a tin case boot order in his pocket he declared the first thing to do was to buy another horse. A shoe manufacturer owned more horses than a doctor. Speaking of Tim Madan, he took John J. Gallagher, Inc. Speaking of Tim Madan, he took his watch to old Harlow for cleaning and repairs and calling for it in due time Mr. Harlow passed him the watch and one wheel in an envelope which he said he couldn't find any place for. "The watch goes all right," he said. Tim wondered how many times the watch would stand repairing at this rate before he could have two for one. I don't know whether John A. E. (I. O. and N. and sometimes W. and Y.) Loud was any relation to Dr. Jacob. Anyway, like the deacon he didn't always look the part that he played. A neighbor meeting Mr. Loud one morning saluted him. "This is a damn fine morning, John!" "Yes." rejoined Mr. L. "pretty damn." Mr. Loud posed at one time as a erine Carroll, Alden, Walker & Wilde book seller, and offered a well known office. Republican the "Life of Grover Cleveland," whereupon the defendant berated him for sinking so low as to promote democracy in this underhanded way. "You should handle my books of Republicans." Then John pulled out the "Life of Garfield" himself. "Putty" May did quite a painting business in South Weymouth at one time. He agreed to paint a house you've only been here once. How could you put on two coats?" "Why, I just put on one coat and then put on another a top of it!" He lost one customer after another and finally was moved to Brockton by Mr. Loud. As the last piece of furniture went Phones, Weymouth 0287R and 0110 with the new home, "Putty" May con-34tf fided to him that before long he would be paid for the moving. "That's all right. The neighbors attended to that before I started," re> plied John Alec. Old Jessie Davis had a keen sense of smell. One day he was nosing around back of Edgar Wright's barn and discovered Sted and Wes digging a trench for a horse which had died on their hands. Jessie said he'd had a good deal of experience in such matters and urged them to dig a lot deeper than they'd planned or there'd be trouble. The next spring poking 'round back of the barn he said, What did I tell you Sted. You didn't bury that horse deep enough. I can smell him plain as day!" "Well, says Sted. "You've got a pretty good smellers for we finally buried that horse upon the cow pasture more'n a mile away." Jesse's son, Fred, ran a skunk farm which was exploited by the Boston Sunday papers, but there is evidence that he didn't get > his sense of smell from his father. Mr. Henry F. Woodman kept the grammar school in the chapel vestry in 1865. A Miss Hall and a Miss Winn had preceded him, but it was thought best in the interest of good order etc. to hire a male teacher at much larger expense. Mr. Woodman looked 7 feet tall and was husky. He owned a fast horse and drove in a sulky to school from near the Rockland line when he boarded with John Shores. Mary thought that driving a trotting horse so prominent### ly through the streets would injure his teaching of morals. But in addition to reading a chapter in the And Fireside Stories Bible and repeating the Lord's Prayer in concert at the opening of the

Mr. Woodman inaugurated a new method of punishment for offenses in school, which was to prescribe ten verses in the New Testament for each case. I learned the sermon on the Mount, the 12th chapter of Romans, the 13th of First Corinthians, the year I went to Woodman, but the year I was on the School Committee, I got the whole of revelations. Years afterward when Henry Woodman showed up in South Weymouth at a session of Old Folks Day. It turned out that he had visited his insane wife in an asylum once a week for many years. There were some there who changed their opinion of him which they had held all their years. That he was really a Christian if he did drive a trotting horse in the sixties. There used to visit the shoe factories in those days of the open shop a solemn looking man, with long hair and sallow face; he had the air of a student. He carried a bag which held books on phrenology, which many thought was an exact science. For 25 cents he would make a cursory excursion over the bump on your head; for 50 cents, give you a thorough examination and for $1.00, give you a book with the result of this examination set down on a scale of 10 on the last page. One dull day when nobody was around I turned him loose on my head for $1.00 worth of information and I really believe he got me right. "Your reservation." he said, "is very low" only 3 on a scale of 10. Your Firmness is too high. You will run your head into a stone wall and hurt yourself. Use your Firmness to increase your Generation" etc. This book I kept for many years and studied carefully, and really was influenced more by that humbug book than I was by the Book of Books. So when I'm asked why people go into Christian Science and study Mrs. Eddy's work, I say it's easy. I drove Tim Madan once to consult Mrs. Moore, a mesmerist, at Abington. Mrs. M. took the lock of hair which Mr. Madan had brought along, fresh cut from the patient he was interested in, then closed her eyes in a trance and talked of what she saw was the matter, and then on coming out prescribed. It was a new experience for me. I had got of boots from the making shops were the dollar for the horse, but father left. Edwin Rosenfeld had a dry told me he'd rather I wouldn't go goods store in one half. The second again. The patient died soon after H. B. REED

OPENS FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 14

HARRY H. NEWMAN President

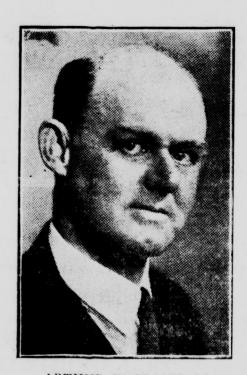

It is just 4 months ago that the new interests acquired this old and honored establishment of George W. Jones. The four months have been a period of intensive labor, laying the foundation for broader usefulness for this store, bringing the interior and exterior up to date, modernizing the fixtures, equipment and facilities in keeping with the service demands of the day.

The new and modern entrance is the very latest expression of our intention to make this store a delightful place in which to shop. At the same time the traditional policy, which has been the foundation stone of this business, has not been forgotten.

"To furnish trustworthy shoes and furnishings for Men, Women, Boys and Misses that are inexpensive, but not cheap, exclusive but not costly."

COOPER'S NEW STORE

During the past few months the business section of Quincy Square has taken on almost a new appearance, that is the building of many new and handsome buildings such as the new Elks home, which are a great credit to that city. Many other new buildcompleted will also be a credit to the business street of our neighbor- loaded with shoes for men and boys, building, is the store "Just around ilar fittings. the corner" known for many years as the George W. Jones store, but only at the show cases at our right at noon.

past few weeks this store has been forms a horseshoe in the center of closed and has undergone complete renovation. Have you seen that wonderful front? If so, you have a fur- derwear; as we turn and go down ther treat awaiting you when you on the other side of the store we find visit the interior.

The outside which formerly had one large entrance with show windows on either side, now has two entrances with show window on the sides and between the doors a large handsome show window. The windows are without doubt the last word and you don't have to go to good old Broadway or 5th avenue now to see the better shops as there is one of the best in Quincy.

As we enter the door to the easterly end of the store we see long show cases and racks for the merchandise. goods are kept under glass so one can readily see them and yet they are kept clean and free from dust. Along the side of the store is a long row of show cases.

As we start down the line on the men's side we first come to the umbrellas, next in a comparatively small space are the collars, each style well displayed and yet a goodly supply is easily at hand by pulling out the drawers. There are both the soft and stiff collars. Continuing down the aisle we next see the shirts displayed in one of the racks against the wall. We are next attracted by the showing of the underwear, hats and caps, sweaters, while in the show cases we see neckwear, shirts. golf hose, and leather jackets.

As we get to the end of this row of show cases we come to the lower Mt. Wollaston National bank and the end of the store where we find a row of chairs. Oh, no, we are not here to rest, but when you sit down ings are also under way which when in one of these chairs and look in front of you, you will find shelves a shoe for every one both in price One of the latest additions to the and quality. Miss Our is a popular Weymouth young lady and her many Weymouth friends should be pleased to see her, at this new location.

On the men's side assisting Mr. Bramhall will be Mr. Allen.

On your next visit to Quincy don't fail to go to Cooper's. You will find just the things you have been looking for a popular line of merchandise for the whole family, also shoes for men and women, girls and boys. Everything is new-a complete new stock and up-to-the minute in style. "Quality, but not expensive." Come and see for yourself.

Our Great Mid-Season IS AN EVENT WITHOUT A PRECEDENT IN OUR HISTORY

Our corps of efficient buyers have combed the Boston and New York markets for new and greater values in fine clothing for men, women and children. In this search they found LEADING MAN UFACTURERS who, because of abnormal business conditions WERE IN NEED OF FUNDS. Knowing the ENORMOUS OUT-PUT AND RESOURCES OF OUR GREAT EIGHT-STORE ORGANIZATIONS they offered us their stocks at a great sacrifice for spot cash. This enabled us to buy high-grade apparel far below its real worth. These unusually advantageous purchases make possible the WONDERFUL VALUES which we now show. HERE ARE A HOST OF NEWEST STYLES for men, women and children, in all sizes, colors and patterns, AT PRICES MUCH LESS THAN THEIR QUALITY WARRANTS. Don't overlook these extraordinary values! BENEFIT BY THIS OPPORTUNITY! SELECT WHAT YOU WISH-CHARGE YOUR PURCHASES and pay later in convenient partial payments as you earn the money.

Upsetting blood and nerves. There's a way to feel right again. Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Doan's are recommended by many Weymouth people:

Mrs. Nellie Parnell, 47 Richmond. street, Weymouth, says: "I was in a bad condition with my kidneys. They were sore and there was a dull, heavy feeling through them. My kidneys acted too freely and I was languid and tired. I could hardly stoop on account of sharp pains in the small of my back. I used Doan's Pills and my kidneys became normal. The pains left my back and I was completely rid of the trouble."

Caramel Apples

Boil two cups of sugar with one and one-half cups of water. Peel and core six or more apples, preferabl Spitzenburgs, leaving them whole. Drop apples in boiling syrup and turn often while cooking. As soon as tender, when tested with a straw. remove apples to individual plates and fill centers with a caramel mixture made as follows: Cook one-half cup of brown sugar and one-quarter cu of milk to a very soft ball stage. Then beat until cool. Add the juice of a lemon to the syrup and let it boi down. Add one tablespoon of gelatine which has been dissolved in two tablespoons of cold water. Let cool, beat and pour over and around the apples. Sprinkle chopped nuts over the apples and serve with whipped cream. Recipe may be varied by filling the apple centers with raisins and nuts and by omitting the sauce made with the syrup.

Smartly Tailored COATS

OF AVERAGE WINTER WEIGHT

With the "open winter" now the accepted thing, we present a practical Overcoat style to harmonize exactly with it. Light in weight - compared with the burdensome Ulster, yet because of the nature of the fabric plenty warm for any winter day.

Tailored in new straight, hanging style, broad of shoulder, with snug under arm, it is as smart as it is sensible. You'll find no other Coat that so plainly bespeaks itself as the ideal winter garment.

Genuine MELTON COATS

Chesterfield Models - Gentlemen's coats, warm, long wearing, rich looking, yet conservative. We have put the best of tailoring into them in our own sunny workshops, lined them through with heavy SKINNER SATIN -and now present them confident that every man who gets one will be a Talbot enthusiast. ### Legion Working for Memorial Building

At the meeting of the Selectmen Monday afternoon, a request was received from Weymouth Post, 79, American Legion, that an article be inserted in the warrant for the annual town meeting asking the town to pre sent to the Post the sum of $8062.55 being the town's proportion of the surplus poll tax raised under Chapter 283, Act of 1919. The money to be used to equip a memorial building of the Post, to commemorate the service of Weymouth citizens, engaged in the service of their country in the World

A victualer's license was granted Mrs. Alice Johnson, corner of Summit and Phillips streets.

A petition was presented asking the board to accept and lay out Rambler's way and a hearing will be held.

Another petition asked the board to accept and lay out the street known as Idlewell street, from its present acceptance and at the bridge of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. to Chandler street, and Chandler street to Pleasant View avenue; and also to insert an article in the warrant for the annual town meeting asking for a sum of money to work the same. *A petition was received from the Weymouth Light and Power Company for permission to place two poles on Sterling street and a hearing will be

A request was received from a citizen 86 years old, for permission to carry a revolver for self protection and target practice. It was referred to the chief of police.

SERVICE STAR LEGION The Service Star Legion, Old Colony chapter, met with Mrs. F. W. Harris, 187 Front street, Weymouth, on Monday afternoon. After a short business meeting, Mrs. William Irving of Jamaica Plain, state president, and Mrs. Corliss of Lynn, state vice president, gave a very interesting account of the national convention held at Salt Lake city, Utah, last June, and of the pleasure trips connected with it. Mrs. Corliss also spoke of the drive made by the Lynn chapter for the Blind Veterans Fund, the week of Oct. 19, when more than $1000 was realized. Mrs. Irving in the capacity of a national regional director, will endeavor to organize new chapters throughout the state during the coming year. She wishes every chapter to make an effort to increase its membership. It matters not that we belong to other organizations working along the same lines, or that it is impossible to attend the meetings: the payment of the small yearly dues and a little co-operation with the active members will help greatly to promote the welfare work. Let us urge every eligible woman, namely, the wife, mother, sister and daughter of a World War veteran to lend her aid by enrolling herself in the Old Colony chapter.

At the close of a pleasant social hour during which a delicious repast was served by the hostess, Mrs. Harris, the members dispersed to meet with Mrs. Frank Palmer, West street, Braintree, Monday, Dec. 8, at 2 P. M.

-The Ladies Aid held their annual fall fair in the vestry Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. Tuesday evening the entertainment was in charge of Mrs. Bowdoin Smith. Two one-act plays entitled, "No cure, no pay" and "The greatest plague in life" were given by a club of ladies from West Abington, also vocal solos by Miss Marion Brown of Abington, accompanied by Mrs. Frank Clain.

Wednesday evening was in charge of Mrs. Charles Turner. The concert consisted of vocal solos by Miss Ruth Berson of South Weymouth; readings by Miss Murphy, and piano duets by Mrs. Gerald Kelso and Miss Alma Blanchard. The tables were in charge of the following ladies: bundle, Mrs. Elwin Cole, Mrs. Harold Morse; yariety, Mrs. Mae Woodbury and Mrs. Charles Turner; domestic, Mrs. Lydia Holmes, Mrs. Archie Ellis; cake, Mrs. Irwin Hawes; candy, Mrs. Bert Maynard, Miss Lucinda French; ice cream, Mrs. Charles White, Mrs. Bowdoin Smith; tickets, Miss Nellie Holbrook, Mrs. Frank Rea. -Mrs. John Inkley of Pleasant street celebrated her 80th birthday at her home on Pleasant street last Sunday afternoon and evening. Guests were present from Boston, Winthrop, Wollaston, North Abington, Rockland and different parts of Weymouth. Mrs. Inkley was presented with a large birthday cake, money, cards and numerous other gifts.

-Mrs. Thomas Douglas, who has been in the Braintree hospital for the past six months, is at home again much improved in health.

-The monthly business meeting of the Lovell's Corner Improvement Society will be held in the Community Building Tuesday evening next week. At this meeting the officers for next year will be chosen. There will be no annual supper this year. just the regular meeting at 8 o'clock. -Miss Lillian Shepard is visiting friends in Plymouth for a week.

"GREAT MORAL VICTORY" "The greatest victory ever achieved by the moral forces in Massachusetts under the leadership of any organization was won at the polls Nov. 4" said William M. Forgrave, state super intendent of the Massachusetts Anti-

Saloon League.

WEYMOUTH, NOVEMBER 21, 1924

THE ASSESSING DEPARTMENT

Last week the Gazette-Transcript recommended for Weymouth a smaller board of Selectmen and Overseers of the Poor-THREE instead of fivewho should hold daily sessions, become more active in the conduct of town business, and receive more pay.

The Assessing department of the town also demands more time. This could be accomplished by a board of THREE, who shall during the months of March, April, May, June, July and August give all their time to the town. The members should have no other business, and should not hold any other town office, but should meet daily during the above months and at least once a week for the remaining months. During the month of March there is much preliminary work that should be done, previous to the field work during April, May and June. It is not sufficient for the board to inspect simply the NEW property; but all members should each year look over every piece of property in the town, as is done in other towns. Justice to all taxpayers demands that there should be a revaluation of all prop-

Many cities and towns announce their tax rates in August, and this should be done in Weymouth for several reasons. The town should not do business for nearly the whole year on borrowed money. Much could be saved by the town in interest, if tax money came in before the first of September instead of November or later. It would be easier for taxpayers to pay their tax bills in September than later when it is necessary to buy coal, winter supplies, winter clothing etc.

Now many are unable to pay in November and they do not pay until January or later. Meanwhile the town is paying interest on money borrowed for current expenses. It may be said that the town collects interest on unpaid taxes, but not until Nov. 18 this year and some it never collects. The earlier a tax bill is paid the better. When a property owner has a large tax bill unpaid he is not so free to make expenditures for improvements and supplies, so that business generally is dull, and business men find collections slow.

It is not the object of this series of articles to increase the payroll of town officials, but nevertheless Assessors are not properly paid for what is expected of them. By decreasing the number of Assessors from five to three, better results can is properly done. "Shopping Consultant" are the words engraved on the cards of Mrs. Kate Pierce Thayer, formerly of Weymouth, who holds a unique position in the Roosevelt hotel, New York. Mrs. Thayer is all that the term implies to the women guests of the hotel and in addition, she has charge of the Teddy Bear Cave, one of the most delightful features of the new hotel.

Friday Evening

Just now Mrs. Thayer is tremendously busy equpping the Teddy Bear Cave-which is really a nursery playhouse for children; and she has gone be obtained, and the town can well to all parts of the world for toys, and afford to pay the three twice as much games and novelties. Any day now as it now pays the five, if the work will see the arrival of glorious, skin covered hobby horses from England, to be ridden by the junior guests of the Roosevelt. And every day sees more toys, more ingenious playthings unpacked. Only this past week, a fine sleek slide was christened by Eddie Cantor, who after chuting down its satiny length pronounced it the best he'd ever tried. Mrs. Cantor was nearby, fearing that Eddie would ruin his brand new suit-but although he experimented with all the toys there, his suit remained unhurt.

As president of the Massachusetts Total Abstinence Society and a resident of Hingham, Gov. Long was familiar with every phase of the local liquor situation.

A meeting of the W. C. T. U. was immediately called and a committee appointed to investigate the Boston Law and Order League, which was attracting a good deal of attention. On the report of this committee the women voted to organize a league. and the following officers were elected H. B. Reed, G. L. Wentworth, G. C. Forrey and C. A. Hunt.

The story is told of the late Wm H. Reed that when his attention was called to a knotty question in genealogy, on which the best authorities of my own interest in Early American disagreed, he remarked, "Why in the world don't they consult Wm. Reed's original manuscript?"

T THE intersecting cross street on Fifth avenue where Jim Halloran's uplifted arm ruled as far as the eye could reach, the maroon limousine in which she rede always passed without waiting. It was two months since she had first come. A block in the traffic, and Jim, striding from his central post, had found himself just outside her door. The door window was open; a faint odor of violets came to him. He looked in and encountered her eyes-dark, and infinitely sad-and then caught his breath at the sheer loveliness of her proud head, the golden hair gleaming beneath the small hat, the skin soft and deadly white under two hectic spots of rouge, the dash of crimson you let the car through." He turned and untangled the mass about him. Moving at his direction the machines fell into order, going on. As he passed the maroon car a second time he found her intent gaze still upon him. His white gloved hand went to his cap in salute. She smiled faintly, sine approaches a certain intersecting Under the paint the curves of her lips were delicious.

After that he watched for her, and she knew. At first she came alone. Then one day a red-faced, pudgy man sat beside her, large nosed, with highly colored clothes, whose fat hand, held outside the window, clasped a cigar, half smoked, with a band on. Jim knew his kind and wondered. After ten years on the police force Jim Halloran reverenced "good" women. Her eyes sought his; his hand flew to salute; she smiled faintly. The man stared.

But nearly always she came at the same hour, and alone. Each day her eyes sought his, questioning, receiving in return the answer he sent her as best he could. He stood a full minute beside her; drinking in the beauty of the pallid face with its closed eyes. Voices sounded in the corridor. Jim stepped into the next room, found the cock and closed it. The elevator boy and the red-faced man had entered. The boy with one glance at the still figure, turned and fled, but the man walked to the bed and looked at her. A quiver shook his bulk; he raised himself erect and stared at Jim.

Wedding Rice

The custom of throwing rice over a bride and groom is believed to be a survival of the ancient religious practice of the Hindus and Chinese. In the Orient rice is the emblem of fecundity and throwing it on a newly married couple symbolizes bestowing or a sponge. As soon as a section is fertility on the bridal pair. The custom still retains some of its original significance in India. The bridegroom throws three handfuls of rice over the bride and the bride does the same over the bridegroom. In this country rice throwing is little more than a joke by friends and neighbors of the bride and bridegroom. In more recent years it has become common on such occasions to use bonbons or confetti instead of rice or other grain.

SUGGESTIONS ON BAKING CAKE OR BREAD

The Size and Construction of the Oven Make a Difference in Baking.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Ovens of varying sizes and construction do not always bake in the same way, even though the thermometer may record the same temperature in every case. A joint will roast, or a cake or loaf of bread bake quite as well in a large, heavy oven at a temperature 50 degrees lower than in a smaller, thinnerwalled gas range oven through which a blast of hot air is rapidly circulating. says the United States Department of Agriculture.

The larger sizes of loaf, roll, muffin, potatoes and such usually require lower temperature for longer periods, and the smaller sizes higher temperatures and shorter periods, other things being equal.

The shape of the loaf or roll is important. A half-pound sponge cake or angel-food cake baked in a Turk's head pan (center tube) stands a comparatively high temperature better than does the same weight of cake baked as an ordinary loaf.

The composition of the batter or dough largely governs the baking temperature. A plain loaf cake, containing comparatively little sugar, egg and fat, requires greater care and a more gradually applied heat than does a richer cake; It should therefore be put into a cool oven in order to get the best results.

Rugs Can Be Cleaned at Home With Good Success

Rag and lightweight cotton rugs can be washed in the tub or the washing machine in lukewarm soapsuds, like any other heavy colored material, but they must be rinsed thoroughly to prevent them from looking grimy. Spreading the wet rug on the grass and turning the hose on it, or dashing pails of water over it, is sometimes the easiest and best way of rinsing, the United States Department of Agriculture says.

Woolen rugs may also be cleaned at home successfully if there are good facilities for drying. Spread the rug on a table or other flat surface of convenient height and scrub with a heavy lather of mild soap, using a soft brush scrubbed clean rinse it with water: change as soon as it becomes discol-

BURR GHERKINS ARE GOOD FOR PICKLES

Action of Brine.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Burr gherkins are very closely related to the cucumber. The chief differences are their small size and the fact that the surface is covered with spines. The burr gherkin is a

The curing of gherkins is very similar to that of cucumbers, says the United States Department of Agricul-

It has been found that these fruits respond very readily to the action of brine. A 40 per cent brine, made by dissolving one pound of salt in nine pints of water, is the most satisfactory strength to use for burr gherkins. As the brine must be maintained at the same strength throughout the entire process of curing, and as juices which dilute the brine are drawn out of al: products, it is necessary to add sall from time to time. A salinometer. which is a simple, inexpensive piece of apparatus, is the best means of determining when the brine is of the re quired strength. Its use is recom mended wherever possible, especialy if any quantity is being handled Lacking a salinometer, a simple house hold test for a 40 per cent brine is to drop a fresh egg in it. The egg should barely float, being almost submerged. A keg or stone jar is satisfactory for brining. Kegs must be well washed with hot water, and soaked overnight with fresh water to be sure they are watertight. Round board covers, coated with hot paraffin, are used to keep the vegetable submerged in the brine. Clean bricks are used as weights. Another large round wood cover over the top of each keg is necessary to keep out dirt and dust.

At frequent intervals it is necessary to remove, with a large wooden spoon, the scum which forms on the surface. This contains wild yeast, molds and various organisms. Covers and weights should be washed and the strength of the brine tested whenever the scum is being cared for.

Gherkins should be gathered while yet green and tender. If allowed to become too ripe, the outer coating becomes hard and tough, and the curing process does not proceed properly. After curing, the flavor and appearance of gherkins is much like that of brined cucumbers and their final treatment should be very much the same. They can be made into either sweet or sour pickles and are fine for mixed pickles.

Government Recipe for Making Tomato Catsup

Use ripe tomatoes. Cut in half, cook thoroughly, strain through colander or sieve. To one gallon of this strained pulp add two tablespoonfuls of salt, one of pepper, three of sugar, one of powdered mustard, two pods of red pepper, sliced and with seeds removed, and a small muslin bag containing one tablespoonful of whole alispice, one of bits of cir-namon bark, one of pepper corns and one of whole cloves. Boll rapidly for about two hours, or until thick; then add two cupfuls of vinegar; boll again, if necessary to thicken further, after taking out the spice bag. Pour into scalded bottles and seal, while hot, with new corks. One-half cupful of chopped white onions may be cooked with the tomato pulp, if desired. (Recipe furnished by United States Department of Agriculture.)

Dogs Need Frequent Release From Chain

The following humane appeal made by a correspondent in the Dog World shows pointedly how dogs are the victims of a cruel practice; how their dispositions may be spoiled, and their lives rendered unnatural and un-

"May I plead through your columns for the better treatment of dogs who are continually chained, sometimes for weeks and months, without being liberated from their imprisonment? The other day a man stated in a police court that his dog had not been off the chain for twelve months; from its puppyhood, it had been fastened up without an hour of liberty.

"As a lover of dogs I hold that every dog is entitled to regular exercise. and that it is unjustifiable cruelty to imprison a dog for life. Such treatment makes a dog hopeless and miserable; he becomes dejected and often savage, and his health suffers se-

"A young dog can be trained to be a guard without chaining, and the best watchdogs are those which are not chained. Chains are a heritage of bygone days and should be abolished."

The best way to keep a dog that needs restraint is to put him in a yard with a high fence. If this is not practicable, fasten a wire across any yard; on this put an iron ring which, when attached by a cord to the dog's collar. will allow him to run backward and forward the full length of the wire. The yard should have shade as well as sunshine, to protect the dog from too great heat of the sun.

Fought to Establish

Jewish Independence

The Maccabees was the name of a family in Syria, which during the Second century before Christ, resisted the persecutions inflicted upon the Jewish nation by the Seleucidae.

After the death of Mattathias, the leader of the revolt, in 166 B. C., his son Judas Maccabaeus, defeated the Syrians in three battles, reconquered Jerusalem, purified the temple, and restored the worship of Jehovah, says the Kansas City Star. He was slain in ambush in 161 B. C., and was succeeded by his brother, Jonathan, who was raised to the dignity of high priest, but was afterward treacherous- itiative. ly slain at Ptolemais in 144 B. C., by Tryphon, the guardian of the young prince Antiochus Theos.

His brother, Simon, then succeeded the leadership_of the commonwealth, and completely established the independence of the Jews. After seven yars of beneficent rule, he was murdered, together with his two sons, by his son-in-law, Ptolemy, who vainly hoped to be chosen his successor. John Hyrcanus, son of Simon, was the next ruler. He renewed the alliance with. Rome, conquered Idumaea, and took the title of king, 107 B. C. Syria became a Roman province in 63 B. C.

Palladium in Legend

The Palladium was a famous wooden image of Pallas (Minerva), said to have been hurled from heaven by Zeus, and to have fallen near the tent of Ilus, while he was engaged in building Illium (Troy). The oracle of Apollo having declared that the city should never be taken so long as Palladium was retained within its walls, the statue was placed in a sanctuary and carefully guarded. It was, however, finally stolen by Ulysses and Diomedes about 1184 B. C., and thus victory was secured to the Greeks. According to some accounts, Troy contained two Palladia, one of which was stolen and conveyed to one of the Greek cities, while the other was taken to Italy by Aereas and secretly guarded by the Romans in the Temple of Vesta. The word "palladium" is sometimes used at the present day to signify a pledge of security and protection.-Kansas City Star.

Timber Well Protected

Outright theft of timber is rare in the national forests. Each year there are some cases of timber trespass, but usually these trespasses happen through no criminal intent. They are frequently due to imperfect title records on the part of private operators. The government maintains a corps of rangers and forest guards on the national forests, who in the course of their daily work are constantly traveling through the forest areas under their jurisdiction. This patrol prevents deliberate theft and discovers and corrects unintentional trespass. The penalty for deliberate trespass is severe and is applied rigorously.

Primitive Customs in Cornish Fishing Town

A place where grown men play marbles with the zest of schoolboys and where cats catch live fish among the rock pools when the tide is out. Such a place does exist, and in the quaint old fishing town of St. Ives, in faraway Cornwall, these things may be

In the cool of the evening, along the broad road bordering the sheltered harbor, numerous groups of hardy fishermen, with sea and sun-tanned complexions, play marbles for hours at a time, surrounded by many interested onlookers, remarks London Tit-Bits.

Grizzled old mariners, many of whom preserve the old Cornish custom of wearing small gold earrings, pace the quayside in parties of three and four, following the "walk four steps and turn," which is all they are able to do on the clear space on the decks of their luggers.

There is a legend about the cats of St. Ives, but there was surely never another fishing town with so many cats. Each morning, when the night's catches of mackerel, dogfish and skate are brought ashore, the fish are cleaned on tables placed near the water's edge and scores of cats have a glorious feed on the offal.

Failures Caused by Lack of Initiative

One of the greatest improvements of the automobile is the self-starter, now found on all but the cheapest kinds of cars, which need to be

The device suggests the reflection that a very large proportion of the human family require something of like

They lack initiative, voluntary effort; they need cranking in the form of orders or directions before doing anything worth while.

The men and women who succeed best in life and get the most out of it are of the self-starter type. They don't wait to be told or advised what to undertake, but proceed of their own accord to do things.

The great inventors, such as Edison, are all of this sort, says the Sacramento Bee. They are originators, not mere followers or imitators, and they rank among the chief benefactors of the world.

So it is in business. literature, art, the various industries, and, in fact, all occupations. Success in each is dependent chiefly upon originality or in-

The Unity of Nature

Nature can only be conceived as existing to a universal and not a particular end: to a universe of ends, and not to one-a work of ecstasy to be represented by a circular movement, as intention might be signified by a straight line of definite length. Each effect strengthens every other. There is no revolt in all the kingdoms from the common weal; no detachment of an individual. Hence the catholic character which makes every leaf an exponent of the world. When we behold the landscape in a poetic spirit, we do not reckon individuals. Nature knows neither palm nor oak, but only vegetable life, which sprouts into forests and festoons the globe with a garland of grasses and vines .-Emerson.

Unique British Island

Most of Britain's islands have their story, which is sometimes unique. The most striking instance, perhaps, is Sunk island, in the Humber-a little world that has the peculiar distinction of being the youngest bit of

It is, in point of age, a mere bant-Hng, having been formed in comparatively recent times of land carried away by the sea from the northeast coast. This land was swept down to Spurn head and then up the Humber, where it lodged and in time formed an island. The process is still going on, and as a result the island continues to grow. The public is enriched without knowing it; for this curious formation is the property of the Crown,

Rawlinson Was Peeved

A number of good stories center around General Lord Rawlinson, who for 40 years was connected with the British army in India. The general was brought prominently before the British public eye by being home on furlough. While he was in command of a column during the South African war, Lord Rawlinson was constantly sending in demands for beliographs, with no result. At last when drawing near Kroonstadt, in what was then the Orange River colony, he signaled again to ask whether his heliographs had arrived. Officialdom, however, was rampant, and wanted to know "What do you want them for?" Back went the reply with caustic brevity, "To fry kidneys on, of course!"

Line of Least Resistance Janet's husband was a simple old

One day the good laundress wanted her husband to paint the mangle. Having told him what to do, she went out to buy the dinner.

On her return she could see no sign of her husband in the cellar. "Joe! Joe!" she called. "Where are

"Upstairs!" replied Joe from above. "What are you doing up there?" "Painting the mangle."

"What are you painting up there for?" "Well, the paint was up here!" replied Joe.

CHRYSLER SEDANS

In conformity with its announced purpose to produce only the highest quality motor cars, the Chrysler Motor Corporation reports that it has adopted "Fisher Bodies" for its enclosed standard sedan, imperial sedan, new crown imperial and new royal coupe. Chryslers with the new bodies are now on display in the showrooms of the Central garage at Quincy.

"Recognizing the ability of the Fisher Body Corporation in its fieldthat of building closed car bodiesbodies by Fisher are now standard on these models," reads the factory announcement. "Bodies by Fisher, built to the higher qaulity standard, D. A. Jones, North Weymouth are not surpassed even by the most H. O. Collyer, Thomas Corner expensive custom coachwork, we believe. Walter P. # Merchants--Attention

It has come to the attention of the Gazette and Transcript that agents for cut (illustration) and advertising services have told local merchants that "The Gazette-Transcript recommends this service."

The Gazette advertising department recommends no advertising services except on Gazette letterheads over the signature of someone in authority on the newspaper, and very seldom does this, as many of these services are poor.

The Gazette maintains a cut service for merchants which is available at all times and will gladly give advice on others. We will be glad to recommend any outside cut service if it is considered of merit and suitable to the advertiser's needs, as the Gazette-Transcript's own service is not conducted for profit and there is no prejudice because of "competition".

National Convention Of the Red Cross

Miss Myra Mitchell mepresented Weymouth chapter at the National Conference of the Red Cross at Washington and writes interestingly of the enthusiastic event:

A First Aid railroad car is being used, the railroads giving their generous assistance entirely on company time. The car has already travelled 16,000 miles, been to 1000 cities and demonstrations with instruction have been given before 140,000 persons.

Chapters on the flines are notified in advance and as many groups as possible are arranged—as many as 16 in a day. Dr. Redden characterized the car as the most effective method of broadcasting First Aid information the Red Cross has ever devised, but the real effectiveness of the work, he stated, would rest ultimately with the chapters, who should carry on the program initiated by the car, being assured that interest was sustained.

Dedham Transcript Says Weymouth Gazette Right

of November 15, comments editorially on "Weymouth Needs Publicity." claiming that all town officials should give information over their signa-

"The Weymouth Gazette-Transcript is entirely right in as plea for more publicity in the public affairs of that live town. The day is long passed when affairs of any municipality may safely be shrouded in darkness or left to the haphazard security of a billboard. Before the days of modern newspapers, and by the way, Weymouth is not lacking in this, there was some excuse for publishing town doings on a fence post, but that reason no longer exists."

"The town of Weymouth is altogether too large, too influential, and its citizens are too widely separated, for intelligent diffusion of official information outside the columns of a newspaper. It is not to the credit of Weymouth that its people must consult Boston newspapers in order to get intelligent official information on such matters as election news. The town newspapers should carry this information, duly signed and authenticated by the town officials."

Bay State Press Finds Royal Host

The Massachusetts editors are still writing of their visit to Weymouth recently. The Publishers Auxiliary, a National weekly, says:

All roads converged at East Wey mouth Monday noon, Oct. 20, when the members of the Massachusetts Press association, with their ladies, swooped down upon Editor Prescott's splendid newspaper establishment.

Pierce Arrows, Locomobiles and other less expensive motor cars were parked along the street on which the in' chickens and selling 'em." office is located, making it almost impassable to general traffic, and proving that editors of weekly papers. especially Massachusetts editors, can afford to ride in first-class cars.

Editor Frank F. Prescott, Mrs. Prescott. Carl. Mrs. Carl and the adorable twins, were on hand to welcome the guests and to show them an interesting time. After inspecting the Gazette and Transcript's new building and its excellent equipment, a dainty luncheon was served by the Prescotts in the business offices and counting room. Following the luncheon the business meeting was held, and two new members were added to the roster.

At the conclusion of the business meeting President Gardner E. Campbell, in behalf of the members of the press association, in a few well chosen remarks, presented Editor Prescott with a handsome wall clock for his business office. That the gift was highly prized and the sentiment appreciated was evident by the fact that Mr. Prescott was for some few minutes unable to respond.

Members of Reynolds post, G. A. R., town officials, clergy and business men were also guests at the luncheon and after the meeting the Weymouth guests served as guides for the visitors and with one in each out-of-town car, besides the cars furnished by Weymouth citizens, the visitors were taken on a tour of inspection about! own-or rather about the "numerous Weymouths," for the town covers an unusually large area.

The board of selectmen were in session and a visit was first made to their quarters where the "keys" to the town were given to the visitors. President Campbell acknowledged with thanks the receipt of the keys.

The next gathering was in the to Fido. Weymouth High school auditorium where 800 pupils gathered and held brief exercises. Frank Prescott presided and introduced the superintendent of schools and principal of the high school. Mr. Campbell was again called upon, unexpectedly, and responded briefly on behalf of the visitors. The new annex to the high check cost $300 000 and a brief inspection of the building followed.

A brief visit to oth r points of inerest followed, including some of the ndustrial plants and historic points, in which Weymouth abounds by reason of its being the first town in the country to apply for a town charter. The visitors were much pleased with the courtesies shown by the Weymouth editor and his family, and by the townspeople generally.

-A small mouse got mixed up in the machinery of the Central Electric generating plant of Lille, France, recently, causing a short circuit. The mouse was burned to a cinder, the alternating turbine burst into flames and a large part of the big plant was destroyed, causing $20,000 damage.

-Two royal tombs from hte Valley of the Kings will be erected in the Field Museum of Natura History at Chicago. Each tomb will contain several rooms and in each burial crypt the genuine mummy of a king and queen will be placed in a sarcophagus.

There are 1,084,128 women engaged in agriculture, foresry and animal husbandry in the United States.

SHE KNEW DADDY

A small child was having her first ride in a subway train. Suddenly the train passed over some points and the lights went out for a moment. When they went up again, the little girl said: "Did you do that, daddy?"

Daddy denied it. "Well," replied his small daughter,

"it's just the sort of thing you would do,"-Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

"I don't know whether to publish this testimonial," said the inventor of a new hair restorer.

"What does it say?" asked a friend. "Before I used your hair restorer I had three bald patches on my head. Now I have only one!" read the inventor with a smile.-Wisconsin Agri-

Fourth of a series of advertisements regarding the telephone situation in New England

Pulling Together

We are going to need, during the next five years, $100,000,000 of new money to extend telephone facilities for present and future subscribers of this company.

In order to get it we must demonstrate your willingness to pay for it, because money has its market price just as corn or cotton has; and we must get this money from the telephone investor rather than from the telephone user.

Some telephone users seem to think that their monthly payments for service supply the money with which to build telephone plant. This is not so. Telephone users do something equally important, however. By adequate payments for service they provide a fair return on the property built with the money supplied by telephone investors.

We expect to get new money, as needed, from the savings of New England people. One-fourth of our stockholders have five shares or less each; nine-tenths of them less than fifty shares each. They, and others like them, will continue to put their savings at your service provided they are paid for its use and their investment is protected.

New England needs this new money in order to further develop an efficient telephone system. We ask only for rates that will enable this company to get it and thus to continue its service as an asset to the business and social welfare of New England.

GRATITUDE

A THANKSGIVING THOUGHT

By J. Caleb Justice With all the modern man's insistence on being practical in every phase of his life, there ject, "If the religion of the Puritans are certain splendid sentiments that govern him: friendship, loyalty, patriotism, gratitude. The first is seen in his propensity to be a "joiner" of lodges on Thanksgiving morning at 7.30 and fraternal orders, which are o'clock at the Congregational church. but groups of friends. His All welcome. loyalty is to some cause dear FIRST CHURCH CONGREGATIONAL to his heart, such as home. For "in every man," as Van Dyke says, "there is a ruling passion, the very pulse of the machine." He is patriotic for however he giving music. at times may find fault with his representatives, he believes in his government. Witness the evidence in the recent natic al election. A mong the finer sentiments is Gratitude, evidence of delicate feeling. A part of it is the appreciative intelligence. Not all of our human relationships can the Kingdom of God." be expressed in dollars and cents. The reciprocity of service and gratitude makes life so much more worth while. The simple "thank you" packs a tremendous amount of real value.

Thanksgiving Day is characteristically American. Even from the year 1623 when the Pilgrims gathered in their rude meeting-house and listened to the sermon by Elder Brewster because the rain descended and M. Professor John C. Scammell. their crops were saved, the custom spread throughout the country until in 1864 President Lincoln issued the proclamation designing the last Thursday in November as an annual national by the pastor tion of God."

-Joseph B. Vinal, 69, town's best known and highly respected citizens, died suddenly and unexpectedly at the Weymouth hospital Monday where he had been under treatment for some time for a broken leg and other injuries received when he was hit by an auto on Quincy avenue, East Braintree, a few weeks ago. He was apparently on the road to recovery when he was stricken with a heart attack. He was an engineer and was for years employed at the George H. Bicknell & Co. factory, going from there to the Old Colony Gas Co. plant and then to the Cities Service plant on Quincy avenue where he was employed at the time of his accident, being hit just as he was to board a car to go to the plant. He was a member of Wessagusset lodge of Masons, Wildey lodge of Odd Fellows; Delphi lodge, Knights of Pythias, and the Weymouth Firemen's Relief Association. He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Florine E. Ducker, 90 Main street, and with whom he had resided for many years. -The funeral took place from the Second Universalist church, South Weymouth, yesterday afternoon and the service was conducted by the pastor of the church, Rev. William D. Veazie, and a former pastor, Rev. L. W. Attwood of Abington. The will follow.

Alimony of $500 a month, custody of two children and a divorce were granted by the judge to Mrs. Lillian M. Green of Weymouth, from Walter E. Green, well known in the moving picture business. According to the testimony of Mrs. Green, she found a letter from an actress in her husband's pocket, and he said that he had been drinking. He told his wife he would go his own way and for Mrs. Green to do likewise, but he agreed to provide for the children which he did. The Greens have been separated since 1915, and the man makes his home in New York. Mrs. Green told the court that her husband was mixed up in the Mishawum case. Mrs. Catherine Wolcotrob of Weymouth in her suit for divorce from Daniel L. Wolcotrob, whom she charged with desertion, testified that her husband ran away May 3, 1921, and she has not seen him since. She asserted that it was not the first time that he had departed. Only a short time after their wedding day, Oct. 26, 1914, he went away, but returned after several weeks. Judge McCoole took the

SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

By Rev. Alan Pressley Wilson (C. 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

> T CHRISTMAS be merry, and And feast thy poor neigh-bors, the great with the small.

> So wrote the poet Tusser many years ago, but the suggestion is just as pertinent today as it was then.

If anything, we need to be reminded of our duty to our fellowman more today than our fathers did -more today, indeed, than ever before. This is true because the need for brotherhood is even more patent than at any other period of the history of the world.

We live in an age when we think solely of ourselves and our immediate families and we should have brought to our attention the fact that we owe a debt to our neighbor and that that debt must be paid. The story is told of a rich man who prayed-Oh, Lord! bless me and my wife, My son, John, and his wife;

Us four

We blush for shame that there could be found one who is so narrow, yet I am assured that such people exist today. There are those who, when they have satisfied the needs of their own, assume a self-satisfied air and say that they have done their whole duty. Approach such a person and remind him of the need of a friend or a neighbor and he will ask the time-worn question: "Am I my brother's keeper? Haven't I enough to do to look after my own family?" The teachings of Jesus Christ answer the first question in the affirmative (and the latter in the negative) with even more emphasis than God answered Cain when he originated the selfish inquiry. Jesus taught that the Decalogue is summed up in the greater commandment-"Thou shalt love they neighbor as thyself," and His definition of "neighbor" is any one who needs our help. Territorial or other limitations do not apply when the case of one in need is before us.

There is no geographical limitation when we are extending the hand of assistance to one who needs our help wherever there is found one or more whom we can (and should) assist, there neighborliness must begin.

A minister once approached one of his parishioners with the request for a contribution for the purpose of doing Christian work abroad. The particular field he bad in mind was China. The man replied that he was willing to help his neighbors but did not think he was called upon to help those as far away as China. "Whom do you consider your neighbor?" asked the minister. "The man whose farm adjoins me," was the prompt reply. "How far down into the earth does your land extend?" was the next question and the farmer just as promptly answered: "To the center!" "Very well," said the minister quickly, "There is a man down in China whose land joins yours at the center of the earth; he is therefore your neighbor and needs your help." This was a new thought to the slowgoing church member. He learned his lesson and we need to learn the same. Only as we do so will we be able to broaden our lives into the fullness of the life of Jesus the Christ.

The application of the teaching of Jesus to business and society would produce a perpetual Christmas season; a time of peace and joy and happiness lasting throughout the year.

The giving of cheap presents or money, however, does not constitute Christmas; as well expect a bouquet of flowers (however lovely) to constitute summer! The Christmas spirit, rather than the Christmas show, honors Him whose birth, no less than His life, was the greatest Christmas gift the world has ever received. The Christmas spirit brings us into closer touch with Him whose very life was an exemplification of the precept: "It is more blessed to give than to re-

As we celebrate the anniversary of the birth of Jesus let not the going down of the sun mark the decline of the Christmas spirit but, as the days come and go, and we enter the new year, let us each one reach out the loving had to the sick, the unfortunate and the outcast, remembering that Jesus the Christ sald: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of one of these, my brethren, ye have done d unto Me!"

PINK EYE

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN Editor of "HEALTH"

..... P'NK eye is a very common and very uncomfortable condition. It is ordinarily known as "sore eyes." Almost everyone has had a mild or a severe attack at some time.

It generally occurs in warm weather and is caused by a small germ or plant, a near relative of the influenza

The infection is generally contracted through towels which have been used by an infected person or by bathing in swimming tanks which have been used by others having the disease. The germ may be carried through the air. The condition is often found in epidemics in schools. For the first two days after infection about the only thing noticed is a slight itching or irritation of the eye. as if a cinder or a grain of sand had gotten in. On the third morning the eyelids are often found stuck together so that the eye cannot be opened. The lids are swollen and bloodshot. The flow of tears is increased and burning of the lids is constantly present. The lowish in color and the lids become intensely congested and inflamed. The attack lasts from three to seven days. last for months.

To avoid this painful condition don't use towels that anyone else has used. Be sure that you bathe only in clean water. If your eyes begin to itch and smart, be sure that it isn't due to a cinder or a foreign body. If the irritation lasts more than two days, have a competent physician examine your four. eyes or, if this isn't possible, put on cloths wrung out of cold water, wash 3t,N7,14,21 the eyes frequently with boric acid solution, keep out of the dust and strong light and put one drop of a 20 per cent solution of argyrol (which can be bought, with a dropper, at your drug store) in each eye four or five times

Don't use patent medicines or eye drops. Don't put on bandages or poultices or anything else except cloths wrung out of cold water. Don't allow anyone else to use towels or cloths which you have used.

Weymouth High

Wins from Norwood

Weymouth High journeyed to Norwood last Saturday and defeated the strong Norwood squad, 21 to 7. The Norwood team has had a fine record for the season and expected an easy win over Weymouth.

Gibson kicked off to Dixon who was brought down on his own twenty-five yard line. After making one first down Norwood fumbled and Branley recovered for Weymouth. "Don" Whittle used good judgement in sending Dorey off on an end run; it caught the Norwood team unprepared and a touchdown was the result. Gibson kicked the goal.

The Norwood backs, lead by Capt. Spierdower gained constantly through the Weymouth line, every time they were in possession of the ball. But time and time again the Weymouth line held in the shadow of their own goal; taking the ball on downs. Four times Dorey was forced to kick from behind his own goal.

In the closing minutes of the second period Weymouth made their second score. On a forward from Dorey to Mauro, Mauro reached up and grabbed the ball from three Norwood men, and then with fine interference raced thirty yards for a touchdown. Gibson again kicked the goal.

In the third period Norwood was able to push over their only score. Dixon raced in blocked one of Dorey's punts and then fell on the ball on Weymouth's thirty yard line. A run around the end by Geary and line plunging by Spierdower were the cause of the score.

It was feared that here the Weymouth team might tire and go to pieces, but they would have it otherwise. For at this point Dorey got started again, having been deprived of a touchdown after a forty yard run, because of offside play, the Weymouth team went back to their positions determined to score. They did shortly after this when Dorey caught a punt on his own thirty yard line, and aided by the best possible interference ran seventy yards for a touchdown,

The Weymouth team played, as a whole, better than in any other game this year. The hard practice Coaches Whittle and Lyons put them to during the week had its effect. Dorey again was the outstanding star of the game, nothing being able to stop him once he got started in a broken field. Mauro and Keegan also played well in the backfield. On the line Capt. Kelly, Moulton and Gibson starred, while Branley and Murray p'jayed their positions at end exceptionally For Norwood Capt. Spierdower and Dixon played best. The substitutes put in during the last few minutes also played well.

Next Saturday the Weymouth team is playing the strong St. Mary's eleven from Waltham at the C. M. A. Field. The game will be closely contested throughout, as both teams are confident of victory. So far this season we have an undefeated team, a team with seven victories and one tie to New Railroad their credit. Such a team as this should receive the best support possible, from the townspeople, as well as the student body. The summary:

As in most cases the chapter has concerned itself mostly with the exservice man, although more and more civilian problems have been brought of Selectmen to our attention. With the ex-service man it has been usually a matter of The Selectmen at the meeting Montrying to present to the Veteran's standing. Often this is difficult, due to the lapse of time; however, some benefit by new government measures which are more lenient. In the course of the year there have been 30 ex-service men served, two are in active service at the present time and 32 civilian families. In covering this service there have been 30 office interviews, 160 calls made, 235 telephone communications, 122 letters received and 190 letters sent out.

It is interesting to note that besides come to us through 20 persons or agencies outside of Weymouth.

In November, 1923, Miss Hardwick of the New England division of the Red Cross, on three occasions met with a small group to discuss work in families.

WEYMOUTH, NOVEMBER 28, 1924

TOWN HOUSE NEEDED

Often the question is asked by strangers,-"Where is the business centre of Weymouth?" But there will be no business centre, or no civic centre, until a Town Hall is built, or a Town House with offices to properly house all the town officials There is needed in Weymouth a community center. There is needed a Town House like Braintree, Arlington and other progressive towns. Today there is too much jealousy-South Weymouth is not interested in North Weymouth, and Weymouth is not interested in South Weymouth. Weymouth Landing thinks it is the business centre, while East Weymouth now has the town offices, more manufactories, more business houses, and is the meeting place of most of the organizations of the town. The Grand Army and other patriotic orders meet in East Weymouth; the Knights of Columbus and auxiliaries meet in East Weymouth; the Masons have a temple at East Weymouth where four bodies meet-the Blue lodge, the Chapter, the Council and the Commandery; the Odd Fellows have an the Rebekahs; the Monday Club with Weymouth and Weymouth Landing zens are successful. meets in East Weymouth, as do other organizations; the Davis B. Clapp Memorial Hall and Field are located in East Weymouth, which for the want of a better place have become

But Weymouth should not depend upon the charity of the Clapp Memorial Association for a community centre. Several times it has admirably come to the rescue during the World War, at the Tercentenary celebration, the memorial to President Harding, its Chautauqua, and provided a field for High school athletics, and Weymouth is greatly indebted to the Clapp family.

However, after all is said and done, Weymouth is slipping because it has no Town House. Because it cannot adequately house the town officialsthe Selectmen, the Assessing department, the Tax Collector, the Water Department, the Town Accountant, the Town Clerk, the Superintendent of Streets, and other departments.

The entrance to the present Town Offices in the Savings Bank building is unsightly, because it is crowded with election paraphernalia,-ballot boxes, ballots, etc. The Town Clerk is required to preserve all ballots cast at election for a long period because of recounts, contests, etc., but serious complications might result in case of a contest if someone spirited away the ballots left in this hallway; they are there today. At the head of the stairway is the ONLY toilet on the second floor, for ALL the town offices, and the public generally. The law requires that all manufactories and office buildings, where both sexes are employed shall maintain separate toilets, one or more for the men; one or more for the women. How does Weymouth get by? Is it a proper arrangement?

The Gazette building has seven toilets. At best there are only four rooms; two small ones which the Water department have appropriated, leaving one large room for the Selectmen. Overseers of the Poor, Town Clerk and Superintendent of Streets, also for public hearings, meetings, etc., and one other room for the Town Accountant, Assessors, Tax Collector and others.

All these officials use one vault which is overcrowded, and is often left open and unguarded, especially during the noon hour, when fire might start, or bandits arrive on the scene. Nothing has been said about a large hall, but Weymouth needs such a hall as a community centre, regardless of whether the revenue would be sufficient to maintain it or not We need it for the good of the town. As Weymouth grows and prospers such a hall would not become a burden but a blessing. Such a Memorial Town House as was proposed for Weymouth a few years ago should

NOW be built. The need is more apparent now than then, especially if Weymouth is going to have daily sessions of the Board of Selectmen and Overseers of the Poor, and daily sessions of the Last quarter, Dec. 19, 5.11 A. M. (east) Assessors and become a progressive Light autos at 4.44 P. M.

Plea for Statues of Creations of Authors

The citizens of Auch, the ancient capital of Gascony, have decided to erect a statue to D'Artagnan, hero of Alexandre Dumas' "The Three Musketeers" and "Twenty Years After."

In reality, of course, it is much more than a statue to D'Artagnan, who never existed for the world until Dumas called him into being. It is more than a statue to Charles de Baatz Castlemore, the original of Dumas' hero, who was born not far from Auch. It is really a statue to Dumas and the human imagination.

Everything that has made D'Artagnan memorable and international came from a great maker of romances-D'Artagnan is one of the many creations of poets and writers that have become more real than real men.

It is always a fine thing to see recognition of such, the New York Sun comments. There might even be more statues to great characters of literature and fewer statues to little characters of "real" life. While there is no harm in remembering a man who leaves a fountain or a park to a village, the men who have left Odysseus, Hamlet, Falstaff, Faust, Jean Valjean and Natty Bumppo are, after all, the more deserving.

Refused to "Fall" for Bishop's Second Scheme

A western minister tells a story, according to the Kansas City Star, showing how a bishop, accosted in a Chicago street by a neat but hungry stranger, derived profit from the encounter.

Now the bishop took a fancy to the needy one, took him to a hotel and shared a good dinner with him. Yet, having left his episcopal wallet in the pocket of a different episcopal jacket, he suddenly faced the embarrassm nt of not having the wherewithal to pay for the dinner.

"Never mind," exclaimed the guest, "I have enjoyed dining with you, and I shall be charmed to pay the price.

And the stranger paid for the two. This worried the prelate, who insisted: "Just let me call a taxi and we'll run up to my place, where I shall have the pleasure of reimbursing you." But the stranger met the suggestion with: "See here, old man! You've stuck me for a bully good dinner, but hanged if I am going to let you stick me for taxi fare!"

Ebony Mentioned in Bible

The deep black heartwood, which is most highly prized in a number of trees of the ebony family, is mentioned -The old Baltimore shot tower, in the Bible in Ezekiel 27:15, in concount of their value and of their contrasting colors. Ebony was once supposed to grow in the ground "without root or leaves" and to it were ascribed many miraculous powers. The chief source of the ebony wood is the Island of Ceylon, where huge logs of the pure heartwood are cut and hauled to the coast. For interior decorations and furniture ebony has been superseded by rosewood and mahogany, but for cabinet work it is still widely employed, being exported from Madagascar, Jamaica, India and Egypt. A species of the ebony tree which is used as a veneer also grows in the southern United States,-Wash-Ington Star.

Modern Noah's Ark

Barro Colorado island was formed when the valleys about it were flooded by the impounding of the waters of the Chagres river to form Gatun lake, says the Detroit News. It resembles Noah's ark in that there gathered as the waters rose nearly every form of animal life in the vicinity, seeking escape from the rising flood.

Despite that it is only two miles from the Panama river, it has been found to harbor amphibians of new and strange habits as yet unstudied and innumerable species of insects never described, as well as many strange and exotic plants, numbering 2,000 or more. It abounds with anteaters, sloths, armadillos, peccaries, tapir, agoutis, coatis, the ocelot, the jaguar, many species of bat, monkeys of various kinds and the famous black howlers.

Cameo Cutting Hard Work

Much skill is exercised by the expert cameo cutter. He can only work at his task for a few hours at a time. because of nerve strain. A quavering hand may be responsible for the single stroke which will spoil a week's work. He must have an eye like a microscope, and a very delicate touch; he must be an artist in soul, and as skillful a craftsman as is a watchmaker; he must know how to model and draw. and he must have a knowledge of chemistry, so as to remove offending spots. The work is executed in relief on many kinds of hard or precious stones, but especially the chalcedonic variety of quartz and on shells.

Worse Than Devil's Island

Easter is and in the South Pacific is about the most undesirable place on earth for human habitation. No trees grow on the island because it lacks water and no birds will live there on account of their being no worms. The island is irregular in shape, being twelve miles by nine, by seven, and is very seldom visited by ships. Two hundred Polynesians inhabit it, and they suffer continually from hunger. It was first sighted in 1686. It was explored in 1722 and the island then had 2.000 inhabitants. - Scientific 4 merican.

National Convention

Of the Red Cross

It consists in the development of the school health program and according to Mr R. P. Lane, chairman this very mornin'. Ain't it wonderful, of the Education Committee of the American National Red Cross, if one is made physically fit for service, it is immoral not to see that he or she has the opportunity to serve. Mr. McDowell, India school inspector, was present to give his spontaneous and enthusiastic endorsement of the benefits which accrued through the development of the Junior Red Cross in the Indian Reservation. Some Juniors are already carrying on correspondence with their Indian brothers, but Mr. McDowell was ready with suggestions of other ways in which the Indian Juniors might be served by other Juniors.

Numerous ddelegates brought reflection upon senior members by relating how certain chapters had no program until the children and school authorities insisted upon having the schools enrolled in the Junior Red Cross. Then did the chapters become revitalized through an immediate awakening of chapter interest in Home Hygiene, the Public Health Nurse, Life Saving and First Aid.

All Junior workers were ready with sincere approval when it was announced that a Junior Red Cross High school magazine will soon be issued, which is designed to serve the same purpose in the secondary torians think?" schools as is served in the elementary grades by the Junior News. It was disclosed that a large number of High schools have already been interested in the Red Cross work and are thus prepared to move forward rapidly as soon as a definite program is submitted to them.

In speaking of our Junior Red Cross organizations in other lands, I must not neglect to bring before you some word of the League of Red Cross societies of which Judge Payne, our chairman, is also chairman.

Last November this league called conference in Buenos Ayres of the Pan American states and Judge Payne was there to act officially. All the American states were represented, all were enthusiastic, and genuinely desirous of learning how we conduct our operations, that they might benefit by example. All of the large amount of material in the way of posters, pamphlets, etc., which had been taken to the conference was taken up by the delegates and since the conference a number of those states or countries have conducted a roll call on the pattern of the American Red Cross.

In May our delegates attended a conference in Paris of the General council and board of governors of the League of Red Cross Societies

We are interested in the league because for the first few years of its existence, at our own invitation, the American Red Cross in view of war conditions of the other countries, financed the entire operation.

It has a membership of 51 National Red Cross societies. We are now financing it to an extent greater than any other, but all the societies are actually assisting in the financing.

The object of the league is to promote the welfare of mankind, to educate health nurses, co-ordinate relief in time of disaster and apply the latest medical discoveries to the problems of health. It endeavors to bring into existence societies in countries where they have not before had Red Cross societies and to stimulating those which have existed.

With all the inspiration which came to us in these four days of meetings in hearing of the accomplishments of the National organization and all its members, there was much of the most practical help gained because there was ample opportunity, both in the round tables and in the general sessions for the most free and frank discussion which was carried on with wonderful spirit. If the important subjects which found themselves being thrashed out in general session was the question of the relation of the Red Cross to community chests and the place for the next annual conference. No definite action was taken on the first question but much emphasis was laid upon the fact that the Red Cross in its Government connection and its international relations held quite a different position from local organizations.

Owing to the small representation from the Western States in spite of the recommendation of the conference committee, a very large majority carried the vote to hold the conference next year in St. Louis expressing the feeling that it is only fair for the west to have the opportunity to hear the Red Cross message.

I feel like saying with Judge Payne "I hope I may see you all in St. Louis next year." But now I only hope I may have conveyed to you some of the inspiration which came to me in attending the conference of this huge membership organization and I hope you may not have the experience of the professor's wife, who was entertained not long ago in the same house with Judge Payne. Judge Payne was naturally introduced as head of the Red Cross. The young woman, who is described as good looking and intelligent, said, "What is the Red Cross doing now? I supposed that the Red Cross quit when the war stopped." He said, "No, the Red Cross has never been busier. It never had a finer work than now." "Well" she said, "it must be because I am ignorant." He said, "Pardon me, my dear madam, I would not be impolite for the world, but I am afraid that is the truth."

ELECTED TO BE A MILLIONAIRE

By WALTER SCOTT STORY

(C. Doubleday, Page & Co.)

HEN Dick Gartside came into his boarding hoose for dinner on the evening that was to prove so memorable to him, he found on the hall table a long, plump, plain white envelope addressed to him in typewriting.

After dinner he went to his room and locked the door to prevent the unceremonious enfrance of his friends in the house. Upon opening the envelope he let out an excited gasp and stared of his decision to defer matrimony inat what he held in his hand.

The envelope contained a folded sheet of white paper bearing a few typewritten lines and had ten crisp ten-dollar bills clipped to it.

The missive was straight to the point and amazing, unbelievable, except for the earnest of its intent:

"Dear Mr. Gartside: "For reasons that you will know some time, you have been elected to be a millionaire. Think like one; act like one. Watch your

"THE MILLIONAIRES' CLUB." "Wake up!" said young Dick to himself. The thing couldn't be true; and yet the money was certainly genuine, for, handling and inspecting money every work day in the Gotham Trust company, he thought no counterfeit could deceive him. Who or what were the Millionaires? The thing couldn't be an advertising scheme-not with one hundred dollars of real money sent along. Advertisers may throw money away, but not in this manner.

On the next day Dick slipped his friends in the luncheon belt and put the one hundred on his savings account. Dick made a great show of being a sport and a spender-dressed well and was conversant with plays and amusements, through private reading; but in reality he was canny and saved money. He was so successful in pretending to be a spendthrift that Fisher Bliss, one of his fellow bank clerks and a boarder at his house, thought he was as hard up as he hinted he was-in as much of a pickle as Fisher himself really was.

In the following week two hundred dollars more came in the same kind of an envelope wrapped in a paper without watermark. Dick banked this, and splurged on a new suit that he had ordered and could easily pay for from his salary.

The third week five hundred dollars came, and he banked that. He wasn't exactly easy about the affair, but did "Afraid you will ruin your health, I get a feeling of being rich. His curiosity was at white heat; but he began to believe that there might be a band of rich men who elected some deserving young fellow and by divers ways made him wealthy. It was sure that if he received through the mail instructions to go in on some deal, he would go in-with the money sent to

He wanted to tell Bliss about the matter, but didn't, as he disliked to refuse making a loan. He wasn't mean, but lending cash to Fisher was like dropping good money overboard a thousand miles from land.

But his new feeling of financial greatness moved him to push a lukewarm affair with another boarder, Ruth Devens. In a week he'd found something worth more than anything all the millionaires in the world could give him.

"Dick, it's off-color," said his clever, pretty, brown-haired girl when he had told her of his "election" and about the steady mysterious remittances. "There are some queer things in this world, Ruth." "There are," she agreed. "This is one. You have all the money, you

"Yes," returned Dick, his jaw drop-

"Well, I didn't think you had any, so don't feel that it makes any difference to me," she said, jokingly. His serious ways amused her. "We've got to play detective, Dick. Anybody want your job in the bank?"

"Several fellows, I guess," he re

"Any rivals out for-me?" Ruth laughed at him. Although pleased, of course, at the fighting look that leaped into his gray eyes.

"I should think there'd be a lot, Ruth; but I don't think a rival would send me money."

Ruth snuggled up to him. "Dick, could anyone steal money from a bank for a long time and not get found out?"

"It's been done many a time." "Could you do it?"

"Why-yes," he answered, offended. "Could Fisher Bliss? Is he smart enough?"

"I think so." "You know he hates you?"

"Hates me? We're not chums-1 can't stand his kind-but he's a decent chap. No reason for it."

"He was-well, 'struck' on me, Dick, before you came. And I think he dislikes you, anyway. Can't you get a specimen of typing from every machine in your bank? Does Fisher know any stenographers outside?" "I imagine so. I'll get the specimens."

Dick secured the specimens, but they gave them no clue. "Dick," said Ruth, abruptly, one

"You're changing front, aren't you my dear?"

Ruth said she wasn't, and Dick didn't argue, for he was a very young man.

Dick now had a firm suspicion against Bliss, who certainly, he thought, hid guile and hatred behind book in the bank, but found nothing.

Perplexed and troubled he talked with President Faxon and fold him the story. Arr. Faxon thought the thing a hoax or a scheme with criminal in-tent behind it, and advised Dick to do just as he was doing-sit tight, bank the money and save envelopes for the day of explanation coming. Dick decided to postpone his marriage until he knew where he stood, momentarily fearing some trouble that would involve him.

On the late afternoon he came home with his mind set upon telling Ruth definitely, he went into the front room to marshal his faculties for what he knew would be an ordeal. While he sat there two of the bediamonded, silk-gowned elderly ladies of half wealth who may be found in almost any good boarding place met at the doorway of the room; and he heard his name and Ruth's mentioned. He deliberately pricked up his ears.

"That Devens girl set her cap for him from the first day she came," said Mrs. Barton. "There's something mysterious about her; an adventuress, I should guess."

"I saw it. It was simply disgusting. She was just crazy about him, but he couldn't see it," declared the other. "He's a nice boy. It's too bad."

"Oh, I suppose," said the second lady. "She's nice enough, but she isas you say, mysterious." She sniffed

"Old cats!" thought Dick, as they passed away.

But, of course, he turned over and over in his mind what he had overheard. In fact, Ruth was so different that he could see why they thought her mysterious.

After dinner he went out with Ruth as he had planned and told her his

Ruth was not frantic, but she was disturbed, and coaxed and argued with warmth and ingenuity, belittling his fears and declaring she wanted the privilege of standing with him no matter what trouble might come.

But he was firm, in concern for her. "Then I've got to tell y every-thing, pighead!" she excla....d, at length, clinging to his arm, her voice choking. "And I don't want to, and I'm afraid to!"

"What do you mean, Ruth!" "About the money-I'm the Millionaires' club." "You!" cried Dick, aghast.

"Yes-me, I'm really rich, you know. I've been working and living in the boarding house just for experienceuntil I met you. And I wanted you to make money and be rich and not draw away from me if you found out who l was. My last name is really Lucas. I'm John Lucas' daughter."

"Oh, Lord!" exclaimed Dick, staring at her. He remembered reading a newspaper item about Lucas' daughter leaving home and going to work, and had thought it a joke-a rich girl's silly whim. He knew the famous old millionaire Lucas by sight, and now saw Ruth's resemblance to him. "You don't have a revulsion for me, Dick, because I'm rich-and because I did what I did?"

"I don't like you a bit less," returned Dick, quickly making his action right there fit his words. He told the truth. The best part of it was that he wouldn't have liked her a bit less if she'd been the poor girl he

"You see, Dick," laughed Ruth, "you really were 'elected' to the millionaire class-that was true enough." Dick smiled. He was a real man, as he proved to the satisfaction of Ruth's grim, white-hot old dad. He did avail himself of Lucas' influence here and there, but it was many a long year before he really belonged to the Millionaire club. Eventually he belonged, but his "election" was in due form.

Ingenious Scheme for Public Writing Station

While it would seem that every man, woman and child in the country is supplied with a fountain pen, the statement is made that few of them will stand the test of use. That is to say, that through the "perversity of the inanimate" these pens are often empty when they are most urgently needed. Then there is the fellow who has had a suit ruined by a leaky pen, and he will not carry another. So it has been thought that there is demand for a public pen service and an inventor has recently taken out a patent on a fountain pen service for a public writing station. The pen is mounted upon a chain which rolls on a reel operated by a spring. When desired for use it may be withdrawn to catch at this point so that it may be used. After service, it is allowed to go back to its place on the reel within the base of the stand. This device may be coin-operated where desired or in the case of semi-public places, the coin-depositing ceremony may be dispensed with.

Two of the popular young resi dents of the Nash's Corner district were pleasantly surprised on Thursday evening last week, when Miss Catherine Andrews and her brother Newcomb, who left for Miami, Fla., on Tuesday afternoon were tendered a farewell party by a number of their young friends and classmates. The young folks gathered at the Association Building where they spent the evening with various games, music and dancing, followed by the serving of refreshments. Miss Catherine Andrews was presented with a $2.50 gold piece in behalf of the many friends who were present. Miss Katherine Melville presided at the piano, providing dance music, and Mrs. F. H. Andrews and Miss Melville were the hostesses.

-A feature of the Second Universalist church fair will be the "Remembrance" table which is to be in charge of Mrs. Roy Sherman chairman. This table is supported by gifts from members or former members of the church, who now reside at distant points and it is expected that gifts will be received from every state in the Union.

CONTRACTOR OF THE PROPERTY OF Weymouth F. A.

Wins from Rockland

Saturday, before a huge crowd of followers of the game, Coach Foley's Weymouth F. A. eleven stacked up against the Rockland A. A. team at Rockland.

Rockland was minus the services of Damon at tackle and Johnson at end; and Coach Dan O'Connell was at Syracuse to witness the game between his alma mater and Colgate.

The Weymouth eleven, snarting after its two defeats, went into the game with a vim and vigor that carried the Rockland men off their feet. Time and time again Dwyer ploughed through the line forcing Rockland to play her secondary de-fence men close in. Then Valicenti, Mauro, or Lonergan would swing around on an end run, which were stopped only by the brilliant playing of Sena and of Sney, who was in Johnson's position at right end.

Weymouth got its score in the first half, getting the ball on a punt, it went up to mid-field on a set of trick plays. Here Valicenti reeled off the signals and the ball was snapped, seemingly to Lonergan, who went thru tackle drawing the secondary defense men after him. The referee was in the act of blowing his whistle when Valicenti broke out from a knot of players to the right of the line of scrimmage and started for the goal line fifty yards away. He successfully eluded the Rockland men who were now aware of the trick, and the score was 6-0 in Weymouth's favor.

Dwyer added one point later on a placement kick, the ball going high and clean over. Thru the rest of the game Weymouth got a few more chances to score, but the Rockland line held them for downs.

For Weymouth Valicenti, Dwyer, Lonergan and Capt. Mauro did excellent carrying, and the line as a whole was great. Sney, Sena, Scott and Regan were the stars for Rockland. The summary:

The Actor's Christmas Party

By H. Lucius Cook

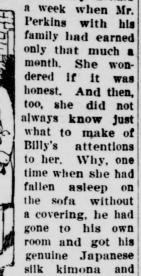

(6. 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

Center street was particularly thrilled at this time, because it had never before harbored a real live actor, and it could not quite get used to the idea.

Mrs. Perkins was a respectable middle-aged widow who had to take a few roomers to help out on expenses. She was not quite sure that it was right to have Billy rooming there, as she had an inherited prejudice against actors, but he paid twice as much as she had ever had before for the rooms, did not cause any extra bother, and so far as she could determine, was a human being much like the rest of us. It did seem strange to her, however, that a young unmarried man should receive one hundred and ffty dollars a covering, he had gone to his own room and got his genuine Japanese silk kimona and covered her with it. She had found it over her when she woke up.

Mrs. Perkins had just finished telling this and several other incidents to the Ladies' Aid society, when one of the progressive ladies asked:

"Well, what are we to do with him for Christmas? It doesn't seem right not to do anything, when he is away from his people and all."

Everyone else had been thinking the same thing, but had not dared mention it, and none of them had any suggestions to make. No one dared ask him to dinner (they were so shy), and Mrs. Perkins herself, who really should have asked him, had decided to go to the hotel so as not to have to do so. They certainly could not give him ties or socks, as Mrs. Perkins assured them that he had hundreds of socks and thousands of ties, which everyone readily believed, as they had never seen him dressed twice the same.

It certainly looked like a cold Christmas for Billy. But next door to Mrs. Perkins lived a dear old maid who had been housekeeper for the Wellers for many years. Every Christmas she made mittens for all the children in the neighborhood, and when they grew too big for mittens, she gave candy to the girls and neckties to the boys. She was a community institution, but nobody ever thought of her in connection with Billy.

But when Christmas morning arrived, and Center street was busy with its toys, Billy had not been forgotten. The Perkins children were just opening their packages from the housekeeper next door when one of them discovered an envelope for Billy. He darted upstairs, and timidly knocked on the actor's door and slipped the envelope under.

"What could it be?" wondered Mrs. Perkins, for she knew it was no Christmas card.

She had not long to wonder, however, for Billy soon came running down flourishing a crisp new dollar bill which he had found in the envelope, and called to one of the children coming he told Mrs. Perkins of the welcome present, and how it' suggested to had him to give a party next door in honor of the housekeeper. He told her to take the children over there quickly, as he would be back in twenty minutes. True to his word, he was there in twenty minutes, and with him the whole Ladies' Aid society, and, to the delight of everyone, a whole gallon of ice cream which he and the kindly housekeeper served to all assembled, with many jokes and much merriment. Then Billy sang some rousing Christmas songs, kissed the housekeeper on the brow and taxled all the ladies

He had so many invitations to dinner he had to refuse them all, but he was not sorry for this as he joined Mrs. Perkins at the hotel, and he really liked her best of all.

Might Have Been Worse "What did your wife give you for Christmas?"

"Nothing." "That was tough." "Well, it might have been a necktle or a smoking jacket."

He wanted to reach Keokuk Not knowing that he would get stuck

Merchants -- Attention

It has come to the attention of the Gazette and Transcript that agents for cut (illustration) and advertising services have told local merchants that "The Gazette-Transcript recommends this service."

The Gazette advertising department recommends no advertising services except on Gazette letterheads over the signature of someone in authority on the newspaper, and very seldom does this, as many of these services are poor.

The Gazette maintains a cut service for merchants which is available at all times and will gladly give advice on others. We will be glad to recommend any outside cut service if it is considered of merit and suitable to the advertiser's needs, as the Gazette-Transcript's own service is not conducted for profit and there is no prejudice because of "competition".

Weymouth Man Writes of Mission Field

Compiled from letters of Rev. Julian S. Rea, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Rea of Lovell's Corner.

Mr. Rea is a graduate of The Weymouth High school, and has also received his degree from Massachusetts Agricultural college and Boston University School of Theology.

He travelled one year in the west studying agricultural conditions and now has been sent out by the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions as an agricultural missionary to Portuguese East Africa.

He is at present in Portugal studying its history, geography, and language.

Letter No. 1

We arrived at the Prince George hotel, New York, Friday night, and Saturday went to both Spanish and Portuguese Consular Generals, and got visas for our passports. Tuesday morning we went on board the "Le Roussillon" and found our baggage there O. K., and our steamer trunk in our stateroom. We also found that friends had sent ahead some good things to eat on our voyage.

The first day out was foggy, and the fog horn blew all night. We could hear our boat call to another passing boat until out of hearing. All we saw in the first four days out was one steamer and one failboat. There seems to be no serious traffic problem

I have been able to go to every meal, and lost only the last course of one. The people on board ship are divided into three groups, French, Spanish, and English. Our waiter, who is French like all of the officers and stewards, cannot speak a word of English. There are some things new to us that one must seemingly put up with on a French line boat, such as wine on the table at all meals except breakfast, and women smoking about deck. I will say, however, that it is all American women whom I have seen engaging in that disgusting practice. Here at least, I fail to see any evidence of Americans being superior to others, especially in morals. Because we land at Vigo, Spain, it was necessary for us to make out several Spanish questionnaires. We did not even know what the questions meant, so how could we answer them? We have, however, met several Spanish fellows who have agreed to help us, and get us straight from Vigo to Lisbon.

The weather has been beautiful, seems to want to hinder us. Satur. a sweet secret. day we saw two boats, one rather near, then again this morning we The water is very calm tonight, and except for the engine throb one would forget he was on a boat. The sea

31-Mode of presentation (5 letters) plenteous. As we were now nearing our des tination we naturally became somewhat anxious as to what to do when we arrived in a strange country. But a little later we received a radiogram from our friend G- saying "Wait ing Vigo", so by that we judged we would lard the next day, and that our friend would be there to help us through customs and to see us safely to our new residence in Coimbra. It surely made us happy, and we hope some time we may be able to do a imilar kindness to some other newcomer to the missionary world.

> Today is a beautiful day, very calm, and it seems as if one could see the very edge of the ocean. One man said he saw a whale, but all we saw was porpoises and flying fish of some kind that jumped out of the water. Everyone who has travelled on the Atlantic says this is the best trip they ever made.

After a morning of seasickness, land was sighted and we all forgot to be sick. One of the first small boats to each ours had a familiar face in it. and you cannot imagine how much it meant to us. Our friend got us, with all our luggage, in on a hotel launch, and also took our suitcases trunks through customs, and had no ish money to pay all our fees and tips. Settled at the Hotel Continental de Bernado Gorrity we enjoyed our first meal of the day at 4 P. M. Dinner was served on the boat, but it is no fun eating when you have to give it terra firma we enjoyed our lunch After lunch we took a trolley rid to a beach at the southern end of the town The st oller in which we carried V-- amazed the natives greatly. They would have Jewed the eye teeth out of us if we had been alone. They are very excitable too. On the small boats and at the custom house you would have thought that there were going to be many fights, but they usually ended all right. Our trip from Vigo, Spain, to Coimbra, Portugal, was 300 miles, but it took as long, and we had more trouble changing checks and baggage than if we had gone from Boston to Georgia. We stopped at Porto over night, and next morning went on to Coimbra, which is two thirds of the way to Lisbon. Here we are glad to be settled, having emptied contents of trunks out of doors in order her bowl, then drove on down the road.

It is a new experience to walk on the street and have people laugh and stare at you as though you were a rare bird escaped from captivity. This town is full of beggars and soldiers. The students, of whom there are about two thousand, are on a strike. They tell me Portugal is almost bankrupt. With $42 which I had left in cash I bought this morning $1396.50 of Portuguese dollars or "escudas" but in spite of conditions she maintains a great military force considering the size of the country. One does not have to go to the Orient to see squalor and povertythey have it in abundance here.

Imagine milk at $2 a quart, carfare 50 cents for a short distance, etc. Even if American dollars buy many Portuguese dolllars they do not have them, it means poverty for them, while for us things are cheap. A $1000 letter of credit would make us worth $33,250.

Today we went to an old church on a hill outside of town. It was very pretty there. Around the church and on the sides of the approaches are strange groups of plaster characters representing Christ and his disciples at different events of Christ's life. Inside of the church is one beautiful Madona painting, but the effect is spoiled by a lot of showy gilt, candles, images, etc.

We also went to the university grounds, the buildings, though large, are not modern. I will give you a description of some of the buildings

The Star Over the Barn

By CHRISTOPHER G. HAZARD

(@. 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

T HAD been a strange Christmas Eve. The falling snow had changed to sleet and the sleet had turned to rain. The disappointed children had hung their stockings by the chimney with fears that the reindeer and the sleigh of Santa Claus would not be able to bring him over the muddy roads. Their dreams were disturbed by visions of wreckage and bundles scattered about. At the church party there had been a Santa Claus, but when his mask slipped down and he put up his hand to fix it they knew that he was not the real one. There had been three wise men, following a star, too, but their white whiskers and pointed sticks had frightened the girls who were the angels so that they could not sing. And now it seemed as though the real Christmas would, be, a failure, too.

It looked that way to others on that dreary evening. It seemed to two travelers who were making their way towards the farm house that they could not keep their closely wrapped bundle dry much longer and that the night was very dark indeed. They were very glad to pass the sleeping house and find a refuge in the old barn and a bed on the fragrant hay. Their tong and weary journey was forgotten in the dreams that came to comfort them with pictured hopes, and they were all unconscious of the peace and brightness that had succeeded the

In the house, however, unconsciousness had been suspended. Ears strained in vain for sleigh bells, but a gentle voice had fallen upon them with a happy Christmas greeting from Mrs. Rosebud (for so they called her) and she had called them to the joy of a beautiful Christmas morning. In the colder air there bay a light snow over all the bareness of the day before and it was all ready to sparkle back the merry glances of the coming sun. But. first there gleamed in the pale blue sky and gathering dawn the light of the morning star, and as the children looked out of the window of their room they saw that the star was resting just over their barn.

Perhaps there never was a merrier

Christmas morning than the three wise children enjoyed that day. It wasn't merely because the stockings had grown big and bumpy through the night. It wasn't only because they could even smell the Christmas tree through the crack in the parlor door. It wasn't the new hair ribbons, the Dutch apron, the small pair of scissors tied with blue ribbon and the small pair tied with red ribbon, the angel cake, the box of "Creole" candy, the new skates, the extra doll "Fancy." It wasn't all these or the play house, or the pencil sharpener, or even the writing case that made one of the e static youngsters say, "Next Christmas, when old Sant' comes down the chimney, I'm going to make him kneet down, then I'll whisper in his ear; You old Santy Fatcake!" And it wasn't every blessing of the day that made them thankful enough, for, pulling an orange out of her stocking, one of them was heard to say, "Santa, you're giving me too much fruit." But it was something sweeter, greater and more beautiful, something that was inthe under thought of all their hearts. and that was presently to be in their experience, for, as they ran down tothe barn, carrying their new treasures. along to play with them on the barn. floor, they heard a movement and a strange cry behind the barn door. And, when they opened the door, there upon the hay were the travelers, the old man with the kindly look, the lovely one who seemed to be his daughter, and the unbundled baby, smiling so deeply and so sweetly. It was the baby that was the best of all. It was the baby that sat by the table in the high chair, with little gifts before him. It was the baby that made the feast so greatly good for them all and caused them to give thanks for the star that, despite the storm and cloud, had led them to their barn. It was the baby that inspired the prayer of one of the children that Christmas night, when she said, "We know you sent your little baby Jesus for us to love. So, merry Christmas, God!"

Do You Pay Your Bills!

You're to Blame

When you ask for credit at a store and are informed that you can't have it-Don't blame the merchant. There is no one to blame but yourself.

You make your own credit, and whether it is good or bad, it stands as a monument to your efforts.

Remember your credit is based upon how you pay your bills. If you pay them promptly you deserve credit, and you get it. If you don't pay them, you don't deserve credit, and you don't get it- but whether you get credit or not depends absolutely upon you and you alone,

Slow Payers Halted

DON'T deceive yourself. Do not think you can neglect paying one merchant and get what you need or credit from another. Don't think you can exhaust your credit with one set of merchants and then start in on another. This is an era of "pay as you go.'

Every merchant in town, through the Merchants' Credit Association can learn how you pay your bills. In unity there is strength: and the merchants have united in a Merchants' Credit Association. Pay Your Bills Promptly as You Agree and Keep Your Credit Good.

CHRISTMAS COLD WEATHER

By Martha Banning Thomas

(C. 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

O BEGIN with, it's cold. COLD!! Not your gray, pinched, peaked-y backdooryard cold where bits of paper dance in a forlorn, forgotten reel; none of your brick-front houses on dismal streets, seeming by the best calculation, to store up a chill bleakness rather than affording protection against it-not that, but a brisk, lively, tingling cold which makes one hurry to feed the wood-boxes before dark; a cold that etches crystal ferns on the window glass, thoughtfully leaving a peep-hole near the top where you can peer out; a cold that tringes the ice-house with an orderly row of icicles that look like white, corrugated carrots, and manufactures thin, papery ice in the hollows on the ground, the sort of ice children like to stamp on, delighting in its noisy crackle and the sunburst of fine lines radiating from the point of contact.

There are waffles for supper! Do you remember how waffles look and smell and taste on a cold night, when you're "holler as a > bar-post hole?" Do you, now? "Get out the maple sirup," orders Candice, flopping over the waffle iron and making a particularly neat job of it. "You'll find the jug on the pantry

A quick light-heartedness flows over us. We had not realized how deliberately cheerful we had striven to be. Billy better! All's right with the

It's colder! A careful scrutiny of the thermometer reveals the temperature at six above.

Peter pokes around down cellar and covers up his apples and potatoes against a night of freezing, and brings up some red beauties to be consumed later in the evening with nots and popcorn.

Cold . . . COLDER! Sleigh bells jingling by on the road! Merry Christmas!

Christmas Dinner Centerpiece An attractive centerpiece for the Christmas dinner is made by cutting a large five-point star out of white sheet wadding. This is placed smoothside downward. The fluffy upper side is then pulled apart a little to simulate snow and sprinkled thick with Jack Frost powder. In the center of this is placed a bowl or tall glass vase filled with holly twigs and scarlet berries, and the edges of the star outlined with pieces of holly.

Fifth of a series of advertisements regarding the telephone situation in New England

Growth

New England's large and varied telephone requirements constitute a challenge to foresight and engineering skill.

In scores of communities large office buildings are under construction and new manufacturing and residential sections are developing.

To illustrate how New England is progressing we show the prospective telephone growth of a few of its larger communities:

	Felephones in service Nov 1 1924	Estimated telephones Jan. 1 1930
Metropolitan Boston	. 387,473	521,000
Worcester	. 36,143	47,490
Springfield	. 36,894	47,50)
Portland, Me	. 22,411	29,00)
Manchester, N. II.	14,428	19,590
Rutland, Vt	. 4,083	4,900
Providence, R. I.	. 56,711	7833

Each new subscriber added at presentday costs increases the average cost of serving all subscribers in any community. but each new subscriber also adds to the value of the service of his community.

The many millions of new money which will be needed to provide facilities for new subscribers can be obtained if the Company is enabled to earn a fair return on its property devoted to givin? telephone service. It cannot be obtained unless the Company can earn a fair return; therefore it is obl ged to ask for an increase in rates.

It would be unnecessary to say that some sort of rebuilding is in this instance a forced option. We realize that the problem before the minds of railroad officials is not one of whether the railroad depot shall and two of the young women of the be restored or not, but that it is a union will debate upon the subject, question of 'How' and the 'Best Way.

"The suggestions of this committee of men might be stated in the "First-A new building to replace the one destroyed by fire seems to us to be the better, cheaper and the more acceptable of any plans that might be drawn for the repair of the old station. The wood-work in the station is so burned and charred that their skill and imagination. even if it were possible to scrape and refinish the surface the results as usual in the Fogg Opera House on would not be commensurate with the Dec. 11 and 12. A delightful program great expense such refinishing would

"Second—It is suggested that a different. Upon one evening a musi- building of seam-faced granite would serve the purpose of a station most adequately in that it would be beautiful and enduring, not only, but in that it would display the product for which East Weymouth is noted in all parts of the country. (Note-Stucco, rather than granite, seemed more efficient and practical to the railroad officials.)

'Third-The question of relocation is one which has engaged the minds railroad officials heretofore, and concerning which we have no suggestion to make. For technical reasons known to railroad men, it might be well to have a relocation of the station at some point which would avoid dangerous curves and grade crossings. That is a matter for the judgment of experts, our own feelings being that the present location serves the convenience of the travelling public as well as any other place possibly could. "Fourth-Should the station be built on the present location, we would suggest that it be built away from the tracks in such a way as to avoid the freight tracks which at present cross directly in front of the station on the side facing the street.

"Fifth-Should the railroad company so build, we then should feel justified in asking the town to build a sidewalk on either side of the street in such a way that they would pass in front of the station in a concrete walk. Incidental to this development, we could possibly bring it about to have a circular plot of ground in the space in front of the station and surrounded by a circular driveway so that vehicles may conveniently approach and leave the station.

"Sixth-We have no suggestion to make as to the type of architecture for this new depot, leaving that to the judgment of those in charge who, we trust, will offer a plan which will conserve all the elements of beauty as well as of convenience. We are sure, however, that the people would greatly appreciate the courtesy of the railroad officials should they submit a few plans from which the people could make a selection.

"Seventh-We suggest finally, that in this new station, if at all possible space be provided for the accommodation of the American Railway Express Company, which how occupies a building somewhat inconveniently removed from the depot."

But the very simplicity of the tailored frock challenges the skill of the designer and the modiste.

A cloud of tulle, a swathing length of beautiful fabric, if the color and most phenomenal, and for some time line be right, may serve for the electric light, but the general utility dress must bear the test of daylight and run the gauntlet of keenest comparison. It is an old saying that anybody can make a ball gown, but it takes an artist to build a street dress.

Changes seen in the latest version of the tailleur are perhaps more radical than in any other type of gown. The old-time fitted coat and skirt and shirt have been translated into a modern version along new lines and in many ways feminized. There was a time, within memory, when any variation of that model was thought to be "fussy" and lacking in smartness, and every woman wore this tailored outfit de rigueur, regardless of its suitability to her style.

The street dress of the present vogue is most attractive, artistic, graceful, chic and cleverly adapted to almost every figure. It is no longer made only of cloth, but is of any one of many new materials-woolens, velvets, silks, satins, crepes, voiles, of any fabric with which the creator may establish a successful mode. The abandon with which the couturieres are using materials that one would never have thought possible for the purpose is a characteristic of the season and is a most eloquent tribute to particular wrap to go with it. This scheme makes possible the use of the loveliest and often the frailest fabrics in building a gown along tailored lines, because the wrap, which is the third and most essential piece, is lined with the same stuff or something to harmonize with it.

All-Day Gown Favored. Prominent houses in Paris that have been known for their skill in creating costumes of elaboration-the opulent and elegant gowns for formal afternoon wear and the handsome toilettes for dinner and the dance-are now giving of their best to the practical all-day gown, to the ensemble. The variants of this type are innumerable and of indescribable originality and beautv. From one designer, Premet, street suits of three distinct types are shown. One of leaf-brown cloth is a one-piece coat frock, lacking trimming other than a half dozen buttons of bronze enamel sewn on the low-front waistcoat line and two of the same on each cuff. The front of the frock is varied with an inset panel of geometric design of the same goods finished with stitching. The deep, exaggerated coat collar and revers end in a line carried diagonally across the front to a point low on one hip, where it is emphasized with a diamond-shaped inset of the cloth to match the front panel. The underblouse, successor of the shirt blouse, is of ivory georgette. This en gaging little outfit is a version of the border around the bottom, W TREA

'garconne" frock, and with a fur piece will serve far into the autumn.

Another Premet success in a one piece frock is built of black ottoman, a material that is quite the rage at Paris. The upper part is in tunic form, paneled in front with a belt passing through slashes in the silk and a trimming of many buttons at each side. This frock has the smart, long, tight sleeves with cuffs matching the turnback collar of white crepe.

Departing further from the ordinary, this Parisian creator presents a delightful three-piece suit—the frock of gray mousseline, laid in fine plaits, with a narrow ribbon panel down the front, outlined with two rows of small buttons. The close neckline is finished with a turn-over collar of white faille, and the sleeves, straight and full, are ornamented at the bottom with needlework and gathered into a narrow wrist cuff.

Street Costumes in New Weaves. For the first winter cold, some of the most prominent designers in Paris The idea of the ensemble prescribes show stunning street costumes in new that every dress built for the street or weaves-velours de Smyrne, loutre, for all-day wear shall have its own ratine, sepia, kasha cloth and the Rodier materials. Some of these, quite heavily fur-trimmed, are in one piece. tunic or coat frocks, with waistcoat or underblouse giving the becoming touch of softness.

> Others emphasize the type of dress that is all the rage, from the very best quality created by artists of prestige to the most faithful copy modestly done. This is not a single frock but the vogue of the hour, the ensemble Worth, Patou, Doeuillet, Caret, Germaine, Lanvin, Doucet, Renee, Lelong, in fact all of the well-known couturiers are doing important things in ensemble costumes in which fur is introduced as a conspicuous and distinguishing part.

In this type of dress the new varieties of fur are much used-the foxes dyed in lovely shades of brown, yellow, gray, taupe and blue-gray; baby leopard and leopard cat, squirrel tails, chinchilla and many more that are separately described from time to time. These fur trimmings are not always added in the conventional form of bands or borders, but are often used, as Berthe has illustrated in several smart coat frock models, as collar. cuffs and pocket embellishing a plain cloth, to which is added also a belt of bright scarlet and gilt illuminated leather.

Modish street dress is now invariably in ensemble form—one-piece frock. with a coat in material of sufficient weight to meet the needs of the season, lined with the same goods as the dress, or with something which is introduced in some harmonizing manner. The advantages of a costume of this description are many, and it answers for many occasions becomingly and economically.

It was the Parisian woman-the most successful economist of all in the matter of clothes-who, after the war, devised an attire in which she could appear properly gowned at any hour of the day and in any place. One saw her in the Bois during the morning at luncheon, at tea, at some informal place for dinner and at the play, wearing the same outfit. But-attention!always her coiffure, her gloves, her scarf were fresh.

Now one sees scarcely any other type of dress, and women this side of the water were never more artistically and more smartly gowned than they are this season.

Use Fur to Match Coat.

Among the advance winter models, when heavier wraps in cloth and fur will be required, the same one-piece gown is shown, some of the models having a touch of fur to match the coat or its trimmings, for such occasions as demand dress of some formality. Delightful combinations of color are accomplished in some of these, as the best creators illustrate.

Doucet presents an ultra chic little suit in the fashionable apple-green embossed crepe, with seven-eighths length straight-line coat of wool a shade deeper. The coat is severely plain, with tight sleeves, and is buttoned down the front from collar to hem with large dull buttons. Lightbrown fox forms the collar, cuffs and PATRICK

The pavement should be given a slope of about a quarter of an inch per foot so that it will drain readily. The slope may be all in one direction with a gutter at the lower side to carry the water away, or, if desired, it may be made to slope in from all sides to a drain in the center which is connected to the sewer and is provided with a clean-out trap to catch the mud and dirt which is washed off of the car.

The concrete should be placed in a single course and the ground which it covers should first be smoothed off evenly and dirt tamped firmly in any low prices. A course of gravel or cinders should be placed over the dirt and tamped firmly into place and the concrete placed directly on it. In the king's private library at Windsor castle, as well as in the king's library at the British museum. the Bibles are a special feature, and if it were possible to imagine these treasures being put up to auction at one of the famous salesrooms, all the collectors in the world would gather to bld for them.

But it is not an illuminated Bible, over which some monk spent half a lifetime, or the earliest printed Bible, or a "Breeches" Bible, or even a "Bugge" Bible-so called because it says, in a certain well-known psalm: "Thou shall not be afrayed for any bugges by night"-which is the bestguarded and most honored copy of the Scriptures.

This distinction belongs to a worn, even tattered copy of the Scriptures, just the ordinary limp-backed little Bible which thousands of people take to church or keep in readiness there. This Bible lies open, upon a beautiful cushion, enclosed in an exquisite old casket, in a window of Windsor castle. The open page is much soiled and thumbed, certain passages are underlined and there are numerous penciled notes in the margin. This is General A Gordon's Bible, given by his sister to Queen Victoria.-London Tit-Bits.

How Birds Bathe

The most elaborate dressers of the animal world are the birds, all of whom take baths whenever possible. Some of them use earth, sand or dust. When these find a suitable spot they scratch up the surface and then shuffle backward, moving legs and wings and working the grit right through their feathers.

Most birds, however, are water bathers. Some, such as the kingfisher, plunge right in. This bird usually dives from a branch, entering the water with open wings and making a great splash. In addition to his morning toilet, the kingfisher has a complete bath after eating fish that he catches; so that he often takes a dozen headers during the day.

Throw Hats at Candidates

The word "hetman" is a title given to the commander in chief of the Cossacks, annually chosen from among their number. The process of selection offers a contrast to the American custom of figuratively throwing one's hat in the ring as a sign of willingness to accept the nomination to office. Among the Cossacks it was the custom while in assembly to throw their fur caps at the candidates for whom they voted, and the one receiving the greatest number was declared elected .- Baltimore Sun.

EFFACING CHOCOLATE AND COCOA STAINS

Equipment for Taking Out Stains of Many Kinds.

(Prepared by the United States Department Stains from chocolate and cocoa are sometimes persistent and difficult to remove. They are composed of fat, resinous coloring matter, fibrous material, starch, sugar, and sometimes milk solids. Chocolate and cocoa prepared as beverages differ from cake chocolate in containing a larger proportion of milk and less fat, but none of these stains are set by hot water.

Several methods of removing chocolate and cocoa stains have been found satisfactory by the United States Department of Agriculture. Ordinary laundering with soap and hot water will often be sufficient for white or fast-color cotton or linen. Sometimes it can be used for the so-called wash silks and washable woolens. It is done by first soaking the stained portion in cold or lukewarm water, rubbing the stain with a neutral soap if necessary. This is followed by thorough rinsing in clean water. Part of the stains from cake chocolate, confectionery, frosting and the like can e scraped off with a dull knife.

Borax and cold water is sometimes ffective for chocolate and cocoa

BRINING TOMATOES IS EXCELLENT PLAN

Fruit Can Be Utilized in Sev Vegetable Is Always Quite eral Different Ways.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Tomatoes which develop late in the sesson are often prevented by frost from maturing. It is not necessary, however, to lose them entirely as they can be utilized in a number of ways. Where a large crop must be handled hurriedly, it is sometimes convenient to brine them. Green tomatoes, when be eaten when taken directly from of preparation for immediate use. A weak brine is made by adding one-half pound of salt to nine pints of water. A strong brine is desirable for preserving green tomatoes when it is necessary to keep them for any length

It has been found that these fruits respond very readily to the action of brine. A 40 per cent brine, made by dissolving one pound of salt in nine pints of water, is the most satisfactory strength to use for green tomatoes. As the brine must be maintained at the same strength throughout the entire process of curing, and as juices which dilute the brine are drawn out of all products, it is necessary to add salt from time to time. A salinometer, which is a simple inexpensive piece of apparatus, is the best means of determining when the brine is of the required strength. Its use is recommended wherever possible, especially if any quantity is being handled. Lacking a salinometer, a simple household test for a 40 per cent brine to drop a fresh egg in it. The egg

A keg or stone jar is satisfactory for brining. Kegs must be well washed with hot water and soaked overnight with fresh water to be sure they are watertight. Round board covers coated with hot paraffin are used to keep the vegetable submerged in the brine. Clean bricks are used as weights. Another large round wood cover over the top of each keg is necessary to keep out dirt and dust.

At frequent intervals it is necessary to remove, with a large wooden spoon, the scum which forms on the surface. This contains wild yeast, molds and various organisms. Covers and weights should be washed and the strength of the brine tested whenever the scum is being cared for.

The salt is removed from the brined tomatoes by soaking them in fresh water. They can then be made into sweet, sour or mixed pickles.

Shirred Eggs With Rice

Combinations of eggs with bread crumbs, rice, or some starchy cereal to give body to the dish are always good, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Fill a baking dish half full of hot boiled rice. Break six eggs and carefully drop them in the rice, taking care not to break the yolks. Pour a cup of cheese sauce over the eggs and rice and bake in a moderate oven until the whites of the

Lay the stained material with the wrong side up and apply the water to the back, so that the foreign substances can be washed from the fibers onto the pad without having to pass through the material. Grease solvents such as chloroform, carbon tetrachlorid, ether, gasoline or naphtha, and benzol may be needed if spots of fat remain after sponging.

When sweet potatoes are plentiful in the fall a pleasant change may be introduced into the menu by making sweet potato bread.

Use left-over boiled or baked potatoes, says the United States Department of Agriculture, or boil potatoes in their skins until tender. Peel and mash the potatoes or put them through a colander or ricer to free them from the brine. It is believed by the United lumps. ### Cabbage Can Be Served in Many Different Ways

Cabbage, it has often been said, is the most useful vegetable we have, for it can be served in a great variety of ways, both cooked and raw, as a salad or vegetable. ### Earliest Accounts of Trade Among Nations

From the time that men began to live in cities, trade, in some shape, must have been carried on to supply the town-dwellers with necessaries: but it is also clear that international trade must have existed, and affected to some extent even the pastoral nomadic races, for we find that Abraham was rich, not only in cattle, but in silver, gold, and gold and silver plate and ornaments (Gen. 13:2; 24:22, 53). Among trading nations mentioned in Scripture, Egypt holds in very early times a prominent position, though her external trade was carried on, not by her own citizens, but by foreigners-chiefly of the nomadic races. The internal trade of the Jews, as well as the external, was much promoted, as was the case also in Egypt, by the festivals, which Jerusalem, and caused great outlay in (I Kings 8:63). The places of public market were, then as now, chiefly the in later times were allowed to intrude

Loaded Shells Spelled Doom of Shot Towers

Until the loaded shotgun shell was developed shot was sold to the jobbing trade throughout the entire country packed in bags, which in turn were purchased by the man having a muzzle-loading shotgun, who was obliged to reload his gun with powder and shot whenever the gun was fired at game or target, says the Detroit News. The loaded shot shell and the breech-loading shotgun sounded the death knell of the old type of shot tower.

The business of the ammunition concerns manufacturing shot shells grew by leaps and bounds so that the shot consumption of the country centered at the points where these shot shells were manufactured, notably in New England, and in the course of events these ammunition concerns began to manufacture their own shot, thus completely destroying the business of the many shot towers located throughout the country.

Picturesque Whitby Abbey

Other of the ruined churches of England have a more picturesque magnificence, but none a more ancient fame than Whitby abbey, Henri Pickard writes in the Cincinnati Enquirer. There the first rude poetry of England was written more than twelve centuries ago. There, earlier still, was held the synod which decided that the British church should keep Easter at the same time as the rest of Christendom, a choice which meant that Christendom should be united, and Britain remain within the influence of the civilization of Italy and Gaul. But the modern traveler who climbs the many steps which lead from the river to what was "high Whitby's cloistered pile" has seen nothing of the Abbey of St. Hilda. In the ruins on the hill there was no fragment older than Plantagenet times. But discoveries of great interest have now been made.

Only an Antique

Leonia, a colored maid, had a taste for lofty ideas and high-sounding words. One of the members of the family in which she served was a tall elderly lady of imposing figure and fine carriage.

One day after Leonia had for perhaps the hundredth time expressed to the lady her great admiration for her handsome figure the object of her praises exclaimed, "Why do you say so much about my appearance, Leonia? I am only an antique."

"What is that?" asked Leonia in astonishment. The lady explained to her. "Well," Leonia burst forth, "if that is what you are now, you shorely is a powerful indication of what you has been."-Youth's Companion.

In Something of a Hurry

Every trade has its stock of wellknown yarns, but occasionally a new one does occur, only, alas, in time to become a classic. A certain wellknow newspaper man was holding forth to a group of writers, among whom was a rather famous novelist. The journalist was saying that he had recently been engaged in revising the obituaries held in readiness by his paper. Turning to the novelist, he added jocosely: "I've just been writing

Enge'mann Spruce Valuable In its fullest development, Engelmann spruce becomes a large tree, a hundred feet or more in height and three feet or more in diameter, with a smooth, straight and only slightly tapered trunk. Great quantities of Engelmann spruce are cut for lumber. The wood is soft and straight-grained and is used for various construction purposes, as telegraph and telephone poles, as mine timbers, for the construction of log buildings, and to some extent as lumber for interior finish. In contrast with the only other spruce in Rocky Mountain National park, Engelmann spruce is of considerable importance commercially.

It may be the story of weak kidneys! Of toxic poisons circulating about Upsetting blood and nerves.

There's a way to feel right again. Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Doan's are recommended by many Weymouth people:

Mrs. Nellie Parnell, 47 Richmond. street, Weymouth, says: "I was in a bad condition with my kidneys. They were sore and there was a dull, heavy feeling through them. My kidneys acted too freely and I was languid and tired. I could hardly stoop on account of sharp pains in the small of my back. I used Doan's Pills and my kidneys became normal. The pains left my back and I was completely rid of the trouble."

AT THE EDGE OF HERMIT'S RIM

By ROSE HENDERSON

(C. Doubleday, Page & Co.)

(1) UT he shall not go," whis pered Maria Montova, moving her lips cautiously as if fearing to be overheard. She stood quietly in the jagged purple shadow of a huge rock at the edge of Hermit's Rim, and her brown fingers picked softly at a slender, silver-handled knife in her belt. A bright-colored fly buzzed in a yellow cactus blossom. Slim lizards, as ashen as alkali, flashed noiselessly in the sun.

Across the sand below the cliff, the bridge-building gang lolled in the shade at the side of the canyon, their dinner pails beside them. Garrett Brand, the foreman, had started up the zig-zagging trail that climbed to Hermit's Rim. Every day for a month Maria had met him there at noon in the shade of the rocks. She had listened to his talk about his home in Minnesota where there were cool blue lakes and forests of maple and oak. In the winter there were sleighing parties. Maria always shivered a little at his descriptions of the cold, and Brand would laugh and tell her what fun it was to go snowballing and get your face washed in the snow. Once he told her about a girl he used to go to school with, a yellow-haired, blue-eyed girl whose name was Kathleen. They went coasting together on red wooden hand sleds, and skating, too, and sail-boating when it was warm. "Then you will sometime go back and marry her, this Kathleen?" Maria had asked. "Oh, no. She wouldn't have me. I think I like dark girls better, anyhow," he had laughed. Maria recalled this conversation as she stood hidden in the niche of rock. watching the shimmering trail. She had recalled it so often that she knew every sentence be had spoken. It was quite possible that she added a few, unconsciously elaborating the things which burt her most. She had dreamed sullenly over his words in the long days when she helped her stepmother in the little adobe house at the brink of the canyon. She had lain awake of Kathleen Maria looked out across the sand and for him to say something more. Yet supply every eight years, he said nothing. After all their loveleaving ber going away coldly, to the lakes and for sts. Maria had wept a little and confessed that she would be very lonely. But he only looked dreamily into the distance, his hat estry at Syracuse University, pushed back from the curling brown bair on his ferebend. It would be impossible for him to see her that evening he had instead. There was too much to be done g tting ready to go

"And that Kathlen von-will see her when you return?" she asked. "Sore, I'll see her if she's there," he tauched. "We're just old pals, you

Sep." He would meet Maria at Hermit's Rim to say good-by. He would come at the usual time, when the men were at lanch. He was sorry they could not have a walk the last evening. But it was impossible. He had been lying to her, playing with her, she thought sullenly. Perhaps he was even now laughing at the memory of her foolishness. A quick frown swebt her face at the memory of his laugh. She touched the silverbandled knife stealthily and watched a chalky lizard dart under a cactus leaf. Out across the sand the trail gleaned still and empty. Brand had passed under the jutting shelf of the eliff. Maria moved impatiently. - It seemed as if the men had been sitting there on the rocks for hours. Then she heard his step on the trail below the edge of the cliff. Her throat tightened. throbbingly, and her tips parted in a mocking smile. He was coming to say good-by, to add the insult of caresses to the pain be had already given her. He would laugh his easy, boyish laugh at her seriousness-laugh and then fling her aside. of the little village, to her stepmother's ridicule and to the hateful courtship of Juan Jamez. If she had no other lover her father would insist that she marry the fat, drunken Mexican. For she was getting old. Already she was past twenty, as her stepmother frequently reminded her. Juan was rich. And he had been wanting her for years. She would go to live in the housekeeper and a maid. There was also a patio garden. But Maria shrugged at the thought. Something about Juan reminded her of a tarantula-something sinister and sluggish, and then darting suddenly alive.

The scenes Brand had described came back, wavering before her like a luring mirage. She had dreamed of walking with him through red and vellow forests, of feeling the cool wind blowing over blue lakes. She had been eager to show him how she would laugh at the cold, how she would learn to skate and do all the things he liked. Then he would perhaps understand how she loved him.

Maria leaned closer in her shaded hiding place, as calmly silent as the rock itself. A light wind lifted the sand in a thin, fleeting whirl. Something rustled faintly behind the cactus bush and Maria turned quickly to peer into a clump of yucca behind her. It was only the wind, she decided. Then she heard Brand scramble up the last steep climb, heard him call her name, and the old jealous frenzy swept her afresh. But she stood very still in the rocky niche. She was thinking of the yellow-haired girl who would soon be expecting him.

Brand dropped down on the sand beside the tall rock in front of her. Maria peered out, her body lithe and stooping a little, her eyes narrowed to mere slits. Again the yuccas hissed behind her, but she did not turn. She drew a long, silent breath and took a soft step forward.

Brand had sprawled against the rock, fanning himself with his hat. As he dropped his arm behind his head a rattlesnake flashed over the sand behind him. Maria rushed forword and struck it just as it started to coil. Her first blow severed the head, but she beat at it furiously, dragged the body on the blade of her knife and hurled it over the Rim. Then she staggered dizzily and felt

Brand's arms about her. "Good work, Maria, mine," he said. "You saved my life just in time for me to take you home with me."

Maria struggled weakly. "But-you -you-are going-away," she gasped. "Not without you, dear, if you'll go with me. I wanted to ask you yesterday but I waited to hear from the boss. He wired me last night. He's given me a raise and a week off. Will you marry me, sweetheart?" Maria turned her face against his shoulder and flung her silver-handled knife out over the edge of Hermit's

Country's Wealth in Timber Being Wasted

If any proof was needed that we are a wasteful nation it could be found in the way we handle our wood resources. A leading lumberman of 59 Temple Place, Boston the West states that more timber is destroyed by decay than by fire. A prominent entomologist declares that insects destroy more timber than is Norfolk, ss. lost by fire.

Mexican Parrot Best Talker Among Birds

According to a dealer, the b st-talking parrots in the world are brought ty-four. to the west coast of the United States -better than the species sold on the 3t,N14,21,28 east coast. Leading them all is the Panama, or yellow-neck Amazon, a bird which arrives all green from beak to tail. In a year or so, however, it begins changing its plumage and its head turns yellow. Its home is not Panama, as its name implies given schooling while young, is declared to be the most intelligent of all to reach America. Closely contesting it, however, is the Mexican "double ye'low-he; d." a bird known as "the buman note talker," and which may be bought for $15 in most any market. Ordinarily, parrots speak in the same tone of voice, using no inflections, the dealers say, but the Mass. Mexican "double yellow-head" comes November 7, 1924 as near imitating the human voice as any bird known. Neither the red head nor the "dwarf" brought from Mexico becomes as preficient.

Never Surprised

Some people never miss an oppor tunity for contradiction. Which fact recalls the story of the woman who was traveling through "Wild Wales." "My, ain't them mountains high!" exclaimed a fellow passenger.

The contradictory one looked out of the window to see the summits of the lofty hills, and sniffed:

Weymouth closed their football season with a 19-0 victory over St. Mary's at the C. M. A. field last Saturday. This gives Weymouth High a record of eight victories and one tie game for the season. Making them one of the four undefeated teams in the state.

St. Mary started off with a rush after receiving the Weymouth kickoff on their fifteen yard line, they ran it back to midfield. Several first of the Shoe City Kennel Club, in the downs put the ball in Weymouth twenty yard line and it looked, for a while, as if they were going over for But here Coach touchdown. Whittle rushed four regular linesmen into the lineup and St. Mary's could not gain. After being held for three downs St. Mary tried a drop kick that went wide.

This was their last chance to score for Weymouth aided by Doreys kicking took possession of the ball in Elizabeth are spending the week in mid-field at the start of the second quarter. Line plunging by Whittle and several gains off tackle by Keegan put the ball on St. Mary's ten yard line. Here forward pass from Dorey to Mauro put the ball over for a touchdown

St. Mary kicked to Weymouth and Whittle was hurt on the play and was taken from the game soon after. whole side of the St. Mary's line was in and trying to run back across the field. He lost 20 yards. He redeemed himself however by a fine punt that went over the goal line.

At the start of the last quarter, St. Mary attempted to punt but Murray broke through and blocked it and Branley recovered for Weymouth on St. Mary's five yard line. On the second play Whittle went through the center of the line for a touchdown. Weymouth pushed over their third touchdown late in the game when Lo.ey took the ball on a line plunge.

St. Mary gave the Weymouth team a harder fight than one should judge by the score. They had evidently been warned about Doreys famous end runs, for they were on to him nearly every time. But quarterback Whittle after the first quarter found their weakness the center of the line. Gain after gain was ripped off through the line, Keegan and Whittle alternating in carrying the ball.

On the line Capt. Kelly and Moulton starred while Austin and Gibson were not far behind them. The game of the ends Murray and Branley could hardly be improved upon. In the backfield Whittle and Keegan played the best. While Mauro and Dorey both played a fine game. The outstanding star of the game was Whittle besides directing his team with judgement that was above criticism he was the leading ground gainer. His plunging through the line helped more than anything else in scoring another
