OXFORD: HORACE HART
PRINTER TO THE UNIVERSITY

PREFACE

THE first volume of this Register of the Fellows was issued in 1894, and it is with thankfulness to Him Who has granted to me continuance of ability for the work, that I now close the record at the end of the year 1910. It is a record of which the interest is maintained throughout, interest which should animate all who can call themselves Alumni Magdalenenses to seek to uphold our noble foundation in ever-growing fulfilment of the Founder's designs as a House of Religion and Learning.

In the existing roll of Fellows wellnigh every branch of scholarship and study is fully represented. And in order that the representation may be perfect in detail, and that the record may be accepted as authoritative, and recognized as showing minutely the varied spheres of work, professorial, tutorial, or in research, which find, or in recent years have found, their exponents and students amongst us, I have been enabled by the ready help of colleagues to furnish full lists of printed evidences attesting multifarious labour.

There is no need to add in this volume, as in the others, a list of College records which have been consulted. The Register kept by the Vice-Presidents furnishes an annual summary, and the President has from time to time supplemented it. Mr. H. A. Wilson has never failed me in his wanted critical oversight and ready help. And The Magdalen College Record of living members, privately printed in two parts in 1909-10, by the compiler, John Murray, junior (the loyally attached Honorary Secretary of the College Association), has in several cases given me information. To the skilled Readers at the Clarendon Press I desire to tender my acknowledgements of the care and accuracy displayed in the revision of proofs.

And now, with failing head and hand, but with unfailing heart and will, I end this my work.

W. D. MACRAY.

May, 1911.

Stet fortuna Domus.

Semper benedicat Benedictus. Amen.

The death of Major-General Rigaud, brother of our Fellow, John Rigaud, who had been some years previously admitted as a member of the College, and at one time had occupied rooms in it, is thus recorded in the Vice-President's Register: "Omnibus qui in Collegio aderant ingentem luctum effecit nuntiata mors Magistri Gibbes Rigaud, societati nostræ non solum adscripti verum etiam sincero amore devincti. Vir militia clarus, etiam inter belli studia rerum antiquarum diligens exstiterat scrutator: postquam arma pro toga commutârat, in Academiam honoris causa adscitus, res in Oxonia et in Collegio olim gestas, locorum atque ædificiorum situs, summo studio exquirere, aliis quærentibus enarrare, semper amabat. Bonus ipse, omnium bonorum amicus fuit, necnon operam bonis operibus dabat assiduam. Morbo correptus subitaneo ultimo Decembris die, postridie ex hac vita migravit, amicis suis (qui quidem quamplurimi erant, tam inter Magdalenenses quam inter extraneos) desideratissimus." (See Annals of the Bodleian Library, second edition, 1890, p. 480.)

The College testimony to the last member of his class is of the most honourable kind, as to one who was altogether a Christian gentleman. He became Rector of Brant Broughton, Linc., in 1873, and a prebendary of Lincoln in 1883. "Per multos annos insignissimam famam præ exquisitissima scientia artis ecclesiasticæ apud viros doctos consecutus erat." V. P. Reg. He suggested to Mr. Bodley the main idea of the design for the Memorial Tablet to President Bulley.

[In the next year on a similar occasion in May there was a supper in Hall at which some of the Fellows were present, "neque ultra terminos decentis hilaritatis progressum est"; V. P. Reg. And again in 1895, on a fourth victory, the like festivity took place, followed by a bonfire in the meadow, at which the Vice-President and Senior Dean of Arts were present. And similar rejoicings in later years for victories at football and other athletic sports.]

13 Dec. Grant towards erection of new Schools at Headington, and enlargement of School at Whitfield, Northants.

A portion of the site of the Bodleian Library in the Schools' quadrangle, being the site of the old Logic School, which had been originally leased to the University by the College in 1613, and held at an annual rent of £3, was sold to the University for £7,000, the lease having expired in 1892. The College undertook to make an annual grant to the Library, conditionally, subject to future arrangements and the statutory contributions of the College to University purposes. A full statement of the case is given in the University Gazette of 2 May, 1893. The purchase was sanctioned in Convocation on 16 May by 64 to 46. The condition of the Chapel windows was brought under consideration by Mr. Underhill on 27 May, and in consequence one window was cleaned by Messrs. Hardman in this year. But on 17 March, 1897, it was decided that the cleaning should not be carried further.

It is worth noting that on July 7 the afternoon service in Chapel was read, without any portion being choral, because the choristers in coming to College were caught in a violent thunderstorm, and, being wet through when they arrived, were wisely sent back at once.

Elected Fellow, 12 Dec., 1882, and admitted, 1 Feb., 1883; re-elected 20 July, 1889, and, with the warmest unanimity, as Fellow without emolument, 6 Nov., 1901. Fellow of the Linnean Society. J.P. D.L. for Cheshire. M.P. for the Hyde division of Cheshire, 1900-5. Deputy Chairman of the Great Central Railway. Director of the South Eastern Railway. Lord of the Manor of Hattersley.

Married in 1863 Elizabeth Beardoe, daughter of F. Grundy, of Mottram. Died 25 July, 1906, aged 66; buried at Mottram, 29 July. The crowds that attended the funeral attested in an extraordinary way the esteem and affection which this high-principled pattern of an English gentleman had won among all classes with whom he had come in contact.

An account of his work in College as Lecturer in Natural Science is given in Mr. Günther's History of the Daubeny Laboratory, 1904, pp. 19-21, and a list of students who attended his lectures from 1869 to 1894 at pp. 111-27. In 1870 he gave evidence as to the scientific instruction in College before the Royal Commission on the subject, which is printed in the Reports of the Commission issued in 1872. And on leaving Oxford in 1894 he printed the "Laboratory Register, 1869-1894", furnishing lists of all the members of the College who had entered the School of Natural Science and had worked in the Laboratory during that period, with brief notes of their subsequent careers. On his departure a beautiful silver cup was presented to him by his old pupils. A brass tablet was placed by subscription in the Ante-Chapel in 1907 as a memorial of his College work, and with the balance of subscriptions a prize was founded to be given periodically to a member of the College who within ten years from date of matriculation had been the author of what was esteemed the most valuable contribution to scientific knowledge. And Mrs. Chapman made an offer which was accepted at a College meeting on 4 Nov., 1896, of a commemorative medal for proficiency in modern languages for boys in the College School. The inscription (by H. W. Greene) on the Chapel tablet describes him justly as one "in rebus tam externis quam domesticis diligenter versatus", . . . who "liberalitate, mansuetudine, clementia, omnium benevolentiam et caritatem sibi conciliaverat". Mr. Chapman's feeling with regard to the College, its work, its Chapel, and the Chapel services, was one of devoted attachment. With regard to the Chapel I will quote in evidence his words in a letter to me, with reference to the first volume of this Register, dated 7 Jan., 1895: "The concluding words of your Preface are written in gold for me. That dear Chapel, and its services and all that they mean, has been to me the centre round which all the College clings, and the cessation of my daily attendance there is my great loss in leaving Oxford. Still when I do come up it is inexpressibly sweet to enter it again in conditions which make it to me like a return home." He gave a benefaction for Choristers on their leaving the Choir for their choosing a volume of music, which is then handsomely bound and stamped with the College arms.

On 7 Nov., 1906, the thanks of the College were voted to Mrs. Chapman for a gift of books and apparatus.

To him the College was indebted for great care bestowed upon the details of the new roof of the Hall in 1903, and for the restoration of an elegant window which had been blocked up, as noted in vol. vi of this Register, p. 158. On 1 Feb., 1910, on notification to a College meeting of his resignation of professorship and fellowship, the College recorded "its sense of its indebtedness to him for the advantage of his knowledge, skill, and devotion in regard to the restoration of the Hall roof, and also for his liberality in restoring the east window in the Hall", and gratefully noted

And the Vice-President (C. Cookson) in his Register, besides fitly enlarging on his services rendered through many years to the University and the College describes him, inter cætera, as “vir musicæ per omnem vitam peritissimus, antiquitatis tam in Republica et Academia quam in Philosophia propugnator strenuus, indefessus”. The Vice-President also mentions that he himself as well as our President had been in undergraduate days among the Professor’s scholars.

1880. Westwood, John Obadiah. Born at Sheffield, 22 Dec., 1804. Originally by profession a solicitor, he forsook legal practice for the varied studies of entomology, palæography, and of antiquities with special reference to ivories and sculptured stones, and, widely different as these branches of knowledge are, he excelled in all. Of the Linnæan Society he became a Fellow in 1827, and in 1833 was one of the founders of the Entomological Society, of which he became Secretary and afterwards President. When the Rev. F. W. Hope founded the Professorship of Zoology at Oxford in 1861, having in 1858 presented his entomological collections to the University, and having added by purchase Westwood's own collections and appointed him the Keeper, he nominated him as the first Professor. With unwearied skill and exact knowledge he devoted himself to the work of his department, while at the same time publishing the well-known works which made him a recognized authority on illuminated MSS., inscribed stones, and fictile productions. He was created Hon. M.A., 6 May, 1858, when admitted as a member of Magdalen College, and also M.A. by decree of Convocation, 7 Feb., 1861. He was a member of many foreign Entomological and Zoological Societies, and several species of moths, &c., are named after him.

He married in 1839 Eliza Richardson, who died in 1882. He himself died just when entering on his 88th year, 2 Jan., 1893, and was buried in St. Sepulchre's cemetery in Oxford; "quem ob caritatem venerabilem, ob studia cum entomologica tum palæographica clarissimum, maxime deflemus." V. P. Reg. A most life-like portrait of him by Sir W. B. Richmond is in the Ashmolean Museum, which represents faithfully that geniality and kindness which were so appreciated by all who knew him.

1888. Durnford, Richard, Bishop of Chichester. See vol. vi, pp. 84-5.

1892. 2 Nov. Sir John Stainer, second son of William Stainer, Southwark; born 6 June, 1840. Educated at St. Paul's Cathedral School as a chorister. Matric. at Ch. D.Mus., Durham.

His work as an organist was commenced at the very early age of 15 at the church of St. Benedict and St. Peter, London. From thence he was removed by Sir Frederick Ouseley in 1857 to be organist of St. Michael's College, Tenbury, by whose recommendation he became our organist in 1860. He succeeded Sir John Goss as organist of St. Paul's Cathedral in 1872 (see vol. vi, p. 68), resigning in 1888. On the death of Sir F. Ouseley in 1889 he was elected Professor of Music on 18 June, but resigned on 2 May, 1899. Inspector of Music for the Government Education Department. Vice-President of the Royal College of Organists. Member of the Council of the Royal College of Music, and Hon. Member of the Royal Academy of Music. Knighted 10 July 1888. Knight of the Legion of Honour in 1878, after having been a Juror at the Paris Exhibition. Died suddenly at Verona, 31 March, 1901, and was buried in Holywell cemetery, Oxford, on 6 April.

Married 27 Dec., 1865, Eliza Cecil, only daughter of Thomas Randall, J.P., Oxford.

His numerous compositions for cathedral use are known and sung everywhere, and his name will remain "among the posterities" of Anglican Church-music lovers. For notice of his and Mr. Bramley's collection of Christmas Carols, see vol. vi, p. 165. He was joint-editor with W. A. Barrett of a Dictionary of Musical Terms, of which a revised edition was published in 1898, and with Rev. W. Russell of the Cathedral Psalter. In 1891 he printed privately a Catalogue of English Song-books, Foreign Song-books, Carols, and Books on Bells, in his possession. PRESIDENTS

Not previously recorded in the two Series of this Register, from their not having been Members of the College previous to their appointment to the Headship.

1448. On the foundation of St. Mary Magdalen Hall, on the site of Bostar Hall and Hare Hall [in High Street], leased from the Hospital of St. John Baptist, Bishop Waynflete, in his charter dated 18 Aug., appointed John Hornley, or Horley, B.D., as President of the Hall. Nine years later the Hall was superseded by the College, erected on the site of the Hospital itself, which was surrendered, in pursuance of letters patent from King Henry VI of 26 Oct., 1456,¹ on 25 Sept., 1457. Hornley thereupon "retired to Dartford in Kent, where he died and was buried in 1477" (Chandler's Life of Waynflete, p. 93).

College by his own authority, no regulations having been imposed; but in 1480, on the Founder's issuing his body of Statutes, Tybard, "plenus annorum et senio confectus," resigned his office to Mayew as his successor on 23 August. He only lived three months longer, departing this life on 17 November. He was buried in the Inner Chapel, and Ant. Wood records that a brass plate bearing a figure with hands erect marked the spot, with the following inscription beneath:—

"Willelmi Tybard conduntur membra magistri
 Hoc tumulo. Preses primus et hic fuerat,
 Bis denis socios ulla sine lege Statuti
 Annis atque uno pace quiete regens,¹
 Quem virtus, labor et studium decoravit in almo
 Oxonie gremio, cujus alumnus erat,
 Procuratorem quem res hec publica cepit,
 Atque Bachallar[i]um pagina sacra dedit.
 Nunc abit in cineres veluti mortalia cuncta
 Unde venit rediens; sic caro queque perit.
 Tybardi precibus vestris memorate magistri
 Ut poterit citius leta vider[e] Dei."

Round the brass was this further inscription:—

"Orate pro anima magistri Willi. Tybarde, Sacre Theologie Bacallarii et hujus Collegii primi Presidentis, qui obiit xvii^o die mensis Novembris anno Domini millimo cccclxxx^o. Cujus anime propitietur Deus. Amen."

The brass was removed about 1625, and then placed under the west window in the Ante-Chapel. Within the last century it was removed altogether, in mutilated condition, and then lost sight of; but now is restored to the Chapel, by College order of 22 March, 1911, having happily been found. Part of the head was wanting, and the greater part of the inscription round the brass.

The record of his death in the College Register (A, fol. 6) is as follows: 17 Nov., 1480, "venerabilis vir et bone memorie M. Willelmus Tybarde, sacre theologie bachalarius, primus Presidens hujus Collegii, postquam dictum collegium xxi annis absque statutis honorifice et laudabiliter rexit et gubernaverit, plenus annorum et senio confectus, diem clausit extremum et requievit in Domino. sepultusque est honorifice in medio chori capelle dicti Collegii. Requiescat in pace. Amen."

His will, dated 31 Oct., 1480, is as follows:—"Ego, Willelmus Tybarde, clericus, compos mentis, condo testamentum meum in hunc modum. In primis, lego et commendo animam meam in manus sanctissimæ ac misericordissimæ Trinitatis, corpusque meum sepeliendum in ecclesiastica sepultura. Et volo quod quilibet dictorum magistrorum Willelmi et Henrici habeat pro labore et diligencia suis circa hanc voluntatem meam perficiendam xl^s, ita quod accipiant administrationem bonorum meorum ut veri exequutores mei." (Reg. A. f. 6.)

He was appointed rector of Middleton Stoney 4 Nov., 1424, but had resigned it within ten or twenty years afterwards (see J. C. Blomfield's Hist. of the deanery of Bicester, Part IV, 1888, p. 75). He was also rector of Crowcombe, or Craucombe, Somerset, and, as appears from his will, of Wiggington, near Banbury, and of Brightwell, Berkshire. In the inventory of vestments, &c., made in the year 1522 [see vol. ii, p. 209], there is mention of one red vestment on the orphrey of which was this inscription: "Orate pro anima Magistri Tyberd." Probably this was worn at the celebration of his obit.

1480. Mayew [al. Mayow], Richard. Appointed President by Waynflete in August, upon his providing the code of Statutes which hitherto had not been enacted. Mayew had been a Fellow of St. Mary Winton College, alias New College, and Waynflete signalized his regard for that College by enjoining that future Presidents might be chosen from it should no one of his own foundation be elected. The new President appears to have taken the degree of B.C.L., 4 Feb., 1456; he was subsequently D.D., but the date is not known. The account of his admission as President is given from the Register in vol. i, p. 5. His first year was troubled by the unruliness of some of the Fellows, who refused, after twenty-four years of self-government, to submit to the imposition of statutes; but they yielded when they found that persistent refusal involved suspension. On 30 Oct., 1485, he attended the coronation of Henry VII at Westminster Abbey, and by Waynflete's order the College defrayed his expenses, amounting only to fifteen shillings and threepence halfpenny, a very moderate sum even if multiplied ten times for present reckoning. He no doubt favourably impressed the King, as two years afterwards the latter visited him in College, and on 23 Sept., 1490, appointed him, in conjunction with Robert Rydon, the Clerk of the Council, a Commissioner to deliver the ratification of the treaty with Spain, which included the agreement for the marriage of Prince Arthur, then four years old (Rymer's Foedera, xii. 429), who was entertained afterwards in College when ten years old. And the tapestry in the College representing the marriage at St. Paul's Cathedral, 14 Nov., 1501, was probably given after the ceremony, at which we may assume that Mayew was present [see Wilson's Magdalen College, p. 53]. He held the office of the King's Almoner. In Jan., 1493, he was appointed Archdeacon of Oxford, and on 9 Aug., 1504, by provision of Pope Julius II, Bishop of Hereford. He was consecrated at Lambeth 27 Oct., and the temporalities were restored to him as bishop-elect 1 Nov. [Rymer's Foedera, xiii. 110]. This led to the promotion of another member of the College, for in 1508 Mayew appointed Edmund Frowcester, Fellow in 1482, to be a Prebendary, and at length, by successive steps, Dean, of Hereford [vol. i, p. 99]. But Mayew's episcopal absence from College resulted in his resignation of office. The whole Society was torn by quarrels and recriminations and general disregard of the statutes, ending in an appeal to the Visitor, Bishop Fox of Winchester, of the proceedings at whose visitation by his Commissary in 1507 I have given the full record in vol. i, pp. 35-41. Mayew had violated the statutes greatly by his non-residence, and, on being suspended, resigned. He died 18 April, 1516, and was buried in Hereford Cathedral. To the restoration of his monument there the College subscribed in 1861 (see vol. vi, pp. 51, 62). His will was dated 24 March, 1516, and was proved 10 May. The original is preserved in the MS. Room in the Library, and is accompanied by an inventory of his plate. The two documents are on large vellum sheets: the will, $19\frac{1}{2}$ inches long and 19 wide, much rubbed at the edges, and in several places stained; the inventory, $17\frac{3}{4}$ inches long. They have recently been bound together. I print these very interesting documents from copies which I made some years ago.

1552. Haddon, Walter, LL.D., Master of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. He was arbitrarily appointed President, on Oglethorpe's forced resignation, by Edward VI and his Council in August, 1552. Particulars respecting his intrusion are given in vol. ii of this Register, pp. 57-8, and in Bloxam's Register, vol. ii, pp. 1-1v, 320-2; but of any proceedings on his part during his short year of headship there is no notice in the College records. On Bishop Gardiner's Visitation of the College, consequent upon Queen Mary's injunctions voiding all ordinances made since the time of Henry VIII, he resigned his office on 31 Oct., 1553, and Oglethorpe was statutely restored. In June, 1555, he was amicably entertained in College: (see vol. ii, p. 30).

Haddon's subsequently distinguished career is fully narrated by Mr. Thompson Cooper, in the Dictionary of National Biography, where a complete list of his printed works is given. He died in London, 21 Jan., 157½, and was buried at Christ Church, Newgate Street.

1650. Goodwin, Thomas, of Catharine Hall, Cambridge, the well-known Independent minister, was appointed President, on the death of John Wilkinson, by order of the House of Commons, on 8 Jan. (Whitelock's Memorials), the day of the burial of his predecessor. He was created D.D. by diploma, 23 Dec., 1653. At the approach of the Restoration he removed on 9 May, 1660, from his office, and retired to London, where he continued to minister to Non-Conformists. He died 23 Feb., 1679, aged 80. His numerous works were published collectively in five folio volumes, edited in the earlier volumes by Thankful Owen and James Baron (Fellow, 1648-62), at London, in 1681-1703, where in the last volume a life of Goodwin is added.

The story told of him by Addison in No. 494 of the Spectator is familiar, and also the nickname of "Nine-Caps" said by Ant. Wood to have been given him on account of the many head-coverings which he wore as protectives against colds. For the little notice of his College life which our records afford, see vol. iv, p. 7; and see also vol. ii of Bloxam's Register, pp. cix-cxi, cxvii, and vol. v, p. 169.

The diploma conferring on him the degree of D.D. describes him as "dignissimus theologiæ a multis annis Baccalaureus, et nisi per invictam hactenus verecundiam stetisset jam olim gradu si quis ultra Doctoratum esset a nobis ultro insigniendus, ut qui et scriptis in re theologica quamplurimis orbi Anglicano qua Christianus est abunde inclaruerit, et in munere quo apud nos fungitur concionatorio non minori impendio nostro animarum quam corporis sui virium et salutis dispendio, et Deo Opt. Max. et bonis omnibus acceptam navaverit operam" [Convocation Register, T. p. 229].

1687. Parker, Samuel, Bishop of Oxford. Son of John Parker, a judge under the Commonwealth. Matric. at Wadham College, 29 Oct., 1657. B.A., 28 Feb., 1658. M.A., as at Trinity College, 9 July, 1663. Ordained, 1664. F.R.S., 1665. Incorp. at Cambridge, 1667, and created D.D. there by royal mandate, 26 Nov., 1671. Installed Archdeacon of Canterbury, 1670, retaining that appointment until his death. Nominated Bishop of Oxford, 22 Aug., 1686, elected 18 Sept., and consecrated 17 Oct. Nominated President of Magdalen College, by K. James II, 14 Aug., 1687, being then in bad health; installed by proxy in Chapel, 25 Oct., Robert Charnock being the only Fellow present; took possession personally of the Lodgings, 2 Nov. Died, 21 March [or night of 20 March], 1687, aged 47; buried, 24 March, by torch-light on the south side of the Ante-Chapel, but the place is not marked by any memorial.

All the particulars connected with his appointment as President are given in Bloxam's Magdalen College and James II, 1886, and a full list of his political and other publications is given in his Life by Rev. W. H. Hutton in the Dictionary of National Biography.

The eminent publishers at Oxford for several generations, Parker and Son, are lineally descended from the Bishop.

1688. Giffard, Bonaventure. Second son of Andrew Giffard of Chillington in Brewood, Staffordshire; born at Wolverhampton in 1642. Educated at the English College at Douay. Ordained as a secular priest for the English Mission. Created D.D. by the Sorbonne at Paris. Appointed by James II to be one of his chaplains. Nominated to be a bishop, 30 Jan., 1687, and consecrated as Bishop of Madaura, in partibus, in the Banqueting Hall at Whitehall, 22 April, by Ferdinand d'Adda, Archbishop of Amasia, assisted, it is said, by Bishop Leyburn, and two Irish bishops. Appointed Vicar-Apostolic for the Midland district. Nominated President of the College by the King, by mandate dated 26 March (V. P. Reg.), and admitted 31 March, and installed by proxy; took possession personally, 15 June; was removed, 25 Oct. He was arrested at the Revolution when on his way to Dover, and was committed to Newgate, but released on bail, 9 July, 1690, on condition of leaving the country within a month. This, however, he did not do, but remained in London, living quietly and usually undisturbed, although once committed to Hertford gaol. But after the accession of George I he frequently had to move about, to avoid arrest. In December, 1716, he is mentioned as approving of a proposed form of oath to be taken by Roman Catholic clergy to live in peaceable and quiet submission to the King (Calendar of Stuart Papers in Windsor Castle, vol. iii, pp. 350, 416-17, 1907). He died at Hammersmith, 12 March, 1734³, in his 92nd year [see Notes and Queries, 3rd Series, xii. 191], and was buried in St. Pancras Churchyard, but his heart was, in accordance with his will, buried in the College Chapel at Douay. And his remains were removed from the cemetery at St. Pancras to St. Edmund's College, Old Hall, near Ware, 4 Oct., 1907.¹ There is a portrait of him in that College (Notes and Queries, vii. 242, 1853), and Claude du Bosc engraved a portrait in 1719 [ib., xii. 190, 1867]. He was charitable to the poor, and lived a quiet life. A memoir is in the Dictionary of National Biography, by Mr. Thompson Cooper, of Cambridge.

The full account of his short intruded occupation of the Presidency is given in Dr. Bloxam's Magdalen College and James II, 1886. See also vol. iv of this Register, pp. 43-7.

EXTRACTS FROM THE EARLIEST BURSARS' BOOKS

IN vol. i, I have given some interesting notes from the three earliest batell-books, being those in Mayew's time, which I have there shortly described at pp. ix-x. It is worth while to add some additional extracts. There are more names of guests than I give here, but these are, I think, sufficient to show that the "magna Aula" was never without strangers partaking of hospitality, although but very seldom, as it seems, from other Colleges. One would like to believe that the "Master Caxton" who in company with the Greek scholar Grocyn dined with the President in 1490 (fol. 50), was the Caxton of Westminster, who might, in his old age, have come to Oxford to visit some of the same name then living in St. Mary Magd. parish, and who afterwards were buried there. But "Caxton" is found also dining with the Fellows in 1486 (fol. 66). College tradesmen are found dining: tanners, grocers, carpenters, wool-dealers, with the Fellows; butchers, barbers, and others with the servants. Mr. Wilson suggests (Magdalen College, p. 21), that a William Mason, who frequently appears among guests as Master W. Mason, is the same as William Orcheyerd, the architect of the College.

As a study of handwriting it is interesting to compare in these books the handwriting of the various Fellows, as from week to week they in turn act as Stewards of the Tables. Occasionally one or two write with the clear formal hand of the trained scribe; others usually with the loose, irregular, abbreviated scribble of a writer in haste.

- 1483-4. "Custus Capelle. Pro cista cum ligamentis ferreis, sera et clave, in qua reponitur liber punctatus, iij^s i^d. [f. 15^b.]
Custus domus pauperum. Henrico Multone pro diligencia et necessariis adhibitis circa unum juvenem lesum infra claustrum, ex voluntate domini Presidentis, vj^s viij^d. [f. 16.]

Custus Coquine. Aurifabro pro sculptura unius sigilli quo signabantur vasa, vjd." [f. 16^b.]

The name of the Chaplain and organist who is incorrectly called by Bloxam (ii. 124, 181) Clanning is Clavering. The stipend of "M. Lucas" as "lector Sophistarum" for the term was 21^s 8^d.

"Pro vino dato M. Fiharbardo [Fitzherbert] et Willielmo Spenser, et aliis venerabilibus ad vices xx^d ob. Pro cerotecis datis Willielmo Robyns, ij^d. Pro cimba pro domino Presidente et magistro Berne equitantibus ad Stanlake iij^o die Julii, viij^d." [ff. 33^b, 34.]

1485-6-7. Among guests, at different times, with the Fellows were the Vicar of Ry and the rector of Boxford, a fisherman who brought salt fish (and in 1497), Philip Harrys farmer of Stainswick, a fisherman of Bristol (twice), the son of William Cowper the Founder's Clerk of the Kitchen, dom. Thomas Bramhow, the farmers of Wanborough, Harwell (frequently) and Brightwell, Geoffrey Dormer (often) and his son, "magister Hawkyns, pannarius London.", doctor Harward, W. Smyth rector of Coldwalton, a farmer of Thame, the Clerk of Account, the steward of the Abbess of Godstowe, m. Norbery, the executor of William Lumbard (see vol. i, p. 14), dom. Thomas Boudon, dom. Hardy, m. Maryott, a mason ("latomus") of Henley, the father of m. Crofftes and the father of Cleymond, John Mylton, Nicholas Mayew (the President's brother), Robert Mayew, Thomas Mayew, the sub-dean of Westbery, the vicar of Colyngburne, dom. Plesyngtone, Nicholas Nash farmer of Horsepath, Thomas Cobcott or Copcott (often), m. Gebons, W. Tocker or Toker (often), W. Wytweye, William Whitney, W. Barnard, a deacon named Roger (Aprys?), m. John Prestwell, a parchment-maker of Abingdon, Whytnam of Abingdon (probably the same), d. Spert, Hugh Walton, m. Grove, William Widhoke,—Davidysone, m. Husey, Thomas Avenell.

On St. Mary Magd. day [1486, "in die Sabati, viz. die Sancte Marie Magd.", the day in that year falling on Saturday] the guests, and their order of precedence, are thus enumerated (f. 83): "Ad prandium dominus Presidens, Doctor Nicolaus Mayow frater ejus et M. Thomas Da[n]vers ad prandium in farculo (sic: l. ferculo) cum Presidente. Ad tabulam dicti Presidentis cum Vicepresidente, M. W. Mayson, et in alio sine tabule Procurator M. Reve nuncius matris Regis et Mychegude bidellus. Eodem die cum theologis M. Johanne Anwykyll, et cum sociis in alia tabula tres bidelli, famulus M. Davers, et consanguineus thesaur[ar]ii domini Fundatoris, et tres cantatores. Et duo clerici compti et Thomas Mayow cum sociis. Et famulus M. Doctoris cum famulis. Item eodem die ad prandium cum sociis pater domini Aleyne et ejus proximus cum eo."

Mr. Wilson's note (Magd. Coll., p. 28) that the consecration of the Chapel was observed on 20 Oct. is confirmed by an entry on f. 41 of the "Festum Dedicationis in die Jovis", on which day of week and month that feast occurred in 1485. The rather frequent mention of entertainment of "cantatores" attests the fondness of the College for good music from its earliest days.

Two butchers, John and Walter "carnifex" and "bocher", frequently dine "cum famulis", and in 1487 a glazier of Aylesbury, "unus vitriator de Helysbry", who was employed by the President, and John the barber.

The name of William Grocyn, who was the Divinity Reader, is found in the lists in 1485-7, at the head of the Fellows, next, usually, to the Vice-President. I have not met with the name of John Colet.

1490. In the second week of the first term, on Saturday, the King's sub-almoner with two servants, and the Vicar of Quinton with his servant, dined with the Fellows.

Others in this year are "M. Presidentis tabularius" [secretary?]; Waters the vicar of St. Peter's in the East and Stanbrygge the Schoolmaster on the day that the two Spanish Ambassadors dined (see vol. i, p. 22) "in fine alte mense", and several strangers and two servants of the ambassadors with the servants; the subdean of Wallingford,

"Magister Tybard et alius vicarius secum," m. Wyld, Alyff's father, — Wodyngton, the vicar of Woodstock, Grocyn, Edward Mortymer, the vicar of Chippenham ("Chypnam"), the vicar of Brackley, "dominus Dwunche," "duo filii magistri Sannys," "unus sacerdos ex elemosina," a farmer of Blewbery, "Catermaynys" (Quatermayne) of Chalgrave.

1490 or 1491. "Quidam Rector de Brasyn Nose" twice, "quidam de Wynchester collector redituum domine Darell"; two carpenters (afterwards named as Tyson and Mylys) of Northampton "pro materia de Brakley"; the rector of Warnton [Wardington?]; "unus qui duxit sindulas pro stauro Collegii"; an esquire of Leicestershire, and his son; a kinsman of the Bishop of London; "quidam beneficiatus prope Seel"; a doctor of Abingdon and Fawkener subdean of Wallingford; with the President m. Grosyn and m. Caxton (with their servants); a Master of Cambridge; a singer of London; Cowdrey of Basingstoke; "unus scholaris mundans muros claustrum"; "quidam capellanus Fundatoris," and again, in 1493, "quondam capellanus"; "duo cantatores capelle domini episcopi Hartfordensis" (sic); "unus firmarius vocatus Phylippe Harrys (often, and once with his wife) et alius bene cantans"; "quinque de Brakley in camera magistri Heyford, de mandato Vice-pres.,"; Dr. Preston, "duo scolares Aule Enee"; the rector of Woodstock; "custos silve Tugney (sic)"; "extraneus de curia Regis"; "capellanus doctoris Nykke¹, pro materia de Chapell Wyke"; the parish priest of Brightwell; on St. M. Magd. day "una generosa"; doctor Veysy; the Vicar of Faringdon; a wool-buyer. With the servants, a tanner of Holton; Nicholas, a singer; two who brought money from m. Codyngton on progress; a poor man of Ewelme.

The President dined "in magna Aula" on the great Festivals and on St. Mary Magd. day, as well as occasionally at other times.

1493, first week of third term 1493 "Bernes venditor silve de Tubney"; fourth week, third term, (f. 78) "unus carpentarius ex induccione Vice-pres."

Eighth week (f. 82) 'cum Vice-pre. m. David Biford, et cum sociis d. Gam de Collegio Animarum'.

1496-7(?) 7th week, third term, (f. 111) Henry Peynter, Phepowe butcher, "emptor vellerum," the farmer of Horspath, George Goldesmythe, m. Martyne "Ypodydasculus" [Bloxam's Register, iii. 68].

10th week, "unus monachus de Standley et famulus ejusdem."

13th week, third term (ff. 119^b-120). "Wulcy" appears as the steward for the week, and in the list of persons entertained is "familiaris magistri Wulcy ad cenam". In the list of Fellows he comes in the place of John Franklyn, between Grove and Charlys, al. Charillis.¹ The Common Bellman of the town of Oxford is at supper one day. Of this week's account the accompanying photograph gives an exact facsimile; and on comparison with a facsimile of Wolsey's handwriting prefixed to vol. i of Dr. J. Gairdner's Letters and Papers . . . of Rich. III and Hen. VII (Rolls Series, 8^o. Lond., 1861), there seems no doubt that in this week's table we possess our only specimen of his autograph.

In the 14th week the servant of master Fetip[1]ace the sheriff is entertained.
