Reference Department's circular telegram dated November 10, 1949, regarding Japanese offices abroad.

Mr. Ichiro OHTA, Vice Minister for Foreign Affairs, called upon me this morning with a view to explaining certain budgetary difficulties which have arisen in connection with the proposed opening of Japanese offices abroad. He explained that in consequence of the so-called Dodge Plan, it is necessary to present concrete plans in connection with all requests for appropriations and that it is therefore impracticable for the Foreign Office to request an appropriation for this purpose until permission is granted to carry out the plan. For this reason he said that it would greatly assist the Foreign Office if a decision concerning the opening of offices abroad could be made at the earliest opportunity.

As the Diet will presumably adjourn towards the end of March 1950, additional requests for funds would necessarily have to be made with respect to opening offices in any other countries from which invitations might be received during the next several months. Invitations received after adjournment of the Diet in March 1950 could probably not be accepted by the Japanese Government until funds could be appropriated at the next succeeding session of the Diet.

"SCAP's Economic and Scientific Section announced today abolishment of its Textile Division and Foreign Trade and Commerce Division as such with most of their responsibilities being taken over by a new Foreign Trade and Commerce Division.

"Although the reorganization became effective Nov. 14, it will be two or three weeks before the change-over can be completed.

"Frank E. Pickelle will head the new Division with Russell W. Hale as his deputy and Carl C. Campbell as special advisor on textiles.

"Production units of the Textile Division will be transferred to the ESS Industry Division under the reorganization, while all sales and procurement of textiles will be the responsibility of the new Foreign Trade and Commerce Division.

"It was pointed out that the reorganization was brought about by simplification of import and export procedures recently announced by the Supreme Commander and the SCAP-stated intention of abolishing controls whenever possible or returning them to the Japanese as soon as feasible in instances where such controls are necessary.

"Branches of the new Foreign Trade and Commerce Division will be Trade Agreements, Trade Procedures, Trade Coordination, and Trade Controls."

Tokyo, November 19, 1949.

Dear John:

In order not to confuse the subject of your letter of October 25 with certain other important matters that I had to discuss with the General recently, I sent the original letter to Colonel Bunker with the suggestion that he might wish to show it to the General. This he did.

From Colonel Bunker I have now learned that General MacArthur at first was considerably incensed at what he thought was an irresponsible statement on the part of Mr. Hewes. On reconsideration, however, he called for Lieutenant Colonel Schenck, Chief of the Natural Resources Section, who completely confirmed the statements made by Hewes to you. In consequence the atmosphere has been cleared, at least in so far as Hewes is concerned.

Colonel Schenck asked Bunker for a copy of the letter; the latter checked with me whether there was any objection, to which I replied that I have no objection providing Colonel Schenck uses the copy for his personal files only and on a confidential basis.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Bill:

We have been studying your letter of October 21, 1949 as well as your Despatch No. 700 of October 7 and Telegram No. 357 of September 19 with a view to obtaining as quickly as possible an increase in Tokyo's complement to permit the gradual augmenting of your staff.

In this connection it would be helpful in our talks with Budget people if you could transmit to us by despatch an organization chart which would show the duties of the personnel now assigned to Tokyo, including the proposed duties of personnel who have been assigned but who have not yet arrived.

I agree with your thought that it would probably be undesirable at this time to attempt to make any fundamental changes in the status of the Mission and that rather you should look toward making such internal re-adjustments as will contribute to the conversion of the Mission into a normal Embassy when the need therefor arises.

Sincerely yours,

John M. Allison

THE CHAIRMAN: The meeting will please come to order.

The Corrected Verbatim Minutes of the One Hundredth Meeting have been circulated among the Members and in the absence of objection (Pause) are approved.

Before proceeding with the business of the Council, I would like to say a few remarks in welcoming AMBASSADOR HODGSON, as Member jointly representing the Governments of Australia, India, New Zealand, and the United Kingdom. I feel certain that AMBASSADOR HODGSON will continue the close and friendly cooperation which we have always had from his predecessor, Mr. Patrick Shaw. In this connection, I might also say, and I am sure that I speak for all the Members, that Mr. Shaw takes with him our best wishes for a pleasant and successful tour of duty in his position in the Department of External Affairs at Canberra.

BRITISH COMMONWEALTH MEMBER: MR. CHAIRMAN, I thank you and the other Members of the Council for your friendly welcome, and am deeply appreciative of the manner in which you have referred to Mr. Shaw. I shall not fail to pass on your remarks to him. I trust that I shall prove a loyal and cooperative colleague in the carrying out of the functions and objectives of this Council, in the interests not only of my own country, Australia, the interests of the other members of the British Commonwealth I represent, but, indeed, in the interests of the whole of the allied states. I thank you, sir.

SUBJECT:

DATE: December 7, 1949

The attached letter from Bill Sebald, in response to my note to him regarding the exchange of telegrams between General MacArthur and Mr. Webb concerning the detention of the General's telegram of congratulation to President Quirino, is the latest specific evidence we have of how little our top State Department man in Japan is consulted or in fact even given copies of State Department telegrams directed to him. You may wish to call this to the attention of the Secretary.

United States Political Adviser
for Japan

Tokyo, November 29, 1949.

PERSONAL AND SECRET

Dear John:

Thanks for tipping me off on the exchange of telegrams between General MacArthur and Mr. Webb. The only reference to this matter concerning which I had knowledge is the following extract from the usual WEEKA telegram from Manila dated November 26, 1949:

"Confidential source reports rumor circulating among Nacionalista Party leaders General MacArthur sent congratulatory message to President Quirino through American Embassy, Manila, 11 Nov 1949 but msg being held from delivery. NP leaders Jose, Laurel, Manuel C. Briones, Camilo Osias, and Claro M. Recto, are said pleased by non-delivery. Source further stated rumor unknown among high circles QLP and probably totally unknown to ALP leaders. Eval C-6."

Not having seen either telegram I cannot, of course, comment upon their respective contents. It is my guess, however, that the telegram from SCAP would have been approved by the General personally although it is quite possible that one of his staff drafted the telegram. The rule here is that whenever a first person "I" or the signature "MacArthur" is used it must be approved by the General himself.

Should the matter be raised with me, I presume there will be no objection to my stating that I have been informally advised that the Department's no. 584 was specifically approved by the President prior to its despatch. In the meantime, I shall make an endeavor to obtain a copy of this telegram.

Sincerely yours,

Bill
W. J. Sebald

John M. Allison, Esquire,
Director, Office of Northeast Asian Affairs,
Department of State,
Washington, D. C.

P.S. Gen. Almond has just telephoned in response to my earlier inquiry re #584 to say that he will be glad to show it to me at any time - presumably this was on instruction of the Com. WJ

PERSONAL AND SECRET

Dear Bill:

I assume that you saw the exchange of telegrams between General MacArthur and Mr. Webb concerning the action of our Charge in Manila in detaining the General's telegram of congratulation to President Quirino. I just wanted you to know that the Department's No. 584 was specifically approved by the President prior to its dispatch.

For your own confidential information, I might say that all of us in the Department were incensed at the language and tone of General MacArthur's telegram and feel that no possible warrant existed for the use of the word "malfeasance". In fact, some of us are of the opinion that this telegram was probably sent out of SCAP Headquarters without the full knowledge of General MacArthur and that it was probably prepared by someone on his staff.

The above information is for your background in case the subject should ever be raised by the General or anyone else in Tokyo.

Sincerely yours,

John M. Allison

The Honorable
William J. Sebald,
Acting United States Political Adviser for Japan.

SUBJECT: Australian views on a Peace Treaty with Japan

For what it may be worth, I would like to call to your attention a statement that Mr. McNicol of the Australian Delegation to the FEC made to me this morning after the Steering Committee meeting. In connection with the discussion of the papers on Japanese participation in international relationships, Mr. McNicol stated that his government would continue to oppose full and equal participation on the part of Japan in international relationships unless or until it was convinced as a result of the discussions now being held within the US Government that a peace treaty with Japan was impossible at this time for strategic or practical reasons. I received the impression that his Government was open to being convinced on this score. Mr. Vaidyanathan, the Indian representative, was present during this conversation and, while favoring the particular papers on this subject, appeared spiritually in tune with Mr. McNicol's suggestion that certain countries might be convinced that a peace treaty was impossible at this time.

AUSTRALIAN FOREIGN POLICY PREDICTED

Tokyo, AFP in French Morse to the Far East, Dec. 16, 1949, 5:30 a.m. EST--HW

"Tokyo, Dec. 16--Commenting on the replacement of Herbert Evatt by Percy Spender as Australian Foreign Minister, British circles in Tokyo today predicted a complete revision in Australia's Far Eastern policy. They recalled that Spender had vigorously attacked Evatt's policy during the recent election campaign and had declared himself in favor of strict cooperation with the United States and the British Commonwealth powers in Asia, instead of a policy oriented toward the United Nations. The same circles state that the Communist advance into Southeast Asia probably will move Australia to suggest concrete mutual defense measures at the Colombo conference.

"Concerning British policy toward Japan, the same sources foresee no change or development before the Colombo conferences, which will allow an adjustment of the differing views of the Commonwealth countries. The conference ... preparations for a peace (treaty), with no provision for veto power. The British delegate on the Allied Council in Tokyo probably will not take any position on the question of repatriation of Japanese prisoners in the hands of Soviet authorities, because of the impossibility of checking the figures offered by the two opposing sides.

"Nevertheless, it seems likely that Australia will uphold the American policy at the Colombo conference and will urge a decision ending the present impasse on the Japanese treaty, as soon as an agreement has been reached on the question of recognition of the Communist regime in Peking."

GEN. MACARTHUR Dec. 15 issued a special statement praising Japanese farmers for their efforts to organizing over 33,000 cooperatives in the past 2 years, through which they are "building a better life for themselves and for Japan." He commended their "courageous" replacement of former undemocratic organizations with present democratic processes. (Tokyo, CENTRAL NEWS in English Morse, Dec. 15, 1949--H)

I think you should know that Tracy Voorhees is steamed up about a short speech which Mr. Allison made at Columbia University, a copy of which is attached and in which as far as I can see he said nothing that had not been said before more times than one. He thought this was a violation of the arrangement reached in your office. After checking the dates, I have brought to his attention the fact that the speech was given on November 15 and he saw you on November 17.

He also takes exception to the following note which appeared in "The Periscope" column in Newsweek of December 12, 1949:

"...The purpose of the sudden and unexplained flight to Tokyo of Army Under Secretary Voorhees is to consult with General MacArthur on final plans for stationing U.S. defense forces in Japan after the peace treaty. Incidentally, the State Department has complained that Army delays threaten its plan to complete a rough draft of the proposed treaty by the first of the year..."

He did more than infer that this was leaked out by the small group that was present at his meeting with the Secretary. This, of course, is unmitigated nonsense and at the time that he told us that he planned to leave the next day for Tokyo, we were all aware that any shrewd newspaperman could make an intelligent guess as to why he was revisiting Tokyo within such a short time.

You will recall that the British Ambassador drew the right conclusions and on his own initiative made mention of the fact to the Secretary on December 8.

It would be difficult if not impossible for me to expect to say anything new or startling about Japan to an audience such as this. With Sir George Sansom on the platform it would be presumptuous to attempt a learned discourse. However, it may be possible for me in a few minutes to give you some idea of how we are looking at Japan down in Washington and why we are so pleased at the intelligent interest being shown in Japan and the Japanese by people such as you gathered here tonight.

Our thinking about Japan in the State Department has passed roughly through two rather distinct stages and is now entering a third. For the first two years after the surrender or until approximately the end of 1947 our main emphasis was on political and social reform and military disarmament. This was as it should be. Japan had embarked upon a course of conquest caused in part by her economic situation, but also, and in no small degree, caused by a political system and ideology which glorified military domination of the organs of government. The new Constitution, the reformed Diet, the purge of those offices and individuals believed to be active exponents of militant nationalism, the educational reforms, were all the result of this early period. Such economic reforms as were effected during this period were largely of a semi-political or social character. First steps were taken looking toward dissolution of the Zaibatsu, progress was made in land reform, and in the labor field not only were labor unions encouraged but new and higher labor standards were enacted. As I have said, the motive force back of all these reforms was at least as much political as economic. Japan was to be built anew and as much as possible in our image or, perhaps more correctly, in what some of those concerned thought our image should be. In looking back it is evident that our actions during this early period were based upon at least two assumptions that have proved false. One was that the period of the occupation would be comparatively short and that there was much to do before a peace treaty brought Japan back into the family of nations. The second assumption was that the family of nations into which Japan was to be brought would be a friendly family in which all members would cooperate in the general welfare. Four years after the surrender we can see how optimistic those assumptions were.

The second stage in our thinking in Washington came with the realization that there would be no early peace treaty and the definite indication that some members of the family of nations did not

did not intend to cooperate in building a peaceful world. At about the same time that we began to realize these facts it became apparent that the economic condition of Japan was, to say the least, precarious and that the drain on the American taxpayer was to continue a heavy one. As I think you all know the U.S. Government has been spending close to $400 million a year to make up the deficit in Japan. Obviously this cannot continue indefinitely. In an effort to stabilize Japan's economic position this Government has taken steps to encourage Japan's foreign trade, to obtain a balanced budget, and generally to rationalize industry. In the Far Eastern Commission and elsewhere elsewhere the United States has taken the lead in relaxing such restrictions on the international activities of Japan as seemed appropriate prior to the conclusion of a peace treaty. Some of our friends both in this country and abroad have feared that we were perhaps going too fast and that there was a danger of building up again an aggressive Japan which would be a threat to world peace. The U.S. Government does not believe this danger exists at least to the degree some people fear. General MacArthur has succeeded in destroying what remained of the war potential of Japan after our land, sea and air forces had finished their job. In addition, Japan's overseas possessions, Korea, Formosa, Sakhalin

Sakhalin and the Ryukyus, have been taken away and Japan no longer has the favored position in Manchuria it formerly had. At the same time some 6 million Japanese have been brought back to Japan from overseas and Japan's birth rate has shown no sign of decreasing. Close to 80 million vigorous people are attempting to make a decent life for themselves in an area approximately equal to that of California. As our distinguished Chairman, Sir George Sansom, said in an article in Foreign Affairs in January, 1948,

"The immediate problem is not how Japan can be prevented from developing a high war potential, but how she can support her population."

What,

What, in other words, does the future hold for "Toru's People"? That is the problem which has primarily concerned us in Washington during what I have called our second stage of thinking about Japan.

More recently we have entered a third stage. This has been marked by a realization that four years is a long time for a military occupation to continue and a realization of the truth of General MacArthur's statement that no military occupation could continue to bear fruit after three or four years. More recently, on the fourth anniversary of the surrender, General MacArthur stated that in his opinion the Japanese people had demonstrated demonstrated that they were ready for a treaty. We in the State Department agree with the General. As has been announced, Secretary Acheson and Foreign Minister Bevin of the U.K. agreed during their talks in September that a peace treaty with Japan was an urgent matter and that every effort should be made to make progress looking toward a treaty. As you know the U.S. Government in the summer of 1947 made an effort to get ahead with plans for a Japanese peace treaty, but through no fault of ours no progress was made. We are now studying again how we may move forward.

As the time draws nearer when we may look forward to the calling of a peace conference to conclude the war with Japan

- 10 -

and get Japan back into the family of nations it becomes more and more necessary that the American people, in fact the peoples of all the Allies, learn more about the people of Japan. What has been the effect of the occupation on these people so different from us? Can we expect them after four years of occupation to take their seat at the council table of the world and bear their proportionate share in the making of a peaceful world? I am not one of those who believe that everything we have done in Japan during the last four years will be a permanent part of Japanese life. But I do believe we have done much to erect the scaffolding upon which the Japanese can erect their own version of a modern

democratic state. Much that we have done may disappear--much will remain. Whether or not Japan will continue permanently in the paths of peace depends in large part upon how much understanding the rest of us show for her problems and her hopes. Such pictures as we have seen tonight will further that understanding. Those of us in the Government are doing our best to understand sympathetically the new Japan; our representatives in Japan, both civilian and military, are trying to learn what Toru's people want and how they may be encouraged to strive for those things which are true and of good report. The time has passed when it can be said of your diplomat, as someone once said of Metternich, that he is at home in all capitals but in no suburbs. The American diplomat today is learning to be at home not in just the capitals or just the suburbs, but on the farms and in the labor unions as well. This must be true in Japan of all of us who expect to make a constructive contribution. We must have the support of an informed public if we are to succeed. It is encouraging to see so many of you here tonight and to know that you are showing this interest. We need your help and value your advice.

Whether the occupation of Japan will prove in the end to have been a success depends at least as much on what we and our Allies do as on what the Japanese do. May I conclude by reading the final

the final paragraph from a thoughtful book by a British writer entitled New Paths for Japan. The author, Harold Wakefield, says:

"If the Allies offer a constructive, dignified and honored future to the Japanese, the irreconcilables may never again become politically or culturally important. If, on the other hand, Japan should face a future of frustration, humiliation, poverty and disunity, then not only would reaction develop a renewed appeal, but it would attract many among the romantic and spirited men and women who are Japan's most valuable people. Japan is in population the fifth nation on earth and can

and can only be disregarded at the peril of international society as a whole. Her success and happiness, if brought about through the charity and insight of her conquerors, will be a sign of health and wisdom in the world."

SUBJECT: Developments in Steering Committee and Conversation with Mr. McNicol of Australian Delegation and Mr. Vaidyanathan of the Indian Delegation.

Re SC-339/18, Appointment of Japanese Official Agents Abroad for Trade and Certain Other Purposes, the Canadian and Pakistan members stated that their governments could support this paper. The French member stated that his government favored this paper on the understanding that French representatives in Japan would enjoy the same rights and privileges as Japanese representatives in France. The score on this paper now stands as follows:

For: 7 - US, Netherlands, Canada, China, France, India, Pakistan.

Against: 2 - Philippines, Australia

No instructions: 4 - New Zealand, Burma, USSR, UK.

Re SC-339/17, Japanese Participation in Technical Agreements and Conferences, Canada and Pakistan indicated that they could support this paper. The score now stands as follows:

For: 7 - US, Canada, China, France, India, Pakistan, Netherlands.

Against: 3 - Australia, Philippines, New Zealand.

No instructions: 3 - Burma, USSR, UK.

The US amendment to paragraph 2 of SC-339/17 which provides that Japanese going abroad under this policy shall not engage in propaganda activities was not favorably received. The Netherlands member proposed that rather than limit the restrictions on Japanese to propaganda activities the paragraph be deleted entirely. The Canadian member suggested that the Japanese be prohibited from engaging in political activities. No action was taken on this matter.

After the meeting Mr. McNicol and Mr. Vaidyanathan joined Dr. Blakeslee and myself. The question was raised as to what might be the effect of the change in the Australian government on its position toward these papers in the FEC. Mr. McNicol indicated that there was more than a fair chance that the new government might instruct him to abstain on these papers or possibly even to support them. He stated that a campaign platform of the Liberal party had been cooperation with the US and the UK and suggested that the new government might be more flexible on the matter of Japan's future than the old one. He added then, and again later in the afternoon, that he intended within a day or two or after the new cabinet had been set up to wire Canberra for new instructions, with the recommendation that he be permitted to abstain on these papers. He admitted that he would find it difficult in view of former positions taken to request Canberra to instruct him to support these papers. He thought that his government might find it easier to vote for SC-339/18 if a paragraph were added providing that Japanese going abroad for purposes stated in the paper were prohibited from engaging in other activities. I pointed out to him in a purely personal capacity that the US might be able to accept such a suggestion if a clause were added which permitted other activities if approved by SCAP and the government concerned.

With reference to the US amendment to paragraph 2 of SC-339/17, both Mr. McNicol and Mr. Vaidyanathan thought their governments and others might accept a formula which restricted the activities of Japanese going abroad, in accordance with the provisions of the policy, to the purposes of the particular conference which they are attending, unless other activities were approved by the government concerned.

In view of the situation of the Swedish Government in Brazil and the need to maintain a degree of continuity in the handling of Japanese civil status questions abroad, it is desirable that these two papers be forwarded to the full Commission as soon as possible and that a vote be called on SC-339/18 before the end of the year on the grounds of urgency. A majority of the members already favor this paper. The two veto powers without instructions are the UK and the USSR. It is doubtful if either the UK or the USSR would veto this paper. The UK has never exercised the power of veto. The USSR, if it did so would find itself in the embarrassing position of opposing the expansion of Japanese trade and the protection of Japanese interests abroad. It is true that we have never called for a vote on a paper if a member is without instructions. However, the practical reasons at this moment appear to outweigh this consideration.

Recommendations:

It is recommended

(1) that the Department consider developing a formula to amend paragraph 2 of SC-339/17, which would provide that the activities of Japanese going abroad, under this policy, would be restricted to the purposes of the particular conference which they are attending and to such activities as may be permitted by SCAP and the receiving government, (a more detailed memorandum on this recommendation is under preparation);

(2) that the US member be instructed to press the Steering Committee to approve and forward these papers, and SC-339/18 in particular, to the full Commission;

(3) that at the Commission level the US member call for a vote on SC-339/18 on the grounds of urgency.

 SUBJECT: US Amendment to Paragraph 2 of SC-339/17, Japanese Participation in Technical Agreements or Conferences.

DATE: December 19, 1949

Earlier instructions to the US representative, FEC, requested him to propose that paragraph 2 of SC-339/17 be amended to read as follows: "Japanese going abroad shall not engage in propaganda activities." This amendment was not favorably received by the other members of the Steering Committee. The Netherlands member proposed that rather than limit the restrictions on Japanese to propaganda activities the paragraph be deleted entirely. The Canadian member suggested that the Japanese be prohibited from engaging in political activities. We would have no objection to a deletion of this paragraph entirely, but we cannot agree that Japanese going abroad should be prohibited from engaging in political activities. Should a peace treaty not be signed in the near future, acceptance of such a prohibition would have the effect of estopping the Japanese from participating in international relationships of a political nature for an indefinite period of time.

After the meeting several members indicated that a formula might be agreed upon as a substitute for the present US amendment which would provide that: "The activities of Japanese going abroad in accordance with the provisions of this policy should be restricted to the purposes of the particular conference which they are attending and to such other activities as may be permitted by SCAP and the receiving Government". This proposal is harmless in that it says nothing which is not already said. The attached memorandum for the US representative would authorize him to press for the deletion of the paragraph in its entirety, but as a last resort permit him to accept such a formula if insisted upon by a majority of the members.

Several members informally suggested that a similar formula be incorporated into SC-339/18, Appointment of Japanese Official Agents Abroad for Trade and Certain Other Purposes. Such a proposal appears undesirable in view of the following facts: (1) that it would delay action in the Commission on the paper when positive action is urgently required; (2) that it has been our desire to keep this proposal as general as possible; and (3) that any arrangements as to the activities of Japanese official agents agents going abroad under this policy are already subject to agreement between SCAP and the government concerned. It is suggested that if such an amendment is formally proposed the US representative make the views of his Government known and attempt to persuade the other members from accepting such a proposal. However, if it appears that a majority of the members favor such a proposal of this nature and that the paper would prove unacceptable to the other members without it, the US member should be authorized as a last resort to accept the insertion in the third line of the phrase "and in accordance with agreements reached between the Japanese Government and the receiving Government" after the words "Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers".

The US member is also authorized to make every possible effort to have SC-339/18 forwarded from the Steering Committee to the Commission.
