

Punctuation Poster Assignment

BY: ENMANUEL LANTIGUA

What is a comma you ask?? A comma is something used before and after transition words to help separate them from the ideas they are describing in a sentence !

Some good examples of commas are as follows:

1. Michael was very excited to go to the store, however, he was very sad when he realized that it was closed.
2. I don't want to go out tonight, although, it could be fun.
3. Near the end of my shift, my managers gathered everyone to shoot some hops in the arcade to relax and celebrate the hard day being over.

Now that we understand how to use commas correctly, here is an example on how not to use a comma:

1. I, wanted to go, to the store, but I couldn't, because the store, was closed.

What did I learn from this assignment?

To be completely honest, I learned a few things from this assignment. One of the first things I learned was that I need to stop putting commas in unnecessary places. I also learned that when it comes to using commas, it's best to put the rest of the details of the idea after it for more effect. Another thing I learned about commas is just how crucial they really are in writing. It plays a huge role in separating the idea from the details that follow it. It is definitely a very useful strategy to use so that you won't have any run on sentences. In conclusion, commas may be basic, however, they are also a huge key in writing a good paper of any sort.
