PREFACE

AN effort has been made in this volume to re-people the Convent of St Peter, Westminster, by such an examination of the records as would enable me to cite the authorities for each name included and for each statement about the bearer of the name. The Abbots are in many cases already well known in their character and their work, though much more may yet be done to make the personalities of some of them a living reality to our generation by means of the documents which survive from their time and bear their seal. But the more we know of the Abbots, the more conscious we become that the daily round of conventual doings was from their life "a thing apart," while to the Prior and monks it was their "whole existence." The material that survives in the cases of Abbot Walter de Wenlok and Abbot William Colchester shows how small a portion of each year was spent by them at Westminster. The call of the King might send them to foreign parts; the affairs of the Order or the needs of the Convent might take them to Rome or Avignon; when they were in England, they flitted about from property to property,—Laleham, Pyrford, Cleygate, Denham, Islip and Pershore,—with a monk or two in their train to act as seneschal or chaplain; and even if they were at Westminster, they mostly resided outside the precincts at their manor-house of La Neyte. So the daily existence of the Abbey depended on the Prior and his Brethren. It was time, therefore, that these should be brought out of the shadow-land in which they have been allowed to remain.

It needed some courage to undertake such a task, especially as I had had no experience in deciphering mediæval documents when I came to live in the Abbey five years ago. But certain circumstances encouraged me. My colleagues, and more especially the Dean, were ready to give their favour to another instalment of the Westminster series. Dr Edward Scott, the Keeper of the Muniments, has never tired of allowing a beginner to draw upon his unique experience or to beg for his revision of transcripts made by a prentice hand. I had also before me the volumes already produced by the Dean of Wells, who has shown a constant interest in the continuance of his work. When I had practically completed my list of the later monks (from 1297–8 onwards), he entrusted to me a similar list drawn up by his lamented friend, the Rev. R. B. Rackham, who, if his valuable life had been spared, would have expanded his catalogue into a more adequate Register of our Benedictines than I can hope to produce. But I have been able to test my results in various ways. For instance, the Rev. H. F. Westlake, our Custodian, came upon the names of several Westminster monks in the course of a recent examination of the accounts left by the Guild of the Assumption connected with St Margaret's parish; and I was thankful to find that all of these monks were already on my list.

The Convent was clearly intended to accommodate a Prior and about 50 Brethren. I have recently noted the totals of 152 years, ranging between 1328 and 1534, and find the average number attained by the Prior and Convent to be 46·96, or roughly 47. The highest was 59, about 1400; the lowest was 32, in 1362-3, when the ravages of the Black Death were still felt. In the fourteenth century, the figures for which are by no means complete, the average was 44. In the first quarter of the fifteenth it was 49; afterwards there was a gradual decline,—48 from 1425 to 1475, 46 for the last quarter, and 44 for that portion of the sixteenth century during which the Convent was spared.

In a work which has involved the consultation of thousands of documents I cannot hope, even with the splendid help of the Cambridge Press, to escape many errors, though none of them, I hope, may be grievous. I trust that those who find them will point them out, and will pardon them for the sake of what has resulted from the investigation. Dr Scott has greatly helped in the reading of the proofs, but I must personally accept the responsibility for the indexes, only pleading that they first took shape amid the somewhat unquiet studiousness of an officers' mess and have been finished in circumstances which still compelled the panni nigri to yield to arms.

For myself, I can only say that, with these names and these administrative careers before my mind, I find the mediaeval Abbey no longer ghostly and unreal, but flushed with all the signs of a vigorous circulation. I feel a genuine sympathy with Thomas Elfrede who was professed as a monk here under Henry VII's Abbot and died a Prebendary under Edward VI's Dean; and who, when his will was proved, was found to have left directions that he should be buried in some spot which in his youth he had passed daily, as he and his Brethren went their processional round of prayer and praise.

INTRODUCTION

IN the course of an article on The Benedictine Abbey of Westminster in the Church Quarterly Review, April, 1907, Dr Armitage Robinson, now Dean of Wells, laid down the lines on which investigations into the history of the Abbey can be most profitably pursued. He paid to Richard Widmore¹ a tribute, to which every searcher among the Muniments will gladly subscribe. He pointed out how much was done by his great predecessor in the Deanery, Dr A. P. Stanley, to familiarise the English people by means of wonderful word-pictures with the innumerable occasions on which the Abbey church has been the scene of stately national functions, and the present writer may venture to add himself to the number of those who, having been children when Stanley was Dean, can now trace their first impression of what Westminster means to one of his vivid addresses at the annual children's service on Holy Innocents' Day.

But Stanley, as Dean Robinson rightly insisted (op. cit. p. 59), "had no kind of sympathy with the monks," whether the actual denizens of our Convent or the devotees of Benedictinism in general. His heart was with the kings and queens, the courtiers and statesmen, the men of arms and of the toga, whose bodies are buried in peace here, rather than with those whose lot was to offer incense, to prevent with their orisons the dawning of the morning, to make the darkness of the Abbey to be light by burning hundreds of candles round the tombs of the mighty, and in other ways so to commend the monastic vocation to the wealthy and to the powerful that the church and its surrounding buildings were gradually helped on to completion.

Now the question which the present instalment hopes to answer may be stated somewhat on this wise. The church of St Peter being in some respects the national ecclesiastical centre, it was natural for Kings and their craftsmen to glorify it, as Professor Lethaby² has shown, and for Abbots and their Brethren to labour at the finances and the quarry-work of construction, as Mr Rackham¹ has shown; but what can be gathered about the Convent on its personal side? The Abbey was the home of monks as much as its church was the oratory of Kings. The Confessor and Henry III and Richard II and Henry V and Henry VI may at certain periods have continued instant in prayer, but priests must have ministered to their liturgical necessities. If so, who were these priests? The great Dormitory, again, still stands, though it is now divided in its service to the two semi-independent societies, the Chapter and the School; but can we not re-people it with the ancient occupants of its cubicles? There remains also the northern wall of the Refectory, and a little technical ingenuity would fashion that building anew for us and restore the tables and make the skilla tinkle for grace or for the reading of the lection; but who in a given year sat at the tables, and what was the total muster, when the last laggard had arrived at his accustomed seat at the board? The Great Cloister, as we know, served the purposes of a common-room, a school for novices, a play-centre, and the like; the signs of these things are still there; but who were the teachers and the taught and the players of the games? To these might be added certain actuarial and hygienic considerations. Was life in the monastery marked by its brief duration, or did many seem to "pass beyond the goal of ordinance"? What evidence is there as to the incidence of disease upon a society living out its life on a system that may fairly be described as non-natural? These and many other such lines of inquiry would be satisfied if we had an adequate list of our monks with the years of their entry and their decease.

Let us reckon up what data we already had. The actual heads of the house at any time,—the Abbots and the Priors,—could be fairly well ascertained, the latter less completely than the former. John Flete gives information, with a certainty which we cannot now support, about the dates at which the Abbots succeeded one another, but from the middle of the eleventh century onwards there is not much question about their names. Widmore² gives connected records of each of them, which always bear witness to his amazing knowledge of the Muniments; and Dr Robinson³ has further defined and diminished the uncertainties as to some of Flete's dates. Within limits, then, there is no doubt about the Abbots.

The Priors are more elusive, and no clearer witness could be borne to the thoroughness of Widmore's investigations than that which is contained in the list of Priors (some with and some without dates), which he prints¹, and of which he truly says that "it is fuller and more exact than what has been hitherto printed." The roll of Priors is liable to addition and correction at any time, as Dr Scott proceeds with his great work of describing and indexing the Muniments. For, up to the time when the rolls of the Chamberlain or of Queen Alianore's manors begin to contain full lists, we are dependent upon the miscellaneous documents that survive,—acquittances, leases, the collection or payment of tenths, and the like; though in most cases the name of the Prior is not given, but simply the corporate title of "the Prior and Convent." As a rule, the most that we have in the way of personal touch is an initial; thus the person of William de Huntynndon [q.v.] is concealed under the description "W Prior." Let us take him as an instance of the difficulty. It happens that we possess rather more than 70 documents that refer either to him by name or to the Prior during his tenure of that office. In his case the number is largely due to the fact that he (or, as is sometimes stated, he and the Convent) was commissary in the archdeaconries of London and Middlesex to Richard de Gravesend, Bishop of London, and Bartholomew de Ferentino, Canon of St Paul's², the official collectors of the tenth imposed for three years by Boniface VIII. Widmore dates him as Prior in 1298, but we cannot trace his actual election, though we do know that it was by compromission³. Neither can we certainly date his decease. There are documents connected with the collection of the tenths which imply that he was alive in Feb. 1305. There is also a draft⁴ of the protest addressed by Roger de Aldenham, after Prior Huntynndon's death, against the interference of Abbot Wenlok with the accepted custom of filling the vacancy, but the protest does not include a date. All we can show from the Muniments is that by Jul. 1307 Huntynndon's successor, Reginald de Hadham, had been both elected to the priorship by the Convent and deprived of it by Abbot Wenlok. It appears from Flores Historiarum (III, 129) that the election occurred on 2 Aug. 1305.

If we pass back to the twelfth century, when the business papers are more scarce, the difficulty of naming and dating the Priors is proportionately greater; often all that we know, as in the case of William Postard, is that such an one was Prior at the time of his election to the Abbacy. If, again, we pass on to the middle of the fourteenth century, we begin to have the help, such as it is, of the manorial lists and of those of the Chamberlain. In every case these lists begin with a payment of money or an assignment of clothing to Dominus Prior, but it is not till late in the fifteenth century that they give us the Prior's name. We have to detect his election by the disappearance of his name from its accustomed place in the list of monks, being careful to note that he is not included inter mortuos; that is, in a little group added at the end after a slight gap. Even so, we are without the day and the month of his election, and, failing any dated documents in which he is styled Prior, all we can say is that he had become so by the point of time in the autumn when the scrivener engrossed the computus roll or when the obedientiary with whom we are dealing balanced his accounts. In this and in other ways it has been possible to add four names—Eadwye, Richard Excestr', William Walsh, and Roger Blake—to Widmore's list of Priors.

Widmore provides also a list of the Archdeacons of Westminster. He "had no intention at first," he says, to publish this list and "may have omitted some of the oldest¹." It is a matter of interest, indeed it is quite unique, that the Dean and Chapter of Westminster should yearly appoint one of their number to be Archdeacon, with the right to a place in the Lower House of the Canterbury Convocation. But the obedientiaries' rolls make no mention of this office and our Muni-ments include very few documents that record its doings. The Archdeacon, as such, had no apparent authority inside the Convent and to this day he has no intrinsic precedence in the Chapter. Long after the courtesy adjunct of "Venerable" had become usual in the case of other Archdeacons, it had no place in the records of our Chapter, which speak even in May 1887 of "the Rev. Archdeacon Farrar." The fact is that the Archdeacon of the monastery concerned the public more than the monastery; his sphere was that of causes matrimonial, excommunications, and the like. At the same time a right performance of "archidiaconal functions," whatever they were, was in practice recognised as a qualification for higher office. We learn about the earliest known Archdeacon, Richard de Crokesley, only through his having been such when he was elected Abbot, [16] Dec. 1246; we do not know when he became Archdeacon nor any thing that he did as such². In the same way William Colchester [q.v.], one of the most notable of our Abbots, was certainly Archdeacon just a month before his promotion to the highest room (10 Dec. 1386), and we can trace him at the same work in 1382³. Moreover, when we examine the careers of the monks who filled this office, we find that William de Zepeswych [q.v.] could hold the Precentorship with the Archdeaconry; that William Colchester could be at once Archdeacon and Sacrist; John Stowe [q.v.] Archdeacon and Almoner; John Borewell⁴ [q.v.] Archdeacon and Treasurer both of the Convent and of the Royal manors. In each of these

³ Cf. E. H. Pearce, William de Colchester, Abbot of Westminster (S.P.C.K. 1915), p. 41.

cases the responsibilities of the monastic office were considerable and the Archdeaconry would scarcely be added if its duties too were of any great weight. In Abbot Ware's time it was usual to address the Archdeacon in the cloister and in Chapter not by his title but by his name. He must get leave from the Prior to go as far as the City of London, but, being "in exteriore cura spirituali specialis domni Abbatis vicarius," he could go freely to the Palace and to other parts of Westminster in the discharge of his proper functions, leaving word that he would be absent for a time¹. In the same way when Abbot Colchester drew up in 1407 a deed appropriating the revenues of the church at Aldenham to the purposes of his anniversary at the Abbey, he inserted an instruction that the Archdeacon of Westminster for the time being should be in direct charge of the church and should give account of the receipts².

Apart, then, from these three lists, containing in all about seventy-five different names spread over the long period A.D. 1000–1540, we have been left hitherto to the task of re-peopling our buildings with stray personalities discovered here or there. Camden³, and those who came after him and copied his notes, have given in their lists of Abbey burials the names of a very few of our Benedictines not already included in the list of Abbots, such as William Amondesham, Ralph Selby, Thomas Brown and Robert Humfrey; but no attempt seems to have been made to check these records by reference to our official lists; for in the last case, through a misreading of the inscription, Camden gave the monk's name as Humphrey Roberts, and he has been contentedly followed in so doing by Dart⁴, Neale⁵, Crull, Stanley, and the rest. Again, if we turn to Abbot Ware's Consuetudinary, which is our prime authority for the manner of life of the Westminster Benedictines in the middle of the thirteenth century, we find the compiler much more concerned with the small details of the life than with the personalities, great or small, who lived it. Omitting Abbots, whom we knew otherwise, we find him including less than ten names of ordinary monks, of whom three are mentioned⁶ as having taken their journey together to the Roman Court for negotiations about the church at Esseville (Ashwell).

When we pass to John Flete's History, we gather, as we should expect, a larger amount of personal detail. For instance, a single incident, the investigation of the Abbey's traditional right to take tithe of Thames salmon⁷, gives him the opportunity of recording nine names, of whom only one, John de Wratting, is on the list of Priors. In the rest of Flete's story, without reckoning the Abbots, about whom he is frequently our only source of chronological information, we find that in all he alludes to twenty brethren, of whom six were Priors, and that Dean Robinson's introduction makes us acquainted quite incidentally with six more.

A Westminster historian, who might have been expected to introduce us to some of his companions in the Refectory, is the author of the Chronicle of the years 1346-67, who calls himself "quidam frater Johannes de R. monachus Westmonasteriensis," and whom Dr Robinson¹ has finally identified with John de Redyng [q.v.]. The full text of this interesting document has recently been edited with introduction and notes by Professor James Tait², and it turns out to be entirely disappointing to any one who approaches it with our present needs in view. There is mention of four Abbots—Simon Bircheston, Henle, Langham, and Litlington,—and of one Prior, the unfortunate Benedict de Cherteseye, but no monk below that rank is allowed to intrude his name or concerns into Redyng's pages.

One other chronicler raises the same expectations, even though his own name can only be conjectured. In a communication to the British Academy (Proceedings, Vol. III; issued separately and entitled An Unrecognised Westminster Chronicler, 1381-1394), Dr Robinson has given reasons for supposing that the continuator of the Polychronicon for those years³ was a Westminster monk. This document (op. cit. pp. 9, 22) introduces us to John Lakyngtheth [q.v.] as the king's candidate for the Abbacy when Colchester was elected, but it does no more to add to our knowledge of individuals.

In the mere number of monastic names we make a large advance when we open the pages of Richard Widmore, whose thorough examination of the Muniments has already been referred to⁴. Now, Widmore's index, if it were complete, would mean that we must prepare for disappointment. Apart from Abbots and Priors it includes only eight monks, of whom five are otherwise known as chroniclers or men of letters,—John de London, Richard Circestr', John de Redyng, Sulcard, Warner; the legend of John Canterbury's [q.v.] great stature and of his warlike exertions is recorded, and a notice of Ralph Selby's interment is repeated from Camden. But Widmore's contribution to our investigation is much greater than is implied by his index; for he has copied from the archives and elsewhere certain documents which contain quite a number of names. Thus the notarial instrument¹ which records the demission of his abbatial authority by George Norwych on 24 Nov. 1467 makes us acquainted with Prior Millyng and twelve of his fellow-monks; and the official account of John Islip's election 27 Oct. 1500² includes the most complete list hitherto printed,—the Prior (Islip himself) and forty-three monks, of whom sixteen are described as holding various conventual offices. Though only thirty-three years separate these two events, there are no names common to the two lists, for those who stood up against the misdeeds of Abbot Norwych were naturally the older men of the community. Thus the most that we derive even from Widmore would be about sixty names from first to last.

Stanley's want of interest in our subject has already been noted, but to complete our survey of the authorities we may indicate Dean Stanley's information to be derived from him. Though he had original authorities ready to his hand, and could have used the knowledge of Mr Burt, the investigator of the Muniments in his day, he dismisses the question by saying that the names of the monks "are still more obscure"³ than those of the Abbots. He gives the four whose sepulture is mentioned by Camden, including the misnamed "Humphrey Roberts" and Ralph Selby, whom he calls "John Selby," and whom he ascribes to the sixteenth century, whereas he died in 1420; and he adds Vertue, elsewhere dismissed (p. 342) as "an old monk," who had been laid in the West Cloister "just before the Dissolution." Stanley goes on to mention five chroniclers, Sulcard, John de Redyng, John Flete, Richard Circestr' and "the so-called Matthew of Westminster." He relates the story of John Canterbury's vast physique, and then adds "two, in whose case we catch a glimpse into the motives which brought them hither." The first of these is "Owen, third son of Owen Tudor, and uncle of Henry VII," who "lies in the Chapel of St Blaize." It is, of course, possible that this Owen Tudor entered our house and took another Christian name and another surname. Stanley repeats the statement on two other occasions⁵, but neither an Owen nor a Tudor is to be found among our monks of that or any other date. If Stanley had consulted Camden (Reges, &c.), he would have seen that the son of Owen Tudor who found a home in our house and was buried, near Abbot Litlington, "in capella Sancti Blasii qua intratur ad Vestiarium," was called Edward, and under the head of Edward Bridgewater [q.v.], who entered the Convent in 1465-6 and said his first Mass three years later, I have indicated the reasons for conjecturing that this man may be Edward Tudor. Dean Stanley's other refugee monk was a man of his own name, Sir John Stanley, natural son of James Stanley, Bishop of Ely. It can be shown that on 25 Jun. 1528 he executed before the ecclesiastical authorities a deed of separation "a mensa et thoro" from his wife, Margaret, with a view to ending his days as a religious in our Convent,—"ob religionis introitum." But we had no entrants between 1525-6 and 1530-1. So the Dean's story, if not discredited, is not proven¹.

So far, Stanley has added nothing to our data except inaccuracies; but his appendices make some slight amends, for he derived several names from the Muniments where the latter happened to suit his purposes. First, the depositions about Henry VI's choice of a burying-place² involve the record of three monks not hitherto mentioned, John Ramsey, William Milton, and [William] Barnell. Secondly, in his desire to see "in the close of the fifteenth century...the conventual artists³ hard at work in beautifying the various Chapels" (p. 455), he appeals to "a Cartulary of Westminster in the possession of Sir Charles G. Young, Garter King at Arms⁴." Dean Robinson has discussed the nature of this document⁵, and for our present purpose it may stand; but it must be compared with the corresponding entry in Liber Niger Quaternus (f. 92). It contains the name of fifteen monks, of whom two (Richard Circestr' and John Redyng, the chronicler) were already known. All of them can be traced in our compotus-rolls and elsewhere, so that the list, when it was first printed, represented a clear gain of thirteen names. What it fails to do is to illustrate Stanley's statement about the activity of the "conventual artists" at "the close of the fifteenth century." "Then," he says, "was added the Apocalyptic series round the walls of the Chapter House," the authority for which is the statement in the Chartulary that "Frater Johannes Northampton fieri fecit...picturam Apocalipsis...in Capitulo nondum completo." But John Northampton [q.v.] entered the Convent in 1372 and survived no nearer to "the close of the fifteenth century" than the year 1404. It is doubtful if John de Sutton [q.v.], who is credited with "a picture of the dedication of the Abbey" and with others "over the tomb of Sebert," ever saw even the fourteenth century, and not a monk on the list in question lived after the year 1433, except Edmund (wrongly printed "Edwardus") Kirton, who died in 1466. This loose treatment of facts⁶ does not in the least detract from the picturesqueness of Stanley's method; it only illustrates the need of some accurate information about the men themselves.

² Memorials, pp. 600-8. Mun. 6389.

³ The document which Stanley quotes does not justify this phrase; it mostly states that the Brethren paid a certain sum to have the work carried out by unspecified artists who were probably not of the Convent; e.g. "idem Prior [R. de Merston] fieri fecit altare sancti Blasii cum pertinentiis pro e. marcis."

Now all this time trustworthy information about the names, the standing, and the conventual careers of the Westminster Benedictines has been within our reach,—at all events for the period (to speak roughly) between 1300 and the Dissolution; that is to say, from the time when the system arose by which an obedientiary drew up the compotus-roll of his office in the autumn, had it engrossed by a scrivener on parchment, and placed it so carefully on one side, that it is there to this day, with over 6000 others, not a few of which are duplicates.

This custom can be plainly detected towards the close of the thirteenth century. Thus the earliest compotus preserved at Canterbury is dated 1260, at Norwich 1272, at Durham and Worcester 1278, at Ely 1291¹, and at Westminster either 1291 or 1281.

The Canterbury date falls within the period of Abbot Ware's Consuetudinary, which, however, does not appear to concern itself with the duty of obedientiaries to render an annual account of their stewardship. On the other hand, the Consuetudinary of St Augustine's, Canterbury, which is based upon Ware's², regards the custom as so long established that it has had time to get out of hand; for in the Reformaciuncula made in his second year by Abbot Nicholas Thorn there is mention of the fact that a harmful delay was shown by the various wardens in rendering their accounts, which were being handed in to the conventual treasury at odd times³. The Abbot then proceeds to ordain that all the wardens were to be ready with their yearly statements immediately after St James' Day (25 Jul.), but certain other obedientiaries such as the Infirmarer and the Precentor were allowed till St Peter ad Vincula (1 Aug.). The subsequent reference to "rotulos maneriorum nostrorum vel ecclesiarum, reddituales cartas, vel scripta" shows that already the accounts were delivered in manuscript, and that there was a penalty for their improper removal. In spite, however, of Abbot Ware's indifference to the custom, it is hard to suppose that it did not prevail in some form during his period. How to account for the disappearance of the rolls is another matter; possibly the great fire⁴ of 1298 is responsible to some extent; at any rate, our only *rotuli*⁵ before that date are one which appears to be the Cellarer's of 1281-2, and one which is certainly the Chamberlain's of 1291-2, whilst we still possess the Infirmarer's roll of 1297-8, which happens to be of the greatest possible value for our present purpose.

For it was one of the Infirmarer's duties, laid down for him in the time of Richard de Crokesley¹, to see that sick brethren were provided with what they needed for their bodily sustenance "tam in pitanciis cotidianis quam in quibuscunque rebus necessariis." This pitancia or allowance consisted, in part, of a ferculum or mess of meat or fish, according to the day². For the purposes of the conventual accountancy a meat-day was usually represented by three-pence and a fish-day by two-pence. It thus became natural to record each case and the cost of maintenance of each. Abbot Ware gives the ceremonial side of a monk's illness. He sees him making acknowledgment in Chapter that he is not feeling well. He hears him ask for indulgence and sympathy in the quaint formula: "Per licenciam vestram et per licenciam conventus accepturus sum medicinam." But the Infirmarer, having the revenues of two churches, Battersea and Wandsworth, to account for, must be more prosaic. If Brother So-and-so stays out of choir in the sick-room for three meat-days and three fish-days, a charge of 9*d.* + 6*d.*, or 1*s.* 3*d.*, will fall upon the funds of the Infirmary³; and in order that there may be no difficulties with the auditor, it is necessary that the name of each patient should be entered with the exact duration of his sickness.

Now it happens that our first Infirmary rotulus gives us no fewer than forty-nine names. Of course, the order of the names is no indication of the status of each in the convent; for sickness is no respecter of persons; while some of the names occur more than once and some occur many times during the year. Fortunately we are able to get help here from an official document preserved by the State. In the Kalendar of State Papers under date 10 Oct.

1303 there is an abstract of the letters patent in which the King called for an investigation into the facts about the great robbery of Crown jewels from the royal Treasury within the Abbey. The document includes a list of the Abbot and forty-eight monks⁴, and this list, being more formal than one of Infirmary casualties, may be expected to have regard to precedence and seniority, though it is to be noted that Alexander de Persore, the chief culprit, comes next to Walter de Wenlok, the Abbot. But in spite of William de Huntyndon, the Prior, not being in his proper place, we may fairly assume that the forty-eight names stand in some orderly sequence. Now thirty-three out of the forty-nine names in the compotus of the 1297-8 Infirmarer appear again in the list of ³ The mode of entry is illustrated in the record of Abbot Islip; p. 167.

1303. We can therefore start with these names in this order. That done, we shall still have sixteen names in the list of 1297-8 which have disappeared by 1303. Some of them may have been aged men in 1297-8; William de Pharindon¹ had been Pittancer twenty years earlier; Gilbert Raul was Sacrist in 1267; Robert de Sancto Martino was a monk by about 1272 and Roger de Waleden about 1270; Simon de Gardino, who was apparently alive in 1303, but is not mentioned among the Tower prisoners, may have been omitted as a stagiarius who had ceased to be effective. On the other hand, it is natural that in the list of 1303 we should find fifteen names of Brethren who had either escaped the tender mercies of the Infirmarer in 1297-8 or who had entered the Convent in the interval.

Thus at a period when, as will be seen, the system of recording names is by no means established, we have two lists which together give us sixty-five names (including the Abbot) to start upon. Incidentally, we have picked up two others from the roll of the Warden of St Mary's Chapel for 1299-1300; for he charges himself with the cost of "sarcofagi cum cooperculis" for four Brethren deceased, of whom we already know two. Also we begin to form some notion of the extent of our problem. In 1297-8 the Infirmarer had forty-nine patients and does not say how many Brethren there were that had no need of a physician. In 1303 we have an official list of forty-nine names.

It seems best, then, to take these two large lists as the pivot of our investigation and to say something here first about the preceding period and then about the easier course of the pursuit in subsequent years.

For the period of over two centuries which separates the death of the Confessor from the year 1297-8 it has been possible to produce from the Muniments (apart from the 1297-8 list) and elsewhere the names of some 130 members of the Convent. These include fifteen Abbots, ten Priors and three Archdeacons, the great majority of whom were already on record. Of the rest, some have been found in our "Domesday" chartulary as witnesses to legal documents; some are known to have been Priors of Hurley or are actually mentioned as such in one of our documents and must have been previously monks of Westminster²; some appear among the Muniments as being concerned in the making of payments on behalf of the Abbot or the Convent or both; some appear only when anniversaries are granted to them and financial arrangements are being made for the maintenance of these memorials; some, as already stated, are mentioned in Abbot Ware's Customary; some appear as parties to one or other of the multitudinous transactions recorded in our endless bundles of acquittances, especially during the second half of the thirteenth century,

¹ In this and similar cases I have of course placed monks mentioned in the 1297-8 list under such earlier date as I could find evidence for.

when the Abbots fell more and more into the hands of the Sienese and Florentine money-lenders.

If the result during this early period is judged to be rather meagre, it may be pleaded that it is by no means final; but as Dr Scott and I have recently examined "Domesday" for this purpose and as the indexing of the acquittances draws near its completion, the chance of adding to our list of monks gets steadily smaller.

Thus the nature of the materials in our possession for the period up to 1297-8 is such that the survival of names is conditioned by a large element of chance. A particular brother is sent by the Abbot into the City to make a tardy repayment to some Lombard financiers, and his name is perpetuated in the receipt; another is despatched to Rome upon important conventual affairs and we get to know him through the Chapter's formal record of his proctorship; a third is allowed to visit some noble lady at a time of sickness taking with him an Abbey relic calculated to effect a cure, and comes down to us as Brother Henry [q.v.], because in her gratitude, which is also her lively sense of continued favours, she writes to ask that she may retain him and the relic a little longer; yet another, such as Warner [q.v.], goes at the Abbot's bidding to perambulate, and so assert conventual possession of, a certain piece of land, and it is necessary for purposes of record that his identity should be recognised. The position roughly is that a claim may be put forward on behalf of anyone that he was of the order of St Benedict and a monk of Westminster during the twelfth or the thirteenth century, and our documents are not inclusive enough to enable us to resist the claim if we wanted to.

But when we have proceeded no great distance round the corner of 1297-8, we come upon signs of a system, which, if only all the documents had survived, would enable us to give a complete list of all our members and to reject at sight the pretences of any unlawful claimant. Long before the last survivor of the 1297-8 and the 1303 lists—it would be John de Ryngstede or Robert de Beby—had passed to his rest, other sources of information were sending forth a steady stream of names, and from their nature were bound to name all those who could rightly be included. During about thirteen years after 1303 we still have to depend upon the Infirmarer for information about the newcomers and for any idea of the pace at which death made room for them; and unfortunately we only have in that time the Infirmary lists of 1305-6 and 1309-11, and only twelve patients not hitherto known to us needed care during those three years. But in 1316 we come upon the adoption by the Chamberlain of methods that are of importance to our investigation and must therefore now be described, though they took some time to harden into a system.

With three rather vague exceptions (Ralph; Geoffrey; Walter de Bureford) we know nothing of any Chamberlain of Westminster before Henry de London, who is described in a document of 1278¹ as “nuper camerarius,” and of him we know little beyond this fact. But on going

The Chamberlain. back some twelve years we can find much about the office in Abbot Ware’s Consuetudinary and in the companion book of St Augustine’s, Canterbury, from which it is at once clear that with us as elsewhere the Chamberlain was the clothier of the Convent, or rather of the Prior and Convent². For at Canterbury the Chamberlain was not concerned with the equipment of the head of the house; “abbas vero,” says the rule, “non comprehenditur in hac distribucione.” At Westminster this plan was apparently a recent innovation³ in Ware’s time and could only be varied voluntarily and of special grace. Evidently an arrangement begun by Gilbert Crispin⁴ had in more modern times been developed first by Richard de Berking and then by Richard de Crokesley, with the result that the Abbot became responsible for the replenishment of his own wardrobe. After all, he could thus please himself. Litlington’s steward could purchase enough linen for four pairs of My Lord’s “femoralia” for 4s. 6d. and could get the three pairs cut and made up for sixpence, but equally he could spend at his master’s bidding as much as £2 on a fur coat. The Chamberlain dealt in sterner stuff, for he had at least fifty persons to clothe and to shoe, and in Abbot Ware’s days he had but £88⁵ a year wherewith to do it. Having, however, that income, he was bound to give careful account of his expenditure, and it is to the thoroughness of his accountancy that we owe much of our knowledge of our monks individually.

Let us take one of the Chamberlain rolls at random; it happens to be for the year 1456–7, Michaelmas to Michaelmas⁶. On the front A year’s outfit. of the roll, which bears the name of Edmund Downe, who was Archdeacon and Warden of the New Work as well as Chamberlain, and who shortly afterwards left to become Prior of Hurley, there is a full statement of receipts and expenditure. The former begin with a list of the annual charges on houses in the City of London. Each house is fully described with the name of its owner, its late owner or owners, and its street and parish, and there are 120 items on the list⁷. These charges amount to £46. 18s. 6½d. There are yearly payments or pensiones from eleven churches, of which nine are in the City of London, amounting to £8. 2s. 4d. Country property and rents bring in £26. 11s. 8d., while shops in “Grubstret” and tenements in “Langdych” take the total up to £86. 7s. 1½d., or a little less than the £88 mentioned by Abbot Ware.

⁶ The Chapter accounts are still made up yearly to 29 September.

⁷ It may be noted that the roll, by no means one of the longest, measures 5 ft 9 in. × 11½ in.

When we pass on to his outlay, we find that the office is at the moment not very solvent. The Chamberlain brings forward a deficit of £13. 18s. 3¼*d.* which is increased at the end of the year to £16. 10s. 9¼*d.* But we are only concerned here with the chief item in his expenditure which is the £49. 18s. 0¾*d.* spent under the head of "Emptio stauri" or as we should say "on stock." The staple of this outlay is soon stated: it is a sum of £25. 10s. for the purchase of 51 sets of "panni nigri" or Benedictine habits of black serge at ten shillings a habit; evidently there was a contract price for the supply of these robes, whereas the other items of the outfit were made up on the premises. Further, he buys 106¾ ells of linen cloth at 8*d.* an ell (£3. 11s. 2*d.*); 193½ yards of worsted; 52 yards of kersey; and 39 yards of "blanket." Here the sewing staff of his office finds its chance; for the linen must be made up into pairs of "femoralia,"—not such delicate underclothing, no doubt, as we saw bought for My Lord, for that cost 1s. 0½*d.* an ell in 1370–1, while this costs 8*d.* an ell in 1456–7, and we must allow for the change in the value of money in the interval as well as for the difference in price. The Chamberlain will tell us in a moment that this purchase enabled him to distribute that year 139 pairs of "femoralia" to his Brethren and himself, which works out at rather more than 5*d.* a pair for material alone, not reckoning "establishment charges"; Abbot Litlington's nearly a century earlier cost 1s. 3*d.* when made. The 52 yards' length of kersey is the amount needed to furnish the convent with "caligae," or thick socks or stockings that were almost of the stoutness of gaiters¹; with his 39 yards of "blanket" he is to make "pedules," or loose slippers to be worn with the gaiters in winter-time; for each Brother received a pair on All Saints' Day, at Christmas and at Easter, the Prior, the Chamberlain and the Sub-chamberlain being allowed an additional pair on each occasion. In the same way, he lays in the exact number of "stragulae" (bed-blankets, at 2s. 3*d.* each) and of "pell' allut'" (pellicia alutaria, fur or leathern cloaks, at 2s. each) that he requires for the Brethren then under his care, allowing a double portion in each case for the Prior and the Chamberlain.

But now, having stated that he has devoted so much money to the purpose of obtaining so much material, he must still regard himself as liable for an accountant-like statement of his disposal of that material, which would be easily convertible into cash again, if he were willing to stoop to dishonesty. So, one side of his long roll being still vacant, he turns it over and gives a balance in terms of this material. He has converted his stock of linen into so many shirts (staminae) and pairs of drawers, his kersey into so many pairs of gaiters, his blanket into so many pairs of slippers, and he is possessed of a given number of habits, bed-coverings, and cloaks of skin. To make his compotus complete, he must show each Brother by name as the recipient, during the year, of his lawful share of each of these. At first, in 1316 for instance, he is content to give a list of the Brethren and to say in effect: These are the men to whom I have distributed what is their due. But in course of time the method becomes more meticulous, and in 1418-9 after a long gap in our series the names, instead of being "run on" and written in four or five lines across the roll, are arranged vertically down the left edge of it, and each name has its portions of goods entered against it under each of seven heads—abitus (= panni nigri); stragulae; staminae; femoralia; pellicia alutaria; caligae; pedules; traditional abbreviations being used in each case. Thus, if only the Chamberlain's rolls were continuous and complete, our task would be soon accomplished; it would merely be necessary to note the new names at the foot of each fresh list and the disappearance of any from their accustomed place on the rota: unfortunately there are many and grievous gaps in the series; and we must turn to other helps, if the whole of our ground is to be covered.

Happily there arose a feature in the life of the Abbey which also involved not merely careful accountancy but also in time an exact record of the individuals concerned. On 28 Nov. 1290 died Queen Alianore of Castile, wife of Edward I. Her bounty towards the Abbey of Westminster was great and her trust in it was manifested at a time when, as the robbery of the Treasury soon showed, the honesty of some of the Brethren was lightly esteemed by the gossips of the day. Four years before her death there lay in the hands of Abbot Walter de Wenlok a very large sum. A small strip of parchment¹, dated 15 Feb. 1286, acknowledges: "summa denariorum existencium in ix saccis et i Bursa de denariorum domine Regine ccc lxiij^{li} xvii^s x^d ob q̄" (£363. 17s. 10³/₄d.). Of this fund the Abbot was treasurer, with the Prior and Sub-prior as his appointed deputies.

In view of this attachment of his beloved queen to the Abbey as well as of her interment in the Confessor's Chapel, it was natural that Edward should make definite and generous provision for the maintenance of her anniversary. So by 1292 we find the convent in possession for these purposes of certain manors—"maneria pro Anniversario Regine assignata"—namely, Birdbrook, Essex; Westerham and Edenbridge, Kent; Turweston, Bucks; Knowle, Warwickshire²; and, shortly afterwards, Hendon, Middlesex³.

Keeping to our subject, which is the doings of individual Brethren, we find that in 1299-1300 the receivership of the manors has passed from the Abbot and his deputies to three monks chosen ad hoc,—Alexander de Neuporte, Alexander de Persore and Roger de Aldenham, and that in 1301 there is a Warden of these manors, Reginald de Hadham, whose name heads the comptus. For the present the information about individuals is meagre; for example, Reginald de Hadham enters in 1301-2 a "curialitas" (that is, a complimentary gift, afterwards called xenia or exennia), "tribus capellanis celebrantibus nouas missas suas" at the rate of one shilling each; by which he means three junior monks who thus signalised their advancement to the priesthood and said their first Mass; but he does not give their names. There is also mention of a "pitancia conventus," or a gift in kind to all the Brethren, which cost 6s. 7d.; but this too is no excuse for a complete list. Again in 1301-2 there is an item—"xvi fratribus pro marcis grossis singulis assignatis x^{li} xiii^s iiii^d," but no light is thrown on the individuality of the sixteen. Still more regret arises when in 1303-4 we find a distribution of £2. 13s. 4d. "fratribus nostris incarceratis" on various occasions and a douceur of two shillings to those who carried the money to the Tower, without any intimation as to the number or identity of the prisoners, who were doubtless the men alleged to be guilty of pillaging the royal Treasury.

It appears that the last decade of Abbot Wenlok's somewhat litigious rule was partly occupied in contentions with the Prior and Convent with respect to the orderly distribution among the Brethren of the overplus of these manorial revenues after the anniversary had been paid for and the requisite distribution made to the poor. Just a week before his death, 18 Dec. 1307, he set his seal to a charter¹ assigning the "residuum distribucionis" for division as pittances among the Brethren and undertaking for himself and his successors to choose as Warden of the manors one of two monks proposed for the purpose by the Prior and Convent; in actual fact, he mentions the Sub-prior and Convent, presumably because Reginald de Hadham was regarded as still deposed from his priorship. This arrangement was formally renewed by Wenlok's successor, Richard de Kedyngton, also called de Sudbury². But for many years it did not have the effect of producing the information that we want as to the actual recipients. In the roll of the Queen's manors for 1318-9 we have mention of three monks who received exennia on saying their first Mass, and these as being new names can be added to our list. In 1335-6 one of the new priests and four novices³ are also additions to be noted, and there are four more in 1336-7.

Then for a generation or so we are left to rely on the record of the Infirmarer's patients and on the Chamberlain's lists, where they survive. There are years during which we get no names from either, and there are years in which we get help only from the Infirmarer, with the presumption that we still have not all the new names that we ought to have. All this time the Warden of the Queen's manors is making his yearly division of about £80 to £100 among the Prior and his Brethren, but is doing so in the lump without naming either Prior or monks.

But the roll for 1369 shows us the beginnings of greater detail in the account. The Warden has thirty-six "capellani" to whom there is due a full dividend of £2. 6s. 8*d.* each, the sum being doubled for the Prior. In these cases he does not trouble to give the names. But there are six others, junior priests and novices, whose shares are smaller and vary from 30s. to 6s. 8*d.*, and whose names he must needs give with the sum allotted to each. Four of these are new. The same thing happens during a period of twenty years more, from which we have twelve of the Q. Alianore rolls surviving, and the yearly average of recruits is between three and four.

At last in the compotus of 1390-1 we come upon that which we have desired. The wardens are John Lakyngeth and John Enston. The former, who had held the office and the chief responsibility since 1372,—that is, during the period which we have seen marked by a tendency to give at any rate the names of the juniors—was a Brother of recognised business capacities¹, a man useful at Parliaments, and a favourite with Richard II. Moreover, in his hands the Queen's manors had prospered. The total receipts in 1372 were £199; but in 1390-1 they rose to £300. 8s. 4½*d.*, the actual rents, manorial and other, amounting to £243. 8s. 4½*d.* With this large sum the Warden was able to provide for the customary illumination round the Queen's tomb; he bought 250 lbs. of wax (£6. 12s. 6*d.*), which cost 7*d.* for carriage from the City to the Abbey and 10s. 9¾*d.* for conversion into candles. The chandler's wage for the year was 10s., the candle-lighter's 3s. 4*d.*, the bell-ringer's 5s., and each Treasurer of the manors received in this respect 3s. 4*d.*,—the total being £8. 8s. 10¾*d.* The bailiffs and rent-collectors of the manors received their wage in cloth and fur-coats, which cost £3. 9s. 3*d.* There were a few "establishment charges" amounting to £8. 5s. 10*d.* There was a distribution to the poor and to some Abbey servants of £16. 12s. 5*d.* The sum to be divided among the Brethren was decided, perhaps in Chapter, to be £150. 10s. Thus with an income of £300. 8s. 4½*d.* and an outlay of £187. 6s. 4¾*d.*, the Warden could declare a residue of £113. 1s. 11¾*d.*; so the Prior agreed that John Lakyngeth, "pro bono labore suo," might retain for himself the odd £3. 1s. 11¾*d.* and carry forward to next year the rounder balance of £110.

Now whether we consider the amount of wax in his store or the sum of money in his coffers for distribution among the Brethren, it is obvious that the Warden must now begin to be more communicative as to details. He carries forward 300 or 400 lbs. of wax, beside the thirty square candles that are burning around the Queen's tomb at the moment, and he has bought, as we saw, other 250 lbs. to see him through the year. He must therefore turn over his roll and show how many pounds of wax he has found it necessary to convert into candles, so that he may carry forward a surplus stated in pounds of wax.

A balance in wax and in money distributed.

But it is much more requisite that he should now give fuller details about his distribution of so large a sum as £150. 10s. among the Brethren. It means a dividend of £3. 10s. to each of thirty-five "fratres sacerdotes," including the Prior (entered simply as "Dominus Prior" without his name) whose share is doubled, while one of the juniors gets £3, seven get £2. 10s., and three get £1. 6s. 8d.

This, then, being a full list of the House, we are able to test our names as far as we have gone. So doing, we find that there has been only one omission. Ten places up from the end of the priests, and taking a full share, is John Borewell. The rolls of the Chamberlain for the years 1383-6, during which this monk probably joined our House, are missing. Even so, it seems as though he may have been brought in from elsewhere as a fully ordained priest, for we learn from the Infirmarer of 1386-7 that during that year he was promoted to sit by the skilla in the Refectory, and Abbot Colchester must at once have sent him to Rome, for he was there as proctor for three years up to Sep. 1390, thus excusing the Abbot his triennial visit "ad limina"; doubtless it is his return which accounts for his sudden appearance in our roll of the Queen's manors for 1390-1. By 15 Oct. 1391 he was Archdeacon and he afterwards took a prominent part in the conventual administration. Judging by the place at which his name stands in our list, we may say that he joined the Abbey after Robert Hermodsworth in 1380-1 and before William Pulburgh in 1383-4.

After this our course is clear and we can cover practically the whole ground of our investigation. For the rolls of Queen Alianore's manors are preserved almost in their entirety. There is a gap of six months in 1437-8; otherwise we only miss the roll of 1500-1. We can test our results by the Chamberlain's work, where it survives, and in due time we come to two other series of manorial rolls made out on the same lines as those of Queen Alianore. In 1394-5 John Borewell, whom we discovered just now, and Peter Coumbe, who was of note among the managers of the New Work on the nave, were associated as "Administratores Participacionis Anne Regine." Anne of Bohemia, the wife of Richard II, died at Sheen in July 1394. The King, who was unnerved by her loss, as he showed by his violence at her obsequies on 3 August, not only prepared a splendid and pathetic tomb¹ for her and for himself, but made lavish provision for the maintenance of her anniversary. Its management quickly fell into line with that of Queen Alianore's foundation, and in their second year of office, 1395-6, Borewell and Coumbe presented a full list of the monks among whom the residue was divided.

It may be well to see how they settled their division. We take their second year 1395-6. They have brought forward a balance of £12. 2s. 11½d., and they receive from Richard II's Treasurer a sum of £200. As in the case of Queen Alianore's foundation, they start by paying out nearly £30 for wax to be made into candles. The Lord Chancellor, the Duchess of Gloucester, and various knights and ladies attending the anniversary, are "recreated" or regaled at a cost of £2. 9s. 10d.

There has been throughout the year a weekly dole to the poor amounting altogether to £30. 6s. 8d., and the gifts on the day itself to the poor, the Abbot's servants, the virgers, and others come to £41. 8s. 8d. The outgoings would have been more by £10 if a grant of that amount to the Lord Abbot "ex consensu Prioris et seniorum" had not been deleted from the compotus with the significant comment "quia contra cartam." But, though they have expended £107. 2s. 1d. in various ways, the Wardens can still declare a dividend of twenty shillings to each "Frater Sacerdos," of whom there are thirty-nine, and to the Prior, who takes two dividends, and they can give 6s. 8d. each to six juniors. This absorbs £43 and leaves an ample surplus of £62. 0s. 10½d. The management of Queen Alianore's manors having, as we saw, adopted the principle of a full list of the recipients shortly before this date, the administrators of Queen Anne's anniversary, of whom John Borewell was the chief in each case, did the like in 1395-6, though they did not resume the practice till 1404-5.

But the benefactions of King Richard II, "dead and turned to clay," did not come up to the expectations raised by him in his life. By 1404-5, the year of the next list, certain manors and lands had been legally transferred to the Convent¹,—Steventon and East Hendred, Berks; Westbury, Wilts; Northall and Downe, Middlesex; Biggleswade, Soothill, &c., Beds; and Stokenchurch, Bucks;—which produced that year only £141. 11s. 3½d., but the Wardens had only £125 to deal with altogether. They spent less on illuminations, £20 instead of £30; they distributed much less among the poor and the Abbey servants, £13 instead of £71; and they had begun to experience the manifold calls for petty outlays that fall on owners of country estates, such as the 10s. 6d. that was not scorned by the Sheriffs (vice-comites) of Buckinghamshire and Bedfordshire, though it was given "ut essent fauorabiles maneriis de Holm et Langford." Consequently, the monks' dividend must also decrease to 13s. 4d. for priests and 3s. 4d. for two "Fratres Diaconi," of whom Edmund Kirton, the future Abbot, was one. But they are faithful to the method of the list of names, on which we can henceforward rely.

And there was yet a third foundation of the same nature. Harry of Monmouth was a consistent benefactor of our Abbey in his life-time and he gave, as is well known, his own masterful directions for a prominent chantry-tomb² at the east end of the Confessor's Chapel. His funeral, carried out with a wealth of magnificent detail that still absorbs the interest of the antiquary¹, had its natural corollary in a fund for the observance of his anniversary. In 1437 and onwards a sum of £25 was paid quarterly to the appointed "Receptor Denariorum pertinentium Anniversario Regis Henrici V^{ti},"—William Walsh, afterwards Prior, being the first. In 1445, two manors, Letcombe Regis, Berks, and Offord Cluny, Hunts, were made over to the Convent² in substitution for the yearly benefaction of £100, so that John Flete, who was then Receiver, appeared thereafter as "Custos Maneriorum Regis Henrici V^{ti}."

Now the annual charges upon this benefaction were not great. The largest was a distribution of £20 to the poor and of tenpence each to twenty-four poor torch-bearers on the day of the anniversary; so that when the candles and the bell-ringing had been paid for, there remained enough in the first year to make a distribution of £43. 3s. 4d. to the Brethren, most of whom received 20s. each and the Prior, as usual, 40s. Thus from the outset of this foundation we have a full list of the House, with the amount allotted to each man standing against his name; and as the date of the first rotulus may be taken to be 1 Sep. 1437, we have a convenient chronological point.

John Flete's first compotus as Warden of King Henry's manors does not differ materially from the one just referred to. It can be seen that the rental value of Offord Cluny is £28 and that of Letcombe Regis £66. 13s. 4d. On the other hand there are some expenses which were not necessary while the endowment took the easy form of a quarterly benefaction in cash from the Duchy of Lancaster. Manorial courts have to be held; the granary at Letcombe needs thatching and other repairs; scribes and lawyers must be recompensed for the exoneration of both manors from the payment of a fifteenth for public purposes; various stewards and seneschals must receive wages in cloth and in lamb's wool garments; and as the Mayor, and Aldermen, and some of the citizens, of London became part of the regular gathering at the anniversary, it was requisite to provide a modest collation of pears and plums and cake and red and sweet wine (17s. 2d.). Still, there remained a sum of £45. 13s. 4d. to divide among the Brethren, so that the Warden of the Manors must copy the precedent set by the Receiver of the annual £100 and give on the back of his compotus a full list of the recipients.

The series of rolls is not quite so complete for either the Richard II or the Henry V foundation as it is for that of Queen Alianore; the first has a gap from 1463 to 1470 and the second has one from 1467 to 1473, and various single years are silent in each case. But roughly the position is this, that for the last century of monastic life at the Abbey, say, from 1437 to the Dissolution, we have four complete lists for most of the years, the Chamberlain's, where these survive, and the lists of the three sets of manors, together with the records of the year's invalids which we can get from the Infirmarer. Apart from a few cases where confusion arises owing to a monk's change of surname, we can with comparative certainty, at any rate from 1390-1 onwards, reject the claims of any one not thus mentioned to be regarded as a Westminster Benedictine.

Having now, as we may conclude, got most of the Brethren entered by name on our list, with some feeling of assurance as to the date of their first appearance, we go on to ask about their career as members of our House. Can we detect any stages of promotion through which they passed? Can we ascertain what offices they held? Can we trace them in occupation of offices elsewhere? Is there any means of recording when they passed away?

It will be gathered from what has been said about the financial methods of the Infirmarer, that there would be no difficulty, though there might not be much profit, in drawing up a medical conspectus of each Brother's career in terms of the days that he passed each year in the sick-room. We could sometimes add a statement of the medicine he received or get a clue to the operations performed by the rude forefathers of modern surgery. But in general such a record would be scarcely worth its space. Here and there a case arises in which we like to notice such matters. John Islip, for instance, our last Abbot worth remembering, "perhaps the greatest of his line¹," was evidently a sickly youth when he made his profession in his sixteenth year in 1480. He had an illness of nine weeks' duration in 1480-1, and another lasting six weeks in 1482-3, and he spent six weeks in the sick-room during 1483-4. But it is the man who lends interest to the fact of the sickness, which is surrounded with no particular interest of its own.

Apart from this the general rule is that, as to any individual monk, we learn from one of the manorial rolls that in the year to which the roll refers he was "de nouo professus" or that he was then "nouicius,"—not in order to record the date of his profession, but as a reason why he was in receipt only of a fraction (mostly one-third) of the dividend paid to the Brethren in general.

But from early times there arose a system of recognising the mile-stones of a monk's career by making him a gift in kind, which had a fixed value in money. Complimentary gifts of this sort went by various names such as "a regard," or a courtesy (curialitas), or a "refresher" (recreacio), but the technical term applied to the presents sent to the Brethren at various fixed points in their career was exennia or exhennia or exzennia, a plural form which fails, if they had only known it, to reproduce exactly the word ξένια, whereby Homer would signify the gifts, chiefly of food and wine, offered by host to guest¹. In the Canterbury Consuetudinary the word appears in the singular; for example, where it is laid down that four times a year the Brethren may entertain their friends and “sine aliqua contradiccione exennium a subclerario percipere et amicis suis mittere².” At Worcester also the singular was in common use, as when the Cellarer spends 20s. on two oxen “pro exennio faciendo episcopo Wygorn³.” But at Westminster it was usual to adopt the plural form⁴.

Of the two occasions on which a monk formally received exennia the earlier was that of his first Mass as a newly ordained priest, and the day was one on which it was thought meet that he should make merry and be glad with his friends. Therefore it became a custom that certain officers should send him “exennia in pane et in vino,” generally to the value of 1s. 7½*d.* or 1s. 11½*d.*, which when multiplied to correspond with the present worth of money seems much more than he required for his own needs. Also, as the officer in question had to account for the expense, he made an entry of it in his compotus. We are thus able to give the year in which it happened, but not (save in very rare instances) the day; for the officer has not our interest in the biography of the monk and is only concerned that his own accounts should balance for the year.

The earliest instance I have found is in 1301–2 and has been already referred to⁵. Here an early compotus of Queen Alianore’s manors takes credit for a “curialitas” of twelve pence to each of three priests (capellanis) “celebrantibus nouas missas suas,” but it does not specify the names. The first case in which this is done is in the roll of the same manors for 1318–9, where we have exhennia given on the celebration of their first Mass to John de Ashwelle, Michael de Bridbroke and J. de Salesbury. We should have come upon the first two in later documents, but the last would have eluded us altogether, but for this mention. There are two similar cases in 1323–4 and one in 1324–5, and as there would be from two to four recruits each year, it is probable that we have not got all the entries of exennia for this period.

But what the Warden of the Queen’s manors has begun may be taken up by other obedientiaries; so in 1334–5 we have the Infirmarer giving exennia on the same occasion. He may, of course, have begun before, for there is a gap of twelve years in the Infirmary rolls just before the point we have reached. This time there are five monks who receive gifts at their first Mass from both the Infirmarer and the Warden of the manors. The aggravating point is that our great builder, Nicholas de Litlington, whose name now occurs for the first time as having been in the sick-room, is not one of the five, nor do we know when he was ordained priest¹.

⁴ The singular was not quite unknown, however, for it will be seen under John de Tothale, 1316, that the Warden of Queen Alianore’s manors spent in 1335–6 one shilling “in uno exennio empto et misso fratri J. de Tothal et sociis commorantibus...apud Hamsted.” But this is a rare case. Another use of exennia was to describe the complimentary offerings made yearly to the Abbot by various donors. Cf. E. H. Pearce, William de Colchester, pp. 62 ff. ⁵ pp. 15 f.

Presently, in 1338, the Sacrist is found doing the like and may have begun long before, for the roll surviving next before this one is that of 1318, and in 1339-40 the newly ordained Brethren are receiving these congratulations in kind from the manors, from the Infirmarer, from the Chamberlain, and from the Warden of the Churches. Ten years later the Cellarer's rolls begin to give entries of similar gifts, and in 1356-7 he is joined by the Almoner. Thus in 1361, when Richard Excestr' celebrated Mass for the first time, he was regaled by four officers, the Warden of the Queen's manors, the Infirmarer, the Sacrist, and the Almoner, and the event cost the Convent 7s. 10d., or about £7 to £8 of our money. Before the end of the fourteenth century the number of these exennia had further increased. Robert Hermodsworth received five in 1382-3 and Roger Cretton six in 1384-5, while in 1415-6 there is a monk, Richard Parker, with seven to his credit. For in the meantime other officers have begun their series of rolls or have taken up the habit, such as the Convent Treasurer, the Warden of St Mary's Chapel, the Monk-Bailiff and the Warden of the New Work on the nave. At nine exennia, or 17s. 7½d., the custom, so far as first Masses went, appears to have reached its limit, in the case of Brother Robert London in 1497-8.

Of course its interest for us is biographical. A man's first Mass would not be said before he had reached the age of twenty-four, for it was not till the reign of Edward IV that the monastery received the privilege,—if it was really such,—of having its clergy advanced to priest's orders as soon as they were one and twenty². We can thus use the date of his first Mass to get a fair notion about the year of his birth and about the age he has reached when he first appears as a novice. To take instances which are of general interest. John Flete, the historian, who said his first Mass in 1422-3, must have been born in or about 1398-9, so that he would be two and twenty when we first come upon him in the Chamberlain's and in the manorial rolls of 1420-1; and John Islip, who, as he tells us³, became a monk on 21 Mar. 1480, being then sixteen years of age, was under twenty-two, when he said his first Mass on 1 Jan. 1486⁴. Thus we could arrive by calculation at a rough average age for entrance into the Order.

⁴ Islip tells us (ibid.) that he was born 10 Jun. 1464.

The second occasion on which it became customary to give exennia was concerned with a Brother's progress as a member of the House and was of domestic rather than ecclesiastical interest. The gift at his first Mass marked his enhanced dignity in the Sanctuary; the gift to which we now pass was a sign of his greater importance in the Refectory. In that apartment, which ran parallel with the South Cloister on its south side, the tables were arranged to suit various gradations of seniority. We can see from the rolls of the later Refectorers that there were "tabulae pro senioribus¹," "tabulae pro mediocribus" and "mensae inferiores"; there was a "mensa pauperum" and "le Gestentable"; but the chief seats were round the "tabula presidentis." Linen is bought for the seniors' table, but "mappa de diaper pro tabula presidentis." The latter has his own ciphus, and there is a special knife known as the "cultellus prioris" or the "cultellus presidentis in refectorio." But the particular sign of the president is the skilla or skylla, the bell which he was to ring for grace or for the beginning of the lection or for other recognised incidents of meal-time, and which was an equally customary feature of other conventual houses². In the days of Abbot Ware the duty of providing the bell was laid upon the Sacrist, or, as he was sometimes called, "Secretarius³," but in later years it fell to the Refectorer⁴.

But in order to realise the duties of this president we must also turn to the thirteenth century Consuetudinary. Here there are characteristically minute directions. Of course, if the Abbot joined his Brethren in the Refectory, his lordship presided and it was necessary that he should sit with the skilla on his right hand. In his absence the president's duties devolved upon the Prior, or the Sub-prior, or the third or the fourth Prior, or some other "custos ordinis," as the case might be. Whoever he was, he was not to sit at the middle of the table, under the Majesty, but "a latere, videlicet ita quod skyllam ad dexteram habeat." This place, then, was reserved for the Prior, or some "ordinis custos, aut saltem unus ex senioribus qui primus eorum est in ordine⁵."

It would seem, however, that after Abbot Ware's time the Convent adopted the plan of promoting Brethren to this senior table more speedily, in order that there might never be wanting a supply of persons duly qualified to serve the House as president at meal-times. It would not be done hastily; some process of probation on the part of the Chapter probably preceded the event; and therefore it was a matter for natural congratulation to a Brother, that he should pass safely through this ordeal. The seal of his success was that, as our rolls variously phrase it, "primo [vel nouiter, vel de nouo] sedebat ad skillam," or "primo presidebat ad skillam," or "primo presidebat in rectorio" or simply "primo presidebat," or "primo procedebat ad skillam¹."

My earliest record of exennia in this connexion is derived from the Queen

Ad skillam.

Alianore compotus of 1323-4, and the gift went in this case to Peter de Wygornia who had then spent at least eighteen years in the Convent. The Infirmarer is found adopting the practice in 1334-5, and sending one of these compliments to Robert de Curtlington who as Sub-prior was entitled to preside in the absence of the Abbot and the Prior, but, presumably, had not hitherto happened to do so. With him are joined Thomas de Wenlok, the third Prior, and John de Brichtok, the fourth Prior, who would preside as of right, if their seniors were away. It is doubtless due to gaps in the early rolls, more than to a lack of precision in the custom, that there are at first very few monks whose exennia are on record both for their first Mass and for their first session at the chief table. Thomas de Wenlok, just mentioned, is one and Hugh de Shenegeyze (1334-5) is another; but the number increased later, as the other officers joined in the practice at the rate which we noted in the case of exennia for first Masses².

Now this custom will not act with the same chronological preciseness as the other. The time at which a Brother must be promoted to Biographical importance.

the president's table had no apparent laws, and the period between the first Mass and this second promotion varied from two or three years to fifteen or even twenty years; but from eight to ten years may be taken as the average interval.

Sometimes this promotion "ad skillam" happened very early in a monk's Westminster career. The first thing, for instance, that we know about John de Wratting is that he passed up to the neighbourhood of the bell in 1353-4. There is no record of his ordination and he may have been priested before he entered our House, but as he sat by the bell for fifty-four years, he must have won his promotion early. On the other hand, several of the Priors (such as Robert Whatele, who had been a priest for nearly twenty years and had spent most of the time at Oxford, and Millyng and Fascet and Islip), only took their seat as presidents when they had been elected Priors, while Edmund Kirton did not attain to the position till he became Abbot,—that is, no less than thirty-two years after his ordination.

² Indeed, at a slightly greater rate, for in 1448-9 Thomas Arundel (p. 147) on his promotion "ad skillam" received exennia from eight officers.

Negatively, the information is useful, as implying that monks who remained in the Convent for any length of time without giving the officers cause to supply them with gifts on this ground were shut out from the honour for some reason of health or incapacity or unworthiness; but we should have to pass on to about the year 1400 before the rolls survive in sufficient continuity to justify any judgment in a particular case.

There is a third event in a monk's life, which involves a date, but which cannot be classed with the other two, because its incidence was not so general. A Brother might be sent to Oxford at the expense of the convent. This became a necessary part of the Benedictine system about the year 1290, along with the foundation of Gloucester College, Oxford, at the General Chapter of the Benedictine Order, Walter de Wenlok, our Abbot, being one of the Presidents, as deputy for the Abbot of Glastonbury¹. Our knowledge of its prevalence at Westminster from the middle of the fourteenth century onwards is due to the rolls of the Treasurers, who paid the scholars the amount granted to them annually. The first case that I have been able to find represents a system that did not last long. In 1339-40 there were two such Oxford scholars, Robert de Hamslap and Robert de Lake, and their scholarships took the form of a payment—"pro studio apud Oxon"—of one penny in the mark from certain obedientiaries (e.g. the Infirmarer and the Warden of the Churches). But the first case of what became the normal system is in the Treasurers' account for 1359-60 and it is given in these words: "Solut' fratri W. Zepeswych pro expensis suis apud Oxon una cum expensis circa domum studentium xiii^{li} xiii^s iiiii^d." For historical purposes this is ambiguous. It might imply that Zepeswych was the first Westminster scholar and that, being such, he was involved in some additional expense in providing a proper habitat for himself and those who would follow him to Oxford,—no doubt in Gloucester College. At this time Zepeswych (or Ipswich) was about twenty-seven years of age, having entered our House in 1352-3. He remained at Oxford till 1364 and on his return became in succession Archdeacon, Precentor, Sacrist, Warden of the Lady Chapel, and finally Prior of Hurley. It is of interest to note that quite late in his career at Westminster he was sent in conjunction with the Prior, Richard de Merston, to carry to Canterbury a letter from Cardinal Langham "de domo scolarium apud Oxon²."

Now, we are well supplied at this period with Treasurers' accounts and these lead us to suppose that till 1362 Zepeswych was our only representative at Oxford; but in that year he was joined by John Stowe, who in turn was joined in 1364 by Richard Circestr', who subsequently wrote the Speculum Historiale. Henceforward there is a place in the Treasurers' rolls at which we may confidently expect to find an entry of a payment of £10 each (it was changed about 1435 to ten marks or £6. 13s. 4*d.*) to each of two monks, variously entered as "existentibus Oxon," or "scolaribus Oxon," or "studentibus Oxon," or "scolaribus studentibus Oxon." There was no prescribed period for the holding of these scholarships. William Colchester, the future Abbot, held his for four years. John Farnago, who with Colchester witnessed Cardinal Langham's will at Avignon, interrupted his course for the purposes of his journey abroad, and had a further year at Oxford on his return. William de Sudbury, who lived to do our House some credit in theological scholarship, was a £10 student for at least twelve years. Thomas Merke, afterwards Bishop of Carlisle, was in residence at Oxford only from 1392 to 1394 and in his second year needed an additional gift of £10 "circa introitum ad sentencias." Robert Whatele went up at the age of about twenty-six in 1390 and remained a student till 1407, receiving a grant of £3. 6s. 8*d.* in 1403-4 "pro oppositione sua in scolis ibidem facienda." On his return to Westminster in 1407, he became Prior till the end of his days in 1435, and we should like to know why (if not for the special favour of Henry V) Richard Harwden stepped up before him into the Abbot's place in 1420. John Sauereye's case bears witness to the absence of system; for he said his first Mass in 1395-6, was promoted "ad skillam" ten years later, served the offices of Chamberlain, Abbot's Receiver and Seneschal, and Almoner, and then in 1415, when he was nearly five and forty, was our Oxford student for two years; was it to prepare him for the Priorship of Hurley, which he held from 1420 to 1452, if not still later? But the most Oxonian of our Oxford scholars was Edmund Kirton, who went up to the University a year before his ordination as priest, residing there almost continuously from 1407 to 1425; about 1423 he was recognised as Prior "studentium Oxon," that is, of Gloucester Hall or College. Also in fairness it must be recorded that Thomas Ruston, who was scholar from 1448 to 1456, afterwards became by his wild administration of important offices the cause of the dismal downfall of Abbot Norwych. But, speaking generally, it will be clear from the Register now compiled that a course at Oxford tended to a Brother's advancement as an ecclesiastical officer of the Convent; that is, he was more likely to be Precentor or Sacrist, than Monk-Bailiff or Cellarer.

In particular, it may be gathered from the rolls of the Sacrists that in many cases it was the Oxford scholars to whom the Monastery turned for preachers on Palm Sunday and Good Friday, the two great days for sermons in Benedictine houses. Millyng, for instance, came up at least five times for this special purpose, the Convent doing him honour on the last of these occasions (1476) as Bishop of Hereford. It is also evident from the items of their travelling expenses that residence at Oxford was rarely continued all the year round. In 1491 when there were four scholars, John More and his three companions rode up from the University in February, took their part in the Passion-tide sermons, returned to Oxford in May, and were brought up again to Westminster in July for the election of Roger Blake to the Priorship. Two of them, Borow and Duffeld, travelled from Oxford to Westminster in December 1492, returning to their studies in January. But Borow had to ride up once more in February to tell his colleagues that Duffeld had died at Oxford, and this time he remained in the Convent till the following May.

In 1428 the Benedictines established a hostel in the parish of St Giles, Cambridge, on the site now occupied by Magdalene College. This hostel, which was afterwards called Buckingham College, provided accommodation for students from various monasteries in the eastern counties, such as Croyland, Ely, Walden and Ramsey¹. It is also on record that Abbot Millyng, who was at Oxford for eight years as one of our students, was incorporated at Cambridge in 1470-1². But no connexion with Cambridge can be detected in the Treasurers' entries till 1499 when Thomas Gardener, having been for two years "scolaris studens Oxon'," appears for a short time as "studens Oxon' et Cantabrig'," and that in 1533-4 there were several "studentes Cantabrigie," some of whom had previously been at Oxford. Henry VII had added to the number of the scholars and it may be that the effect of the Lady Margaret's interest alike in Cambridge and in Westminster can be detected in this tardy modification of the ancient absorption in Oxford. Records like Foster's Alumni Oxonienses go to show that quite a number of these students proceeded to degrees in Divinity.

Exact information as to the end of a monk's life at Westminster is more difficult to obtain than it is in the case of his entry or his promotion. If we could carry right through the history of the House the business-like thoroughness with which Prior Walsh turned his note-book³ into a register of mortality, our trouble would be slight. We should know the hour, the day of the week and of the month, and the year of a Brother's decease; we should know where and on what day he was buried⁴. But William Walsh's delightful entries soon come to an end and, as registrar, he had neither predecessor nor follower, as far as we can tell. If, again, it had been the custom to erect some permanent memorial to all departed Brethren in the church or the cloisters or the precincts, and an earlier and equally observant Camden had gone round from time to time and copied the inscriptions, as the only Camden did for us in his Reges, &c., we might be better supplied with death-dates. As it is, we depend as before on the compotus rolls and on their rigid system of entry. Among these, the most certain authority for present purposes is the Infirmarer. It was his duty to pay out a sum of money, usually about 6s. 8d., for a Brother's obit; his formula being generally as follows, "et distribut' pauperibus pro anima fratris A.B." (or "pro animabus fratrum A.B., C.D."). There does not appear to be any regulation for this distribution in our Consuetudinary, but in that of St Augustine's, Canterbury, there are precise directions for the commendatory Mass to be said in the Infirmary Chapel¹, and this as well as the fitness of things would account for the importance of the Infirmary as registrar of deaths. But it must be noticed that his information gives only the year (from Michaelmas to Michaelmas) in which death took place²; it is possible to guess from the last occurrence of the Brother's name in the sick-list at what part of the year he was taken, but it must be rough guessing.

What is surprising, in view of the directions of the Consuetudinary, is the absence of mortuary detail from other rolls. It was the duty of the Westminster Sacrist "monachorum sepulturas providere et jubere fieri"³ and, as this could not be done except at the cost of labour and materials, we should expect him to charge for the items and to state the names of those whose death caused the expense. But, as far as I have observed, we do not owe to him the knowledge of a single death. At Canterbury it was the duty of the Chamberlain to provide the various ceremonies for the corpse, with special care that they should be new and clean⁴, which again meant expense; but our Chamberlain makes no entry of such expenses. It was the duty of the Warden of the Lady Chapel,—a duty newly imposed in Abbot Ware's time⁵,—to provide a resting-place for a Brother's remains; but only once, and that in the earliest document of his that we have, does the "Custos Capellae" make any entry of his costs in this respect. It is in Robert de Bures' account for 1299-1300 and is as follows: "Et in sarcophagis cum cooperculis emptis pro fratribus N. de Ware, W. de Finden, A. de Leyton, et W. de Watford xxiv^s vi^d." A persistence in this habit by the Warden would have spared us much investigation and more doubt. We have to rely, then, in the case of death chiefly upon the lists, whether of the Chamberlain or of the Wardens of the manors.

¹ Customary, I, 338. On the back of a seneschal's roll, evidently of the time of Abbot Wenlok (1283-1307), I have lately found a transcript in another hand of the full liturgical directions for the unction of a Brother and for his obsequies,—“ordo visitandi infirmum,” &c. (Mun. 6631). Allowing for local variations, such as the placing of the body before the altar of St Benedict, there is a fairly close correspondence with the Canterbury rite. No officers are concerned except the Prior and the Precentor, neither of whom kept official records of his doings. An almost identical service appears in Missale Westm. (ed. H.B.S., 1896) III, 1266 ff.

³ Customary, II, 51.

⁴ "Staminam novam, quam prius non habuit aliquis indutam, ..cucullam honestam et satis longam...." Customary, I, 340.

⁵ Ibid. II, 51: "prout noviter est statutum, unicuique fratri in fata decedenti sarcophagum exhibebit."

These lists, as we saw, preserve the order of conventual precedence, and any break in that sequence means something. Very early it comes to be realised that there is a little group out of order at the foot of the lists, sometimes running straight on, sometimes and, in later years, mostly with a space left between them and the junior novice. Some Brother who, last year, had a full share from the manors is placed this year in this little group at the end and receives the third part of a share; another Brother next to him is given two-thirds; another a twelfth; and so on. It is reasonable to suppose that these names represent the mortality of the year under review, and that the difference in the fractions of dividend assigned to them is caused by their having survived through various proportions of the said year. If the latter conclusion is conjectural, there is not much doubt about the mortuary character of this group of names; for it is confirmed by a single incident. In the list appended to his comptus of 1344-5 Hugh de Shenegeyze, the Chamberlain, inserted before the names of the last two Brethren what looks at first like the name of a monk, but proves to be the word "Mortui." I have therefore adopted the phrase "inter mortuos" to signify that a monk's name is so found; and I take it, whether in the Chamberlain's rolls or in those of the manors, to be a presumption of his decease.

But it has been puzzling to notice how often the Chamberlain seems to give the death a year later than it is given by the Wardens of the Manors or by the Infirmarers, where they enter the obit.

I have wondered whether this is to be explained by an arrangement adopted in the eighth year of his rule by Abbot Richard de Berkyng. It meant, we are told¹, that for a year after a Westminster monk's death his corrody or allowance was to be paid by the Almoner to some suitable priest to say daily prayers and Masses for his soul throughout the year; and the Chamberlain must hand to the Almoner "omnia quae ad vesturam et calcituram fratris defuncti pertinebant, sine aliqua diminucione," for the benefit of the same priest. If this was so, the Chamberlain would be bound to include the dead Brother's name in his list one year longer than other officers did, together with the usual details of the equipment given out for him from the store.

The chief difficulty in this matter of death-dates lies in the possibility that a name may appear no more because the monk has taken his departure to some other religious house. We have the case of Edward Boteler, who received letters dimissory from Abbot Estney to enable him to join the Cluniac priory of St Milburga at Wenlock². His last payment from Q. Alianore's manors is entered at the foot of the 1487-8 list, from which we should presume his death, if we had not the letters.

Thus, though there are cases in which the word "Defunctus" must be left to hover between the sense of dead to the Abbey and the sense of dead to the life that now is, it may be taken that the dates given denote in over 200 instances the actual death of the Brother in question, and that, though the Chamberlain's method makes certainty about a given year somewhat difficult, the margin of doubtfulness does not extend beyond twelve months.

Apart, then, from any incidental references that may be found to his activities or his writings, these are the four chief events in a Westminster monk's career,—his first appearance as a junior, his first Mass, his first day as president in the Refectory, and his death. But, if he was once drawn into the work of administration, his career must also be described in terms of the various offices to which he was appointed, and there is no apparent limit to the number of such offices in a given case. To take as our first instance the 49 Brethren serving under Walter de Wenlok in 1297–8, it can be reckoned that 20 of these held no office during their career, 12 held one, 5 held two, 5 held three, 5 held four, 1 held six and 1 held seven offices, at various times; but no rules can be deduced from information so incomplete as that of the rolls of this period. A hundred years later we can feel much more sure, though the result does not materially differ. In 1399–1400 the House contained 59 Brethren serving under the Priorship of John de Wratting. Examining the careers of these, we get the following results: 27 did not receive any office at any time; 6 received one office, 3 two offices, 4 three offices, 4 four offices, 8 five offices, 2 six offices, 1 seven offices, 2 eight offices, 1 nine, 1 ten, and 1 eleven offices. Let us see what an extreme case meant. The man who passed through eleven offices was Roger Cretton. He became a Westminster monk in 1384–5 and he began to exercise administrative functions in 1399. From then till 1413 he was busy with finance and commissariat as Treasurer, Kitchener, Cellarer, and Granger, being also for part of the time Warden of Q. Alianore's and of Richard II's manors and Warden of the Churches. In 1413 he became Almoner for three years; in 1416 Infirmarer and Abbot's Receiver for two years; in 1422 (and perhaps earlier) he became Sacrist and so remained till 1433–4. Thus for thirty-five years, 1399–1434, with the probable exception of the years 1414–6, 1418–22, he was never without administrative responsibility, and never passed a year without producing a compotus with his name at the top and a recognition "pro bono suo labore" at the bottom. "Infra tempus compoti mortuus est," says the Sacrist of 1433–4; he died during the time of the audit; and it must have seemed the appropriate moment for Roger Cretton to die.

It is perhaps as well to show the last phase of this feature. In the years 1501–4 (Mich^s to Mich^s) 20 novices were admitted to the Convent. Of these, 14 did not attain to office at all, 2 held one office (that of Kitchener, a very subordinate post), 2 held five offices, 1 nine, and 1 twelve. The only point of interest now is the practical concentration of the administration in the hands of a single monk.

The Tenure of Offices.

The last development.

John Fulwell, the pluralist in question, was John Islip's right-hand man. For Islip and his predecessor, Fascet, kept the great responsibilities on their own shoulders. For thirty-two years Islip was not only Abbot but Sacrist and Warden of the New Work and Warden of the Lady Chapel as well; that is to say, he controlled the great spending departments. Nor did he spread the burden among his Brethren; he placed all of it in the charge first of Thomas Jaye and then of John Fulwell, the latter being his chaplain. From 1514 to 1528 Jaye was Treasurer, Monk-Bailiff, Warden of the Churches, Warden of each set of royal manors, and Cellarer. In May 1528, Jaye became Prior, and then all these offices passed at once to John Fulwell, who had been Granger and deputy for the Abbot as Warden of the Lady Chapel. He became also Cellarer, Kitchener, Warden of Henry VII's foundation and (at any rate in 1528) Archdeacon. In such a condition of things the greater part of the Brethren must have felt themselves to be mere ciphers in the administration of the House, and the end was not far off.

One more question arises. What special care was taken of the aged?

The Consuetudinary makes frequent reference to the "stagiarii,"
The stagiarii. the old staggers, who were too infirm to be summoned to Mass in the church or to meetings of the Chapter, and who mostly had their own special "camera" or set of rooms in the Infirmary. Reginald Shiplake, for instance, is described as having been for the last two years of his life "stagiarius infra Infirmaryam." It is also clear from the *Consuetudinary*¹ that the Abbey had its reclusorium a short distance off, and some of our Brothers are recorded to have been "reclusi," payments being made from time to time to provide them with fuel and light in their solitude. But in a House where manorial and other payments were made to the youngest novice it would be strange if something were not done to meet the special needs, the little creature comforts, of the aged who were infirm without being bedridden. Yet I can find practically no trace of this being done, save under quite exceptional circumstances, and then mainly in the form of a pension for services rendered. It will be best to set forth the facts as they may be gathered from the Register.

The earliest instance I have found is that of Richard Excestr', whose Richard Excestr'. career in the Convent has some curious features. He entered it in 1360, just before receiving priest's orders in 1361. His promotion "ad skillam" is not recorded, but it may have taken place in or about 1371. In 1375 he was sent to Oxford with a £10 scholarship, and he was made Prior of Westminster in 1377. But he held this office only for five years, and seems to have resigned it in 1382, we know not for what cause. Henceforth his place on the lists, and in Choir and in Chapter, is next to the Prior, and in whatever respects the Prior received a double portion, such as clothing or distributions of money at anniversaries, Richard of Exeter received the same till his death in 1397. This constituted his pension, and it was clearly given for services rendered in the Prior's office¹. We may dispose, out of their proper order, of other similar cases, such as a recreation of 20s. "fratri Ricardo Harowdene nuper Abbati," paid to him after his resignation in 1440 by the Warden of King Henry V's manors, in addition, of course, to his large pension from the Abbot's portion; and the pension amounting to £5, in addition to a Prior's double portions, which was the recognition made to Thomas Arundel, when he resigned the Priorship in 1482, exactly a century after Richard Excestr' had done the like. Edmund Kirton was another Abbot who resigned his seat, receiving a pension of 200 marks, besides allowances in money and in fuel from the bounty of his successor.

We return to William Colchester, who, evidently not on account of age or infirmity, but for valuable service rendered to the corporation at home and abroad, was in receipt of a pension of six marks paid by the Treasurers out of the common funds². When he was made Abbot in 1386, this pension was transferred to John Lakyngtheth, then perhaps fifty years of age, whose services to the welfare of the House were hardly less signal than Colchester's, and to these six marks were added in his case the yearly profits (ten shillings) of a specified osier-bed³. What we may call retiring pensions begin to appear towards the middle of the fifteenth century.

In 1432, William Sonewell, the Convent recluse, who as it turned out had only a few months to live, received a pension of 10s. from the Warden of the Lady Chapel, and he is the first of some two and twenty Brethren who were pensioned, as I conclude, on the same grounds of their service as obedientiaries, up to and including William Grene whose pension began in 1526-7,—an average of one pension granted every four to five years. The only proof that the pension was a recognition of administrative service is that there is no record of any others. John Ocle (1434-5) has, it is true, no such service to his credit, but he was the Convent recluse, and so needed his allowance of "fagetts" and candles and 20s. yearly. John Knolle (1498-9) is the one instance I can find of a pension (£1) being granted without the necessary reason, and he may have been an invalid or he may have held an office or offices of which there is no surviving record; the former is more probable, as he was only about forty-five years of age when pensioned, and died soon⁴ after. Against this apparent exception we must set the care with which it is stated⁴ that a regard of 4s. 4d. given to John Norton (1473-4) was granted "causa debilitatis hac vice tantum," and on the other hand that Magister Richard Southbroke's pension¹ was "pro quadam annuitate sibi concessa ad terminum vite"; for Norton held no offices, while Southbroke was Precentor for at least eighteen years. It is sufficient to specify that among the twenty-two who appear to have been pensioned for services rendered William Chertsey was in office almost continuously from 1445 to 1483, and Richard Charing from 1483 to 1524.

There remain two cases which seem to lie outside this pension scheme and to be due to special circumstances. Magister Ralph Selby
 Ralph Selby. entered the Convent in 1398-9, after a busy career in the broader life of the Church of England. He is stated² to have been Prebendary and Sub-dean of York (1386); Archdeacon of Buckingham (1392); and Archdeacon of Norfolk (1398). What his age was, and why, being still in the last-named office, he entered our House, it is not possible to decide. He may have been a personal friend of Abbot Colchester, who would be glad to have among his Brethren an experienced jurist. The doggrell on Selby's tomb in the south Ambulatory called him³

Doctor per merita, praepotens lege perita,
 Legibus ornatus, a regibus et veneratus;

but he was also assured of a welcome within our walls as being one of the executors of John de Waltham, Bishop of Salisbury, and as having had his part in founding an anniversary for that royal favourite, which brought no small gain to the Brethren. It would be, perhaps, on these grounds that at his first appearance on our lists (Q. Alianore, 1398-9; Chamberlain, 1399-1400), Ralph Selby was given precedence next to the Prior. But it is not so clear why in 1402-3 the Treasurer, who says that he acted under the capitular authority of the Abbot, Prior and Convent, should have begun paying to Selby the large annual pension of £4, which continued till he died, like Abbot Colchester, in 1420.

The other case was that of a monk who also had connexions with the John Stokes. outside world and who entered the monastery about five years before Selby's death. John Stokes who said his first Mass in 1417-8 was absent from the Convent from about 1421 to 1436, and his appointments at St Stephen's College, Westminster, and at St Paul's Cathedral are noted in the Register⁴. Like Selby he was Magister, and during his absence from the House he may have been conferring services upon it which justified the exceptional treatment extended to him. At all events in 1449-50, the year of his decease, the Treasurers began to pay a sort of post-mortem pension of £20 on his behalf, and the Sacrist in 1450-1 a pension of £2. 13s. 4d., such amount in each case to be payable for five years. As the Infirmarer of 1450-1 enters an expenditure of 20s. "pro debitis magistri Johannis Stokys de collegio sancti Stephani," it is legitimate to conclude that the Convent shouldered the obligations which Stokes left unsettled at his death. The pension given to Bishop Merke (p. 116) is equally exceptional.

This, then, is our catalogue of "obscure names." Let us admit the obscurity for a moment in order that the names may be discussed merely as names which throw light on the system of monastic nomenclature. We may deal first with the concluding forty years of the Convent's life as a period distinct in its methods, when a name was not infrequently given to conceal rather than to indicate. Christopher Godehappes and John Godeluke, Richard Jerome and William Ambrose, Humfrey Charite and John Grace, John Felix and William Faith, William Hope and T. Veryty are specimens of the names "in religion" that mark these closing years; and the custom reached its height in 1533-4, when out of seven novices only Robert Barnards seems real; the rest are shadows,—Chrysostom, Ambrose, Patience, Veryty, Jerome, Mereye. Even to the last we find some whose style recalls the earlier local names,—John Yslyp (for a name-sake of the great Abbot joined the House in 1536-7, and like him was quickly committed to the Infirmarer's care), Robert Lyncoln, Armigel Hurley, Henry Winchester. But a number of names, perhaps about half, are formed to the last on the simple English plan,—William Penne, Thomas Chamberleyn, Edmund Brice.

The main point is that in the years with which our record opens we are faced with a plan of naming the Brethren to which there are very few exceptions, such as W. Capes and Henry Payn, who might have been so entered yesterday. The essential thing is a Christian name; indeed, in some early cases that is all we know. Robert, the Prior (+1085) and Brother Edward who appears first in 1317, the year of his decease, did not attain to a local name worthy of the notice of the documents which mention them. Then there is "Dan Henri," who carried some healing relic¹ to the Countess of Gloucester and Hertford and who needs no other designation, as far as the lady's letter is concerned. If we knew more, it might be possible to identify him, say, with Henry of Colchester [q.v.], who was Warden of the Lady Chapel and therefore a man of some experience in the matter of relics. Yet the system was so sound that there are only some fifty-four for whose surnames or place-names we are left lamenting,—none of them later than 1317.

The Christian names are an interesting study. Only seven Brethren bear St Peter's name, four of them before 1300; though perhaps we ought to include the thirteen Simons as paying at least an indirect compliment to the Apostle. There is no use of Paul as a Christian name. It may be thought that the Confessor's memory and the perpetual glory of his shrine and the continuance of his name in the royal House would all cause Edward to appear frequently on our list; but it is in fact much less in evidence than Edmund, appearing only five times. The first of these is in 1317 and the rest occur in and after 1447-8.

The fact appears to be that from its quite early years the Convent was predominantly English; after 1300 there are scarcely any names that even look foreign. So the prevalence of certain names followed the English habit. Richard and Robert run a neck and neck race down the centuries and have about fifty each to their credit at the close. Henry claims a posse of 21. But John and William outpace all comers, with 154 and 103 respectively. In fact 451 monks out of the 706 were called either John or William or Thomas or Richard or Robert or Henry. Surnames must have been a real necessity in a year such as 1458-9 when four out of six novices were called John. Two monks, again, came about the same time from Holbeach; each of them is John Holbech.

We pass to the surnames and arrive at some inevitable results. For the surname being an indication of origin and London having the largest population, it follows that a considerable number of our Brethren were called de London or, simply, London. As far as can be ascertained, there were thirteen of these, the latest appearing among the novices of 1494-5. But, as John is the most frequent Christian name, it will also follow that John of London is the most common combination. There are four monks in all so named, but, as they are well spread over the list, the similarity creates no confusion; indeed a fifth John London, 1435-6, considerably changed his name to John Daunt, as if to insist that he had a patronymic, as well as a place-name.

Admitting that London as a place of origin is in a class by itself, we go on to notice that the towns of Reading (though never so written) and of Wenlock are a fair second. Each gave us six of our Brethren. Two of the Reading men were called John, of whom the chronicler was the elder. It would be interesting to arrive at the reason why these Berkshire folk were thus drawn to the Abbey, which had no obvious connexion with their town either as landlord or otherwise.

To sum up our results, we may note that between 1049 and the surrender of the Monastery in 1540 we have here the names and careers of 706 Westminster Benedictines. Of these

For reasons already stated, our data for the 13th century (and still more for the 11th and the 12th) are incomplete, but we may conclude that we lack about seventy names. For, passing by the 14th century, when the total of admissions was swollen by the many vacancies due to the ravages of the Black Death, we come to see from the complete record of the 15th century that the average of admissions to the Order at Westminster was about two each year.

If anybody asks in conclusion by what means the House was recruited, the answer is not easy to give. There are some exceptions which must still not be taken as proving rules.

Method of recruiting.

Thus, there are apparently no strict limits of age. A single paper¹ records the profession in 1501 of Thomas Jaye, afterwards Prior, and three of his Brethren, with their ages at the time of their profession. Jaye's age cannot be deciphered, but the other three were aged seventeen, twenty-one, and nineteen respectively. John Islip² has told us that at his admission he was in his sixteenth year. Such variations at a given period hardly suggest that vacancies were supplied chiefly from the Convent schools; for the tendency in such case would be to adopt a normal age for passing from the one to the other. But the Almoner's rolls refer to the instruction of the "pueri cantantes" and of the "scolares" and of the "pueri Elemosinarie," and it is not to be supposed that these three seminaries (if they must be spoken of as three) were without their effect on the personnel of the Monastery. On the other hand, we are by no means devoid of instances of men who on their admission were of an age for priest's orders, and we have one or two cases, e.g. Ralph Selby, in which long service had already been rendered to the Church outside.

Neither was there any restriction of the privileges of the House to men born in lawful wedlock. For Thomas Pomeray, whose name first appears in 1421-2, was the son of a nobleman, but not by his wedded wife. We only know of this bend sinister through a Papal dispensation, which was not necessary to secure his admission, but was requisite before he could hold office in the Convent. It was granted in 1437, and Pomeray became Cellarer, probably in 1439; he was certainly appointed to the important offices of Treasurer and Monk-Bailiff in 1440; his other posts and his pension prove that he was held in high honour³.

Nor, whatever may have been the general rule, was it at all difficult for a monk to be received into the Abbey from another House or even another Order. Testimonials passed, for instance, in 1354 in favour of one Roger de Pydele, of Waltham, Holy Cross⁴, which satisfied Abbot Langham that he was worthy of admission to our Convent, though it is practically certain that he did not join it. But in Litlington's time we have the case of Robert Wynewyk¹, a canon of the Gilbertine or Sempringham Order, who was released by the Master of his Order on 10 Jan. 1367, the said Master receiving from Convent funds by command of the Abbot a consideration of ten marks or £6. 13s. 4*l.* in respect of the transference. The payment is a strange one, especially as Wynewyk was not used by the Convent except as Warden of the Lady Chapel for a brief period.

It follows that on occasion our own monks could pass hence to another confraternity. From the lack, which I have occasionally indicated, of direct evidence of death, I incline to believing that this was not an infrequent event. But we have the clear case of the letters dimissory written in English by Abbot Estney to the Prior of the Cluniac House of St Milburga Wenlock², with which Westminster had ancient affinity from the days of Abbot Walter de Wenlok. Estney states that Edward Boteler, the monk in question, whose interesting attainments he fully describes, desires "to be dismissed out of our obedience" and "to be a brother of your place and your obedience."

Still, taking the system as a whole, we are in no doubt as to what it meant. Young men were accepted in their boyhood and became, in most cases, members of the House for life; and it is not difficult to realise how they were selected. The Abbots were untiring in their journeys of inspection and of ceremony through the estates belonging to the abbatial portion. The Treasurers and the Monk-Bailiff went their factorial rounds through the manors belonging to the Convent's portion. In so doing they came to learn of youths with an apparent vocation for claustral life. A comparison of the place-names in our list with the record of the towns and villages situate in or near the property of the Convent will show that this was the normal method of recruiting. Those who occupied the stalls in the Choir of old time, like the crowds who throng to its services to-day, came from many parts of England. Then, as now, King Henry III's fabric was a truly national centre for the worship of the Lord, who fulfils Himself in various ways.

A REGISTER OF THE MONKS OF WESTMINSTER

NOTE.

1. The figure at the head of each name or set of names signifies the year in which the monk joined the Convent as a novice, or otherwise. Sometimes this can only be given approximately, e.g. c. 1092; sometimes it is evident that the date of joining must be earlier than the first known date, e.g. + 1049.

2. The names of those who became Abbots are printed in spaced capitals, e.g. CRISPIN, Gislebert; the names of those who became Priors are printed in solid capitals, e.g. CLARE, Osbert de.

3. The conventual offices held by a monk are given in monastic Latin. The documentary authority for each statement is generally added in round brackets. Such authority consists of

(a) a separate document among the Muniments, e.g. (Mun. 2001);

(b) a computus-roll of some obedientiary, whose title is given in English according to the names used on the boxes in which they are contained, together with the year in question; e.g. Laurence de Benflet (p. 72), Precentor 1297-8 (Infirmarer) signifies that this monk is so described in the Infirmarer's roll for that year;

(c) an entry in the great Chartulary called Domesday; e.g. (Domesday f. 493), or (Domesday f. 493 b), if the reference is to be found on the dors. of the folio;

(d) an entry in the miscellany called Liber Niger Quaternus, e.g. (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 125 b).

Where no authority is added, it may be assumed that the roll of the obedientiary for the year in question may be consulted, e.g. Chalk, William de (p. 66), Custos Maner^m Regine Alianore 28 Mai, 1302-17 Apr. 1305 signifies that the authority is the rolls of Q. Alianore's manors for the period specified.

4. Quotations from the documents are given as they stand, except that, for convenience, the customary abbreviations are disregarded.

5. In cases where it is possible that an office was held longer than can be proved from the documents, the sign ?+ is used; e.g. Coggeshale, Walter de (p. 125) Celerarius ?+ 1416-7 ?+ signifies that the office was possibly held both before and after the year specified.

6. Each form of a surname is included, that which stands first being on the whole the most prevalent¹. Some occasional variations in the Christian name are also noted.

EDWIN.

Monachus Westm.

Abbas 1049-12 Jun. 1071 (J. Armitage Robinson, Flete, p. 140).

Alwold.

Donum quod Alwoldus de porta sancti Botulphi eis dedit, quando monachus ibi effectus est...[time of Edw^d Confess^r] (Domesday f. 98).

¹ The majority of the names have some variants; Islip has no less than fourteen.

Ralph.

Camerarius. Witnessed Edward the Confessor's charter 28 Dec. 1065, of which Mun. XXI is a copy, dated 2 Mar. 1314 and witnessed by John de Butterle [q.v.].

c. 1071

GEOFFREY, Galfridus.

Abbot of Jumièges.

Appointed Abbot of Westminster c. 1071 by the Conqueror who removed him on the advice of Lanfranc and sent him back to Normandy in disgrace c. 1075 (cf. J. Armitage Robinson, Flete, p. 141).

c. 1076

VITALIS.

Abbot of Bernay, a cell of Fécamp.

Appointed Abbot of Westminster by the Conqueror on the advice of Lanfranc (v. letter in Widmore, p. 180) c. 1076 (1073, Flete, p. 84; but see Robinson's note, p. 141).

Received from the Conqueror a confirmation of the grant of the manor of Dodinton [Doddington, Lincs.] with Thorpe (Domesday f. 500 b).

Defunctus 19 Jun. 1085 (1082, Flete, p. 84); sepultus in australi parte claustrii...ad pedes abbatis Gervasii (p. 85).

Sulcard.

Wrote a Chronicle of the Abbey, which he dedicated venerabili viro et semper dei servo domino Abbati Vitali. It is frequently quoted or referred to by Flete, who calls him monachus egregie litteratus (p. 83). For the substance and character of his story cf. J. Armitage Robinson, Flete, pp. 3-11.

Camden (Reges, etc.) includes Sulcardus monachus et cronographus among those buried in locis ignotis ecclesiae. Flete, p. 83, says he was finally buried in the Chapter House.

+ 1085

ROBERT.

Prior.

Witnessed Abbot Gilbert's enfeoffment of a knight c. 1085 (Domesday f. 79) and a charter (ibid. f. 124). For a discussion of the date of the enfeoffment see J. Armitage Robinson, Flete, p. 141; Gilbert Crispin, p. 38.

Appointed Abbot of St Edmundsbury 1102; consecrated by Anselm 15 Aug. 1107. Died 16 Sep. 1107.

CRISPIN, Gislebert or Gilbert.

Son of William Crispin, a Norman noble (d. 8 Jan. 1074), and the lady Eva de Montfort his wife (d. 22 Jan. 1099). Entered the abbey of Bec as a boy and was there when Anselm joined it. At the age of about 34, was sent by Anselm to Lanfranc at Canterbury, c. 1079.

Abbot of Westminster 1085-1117 (1082-1114, Flete, p. 87), by the influence of the Conqueror at the instigation of Lanfranc, being about 40 when appointed.

Received from William the Conqueror a grant of land at Pyrford c. 1085-7 (Mun. XXIV).

In his time c. 1085-6 Geoffrey de Mandeville, Sheriff of London and Middlesex, founded the priory of Hurley as a cell of Westminster, and Gilbert was present at the dedication of the church (Mun. 2001).

He completed the Cloister before 1100 and probably "built the Abbot's camera (or capella, or perhaps both) over the locutory."

Presided at the opening of the Confessor's tomb 1102.

Gave a corrody to the Nuns of Kilburn (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 125 b).

Granted lands to the priory of Greater Malvern consensu communi capituli (Dugdale, Monasticon, III, 448); possibly the foundation of the priory also belongs to his time.

Died 6 Dec. 1117; buried in the South Cloister at the feet of Abbot Vitalis (Flete, p. 87).

Was "remembered on his anniversary [7 Dec.], for having extended the camera, making assignment for the clothing of eighty monks." (Customary, II, p. 149; cf. Mun. 1497, which is a confirmation by Henry III of his ordinances in this last matter.)

His extant writings are Vita Herluini; Disputatio Judaei cum Christiano; de Simoniacis; de Spiritu Sancto; and five minor pieces (Brit. Mus. Add. MS. 8116). See J. Armitage Robinson, Gilbert Crispin, 1911.

c. 1085

HERBERT, Herebert.

Witnessed Abbot Gilbert's enfeoffment of a knight (Domesday f. 79).

Probably = Herbert, a Norman (Flete, p. 87), who became Almoner and in Jan. 1121 was made Abbot; possibly he may have come with Gilbert Crispin from Bec.

Received a grant of privileges from Peter of Cluny, papal legate, 1121 (Domesday f. 387).

Mun. 3435 appears to be a 13th century copy of his grant of money for the services of the High Altar in the Abbey church from the church of St Margaret, from the church at Denham, and from his own purse (see Brit. Mus. Harl. Ch. 84, F. 46).

For the foundation of the nunnery at Kilburn in his time see Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 125.

For date of death, 3 Sep. ?1136, see J. Armitage Robinson, Flete, p. 142.

William.

Witnessed Abbot Gilbert's enfeoffment of a knight (Domesday f. 79).

? Identical with William a monk mentioned in the mortuary roll of Abbot Vitalis of Savigny who died 16 Oct. 1122 (J. Armitage Robinson, Gilbert Crispin, p. 27).

Nicholas.

Witnessed Abbot Gilbert's enfeoffment of a knight (Domesday f. 79).

c. 1092

Hugh.

Along with Warner [q.v.] he perambulated the lands which Abbot Gilbert gave to the priory of Greater Malvern.

Warner.

? = Warnerius, a monk of Bec c. 1070 (Porée, Histoire du Bec, I, 629).

Along with Hugh, another monk, he perambulated the lands which Abbot Gilbert gave to the priory of Greater Malvern (J. Armitage Robinson, Gilbert Crispin, pp. 31, 33).

A senior monk of Westminster, present at Ely at the translation of St Etheldreda, St Withburga and two other saints 1107 (cf. J. Armitage Robinson, Osbert of Clare, Ch. Quart. Rev. Jul. 1909, p. 346, n. 2).

For his writings see Widmore, p. 22; Pits, p. 191.

c. 1095

Maurice.

Mentioned in mortuary roll of Abbot Vitalis of Savigny (J. Armitage Robinson, Gilbert Crispin, p. 27, 31). Probably = Mauricius subdiaconus sancti Wulstani Wigorniensis episcopi, who became a monk of Westminster when the Bishop died c. 1095 (Osbert de Clare, Life of St Edward, Brit. Mus. Add. MS. 36737 f. 147).

Witnessed a charter of Abbot Herbert [c. 1121-36] (Domesday f. 124).

+ 1121

CLARE, Osbert de.

Prior ? + 1121. Not elected Abbot in succession to Gilbert Crispin [q.v.], apparently on account of Henry I's interference. Sent to Ely (Epp. XII; XIX), either in disgrace or on an official visitation before 1123.

Kept the Feast of the Conception of the Virgin Mary (? at Westminster) in 1127 or 1128 (Ep. VIII).

Was again at Westminster as Prior 1134. Took a prominent part in the foundation of the Nunnery of Kilburn (Lib. Vig. Quat. f. 125).

Wrote a Life of St Edward, 1138. Started for Rome 1139 with a commendatory letter to the Pope from King Stephen in order to promote the canonization of St Edward. This was refused for lack of sufficient testimony, with the result that Osbert again fell into disgrace at Westminster and ceased to be Prior. Flete (p. 92) says that Abbot Laurence (1158) sent Prior Osbert de Clare to Rome where the canonization of St Edward was granted by Alexander III at Anagni, 7 Feb. 1161; but there is no known authority for using Osbert's name in this connexion. [See J. Armitage Robinson, Westminster in the Twelfth Century, Ch. Quart. Rev. Jul. 1909.]

c. 1121

EADWYE.

Prior under Abbot Herbert (Domesday f. 124).

Philip.

Witnessed a charter of Abbot Herbert (Domesday f. 124).

Riculf.
Turstin.
Turkill.
Ægelward.

} Mentioned in mortuary roll of Abbot Vitalis of Savigny who died 16 Oct. 1122 (J. Armitage Robinson, Gilbert Crispin, p. 27).

c. 1130-4

Godfrey.

Was sent to Rome to inform Innocent II [1130-42] that Gilbert the Universal, Bishop of London [1128-34], had intruded into Westminster Abbey, celebrating Mass on the feast of St Peter and St Paul and claiming jurisdiction (Domesday f. 1 b). ? = Godfrey, the Sacrist, p. 53.

c. 1137

GERVASE.

Natural son of King Stephen.

Amalricus frater Abbatis witnessed a charter about Hendon (Domesday f. 124) and, together with Ralph, another brother, a charter about land in the City (ibid. f. 493 b).

Abbas 1137 (?)-1157 (?). His deposition probably took place between Apr. 1157 and Aug. 1158; see J. Armitage Robinson's note in Flete, p. 143. Res loci illius [Westminster] juveniliter dissipavit (John of Hexham's Continuation of Simeon of Durham, Rolls Series, II, 329 f.).

In his time the Abbot and Convent assigned 8s. yearly to the Precentor from Roinges [White Roothing], Essex, for the repair of the books in the library (Manuscripts of Westminster Abbey, p. 1; Mun. 1172 A).

Sepultus in australi parte claustrum...ad pedes abbatis Willelmi de Humez (Flete, p. 91).

Lobbe, Goderic.

Gave to the Abbey the church of St Agnes [Aldersgate] and its tenures with his body on the day that he became a monk of the Abbey. The gift is referred to by Abbot Gervase in a grant of the same church to St Martin-le-Grand (Domesday f. 477).

Thus Lobbe died in or before 1157.

Capes, W.

Brancun, Roger.

Hairun, Richard de.

} Witnessed a grant of Abbot Gervase to William de Wenduna (Mun. I).

Ans gode.

A frequent witness to charters, often with Richard de Bisseea [q.v.], in time of Abbot Gervase (Mun. 32668; Domesday f. 493 b, &c.).

+ 1141

Æiric.

Prior de Hurley ante 1141 (Mun. 3551).

Lefric.

William of Malmesbury's Miracles of the blessed Virgin Mary (contained in a Brit. Mus. MS.—Cleop. C. x. f. 142—of the late twelfth century) includes a story headed de quodam monacho. It relates that quidam monachus Westmonasteriensis Lefricus nomine fuit qui abbatiam Certesii dum eadem abbatia erat sine abbate multis modis ut eandem abbatiam haberet quesivit. He obtained his wish, but was removed by the King to Holme. Later he returned to Chertsey, was taken suddenly ill, and by the mercy of the blessed Virgin received the Holy Sacrament before his death. This story was told to the compiler of the treatise by Ædric, Prior of Chertsey.

There is no record of any Abbot of Chertsey called Lefric and no trace of any such monk at Westminster. If he existed at all, the middle of the twelfth century would be a possible date.

Bisseea, Richard de.

Witnessed a notification from Abbot Gervase (c. 1137-57) to R. [Robert de Chesney] Bishop of Lincoln (1148-66) about an appointment to Islip church in that diocese (Mun. 15183).

John.

Witnessed Mun. 15183, next to Richard de Bisseea.

HUGH.

?=Hugo, nouicius monachus (Domesday f. 493 b, where he witnessed a charter of Abbot Gervase next to Richard de Bisseea).

Prior.

Abbot of St Edmundsbury 1157 (Dugdale, Monasticon, III, 104).

Died 1180 (ibid.).

c. 1157

William.

Prior de Hurley c. 1157 (Mun. 3750*).

ELIAS, Helias.

Prior (Flete, p. 143); witnessed a charter of Abbot Gervase, no date (Mun. 17311).

Witnessed a charter (Mun. 32670, Domesday f. 316 b) of the whole Convent along with Osbert de Clare during the vacancy caused by the deposition of Abbot Gervase (c. 1157), and before the appointment of Abbot Laurence (1158).

c. 1158

LAURENCE.

His parents had an anniversary at the Abbey on 28 Jan. (Mun. 8579). He had a nephew John (Domesday f. 649).

Abbas 1158 (?)—11 Apr. 1173. (For a discussion of the dates given in Flete, p. 91 f., see Armitage Robinson's note, p. 143.)

With the consent of the Chapter he granted the church of Sawbridgeworth to the altar of St Peter for the maintenance of a lamp ante corpus Christi; the rents to be paid and payments made by the monk who was Abbot's proctor or factotum, and the payments to include special wine and pittance for the Convent on the day set apart for the anniversary of the Abbot's father and mother, 28 Jan. (Mun. 8579). The grant of Alexander III confirming this is dated Anagniae vii Id. Feb. (7 Feb.) [1161]; cf. Domesday ff. 382, 570 b.

Sepultus in australi parte claustris ad pedes Gisleberti abbatis (Flete, p. 94).

Was commemorated at Durham on 3 Apr. (Liber Vitae, Surt. Soc. p. 142).

ALQUIN, Alequin.

Prior "in the time of Abbot Laurence or between 1159 and 1175" [?1158-73] (Widmore, p. 228).

Was commemorated at Durham on 21 May (Lib. Vit. p. 143).

Wyndesore, Wind', Peter de.

A charter of Abbot Laurence (Domesday f. 368) mentions petrus de Wind' monachus nuper ecclesie nostre as having possessed a house in the City of London, in Piscaria. The longer form of the name is given in the margin.

Roger.

Infirmarius.

Mentioned in a grant of Pope Alexander III about the assignment of the churches of Battersea and Wandsworth to the Infirmary [ad sustentacionem monachorum de Infirmania iuxta capellam sancte Katerine] in the time of Abbot Laurence (Domesday f. 570 b). The date, Anagniae vii Id. Jul., is the same as that of Alexander III's Bull for the Confessor's canonization in 1161.

c. 1161

Thomas.

Celerarius.

So named in a list of persons indebted to William Cade, a financier of Henry II's time, who is found witnessing documents 1161-8, &c. Thomas owed him £100 in conjunction with William Cape, who may be identical with Brother W. Capes [q.v.] (Eng. Hist. Rev. 1913, p. 227).

Walter.

Sacrista 1161.

This appears from a charter in the Sacrist section of Domesday (f. 382), the grant being made at Anagni 7 Feb. (as above). The title of Sacrist is omitted after his name, but it may be safely assumed.

? = Walter de Rokersbure, who appears in the Durham Liber Vitae, f. 57 p. 94 among the nomina monachorum ad succurrendum, and is there described as monachus Westmonasterii. The script is of the 13th century, but if W. de R. = Walter the Sacrist, he would be contemporary with Abbot Laurence and Alquin [q.v.], the other Westminster names in the Durham list.

Rocella, John de.

Prior de Hurley ?—c. 1169 (Mun. 2222; where he witnessed the confirmation of a grant of land).

+ 1170

Seger, William.

Prior de Hurley c. 1170–3 (Mun. 2280, which is a grant from Abbot Laurence [d. 1173] to him as Prior and to the Convent of Hurley of the church of Easthampstead, Berks).

+ 1173

ARUNDEL [Papilon], Ralph de.

? = Radulfus monachus, a witness (Domesday f. 293).

? = Radulfus camerarius Abbatis who witnessed a grant by Abbot Walter 29 Sep. 1176 (Mun. LI).

? = Radulfus de Arundel who witnessed an undated charter connected with the Almonry, but is not described either as frater or as monachus (Domesday f. 465 b; cf. f. 324). He was probably Almoner (v. infra).

Prior de Hurley ?1173–1200. Gave the priory some lands in Little Waltham to support his anniversary at Hurley (Mun. 2229).

Abbas 30 Nov. 1200—23 Jan. 1214. Flete, p. 99, gives 1201, but see J. Armitage Robinson's correction (ibid. p. 144). Mun. 5788 describes May 1209–May 1210 as the ninth year of his benediction, which is not of much assistance, but inclines in favour of 1200.

For his letter conferring benefits on Robert Mauduit, King's Chamberlain, in return for benefactions to St Mary's Chapel see Domesday f. 507 b.

Islip Manor was restored to the Abbot and Convent by King John 1 Nov. 1204 (Mun. 15160).

Was deposed 23 Jan. 1214 (Flor. Hist. II, 147) by Nicholas, Abbot of Waltham, fracto sigillo ipsius in capitulo.

Mun. 4961 implies that provision was made for him in his retirement out of the manors of Sunbury and Teddington.

Defunctus 12 Aug. 1223; sepultus in navi ecclesiae (Flete, p. 100).

Leland (Collectanea, IV, 48, 49) noted among the contents of the Convent library

Sermones Radulphi Eleemosynarii Prioris de Hurteley

and added that the book was begun under Abbot Laurence and completed after his death with a dedication to Abbot Walter (cf. M. R. James in Manuscripts of Westminster Abbey, p. 23).

Prior of Winchester.

Abbas 1175 (Flor. Hist. II, 88); July 1175 (Ralph de Diceto, Rolls Ser. I, 401; 404).

His brother, Alexander, witnessed a writing about knight-service (Domesday f. 293).

His nephew, Walter de Donitona [? Downton, Wilts; cf. Kitchin, Obedientary Rolls of Winchester, p. 13], witnessed a charter of his (Domesday f. 485).

Granted the manor of Pertune [Perton, Staffs] to Hugh de Nunante [Nonant], Bishop of Coventry, for his life for 40s. a year 2 Feb. 1190 (Domesday, f. 468).

Defunctus 27 Sep. 1190 (? 1191, Flete, p. 96; see Robinson's note, p. 144). For his anniversary, 27 Sep., see Domesday f. 464; Flete, p. 96.

RICHARD.

Prior.

Martin.

Alexander.

} Witnessed deeds in Abbot Walter's time (Domesday f. 293, f. 324).

c. 1189

MOLESHAM, Mulesham, Mullesham, Mulsam, Robert de.

Precentor (Mun. 17323; Domesday ff. 509 b; 546; 551 b). Mun. 17323 = Domesday f. 552, which is witnessed by Odo the Goldsmith, is a quit-claim of Simon de Gaiola, or Gayola, who can be dated 1197-8 by means of Mun. 17080.

Custos altaris b. Marie (Mun. 23638 dors.; time of Odo the Goldsmith); procurator altaris (Domesday f. 509 b).

Prior c. 1189-97.

One of his leases was witnessed by Dnus Willelmus Eliensis domini Regis Thesaurarius; i.e. William de Longchamp Bishop of Ely, 1189-97 (Mun. 17326; Domesday f. 547 b).

? = R. dictus Prior...mentioned in a charter of Abbot Arundel's time (Domesday f. 602 b; Flete, p. 99).

There was an assignment of 100 s. for his anniversary, 9 Dec., of which 20 s. were for a provision of bread for the poor on the Feast of the Conception of the Virgin Mary, that being the vigil of his anniversary (Customary, II, 92).

POSTARD, William.

Witnessed, as Prior, a confirmation by Abbot Walter; no date (Mun. 2270).

Abbas, 9 Oct. 1191 (cf. Ralph de Diceto, II, 100; Flor. Hist. II, 106).

Granted to the Convent his vill of Parham, retaining the advowson of the church there, toto conventu...assistente...et...pro beneficio isto gratias omnimodas...referente (Mun. 4064).

Assigned to the Infirmary an annual payment of 21 marks from the churches of Ocham [Oakham] and Hameldone [Hambleton] (Domesday f. 578).

Consented to the erection by the Bishop of Exeter [Henry Marshall] of a chapel on some land bought for the use of the Bishops of Exeter from Geoffrey Picot and situate in Langedich, Westminster, on the Abbey's estate; the consent was given on condition that there be no prejudice thereby to the rights of the Abbey or of St Margaret's chapel [1194-8] (Mun. 17312).

Defunctus [? 4 Mai] 1200 (Flor. Hist. II, 122; Flete, p. 98, gives 1201).

Sepultus in australi parte claustrum ante cymbalum (ibid. and Robinson's note, pp. 22-4).

For his anniversary see Flete, p. 98; Domesday f. 578. The latter, which only gives "William, Abbot," in its text, has a note interpreting this as Postard but then correcting the interpretation to Humez. If the identification with Postard is correct, he had a brother Arnulf and a nephew Nicholas.

c. 1191

Philip. } Capellani et monachi nostri. (So named in a charter of Abbot Adam. } William [Postard]; Domesday f. 650.)
Gilbert. }

+ 1193

Geoffrey.

Gaufridus Camerarius witnessed a grant of an annual rent from the churches of Oakham and Hambleton to the Pittancer of the Convent, c. 1193—1205 (Domesday f. 649 a, b).

James.

James the Cellarer was attorney for Abbot Postard in a suit about the church of Parham in Sussex, 1 Nov. 1199 (Mun. 4036; Domesday f. 578. The date is preserved in the latter). He is not called Frater in the document but he probably was one.

+ 1200

Robert.

Prior de Hurley c. 1200—1 (cf. F. T. Wethered, Last Days of Hurley Priory, p. 11).

1214

H U M E Z, de Humeto, William.

Monk of Caen and Prior of Frampton, Dorset, a cell of St Stephen, Caen.

His brother Alexander (Domesday f. 470 b).

Abbot, 4 May 1214 (Flor. Hist. II, 147). He is mentioned in a charter which was certified at New Sarum 15 May 1214 (Domesday f. 473 b).

Was blessed by William de St Marychurch, Bishop of London, 25 May, 1214 (Flor. Hist. II, 148).

For his assignments for his anniversary, for observing the translation of St Edmund [9 Jun.], and other purposes, see Mun. 32354; Domesday f. 120 b.

Made an agreement with Hugh [de Northwold] Abbot of St Edmundsbury for a confederation of the two Convents (Mun. 17315*).

Made a composition with the Prior and Convent of Greater Malvern securing his right to approve their choice of a Prior, to visit their house yearly with not more than 20 horses in his train, to receive at Westminster the professions of their monks, and to have the use on certain conditions of his hospice at Powick Manor [1216—18] (Mun. 32628; Domesday f. 574).

Issued a grant of full spiritual benefits from the Abbey and its cells to all who contributed to the cost of the new Lady Chapel—noui operis apud Westm. in honorem matris virginis inchoati—c. 1220 (Domesday f. 507 b).

For the award in the dispute between the Bishop of London [Eustace de Fauconberg] and the Dean and Chapter of St Paul's of the one part and our Abbot and Convent of the other part, 1222, see Mun. 12753 and cf. Widmore, p. 37.

Defunctus 20 Apr. 1222 (Flete, p. 102).

Sepultus in australi parte claustrum...ad caput abbatis Gervasii (ibid.; and cf. Robinson's note, p. 23).

+ 1219

BERKING, Berkyng, Richard de.

His mother's name was Lucy, and her anniversary was on 25 Feb. (Domesday f. 375-6).

Prior + Jun. 1219 (Domesday f. 615 b).

Abbas (electus post 20 Apr.) 1222-23 Nov. 1246.

Honorius III issued a mandate 7 Jul. 1222 to the Abbot of St Albans and the Abbot of Waltham to examine his election and confirm it if canonical (Kal. Pap. Reg. i, 88).

Received benediction from Peter des Roches, Bishop of Winchester, 18 Sep. 1222 (Flor. Hist. II, 176).

Consiliarius specialis Henrici III; baro scaccarii principalis; Angliae thesaurarius (Flete, p. 103).

Received from Gregory IX a faculty to give the first tonsure on solemn festivals 10 Dec. 1228 (Kal. Pap. Reg. i, 121) and an indult to give episcopal benediction at masses, vespers, and matins 23 May 1246 (ibid. 225).

Had a dispute with the Convent about the application of the rents of certain manors,—a settlement being brought about by the Bishops of Wells, Salisbury and Chichester, and confirmed by Gregory IX 7 Jul. 1227 (Mun. 5683).

Came to an arrangement with Roger Niger, Bishop of London, as to jurisdiction, visitation, procurations, &c., in the matter of the Nuns of Kilburn Priory; dated in capella apud Fuleham 21 Jul. 1231 (Mun. 4843; LIV).

Received a royal grant entitling the Convent to have eight stags yearly against the feast of St Peter ad Vincula from the herd in Windsor Forest 16 Jul. 1235 (Mun. 1517).

Abbot Richard, who granted an indulgence to all who would contribute to the repair of the cell of St Bartholomew, Sudbury,—in favillam et cinerem redacte,—(Mun. 20768) was probably de Berking (cf. its phrase minister humilis with the same as used by him, Domesday f. 375 b).

Defunctus 23 Nov. 1246 (Flor. Hist. II, 314); sepultus ante medium altaris in capella beatissimae Mariae virginis in tumba marmorea decenter ornata (Flete, p. 106).

For his anniversary see Domesday f. 376; Flete, p. 107; and for his assignment of land outside Estgrave Wood [Kensington] for the illumination of St Mary's Chapel see Mun. 4868; Domesday f. 566 b.

In ii candelabris factis de nouo ad pedes Abbatis de B. vi^d. 1298-9 (St Mary's Chapel).

Et pro i petra marmorea pro tumba Abbatis R. de B. c^s. 1397-8 (ibid.).

+ 1221

Stanford, William de.

Prior de Hurley c. 1221 (Mun. 474; 2185).

+ 1231

Le Gras, Richard.

Son of William le Gras (v. infra).

Richard [de Berking], Abbot, and the Convent granted him an anniversary on 28 Feb. for the souls of his father William and other relations. Out of lands acquired for the purpose at Stevenage, Herts. &c., he made provision for a refection of wine and a pittance to be provided on the day, which after his decease was to be changed to that of his death (Mun. 5399*).

Prior of Hurley Sep. 1231 (Mun. 20619; Domesday f. 595 f.)—27 Feb. 1236 (Mun. 2028).

Abbot of Evesham 1236. Died in Gascony 8 Dec. 1242 (Dugdale, Monasticon, II, 6).

William.

Proctor of Abbot Berking in a suit against William Maudit, Trinity term, 1234 (Domesday f. 91 b).

? = Willelmus Infirmarius [v. William, p. 53], mentioned in an exchange of land belonging to the Infirmary (Domesday f. 571 b).

Ayswelle, Theobald de.

Proctor for Abbot Berking in a suit at Chelmsford 3 Feb. 1235 (Domesday f. 617).

Prior of Hurley ?1247 (F. T. Wethered, Last Days of Hurley Priory, p. 11). Still Prior 1 May 1255 (Mun. 7605).

+ 1239

Sancto Albano, Hugh de.

Celerarius. Went to Rome on the business of the church of Essewille [Ashwell] (Customary, II, 72-3).

Cf. Kal. Pap. Reg. I, 181, 17 Ap. 1239, which shows that the Bishop of Lincoln had refused to induct the Abbot and Convent to the church of Aiswelle [Ashwell] and had excommunicated them. They appealed to the Pope through Hugh, Richard de Crokesley, and others, and were successful.

Hermodesworthe, Reginald de.

Celerarius forinsecus (Customary, II, 72-3).

Maleth, John de.

Went to the Roman Court on the business of the church at Essewille [Ashwell] (Customary, II, 72-3).

CROKESLEY, Crokele, Crockele, Richard de.

(Magister; Flor. Hist. II, 320.)

Went to the Roman Court c. 1239 on the business of the church at Essewille [Ashwell] (Customary, II, 72-3).

Went to Gascony 1246 (?1242) with Brother Normannus to carry the Virgin's girdle to Henry III and his Queen (ibid. xviii; 73).

Archidiaconus ?—1246.

Abbas [?16] Dec. 1246; eodem die quo...sanctus Edmundus canonizatus est (Flor. Hist. II, 320; Flete, 108, 144).

Was sent to Germany by Henry III 1247 (Flor. Hist. II, 335).

Sopita est discordia quae fuerat inter Abbatem Westm. et eius conventum rege procurante 1252 (ibid. 379). The quarrel was concerned with a composition made with the Prior and Convent by Abbot Berking and was settled through the withdrawal of three articles, 16 Aug. 1252 (Mun. 5956).

Faculty issued to him, as Papal Chaplain, and to his successors by Alexander IV to grant dispensations from the observance of the Benedictine statutes, except where dispensation is forbidden by the rule, 22 Apr. 1255 (Kal. Pap. Reg. I, 316).

His anniversary ordained c. 11 Jun. 1256 (Mun. 5405, 5400; Domesday f. 115 b).

Defunctus 17 Jul. 1258 apud Wyntoniam; sepultus in capella sancti Edmundi quam ipse construxerat. [This was afterwards pulled down and Crokesley's body was removed to the Chapel of St Nicholas.] (Flete, p. 110.)

+ 1240

Glovernia, Glouernia, Gloucestre, Ralph de.

Custos fabricæ capelle b. Marie 28 Oct. 1240 (Domesday ff. 559 b, 560).

Procurator noui operis et custos altaris gloriose Virginis Marie (Mun. 17396). There are some fifteen deeds relating to the property of the Chapel in his time; only one bears a date, Oct. 1246—Oct. 1247 (Mun. 17155 B); so he may have served under Abbot Berking and Abbot Crokesley.

Had two hanging lamps burning day and night in the Chapel, which were removed by order of Henry III, who substituted one large wax candle (Customary, II, 92).

Ordinance of Abbot Richard [? Berking; ? Crokesley] as to the uses to which R. de G. was to put a rent acquired for the Chapel (Mun. 17335).

+ 1242

Lyra, Lyre, John de.

Celerarius 1246 (? 1242) (Customary, II, 73).

Elemosinarius (Mun. 1862); et hostiliarius (Domesday f. 466).

Prior de Hurley c. 13 Oct. 1267 (Domesday f. 315); c. 27 Mai. 1274 (Mun. 2180).

Celerarius exterior, 1246 [? 1242] (Customary, II, xviii, 73).

Perhaps = Galfridus monachus, who was Proctor for Abbot Crokesley in a suit about estates at Thorpe, Rutland, 12 Nov. 1253 (Domesday f. 600 b).

Prior de Hurley 1258 (F. T. Wethered, op. cit. p. 11).

Resigned before 13 Oct. 1267, corporis valetudine pressus et senio fessus (Domesday f. 315).

Normannus.

Went with Richard de Crokesley to Henry III and his Queen then in Gascony, taking the Virgin's girdle, 1246 [? 1242] (Customary, II, xviii, 73).

LEWESHAM, Philip de.

Appeared in the King's Court at Westminster before the justices, Easter term, 1245, as agent for Abbot Richard [de Berking] (Mun. 16743).

Prior ? + 11 Jun. 1253—Aug. 1258.

There is a royal grant by Henry III to Philip, Prior of Westminster, and his successors, that his chamber called Longa Camera shall not be seized for the King's use nor given up to any one upon any kingly visit, except with the Prior's consent; dated Windsor, 11 Jun. 1253 (Mun. 1568). In Customary, II, 133, there is a reference to Prior Philip having made a window in the kitchen ob causam scaccarii longae camerae clarificandae in suos usus sumptu regio renovatae; which may allude to the same Long Chamber and the same royal grant.

Abbas Aug.—Oct. 1258 (Flete, p. 144. Robinson prefers the account of Matthew Paris, who says that Lewesham died at home, to that of Flete, p. 113, who says that his death was caused by the journey to Rome for confirmation).

The Convent borrowed from Florentine merchants a sum of 600 marks in order to procure Philip's election to the Abbacy on the death of Richard de Crokesley, 1258. But Philip died, munere benedictionis nondum optento. Therefore Richard de Ware, the incoming Abbot, raised the question whether the loan was repayable; and after mediation this was settled in the affirmative Nov. 1259 (Mun. 12802).

Of this sum 300 marks were due to the Papal Camera and 300 to the Cardinals; there were also 60 marks due to various creditors. In Feb. 1262 the Pope annulled the bond to the Camera (Kal. Pap. Reg. i, 376).

+ 1246

PETER.

Elemosinarius (before John de Lyra; Domesday f. 466, 467 b).

Prior under Richard de Crokesley (Flete, p. 109; Flor. Hist. ii, 321).

Defunctus c. 1246; sepultus in capella hospitum (ibid.).

MAURICE.

Precentor ?—c. 1246.

Prior c. 1246. (Flete, p. 109, quoting from Flor. Hist. ii, 321, calls him virum approbatum and says that he was made Prior by Richard de Crokesley soon after his election as Abbot.)

Bedeford, William de.

Sacrista 1247 (Domesday f. 354 b; also f. 351 a, b).

Juhele.

Senescallus Abbatis.

(Witessed a quit-claim, shortly after Ralph de Glovernia ceased to be Warden and Proctor of St Mary's Chapel [1247 +]; Domesday f. 552.)

+ 1257

Tailard, William.

Sacrista (Domesday f. 373 b—a lease containing the name of Abbot Richard, either de Crokesley or de Ware). In Kal. Pap. Reg. i, 345 there is an indult to William Gailard (sic), monk of Westminster (who had already been dispensed on the ground of illegitimacy), to enable him to be promoted to the offices and dignities of his Order, 13 Jun. 1257. His appointment as Sacrist would follow, and, as Abbot Crokesley lived till 17 Jul. 1258, there was time for it to happen in his life.

WARE, Wara, Richard de.

Acted as Proctor to Abbot Crokesley Jun. 1257 (Mun. 1202).

Abbas per viam compromissi electus (Flete, p. 113) Dec. 1258—8 Dec. 1283.

Appointed a Papal Chaplain 11 Mar. 1259 and permitted to borrow 1000 marks for promoting the business of the Convent in Rome 13 Mar. 1259 (Kal. Pap. Reg. i, 364).

Borrowed 1000 marks from Florentine merchants 20 Mar. 1259 (Mun. 12800). Also incurred responsibility for 600 marks borrowed in order to secure the election of Philip de Lewesham as Abbot 1 Nov. 1259 (Mun. 12802). This led to a long suit with Carlinus Guiberti of Florence (Mun. 12806; 12826, &c.), in the course of which the Abbot was sentenced to be suspended from celebrating divine service, 23 Nov. 1266 (Mun. 12835). On 11 Sep. 1282 the merchants stated their demand as (i) the repayment of the 1000 marks, (ii) damages for non-payment at the rate of 1 mark for each 10 marks for each period of two months (Mun. 12854). Ware died before the suit ended.

Was engaged in clearing Tiddesley Park, his peculiar near Pershore, from many rights of commonage acquired by residents in Birlingham and elsewhere; no dates (Mun. 22450-22511).

For the part taken by Ware in the compilation of the Customary, 1266, see Sir E. M. Thompson's ed. (Hen. Brad. Soc.) 1904, II, p. vii-ix. The only known reference to it in the Muniments is Domesday ff. 639-40, dated 1307-8.

Gold, precious stones, and jewels belonging to the Confessor's Shrine and other valuables of the Abbey were handed to Henry III for his pressing needs, the King pledging himself to restore them within 16 months; 1 Jun. 1267 (Mun. 9464). They were all restored to the Abbot and Convent 10 Feb. 1269 (Mun. 9465).

For his expenses in a progress through the manors Nov.—Dec. 1275 see Mun. 24489.

The claim of the Bishop of Worcester [Godfrey Giffard] to exercise visitatorial rights over the Priory of Greater Malvern was successfully resisted, 1282—5 Nov. 1283 (Mun. 32633-43).

Was sent by Edward I, along with Edmund, Earl of Cornwall, and another to Northampton to attend a Provincial Assembly of the Clergy 26 Jan. 1283 (Wilkins Conc. II, 92; J. Armitage Robinson, Ch. Quart. Rev. Oct. 1915). The royal letter called him Abbas Westmonast. thesaurarius noster.

Charters of his anniversary 14 Dec. 1265 (Domesday f. 592); 29 Dec. 1271 (Domesday f. 591 b; Flete, p. 115 f.).

Defunctus 8 Dec. 1283; sepultus...ante magnum altare in plano pavimento porphyritico ex parte boreali (Flete, p. 115. Cf. W. R. Lethaby, Westminster Abbey and the Kings' Craftsmen, p. 348).

c. 1258-83

ELIAS, Elyas.

Prior during the reign of Abbot Ware.

There are some 26 documents during this period which mention the Prior as party to transactions. Only one (Mun. 16753) gives the name, Elias, and this is undated; see also Domesday f. 614 b.

Fundur, Foundour, Fundour, John le.

An anniversary, with two copes and a special pittance, was endowed for him by Thomas de Stratford, le Brazur (dictus le Brewere) in Abbot Ware's time. Both Thomas and he were alive at the time of the endowment, which is not dated (Mun. 1075, 1076).

Was a frequent witness of documents with Odo the Goldsmith.

Witnessed the resuscitation of a drowned child, along with Bacinus [q.v.].

Hen. III

Henry.

Was sent to Caerleon (Kaerlion) with a relic for the healing of Maud de Clare, Countess of Gloucester and Hertford. Mun. 9323 is a letter dated 8 July, in which the countess apologizes to the Prior and Convent for retaining their brother Dan Henri so long in her train. The wife of Richard de Clare, 8th Earl of Clare, 7th Earl of Gloucester, and 6th Earl of Hertford (d. 1262), was called Maud.

Stanes, Gregory de.

Known only through grants of rents from Aldenham, Herts, to support his anniversary; no dates (Mun. 4470, &c.; Domesday f. 460).

The monk called Gregory who was Proctor for the Abbot and Convent in a money transaction with H. Abbot of St Geneviève, Paris, 1231, 1234 (Mun. 12796, 12797) may have been either Gregory de Stanes or Gregory de Tayleboys or neither.

Colecestr', Colecestria, Henry de.

Procurator operis b. Marie (Domesday f. 509).

Supprior (ibid. f. 510 b).

Mentioned in a charter about property in St James's Street, time of Odo and Edward the Goldsmiths (ibid. f. 530 b).

London, Stephen de.

Procurator altaris b. Marie.

Mentioned in a deed of gift to St Mary's Chapel, time of Odo the Goldsmith (Mun. 17442; Domesday f. 532 b).

Hurley, Hurleya, Walter de.

Procurator altaris b. Marie.

Mentioned in a deed of gift to St Mary's Chapel, time of Odo the Goldsmith (Mun. 17442; Domesday f. 532 b).

Tayleboys, Taillebois, Gregory de.

His anniversary endowed (Domesday ff. 460 b, 461); time of Odo the Goldsmith.

Nuper Eleemosinarius (ibid.).

Tayleboys, Taileboys, Robert.

Grant of rents from Aldenham, Herts, to support his anniversary; no date (Mun. 4506); grant of a rent charge in Westminster for same purpose; no date; time of Odo the Goldsmith (Domesday f. 460 a, b). The grantor, Ralph de Bosco, is the same as in the case of Gregory de Stanes [q.v.]. R. T. was then dead.

William.

Infirmarius.

Mentioned in an exchange of land belonging to the Infirmary; no date (Domesday f. 571 b). See William, 1234 (p. 49).

? is he to be identified with William, monk of Westminster, Henry III's "beloved painter" c. 1240-80? (cf. Lethaby, p. 259).

Godfrey.

Sacrista.

Concerned as such in a grant of land witnessed by Odo the Goldsmith (Domesday f. 357).

Bureford, Walter de.

Camerarius.

Mentioned as such in a grant of rent ad usus vesture monachorum (Domesday f. 493; no date; Odo the Goldsmith, a witness).

Tyteburste, Simon de.

Concerned in the payment of a rent in Langedich, Westminster, in the time of Abbot Richard [? Berking, ? Crokesley] (Mun. 17339; Domesday f. 459).

Wautone, Ralph de.

Custos altaris b. Marie (he let a tenement in Tothill Street in the time of Abbot Richard [? Berking, ? Crokesley]; Domesday ff. 523, 527).

Bacinus.

Eleemosinarius.

Mentioned with the two following, and also with John le Fundur, William de Pharindon and William de Hasele [q.v.], as witnesses of the record of the drowning and resuscitating of a boy in the time of Henry III; described as tunc eleemosinarius Westmon. Bodleian; Ashmole MS. 842, f. 80 b.

Cademan, Gilbert }
Hampton, William de } Witnesses with Bacinus (supra).

Baunc, Walter de.

Custos capelle b. Marie (Domesday f. 525).

Innocentibus, Robert de.

Concerned in a grant of land at Charing to St Mary's altar, being then Hostillar—tunc hospitarius (Domesday f. 538 b).

Sancta Katerina, Simon de.

Infirmarius.

Sole mention in a quit-claim made to the Infirmarer for the burning of a candle before the image of St Katharine in the Infirmary chapel; no date; witnesses of the time of Hen. III (Domesday f. 582). As Simon paid the consideration for the quit-claim, it may be assumed that he was then Infirmarer.

+ 1260

Archidiaconus 2 Apr. 1260 (Mun. 12805).

London, Walter de.

Mentioned in an acquittance (Mun. 12805) as Capellanus Abbatis [R. de Ware] 2 Apr. 1260.

Ballivus 9 Jun. 1271 (Mun. 4479).

Prior de Hurley ?+ 3 Sep. 1279 (Mun. 2124)—4 Jun. 1285 ?+ (Mun. 2327).

Probably identical with W. de L. who appears in the Infirmarer's roll 1297-8, and was in the sick-room for a short time May 1306 (Infirmarer).

Sutton, Suthone, John de.

Abbot Ware's Proctor in a suit 11 Ap. 1260 (Mun. 12806; Domesday f. 591); c. 14 Apr. 1266 (Mun. 12832, where he is called John the Sacrist).

Ballivus ?1260 (Mun. 12807); c. 15 Oct. 1269 (Mun. 28792).

Proctor with Richard de Waltham in a loan to the Abbot from Dando Aldebrandi the Sienese, c. 6 Dec. 1271 (Mun. 12841).

Camerarius 1277; 1278 (Mun. 5869; 5779).

Sacrista Mar. 1266 (Mun. 12832; Domesday f. 593); 1282-7 (Mun. 28803; 28822).

Witnessed the formal handing over of Abbot Ware's jewels to Abbot Wenlok c. 24 Aug. 1284 (Mun. 9467).

Was publicly excommunicated by Archbishop Peckham in the course of his dispute with the Abbot and Convent about visitatorial rights over the priory of Greater Malvern, a cell of Westminster, 1285-9 (Mun. 22929-42). Honorius IV "contradicted" the excommunication; and the Papal document, being ignored by the Archbishop, was formally laid upon his Grace's arm 15 Feb. 1287 (Mun. 22930).

Tenens locum Abbatis ipso Abbate [Wenlok] in partibus transmarinis existente, c. 26 Mai 1286 (Domesday f. 500).

Last mention 19 Oct. 1289 (Mun. 22932).

In a list of benefactors to the chapels of the Abbey church it is stated: Frater J. S. fieri fecit picturam Dedicacionis ecclesie Westm. cum censuris scriptis ad Altare sancti Pauli Et similiter picturam ad tabulam regis sancti Seberti. There is no other John Sutton among our monks and his inclusion in this roll of benefactors is open to the suspicion arising from his date being much earlier than those of the rest (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 92 b). But his name may have been still legible on his gifts when the list was made.

Micheham, Micham, Walter de.

Along with Robert de Warton [q.v.], received from Florentine merchants an acquittance for 200 marks, out of 760 marks borrowed by Abbot Ware, c. 24 Feb. 1261 (Mun. 12811); along with Walter de London [q.v.], for a further sum of 200 marks, 1 Mar. 1262 (Mun. 12814).

Warton, Robert de.

Diem clausit extremum 27 Feb. 1323 (Infirmerer; he had apparently been bedridden since Mich^s 1320).

c. 1263

HUNTYNDON, Huntyngdon, Huntedone, Hontyndon, William de.

Born c. 1240; professed c. 1263 (Mun. 5024; 5022).

? Archidiaconus 1292 (so Widmore, p. 229; Walter de Huntyndon [q.v.] was Archdeacon, Easter 1290).

Prior ?1298 (Widmore, p. 228); per viam compromissi canonice electus (Mun. 9508; no date).

The Prior and Convent were appointed collectors in the Archdeaconries of London and Middlesex of the tenth imposed by Boniface VIII towards the relief of the Roman Church (Mun. 5821, &c.). About 70 documents relate to this collection; none of them gives the Prior's full name; a few give W. Prior, and of these the earliest is Mun. 29102, 30 Nov. 1301.

Imprisoned in the Tower 10 Oct. 1303; the official list (Rymer, Foedera) neither calls him Prior nor gives him precedence.

His name and office occur in Mun. 5024, where his age is stated together with his evidence about Abbey tithes at Lower Halliford, Middlesex, 1303.

There is reference to his death in Mun. 9508 which is not dated.

Alive 23 Feb. 1305 (Mun. 5816; cf. Flor. Hist. III, 129).

WENLOK, Walter de.

Son of William le espicer (apothecary), who was buried, by 1298, in the graveyard of St Milburga's Priory, Wenlock, and of Agnes la specere, his wife (Domesday f. 407).

For various orders concerned with his mother's comfort cf. Mun. 31506, 31540; the bailiff at Islip to provide fish on three days for her and her two damsels, Sep. 1297 (Mun. 31363).

Had a sister for whom he provided 8 ells of cloth and the rent of her lodging Apr. 1307 (Mun. 31479; 31494). The Abbot's Treasurer (Mun. 24257) paid £4 in exequiis sororis domini, 1306-7; so her death may be placed during the summer of 1307.

Had a niece (neptis) Alice, presumably the daughter of the sister before-mentioned, who stayed with him at a cost of 13s. 14 Sep.—21 Dec. 1307 (Mun. 24260); perhaps after her mother's funeral.

Had a nephew, William, whom he educated [et cuidam pauperi scolari informanti nepotem domini apud Oxon. xii d. (Abbot's Steward 1298-9)] and clothed (Mun. 31556), and nominated to the benefice of St Magnus, London Bridge, 14 Apr. 1300 (Domesday f. 478 b).

Other relations—Roger de Prestindene (nostre parent) and Cristine de Evesham (nostre cosyñ); cf. Mun. 31347; 31368; the latter may be identical with nostre cosine for whom he paid 5*d.* a week for her maintenance to Dame Ysabele de Compton, Lady of Stodleye [Studley, Warwickshire], 8 Sep. 1297 (Mun. 31366).

Abbas per viam compromissi electus 31 Dec. 1283 (Flete, p. 116).

The Convent borrowed 250 marks from Sienese merchants for the expenses of his election and confirmation 11 Feb. 1284 (Mun. 12878). For heavy borrowings at this time, over 1000 marks, see Mun. 12879-83.

The Papal Bull for his confirmation cost £233. 6*s.* 8*d.* (Mun. 28811). For his journey to Italy 6 Feb.—20 Mar. 1284 see Mun. 9241. Martin IV who confirmed him ordered the Bishop of Ostia to give him the benediction 8 May 1284 (Kal. Pap. Reg. i. 472).

Magister Robert and Magister Adam de Phyleby were his agents at the Roman Court pro arduis ecclesie sue Westmon' negociis expediendis c. 1 Nov. 1284 (Mun. 9436).

Had a contention with Archbishop Peckham about the right of visitation of the priory of Greater Malvern 1285 (Mun. 22942; 32644); 1289 (Mun. 22929-32).

Subrogatus fuit...in officio Thesaurarie Domine Alienore, 15 Feb. 1286 (Mun. 23629 A).

Edward I issued a grant that on a vacancy in the Abbacy the Crown would seize only that portion of the temporalities which was assigned to the Abbot, 18 Feb. 1286 (Mun. 5438).

His statute about Divine Service, 19 Jun. 1287, is given in Domesday f. 641 b. At that date he was in Orleans.

Assigned the manor of Amwell, Herts, for the support of the Convent Cellarer in accordance with an intention expressed by Abbot Ware, 21 Dec. 1288 (Mun. 4241).

Made progresses through the manors 1289-91 (Mun. 9252-3; 9242).

For the controversy about W. de Pershore, the apostate Franciscan Friar, 1290-5, see Mun. 6386-97; cf. Monumenta Franciscana, Rolls series, II, 31-62. The Proctor of the Abbot and Convent challenged the action of the Bishop of London (Richard de Gravesend) in excommunicating them throughout the city of London and carrying off the oblations belonging to them in the church of St Laurence in "Chandlewycstreete," 17 Feb. 1290 (Mun. 12783).

Presided over the General Chapter of the Benedictines at Abingdon, in place of the Abbot of Glastonbury, 1290 (Reyner, de Antiq. Benedict. tract. II, p. 39).

The Abbot was abroad in 1291; he was in Paris 20 May (Mun. 6389) and there is a letter from him dated Seintrie, near Corboil, 29 May (Mun. 31276).

By command of Edward I, Wenlok delivered the heart of Henry III to the Abbess of Fontevraud [Fontevrault] in the Abbey Church c. 10 Dec. 1291 (Mun. 6318 B).

Received from Edward I a grant of manors [Birdbrook, Essex; Westerham and Edenbridge, Kent; Turweston, Bucks; Knowle, Warwickshire] to maintain Q. Alianore's anniversary, &c. 25 Oct. 1292 (Mun. 1545); Hendon, Middlesex, was added 14 Oct. 1295 (Mun. 17012).

Rebuilt the hall of his manor-house at Denham, 1297 (Mun. 3434).

Edward I requested the prayers of the Abbot and Convent for the success of his expedition against the King of France 7 Aug. 1297 (Mun. 12201).

Edward I nominated him with others as suitable for the Bishopric of Ely, 1298 (Flor. Hist. III, 298).

On 10 Oct. 1303, Wenlok and 48 monks of Westminster, being then prisoners in the Tower of London, were ordered to be tried on a charge of breaking into the Royal Treasury at Westminster and carrying off property to the value of £100,000 (Rymer, Foedera, I, part II, p. 959).

Mordon church, near Merton, Surrey, was appropriated to the Abbey in its distresses, incendio nuper ex pallacio regali casualiter exorto quod vestrum nobile monasterium quasi funditus destruxit; 7 May 1300 (Mun. 1863).

Member of the King's Council on Scottish affairs at the New Temple, 15 Sep. 1305 (Flor. Hist. III, 124).

For his dispute with the Convent about the election to the Priorship 1304-7, see under R. de Hadham and cf. Mun. 9508 A, 9499 B-E.

He finally confirmed the compositions made by his predecessors with the Prior and Convent, 16 Aug. 1307 (Mun. 5671) and sealed in Chapter a dispensation about the distribution of the residue of Q. Alianore's money, 18 Dec. 1307 (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 106 b; Domesday f. 464).

Spent 40s. on a new carriage ad opus Principis (? Edw. II) 6 Jul. 1307 (Mun. 31490).

Defunctus in manerio suo de Pireforde 25 Dec. 1307 (Flor. Hist. III, 140). In expensis circa sepulturam domini una cum factura tumbe sue et retentione familie sue post sepulturam per vii dies... £70. 13s. 7¼d. (Abbot's Treasurer).

His tomb was to the south of the High Altar, "exactly in front of the sedilia, which were probably his work" (Lethaby, p. 348).

News of his death was brought to Edward II at Wye by W. de Chalk, H. de Bircheston, and R. de Coleworth [q.v.] 10 Jan. 1308 (Kal. Pat. Rolls 1307-13, p. 34).

After his death £1000 of his money came into the hands of the party, headed by A. de Persore [q.v.], who were promoting the election of Abbot Kedyngton. They gave a bribe of £100 to Piers Gaveston to secure his support (Mun. 5460).

Alanus.

Alanus monachus was Proctor for Abbot Richard [Ware] in an agreement about commonage of pasture at Thames Ditton (Domesday f. 468 b).

After Richard de Kedyngton's election as Abbot, Roger de Aldenham appeared before the Pope at Avignon by a proctor to allege that the Abbot-elect was not free from certain faults (Kal. Pap. Reg. II, 65). In Mun. 5460, which is a contemporary copy of letters from R. de A. and W. de Bolton [q.v.], who were engaged on this business at Avignon, it is stated that R. de A. dignus est aureola martirii ut pote pro iusticia vestra iam diu agonizans.

It appears from a letter written to him by Richard de Walsham (no date; but during Simon de Henle's [q.v.] lifetime) that Brother Roger was apt to be in difficulties with the Exchequer (Mun. 9507).

He and his brother Gilbert were collectors of the tenth imposed within the confines of the Archdeacons of Essex and Colchester (Mun. 31750; no date).

KEDYNGTON, Kedynton, Kidinton, Kydington, Kydinton, de; dictus de Sudbury; Richard.

[The form employed by Prior Hadham in announcing K's election to the Pope is Ricardus de Kydinton dictus de Sudbury (Mun. 5453; cf. Domesday f. 409 b). On the other hand, the notarial announcement of Curtlington's election (Mun. 5463) uses the form Ricardus de Sudberia dictus de Kidinton.]

Imprisoned in the Tower c. 10 Oct. 1303.

Abbas, per viam compromissi, 26 Jan. 1308 (Flete, p. 121); the electors being R. de Fanelore, Thomas de Dene, Henry de Bircheston, Henry Payn, W. de Almaly, R. de Beby, and Kedyngton himself (Mun. 5424).

The expenses of his confirmation at Avignon for himself and his two Proctors (for their appointment see Mun. 5453) necessitated a loan of £300 21 Apr. 1310 (Mun. 9456).

After Kedyngton's election the Pope was appealed to by Roger de Buiyns, Prior of Sudbury, on the ground that he ought to have been summoned to take part in it, while Roger de Aldenham [q.v.] asserted by his proctor that the Abbot-elect was not free from certain faults. It is clear from Mun. 5460 (no date, except Trinity Sunday) that there was bitter opposition to this election on the part of a section of the Brethren, especially Prior Hadham, Henry de Bircheston (one of the electors), Walter de Arkesdene, John de London, Guido de Asshewelle, Philip de Sutton and, with less decision, Roger de Bures [q.v.]. They sent Roger de Aldenham and Walter de Bolton [q.v.] to Avignon as their Proctors in 1308. The other party, led by A. de Persore, W. de Chalk, and Henry Payn [q.v.], gave a bribe of £100 to Piers Gaveston out of Wenlok's money; so the efforts of the opponents were directed to secure the influence of the Queen (Isabella of France), of her father, the King of France, and of her uncle, Charles of Valois, and they hoped to do this through Henry de Lacy, Earl of Lincoln. Their action was based on infamia et insufficiencia Electi. Clement V (at Avignon, Jan. 1310) issued a mandate to the King to inquire into Kedyngton's merits and to appoint him, if found worthy (Kal. Pap. Reg. II, 65). The King restored the temporalities 25 Apr. 1310 (Kal. Pat. Rolls 1307-13, p. 225).

The Papal mandate for Kedyngton's benediction was issued 23 Jul. 1310 (Kal. Pap. Reg. II, 71).

Royal letters allowing him to nominate Proctors on going beyond seas 25 Aug. 1311 (Kal. Pat. Rolls 1307-13, p. 385).

For his deed authorising the distribution among the brethren of the residue of the profits of Q. Alianore's manors, 1311, see Mun. 5672; Domesday f. 441; Flete, p. 121 f.

In July 1313 the Pope issued a mandate to distrain the proceeds of the Abbot's manors in Worcestershire to satisfy a debt of 8000 florins owing from the Abbot to the Roman Church (Kal. Pap. Reg. II, 118). Of this sum 7000 florins were due to the Papal Camera and 1000 to the College of Cardinals. Kedyngton paid off 5500 florins and John XXII remitted the balance to Abbot Curtlington (ibid. p. 209). See Mun. 9459, which is the Papal absolution from the interdict upon the Abbey, 12 Dec. 1320, and Mun. 9460, 8 Jan. 1321, which is a release from the debt (see Curtlington, W. de).

There is a letter from him to Prior R. de Hadham, dated from Pyrford, 1 Aug., no year, to say that he was taking medicine and had business which prevented his presence when the Convent met to elect to the benefice of Aldenham, and to request them to present in due form Mag^r Richard de Gloucestria (Mun. 4495).

Letters of protection on going beyond seas to the Roman Court were issued to him, 28 Mar. 1313 (Kal. Pat. Rolls 1307-13, p. 562).

Defunctus 9 Apr. 1315 (Flete, p. 122; Mun. 21067 says he died on "Hockeday," i.e. the second Monday or Tuesday after Easter Tuesday).

Sepultus...ante magnum altare in inferiori pavimento ubi cereus paschalis solet stare ex parte...australi (Flete, p. 122).

CURLINGTON, Curtlyngton, Curtlinton, Curlinton, Kertlingtone, Kirtlintone, William de.

Imprisoned in the Tower c. 10 Oct. 1303.

Was attached to Abbot Wenlok's Hospice Aug. 1306; 1307 (Mun. 31449; 31492).

Assigned the Abbot's manors in Worcestershire, Gloucestershire and Warwickshire in mortgage to the Papal Nuncio for 8000 florins in behalf of Abbot Kedyngton; dated in domo decanatus sancti Pauli London: 21 Oct. 1313 (Mun. 22533); 2804 florins had been repaid by 18 Oct. 1314 (Mun. 9457).

Abbas, per viam Spiritus sancti electus [i.e. by acclamation of the whole Chapter], 24 Apr. 1315—11 Sep. 1333 (Flete, p. 122 f.).

Visited the Cardinals at Valence for confirmation 15 Jul. 1315 (Mun. 5463-6).

Election confirmed by John XXII at Avignon 30 Oct. 1316 (Kal. Pap. Reg. II, 132).

Received the temporalities from the King c. 25 Jan. 1317 (Mun. 8428).

Visitation by him of the Hospital of St James, 1317 (Mun. 17117). For his ordinances and injunctions thereabout, 13 Jul. 1319, see Mun. 17118.

Was much concerned at reported indiscipline in the Priory of Greater Malvern c. 1318 (Mun. 32646-7).

The Papal Nuncio (Rigaud de Asserio) threatened him with excommunication and sequestration of his manors for non-payment of the above-named debt of 8000 florins; but the Crown anticipated matters by seizing the same revenues for a debt; see notarial instrument dated in the chapel of the hospice of the Dean of St Paul's, 22 Feb. 1318 (Mun. 9458). Rigaud, then Bishop of Winchester, gave a release from this debt 8 Jan. 1321 (Mun. 9460).

Summons to him and the Convent under the Privy Seal to provide carriages for the expedition of Edward II against the Scots; it was necessary, it says, avoir grant foison de cariage pour cel voiage; dated Nottingham 16 Aug. 1318 (Mun. 12192).

Further request for 60 oaks for "verges" of engines, lances, quarrels, etc., from the wood at Bubewell [? Bubnell, Derbyshire], to aid Edward II in his expedition against the King of France who was trying to rob him of his Duchy of Guienne; dated Ravensdale, Derbyshire, 2 Jan. 1325 (Mun. 5430).

Granted a pension of 5 marks to his nephew John de Curtlington, clerk; this was discontinued by Abbot Henle (Mun. 5894).

Defunctus 11 Sep. 1333 (Flete, p. 123); sepultus in australi parte ecclesie ante altare sancti Benedicti... versus vestibulum divertendo (ibid.).

Bolton, Walter de.

One of the letters transcribed in Mun. 5460 was written by him from Avignon c. 1308 to the Prior [Hadham], Henry [de Bircheston], Gwydo [de Asshewelle] and Philip [de Sutton], the party opposed to the election of Abbot Kedyngton. He was then staying with a Cardinal, who was supporting this party, and to whom he paid 10*d.* a day for the keep of his horses and two florins a week for the board of himself and his colleague. In the course of the letter he upbraided the Prior for being, with others, plus solito tepidi in causa sancta que suum et suo tempore effectum habebit; and he praised by contrast the zeal of Roger de Aldenham [q.v.]. A letter, evidently written at the Abbey, describes him as nuncius specialis in Curia qui precessit viam parare in agendo et Cardinales cum aliis amicis procurare (ibid.).

Gift of 3s. to Sacrist (de priore iii^s) 1338.

Apparently the only document which bears his name as Prior is Mun. 15698, which he witnessed as such in the chapel of St Thomas, que dicitur locus antecapitularis iuxta chorum, 1341.

Indult to choose confessor 29 Aug. 1344 (Kal. Pap. Reg. III, 159).

Had ceased to be Prior at the time of the drawing up of the Chamberlain's list 8 Dec. 1346—29 Sep. 1347.

BIRCHESTON, Bercheston, Birston, Burston, Brigeston, Simon de.

[The spelling of John de Redyng's Chronicle is "Byrchestone."]

Celerarius 1331-3; Gardinarius 1332-3.

Was ill in the sick-room 1334, returning to the choir on Sunday 2 Oct.; et per preceptum domini Abbatis subtrahebatur illo die (Infirmarer 1334-5).

Custos novi operis 1341-4.

Custos maner^m Regine Alianore 8 Dec. 1334—29 Sep. 1344. For the visus compoti, on his taking over the manors from Henry Bircheston, see Mun. 23668. On the back of his first roll as such is a Norman French letter which he wrote as "gardeyn de la Knolle" to the Sub-prioress and nuns of Henwode about a vacancy in their headship (Mun. 23669). The roll of 1339-40 (Mun. 23680) may serve to indicate what was required of him in the way of supervision. He went with Benedict de Cherteseye to Birdbrook on 17 Oct., returning on the 28th; to Turweston on 5 Dec., returning on the 13th; to Turweston again and on to La Knolle on 10 Feb., returning on 4 Mar.; and with Frs. Beby and Charleton for a tour of all the manors, which lasted from 14 Sep. to 20 Oct., and cost xx^s for the three. For his expenses at assizes held for the Abbot at Knolle and other manors Sep. 1344 see Mun. 590.

Abbas die Mercurii in vigilia sancti Martini 10 Nov. 1344 (Mun. 5467 A, where the expenses of the vacancy and the election are recorded).

Redyng's Chronicle (ed. Tait, p. 108) says: qui locum illum aere alieno tam propria superfluitate [quam] fraude familiarium atque parentum vastatione nimis oneratum reliquit. Flete (p. 131) records that his successor, Simon Langham, paid debts incurred by Bircheston to the amount of 2200 marks.

Issued a commission to his Prior, Simon Haumodesham [q.v.] and to Robert his Sub-prior (? Hampslap) to punish the Prior of Greater Malvern for contumacy 13 Dec. 1346 (Mun. 32653).

Prior Haumodesham contended against him successfully for the right of presentation to the church of Turweston, Bucks, 1347 (Mun. 7672).

Defunctus apud Hamstede...in magna pestilencia 15 Mai. 1349. He had executed a grant on 4 May (Mun. 20867).

Sepultus...in claustro ante introitum locutorii domus capitularis juxta ostium dormitorii sub lapide marmoreo (cf. Flete, pp. 128-130).

His anniversary was on St Martin's Day (ibid.; and Domesday f. 67) and in the deed arranging for it he left money for the new work on the cloister and locutorium.

Torinton, Torynton, Torryntone, John de.

[Totington, Mun. 32652.]

Precentor 1341 (Mun. 15698).

Short illness Jun. 1348; no further mention.

Arderne, Arderderne, Robert de.

Coquinarius ante 1335 (Mun. 33333).

Thesaurarius reddituum de Esthampstede 1334-5 (Cellarer).
No mention after 1339-40 (Chamberlain).

Thesaurarius 1330; 1332; 1333 (Mun. 29483; 29522-3).

Abbas Sep. 1333—29 Oct. 1344. (Papal dispensation, because he had come to the Pope without the necessary letters, and benediction as Abbot, Avignon, 23 Jan. 1334 (Kal. Pap. Reg. II, 410).)

Exonerated the Prior and Convent from paying a yearly due of 30 oak timbers from their wood at Hendon, 6 Oct. 1333 (Mun. 5408).

Established a claim to jurisdiction over the Hospital of St James in the parish of St Margaret; for his visitation of it, 3 Aug. 1334, cf. Mun. 17121.

Gave a pastoral staff with a carving of the Salutation in the crook (Flete, p. 126).

Licence to him and the Convent to hand over the advowson of St Laurence, Candewick Street, to the Warden and chaplains of John Pulteney's new chapel, 16 Jan. 1335 (Mun. 13794).

Was requested by Edward III to have the remains of his brother, John of Eltham (d. 1336), removed from the place of sepulture to a more fitting place "entre les roials" in St Edmund's Chapel; 24 Aug. 1339 (Mun. 6300).

First President of the General Chapter of the Benedictines (under the constitutions of Benedict XII) at Northampton, 10 Jun. 1338; also in 1340 (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 89; Reyner, de Antiq. Benedict. tract II, p. 39).

The middle section (1325-45) of the chronicle in Cotton MS. Cleopatra A XVI (ed. Tait, p. 86 f.) calls him vir perfectae religionis, devotus, simplex, justus, misericors.... It refers to raids at Pershore, and Tait (op. cit. p. 87) notes an allegation that in 1344 Henle and Richard de Wynton [q.v.] had invaded the estate of Sir John del Isle at Moulsham, Essex, and carried away many valuables (Kal. Pat. Rolls 1343-5, p. 281).

Defunctus in die Veneris 29 Oct. 1344.

Sepultus...in inferiori pavimento ante magnum altare, ubi cereus paschalis solet stare, ex parte...boreali (Flete, p. 126).

For the expenses of his funeral on 4 Nov. and the cost of his tomb, £8. 13s. 4d., see Mun. 5467 A.

He initiated and provided money for the rebuilding of the Cloister,—a work which lasted from 1344 to 1365 (Mun. 23453; cf. R. B. Rackham, Building at Westminster Abbey 1298-1348, p. 276 f.).

LITLINGTON, Litlyngton, Littlynton, Lytlyngton, Litleton, Lyttelton, Nicholas de.

The first mention of him in the rolls is in the Infirmarer's 1334-5, when he was at Hendon for change of air; but there is a letter to him (Mun. 5894) which, speaking of Abbot Curtlington, says: sub cuius regula benedictionem suscepistis habitus et religionis monachalis; i.e. he was professed before 11 Sep. 1333.

Son of Hugh and Joan (Mun. 32660).

Thesaurarius 1344-5; 1350-1 (Mun. 9290).

Custos temporalium Abbatibus tempore vacationis (on Abbot Henle's death) 29 Oct. 1344 (Mun. 5467 A). It is stated in the middle section of the Cotton MS. Cleopatra A XVI, that at this time he redeemed the temporalities for the Convent from the Queen, to whom Edward III had granted them at the vacancy (cf. Flete, p. 134; Widmore, p. 102). This has been questioned (cf.

Tait, Chronicon J. de Reading, p. 88); but his activity at the vacancy as shown by Mun. 5467 B points to his being the most likely person in the Convent to succeed in the effort.

In 1346 he obtained for the Convent a royal grant dated at Calais forgiving the escapes of all prisoners to the time then present for whom the Abbey gate-house had been made responsible (Tait, op. cit. p. 103).

Custos maner^m Regine Alianore 15 Ap. 1349—29 Sep. 1350.

Granator 1349—50.

Receptor vel custos ecclesiarum 1349—50.

Elector of Abbot Langham c. 27 May 1349 (Kal. Pap. Reg. III, 339).

In 1349 the King conceded to him the profits arising during the vacancy caused by Bircheston's decease (cf. Tait, op. cit. pp. 109, 243, and J. Armitage Robinson, Simon Langham, Ch. Quart. Rev. Jul. 1908, p. 347).

The favour thus shown to Litlington probably gave rise to the rumour (Joshua Barnes, History of Edw. III, p. 910) referred to by Robert Glover (1544—88), Somerset Herald, that he was the natural son of Edward III (cf. Tait, op. cit. pp. 233—4). But as Litlington was probably at least 22 in 1334—5 and Edward III was born in 1312, it is equally possible that he was the King's twin-brother.

Prior 1350 (probably by 18 Nov., Mun. 1575)—1362.

Indult to choose confessor 12 Feb. 1351 (Kal. Pap. Reg. III, 410).

Abbot Langham and the Convent granted him an anniversary, 20 Mar. 1360 (Mun. 5406—7), to be kept on St Nicholas' Day (6 Dec.) according to the custom of Prior Robert's [de Molesham] anniversary; it being agreed that from the rent of the manor of la Hyde and of lands at Knightsbridge and of marsh-land at South Benfleet (which N. L. had acquired for the Abbey at his own cost) there should be a distribution of 6s. 8d. to the poor, a pittance of 13s. 4d. for the Convent, and a recreation of 3s. 4d. for the Boy Bishop and his companions.

Abbas 7—14 Apr. 1362—29 Nov. 1386.

The royal licence to the Convent to elect a successor to Abbot Langham bore date 7 Apr. (Mun. 5417) and directed them to choose a man deo deuotus ecclesie vestre necessarius nobisque et regno nostro vtilis et fidelis. The election was announced to Innocent VI by Edward III in a letter dated Windsor 14 Apr. 1362 (Mun. 5402*).

The temporalities were restored 11 Dec. 1362 (Mun. 5420).

23 Oct. 1366, the Abbot and Convent received a royal licence, in which he was described as N. de L. nuper Prior Westm., to assign lands for a chantry for his and his parents' souls at Westminster (Mun. 1566).

He also founded an anniversary for himself and his parents Hugh and Joan every 26 Sep. at the Priory of Greater Malvern, with a recreation of 20s. for the Prior and brethren ut labor confratrum...die anniversarii...eo micus tolleretur (sic) 25 Jul. 1382 (Mun. 32660).

Royal licence to receive grant of the manor of Chelchelheth [Chelsea] 23 Jun. 1367 (Mun. 4799).

Privilegiorum Abbatum et conventuum ordinis Cisterciensis in Anglia conservator et iudex per sedem Apostolicam deputatus 1371 (Mun. 6000).

Licence to act as attorney for Edward le Despenser versus partes transmarinas profecturus 12 May 1373 (Mun. 9509).

For his correspondence with Cardinal Langham and others at Avignon c. 1373—7 see Mun. 9231—9 and cf. J. Armitage Robinson, Simon Langham, Ch. Quart. Rev. July 1908, pp. 357—63.

For further detail as to his building operations see R. B. Rackham, Nave of Westminster, pp. 6—8.

faciendis iiii^s vi^d Et pro factura dictorum femoralium vi^d 1370-1 (Abbot's Steward).

Et in diuersis medicinis emptis pro domino apud London...per magistrum W. Tankeruyll, xviii^s viii^d et...apud Oxon. mense Augusti...x^s iiii^d 1370-1 (ibid.).

Et in una furura de Beuere empta pro domino xl^s vi^d 1372-3 (ibid.).

Grant to him by W. Bromle [q.v.], Prior of Hurley, of an anniversary in festiuitate sancti Nicholai episcopi (6 Dec.) for himself and his parents, in consideration of a gift of £40 and other benefits, with an expenditure of 15s. yearly; 26 Mar. 1374 (Mun. 5399).

Papal faculty to him to dispose of his moveable property by will 1 Apr. 1375 (Kal. Pap. Reg. iv, 203).

Assigned to the Abbot's portion the property purchased by him in Pyrford, Denham, Sutton (? Sutton-under-Brailes, Warws.), and Staines, worth 25 marks, and the reversion of the manor of Birlingham 9 May 1378 (Mun. 5408).

Gift of 48 trenchers, 2 chargers, 24 salt-cellars, weighing 104 lbs., for daily use in the Refectory; 24 trenchers, 12 salt-cellars and 2 chargers, weighing 40 lbs., to be used at "recreations" (probably meat-meals) in the Misericorde; each piece to be marked with N & L coronatis, N. scilicet pro Nicholao et L. pro Lytlyngton, with an allowance of 10 marks to repair any losses or breakages in the set; a set of silver-gilt plate for the Abbot for the time being, similarly engraved and with a similar allowance; direction that daily after meals the Ebdomadarius magne misse, or whoever says grace, is to add Anima Nicholai Abbatis et anime omnium fidelium defunctorum...requiscant in pace Amen, 9 May 1378 (Mun. 9470-1; cf. Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 85 b).

His gifts to the Misericorde also included a small ciphus murrenus, a cloth (mappa) of old Norfolk work of small value, and a towel (togella) of Norfolk work 8 yards long (Mun. 6628).

For an account of his military service in 1386 see under John Canterbury (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 87).

In a now mutilated letter in Norman-French he explained to Richard II that through "age et feblesse" he could not come "en propre persone" and bring "le noble relik lanel seint Edward" (St Edward's ring) ? 1386 (Mun. 9474).

He transacted business in the Vestry and received an oblation juxta summum altare in loco suo solito...videlicet in presbiterio ibidem 13 Oct. 1386 (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 88 b).

Defunctus in manerio de la Neyte, hora prandendi, 29 Nov. 1386 (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 86). Sepultus ante ostium vestibuli et ante medium altaris sancti Blasii episcopi (Flete, p. 137; i.e. at south end of south transept). Camden (Reges, &c.) says: in capella sancti Blasii qua intratur ad Vestiarium; but he apparently could not identify the tomb.

For details and distribution of his effects after death see Mun. 5446; they included armour, bows and arrows, and catapults, and among the payments were 48s. for the two Oxford scholars, T. Merke and W. Pulburgh [q.v.], and £4. 8s. 10d. priori studentium Oxon. pro capella ibidem construenda.

The Infirmarer 1443-4 enters among the effects of St Katharine's Chapel: item i magnum portiforium ex dono Nicholai Abbatis incipiens ii^o folio ris ciuitas iusti¹.

For the cost of making the Litlington Missal 1383-4 see Manuscripts of Westminster Abbey, pp. 7-8.

¹ Dr Frere kindly identified this for me as [uocabe]ris ciuitas iusti, Isaiah i. 26, being part of a lesson for the 1st Sunday in Advent.

Celerarius et Gardinarius 25 Mar.—28 Sep. 1349.

Elector of Abbot Langham May 1349 (Kal. Pap. Reg. III, 339).

Indult to choose confessor 11 Aug. 1349 (Kal. Pap. Reg. III, 327).

See his story in J. Armitage Robinson, Simon Langham, Ch. Quart. Rev. July 1908, pp. 342-5.

Prior (after c. 27 May, when Langham was elected Abbot) 1349-50 (had ceased to be Prior 18 Nov. Mun. 1575).

Appointed Richard de Redyng and John de Mordon to be his Proctors (Mun. 9515) during his absence at Avignon about the appropriation of the churches of Sawbridgeworth and Kelvedon. But he went to Rome for the sake of the great indulgences of 1350, the year of Jubilee, and not having received the leave of the Abbot to go there, he forfeited his place as Prior. The Pope at Avignon issued a grant 18 May 1351 (Kal. Pap. Reg. III, 384) authorising him to return to his place in the Chapter. But already, 18 Nov. 1350, a royal licence had been issued to the Convent to prosecute him for pawning its goods without its consent (Mun. 1575), and in this he was described as nuper priorem (cf. Mun. 8593-4).

At Avignon in 1351, on his return from Rome, he obtained (i) an indult for a confessor, 12 Feb. (Kal. Pap. Reg. III, 410; where he is still described as claustral Prior); (ii) leave to contract a loan of 800 florins to pay his expenses at the Papal Court, 17 Apr. (ibid. 396); (iii) the renewal of the appropriation of Sawbridgeworth and Kelvedon, 5 May (Mun. Bk 3, p. 78; Kal. Close Rolls 1349-54, p. 405).

He was not restored to his Priorship again, but in due course was granted a camera in the Infirmary: et in ii clauibus ad cameram B. de Certeseye factis vi^d 1356-7 (Infirmarer); and a pension of 33s. 4d., which was paid to him in 1351 and 1352, but not in 1353 (Treasurer). So he died between 24 Jun. 1352 and 24 Jun. 1353; but his camera was still called by his name in 1356-7 and probably the keys were wanted for a new tenant.

Lake, Robert de.

Frater J. R. senior fieri fecit clausuram Altaris sancte Trinitatis [in Nave, southwards] pro xx^{li} (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 92 b).

Defunctus 1368-9 (Infirmarer).

Almost certainly the author of the chronicle of the years 1346-67, the concluding portion of the chronicle of 1299-1367 contained in Brit. Mus. Cotton MS. Cleopatra A xvi. For the identification, which is due to Dr Armitage Robinson, cf. his article Simon Langham, Ch. Quart. Rev. Jul. 1908, pp. 346 ff. The Chronicle has been edited by Professor James Tait, Manchester Univ. Press, 1914. Redyng calls himself "monachus...nomine tantum non conversatione perfecta, litera vacuus et ingenio, plus relatione vulgari quam propria consideratione seu literis magnatum instructus (Tait, op. cit. p. 99).

LANGHAM, Simon de.

Son of Thomas, who was buried in the Abbey Church (J. Armitage Robinson, Simon Langham, Ch. Quart. Rev. July 1908, p. 340).

Probably a native of Langham in the diocese of Lincoln, a village in the Abbey's Rutlandshire property; he bequeathed to the church of Langham unum vestimentum de plunket cum altari eiusdem sectae (Mun. 9225).

An elector of Abbot Bircheston, 1344 (Kal. Pap. Reg. III, 182).

Proctor for the Abbot [S. Bircheston] at the General Chapter of the Benedictine Order at Northampton 1346 (Lib. Nig. Quat. 91).

Prior 10 Apr. 1349 (Cleop. A xvi, f. 190 b).

Abbas 27 Mai. 1349, electus per viam compromissionis (Flete, p. 130). The electors were John de Ashwelle, Nicholas de Litlington, William de Dumbeltone, John de Mordon, John de Redyng, Benedict de Cherteseye and Richard de Merston.

Election confirmed at Avignon by Clement VI 20 Jul. 1349 (Kal. Pap. Reg. III, 339); benediction received from Arnald, Bishop of Sorra, before 26 Jul. (ibid. 337).

Indult to choose confessor 11 Aug. 1349 (ibid. 327).

For the method of raising money for the expenses of this visit by selling the Abbey jewels and ornaments, value £315. 13s. 8d., see Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 80; Robinson, op. cit. p. 341.

Installed 7 Sep. (Cleop. A xvi, f. 190 b).

Temporalities restored to him by Edward III at Gloucester 8 Sep. (Mun. 5416).

Consented, with the Convent, to the statutes of the Dean and College of St Stephen, 8 Dec. 1355 (Mun. 18431).

Redyng's Chronicle (ed. Tait, p. 127) notes that Langham was prominent in his attentions to de Périgord and Capocci, the two Cardinals who arrived on a peace mission in Jul. 1357, and suggests the motive ut forte nomen sibi acquireret ac beneficia pinguiora.

Granted an anniversary to Nicholas Litlington, then Prior, 20 Mar. 1360 (Mun. 5406-7).

Received royal grant of two stags from Windsor Forest 1 Mar. 1362 (Mun. 1529).

During twelve years, he paid off debts accumulated by Abbot Bircheston to the amount of £2200 and other charges (cf. Robinson, op. cit. p. 348).

For his gifts to the Monastery see Flete, pp. 130-2; e.g. he obtained of Nicholas de Gaugeria a serjeantcy in the Cellary of Westminster for £80 ad utilitatem conventus; he acquired for his anniversary and for the well clothing of the brethren the manor of Thomas Bidek¹ and le Fryth in Finchley (Mun. 4818). His personal generosity was shown, nihil a conventu in xeniis [presents of money or in kind] extorquens, sed ea eis integraliter relaxans. He took nothing from the profits of Q. Alianore's manors (cf. p. 19), sed semper fatebatur et dicebat portionem conventus nimis fuisse exilem.

The statement that as Abbot he demanded no exennia is supported by the evidence of the account-rolls. The Chamberlain, the Almoner, the Sacrist, the Infirmary, the Wardens of the Queen's manors, the Treasurers, and the Warden of St Mary's Chapel all omit any such payment during his Abbacy, though they include it in the cases of his predecessor and his successor. One, the Warden of St Mary's Chapel, keeps up the heading in exenniis missis domino Abbati, and adds nil hoc anno.

On 29 Jun. 1358 he gave the Prior and Convent a garden called Burgoyne or le Bourgoigne, which formerly belonged to the portion of the Abbot, but was taken away by Edward II, and afterwards restored (Robinson, op. cit. p. 351; Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 77).

Treasurer of England, 21 Nov. 1360.

Consecrated Bishop of Ely, 20 Mar. 1362, in succession to Thomas de Lisle, who had died at Avignon. Royal letter for election of another Abbot, dated Windsor 7 Apr. 1362 (Mun. 5417).

Chancellor of England, 19 Feb. 1363.

Archbishop of Canterbury, 24 Jul. 1366; enthroned, Lady Day, 1367.

Cardinal Presbyter of St Sixtus 23 Sep. 1368.

Dean of Lincoln and Prebendary of Brampton; Treasurer of Wells and Archdeacon of Wells and Taunton; Prebendary of Wistow in York Minster and Archdeacon of the West Riding.

His effect on the Abbey customs appears (i) in his direction in full Chapter that St Dunstan's Day should be celebrated in quinque capis; (ii) in his grant to Prior Nicholas Litlington of an anniversary on St Nicholas' Day (6 Dec.); (iii) in his decree (1352) that a loving cup should be served to the brethren on the day of St Edward's Deposition (5 Jan.) by the Almoner and on the day of St Edward's Translation (13 Oct.) by the Custos feretri. The Almoner generally included under petty expenses an entry pro speciebus et vino ad potum caritatis in festo depositionis sancti Edwardi.

Et pro campano pulsando contra adventum domini Cardinalis xx^d 29 Sep.—30 Oct. 1371 (Sacrist); i.e. he came to keep the feast of St Edward's Translation.

Et dat' hominibus domini Cardinalis apud Denham iiiii^{li} v^s 1371–2 (Steward of Abbot's Household).

Mun. 9224* is a receipt from the Strozzi, Florentine bankers in London, for 2000 florins repayable to the Cardinal at Avignon, dated 14 Dec. 1372.

Leased all his benefices in England to William Palmere, Canon of Derby, for 1360 marks, 2 Jan. 1373 (Mun. 9223*); for his letter to Abbot Litlington about this money, 15 Apr. [1374], see Mun. 9237.

Et solut' cuidam pro missali misso a domino Cardinali precepto domini Prioris iiiii^{li} 1375–6 (Treasurer).

For a list of the books which came to the Convent by his bequest see Manuscripts of Westminster Abbey, p. 4 f.

J. Bokenhull [q.v.] wrote to Litlington 9 May 1375 from Avignon to say that Langham was giving £200 yearly from his benefices in England to promote the New Work on the nave (Mun. 9239). See also Robinson, op. cit. pp. 361–3.

Gregory XI borrowed from him 6000 florins ut...ecclesie bona et iura in partibus Italie defendamus; Avignon 13 Jan. 1376 (Mun. 9230).

Died at Avignon 22 Jul. 1376, three or four days after being, dum sedit in collatione sua post prandium, subito paralysi percussus (Chron. Angl., Rolls Series, p. 339; Robinson, op. cit. p. 363 n.).

His will (Widmore, pp. 184–191; Mun. 9225).

His goods were received at the Abbey by Richard Excestr' [q.v.] from the hands of John Draper who had brought them from Avignon; 11 Mar. [1378]. They included silver gilt plate; a chalice; a thurible; i tabula volubilis argentea et deaurata cum ymaginibus interius inscriptis; iiii nouacule [razors] de quibus timeo ne rubigo eas consumat. Also books such as Memoriale decreti Johannis; quattuor nouiter scriptos de sanitate et de pace; Compilatio theologie cum aliis libris in uno volumine contentis; Scolastica historia; Ysidorus de summo bono. Also his large silver seal (Mun. 6604).

There are lists of his benefactions to the Abbey (Mun. 9225* ; 9226), and receipts from the Prior of Canterbury (Mun. 9221*) and the Prior of Ely (Mun. 9224) for the vestments delivered to them by the Abbot and Convent in accordance with the will, 1379-80.

In diuersis expensis factis circa interractionem domini Cardinalis—£96. 15s. 5½*d.* 1387-8 (Treasurer).

Three Oxford students—Thomas Colchester, J. Sandon, and William Pulburgh—returned to the Convent for the ceremony, expenses 26s. 8*d.* (ibid. Cf. Robinson, op. cit. p. 364).

The Refectorer 1387-8 entered a payment of viii^d to the washerman pro mappis ad exequias domini Cardinalis accommodatis lauandis.

Acquittance to the Abbot and Convent from Henry Yeuele and Stephen Lote, citizens and masons, for £20 in part payment of the cost of making the Cardinal's tomb 26 Nov. 1394 (Mun. 6318).

In expensis domini Prioris usque Calies pro cardinali [Langham] et redeundo et alia vice usque...Cantuar' pro eundo et redeundo xl^s 1370-1 (Treasurer). This was the time at which the Cardinal with his colleague John de Dormans, "Cardinal of Beauvais," was engaged in France on a fruitless Papal mediation between the French and English Kings.

In expensis domini prioris et Willelmi Zepiswich equitantium uersus Cantuar' cum una littera domini Cardinalis pro domo scolarium apud Oxon̄ xvi^s 1371-2 (Treasurer).

In expensis domini prioris et ballivi equitantium uersus Sudburgh pro manerio ibidem videndo precepto domini Cardinalis vi^s x^d (ibid.).

For his journey to Avignon, Oct. 1376, to take delivery of Langham's effects, see Mun. 9232, which is a letter to Abbot Litlington signed vester deuotus orator R. Merston P. Westm. Mun. 9233 shows that he and John Bokenhull [q.v.] intended to go thence to Rome.

John Lakyngtheth [q.v.] was appointed receiver of his estate; the account begins 14 Sep. 1376, which would be about the date at which the Prior started for Avignon; and it ends 24 Jun. 1377. But it gives no date of the Prior's death. There are payments for his anniversary and for a house with which it was endowed, but such arrangements were not seldom made in a man's life-time. There is a reference to expenses incurred on the Prior's affairs after his return—post recessum¹ suum—and he was evidently alive at Christmas 1376. His death is implied in Lakyngheth's payments to the brief-writer (breuiator) for carrying round the mortuary rolls and to the chaplain for saying Mass for his soul in St Katharine's Chapel. Out of his residuary estate £20 were given by order of Abbot Litlington towards the cost of the Novum Opus, and £6. 13s. 4d. ad opus muri lapidei inter cameram domini Abbatis et gaolam clericorum (Mun. 9498).

Sacrista 1361-2 (Treasurer).

Custos capelle b. Marie?—1369.

Was sent to Rome in 1375-6 in order to obtain from the Curia a conseruacia (v. Du Cange, s.v.), his expenses being £3. 6s. 8d. and the costs about £10 (Treasurer; Mun. 9234-5 show that the "reservation" was obtained).

For letters from and to him during his business at Avignon 1375-6 see J. Armitage Robinson, Simon Langham, Ch. Quart. Rev. Jul. 1908, pp. 358-362; Mun. 9231-3; 9236; 9239.

Indult for confessor 3 Mar. 1375 (Kal. Pap. Reg. iv, 204).

He was one of Cardinal Langham's executors and received a legacy of 150 florins (Mun. 9225) pro expensis suis.

In Mun. 9233, a letter from him to Abbot Litlington, dated Avignon, 6 Nov. 1376, he said that the Pope had graciously made provision for the Priory of Deerhurst to be granted to him; but there was a rival candidate; so he prayed the Abbot pro eo penes dominum Regem et alios proceres Regni sic mediare ut idem filius vester...possit officialiter consequi quod intendit.

It may be assumed that he was successful, as there is no further mention of him at Westminster.

Hampton, J.

Prima Missa 1349-50 (Cellarer).

He was ill in Nov. 1350 (Infirmarer, who records his medicines) but returned to the choir. No further mention.

Et in surgeria pro domino priore hoc anno iii^s iiiii^d 1400-1 (Infirmarer).

Defunctus 1407-8 (Infirmarer; probably about Michaelmas 1407 as he received no manorial payment for 1407-8).

It seems from Mun. 9500 that in 1405 his administration gave some cause for complaint; it was then 52 years since he had been promoted ad skillam and he must have been over 80. A protestation on his behalf was read in his absence to the Chapter in which he referred to his iam grauis senectus propter metum mortis et corporis mei cruciatum et alium iustum metum qui cadere possit in constantem virum. He was afraid, he said, that the Abbot and Convent might eject him, and so he affirmed ad hec sancta dei euangelia his adherence to the regulations and customs of the Convent. Evidently he was not ejected (cf. E. H. Pearce, William de Colchester, p. 70).

Abbas 10 Dec. 1386 (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 86).

Mun. 5431 is a petition to Richard II from the Prior and Convent in French to give his consent to the election of "Daunz William Colchestre un de leurs commoignes en abbe et pastoure" and to make formal announcement of it to the Pope. The election was made per viam compromissi, in spite of the King's desire to have John Lakyngtheth [q.v.] elected (cf. J. Armitage Robinson, An Unrecognised Westminster Chronicler, pp. 16, 22).

Received Abbot Litlington's armour, Jan. 1387 (Mun. 5446).

Richard II gave to St Edward's shrine quoddam jocale solempne. Anulum videlicet aureum cum quodam lapide precioso vocato Rubyo valoris ut fertur cⁱ et amplius 14 Nov. 1388 (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 86; cf. f. 108 b).

Et dat' cuidam homini venienti de sorore domini a Cantabrege xii^d 1389-90 (Abbot's Steward).

Was absolved from his triennial visit to the Roman Court as being represented by his Proctor, John Borewell [q.v.], 19 Sep. 1390 (Mun. 6664).

For the gifts of the Abbot and his brethren to the Roman Court for the year of Jubilee, 1390, see Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 92.

Went abroad on the King's business 22 Dec. (Polychronicon ix, 264) 14 Dec. 1391 (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 87 b); Et dominus Rex suscepit eum et omnia bona sua in protectione sua.

Royal licence to appropriate the church of Aldenham to the maintenance of an anniversary of Richard II in the Abbey church every 16 Jul. in quo die coronabamur, 18 Aug. 1391 (Mun. 4499).

Received from Richard II the alien priory of Stoke by Clare, on condition of paying £100 yearly to the Novum Opus, 12 Nov. 1391 (Mun. 6226).

Was one of the Presidents of the General Chapter of Benedictines, c. 7 Jul. 1393 (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 90).

Received Richard II's grant of £200 a year for an anniversary for Queen Anne and himself, 9 Aug. 1394 (Mun. 5257).

£20 paid towards the cost of Cardinal Langham's tomb, 1394 (Mun. 6318).

Mandate to him and the Bishop of Salisbury and the Abbot of Waltham on petition of Richard II to correct and reform the statutes, customs, &c. of the collegiate Chapter of the Chapel in Windsor Castle 15 Mar. 1393 (Kal. Pap. Reg. III, 456).

For his ordinance about the better maintenance of the Lay Brothers of the Almonry see Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 85.

Assigned the church at Aldenham to the Prior and Convent for the maintenance of his anniversary every 29 Jun., with a pittance for the brethren and a distribution to the poor 1 Dec. 1397 (Mun. 4515). A further indenture to the same end, 3 Dec. 1407 (Mun. 5260 A).

Received grant of Richard II's manors; Windsor 23 Apr. 1399 (Mun. 17016).

Assented to a lease being granted to Geoffrey Chaucer of a tenement in the garden of the Lady Chapel, 24 Dec. 1399 (Mun. LVII).

Royal licence for an anniversary for himself and his parents, to be maintained by the Prior and Convent of St Botolph, Colchester, in their chapel of St Katharine and in the parish church of St Nicholas, with gifts to the canon-chaplain who said the memorial Mass, the vicar of St Nicholas, the poor, and the prisoners in Colchester Castle, and for the repair of his parents' tomb, 20 May 1406 (Mun. 5259).

Went abroad, 1407 (Mun. 1676).

Endowed an anniversary for himself and his parents, Reginald and Alice, and Thomas Merke [q.v.], Bishop of Carlisle, in the Priory of St Mary, Hurley, 5 Oct. 1411 (Mun. 3571).

Presided alone at the General Chapter of Benedictines at Northampton, 6 Jul. 1411 (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 90).

Granted an anniversary every 18 Sep. for John de Waltham, Bishop of Salisbury, 15 Jul. 1412 (Mun. 5262 A).

Attended the Council of Constance, 1414.

The Warden of the Queen's Manors paid him lvi^s viii^d for entertaining dominum imperatorem et magnates 1415-6 (? the Emperor Sigismund who landed at Dover, May 1416; cf. J. H. Wylie, Henry V, p. 67).

Et solut' apotecario London' pro glistore et electuario confort' pro domino tempore infirmitatis sue xvi^s viii^d 1416-7 (Abbot's Receiver).

As collector of the triennial contribution of $\frac{1}{2}d.$ in the mark imposed on Benedictine houses at the General Chapter at Northampton, 1414, it was his duty to pay for the cost of loans to the Abbot of St Edmundsbury and the Prior of Worcester, the Benedictine delegates (£12. 13s. 4d.); the charges of lawyers retained by the Order at Constance (£23. 6s. 8d.); the gifts made to messengers sent home by the delegates (£4. 3s. 4d.). His accounts survive for 1417 (Mun. 12395) and 1420 (Mun. 12397). In the latter year he paid 13s. 4d. to a monk of York predicanti in Anglico in ecclesia omnium Sanctorum Northampton; £10 to a monk of Worcester for a journey to Constance and back; and gifts to the two men who followed him in the Abbey, Richard Harwden and Edmund Kirton.

Et dat' seruienti principalis Baronis portanti noua de captione ciuitatis Rothemagensis, 1417-8 (Abbot's Receiver).

Defunctus, ?Oct. 1420. (The roll of Q. Alianore's manors 1419-20 gives the names of 12 Brethren deceased that year, and adds: hii omnes moriebantur hoc anno una cum domino abbate et fratre Thoma Peuerel. This might mean that he died before Mich^s, but his anniversary was in Oct. (Mun. 5262 B). The royal licence to elect a successor (Mun. 5440) was dated 12 Nov. 1420.) Buried in the chapel of St John Baptist.

In writing to Colchester about the respect in which he was held, and employing what cannot wholly be dismissed as the language of flattery, Thomas Merke, Bishop of Carlisle, said: vident etenim vestram soliditatem, que rara virtus est modernis diebus et illo specialius in vobis confidunt (Mun. 9240*).

For a longer account of his career see E. H. Pearce, William de Colchester, Abbot of Westminster (S.P.C.K. 1915).

Somerton, Somertone, John de.

His early record is obscure; in his own list as Chamberlain 1362-3 he stands between R. Staunton and J. Lakyngheth, which would make 1361-2 his year of entrance. If so, he must have come from another house, having been about nine years in priest's orders, and being old enough to become custos ordinis at once.

Ad skillam, custos ordinis, 1361-2 (Infirmarer; Sacrist; Almoner; Q. Alianore).

Camerarius 1362-4.

Sacrista 1364-5?+.

Elemosinarius 1370-1.

Custos temporalium Abbatis [at Litlington's decease and during the vacancy] 29 Nov. 1386—11 Sep. 1387 (Mun. 5462; 5468; 5446).

Was strongly pressed upon the Convent by Richard II as Litlington's successor, in preference to W. Colchester (Robinson, op. cit. p. 22).

Pension of £4 in succession to Colchester as from Easter 1387 (Treasurer), and also 10s. yearly for life, being the profits of an osier bed growing on a croft called le Eldcurtell "on a little island where the Church House now stands" (Cellarer 1387-8; Robinson, op. cit. p. 17). For his pension-receipt to Christmas 1395 see Mun. 30301.

Received a double, or Prior's, share at the anniversary of John Blokley 1391-2 (Mun. 18525).

In uno medico conducto ad videndum statum fratris J. L. iii^s iiiii^d 1392-3 (Infirmarer). As he was not an inmate of the sick-room, it is probable that he succeeded to Colchester's camera.

Defunctus ante festum Pasche 1396 (Treasurer); 1395-6 (Infirmarer).

Before he ceased to be Treasurer, he "inspected the account rolls of all the officers of Westminster and set them at their true annual value," in order to find out what sums were available for the Novum Opus (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 85 b; cf. f. 140).

The Hostillar of 1400 was still using mappe mensales de linea tela which were partly his gift; J. L. also gave two cipi murreni, six silver salt-cellers weighing iiiii^{oz} x^{dwt} "de troye," one silver piece with cover, weighing xvii^{oz} v^{dwt}, and a considerable stock of crockery and furniture, all of which survived in 1400 (Mun. 9480).

Heruyngton, Heruynton, Herwynton, William de.

Must have been above the usual age at entering and probably already a priest.

Elemosinarius 1363-8?+. Built four shops from which in 1386-7 the Almoner received rentals of 13s. 4d. No further mention.

Canterbury, Canterbury, Canturbury, Canntbody, Cannterbery, Canntbury, Cauntabery, Caunterbury, John.

Was described as tunc Oxon. when the Brethren made their gifts to the Pope for the year of Jubilee 1390 (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 92).

Pomfrett, Pomfreyt, Pontfreyt, Poumfrett, Poumfreyt, Pounfreyd, Pountfrett, Thomas.

Prima Missa 1381-2 (Infirmarer; Q. Alianore; Warden of the Churches).

Defunctus Jan. 1396 (Infirmarer; as he was ill for 61 days in Dec. 1395 and Jan. 1396, his death may be placed c. 31 Jan.).

1378-9

Palgrave, Richard.

Was a priest by 1390-1 (Q. Alianore), his place being next after R. Whatele [q.v.] whose first Mass was in 1388-9; if that is the correct date for Palgrave's ordination, he must either have entered the Convent very young or have been ordained late in life. The Chamberlain 1392-3 entered him last, after R. Birlyingham, but Q. Alianore of the same year put him three places higher, after W. Sonewell. Such indecision is unusual.

Defunctus Jan. 1399 (Infirmarer); inter mortuos 1399-1400 (Chamberlain).

Stratton, J.

He received from Q. Alianore's manors 1378-9 at the same rate as the deacons, but was not entered as such.

Last appearance by name 1382-3 (Chamberlain).

London, John.

Prima Missa 25 Jan.—29 Sep. 1379 (Infirmarer); 1378-9 (Treasurer).

Ad skillam 1386-7 (Infirmarer; Sacrist; Warden of the Churches).

Thesaurarius maner^m Regine Alianore 1388-90; 1391-3.

Custos Misericordie ?—9 Dec. 1391 (Mun. 6628).

Custos feretri ?—?; as such, gave evidence about the tithing of Thames salmon (Flete, p. 64).

Along with John Northampton [q.v.] he provided the picture for the altar of St John Baptist's chapel (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 92 b; Stanley, Memorials, 3rd ed. p. 641).

Solut' priori minoris Malvernii pro mensa fratris J. L. viz. pro xli septimanis per septimanam xx^d lxviii^s iiii^d. Pro expensis eiusdem Johannis et familie sue per viam de Westm. versus Malverniam et in denariis traditis xv^s iiii^d 1401-2 (Mun. 24413).

Reclusus 1424-5; ecce fagetts pro recluso xiii^s iiii^d 1426-7 (Treasurer).

Defunctus c. 1428 (entered in his usual place, as senior monk, next to the Prior, 1427-8, Q. Alianore); inter mortuos 1428-9 (Chamberlain).

1379-80

Sandon, John.

Subdiaconus 1379-80 (Q. Alianore).

Prima Missa 1381-2 (Infirmarer; Q. Alianore; Warden of the Churches).

Came up from Oxford for Cardinal Langham's interment, 1387-8 (Treasurer); he was not one of the two scholars, but his name is inserted over their names.

Ad skillam 1390-1 (Infirmarer; Sacrist; Warden of the Churches).

Indult to hold a benefice with cure of souls, 21 Jul. 1398 (Kal. Pap. Reg. v, 159).

Refectorarius 1398-1400 (Treasurer).

Last mentioned in his usual place 1412-3 (Q. Alianore).

Toneworth, Tonworth, Tonworthe, Tonneworth, Tunworth, Ralph.

Prima Missa 1382-3 (Infirmarer; Chamberlain; Q. Alianore; Sacrist; Warden of the Churches).

Vestiarius ?-? Gave evidence as such about the tithing of Thames salmon (cf. Flete, p. 64).

Sacrista 25 Nov. 1399-22 Nov. 1411 (Treasurer).

Custos Novi Operis 1400-22 Nov. 1411 (cf. R. B. Rackham, Nave of Westminster, pp. 12-13).

Custos capelle b. Marie 1411-6.

Et solut' fratri R. T. pro recompensacione facta sibi pro dampno in camera archidiaconi dum dominus Abbas [W. Colchester] jacuit ibi vi^s viii^d 1417-8 (Abbot's Treasurer). It is fair to presume from this that he was Archdeacon, but there is no other evidence.

Infirmarius 1418-9.

Defunctus 1419-20 (Q. Alianore); inter mortuos 1420-1 (Chamberlain).

Forde, B.

No panni nigri were issued to him 1382-3 because he was cum croisoria (Chamberlain).

Last mentioned 1384-5 (Q. Alianore), when he was paid 30s., a priest's share being 70s.; he may have been sub-deacon at the time.

Merke, Merk, Merks, Thomas.

In Chamberlain 1379-80 and 1382-3 his precedence is between N. Chereton and T. Pomfrett, which suggests that he may have joined the Convent in 1376. Was entered by Chamberlain 1379-80; 1382-3; but not in the list of those who made Jubilee contributions 1390 (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 92).

Item dat' famulo prioris de Ely conducenti dominum [W. Colchester] per viam de Ely vii die Octobris [1388] per fratrem T. M. xii^d (Abbot's Steward).

Dat' T. M. et Johanni Sandon [q.v.] pro gaudiis vi^s viii^d 1388-9 (ibid.).

Studens Oxon. (£10) 1392-4 (Treasurer).

Solut' fratri T. M. studenti Oxonie pro expensis suis factis circa introitum ad sentencias x^{li} 1392-3 (Treasurer).

In expensis T. M. et R. Whatele [q.v.] venientium de Oxon erga festum Natalis Domini et redeundo xx^s 1393-4 (ibid.).

Was granted a pension of £20 by the Abbot, Prior, and Convent 1395-6 (Treasurer); same sum paid 1396-7 episcopo Karliolensi; and in 1397-8 £3. 6s. 8d. in plenam solucionem pensionis sue.

Bishop of Carlisle before 23 Apr. 1397 (Stubbs, Registrum, 2nd ed. p. 83).

There is a letter from him to Abbot Colchester, signed vester obedientarius T. C. [Carliol.], endorsed per Thomam Merke, and dated 2nd Sunday in Advent, without year, in which he asked the Abbot to foster a cause of the Warden of Merton Hall in the Roman Curia (Mun. 9240*).

Defunctus 1410 (Stubbs, Registrum, p. 83). In 1411 (5 Oct.) when Abbot Colchester made a covenant with the Prior of Hurley for the celebration of his own anniversary there, he stipulated that memorial should be made of his parents and of Thomas Merke (Mun. 3571).

Diaconus 1381-2 (Q. Alianore).

Prima Missa 1382-3 (Infirmerer; Chamberlain; Q. Alianore; Sacrist; Warden of the Churches).

Solut' Magistro Galfrido phisico venienti per iii^{or} vices ad videndum fratrem R. H. vi^s viii^d 1393-4 (Infirmerer).

For his evidence about the tithing of the Thames salmon cf. Flete, p. 64.

Custos capelle b. Marie 29 Sep. 1398—8 Dec. 1400. As such, he granted a lease of a house to Geoffrey Chaucer in 1399 (Mun. lvii).

For his gifts towards the new Choir-book, 1398-9, cf. Manuscripts of Westminster Abbey, p. 9.

Ad skillam 29 Sep.—8 Dec. 1400 (St Mary's Chapel); 1400-1 (Infirmerer; Chamberlain; Cellarer; Warden of the Churches); 1401-2 (Almoner).

In surgeria pro fratre R. H. pro pede iii^s vii^d 1406-7 (Infirmerer).

Thesaurarius maner^m Regine Alianore 1405-10; Ricardi II et Anne 1406-9.

In attendance upon Abbot Colchester at the General Chapter of the Benedictines, Northampton, 6 Jul. 1411 (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 90 b).

Defunctus 28 Sep.—12 Dec. 1417 (Infirmerer).

One of the few Brethren of whose family relationships there is any trace. In Mun. 27805, 27806, he has left accounts, drawn up with the same care as were his balance-sheets as an obedientiary, of his administration of some property belonging to his sister Alice. They are dated 1 May 1399 and 31 Oct. 1405, and the later repeats some of the matter contained in the earlier.

Alice had handed to him a sum of £2. 13s. 4d. in 1399; there was also 3s. 4d. paid at Christmas as rent of an acre of land let to the vicar of Hermodesworth (= Harmondsworth, Middlesex), from which it may be assumed that Robert's place-name was genuine; also Alice had delivered 2s. to him near the church of St Magnus [by London Bridge]. So he had to account for £2. 18s. 8d. in all.

It appears that Alice had come to London in 1398 and that the expenses of her journey and of her residence in the house of John de Bury in veter' piscar' London [Old Fish Street] came to 16s. 8d. Robert had bought for her three yards of green cloth at 2s. 6d. a yard and three yards of linen to line this garment (pro viridi toga duplicanda) at 6d. a yard, and he had paid a tailor 2s. 8d. to make it; also a cape against the Feast of All Saints, when the weather was getting cold, costing 3s. 4d. By the Feast of the Purification she needed another dress, this time of russet at 2s. 4d. a yard, and trimmed with fur for 5s. The total was made up of various sums handed to Alice, closing with one of 6s. 8d. given her by the hand of John Sakeuille, baker, of London, to whom she was married after her arrival in London.

Evidently the affairs of this modest estate were not settled without difficulty. For there comes in another person, Matildis, wife of Thomas Goyland and sister of Alice; she was now deceased, but Alice held that the widower was responsible for his wife's debts.

Matildis had received 20s. for 2 quarters of wheat at Hermodesworth; 11s. 5½d. for barley; 10s. for malt; 8s. for a heifer; and 1s. 8d. for an ewe with her lamb; total £2. 11s. 1½d. Her husband therefore had to account for these items. The 11s. 5½d. and the 10s. were handed, he says, to Alice in London in the presence of persons named; the heifer was delivered to Margaret her servant; the ewe had been a gift from Alice to her sister Matildis before her departure for London; as for the lamb, it afterwards perished on the shore (in marina). There remained the 20s. for the wheat;

13s. 4d. of this had been paid with the assent of Alice to her servant Margaret and the remaining 6s. 8d. was more than represented by various utensils which had been allotted to Alice out of Margaret's effects; viz. 4 brazen pots, 6 brazen pans, 2 chargeturis [?chargers] with 6 plates, 6 tin salt-cellars, 6 silver spoons, 1 small crystal goblet, 2 silver bracelets, 2 cloths, 3 cushions, one wash-basin, one iron tripod, one gridiron, one iron firefork, besides one or two bedspreads with a tester, 2 blankets, 2 pairs of sheets, and one pair of large amber beads,—the whole valued at £5.

Thus it would seem that Alice Sakeuille had her money's worth. Brother Robert added a memorandum of gifts that he had made over and above what was required of him:—clothing bought for the wedding of John and Alice 26s. 8d.; six capons given to them on the same day 3s. 4d.; a small red box with lock and key 3s. 4d.; a leathern skin (i pell' de Cordowana) 1s. 8d.; and four capons on All Saints' Day, 2s.

Celerarius ?+ 1416-7?+.

Granator 1416-8; as such he had a legal dispute (lis) with John Mylys, the Ashwell carrier, about eight quarters of barley, 1417-8.

Indult to choose confessor 8 Apr. 1421 (Kal. Pap. Reg. vii, 330).

Custos Novi Operis 16 Nov. 1421—29 Sep. 1422.

Collector of Abbey rents in Westminster and in Wood Street, 1427-32.

Reclusus 28 Sep.—24 Dec. 1435 (St Mary's Chapel, which paid him 1*d.* a day); 1434-5 (Treasurer); xii lbs. of candles and some coals 1440-1 (Sacrist); solut' fratri W. C. recluso Westm. ex precepto domini Abbatis x^s, 1442-3 (New Work).

Defunctus 1442-3 (Q. Alianore, half share; Henry V, $\frac{6}{7}$ share; so probably 1443).

Eston, Estone, Eyston, John.

Prima Missa 1396-7 (Infirmarer; Almoner; Warden of the Churches; probably Sacrist).

In attendance on Abbot Colchester at the General Chapter of the Benedictines, Northampton, 6 Jul. 1411 (Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 90 b).

Defunctus 1433-4 (Richard II).

Shiplake, Shyppelake, Schiplake, Schippelake, Schyplake, Reginald.

In Priest's orders 1398-9, when he was placed so high on the list, above R. Whatele (1386-7), that he may have been a Priest when he joined (Q. Alianore).

Ad skillam 8 Dec. 1400—29 Sep. 1401 (St Mary's Chapel); 1400-1 (Infirmarer; Chamberlain; Cellarer; Warden of the Churches); 1401-2 (Almoner).

Thesaurarius maner^m Regine Alianore 1401-3; 1426-7.

Refectorarius 1411-3 (Treasurer); 1414-7; 1427-8.

Custos capelle b. Marie 28 Sep.—24 Nov. 1420.

Infirmarius 1 Dec. 1420—28 Sep. 1421; 28 Sep.—21 Dec. 1436.

From 1443 onwards he was stagiarius infra Infirmariam (Sacrist), receiving an allowance of candles, &c.

Defunctus, circa horam octavam in nocte, 15 Dec. 1445. Sepultus in claustrum juxta tumbam fratris Ricardi Byrlyngham (Mun. 33289, f. 3).

York, Yorke, Yoork, William.

In Priest's orders 1398-9 (Q. Alianore).

Defunctus 1419-20 (Q. Alianore); inter mortuos, 1420-1 (Chamberlain).

Dalby, Thomas.

Prima Missa 1401-2 (Infirmarer; Warden of the Churches).

Defunctus, 29 Sep.—21 Dec. 1436 (Infirmarer, Mun. 19418, which gives his obit and says that he was in the sick-room for 80 days from 29 Sep.; thus there is a presumption of his death c. 17 Dec.).

Ludlow, Lodelowe, Lodlowe, Ludelawe, Ludlowe, John.

Prima Missa 1402-3 (Infirmarer; Almoner; Warden of the Churches).

Scolaris studens Oxon. (£10) 1402-5 (Treasurer).

Defunctus, c. Oct. 1408 (Infirmarer).

Milton, Multon, Multone, Walter.

Defunctus c. Feb. 1400 (Infirmarer).

Kyngestone, Kingiston, Kigstone, John.

Priest's share 1398-9 (Q. Alianore).

Eodem anno J. K. fuit Ultimus in congregacione (1398-9, Lib. Nig. Quat. f. 92).

Mentioned in his usual place in the manor rolls 1410-1; was in the sick-room with a male nurse night and day for a fortnight in Apr. 1412; no mention of obit; no further appearance.

H A R W D E N, Harweden, Harewedene, Hareden, Harden, Harowdene, Richard.

Full priest's share 1398-9 (Q. Alianore). In 1397-8 he had received 6s. 8d. as against 5s. given to other novices.

Senescallus hospicii Domini [W. Colchester] 1406-7 (Mun. 24417).

Thesaurarius maner^m Regine Alianore 1403-5; custos 1410-6; 1418-20; Ricardi II et Anne 1410-6; 1418-20.

Camerarius 1408-10 (Treasurer; Mun. 18735, in which he and his successor settled their balances 2 Nov. 1410).

Thesaurarius; Ballivus; Custos ecclesiarum; 1410-6; 1418-20.

Custos Novi Operis 1413 (probably 1411)-1420. (For his association with Richard Whityngton and for his work on the triforium cf. R. B. Rackham, Nave of Westminster, pp. 13-16.)

Sacrista 1414-9?+ (Treasurer).

A visus compoti of 1420 shows that Harwden vacated his treasurerships 29 Nov. (Mun. 23769).

Custos infirmarie 28 Sep.—1 Dec. 1420.

Abbot Colchester as President of the General Chapter of the Benedictine Order paid him £10 pro bono labore suo pro certis negociis expediendis uersus dominum Regem, 1420 (Mun. 12397).

Abbas ?29 Nov. 1420. (The royal licence to Prior Whatele and the Convent to elect a successor to Colchester was dated 12 Nov.; Mun. 5440. When the compotus of Henry V for 1419-20 was made up, he was already Electus and was therefore placed on the list next after the Prior.)

Confirmation of his election by Martin V 29 Mar. 1421 (Kal. Pap. Reg. vii, 191).

Indults to choose confessor and for portable altar 8, 10 Apr. 1421 (ibid. 333).

Superuisor nauis ecclesie Westm. facte per dominum Regem 1420-1 (New Work).

Henry V granted to the Convent the privilege of having its Abbots-elect confirmed in their office by a Bishop in England instead of going at ruinous expense to the Roman Court, 7 Jun. 1421 (Mun. 5439).

The Papal Chamberlain acknowledged receipt of 83 florins due to the clerks of the Papal Camera from the new Abbot 29 Mar. 1421 (Mun. 9449); and another sum of 125 florins, an instalment of what was due to various Papal familiares et officiales, was acknowledged 20 Nov. 1421 (Mun. 9463).

i pecia argentea cum cooperulo argenteo ex dono domini Ricardi Abbatis ponderante xiii uns' di., 1427-8 (Monk-Bailiff).

Resignavit 2 Apr. die Sabbati in septimana Pasche 1440 (Mun. 24436).

His pension of 200 marks from the Abbot's rents in Worcestershire was secured by royal confirmation 15 Mar. 1440; so the matter was evidently arranged in Chapter before his resignation (Mun. 5902). The Papal permission to Harwden to receive this pension spoke of him as adeo senio confractum, and acknowledged that he had been a good ruler, laudabiliter praefuisse; 20 Aug. 1440 (Mun. 5253).

The receiver of the money for Henry V's anniversary 1439-40 entered a "recreation" of xx^s paid fratri R. H. nuper Abbati (Mun. 24125); and it appears from the same account and from that of 1440-1 that Harwden had lent the fund £75, which was being repaid to him at the rate of £25 yearly. He received the second £25 "in part payment" 1440-1; but there is no record of the third.

Prior Essex entered in 1482 a receipt of 3s. 4d. xviii^o die Junii pro obitu R. H. (Mun. 33289, f. 15).

Defunctus ?18 Jun. 1441.

Karlill, Karlil, Karlell, Karlyle, Karlyll, Karlylle, Carlill, John.

Prima Missa 28 Sep.—13 Nov. 1401 (Cellarer); 1401-2 (Infirmarer; Warden of the Churches).

Ad skillam 1421-2 (Chamberlain; New Work; Almoner; Warden of the Churches).

Last appearance in the manor-lists 1422-3 in his usual place, with full share; last appearance in Chamberlain's lists 1423-4, where he received the usual outfit, except panni nigri. Probably he left the Convent.

Wilton, Wylton, John.

Novice's share 1397-8; priest's share 1398-9 (Q. Alianore).

Ad skillam 1418-9 (Infirmarer; Chamberlain; Almoner; Warden of the Churches).

Elemosinarius 22 Jul. 1420—29 Sep. 1423; 1428-30?+.

Thesaurarius maner^m Ricardi II et Anne 1435-45; custos 1437-40.

Indult for plenary remission 11 Mar. 1421 (Kal. Pap. Reg. vii, 329).

Thesaurarius maner^m Regine Alianore 19 Jun. 1438—29 Sep. 1446; custos 1438-40.

Supprior 1440 (Mun. 5414).

In Mun. 5414, which is a licence to John Cambridge [q.v.] to prosecute Alicia Peese, Wilton is described as supprior custos presidens siue gubernator Monasterii Westm....per Resignacionem reuerendi in Christo patris et domini domini Ricardi [Harwden]....As such he affixed the corporate seal to the document in the Chapter House 27 May 1440.

Custos feretri 1444-5 (Sacrist; Mun. 33289, f. 3).

Auditor super comptum 1446-7 (Q. Alianore).

Infirmarius 1446-9.

Pension xx^s 1452-3 (New Work).

Defunctus 8 Mai. 1453 (Mun. 33289); 1452-3 (Q. Alianore; Henry V; $\frac{1}{2}$ share). Sepultus in vigilia Ascensionis Domini in capella sancti Martini episcopi coram altari (Mun. 33289, f. 2).

Thetforde, Tetford, Thomas.

Was entered in Q. Alianore 1397-8 as if a novice, but in 1398-9 received at the rate of a priest and was entered with R. Fakenham next to E. Whaddon who said his first Mass 1396-7.

Defunctus 1402 (probably Jan.; Infirmarer 1401-2 entered him as sick for 9 days that month, and his name was deleted and marked with a † in Q. Alianore).

Fakenham, Ralph.

[See under T. Thetforde.]

Last mention 1401-2 (Q. Alianore; where he was entered at the end with a half share).

1398-9Selby, Magister Ralph.

Prebendary of Driffild in York Minster 9 Dec. 1385, sub-dean in 1387; archdeacon of Buckingham, by exchange, 1 Jul. 1392; archdeacon of Norfolk 20 Nov. 1398, but the King's presentee, John Midleton, was actually admitted to this last, 28 Jan. 1399 (Le Neve, Fasti). Was one of the executors (Mun. 5262 A) of John de Waltham, Bishop of Salisbury, who preceded him in the subdeanery of York, 1384, and who was buried in St Edward's Chapel, Westminster Abbey, Sep. 1395. The Bishop's executors gave the Convent a red vestment costing £40 and a sum of 500 marks. Selby may have joined our Convent in this connexion.

In Q. Alianore 1398-9, and in Chamberlain 1399-1400 and following, he was placed next after the Prior; at some anniversaries he received a double, or Prior's, share in the distribution.

16^s worth of "fagetts" bought for him yearly 1399, &c. (Treasurer).

Indult to visit his Archdeaconry of Buckingham by deputy for life 14 Jul. 1399 (Kal. Pap. Reg. v, 202). There is a reference (ibid. p. 517), dated 13 Jun. 1402, to the fact that, being then a secular clerk, he had vacated the canonry and prebend of Netherburychurch (sc. Netherbury in Ecclesia) in Salisbury Cathedral on becoming a monk at Westminster in 1398.

Pension of £4 from 1402-3 (Treasurer).

Another sign of special privilege is the Infirmarer's gift to him of 20^s 1417-8, and 1418-9; in the former case there is an attempt to work this out as 11^s 6^d for 46 meat-days (at 3*d.*) and 9^s 6^d for 57 fish-days (at 2*d.*); but in the latter the arithmetic is dropped and it is said that he received the 20^s licet ibidem non existenti pro diuersis temporibus hoc anno.

Defunctus 29 Sep. 1420 (Camden, Reges, &c.); 28 Sep.—1 Dec. 1420 (Infirmarer); 1419-20 (Q. Alianore); 1420-1 (Chamberlain).

Buried in the South Ambulatory.

1399-1400

Ad skillam 1418-9 (Infirmarer; Chamberlain; Almoner; Warden of the Churches).

Custos capelle b. Marie 1432-3.

Elemosinarius 1433-4.

Granator 1434-8 (Treasurer).

Defunctus 1438-9 (Q. Alianore; Chamberlain; Richard II, $\frac{2}{3}$ share).

KIRTON, Kyrton, Edmund.

Diaconus 1404-5 (Richard II).

Scolaris studens Oxon. (£10) 1407-16; 1417-25 (Treasurer; Sacrist).

Prima Missa 1408-9 (Infirmarer; Almoner; Warden of the Churches).

In expensis fratris E. K. monachi Westm. cum duobus seruiantibus equitantibus a Westm. usque Walden Bury et Norwyche per x dies pro negociis expediendis [for the General Chapter] 1420 (Mun. 12397).

There were frequent payments to him by the Treasurer for journeys to and from Oxford 1421-5, and in 1424-5 the £10 was continued to him, though the two customary students were also being paid at the same rate. This would follow upon his appointment as Prior of the Benedictine students at Oxford (Gloucester Hall, now Worcester College): solut⁹ E. K. priori studentium Oxon⁹ pro parte expensorum eiusdem ibidem xx^s, 1425-6 (Treasurer). At the same time his exhibition of £10 was stopped and, apparently, deleted from the account.

Indults for a portable altar and to choose confessor 8 Apr. 1421 (Kal. Pap. Reg. vii, 332 f.).

Sacrista 1433-16 Dec. 1440.

Custos Novi Operis 1433-7?+ (cf. R. B. Rackham, Nave of Westminster, pp. 18-27).

Abbas 1440 (after 27 May, Mun. 5414; the Pope "provided" him to the Abbacy 3 Aug. 1440 and issued a faculty to him to be blessed as such by any Bishop 6 Aug. 1440; Kal. Pap. Reg. ix, 105).

Ad skillam, Abbas, 28 Sep.—16 Dec. 1440 (Sacrist); 1440-1 (Infirmarer; Almoner; Monk-Bailiff).

As Sacrist ("sexteyn") he mortgaged some plate with John Nankilly, citizen and draper, for £42. 19s. 3d.; among the items were "iiii saltsalere with a coverey¹ gylt and a senser gylt...a basyn and an ewer of syluer and gylt...a stondyng cuppe of syluer with a covercil thereto," 22 Dec. 1439 (Mun. 9481).

On a report from the Prior of Winchester and the Abbots of St John, Colchester, and Chertsey, Pope Eugenius IV issued a mandate for summoning and examining Kirton on a charge of being a fornicator, dilapidator, adulterer, simoniac, and guilty of other crimes, and for depriving him of his office, if the charges were proved, 24 Sep. 1446 (Kal. Pap. Reg. viii, 309).

Et in batyllag⁷ Thome Cornewayle [q.v.] de Westm. usque London de London usque Bermyssey...de inde usque London et Westm....pro baculo pastorali domini Abbatis ibidem impignorato redimendo...x^{li}, 1447 (Abbot's Treasurer).

Received King Henry VI, when he came to the Abbey church to choose the place for his burial c. 1460 (Mun. 6389).

Resigned the Abbotship in or about 1462-3; before 24 Nov. 1463 (Mun. 24279); Widmore (p. 115) says 23 Oct. 1462.

There is an indenture between him and his successor, G. Norwych, in which the latter acknowledged receipt of 120 lb. 3½ oz. (Troy weight) of silver plate, valued at 2s. 6d. per oz.; 13 Dec. 1463 (Mun. 5443).

He was granted a pension of 200 marks; his earliest surviving quarterly receipt is dated 19 Jan. 1464 (Mun. 5428).

When Abbot Norwych [q.v.] issued a commission to Millyng and others to administer the affairs of the convent, the commission was to continue quousque praefatum monasterium ab omni debito per nos seu Edmundum predecessorem nostrum causato penitus liberatum fuerit (Mun. 5432).

After his retirement the Abbot's Receiver 1464 paid domino E. K. ad diuersas vices viii^{li} and the Abbot's Treasurer (1463-4) laid out xii^d pro fagetts et talwode¹ pro Magistro E. K.

Defunctus 3 Oct. 1466 (Camden, Reges, &c.); buried in St Andrew's Chapel, the screen of which he had adorned.

Item rec' de Thoma More die obitus Dompni E. K. nuper Abbatis Westm. pro iii^{or} Tapr. xx^d (St Margaret, Westminster, churchwardens' accounts 1467-8).

1406-7

Novus sacerdos 1407-8 (Q. Alianore).

Prima Missa 1408-9 (Infirmarer; Almoner; Warden of the Churches).
 Scholaris studens Oxon. (£10) 1412-5 (Treasurer).

Last payment from Q. Alianore in 1412-3; no further mention; perhaps he remained at Oxford.

London, John.

Novicius professus 1406-7 (Richard II).

Prima Missa 1408-9 (Infirmarer; Almoner; Warden of the Churches).

Novus sacerdos 1408-9 (Richard II; i.e. he received from the manors at the rate of half the payment made to the older priests).

Defunctus 1431 (Infirmarer, 1430-1, gives his obit and notes a ten weeks' illness towards the close of that year); inter mortuos, 1430-1 (Q. Alianore, full share).

Walden, John.

[?= John Walden, who was praepositus of the Abbot's manor of Pyrford up to Mich^s 1407; Mun. 27435.]

Novicius professus 1406-7 (Richard II).

Prima Missa 1408-9 (Infirmarer; Almoner; Warden of the Churches).

Novus sacerdos 1408-9 (Richard II).

Solut' fratri J. W. pro nouo libro organorum xx^s, 1415-6 (St Mary's Chapel).

Ad skillam 1417-8 (Almoner: primo ad skillam presidenti in Refectorio; Warden of the Churches).

Granator 1423-5 (Treasurer).

Last mention in the manor rolls 1426-7, at his usual place; was entered at end of Chamberlain 1428-9, who supplied foot-wear to him but no panni nigri. Probably he left the Convent.

1408-9

Mordon, Moredon, Nicholas.

Novicius junior 1408-9 (Richard II).

Prima Missa 1410-1 (Infirmarer; Almoner; Warden of the Churches).

Thesaurarius 1416-33; 19 Jun. 1438-29 Sep. 1442.

Coquinarius 1418-20 (Treasurer; Q. Alianore); 1441 (Mun. 33288, f. 36 b), when he gave the Prior a pair of gloves at Christmas.

Celerarius et Gardinarius ? + 25 Dec. 1445 (Mun. 33289)—2 Feb. 1447 ? +.

Defunctus 1454 (Henry V, full share, Q. Alianore, $\frac{2}{3}$ share, Richard II, $\frac{1}{2}$ share, 1453-4); inter mortuos 1454-5 (Chamberlain).

Bryd, Bryde, Brid, Byrd, Geoffrey.

Novicius junior 1408-9 (Richard II).

Prima Missa 1412-3 (Infirmarer).

Refectorarius 1417-8.

Camerarius 1419-33.

Collector of Abbey rents in Westminster and Wood Street, 1417-32 (Mun. 18561-81).

Indult to choose confessor 11 Mar. 1421 (Kal. Pap. Reg. vii, 332).

Defunctus 1433 (Q. Alianore 1432-3 enters him at his usual place with a full share; but in Richard II he is entered separately with a note: non plus de cetero quia mortuus est; i.e. he must have died in the late autumn of 1433).

Massham, Masseham, Masham, Massam, Bartholomew.

= Selby, Bartholomew.

[The name Selby was twice corrected in another hand to Massam in Infirmarer 1412-3, no doubt in order to avoid confusion with Ralph Selby, but was retained by an oversight when the exennia for First Mass were entered.]

Novicius junior 1408-9 (Richard II).

Prima Missa 1412-3 (Infirmarer).

Ad skillam 1443-4 (Infirmarer; Chamberlain; Almoner; Sacrist; Warden of the Churches; Treasurer).

Refectoriarius (Christmas) 1438 (Mun. 33288, f. 38 b); 1448-9.

Defunctus c. 12 Jun. 1450 (when the Sacrist took on his duties as Custos feretri); inter mortuos 1449-50 (Chamberlain; $\frac{1}{2}$ share, Q. Alianore, Richard II).

1410-1

Hatton, William.

Prima Missa 1415-6 (Warden of the Churches; St Mary's Chapel).

Last mention at end of Chamberlain 1424-5; last payment from the manors 1422-3 (Q. Alianore).

Broughton, Browton, Brotton, William.

Prima Missa 1414-5 (Almoner; Warden of the Churches; Q. Alianore for that year enters him as receiving 40s. and calls him sacerdoti de nouo ordinato; the full dividend was 50s.).

Defunctus c. Mar. 1417 (Infirmarer 1416-7, which gives his obit and says he was ill during March; Q. Alianore, $\frac{1}{2}$ share, i.e. to the end of March).

1412-3

Southbroke, Southbrook, Sothbrok, Sowthbroke, Sudbroke, Richard.

[On his first appearance he was placed in the second grade above the novices (Q. Alianore, Richard II, 1412-3), receiving a priest's full share from the manors in 1414-5.]

Scolaris studens Oxon. (£10) 1417-20 (Treasurer).

Precentor 1420-38?+ (Warden of the Churches).

Indult to choose confessor 11 Mar. 1421 (Kal. Pap. Reg. vii, 332).

Ad skillam 24 Nov. 1420—29 Sep. 1421 (St Mary's Chapel); 1420-1 (Chamberlain; Almoner; Warden of the Churches; New Work. From the last it is deleted, a note being added that it was not the custom of the Warden of the Novum Opus to give exennia. This probably refers to exennia for being promoted ad skillam, which do not seem to have been provided by this officer. But in the same year 1420-1 he started providing exennia for First Masses and maintained the practice for a few years).

In emendacione...organorum per fratrem T. G. xiii^s, 1422-3 (Sacrist).

Refectorarius 1423-5 (Mun. 19535; Treasurer).

Defunctus 1432-3 (name deleted from Q. Alianore and marked †).

Symond, Simond, William.

Prima Missa 1416-7 (Infirmarer; Almoner; Cellarer; Warden of the Churches; St Mary's Chapel).

Ad skillam 1431-2 (Almoner; Cellarer; Sacrist; Warden of the Churches).

Thesaurarius 1433-17 Dec. 1435.

Coquinarius 1433-4 (Almoner).

Refectorarius 1435-7; 1437-9 (Treasurer; cf. Mun. 33288, f. 38 b).

Defunctus 1438-9 (Q. Alianore; Chamberlain. Probably 1439, as he received $\frac{4}{5}$ share, Richard II, and $\frac{1}{5}$ share, Henry V, 1438-9).

1415-6

Petham, Pettham, W.

Prima Missa 1417-8 (Almoner; St Mary's Chapel; Warden of the Churches).

Defunctus 28 Sep.—1 Dec. 1420 (Infirmarer); 1419-20 (Q. Alianore; Chamberlain; Richard II; in the last he is said to be nuper defunctus, i.e. at the time of the audit).

Stokes, Stoke, Stokys, Stookes, John.

[Is it possible that he was the Master Stokes who attended the Council of Constance (J. H. Wylie, Council of Constance, p. 156)?]

Prima Missa 1417-8 (Almoner; St Mary's Chapel).

Refectorarius 1439-43.

Hennessey, Repertorium Londinense, p. 456, dates his appointment to a prebend of St Stephen's College 14 Sep. 1441 and identifies him with John Stokes who was vicar of St Martin in the Fields in 1406 and 1409, rector of St Ethelburga in 1426-7, and prebendary of Wildland in St Paul's Cathedral 1431-40. The last-mentioned is possibly the man in question, but it is hard to suppose that a monk who said his first Mass here in 1417-8 on admission to the priesthood could have been vicar of St Martin's ten years earlier.

"Master John Stokes" was tenant in 1441-2 of the Misbourne fishery at Denham (cf. R. H. Lathbury, History of Denham, p. 159).

Ad skillam 8 Nov. 1444—29 Sep. 1445 (Sacrist); 1444-5 (Infirmarer; Treasurer; St Mary's Chapel; Warden of the Churches).

Et solut pro debitis magistri J. S. de collegio sancti Stephani xx^s, 1450-1 (Infirmarer).

Defunctus 1450-1 (Infirmarer, which mentions his obit; Q. Alianore, $\frac{1}{8}$ share; Henry V, $\frac{3}{7}$ share; so probably 1450).

In 1449-50 he was granted a pension of £20 (Treasurer) and in 1450-1 one of £2. 13s. 4d. (Sacrist), each to be paid for five years. The payments were thus made for several years after his decease and were perhaps used to discharge his debts. A tattered page of Domesday, f. 654, refers to this pension.

Parker, Richard.

Prima Missa 28 Sep.—24 Nov. 1420 (St Mary's Chapel); 28 Sep.—29 Nov. 1420 (Q. Alianore); 28 Sep.—1 Dec. 1420 (Infirmarer; Chamberlain); 1420-1 (Almoner; New Work; Warden of the Churches).

Ad skillam 1426-7 (Infirmarer; Almoner; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff; St Mary's Chapel).

Custos capelle b. Marie 29 Sep. 1433—24 Dec. 1435.

Camerarius 1435-7.

Made up his comptus as Chamberlain for 1436-7 and was entered at his usual place in the manor lists of that year; no further mention.

Freston, Frestoon, Freeston, Fryston, Thomas.

[The signature of the Granger's roll 1426-7 appears to be an autograph; if so, he called himself T. ffryston.]

Prima Missa 1417-8 (Almoner; St Mary's Chapel; Warden of the Churches).

Indult to choose confessor 11 Mar. 1421 (Kal. Pap. Reg. vii, 332).

Ad skillam 1423-4 (Chamberlain; Almoner; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff; Warden of the Churches).

Granator 1425-8.

Celerarius 1431-2.

Camerarius 1433-5 (Treasurer); 19 Jun.—29 Sep. 1438.

Elemosinarius 1434-5?+.

Custos maner^m Regine Alianore; Ricardi II et Anne; 1435-7.

Thesaurarius et Ballivus 17 Dec. 1435—19 Jun. 1438. (For his payments to the Kitchener for food, &c., see Mun. 18642).

Custos ecclesiarum 17 Dec. 1435—29 Sep. 1437.

Infirmarius ?+ 1440-1; 28 Sep.—12 Oct. 1443 (Mun. 19420).

Gave to Prior Walsh as a Christmas gift, 1441, unam peciam paruam argenteam et deauratam (Mun. 33288, f. 37 b).

Sacrista 16 Dec. 1440—8 Nov. 1444. After his election as such, drew up a visus compoti with a defence of his financial administration as Treasurer, saying that he had received his office ex unanimi concensu (sic) et assensu totius capituli (Mun. 23035).

Defunctus ? 1444-5 (not mentioned in any manor-rolls of 1445-6).

Solut' pro debitis T. F. nuper camerarii xxxviii^s ii^d 1443-4 (Chamberlain); xl^s 1447 (New Work); xl^s 1448-9 (Almoner).

The Custos feretri in 1520 had charge of "a quatre-foyle of sylver and gylt of the gyfte of Dan T. F." (Mun. 9485).

Whitton, Whytton, Witton, Wytton, William.

Prima Missa 1417-8 (Almoner; St Mary's Chapel; Warden of the Churches).

Last mention in manor-rolls of 1439-40 at end, as if deceased (Q. Alianore, $\frac{1}{2}$ share; Richard II, $\frac{4}{5}$ share; Henry V, $\frac{2}{3}$ share; so probably 1440; but there is neither obit nor illness entered by Infirmarer).

Tonley, Tonleye, Towneley, Tunley, Tonle, Tunle, Thomas. [R. (St Mary's Chapel).]

Prima Missa 1417-8 (Almoner; St Mary's Chapel; Warden of the Churches).

Defunctus 28 Sep.—1 Dec. 1420 (Infirmarer); nuper defunctus 1419-20 (Richard II); inter mortuos 1419-20 (Q. Alianore); 1420-1 (Chamberlain).

1416-7

WALSH, Walsch, Walssh, Walsse, William.

De novo professus (Q. Alianore), nouicius (Richard II), 1416-7.

Prima Missa 28 Sep.—24 Nov. 1420 (St Mary's Chapel); 28 Sep.—29 Nov. 1420 (Q. Alianore); 28 Sep.—1 Dec. 1420 (Infirmarer; Chamberlain); 1420-1 (Almoner; New Work; Warden of the Churches).

Ad skillam 1423-4 (Chamberlain; Almoner; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff; Warden of the Churches).

Thesaurarius maner^m Regine Alianore; Ricardi II et Anne; 1431-3.

Custos capelle b. Marie 29 Sep. 1433—12 Mai. 1434.

Custos tenementorum constructorum ad sustentacionem Anniversarii domini Johannis Waltham nuper Episcopi Sar' 1431-41 (Mun. 24633-48).

Thesaurarius et Ballivus 19 Jun. 1438—26 Jan. 1440 (Mun. 23036).

Celerarius 2 Feb. 1440 (Mun. 18891)—1441 (Mun. 33288, f. 34 b).

Prior 1441 (after 1 Sep., Mun. 24126)—1456 (Richard II 1455-6 places him next to the new Prior, John Flete; i.e. he resigned office¹).

For notes of his receipts and expenditure as Prior see Mun. 33289.

Custos Novi Operis 1444-5 (Mun. 19694).

Auditor super comptum 1446-7 (Q. Alianore).

Oneratus est frater W. W. per Abbatem Edmundum [Kirton] in presencia Johannis Flete tunc prioris...cum officio Infirmarii, 1 Mar. 1460 (Mun. 33288, f. 12).

Defunctus 1461-2 (Infirmarer; Henry V, $\frac{1}{6}$ share).

The new pair of organs made for the Choir in 1441-2 cost £6. 0s. 8d. over and above the 13s. 4d. given through the Prior (Sacrist, Mun. 19692).

As Prior, was instrumental in acquiring the Hospital of St James for the anniversary of Katharine of Valois, Queen of Henry V, 1448-9.

Prior Walsh's "costs" in bringing this matter to completion amounted to £7. 16s. 4d. The gifts included pike, rabbits, capons, partridges, quails, and larks, and four flagons of wine sent to the King at Belsize; pike and partridges to the Duke and Duchess of Suffolk; capons, rabbits, pigeons, three flagons of wine and "i potell de syrup," to Lord Saye, the King's Chamberlain, and to his Lady; 13s. 4d. to John Say², the Speaker of the Parliament, and others, on three occasions, and other 20s. to the Speaker pro expedicione materii (sic) sancti Jacobi; besides pike to the Lord Treasurer and "refreshers" to four other persons (Mun. 24134 B; and for further detail see Walsh's own entry in Mun. 33289, f. 64).

The various Convent offices came to Walsh's aid; e.g. there was a grant of £4 from Henry V's manors (1448-9) in parte expensorum factorum per dominum priorem...circa acquisitionem...

ASSHBY, Assheby, Asseby, Asthby, Asscheby, Nicholas.

[If the signature of the Treasurer's roll 1431 is his autograph, he signed himself N. Asscheby.]

De novo professus (Q. Alianore), nouicius (Richard II) 1416-7.

Prima Missa 1417-8 (Almoner; Warden of the Churches).

 Ad skillam, Prior, 17 Dec. 1435—29 Sep. 1436 (Warden of the Churches);
 1435-6 (Chamberlain).
 Prior 1435-41.
 Mandate for his confirmation as Prior 2 Jul. 1438 (Kal. Pap. Reg. ix. 2).
 The delay in issuing this confirmation is explained by a mandate, 7 Sep. 1436 (ibid. viii, 587), which was given by Eugenius IV to the Bishop of London [? R. Gilbert], on the petition of the Abbot [R. Harwden], to summon Asshby and examine him on the following charge; namely, that whereas it was usual for the Abbot on a vacancy in the Priorship to nominate five, seven, nine or more brethren, out of whom the Convent should elect one with the Abbot's consent, Asshby pretended that he had been elected or nominated by way of scrutiny by some of the monks and had kept the Priorship improperly for about a year. If necessary, the Bishop was to declare the office void and the Abbot was to proceed to a fresh election in the usual way.
 There appears to be no trace of this tragedy in the Muniments and Asshby seems to have been held in high esteem.
 Bishop of Llandaff 24 May 1441 (Stubbs, Registrum, 2nd ed. p. 88).
 In regardo facto domino Episcopo Landauensi nuper priori...xl^s 1440-1 (Henry V).

Defunctus 1461—2 (Infirmarer); inter mortuos (Chamberlain; Q. Alianore; Henry V).

Salisbury, Salesbury, Salesbery, Salysbery, Sarisbury, Surisbury, Nicholas.

= Thomer, N.

[In Chamberlain 1423—4 he was entered for exennia as "Salysbery" but in the list at the back of the roll as "Thomer." In 1425—6 "Salisbury" was substituted for "Thomer."]

Nouicius 1422—3 (Richard II: "N. Salesbury").

Prima Missa 1423—4 (Chamberlain; Almoner; Sacrist; Richard II, where he was called sacerdos junior; Monk-Bailiff; Warden of the Churches).

In Q. Alianore 1430—1 his name was deleted from his proper place and added at the end with these words: si videatur priori et conventui x^s, as if his worthiness to receive a share were in question.

He received his habit (Chamberlain) and a junior priest's share from the manors (Q. Alianore, &c.) in 1432—3; but is not mentioned again.

1423—4

Knoll, Knolle, Thomas.

Nouicius 1423—4 (Richard II).

Prima Missa 1428—9 (Chamberlain; Almoner; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff; St Mary's Chapel).

? Vicar of Datchet and a member of the (St Margaret's) Guild of the Assumption (cf. H. F. Westlake, St Margaret's, Westminster, p. 51).

Not mentioned after 1461—2 (Q. Alianore; Chamberlain).

Holborne, William.

Nouicius 1423-4 (Richard II).

Defunctus 1425-6 (entered in Infirmarer 1426-7, with note: omissum in compoto precedente; he was in the sick-room for 3 days just before Michaelmas, 1426).

Hyde, Hide, Adam.

Nouicius 1423-4 (Richard II).

Prima Missa 1428-9 (Chamberlain; Almoner; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff).

Ad skillam 1434-5 (Almoner; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff; Warden of the Churches).

His last appearance is in Chamberlain 1446-7; in Q. Alianore of that year his name was erased and he received no payment.

NORWYCH, Norwyche, Northwych, George.

Nouicius 1423-4 (Richard II).

Prima Missa 1428-9 (Chamberlain; Almoner, where it was inserted in another hand; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff).

Ad skillam 16 Dec. 1435—29 Sep. 1436 (Monk-Bailiff); 1435-6 (Chamberlain; Warden of the Churches).

Custos capelle b. Marie 1445-6 (Sacrist).

Memorandum quod anno regni Henrici sexti xxvi^o feria iv^a xxx^o die mensis Octobris in festo sanctorum Crispini et Crispiniani circa horam novenam in nocte factum est incendium dormitorii per fratrem G. N. (Mun. 33289, f. 64 b; cf. J. Armitage Robinson, Flete, p. 2).

Refectorarius 1452 (Mun. 33289, f. 8)-1454?+.

Archidiaconus 1451 (Mun. 33289, f. 6); 1461 (cf. Whitaker, History of Craven, ed. 1878, p. 323 [Dr Scott]).

Abbas 1463-9. (Installed between 24 Nov. 1463 and 5 Feb. 1464; Mun. 24279).

On 13 Dec. 1463 he gave an acquittance to Edmund Kirton [q.v.] who handed over the silver plate (Mun. 5443).

In expensis domini Abbatis apud Kyngeston equitantis a Piriford usque Westm. ad exequias domini ducis Ebor' [Richard, d. 1460] eundo et redeundo xii^s 24 Nov. 1463—5 Feb. 1464 (Mun. 24279).

Petition of "the seniour and more part" of the Convent to the King for a visitation of the Abbey owing to the misgovernance of N. (n.d. Mun. 5429).

The Muniments contain a number of bonds for money lent to him (e.g. 28159-62; 28166-7). One mortgage (Mun. 9476), dated 15 Dec. 1467, three weeks after his demission, puts no less than 430 oz. of silver plate in pawn with a merchant against a loan of 300 marks. The plate consisted of olle argentee, long "cuppys," "spyce plates," silver spoons, a pixis, and a number of salt-cellars. The silver, much of which was gilt, was variously valued at 3s. 4d. and 3s. per oz.

A notarial instrument (Mun. 5456; Widmore, appendix VII, p. 191 ff.) was executed 24 Nov. 1467 in quadam bassa parlura ex parte australi infirmarie between Norwyche of the one part and Prior Thomas Millyng and eleven other monks of the other part, by which Norwyche agreed to retire from the active duties of his office and to nominate Prior Millyng, William Chertsey, and John Estney [q.v.] as commissarii Abbatis.

The brethren put in a cedula supplicacionis sive desideracionis in which they stated that Norwyche had involved the convent in heavy debts under the convent seal, 2350 marks being still unpaid and other obligations bringing the total debt to 3037 marks, six shillings and eight pence.

They asked him to go and reside in some ancient monastery with a chaplain and a few retainers and to leave Pyrford, where the visits of gentry and other guests would involve great expense. He was to resign all the abbatial estates and revenues to the management of his commissaries and was not to return to Westminster till payment in full had been made. He was to receive an annual allowance of 100 marks, paid by quarterly instalments.

It is evident that some of the trouble was due to misplaced trust in Brother Thomas Ruston (q.v.).

Defunctus 1469 (between 26 Aug., Mun. 1740, and 14 Nov., Mun. 5413).

Bowode, William.

Ad skillam 1438-9 (Chamberlain; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff).

Granator 1445-6; 1453-63; 1470-1.

Compiled in 1450 a history of the Abbots, Priors, &c. of Westminster Abbey, mainly derived de quodam laudabili opere Johannis Flete (Brit. Mus. Cotton MS. Claud. A viii; cf. J. Armitage Robinson, Flete, p. 30, 31). "Sporley's extracts, comprising as they do the chief part of Flete's book, are frequently of value in controlling the text of the Westminster MS. when other evidence is lacking." His own contribution is "entirely worthless" (ibid.).

Supprior 1452 (Mun. 33289, f. 8).

"Also the Tombe of Kyng Herry the Vth is complete with two teeth of golde on his hande Except iii hole flourid delice and ii middilpoynts of floure delice And ii lyons and an half. The Angels a Balle and a Crosse of silver and gilt A Septre and an Antelop also of Silver and gilt alle the which were stolen away in the tyme of the seid Dan Richard Tedyngton." (Indenture 9 Oct. 1479; Mun. 9478.) This entry is not fair to Tedyngton, for the previous indenture 21 Dec. 1467 (Mun. 9477) says that all the above objects "were stole" as well as "ii tethe of gold hangyng by a wire upon the handde of the ymage of Kyng Harry the Vth,"—which apparently Tedyngton recovered and bequeathed to his successor. Cf. Sir W. H. St John Hope, The Funeral, Monument, and Chantry Chapel of King Henry the Fifth, 1914, p. 151.

Possessed the Flores Historiarum now in the Chetham Library, Manchester (cf. Manuscripts of Westminster Abbey, p. 25).

Defunctus 24 Mai. 1498 (vicesimo quarto die instantis mensis viam universe carnis ingressus est, Mun. 5459).

Buried in the Chapel of St John the Evangelist, where his tomb, the brass of which was afterwards removed to the North Ambulatory, formed part of the screen separating the Ambulatory from the Chapel.

"His body was not long since, upon breaking up a Grave, discover'd lying in a Chest quilted with yellow Satten, he had on a Gown of Crimson Silk girded to him with a black Girdle; on his legs were white Silk Stockings, and over his Face, which was black, a clean Napkin doubled up and laid Corner-wise; the Legs and other Parts of the Body firm and plump. This I think is the exact account I had from that good-natur'd communicative Gentleman, Mr *Battley*¹, late Register of this Church." Dart, Westmonasterium, 1723, II, xxxiii.

Note.—Brayley (1823), II, 195 gives the date of this opening as 17 Aug. 1706 and says the tomb was again opened in the summer of 1772 when the foundation of General Wolfe's monument was being made; on this occasion "the head was found separated from the shoulders."

Camden (Reges, &c.) records the burial in the Chapel of St Blaise of Edwardus monachus Westmonasteriensis, son of Owen Tudor by Queen Katharine, widow of Henry V; brother of Edmund Earl of Richmond, who married the Lady Margaret; and uncle of Henry VII. The only other Edward on our list at this period is Edward Boteler [q.v.], who was transferred to St Milburga's Priory at Wenlock; so we are left with the option of identifying Edward Bridgewater with Camden's Edward Tudor.

Stanley (Memorials, 3rd ed. 1869, pp. 170 n.; 395; 412) thrice repeats a statement, taken from Sandford, Geneal. Hist. ed. 1677, p. 285, that Owen, son of Owen Tudor, became a Westminster monk, and this statement has been reproduced by subsequent writers. On p. 170 n. he gives a reference to Crull, Antiquities, p. 233 (3rd ed. i. 251), who has correctly taken the name Edward from Camden.

Knight, Richard.

Prima Missa 1468-9 (Infirmarer; Chamberlain; New Work; Almoner; Cellarer).

Probably an old servant of the Abbey to whom payments were made through the Succentor.

Capellanus Abbatis [Estney] 1487-92, et subelemosinarius, ?—1492 (Mun. 33290, f. 1).

Thesaurarius; Ballivus; Custos ecclesiarum 12 Oct. 1492—28 Sep. 1499 (Mun. 23050; 33290; and so at Fascet's election 9 Jul. 1498; Mun. 5459).

Custos maner^{um} Regine Alianore; Ricardi II, 12 Oct. 1492-9; Henrici V 1492-8?+ (see also Mun. 33286).

For his journey through the manors Jul. 1493 see Mun. 33290, f. 5.

Celerarius 1496-9?+.

Receptor Abbatis [Estney] 23 Oct. 1496—5 Nov. 1497.

His expenses in the matter of the sepulture of Henry VI 10 Feb. &c. 1498 (Mun. 33290, f. 16).

Prior (after 9 Jul.) 1498—27 Oct. 1500.

Received delegation of Fascet's powers for the purpose of an investigation into the affairs of the Abbey and of the church of St Martin-le-Grand (Mun. 25321*; no date).

Ad skillam, Pri^{or}, 1497-8 (Infirmarer; New Work; Almoner; Cellarer; Sacrist; Treasurer; St Mary's Chapel; Monk-Bailiff; Warden of the Churches).

Abbas 27 Oct. 1500 (Mun. 5444; Widmore, pp. 234-44).

For the procession at his installation 25 Nov. see Mun. 5454.

The Abbot, the Prior, the Monk-Bailiff and all the Convent spent Christmas "with my seyde Lord Abbott at his manor of Neyte" (Mun. 33320, f. 8 b).

Custos Novi Operis 1500-32 (For his work on the west end of the church, &c. cf. Rackham, Nave of Westminster Abbey, pp. 45-50).

"The Kyngs grace [Henry VII] dyned at Cheynygate" Friday 11 Jun. 1501 (Mun. 33320, f. 35).

Sacrista 1500–32.

Custos maner^m Henrici VII, 1502–24?+.

Drew up statutes for the college of St Martin-le-Grand, then annexed and united to the Convent of Westminster c. 1502 (Mun. 13188). The copy of the royal order for the Abbey to take possession of St Martin's is dated 23 Jul. 1503 (Mun. 13193).

In a certificate of a proctorial visit ad limina, 1506, he is called Joannes de Pacientia, abbas exempti monasterii Beati Petri apostoli Westm. La nocte [?Neyte] uulgariter nuncupati (Mun. 9462).

Received from Cardinal Wolsey official notice of a visitation of the Abbey to take place on 10 Jan. 1519, and replied that he and his Brethren, of whom he gave a list, would then present themselves in the Chapter House (Mun. 12789; 12790).

For notice of Wolsey's visitation 30 May 1525 and its acknowledgment by Islip see Mun. 12788.

Being present, as appears from a draft copy (Mun. 22950) of a notarial record, at a Chapter of the Prior and Convent of Greater Malvern, he read a protestation that his presence there in order to receive the professions of certain monks must not be taken to impair in any way the ancient arrangement by which the monks of that Priory must make their profession at Westminster before the Abbot, 1529.

Defunctus 12 Mai. 1532. [duodecimo die instantis mensis maii viam uniuerse carnis est ingressus, Mun. 5458.]

His death took place at his manor house of La Neyte on a Sunday. For a full description in English of the funeral ceremonies, cf. Widmore, pp. 206–10; J. Armitage Robinson, The Benedictine Abbey of Westminster, Ch. Quart. Rev. Apr. 1907, pp. 75–6.

The famous Islip Roll was the Brief in which his decease was to be announced to other monasteries (ibid.).

Mun. 6325 is a bill of "Parcells layde oute by me Taylor aboute my lordes byryall"; it deals with the materials for making up the "blake clothe for hangynge in the quere my lords chapell and other places" and clearly refers to Islip, though it does not name him.

Among the "ornaments delyvered by M^r North, threasorer of the King's Maties augmentacons, ... from the late monastery of Westminster" were "ij riche aulter fruntts of cloth of golde powdred with ... scutcheons of tharmes of Abbott Islpy, and tharmes of the place, ... a coope of fyne cloth of golde with a riche orphras enbraudred with Islyppes and other imagry" (Exchequer MSS. $\frac{833}{32}$).

The Islip chapel or chantry, which he built, consisted of the "Jhesus Chapell beneath" and the "Jhesus Chapell above," the latter having "a payer of Organys with a corten of lynen cloth to cover them" (ibid.); cf. J. Armitage Robinson, op. cit. p. 75, and Mun. 33303, f. 3, which is John Fulwell's [q.v.] account for the painting and furnishing of this chapel and of the one made by Islip in the Abbot's mansion; Feb. 1530.

Barker, Barkar, Berker, Thomas.

First Mass 1487–8 (New Work; Almoner).

Defunctus 1495–6 (Infirmarer; Q. Alianore, $\frac{3}{4}$ share; Richard II, Henry V, full share; so probably 1496); inter mortuos 1496–7 (Chamberlain).

Brice, Bryce, Brise, John.

Prima Missa 1487–8 (New Work; Almoner; Sacrist).

Gave x^s towards the repair of the "Seyny bookes" c. 1492 (Manuscripts of Westminster Abbey, p. 10).

Ad skillam 1499–1500 (Infirmarer; New Work; Chamberlain; Almoner; Sacrist; Treasurer; Monk-Bailiff; St Mary's Chapel).

Subelemosinarius 1498 (at Fascet's election, 9 Jul.; Mun. 5459).

Quartus Prior 1500 (at Islip's election, 27 Oct.; Mun. 5444).

Defunctus 1499–1500 (ill in the sick-room late in that year, Infirmarer; marked with a †, and given a full dividend, Richard II, 1499–1500; inter mortuos, 1500–1, Chamberlain; so probably 1500).

More, Moore, John.

Prima Missa 1486–7 (Infirmarer; New Work; Almoner; Sacrist; St Mary's Chapel).

Studens Oxon. 1490–2 (Treasurer). Along with R. Blake, H. Duffeld, and W. Borow, he received 12s. for their joint expenses in riding from Oxford in Feb. 1491, for the sermons; 6s. 8d. for returning thither in May; and 16s. 8d. for another visit to the convent in July for the election of the Prior (R. Blake), videlicet in eundo morando et redeundo (Mun. 19987).

...predicanti hoc anno in ecclesia tempore quadragesimali iii^s iiiii^d 1491 (Sacrist).

There is no mention of him after the entry of his £10 scholarship in the Treasurers' roll 1491–2; he appears at the end of Q. Alianore and Richard II with full share 1490–1, as if deceased; but he may have left the convent.

Borow, Borowe, Borrow, Burgh, Burghe, William.

Prima Missa 1485–6 (Infirmarer; Cellarer; St Mary's Chapel).

Scolaris Oxon. (£6. 13s. 4d.) 1486–96 (Treasurer). Mun. 23047 has: student' in collegio Glous' apud unersitatem Oxon.

He, H. Duffeld, and J. Warde received 13s. 4d. for their expenses in coming from Oxford, Dec. 1492, and returning thither, Jan. 1493; in February he returned to the Convent circa mortem H. Duffeld [q.v.] going back to Oxford in May (Treasurer 1492–3).

Archidiaconus 9 Jul. 1498 (at Fascet's election, Mun. 5459) and 27 Oct. 1500 (at Islip's election, Mun. 5444).

He was the preacher at Fascet's election, cuius thema erat Constituamus nobis ducem [Num. 14. 4].

Thesaurarius 1500–4; Ballivus 1501–4.

Custos maner^m Regine Alianore; Ricardi II et Anne; 1501–4; Henrici V 1501–3?+.

Custos ecclesiarum 1501–3.

Last mentioned at the head of the Treasurers' roll of 1503–4, when his colleague was Robert Humfrey. As after this there was only one Treasurer, it appears that Borow died during his year of office; and this is supported by the roll of Q. Alianore of the same year, where Borow began the year and Humfrey was described as successiue occupans dictum officium.

1482–3

Ashley, Assheley, Asley, John.

Prima Missa 1485–6 (Infirmarer; Cellarer; St Mary's Chapel).

Stowell, Thomas.

Prima Missa 1500-1 (Chamberlain; New Work; Almoner; Sacrist; Treasurer; St Mary's Chapel).

His receipts and payments for Prior Mane Jul. 1502 (Mun. 33288 f. 22).

Ad skillam 1509-10 (Chamberlain; Cellarer; Treasurer; Monk-Bailiff; St Mary's Chapel).

Last mentioned as receiving his outfit from the Chamberlain 1515-6.

Fyttz, Fyttez, Fittes, Fyte, Fitt, William.

Prima Missa 1500-1 (Chamberlain; New Work; Almoner; Sacrist; Treasurer; St Mary's Chapel).

Granator ?+ 1506-7 ?+.

Studens Oxon. (£6. 13s. 4d.) ?+ 1509—(Christmas) 1511 (Treasurer).

Subelemosinarius 1512-3 (Mun. 32306; 33301 ff. 1-3 b).

Defunctus 1512-3 (Q. Alianore; Richard II; Henry V); inter mortuos 1513-4 (Chamberlain).

1501-2

JAYE, Jay, Thomas.

A mutilated paper (Mun. 12890 v) records his profession and vow of obedience 17 — 1501. His age was given, but the figure has gone.

Studens Oxon. (Henry VII; £10), 1502-6?+.

Prima Missa 1508-9 (New Work; Sacrist; St Mary's Chapel).

B.D. Oxon. 28 Mar. 1512 (Foster, Al. Oxon.).

Thesaurarius et Ballivus 1514-28.

Custos ecclesiarum 1514-28.

Custos maner^m. Regine Alianore; Ricardi II et Anne; Henrici V; 1514-28.

Celerarius 1515-28.

Prior 6 Mai. 1528.

The notarial instrument of his election (Mun. 9501) shows that two days after 4 May 1528, when William Mane died, the Convent assembled in the Chapter House with a legal assessor and two notaries public. The Abbot nominated seven senior monks,—H. Jones, W. Grene, R. Davers, W. Westminster, Thomas Jaye, J. Langham, and R. Calowe,—who were to retire by themselves and choose three monks from among whom the Abbot might select one. In due course H. Jones, the Sub-Prior, reported that their choice had fallen on R. Davers, the Infirmarer, Thomas Jaye, the Treasurer, and Dionysius Dalyanncce, the Precentor. Thereupon the Abbot, with the consent of the Convent and of R. Davers and D. Dalyanncce, appointed Thomas Jaye to be Prior. They then left the Chapter House, reciting the accustomed canticles, psalms, and prayers, and Thomas Jaye was installed as Prior in the choir, on the left-hand side of it.

Ad skillam, Prior, 1528 (1527-8, Infirmarer; Chamberlain; New Work; Almoner; Cellarer; Sacrist; Treasurer; St Mary's Chapel).

Thesaurarius intrinsecus 1528-34?+.

Muniments, Book 3, a folio parchment of 94 pages, recording the Appropriations of the churches belonging to the Abbey, is described (p. 3) as ex sumptibus Fratris Thome Jay quondam Thesaurarii (Manuscripts of Westminster Abbey, p. 98).

He was alive at the anniversary of Abbot Colchester, Oct. 1534 (Mun. 5262 B) and at the anniversary of Henry Merston in April of the 26th of Henry VIII, but the day of this anniversary is not known; so this year may be 1534 or 1535 (Mun. 5255*). The Chamberlain of 1535-6 entered him as Prior and supplied his outfit.

Downes, Downys, Downe, Robert.

Professus 17 — 1501, an. aet. xvii (Mun. 12890 v).

Prima Missa 1506-7 (Chamberlain; Sacrist; Treasurer; Monk-Bailiff; St Mary's Chapel).

His last payment from the manors was in 1522-3 (Q. Alianore); but the Chamberlain entered his outfit in his usual place up to 1524-5.

Marshall, Marchall, John.

Professus 17 — 1501, an. aet. xxi (Mun. 12890 v).

Prima Missa 1502-3 (New Work; Almoner; Cellarer; Treasurer).

Ad skillam 1514-5 (Chamberlain; New Work; Almoner; Cellarer; Sacrist; Warden of the Churches).

His last payment from the manors was in 1520-1 (Q. Alianore); the Chamberlain entered him for an outfit, except panni nigri, in 1521-2; so he may have joined another Order.

Eles, Elis, Elyce, Elys, Elice, Elles, Ellys, William.

Professus 17 — 1501, an. act. xix (Mun. 12890 v).

Prima Missa 1504-5 (Infirmarer; New Work; Almoner; Cellarer; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff).

Ad skillam 1516-7 (New Work; Almoner; Cellarer; Sacrist; St Mary's Chapel; Monk-Bailiff; Warden of the Churches).

Refeclorarius 1530-4.

Signed the deed of Surrender 16 Jan. 1540.

Flete, Flet, Flett, Edward.

Studens Oxon. (£6. 13s. 4d.) 1506-8? + (Treasurer).

Prima Missa 1508-9 (New Work; Sacrist; St Mary's Chapel).

Was entered as if deceased in Q. Alianore 1511-2 with full payment, but by the Chamberlain of that year in his usual place. No further mention.

Callowe, Callow, Calowe, Calho, Karowe, Robert.

Prima Missa 1504-5 (Infirmarer; New Work; Almoner; Cellarer; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff).

Ad skillam 1516-7 (Almoner ["William Karowe"]; Cellarer: St Mary's Chapel; Monk-Bailiff; Warden of the Churches).

Coquinarius 1516-20 (Treasurer ["William Callow" 1516-7; "Robert Calowe" 1517-8]; 1523-33 (and so at Prior Jaye's election 6 May 1528, Mun. 9501); cf. Mun. 32279.

Was alive at Abbot Colchester's anniversary Oct. 1534 (Mun. 5262 B).

Inter mortuos 1533-4 (Q. Alianore: Richard II); 1534-5 (Henry V); 1535-6 (Chamberlain).

Langham, John.

Prima Missa 1504-5 (Infirmarer; New Work; Almoner; Cellarer; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff).

Custos feretri 1528 (at Prior Jaye's election 6 May; Mun. 9501).

Alive 1534-5 (Henry V; and Colchester's anniversary Oct. 1534); but not entered in the Chamberlain's list 1535-6.

Overton, Ouerton, William.

Prima Missa 1504-5 (Infirmarer; New Work; Almoner; Cellarer; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff).

Ad skillam 1515-6 (New Work; Almoner; Cellarer; St Mary's Chapel; Monk-Bailiff; Warden of the Churches).

Coquinarius 1520-1 (Mun. 33329).

Subsacrista ? + 1523-31 ? +.

Refeclorarius 1525-30.

Elemosinarius 1531-2.

Camerarius ? + 1531-6.

Infirmarius 1533-4.

Not mentioned after 1536 when he was in the sick-room on meat diet for three days (Infirmarer 1536-7).

Fulwell, John.

Appears at the end of Q. Alianore, Richard II and Henry V (inter mortuos) in 1501-2 with a full share in each case. No other appearance. Rackham suggested that John Brice (1479-80) = John Fulwell; but Brice appears at end of Richard II, 1499-1500 (inter mortuos); Chamberlain, 1500-1. Another John Fulwell entered the Convent in 1503-4. It seems therefore that the above John Fulwell died within his first year, having entered the Convent as a fully ordained priest.

Bothe, Boothe, Bouth, William.

Studens Oxon. (Henry VII; £10), 1502-6?+.

Defunctus 1507-8 (Chamberlain; Q. Alianore, $\frac{1}{2}$ share; Richard II, $\frac{2}{3}$ share; so probably 1508).

1502-3

Cornysshe, John [William (New Work; Sacrist; 1504-5)].

Prima Missa 1504-5 (Infirmarer; New Work; Almoner; Cellarer; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff).

Ad skillam 1519-20 (Chamberlain; New Work; Cellarer; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff; Warden of the Churches).

Supervisor pauperum Henrici VII (Mun. 32249).

Last mentioned in Henry V, 1534-5, and in Mun. 5255* (Apr. ? 1535); alive at Abbot Colchester's anniversary Oct. 1534 (Mun. 5262 B).

Bedford, Bedforde, Beddeford, John.

Prima Missa 1506-7 (Chamberlain; Sacrist; Treasurer; Monk-Bailiff; St Mary's Chapel).

Granator 1512-4.

Celerarius 1513-5.

"Misericorderer and Southammer" (= Keeper of the Misericorde and Sub-almoner) 1514 (Mun. 33301 f. 4 b).

Custos maner^m Regine Alianore; Ricardi II et Anne; Henrici V; 1513-4 (perhaps he merely drew up the comptus vice T. Brown, deceased).

Supervisor pauperum regis Henrici VII (xl^s) 1518-9 (Mun. 24248).

Defunctus 1519-20 (Q. Alianore; Richard II); inter mortuos 1520-1 (Chamberlain).

Mun. 31839 is an undated account for camphor and other drugs supplied to him amounting to 4s.

Abyndon, Abyngton, Abyngdon, Abendon, George.

Defunctus 1521-2 (Q. Alianore; Richard II; Henry V).

1503-4

Campion, Campyon, John.

Prima Missa 1508-9 (New Work; Sacrist; St Mary's Chapel).

?Coquinarius 29 Sep. 1516-24 Jun. 1517 (Mun. 33327 is a Kitchener's ledger of 29 ff. which bears this date and his name, but does not call him Kitchener).

Defunctus 1515-6 (Q. Alianore; Henry V; full share); inter mortuos 1516-7 (Chamberlain).

Lindesey, Lyndesey, Lynsey, Lynzey, Nicholas.

Prima Missa 1508-9 (New Work; Sacrist; St Mary's Chapel).

Studens Oxon. (£6. 13s. 4d.) ?+1509-17 (Treasurer). Received £10 (Henry VII) on proceeding to the degree of Bachelor 1516-7; 5 Nov. 1516 (Foster, Al. Oxon.).

Defunctus 1523-4 (Infirmarer); inter mortuos 1522-3 (Q. Alianore; Richard II); 1523-4 (Henry V).

Ledgold, Lydegold, Lydgold, Thomas.

Prima Missa 1508-9 (New Work; Sacrist; St Mary's Chapel).

Ad skillam 1521-2 (New Work; Sacrist; St Mary's Chapel).

Alive at Abbot Colchester's anniversary Oct. 1534 (Mun. 5262 B).

Fulwell, John.

Prima Missa 1508-9 (New Work; Sacrist; St Mary's Chapel).

Granator 1514-25?+ (probably to 1528).

Subelemosinarius ?+ 14 Oct. 1520-29 Sep. 1521?+ (Mun. 33301 ff. 6-9).

Deputatus domini Abbatis in officio custodis capelle b. Marie 1514-25; custos 1525-8. Pro factura corone virginis beate Marie nuper furate ac pro deauracione eiusdem iiiii^l xvi^s...pro xii unc' argenti ad idem...xlvi^s, 1527-8 (St Mary's Chapel).

Thesaurarius et Ballivus 1528-35. (As such, he made payments for the decoration of the Jesus [= Islip] Chapel; cf. J. Armitage Robinson, Benedictine Abbey of Westminster, Ch. Quart. Rev. Ap. 1907, p. 75.)

As Treasurer he held Courts at the different manors and Mun. 9544 shows his itinerary for this purpose in 1531. Leaving Westminster after the feast of St Peter and St Paul, he sat at Aldenham, Herts., 30 Jun.; at Launton, Oxon., 3 Jul.; at Turweston, Bucks., 4th; at Knolle, Warwickshire, 6th; at Oakham, Rutland, 10th; at Offord Cluny, Hunts., 12th; at Ashwell, Herts., 14th; at Birdbrook, Essex, 17th; at Fering, 18th; at Kelvedon and at Moulsham, 19th; and at Benfleet, 21st; returning to Westminster, 22nd.

Custos ecclesiarum 1528-35.

Celerarius 1528-35.

Archidiaconus 18 Aug. 1528 (when he conducted an inquiry into the boundaries of the parish of St Botolph, Aldersgate; Mun. 13530).

Deputatus custos maner^m Henrici VII 1531-3 (Mun. 28043 A, B).

Coquinarius 1533 (Treasurer).

As Islip's chaplain he was much concerned with the furnishing of Henry VII's Chapel; e.g. Benedetto da Rovizzano, the sculptor, received through him a payment, "on account," of £11. 5s., being one third of the price of Our Lady's Altar, 22 Aug. 1526 (Mun. 30626).

Together with Thos. Jaye and D. Dalianns he was chosen to make to Henry VIII the official notification of Islip's death (Mun. 5458).

Defunctus 1535-6 (Chamberlain; he was alive 27 Aug. 1535, Mun. 8731).

In a letter from John Gostwyk to Cromwell, 26 Aug. 1535, it was stated that Richard Gresham [presumably the Lord Mayor and father of the founder of the Royal Exchange] desires Cromwell's favour for J. F., monk-bailly of Westminster, to be Prior of Worcester. Gresham will give £100 to Cromwell to buy a saddle and £20 to Gostwyk for his procurement in the matter (Lett. and Pap. Foreign and Domestic, ix, no. 184). Apparently F.'s death disposed of the project; but the priory of Worcester did not fall vacant till early in 1536 (Dugdale, Monast. i. 581).

Algood, Algode, Algude, Allgood, Allgoode, William.

Prima Missa 1510-11 (Chamberlain; New Work; Almoner; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff; St Mary's Chapel).

Ad skillam 1524-5 (New Work; Almoner; Cellarer; Sacrist; Treasurer, on behalf of the Monk-Bailiff and the Warden of the Churches; St Mary's Chapel).

Prima Missa 1510-11 (Chamberlain; New Work; Almoner; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff; St Mary's Chapel).

Last mention 1534-5 (Henry V, in his usual place in the list; alive Apr. ? 1535, Mun. 5255*).

Hendon, Nicholas.

Studens Oxon. (£6. 13s. 4d.) 1506—Apr. 1512 (Treasurer).

Prima Missa 1510-11 (Chamberlain; New Work; Almoner; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff; St Mary's Chapel).

No mention after 1511-12, when he was entered as usual by the Chamberlain, but at the end of Q. Alianore without payment; at end of Richard II, full payment, 1510-1. Perhaps he left the Convent.

1506-7

Winchester, Wynchester, Henry.

Prima Missa 1510-11 (Chamberlain; New Work; Almoner; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff; St Mary's Chapel).

Studens Oxon. (Henry VII; £10) ? + 1515-6. Received £10 (Henry VII) on proceeding to the degree of B.D., 1516-7; 2 Apr. 1517 (Foster, Al. Oxon.).

Custos feretri 1520-1 (Mun. 9485).

Defunctus 1520-1 (Q. Alianore; Richard II; Henry V); inter mortuos 1521-2 (Chamberlain).

Malvern, Malverne, John.

Prima Missa 1512-3 (Infirmarer; New Work; Sacrist; St Mary's Chapel). Granator 1528-34.

Signed the deed of Surrender 16 Jan. 1540.

Installed as tenth Prebendary of the Abbey 17 Dec. 1540; £28. 5s. yearly (Mun. 6478, f. 2).

Died 1541 (Hennessey, Repertorium, p. 446).

Holand, Holonde, Hollond, William.

Defunctus 1509-10 (Q. Alianore; Richard II; he was alive at Henry V's anniversary 31 Aug. 1510; Mun. 33297 f. 6); inter mortuos 1510-11 (Chamberlain).

Godehappes, Godeapes, Godeapis, Godhappes, Goodhappes, Goodhappez, Goodehappys, Goodhappys, Goodhoppys, Gudhappys, Christopher.

Prima Missa 1510-1 (Chamberlain; Almoner; Sacrist; Monk-Bailiff; St Mary's Chapel).

Ad skillam 1527-8 (Infirmarer; Chamberlain; New Work; Almoner; Cellarer; Sacrist; Treasurer, for the Monk-Bailiff and the Warden of the Churches; St Mary's Chapel).

The Custos feretri of 1520 had charge of "a relyke of Saint Christopher syluer and parcell gylte like the son [sun] of Dan C. G. gyfte" (Mun. 9485).

Signed the deed of Surrender 16 Jan. 1540.

1509-10

Vertue, Vertu, William.

Studens Oxon. (£6. 13s. 4d.) 1512—Apr. 1515 (Treasurer).

Prima Missa 1514-5 (Chamberlain; New Work; Cellarer; Almoner; Warden of the Churches; probably Monk-Bailiff).

Ad skillam 1531-2 (Infirmarer; New Work; Sacrist; Cellarer; Almoner).

Granator 1534-5.

Custos capelle b. Marie 1534-6.

Refeclorarius, deputatus Abbatis, 1535-6.

Master of the Novices 1535 (Mun. 32042 B).

For his expenses on clothing and boots for the novices see Mun. 32275-9.

Mun. 22904 is a paper account from his shoe-maker for goods supplied to "Mr Vertue," "Mr Veryte," "Mr Patyens" and "Mr Cryshostome." His own part of the account is as follows:—

Item a payre shoys solyng for your selfe

Item a payre of buskyns makyng for your selfe

Item a payre of shous for your larderere sū—xviii^d.

He was entered as usual in the last Chamberlain's list 1535-6 and was alive Apr. ? 1535 (Mun. 5255*).

Stanley (Memorials, p. 342) says that George Vertue, the sculptor, being related to him, was buried near him in the West Cloister.

Thornton, Thorneton, George.

Prima Missa 1514-5 (Chamberlain; New Work; Almoner; Cellarer; Sacrist; Warden of the Churches; ? Monk-Bailiff).

Last appearance in the manor lists, 1522-3; received an outfit, except panni nigri, from Chamberlain 1524-5; no further mention.

Not mentioned in Richard II or Henry V rolls. The mention in Q. Alianore 1531-2 implies that he was already a priest.

Defunctus 1533 (Infirmerer).

1532-3

Boston, William.

= Benson, William.

[Perhaps because Boston was his birth-place and Benson was his family name, which he used as Dean.]

Was not a monk of this house and so was the first man to be made Abbot from outside since William Humez was appointed in 1214. Generally supposed, on the "finding" of Widmore (p. 126), to have been Abbot of Burton-on-Trent, "and therefore is called John erroneously, in the catalogue of the Abbots of that place" (ibid.). But Boston's account book (Mun. 33313) is concerned with properties belonging to the great monastery at Peterborough, which must thus be substituted for Burton as the place from which he was translated (cf. J. Armitage Robinson, The Benedictine Abbey of Westminster, Ch. Quart. Rev. Apr. 1907, p. 78).

Mun. 33313, f. 7, 8 contains a statement of his expenses "for my comensmentt of the Doctorshipp" at Cambridge 20 Henry VIII, 1528-9 (Grace Bk B. II, 149). The fees, &c. (£14. 0s. 7½*d.*) included:

Item ye same daye to y^e vicechancellere for hys dwtye as that daye and y^e Presento^{ur} and to the Bedells xiiii^s

Item to y^e Proctors for theire Bonetts vi^s viii^d

Item to the uniuersytie huttches [?= chest] vi^h xiii^s iii^d

Item paid on the daye in the tyme of disputacion to xviii doctors every doctor iii^d vi^s

Date of appointment as Abbot uncertain; took the oath to perform the duties of Henry VII's foundation in the Court of Chancery 12 May 1533 between 9 and 10 a.m. super sacrosancta Dei Evangelia (Rymer, Foed. xiv, 459). Mun. 30635, f. 2 implies that he was in authority before Easter 1533. The fact that he rendered the accounts of the New Work as from Michaelmas 1532 is inconclusive.

Custos Novi Operis 1532-4.

Celerarius 1535-6.

Custos capelle b. Marie 1535-6.

Thesaurarius intrinsecus ? + 1536-7.

Agreed to two quite disadvantageous exchanges of land with Henry VIII, by which the Convent received Hurley Priory and certain lands in Berkshire, and parted with the London manors of Hyde, Neyte, &c. and other land at Covent Garden 3 Jul. 1536 (Mun. 2226).

Mun. 12787 is a confirmation by the King, dated 30 Jul. 1536, of orders already issued to Abbot Boston by Thomas Cromwell as vicar-general. These are concerned with the granting by the Abbot of permission to the Brethren to be absent from the monastery ad honestam animi et corporis sui recreationem. Noble and honourable women with their attendants de quibus nulla viget sinistra fama vel suspitio may be welcomed from time to time at the Abbot's table, but the privilege must not descend into a daily habit, lest the weaker brethren should be caused to stumble. The Abbot and Convent were not bound to attend or to read a Divinity lecture on the great festivals or on the days of the royal anniversaries.

Arranged with John Whyt and John Saunders of Reading "for the new castyng of ii bells of the Rynge of the said monastery," the 3rd and the 5th, at a cost of £9. 10s., 3 Nov. 1539 (Mun. 25103).

Signed the deed of Surrender 16 Jan. 1540.

Installed as Dean 17 Dec. 1540. Mun. 6478, f. 2, enters "The Deane there Wyllyam Boston late Abbot there to have [yearly] ccxxxiiⁱ x^s."

Died Sep. 1549.

1533-4

Barnards, Barnard, Barnarde, Bernard, Robert.

His and the six following names appear in the 1533-4 roll of Richard II's manors at the foot of the list after the entry of R. Callow deceased, in a different script. Each received iii^s iiiii^d as against xx^s to each of the rest; whereas the duplicate of the same roll duly inserts the names in the usual place and is in the same hand throughout.

Prima Missa 1536-7 (Infirmerer).

Signed the deed of Surrender 16 Jan. 1540.

"The Kinges newe College at Westm." maintained twenty students, of whom four had been monks there. R. B. was the first of these. The yearly allowance was increased from £6. 13s. 4d. to £8. 6s. 8d. (Mun. 6478, f. 3).

Sole mention in Infirmarer 1536-7.

Mekenes, Thomas.

Sole mention in Infirmarer 1536-7.

1538-9

Gortton, Richard.

Elemosinarius 1538-9.

For Latimer's recommendation of him to Cromwell see Clerke, John, 1536-7.

B.A. 1518; B.D. 27 Feb. 1528; D.D. 29 Jul. 1538 (Foster, Al. Oxon.).

Vicar of Staines on the nomination of Dean Benson 23 Mar. 1540.

Died the same year (Hennessey, Repertorium, p. 403) and was succeeded by Humphrey Charite or Perkins [q.v.].

1540

Morton, Richard,

Signed the deed of Surrender 16 Jan. 1540 (fourth, after Humphrey Charite).

Byrd, William.

Latham, William.

Huse, William.

Vernon, John.

} Sole mention at the end of the signatures to the deed of Surrender 16 Jan. 1540.

Thacksted, Henry.

Mentioned in Mun. 6478, f. 3, as "one of the monkes there" who became students under the new foundation; £8. 6s. 8d.

Style, Henry.

Mun. 38945 is an acquittance to George Burden, Receiver, for £6. 13s. 4d., "the fyrst payment dewe by obligacion" to H. S. late monk of Westm. 1 Nov. 1570.

[The monks in this list up to and including Simon de Bircheston are named Wardens, and in 1334-42 there are two additional officers called Treasurers. From 1357 to 1443 both are called Treasurers, the first being mainly responsible and sometimes called Wardens. From 1443 onwards both are frequently called Wardens. The titles, in fact, are interchangeable. It may be assumed that the same officers acted as Wardens and Treasurers of the other royal foundations of Richard II and Queen Anne, and of Henry V.]

APPENDIX.

THE BENEDICTINES UNDER QUEEN MARY.

The restoration by Mary Tudor of a Benedictine establishment to Westminster Abbey¹ lies outside the limits of our present investigation. Nor, by comparison with the period before the Dissolution, have we any appreciable wealth of material for reconstructing the daily life of the place during this brief revival. There are grants of leases by John Feckenham, the Abbot, and Este, the Prior, in fair numbers. There is also a cancelled bond², "datum in capitulari nostra domo," 20 Mar. 1557, whereby the Abbot acknowledged that the Convent was indebted to Alphonsus de Salinas in the sum of £300. This divine, who had been appointed to the seventh Prebend of the new foundation 12 May 1554³, and who is called in the document Alonso de Salines, was to receive "thirtie poundes yerelie at four termes in the yere" during his "naturall lyfe"; in other words, he purchased from the Abbey an annuity of £30. Or again there are directions about the management of rural property, such as those contained in a letter⁴, signed by the Abbot, "to o^r trustie and welbeloued ffarmer Thomas Pollye o^r farmer of o^r parsonage of Shoram," giving his lordship's "will and charge" as to the disposal of the "profettes."

But there is no series of obedientiary rolls to claim succession to the annual stock-takings of the former time. Feckenham's public record can be sought elsewhere, and when it leaps to light, he is in no way shamed. But as to his colleagues there has been little but rumour. Widmore⁵ himself can do no more than assert, without references, that the new Abbot brought with him "fourteen monks, four of which (sic) formerly belonged to Glastenbury," and he disposes of the revival in a couple of pages, largely occupied with Feckenham's career.

Widmore's statement about the "fourteen monks" may arise from the record of Machyn⁶, that on St Clement's Eve "the Lord Abbot with the Convent, thirteen monks shorn in, went in procession after the old fashion." I can find no document of ours to confirm it. But we possess a paper⁷ which purports to give a list of the Convent and its servants and which, though it does not mention Feckenham by name, unquestionably belongs to his period. So it may be well to print it in full:—

There is no date to this document, and so it is possible that the list of the actual Brethren represents the Convent in the greater completeness to which Feckenham brought it after a while. But it will be noticed that there are twenty monks besides the Abbot and the Prior; and that there is a second class, preparing to enter religion, fourteen in number, of whom four are perhaps more advanced in their preparation than the rest, for they are described as "M^r." Besides these there is the Abbot's retinue, consisting of fifteen persons, and the staff of the Convent, numbering nineteen. Lastly, the gentlemen of the choir and the singing children are in a group of sixteen along with gardeners and "brotherers." Thus we have a Convent of 36 monks and postulants for admission, and a staff of 50 retainers of various kinds.

Confining ourselves to the monks, we notice Widmore's statement that four of the alleged fourteen "had formerly belonged to Glastonbury." He is no doubt thinking of the letter, printed by Dugdale¹, which was addressed by four of Feckenham's monks to Queen Mary's Lord Chamberlain, praying for the restoration of Glastonbury and referring to the efforts already made by the Abbot to that end. The letter is signed

John Phagan
John Neott
Will^m Adelwold
Will^m Kentwyne.

We may identify three of these with men on our list,—John Neott with "Mr Newte" and Will^m Adelwold with "Mr Adthelwolde," while John Phagan who signs above them is represented by "Mr Phagane," who stands eleventh among the fourteen "that shalbe religius" but are not yet in full membership. Of Will^m Kentwyne we have no record, unless he stands for "Kyngewoode."

The letter of the four monks bears no date, except in so far as it refers to Philip and Mary, but the fact that Phagane heads the signatures, as if he were as much a monk of Westminster as the other three, may be taken for what it is worth as an implication that the Feckenham list belongs to an early date in the history of the revival, and so is perhaps what it looks like, a list of those whom the new Abbot proposed as his first set of colleagues.

We have seen reason² to suppose that "Mr Foster" and "Mr Goodlook," whose names occur together, were formerly Brethren of the Abbey of Westminster. The publication here of all the names may lead to the identification of some of the rest. What we miss is the ancient distribution of the offices. There is still a Cellarer, and there is still an Archdeacon; for a servant is attached to each; but the Archdeacon cannot be identified by name. "Mr Edon" is referred to in twelve documents³ as Cellarer; in one he witnesses a bond for £200 given by the Abbot and Convent to a citizen of London 17 April 1557 "in presentia magistri Ricardi Edom Cellararii monasterii predicti"; in another he signs an acquittance to John Moulton, the Receiver General of the Abbey, for the arrears of his account 16 Feb. 1557. We have also a reference to George Marshall or Marchal (who stands last but two among the postulants) as the Treasurer of the Convent. He similarly gives an acquittance⁴ to the same Receiver. The two receipts taken together are an indication that the old system of monk obedientiaries has been replaced by a secular administration. The Abbot now trusts affairs not to his Brethren but to laymen. The Receiver and the Auditor are the important factors in the management of the House. So we may end our brief note on the revival with a letter⁵ which clearly belongs to its closing days, and which the anxious Receiver, unwillingly pent up in Westminster, wrote to the apparently less anxious Auditor, who was at his country house with his family and, what was of more consequence at the moment, with some of the Abbey books:—

Mr Audytor I commende me vnto yo^r and my lorde Abbot wellyd me to wryte to yo^r to be here at Westm^r with alle spede for he lokyth euery daye ffor the
