As a token of profound esteem
and in recognition of his untiring devotion to his Alma Mater and loyal services to his State this the twelfth volume of the Yackety Yack is respectfully dedicated to
General Julian Shakespeare Carr

Julian S. Carr

Julian Shakespeare Carr

IN the address of presentation of the "Carr Building" to the trustees of the State University on Commencement Day, 1900, the speaker thus refers to its donor:

"Foremost among those who have learned a North Carolinian's duty to North Carolina and taught it to the State is the donor of this beautiful building. A native of this quiet village, a North Carolinian of the purest strain, a Tar Heel boy, a Chapel Hill boy, a University boy; who, when battles were to be fought, and marches made, and hunger borne, and privations endured, was a private in the ranks with ragged sleeves, fighting in defence of his country. He has helped to build up this new North Carolina, putting his own shoulders to every forward movement that has taken place in his State in the past quarter of a century."

At the reunion held at the Commencement of 1911, of the Class of 1868—the last class that was graduated under the presidency of Governor Swain—there occurs this reference in the address on that occasion:

"There is another who, though not registered as a member, yet recited with us on certain studies, and we claim him as a classmate."

In view of his well-known public spirit, his liberality, his love for his Alma Mater and for the well-being of the inhabitants of Chapel Hill, where he was born and his youth was spent and where his parents lived and died, I would paraphrase the words of Vergil in describing his hero, when shipwrecked on the unknown shore, he is carried by his goddess-mother to the palace of Queen Dido, and sees on the walls of the beautiful temple pictures illustrative of the siege of Troy, and recognizing himself as a conspicuous figure in the group of distinguished actors in that great war, Æneas breaks forth in uncontrolled amazement and exultation:

*"Quis iam locus,
Achate
Quae regio in terris vestris
Non plena donoris
Iam fama totum vulgata per urbem."*

These words I would apply to Julian Shakespeare Carr.

Mr. Carr was born October 12th, 1845, and in 1862 we find him a student in the State University. But he could not rest content away from the battlefields of his country, and though too young for enlistment, he joined Company "K," 41st North Carolina Regiment, known as the 3d North Carolina Cavalry, as a volunteer, and served in that famous command, with gallantry and fidelity, until the end. Returning home direct from Appomattox, he resumed his studies at the State University, but before his graduation he left to go into business at Little Rock, Arkansas. Not content to make his permanent home elsewhere than in his native State, he returned to North Carolina in 1870, and locating in Durham, he purchased a one-third interest in what afterwards became, under his efficient management, the world-famous Durham Smoking Tobacco Company. After years of successful operation, when the business had assumed mammoth proportions, Mr. Carr sold out his interest at approximately a million dollars, and has since devoted his time and talents to his large banking and other financial interests, chiefly cotton manufacturing, being the head of the largest manufactory of hosiery and yarns in the South. Ardent and loyal to the cause of the Southern Confederacy, to which he gave his early youth, for many years he has been General of the North Carolina Division of the United Confederate Veterans' Association, to which position he has been annually elected without opposition. No needy Confederate soldier appeals to him in vain, and his speech in the Senate at the session of the General Assembly of 1910, of which he was a member, in advocacy of a monument to the women of the South, was surprisingly eloquent and appealing.

Always a Democrat, he has been a delegate-at-large to many national conventions of his party, and in 1900 received the complimentary vote of two states for the office of Vice President, on the Democratic national ticket for that year.

He was strongly endorsed for the office of Postmaster General in President Cleveland's second administration. He has been a candidate before the people for the office of Governor and United States Senator, and in each case received a most flattering vote.

General Carr's liberality to the benevolent and educational institutions of the State will ever be memorable. His gifts of ten and twenty thousand dollars to Trinity College; his successful efforts to save the Greensboro Female College; his gifts at different times to Wake Forest College, Davidson College, Elon College, St. Mary's School, and the Baptist University for Women, will not be forgotten; and his Alma Mater, the State University, "points with pride to one of the stately buildings on its beautiful campus and has christened it "The Carr Building" in honor of its donor."

To General Julian S. Carr, in acknowledgment of his deep interest in the welfare of the youth of the land and as one of our most generous and distinguished alumni, this Annual of the University of North Carolina for the year 1912 is respectfully and lovingly dedicated.

W. H. S. BURGWIN.

A. M. Atkinson

ALEXANDER MORSE ATKINSONEnfield

"Silence is the sanctuary of providence."

Age 23; height 6 feet 2 inches; weight 180 pounds. Athletic Association; Halifax County Club; Class Football (3, 4); Varsity Track Team (1, 2, 3, 4); All-Class Football (3); Member, Electrical Engineering Society; Wearer of the N. C.; Captain, Track Team (4); L. W. Electrical Engineering.

"Big Boy" is the tallest man in the class. Threw the hammer clear away in the V. P. I. track meet and on account of his enviable record was made captain of the team. He is a hard worker but doesn't make much fuss about it.

WALTER DORSEY BARBEEMorrisville

"Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto—"

Age 22; height 6 feet; weight 154 pounds. Phi. Society; Athletic Association; Glee Club (3, 4); Y. M. C. A. Treasurer; Class Football and Baseball (3, 4); Captain, Class Baseball (3); Secretary-Treasurer Class (4); Business Manager, YACKETY YACK (4); B. C. A. Club; Wake County Club; Press Association; L. W. Teacher; Business.

"BARBEE" has a sweet tenor voice and fickle heart. He has made every musical organization from the Chapel Choir up; and has averaged changing girls once a month—this, however, may be charged directly to his song-mood and good fellowship. He signs the checks for half the organizations in college, makes his class teams, and studies in the interim.

W. D. Barbree

Frank P. Barker

FRANK PENDLETON BARKER. . . . Pembroke, Ky.

"Love is the only flower that can combat ambition."

Age 22; height 5 feet 11½ inches; weight 165 pounds. Di. Society; Y. M. C. A.; Webb School Club; German Club; Coop; Athletic Association; Class Historian (1); Class Football (1); Class Tennis Team (1); President Class (2); Scrub Varsity Football Team; Assistant Editor, Tar Heel, (3); Assistant Manager Baseball (3); Captain of Championship Class Football (3, 4); Varsity Track (2, 3, 4); Secretary, N. C. Club (4); Pennsylvania Debater (4); T K A.; Phi Beta Kappa; Δ K E.; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet; Political Club; Commencement Ball Manager; Amphoteroben; Gimghoul; L. W. Law.

"FRANK," "BARKIS," "SPOUJAX"—His classmates voted him the best all-round man in his class. He is a Pennsylvania debater, Phi Beta Kappa man, State champion in low hurdles, a favorite in the Di. Society and among the ladies, and with all a jolly good fellow. He can make a speech in Chapel and a spiel in Arboretum, too, we've heard. Energetic, broad-minded and of high ideals he has ever stood for the best in college life. His policy of "Give me a little devil, but not a do-nothing" may some day make him a Kentucky colonel among Night Riders.

EMMETT HARGROVE BELLAMY. . . . Wilmington

"He hath no leisure who useth it not."

Age 20; height 5 feet 8½ inches; weight 155 pounds. German Club; Hörner School Club; Phi. Society; Y. M. C. A.; Athletic Association; New Hanover County Club; Class Football (2, 3, 4); All-Class Football (3); Historical Society; Δ A E.; L. W. Law.

"EMMETT" came to us from Davidson in our Sophomore year. We have thought a lot of him ever since he showed such good judgment. Made quite a reputation as an orator at one of our class banquets. Would be a good athlete, but he is too—well, if he wasn't such a good fellow, we would say lazy.

E. H. Bellamy

R. W. Bobbitt

ROBERT WILLIS BOBBITT.....Henderson

"Most blameless is he; content in the sphere of common duties."

Age 24; height 5 feet 11 1/2 inches; weight 155 pounds. Phi. Society; Y. M. C. A.; B. C. A. Club; Assistant in the Library (3, 4); Athletic Association; Class Tennis (4).

A "good egg," a hard worker, and as independent as he pleases; that's Bobbitt. He thinks that he always has more to do than he really has, consequently he is continually in a sort of jerky hurry. Fact is, he hasn't given us time to understand him. He gives the library the benefit of his services, and has ambitions to be known as a "Latin Bull." He was for three years a strong Baptist of the anti-dancing type, but finally succumbed to the temptations of social life and took dancing lessons in his Senior year. He imagines he has been in love, but it's all an illusion.

JOSEPH DOZIER BOUSHALL, JR.....Raleigh

*"CAN'T SMOKE IT →
"Sincerity is the most commendable wisdom."*

Age 19; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 140 pounds. Athletic Association; Y. M. C. A.; Chemical Journal Club; Assistant Manager, Football Team (3); Commencement Ball-Manager (3); Editor YACKETY YACK (4); Phi. Society; German Club; H. K. A.; Assistant Leader, German Club Dance (4); L. W. Medicine.

"JOE" has been trying to shake off his Nemesis ever since his Sophomore year. But German is a hard thing to shake off. Joe is quiet and unobtrusive, but a sincere and loyal friend. He can work hard when he wants to, and is sincere in all that he does.

Joe D. Boushall Jr.

CALEB KNIGHT BURGESS.....Old Trap

*"With them the seed of wisdom did I sow,
And with my own hand brought to make it grow."*

Age 20; height 5 feet 8 inches; weight 138 pounds. Phi Beta Kappa; Phi Society; Commencement Debater; Tulane Debate (4); T-K A.; L. W. Law.

"DOCTOR BURGESS" of the Physics Department has taken the intellectual here seriously and has proved himself a good student. During his first years with us he contracted the habit of making "1s" and "2s", a habit which he struggled mightily, but in vain, to throw off in his Senior year. He dulls not his palm with the entertainment of each new-hatched, unpledged comrade, yet there are a favored few who know him to be a good fellow. He is a good debater and a conscientious worker. The class expects much of him.

C. K. Burgess

WALTER CARTERSalisbury

"The force of his own merit makes his way."

Age 22; height 5 feet 10 inches; weight 150 pounds. Athletic Association; Track Squad (2); Gym Team; N. C. in Gym; Member of Wearers of N. C. Club; Class Baseball (3); Commencement Marshal; Class Football (4); Electrical Engineering Society; L. W. Electrical Engineering.

"WALT" is one of the boys and a jolly, good fellow. He is the nerviest man in the class. When he was a Sophomore not even a pistol in the hands of an excited Freshman could stop him. He is an athlete, too. He can do the stunts in the Gym; is a good track man; played on his class teams and was always there with the goods. Walt rooms with Jim Craver, but plays with live wires and with Daggett in an electrical engineering course.

Walter Carter

C. L. Cates

CLYDE LUCIUS CATES..... Chapel Hill

"Obscured life sets down a type of bliss."

Age 21; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 148 pounds.
Di. Society; Y. M. C. A.; Ministerial Club; Dramatic Club; L. W. Teachers.

"CATES" is a charter member of the "Ring Buster League." He is also a mighty logician. Got a diploma in Public Speaking and then strove mightily for one in Philosophy II.

WILLIAM PRESTON CLINE..... White Rock, S. C.

My lungs began to crow like chanticleer.
Age 21; height 5 feet 6 inches; weight 120 pounds.
Athletic Association; Y. M. C. A.; L. W. Law.

"CLINE" graduated from Lenoir College in 1906, and was successful in business for five years. Then he joined us in our Senior year to get a diploma from U. N. C. Dr. Mims says he has a "good eye" for poetry. His voice is clear and cheerful. But no less so than his "chirping," is his thinking, which always rings with crystalline optimism. Yet, in a businesslike way, he makes you feel that life is real and earnest. He will always fight a good fight, and then be ready for any fate.

W. Preston Cline

JOHN BURTON CLINGMAN.....Winston-Salem

"Room! Make way!
Hunger comonds; my valor^{SURE} must obey!"

Age 23; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 165 pounds.
Di. Society; Y. M. C. A.; Winston-Salem Club; Assistant in Mathematics (4); L. W. Civil Engineering.

"J. B." is one of the big men of the class, and without a doubt the biggest eater. He gets more than his money's worth at Commons Hall every day, and put the management in a hole the first month he boarded there. And had he been entered in the race he would have run Higgins a close second for the official tight wad of the class. With his other big qualities he is also a big "Math. Bull."

J. B. Clingman.

WILLIAM BATTLE COBB.....Chapel Hill

"I profess not talking; only this—
Let each man do his best."

Age 20; height 5 feet 6½ inches; weight 106 pounds.
Phi. Society; Athletic Association; Warrenton High School
Club; Member, Wearers of the N. C. Club; Track Team
(2, 3); L. W. Botany.

"BATTLE" is one of the swiftest that we have, and has turned this quality to good advantage in bringing home the honors from the track meets. Track work, Botany, and Zoology, are his serious employments, while set-back and the ladies claim his lighter moments. He is also passionately fond of raising chickens.

Wm. Battle Cobb.

C. S. Cooke

CHARLES SPURGEON COOKE.....Charlotte

"Love is better than fame." ^{H. MA.}
_(P. EVANG. - RM)

Age 20; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 140 pounds. Di. Society; Mecklenburg County Club; Y. M. C. A.; Athletic Association; Historical Society; French Dramatic Club; Tennis Association; Scrub Basket-ball Team (3); Press Association; Official Scorer, Basket-ball Association; Commencement Marshal; Class Tennis Team (3, 4); Dramatic Club; Manager, Senior Tennis Team; L. W. Cotton Milling.

"SPUG" is very careful about his dress and they say he aspires to be a heart smasher. He was manager of our first and best basket-ball team. He won distinction for his class by his excellent tennis playing. "Spug" is a good student and his specialty is History.

CHARLES FOWLER COWELL.....Washington

"The fruit derived from labor is the sweetest of pleasures."

Age 21; height 5 feet 8 inches; weight 183 pounds. Chemical Journal Club; Phi. Society; Y. M. C. A.; Class Football Team (2, 3, 4); Scrub Football Team (1); Athletic Association; L. W. Chemistry.

"BIG CHOLLIE" comes to us from the Tar River metropolis. That he is a consistent worker is evinced by his nocturnal "boning"—for the Pickwick. "Big Chollie" thinks that he is some "Chemistry Bull," but hasn't yet succeeded in analyzing his capacity; to find out why he is so diminutive. He is very fond of football, dancing, and snipe hunting.

Chas. F. Cowell

JAMES ROWLAND CRAVER.....Charlotte

"Right noble is thy merit."

Age 22; height 6 feet; weight 165 pounds. Athletic Association; Mecklenburg County Club; Oak Ridge Club; Scrub Football Team (1, 2, 3, 4); Class Baseball (1, 2, 3); L. W. Medicine.

"Jim" is easy going, never goes ahead at full steam except on French II. He must have that to graduate. Jim has played baseball and football for four years, with typical college spirit.

J. R. Craven

HENRY CLEVELAND CRAVER.....Lexington

*"The greatest truths are simplest;
And so are the greatest men."*

Age 26; height 5 feet 8 inches; weight 150 pounds. Di. Society; Athletic Association; Tennis Association; Y. M. C. A.; Davidson County Club.

He is a hard worker and takes life seriously. He is one fellow who attends to his own business and does it better than anybody can do it for him.

H. Cleveland Craver

W. J. Crutchfield

WILLIAM JESSE CRUTCHFIELD.....Greensboro

"He has no leisure who useth it not."

Age 22; height 6 feet; weight 175 pounds. Di. Society; Athletic Association; Class Football (1); Scrub Football (2); Scrub Varsity (3); Varsity Football (4); Guilford County Club; Royal Order of Gobblers; L. W. Retired Financier.

"JESSE" is another one of our football stars. He worked consistently and finally made the Varsity in his Senior year. He embodies that rare combination of "good eggness" and good student. His ambition is to become a retired financier, but to accomplish this he will have to sever his membership with the sons of rest.

BEECHER TATE DENTON.....^{SAY,} A Charlotte

"The hours of friendship are great, austere, and eternal." ^{A STUD.}

Age 19; height 5 feet 8 inches; weight 135 pounds. Di. Society; Athletic Association; Tennis Association; Mecklenburg County Club; Y. M. C. A.; Historical Society; French Dramatic Club (1); L. W. Undecided.

"SI" - A farmer transplanted to college. Has taken a lot of economics and knows how to apply it, especially in household economy. Never says anything, but just grins. Damon of the Damon and Pythias twins who room together, walk, talk, and hoot together. A good egg and an excellent student inclined toward the bookworm type.

B. T. Denton

Henry Ward Daub

DIGGING FOR THE WISDOM OF TRUTH
HENRY WARD DAUB...Tobaccoville

"That stone philosophers in vain so long have sought."

Age 26; height 5 feet 10 inches; weight 160 pounds. Di. Society; Y. M. C. A.; Forsythe County Club; Political Club; L. W. Business.

"DAUB" is a great disciple of Horace. He has experienced the organic sensations, seen the precepts, and is now about to discover a fourth reality. He is president of the Republican forces in the University and a worthy successor to Nugent Cox. Bids fair to go to the legislature within ten years after graduation.

FREDERICK BLOUNT DRANE.....Edenton

"A man in whom there is no guile."

Phi. Society; Δ K. E.; Y. M. C. A.; Athletic Association; Track Team (1); Ministerial Club; Class Secretary and Treasurer (3); Class Finance Committee (1, 2, 3); Senior Football Team; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet; Gym Team (4); Class Representative (4); L. W. Ministry.

"FRED," "PARSON" is a parson-to-be, but he is an all-round good fellow, nevertheless. The class football field and the track are his playground, and he has done good work on both. When the Phi. Society, the Y. M. C. A., or the Class Finance Committee want any help, they usually call on Fred. And he is strong with the fair sex, too.

Fred B. Drane

William W. Falkner

WILLIAM WHITE FALKNER.....Warrenton

"Life and health, which are both inestimable, we have of course secured under the physician."

Age 19^{1/2}; height 5 feet 8 inches; weight 127 pounds. Athletic Association; Tennis Association; Y. M. C. A.; Vice President, Warrenton High School Club (2); Chemical Journal Club; Historian, First Year Medical Class; German Club; II K. A.; L. W. Medicine.

"BILL" is another Warrenton man who has made good grades through his entire college course. He is queer but nevertheless a good fellow. Took up medicine at the beginning of his Senior year and now he swears by "Dr. Charlie." We predict for "Bill" a great success as a physician.

JAMES SMITH PAUL FENNER.....Raleigh

"They always talk who never think."

Age 22; height 5 feet 9 inches; weight 140 pounds. Athletic Association; Phi. Society; Halifax County Club; Press Association; German Club; Carolina Cottillion Club; Greater University Club (2); Y. M. C. A. (2); T. M.; Horner School Club; Σ X; L. W. Undecided.

"PECK," "J. PAUL" talked about "Cousin Billy Bond" for two years, but we finally broke him from that. "Peck" has almost mastered the art of blowing a harmonica, much to the delight (?) of everyone in the South Building. "J. Paul" is a good fellow, besides being blessed with a keen sense of humor. Loves to talk—Oh! You can look out for "Peck."

ALONZO DILLIARD FOLGER..... Dobson

"Eat, drink, and be merry, for to-morrow you may die."

Age 23; height 6 feet; weight 160 pounds. Athletic Association; Y. M. C. A.; Class Baseball (2, 3); D. Society; Class President (3); Manager, Varsity Baseball Team; Golden Fleece; L. W. Law

"LONNIE" is the widest-known, best-liked, and most found-fault-with man in the class. Widest known because of his ready wit and strategy, most liked for his "good eggness," and found fault with because of his Rip Van Winkle propensities. Boasting athletics is his serious work, college politics his hobby, and books an occasional necessity. We predict great success for this member of the class.

ROBERT ALEXANDER FREEMAN..... Dobson

"Like a strong man he runneth a good race."

Age 28; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 148 pounds. D. Society; Golden Fleece; Phi Beta Kappa; President, Student Council; Surry County Club; Athletic Association; Historical Society; President, Senior Class; Sophomore-Junior Debater (2); Y. M. C. A.; Sophomore-Junior Debater (3); Commencement Debater; Amphoterthen; L. W. Law.

"BOB" is dignified, stubborn, brilliant, industrious, etc. As president of the Senior Class, the campus depends on him—and he is very dependable. As a debater, we are proud of him. The worst thing we have against "Bob" is that he is a member of that "Freak Society," known as the Phi Beta Kappa. However, he is the least freakish of that freakish bunch.

R. A. Freeman

S. M. Gattis, Jr.

SAMUEL MALLETTE GATTIS, JR. . . . Hillsboro

"Life is rendered most agreeable by alternate occupation and leisure."

Age 20; height 5 feet 9 inches; weight 140 pounds.
L. W. "2"

"GAT" - You have to know him to like him. He knows how to think, and he makes the most of that knowledge. Doesn't hurt himself studying, but he makes more "Is" than "5s." Another "Lain Bull" from Warrenton High School. He expects to be a civil engineer or a lawyer. In either field we predict that "Cat" will make good.

ALEXANDER HAWKINS GRAHAM . . . Hillsboro

"Young politicians have evermore a taint of vanity."

Age 21; height 6 feet; weight 145 pounds. D. Society; Athletic Association; German Club; Secretary-Treasurer, German Club (4); Leader of German Club Dance (3); Commencement Marshal; YACKETY YACK Editor (3); Class Historian (4); Corp.; Gorgon's Head; Z. V.; L. W. Law.

"SANDY" knows all that is going on in the way of college politics, and in addition to that has proven himself an orator of no mean ability. Nothing less than the Senate for "Sandy." He took a shine at Botany, but hasn't shown signs of being soured on the world as yet. One of the strongest men in the class.

A. H. Graham

A. W. Graham, Jr.

AUGUSTUS WASHINGTON GRAHAM, JR.

Oxford

"Yon Graham hath a lean and hungry look. He thinks too much;

Such men are dangerous."

Age 20; height 6 feet; weight 136 pounds. Di. Society; Athletic Association; Associate Editor of Tar Heel (3); Editor of YACKETY YACK (3); Debating Union (3); Class Football (3, 4); Track Team (3); Vice President Class (4); Granville County Club; Horner School Club; Phi Beta Kappa; Δ K Ε; L. W. Law.

"GUS," "CAESAR"—He is just a student, Phi Beta Kappa in a walk, a star in the Di. Society, and on the sly a ladies' man. A moralist in principle, Stoic in philosophy, and a "Slim Jim" in appearance. He can clear the bar in the high jump, but he revels in argument and a laugh. The logic of his reasoning clothed as it is in natural oratory will some day analyze the foundations of democracy and place him with the rest of his class high in the estimation of his commonwealth.

WILLIAM GRAVES.....Mount Airy

*"Sigh no more, ladies, sigh no more;
Men were deceivers ever."*

Guilford College, 1907-08, 1908-09, 1909-10; Di. Society; Athletic Association; President, Surry County Club; Manager, Glee Club; German Club; B. O. U.

"BILL," the best-dressed man in our class. He is good looking, lazy, mysterious, and indifferent. Gets up in the morning only when he feels so inclined. The only recognized "lady killer" in the class. Has a girl in every port and swears it's the best plan.

W. Graves

PRICE HENDERSON GWYNN, JR. Leaksville

"Resolve to ruin or rule the state."

Age 19; height 5 feet 10 inches; weight 150 pounds. Di. Society; Athletic Association; Y. M. C. A.; Class Prophet; Manager, Class Baseball Team (3); Exchange Editor, Magazine (3); Associate Editor-in-Chief, Magazine (4); President, Rockingham County Club; Phi Beta Kappa; L. W. Law.

"P" is a pleasant, congenial fellow when he is not on a grouch. But sometimes, for reasons he knows not why, the world to him is all wrong. "P" is vice president of the Republican Club, a co-worker with "Daub," and a strong supporter of the "Ring Busters." He is a bright fellow and will make his mark in the world.

ROBERT MARCH HANES Winston-Salem

"Eternal sunshine settles on his head."

Age 21; height 5 feet 10 1/2 inches; weight 164 pounds. Athletic Association; Coop; Secretary-Treasurer, German Club (3); President, German Club (4); Editor, YACKETY YACK (3); Leader, Gorgon's Head Dance (3); Manager, Musical Association (3); Assistant Manager, Varsity Baseball Team (3); Manager, Varsity Track Team (4); Manager, Star Course (4); Student Representative on Council (4); Y. M. C. A.; Commencement Marshal; Gorgon's Head; Golden Fleece; Σ A E; L. W. Business.

"Bob" sees the sunny side. If he has ever been grouchy, no one has yet found it out. Is a friend to everybody, and the most popular man in the class. "Bob" has held down some of the hardest jobs in college, mostly of the managerial variety. A good student, especially in Geology, but he doesn't like the flavor of "Mimm's Extra Dry."

R. M. Hanes

H H Hargrett

HAINES HILSMAN HARGRETT.....Sylvester, Ga.

"He makes a solitude and calls it peace."

Age 21; height 6 feet 2 1/4 inches; weight 184 pounds. Athletic Association; Tennis Association; Y. M. C. A.; Di. Society; Cosmopolitan Club; Class Football (2, 4); Coop; Gorgon's Head, K A; L. W. Banking.

"SUNRISE," "HAINES" comes to us from the "Cracker" State. He is a hard worker as is evidenced by his graduating in three years. However, he is not a grind, and usually has plenty of time to mix with his friends. He takes a part in class athletics, and is a good all-round fellow.

WILLIAM FRANKLIN HENDRIX.....Unionville

"It is tranquil people who accomplish much."

Age 23; height 5 feet 9 inches; weight 155 pounds. Y. M. C. A.; Athletic Association; Class Baseball Team (1, 2, 3); Captain, Class Baseball Team (2); Freshman-Sophomore Debater (1); Sophomore-Junior Debater (2); Assistant Manager, Varsity Football Team (2); Manager, Varsity Football Team (4); Di. Society; Golden Fleece; L. W. Law.

"BILL" is considered the shrewdest of the shrewd. He uses this characteristic shrewdness in successfully managing the Varsity football team in manipulating politics, and passing "hours" without work. This shrewdness in connection with his oratorical propensities promises great success for "Bill." Horace predicts that "Bill" will be in the legislative halls within the next five years, and we have great faith in Horace's predictions.

Bryan Vance Henry

BRYAN VANCE HENRY, JR. Lilesville

"He could on either side dispute, Confute, change sides, and still confute."

Age 22; height 6 feet $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches; weight 158 pounds.
Di. Society; Athletic Association; Historical Society;
L. W. Law.

"VANCE" has the name of a wit, but otherwise he makes no claim to humor. He came to us from Wake Forest in our second year, and straightway made a hit with us. He knows everyone on the campus, studies a little before examinations, and argues a lot. A fervor for the Law has recently seized upon his soul, and if arguing is a necessary requirement of law, we predict that he will be one of the most brilliant lawyers of our class.

CARLISLE HIGGINS Eunice

*"A penny saved is two pence clear,
A pin a day's a groat a year."*

Age 23; height 5 feet $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches; weight 166 pounds.
Di. Society; Class Baseball Team (3); Athletic Association;
Treasurer, Athletic Association (4); Historical Society;
Debating Union (4); Amphoterothern; L. W. Law.

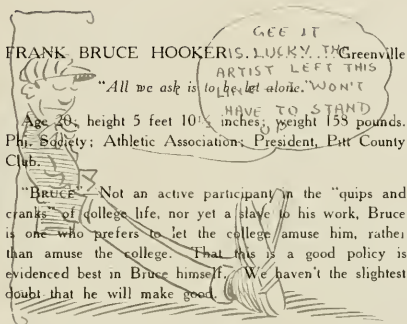

"CARLISLE"—You can tell by the rosy bloom of health on his cheek that he is a son of the mountains. Had a peaceful struggle in his Senior year with French II. He even dreamed in French. But came out all right in the end. He is the official economist of the class by almost unanimous vote. Carlisle is one of the good solid fellows of the class.

C. W. Higgins

F. B. Hooker

FRANK BRUCE HOOKER IS LUCKY THE ARTIST LEFT THIS TO BE LET ALONE. WON'T HAVE TO STAND

Age 20; height 5 feet 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches; weight 155 pounds. Phi. Society; Athletic Association; President, Pitt County Club.

"BRUCE" Not an active participant in the "quips and cranks" of college life, nor yet a slave to his work, Bruce is one who prefers to let the college amuse him, rather than amuse the college. That this is a good policy is evidenced best in Bruce himself. We haven't the slightest doubt that he will make good.

FREDERICK WILLIAM HOSSFELD, JR... Morganton

"Every absurdity has a champion to defend it; for error is always talkative."

Age 24; height 6 feet; weight 206 pounds. Athletic Association; Phi Beta Kappa; Historical Society; L. W. Undecided.

"Whass'at? Whass'at?" Just "Big Hoss," that's all. Distinguished by his gigantic volume, his knocking (inanimate things) and boxing (human things); his characteristic stride on the football field, his willingness to argue on any subject (preferably religion) at any time, at any place, with any person, under any circumstances, but his arguments are usually of two forms, circular and reductio ad absurdum.

F. W. Hossfeld, Jr.

Wm E. Hossfeld.

WILLIAM EMIL HOSSFELD Morganton

IT'S HARD TO GET IT SO EASY - AND TO WORK SO HARD.
 "And this is life! Fail—wherefore should I fail?"

Age 18; height 6 feet 1 inch; weight 160 pounds; Athletic Association; Tennis Association; Secretary, Phi Beta Kappa; L. W. Civil Engineering.

"Hoss," "WILLIAM" — just plain "Hoss" as distinguished from "Big Hoss." Will talk a year all night about anything until his small-eyed brother comes around. As a bridge player he is an artist, but then he is an artist at anything he goes at since he made the secretaryship of the Phi Beta Kappa without looking at a book. Had a good temper until he made a "3" on Chem. 1. Likes a good joke but can't tell one for laughing. "Hoss" is a good all-round fellow and will make good.

Age 19; height 5 feet 9 inches; weight 147 pounds. Y. M. C. A.; Di. Society; President, Alamance County Club; Gym Squad; Class Statistician; L. W. Undecided.

"BLAKE came to us from Trinity in our Sophomore year. We all like Blake and we think that Blake likes us, at least he goes into everything with his whole heart. He has won much distinction in the classroom and in the "Gym." He carries an attractive side-line of music.

Blake E. Isley

"So ends the bloody business of the day."

Age 20; height 5 feet 9 inches; weight 140 pounds. German Club; Athletic Association; Manager, Class Baseball Team (1); Σ A E; L. W. Banking.

"FAIRY," "HANDSOME." The luckiest man in college since his brother Jesse left us. Has the enviable faculty of knowing exactly the right lung to study for examination—and no more. Has spent most of his time at the Inn, but never fails to take his constitutional every night in the form of a trip to the Pickwick.

CLARENCE WALTON JOHNSON, Four Oaks

"It is a good divine that follows his own instructions."

Age 25; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 150 pounds. Y. M. C. A.; Phi. Society; Athletic Association; Tennis Association; Johnston County Club; B. C. A. Club; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet; Volunteer Band; L. W. Missionary.

"C. W.," "STRAIGHT-BACK" is very punctilious, and as regular as the watch he draws on you when he's in a hurry—and he is always in a hurry. Gets his nickname from his rather stiff carriage, which he acquired in military drill at Buie's Creek. His steadiness, persistence of force, and good intellect will make him a good missionary, if he enters that calling, and we believe he will.

JOHN ROCKWELL KENYON Newton

*"There is a pleasure in poetic pains
Which only poets know."*

Age 20; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 145 pounds.
L. W. Law.

"JOHN" dropped down among us from the western part of the State, for the last lap in the race for a sheepskin. John has a mania for literary degrees, having annexed one from Catawba College, last year, he is now in quest of another. His long suit is reading poetry and solving political problems with Representative Johnson. To know John well is to know a good student, a good friend, and a good fellow.

John Kenyon.

JOHN FOX KENDRICK Rock Hill, S. C.

"God healeth and the physician hath the thanks."

Age 21; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 160 pounds.
Medical Society; Y. M. C. A.; F. X.; L. W. Medicine.

"KENT" was formerly a subject of Wake Forest, but the Ministerial Atmosphere was too close for him there; he hailed for U. N. C. and joined us in our Junior year. Since his arrival among us, he has decided to study medicine, and promises to make good in his profession. He is a sober-minded fellow and has his own ideas about everything. "Kent" is a good mixer and his main hobby is reading the "Smoke Eyes."

John Fox Kendrick.

Age 20; height 5 feet 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches; weight 145 pounds. Phi. Society; Athletic Association; Y. M. C. A.; Pitt County Club; Press Association; Scrub Baseball Team (3); Class Football (4).

He is an innocent, peaceful looking fellow, but a bad man when you stir up his Irish. He is a ball player and plays the game for all it is worth. Studies hard and will make good.

Age 20; height 5 feet 10 inches; weight 150 pounds. Di. Society; Glee Club (3, 4); University Quartet (3, 4); L. W. Law.

"LASSITER" has several things on which he prides himself. He prides himself on his red top boots, on his big, bass voice, and on passing Economics IV without a book, and without even looking at a book. He is, moreover, a star member of the Glee Club and the official loafer of the class. Lassiter, however, like "Collin's ram" has a head of his own and will some day perhaps but himself to the front.

"JOHN" is our man of many affairs. He has more to do than any man in the class—and he is always on the job. The ladies are dear to his heart, and if he isn't talking about the Y. M. C. A., the YACKETY YACK, politics, or debating, he is sure to be talking about the girls. But if you want a thing done right, call on John; we have tried him out and he has made good.

Age 21; Height 5 feet 5 inches; weight 146 pounds. Σ A. E. German Club; Warrenton High School Club; Dramatic Club (2); President, Dramatic Club (4); Mecklenburg County Club; Athletic Association; L. W. Banking.

He wears a smile of seraphic innocence and possesses the voice of a cooing dove, but in his violet eyes the devil twinkles, and things are not what they seem. His charming piquancy, his manner shyly vivacious, and his mischievous gaiety make him to the feminine heart what the rock crusher is to the stone.

Age 24; height 6 feet; weight 164 pounds. Phi. Society; Press Association (2, 3); Y. M. C. A.; Historical Society; Assistant Editor of YACKETY YACK (4).

"H. B." is one of the best-balanced, well-grounded men in the class. He has studied well during his college course, and on the side has taught at the graded school. Always brings a young lady to the star courses—each time a different lady. H. B. says that he makes these changes in order to better study human nature. You can count on Marrow for a logical reason for anything he does.

Age 25; height 5 feet 4 inches; weight 145 pounds.

Di. Society; Class Football (1, 2, 3, 4); Historical Society; L. W. Teaching.

"PETE," as he is familiarly known to all of us, has never been what might be called a good "fresh" in any sense whatever. He has just been a solid, steady 1912 man. A fair student with no particular tendencies toward the Phi Beta Kappa, a good class athlete for four years, and a good conscientious worker in the literary society, about sums up his activities. Pete's shy wit and gentility make him a good companion at any time. He prides himself on his good looks and his knowledge of 14th English, which has come to be his hobby.

Society; Odd Number Club; Golden Fleece; President, Phi Beta Kappa; L. W. Journalism.

"Monk" is president of the Phi Beta Kappa, editor-in-chief of most every college publication, and still has time to talk and joke with any one who comes along. Has taken every "bull" course in college, but has never made better than a "1" on any of them. A thoroughly good fellow, popular with both the faculty and the students; we predict for him a great success in life.

JAMES WARD MORRIS, JR.....Tampa, Fla.

"JIM" has taken a prominent part in the social side of our class. He was largely instrumental in making the "Prom" a success. He is a good talker, writer, speaker, and worker, when the time demands it. He has the burden of publishing the YACKETY YACK this year, and has done his part to make it a success. He hopes to be a lawyer some day, and our prediction is that he will make good.

"CLARENCE If there was a prize offered for the most inquisitive man in the University, Clarence would certainly get it. However, this is not an altogether bad propensity, for it almost got him a Phi Beta Kappa key. Clarence is one of the most dependable men on the campus, he doesn't mind work and as a result he is one of the best men in our class. The predominant interest of Clarence outside of his classroom work during his college course has been the religious activities of the Young Men's Christian Association.

"ORR" possesses much natural ability. He is our best poet, and one of our best athletes. But football, editorial duties, and poetic meditation, together with a natural aversion to books, have kept him from studying too much.

Well, Well! Look who's here! I do believe it is our old friend "Thad" of baseball fame. "Thad" is one of Jimmy's proteges, but that doesn't keep him from being one of the most popular in the class. Believes in studying enough to pass his work and enjoys life the rest of the time.

"BABY"—From Hillsboro, and yet he is a good student, as the key he wears so prominently shows. Won the nickname of "Baby" in his Freshman year on account of his sweet soprano voice—and it hasn't changed yet. He spends most of his time at work, but doesn't let that keep him away from the front seat at the Pickwick, and a trip home every two weeks.

"HE"—Some think that "Ho" is lazy but he just appears that way. Never does anything off-hand even takes deliberate aim when he smiles at you. He is a good student, and a pedagogue of the old school. Holds the chair of "Miscellanies" in the Chapel Hill High School. Give him time and he is one of the best we have.

CHARLES ABRAM ROBERSON: THE COUNTRY Robersonville

"The fruit derived from labor is the sweetest of pleasures."

Age 22; height 5 feet 8 1/2 inches; weight 145 pounds. Phi. Society; Martin County Club; Y. M. C. A.; Athletic Association; L. W. Teacher.

"ABE" hails from Martin County, and is a true son of the sod. Hasn't decided whether he will return to the paternal acres after graduation, or set forth as a pedagogue. Very quiet and unassuming, but always there with the goods. Has worked hard, and will make good at whatever he goes in for, if he keeps up his present pace.

C. A. Roberson

W. W. Rogers

WILLIAM WHITE ROGERS.....Timberlake

"I am the very pink of courtesy."

Age 24; height 6 feet; weight 154 pounds. Phi. Society; Athletic Association; Tennis Association; Historical Society; Y. M. C. A.; Assistant in Library (4).

"WHITE"—The Class of 1912 is glad to have White Rogers as one of its members. During his college course he has proved to be a loyal friend, a diligent student, and a devoted member of his class. Every man has his faults. So has he. He misses Horace Williams's classes every term for no other purpose than to go to see his girl. He ran the library for Dr. Wilson this year and got up his term's work on the night before each examination, making some "Is."

THOMAS SAMSON ROYSTER.....Townsville

"Life is rendered most agreeable by alternate occupation and leisure."

Age 21; height 6 feet 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ inches; weight 170 pounds. Phi. Society; Athletic Association; President, Warrenton High School Club (2); Y. M. C. A.; Tennis Association; German Club; Chemical Journal Club; I. K. A.; L. W. Medicine.

"SAP" spent the first two years of his college course working, and since that time has been lucky enough to get "3s" on his work. He likes Latin, but we believe that is due to the "boot" he's had on Dr. Howe since his Freshman year. "Sap" has never been in love but likes to advise others in their love affairs. Wants to study medicine, but hasn't yet decided to honor that profession. "Sap" will make his mark, we are sure.

Thos S. Royster

HOWARD BENTLY SHOFNER, Shelbyville, Tenn.

"For he's a jolly good fellow."

Age 25; height 6 feet $\frac{1}{2}$ inch; weight 210 pounds. Athletic Association; Di. Society; Glee Club; Webb School Club; Scrub Football (4); S. A. E.; L. W. Law.

"BUTTERCUP," "SHOF" came to us from Vanderbilt, strained a point and graduated in two years. He believes in steady hard work followed with plenty of good cheer. Has the proper dimensions for a jolly Dutchman and fills the bill exactly. Is extremely musically-inclined and loves to sing just to see how much fuss he can make. Shows his optimism to the world by giving forth constantly lyrical bursts of rapture, either in "grand opera" or "breakdown" variety. Stands for something worth while, and can back it, too.

Howard B. Shofner

JESSE RICHARDSON SLOAN, Franklin

"None but himself could be his parallel."

Di. Society; Athletic Association; Tennis Association; Macon County Club; French Dramatic Club (1).

"DICK" hails from the mountains, and has to come through three states to get here, but he is always on time—at the Pickwick. It is rumored that he is a great ladies' man. However that may be, he is endowed with the remarkable gift of being able to blind Major Cain and Ed. Mimms.

J. R. Sloan

L. E. Stacy Jr.

LUCIUS EUGENE STACY.....Rutherfordton

"I ^{NOT} value science—none can prize it ^{more} ^{MY P?} ^{RED BL}

Age 23; height 5 feet 8½ inches; weight 164 pounds. Athletic Association; Di. Society; Class Baseball (1, 2, 3); Class Football (3, 4); Sub-Varsity Baseball (2); All-Class Baseball (1, 2, 3); All-Class Football (3); L. W. Chemistry.

"LUKE"—Each of his three brothers, in turn, won the Wiley P. Mangum Medal but alas, the story ends here. "Luke's" time is taken up with Chemistry and the fair sex. We don't understand the affinity. "Luke" is one of the 'old guard' in class athletics; we believe that he could have made the Varsity, had he taken the time to try.

BREVARD DOTY STEPHENSON

Charlotte

"OBSERVER" ^{BY!} "Some poets would rather write than be President." ^{ED} ^{RE THE REEL}

Age 20; height 5 feet 8 inches; weight 135 pounds. Di. Society; Dramatic Club; Mecklenburg County Club; Winner of Preston Cup (2); Editor, Magazine (3); Editor, Tar Heel (3); Odd Number Club; L. W. Journalism.

"BREVARD," a writer, a lover of books, a dreamer of dreams. Brevard is something of a recluse, and yet his writings, and he writes much, prove to us that Doty is alive to that which goes on around him. He is a newspaper man in every fiber of his being, and to him the Charlotte Observer is the law and the gospel.

Brevard D. Stephenson

C. E. Teague

CLAUDE EDWARD TEAGUE.....Cameron

*"I doubt the wisdom of being too wise—
I see much wisdom in some folly."*

Age 23; height 6 feet; weight 155 pounds. Phi. Society; Y. M. C. A.; Athletic Association; Historical Society; Golden Fleece; Class Football Team (3, 4); Class Baseball (1); Track Squad (2); Member of University Council; Press Association; Manager, Class Football Team (3); Class Orator (4); Commencement Debater (3); Winner, Bingham Prize (3); Amphoteroben; L. W. Teacher.

"CLAUDE" is a solid fellow with a ruggedness of character and a doggedness of determination. He is as persistent in his efforts as he is unwavering in his opinions. With the same constant persistency he sets about winning a debate or winning a girl. We cannot tell whether he will be as successful in the latter as in the former; but we believe he can always be depended on to deliver the goods.

ROBERT LINN VANPOOLE.....Salisbury

"Man is not an organism; he is an intelligence served by organs."

Age 25; height 5 feet 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches; weight 138 pounds. Di. Society; Athletic Association; Y. M. C. A.; Vice President, Rowan County Club.

"BOB," "VAN" studies Psych under the new regime, and, strange to say, likes it. Holds the proud distinction of never having missed a ball game played on the hill. R. L. holds another "first place," but it is rumored that he used peroxide to win it. (See Senior Superlatives.)

R. L. VanPoole

W. E. Wakeley

WILLIAM EASTON WAKELEY.....Orange, N. J.

"Yet the life of a whole life dies when love is dead."

Age 23; height 5 feet 11½ inches; weight 165 pounds. Athletic Association; German Club; Secretary, Athletic Association (4); Scrub Football (1, 2); Captain, Scrub Football Team (3); Sub-Varsity Football (3); Varsity Football (4); Varsity Track Team (1, 2, 3); Sub-Varsity Basket-ball Team (3); N. C. Club; Coop; Σ N; Φ X; Gimghoul; L. W. Medicine.

"BILL," "WILLIE" came to us from New Jersey and brought the characteristic Yankee enterprise with him. Is a good athlete and his track ability stands him well in his runs to Tarboro, but on account of "heart" failure he has stopped this strenuous service. We are sorry that he has changed his course to medicine as we don't see as much of him as formerly. Is a hard worker but manages to find time to make a pun on most anything at any time.

LINGAH WANGPeking, China

*"But the hands that were played
By that heathen Chinese,
And the points that he made,
Were quite frightful to see."*

Age 28; height 5 feet 6 inches; weight 150 pounds. Phi. Society; L. W. Consular Service.

For sociability our Celestial member is excelled by none of us. Plays cards and chess superbly. Speaks English perfectly, and writes good themes. Corresponds in Chinese with all sorts of high muck-a-mucks, and writes for Chinese journals. Subscribes to the "Teachings of Confucius," though the Y. M. C. A. nonchalantly collected from him a membership fee. Though of the higher social order in his country, he approves the recent revolution, and admires Yuan Shi Kai. Won all our hearts at our banquet by inviting us to come over and eat chop suey with him.

Lingah Wang

C. R. Wharton

CYRUS RICHARD WHARTON.....Gibsonville

"The lover of books is the richest and happiest of men."

Age 21; height 5 feet 9½ inches; weight 130 pounds. Di. Society; Y. M. C. A.; Dramatic Club; Athletic Association; Winner of French Debates Prize; Freshman-Sophomore Debater (1); Commencement Debater (3); President, Guilford County Club; President, Debating Union (4); Pennsylvania Debater (4); Amphoterthen; T K A; L. W. Law.

"Dick" has an aristocratic taste, which he shows in choosing his friends, studies, clothes, and pursuits, and he has made good in them all. Debating is his favorite pastime. In this he is an indefatigable worker. He lost twelve pounds winning the Pennsylvania Debate, but he gained a "rep" that weighs considerably more.

JOHN CLARKE WHITAKER.....Winston-Salem

"I'll be merry, I'll be free, I'll be sad for nobody."

Age 20; height 5 feet 10½ inches; weight 150 pounds; Athletic Association; Glee Club (3); Winston-Salem Club; Scrub Baseball Team (3); Odd Number Club; Tar Baby Staff; Reader of Last Will and Testament (4); German Club; Gorgon's Head; Assistant Leader, Gorgon's Head Dance; S. A. B.; Coop. L. W. Explorer.

"JOHN," "WHIT," "SNELYNEZ" came to us from Guilford in his Junior year, but has long since outgrown that. A remarkable example of determination, perseverance, patience and goodness when it comes to Math. II. Besides this nothing troubles him except that there are too few hours in the day to accommodate his schedule of twenty-four hours a week, the Tar Baby, baseball, and Senior Stunt. A rare mixture of good sense and humor and his broad smile can be heard from the South Building to Bob Hanes's joint. Is deservedly popular with men and ladies alike.

"BOB" a born leader, and a fighter through and through.
 One of the best athletes Carolina has ever produced; a good track man and a star on the football team. Showed his adaptability by making fourth place on the patching staff of the Varsity Baseball Team, in one year. A hard worker in every phase of college activities. In spite of his "Jew derby," "Bob" has won the love and respect of the whole
 University, and his name will be mentioned in future years with those of Carolina's many heroes.

 Y. M. C. A.; Tennis Association.

"EMMA"—No, "Emma" is not a co-ed, but the nearest approach to one in the class. Revels in "billets doux and talcum powder," for a pastime. Discourses at length upon the broadening influence of a tour to London and Edinburgh. Harrison is a good fellow, a good mixer, and an entertaining talker. We wish him the best of luck.

Senior Class History

SOME authority on colleges and universities has, after long years of study, announced that every class has what is known as its "Freshman year." Lest we be criticized we admit that we were forced—mind you!—into undergoing that embarrassing experience. We were hazed, snow-balled, and blacked quite conventionally. Under the kind guidance of the Sophomores we developed a discouraged sort of melancholy that bade fair to make us a crowd of idle pessimists. The Warrenton High School Club noticed our pitiful condition, diagnosed the case, and prescribed a powerful stimulant: "Shorty" Jones as class president.

The remedy was excellent. We woke up. What "Shorty" couldn't smilingly lead us into, he kicked us into. We became interested in everything. Our baseball team beat the Sophomores and won the championship. Our goal line wasn't crossed in football. We had eight men on the Varsity teams; social "bulls" and embryo Phi Beta Kappa men were as numberless as the sands of the sea. 1912 was "looking up."

From the tyranny of Jones, W. M., we passed into the really golden days of our youth. Dr. Patterson, that famous student of "grats" and "xs," has very aptly said: "To every action there is an equal reaction, and in a contrary direction." From a year of oppression we passed into a year of anarchy, under Frank Barker. We felt it our duty to welcome the Freshmen. We gave a most hearty welcome to all we could find, and dutifully hunted for the rest. For nine months we conducted a campaign of welcome that not only kept both us and the Freshmen pleasantly occupied, but also made the two-dollar damage fee, figuratively and literally, look like thirty cents. Feeling that the Carr "Barn" was no place for Freshmen, we induced the Faculty to make them move.

But we couldn't devote all our time to Freshman-culture; President Barker wouldn't allow it. We took enough time to capture, again, the baseball championship, and to keep our record in football. When we went home in June, we had a tired, but a satisfied, feeling.

Another reaction set in at the beginning of our Junior year. After electing as president that celebrated divine, Rev. Alonzo Folger, we expressed ourselves as being unalterably opposed to hazing. Think of it! This radical change can be due to one of only two causes: either the famous puritanical doctrines of our new president, or to our sorrow at the absence of our most prominent men—Jones, W. M., and “Fat Boy” Manning. But, whatever the cause, the change came. We settled down quite seriously to the problems of college life. We played hard and studied hard. We put out winning class teams. We produced nine Phi Beta Kappa men. And, most of all, we coöperated with the Sophomores in abolishing all forms of hazing at the University.

This year we feel rather old. President “Bob” Freeman, that all-wise philosopher, sets us an example of well-balanced dignity that all of us try in vain to imitate. We feel that we, as a class, have done well. Our students are still making ones; our debaters are still out-talking their opponents; our baseball team still wins; and our football team has played its last game without ever having its goal line crossed by an opponent. We feel just “a wee bit” proud of our record; and, too, we feel as if we could do it all again.

“There’s the rub.” We want to do it all again. We hate to know that our college days are almost over. But we can’t stay here forever. It is only a few more weeks before we dash for our last eight-thirty, and sleep through our last last-hour class. We hate to go. We have had a good time. Long after our youngest grandsons are alumni of the University, we, gray-haired, will doze over the morning issue of the Tar Heel and muse over the good old times when we were at Chapel Hill.

HISTORIAN.

Class Poem

“ * * * *Haply some day we meet again;
Yet ne'er the selfsame men shall meet;
The years shall make us other men.*”

—SIR RICHARD BURTON.

O Comrades on the path of learning,
We near the goal of years of yearning;
We've loitered 'neath The Poplar's shade,
We've talked and sung and laughed and played,
But now the hour draws on apace
When each his own life-path must trace.
One moment tries each sturdy heart—
The last hand-clasp before we part.

We stand in proud and strong array;
Each one is restive for the fray.
Our life of sport and study palls,
We long to leave these classic walls;
And from our lips is breathed a prayer
For strength to struggle, do, and dare.
Ah, who will wage a losing fight?
And who will scale fame's lofty height?

Is this a time for mournful lays?
We'll meet again in other days.
Ah, yes, but not as now we are,
For then we shall have wandered far,
And seen! And lived! And grown in lore—
The boys we knew will be no more;
And so we dread with sinking heart
The last hand-clasps before we part.

Junior Class History

IN September, 1909, the University received a consignment of the freshness annually entrusted to its care. The conglomeration consisted of one hundred and eighty-eight separate and distinct characters. On a dark night in a lonely spot, "Nap" Vann was elected to lead the Class through the joys and sorrows of the first year. In rapid succession ball games, boning, Pickwicks, quizzes, mass meetings, chocolate shakes, and snowballs passed by. However, despite the havoc played in our ranks by blacking crowds and first Math., we were able to deliver one hundred and fifty-five members safe into the Sophomore Class.

September, 1910, saw a bolder band of loyal sons of 1913 in possession of the campus. R. W. Scott was elected to preside over the class deliberations for the year. The abolishment of hazing, brewing of political pots, Sophomore banquet, and class baseball championship were among the activities and glories of this year. Our Class was indeed well represented in the various departments of college life.

The third chapter of our college history was opened with a feeling of sadness, for a loyal member of our Class, Melvin Buckley, died of fever during the summer of 1911. As presiding officer for the year, R. O. Huffman was unanimously elected. Here on the summit of three years' experience we survey our surroundings. Among our athletic stars we have Tillett, Ritch, Porter, Swink, Blalock, and others. We have a liberal share of Phi Beta Kappa men, orators, business men, social stars; in fact, we have a class of all-around good fellows. It is true that there have been rival factions, but the Class is finding itself and the feeling of good fellowship will prevail throughout.

Having contributed, therefore, our share of stars to the college firmament, and having eluded the fatal snares of Math., Physics, and Psychology, we are now ready to enter upon the last lap of our college course.

Sophomore Class History

IN the fall of the year 1910, two hundred and three Freshmen entered the University, to prepare themselves for carving out their career in the dark veil of the future. We were indeed fresh, and as a result of our freshness underwent all of the trials and humiliations that fresh Freshmen are called upon to endure. Early in the year, under cover of darkness and in great fear of interruption by Sophomores, we gathered near the station to perfect our organization. We elected the officers, choosing George Clark, of Wilmington, to steer the ship of state safely by the Sophomoric shoals through the verdant sea.

We, with the changing color of the leaves in the fall, also suffered a slight change in appearance, and settling down as good citizens of the campus, entered into all forms of college activities. In athletics our Class broke an old record by capturing thirteen coveted Carolina sweaters in its Freshman year: four in baseball, four in football, three in basket-ball, and two on the track. We also became active in Y. M. C. A. work, debating, and in all other phases of college life, including incidentally some efforts toward performing the work assigned by our professors.

Last fall our Class returned, but our ranks had been thinned until there were only one hundred and forty survivors. After the upper classes had organized we, unmolested for the first time in our history, met in Gerrard Hall and selected as our guide Clarence Blackstock, of Buncombe County, who has ably led our Class through its most trying year.

An important step was taken by our Class when we adopted a resolution allowing the Freshman Class to organize in Gerrard Hall, a privilege which no former Freshman Class had ever been permitted to enjoy. More important than this is the firm stand we have taken, not merely in appearance but also in reality, against all forms of hazing. The influence we have exerted against this menace will occupy a prominent place among the many successes and distinctions won by the Class of 1914.

LAW CLASS

Candidates for LL. B. Degree

BAXTER LLOYD BAKER.....Paw Creek

"Men of few words are the best men."

Age 28; height 5 feet 10 $\frac{3}{4}$ inches; weight 135 pounds. A. B. Erskine College, 1907; Judge Moot Court, Fall Term, 1911-'12; President of Law Class, Spring Term, 1911-'12.

"BAKER," the sandy-haired man from the Palmetto State, came to us in the fall of 1910, with a B. A. from Erskine College. The ties that bound him were too strong to evade without grave danger of a breach of promise suit, so he took unto himself a wife. Baker is a model student (his name is the first on the Senior Class roll), but his note book filled with miniature characters resembling Egyptian Hieroglyphics is destined to become the eighth wonder of the world.

EDWIN THOMAS CANSLER, JR.

"High-erected thoughts seated in a heart of courtesy."

Age 22; Treasurer Law Class; Vice President Law Class; German Club; Athletic Association; B + II.

"BARRISTER"—The speediest man in the Law Class. Studies some—not much—but always knows enough to pass examinations, and he passes them with some speed. Ed is neat, cute, and otherwise attractive. Although he loves the ladies, curiously enough, he flatly denies it.

LENNOX POLK McLENDON

"The simplest record of thee hath worth."

Age 22; Kappa Sigma; B. S. North Carolina A. & M. College, 1910; Vice President Law Class, Spring Term, 1911; President Law Class, Fall Term, 1911; Dialectic Society; German Club; Junior Order of Gimghouls; Tulane Debate; T K A.

'Mac' is one of the brightest stars of the Law School. He loves to argue with Prof. Winston as to what the North Carolina law is on a particular point, and can back up his side all right, with "what Judge Clark says." Moreover, "Mac" is already an attorney and councillor-at-law, we have no fear in predicting that this worthy son of old Anson will prove an ornament to his profession.

JAMES SOUTHERLAND PATTERSON, Chapel Hill

*"My only books were woman's looks
And folly's all they taught me."*

Age 22; height 5 feet 9 inches; weight 130 pounds. Di. Society; German Club; Gimghoul; A T Ω.

Presents that rare combination of good egg and good student. Modest, unassuming, but a hustler. Gets what he goes after. One of the Law Class representatives in the social side of college life. His highest ambition is to be a big corporation lawyer.

ELEGY OF THE DEPARTED PUP

The Pensive Pup and the Bunny Bun
And the Guinea Pig Goo la Goo
Were playing one day at Phinapaziz
In Bernier Sanguine's Zoo.
The Pensive Pup had won the game
For Phinapaziz, you know,
Is a game where every Animalite
New Germiceeds must show.
The Guinea Pig wept Tubercletero
And the Bunny Bun, they say,
Split a Canipigal of Bacilli drops
On the grassy Playgroundplay.
O why do the Animalites cry out?
And why Does the Guinea Pig wail?
The Pup has cavorted to Heavenkalite
And wears a Martyrloo tail.
Then, why cry out at the Vivisect?
Heaven's better than Earthbelow.
The Pup is bled, the soul is sped
To the Land of the "Wedon'tknow."

History of the Second Year Medical Class

THE present Second Year Medical Class shows a marked advance over previous classes in the amount of college training its members have had. Out of twenty-eight members who entered last year, six were college graduates, eight had two or more years of college training, and the other fourteen had one year of pre-medical training. This shows a gradual movement in increasing the standard of the Medical Department. This preliminary training has shown its advantage in the fact that the Class as a whole has taken a higher standing than previous classes.

The members of the Class have not only made good in their classroom work, but also have been active in college affairs. We have furnished two men for the Varsity football team, one for the baseball team, one for the track team, and an instructor in the gymnasium. Besides, we have been represented on the Y. M. C. A. Cabinet and YACKETY YACK Board.

The Class has continued the work in the Medical Society inaugurated some years ago. The meetings of the Society have been more regular than formerly. They have proved of much benefit in interesting the members in important medical subjects. The Medical Faculty has kindly cooperated with the members in making the programs more attractive and beneficial.

A spirit of fellowship and congeniality has prevailed among the members throughout the two years. Wherever we have been engaged, at lecture, laboratory, or stiff-house, at all times we have always had a good word and pleasant greeting for each other. We hope that this spirit of good fellowship and hard work that we have acquired at Carolina will continue to manifest itself wherever we may pursue our further studies.

PHARMACY CLASS

Senior Pharmacy

KELLY EDWIN BENNETT.....Bryson City

"Be not too mindful, lest you forget."

Age 22; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 166 pounds.
Y. M. C. A. Pharmaceutical Journal Club.

"KELLY" enjoys athletics, but has never tried for any of the teams. He says he is somewhat of a baseball artist, though he spends his time in another art, viz: photography. He can be seen on the Athletic Field at every game with his kodak. When he is not taking pictures he can be found in the Lab., either working or talking about his girl. Kelly is a good fellow, and we believe he will come out all right.

OTIS VANCE JONES.....Swan Quarter

"He fails alone who feebly creeps."

Age 24; height 6 feet; weight 170 pounds. Pharmaceutical Journal Club; Y. M. C. A.

"CASEY" is his nickname, and he says he is going to keep up the record of the original. He is a man who can ask more questions than any one man living. Out of the 958 official preparations and crude drugs, he has learned one, Sassafras. We can see no way he registered, except under the Grandfathers Clause. He is one who doesn't let his studies interfere with his plans.

CHARLIE BAIS RHINEHART.....Asheville

*"When a man is single he lives at his ease
He doesn't give a darn, and does as he please."*

Age 23; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 130 pounds.
Vice President (2); Pharmaceutical Journal Club.

"CHICKEN" came to us from the Class of '11. He dropped out a year, however, and during that time he found for himself a "better half." He came back this year to get himself a diploma, and we are sure that he will get that, also. He used to be fond of argument, but we don't know how he is now. He can be found at Pick's Hotel, but after June, perhaps, he will be found in Asheville, rolling pills.

ALEXANDER GRADY WEBB.....Chapel Hill

"Cleanliness is next to godliness."

Age 22; height 5 feet 8 inches; weight 135 pounds.
President (2); Pharmaceutical Journal Club.

We don't know why he is called "Mary," but that's his name. "Mary" likes Pharmacy Lab., and thinks that he can make most anything, and we don't doubt him. He is a hard worker, and is sure to make good. He loves the Gym. for he goes down to take a bath about three times a day. "Mary" is a good egg, and we wish our President a prosperous future.

JEFFERSON DAVIS WHITEHEAD, JR. Enfield

"Honest labor brings happiness."

Age 20; height 5 feet 11 inches; weight 160 pounds. Pharmaceutical Journal Club; Halifax County Club; Historian (2).

He has two names. Sometimes it is "White," and sometimes it is "Black," but he usually comes to either call. "White's" hobby is Chemistry III, and he is some bull on unknowns. He is not as fond of Christler's Physics as he is of Dr. Howell's Pharmacy. "White" has worked for one of the State Board, and thinks he has a "boot" on him. All the girls like "White," but he is too busy to give them much attention. He tells us that he is going to roll pills for the Navy, and we wish him much success.

FRANK GOODSON FETZER. Wadesboro

"Take every man to be a gentleman until he proves to be otherwise."

Age 22; height 5 feet 5 inches; weight 122 pounds. Kappa Sigma; German Club; Tennis Association; Athletic Association; Secretary and Treasurer (2); Pharmaceutical Journal Club.

We call this one "Skinny." We all like him for he is a good egg. "Skinny" is the only registered man in the class. He thinks himself a bull in materia medica, and we will give him close on it, too. We understand that he is fond of the fairer sex, which he admits, and he gets value received for his fondness. "Skinny" is also fond of jokes, and never fails to enjoy those of Dr. Howell.

The Song of the Alumnus

When I'm an old Alumnus, with children on my knee,
I'll teach them that the alphabet begins with U. A. C.
I'll show their little fingers how to find with ready skill
The fondest spot on earth to me this dear old Chapel Hill.

I'll tell them how a Freshman green I came to college here
'Twas early in the harvest time, and '89 the year,
And how I looked with pleasure to the coming month of June,
As I walked across the campus to the whistling of a tune.

I'll tell them how the Sophomores would ring the college bell,
And how they took the clapper out and hid it in the well;
And how they blacked the Freshmen, and greased the chapel seats,
And cows put in the bellfry tower with acrobatic feats.

I'll tell them of my boarding house, and how the tough beefsteak
Was tanned and sold again as hide, the finest boots to make,
I'll tell them how the bill of fare was "varied" every day,
So that we read it forward once, and then the reverse way.

I'll tell them how, as Junior, I broke so many hearts
That Cupid, doubtless, had to buy a new supply of darts.
A Senior, too, I strolled around with dignity and pride,
And for my verdant Freshman days, I wished again and sighed.

But I'm going to be an M. D., or else an LL. B.,
I'm thinking of an A. M., perhaps a Ph. D.,
And I'm thankful, as I stand here to-day, a full A. B.,
That the Faculty have not conferred the proud degree "A. C."

The Relation of the Alumni to the University

THE above title was framed by the Editors of the Annual, who bade me write under it something pertinent thereto, and write seriously. Seriously in the YACKETY YACK! Why not? This book is the fullest, freest expression of student thought, and if you think that he, the composite student, is not serious, even under all his seeming levity, you do not know how to read the most unique product of American literature, you are distant a million years of forgetfulness from your own college days, and you would not be a proper person to receive an invitation to deliver the Inter-Society Address or any other address where the eight hundred or fewer authors of this book might hear you. In such opportunity you would run perhaps the scale on "alma maters," "her dear sons," "classic shades," "at the feet of Wisdom," and from the "full experience" of a number of years (say ten) of "active life" hand down "my convictions" on, say, "that infatuate delusion of the demagogic agitator, the referendum and recall," or some other burning question, to some schoolboys. Now that would be real humor—to these same "schoolboys"; sometimes they take it sadly when it's an overdose. Seriously, it is quite a serious mistake to insist upon the width of a chasm between this so-called experience of an active life and university pursuits, which chasm certainly does not exist. It tends to sentimentalize the sympathy and minimize the interest which the alumnus should feel in his university. Upon the alumnus depends the welfare of his university; that is the thesis of this paper, upon alumnus, not upon president, faculty, or trustees, or legislators, in a university which is the product and creation of a democratic state. Presidents, teachers, trustees come and go, can be suppressed even, likewise legislators, who are also amenable to the votes of their constituents, but the alumni go on forever. His the voice and example which ultimately moulds public sentiment for or against, and none better than he knows the needs, defects, advantages, opportunities of his own university. He can mar, as he has Princeton, or can make, as he has scores of splendid universities in America. Here I long to tarry just a moment in reverence to those old fellows, our elder brothers, who have added star after star to the crown of glory our Mother wears, who have paused in the "full experience of an active life" to toil and fight for her, and who know no greater joy than to return to her bosom as opportunity permits. All honor and love to the memory of Colonel Kenan. "Has Colonel Kenan come yet?"

was a familiar Commencement question from student, teacher, alumnus. We all knew him, for somehow, mysteriously, he knew us all; all the Phis, at least. There are others whose names and deeds are wrought into this structure. There are K. P. Battle yonder, "Old Pres.," and R. H. Battle, arm-in-arm, walking down Commons Hall after Alumni Luncheon, with the light of eternal youth shining from under their white hair; and note the reverential silence which stills the buzz of the assembled banqueters as they see and feel and remember how potently these two have rendered service to U. N. C. To your own reflections I commend you for the remainder of this paragraph and to Dr. Battle's History.

The relation of the alumni to the college or university should be, as intimated, not a relationship of sentiment only, even such sentiment as gives amply to endowment; but one that justifies and demands practical influence in the direction of its affairs and policy. It arises from the relationship previously existing. In those educational institutions established by a commonwealth, such as North Carolina, and supported by taxes, the will of the whole people expressed through their Legislature under the Constitution is the final authority on all matters pertaining to them. It is a state function. This authority, however, has been delegated more or less to a Board of Trustees. The members of these boards will ever be, from the exigencies of the need, predominately alumni of that institution, or patrons who educate their children there. Just the same relationship as demands that directors of railroads be chosen of those who are conversant with railroad affairs. The vital question here is, how seriously does the alumnus feel it his duty to be conversant with the affairs and policy of his university? How many alumni are there of the University of North Carolina who, like Charles Francis Adams of Harvard, have devoted study and thought to matters of curricula, government, athletics, and can or do express themselves thoughtfully thereon—like Taft, also, of Yale? Nor should this duty of an intimate knowledge of the minutæ of college matters devolve on members of the Board of Trustees alone. The relationship should bind every alumnus. None so busy or far distant who may not in some way aid with his thought, and keep in touch to that end. When there is demand for those who should assume legal direction of affairs, it is the alumni as a whole who should be best qualified to name these men through their legislators. It is a question for thought, in which there is a difference of opinion, whether this function should be exercised by the Board itself, or by the President of the institution, or left to political log-rolling. In the first place, the Board would become self-perpetuating; in the second, the President would be tempted naturally beyond the true functions of his office; no need to characterize the third. All that is meant here is that these questions are questions, and impose on every alumnus the duty of serious thought thereon. Just at present American universities are passing through an agitation (perhaps movement) as to whether autocratic or democratic principles should prevail in the management of the internal affairs of an institution of learning. Witness the recent controversy in Columbia University, New York. This question is rendered simpler in universities established and maintained by the voting public of democratic commonwealths. Whichever policy eventually prevails, no alumnus can fail to realize the tremendous difference in results, or to realize his own obligation to give calm and dispassionate thought to such a movement. The relationship of child to parent gives the child the inherent right to an active interest in the welfare of that parent. Yet, idle criticism is worse than no interest at all.

Again, given a state university constitutionally established and maintained—that is by the voice of a democratic majority—a hundred years of useful existence—by that time those who are not for it are against it, sometimes actively. Upon whom does it devolve to take up the political battle for it? Who must see that it has fair play and receives that just maintenance without which it cannot fulfil the purposes for which it was established? Its friends are not confined to its alumni, but the relationship of the alumnus peculiarly fits him to present the cause of his university, its influence, its needs, its opportunities. To Jeffersonian Democrats the first duty of the state is to assume the education of its citizens. To be absolutely frank, if there is any logic at all in the words above, education is a function of state as much as taxation.

Other functions of the alumni in relation to the university might be enlarged upon. They will suggest themselves.

How this relationship may turn to practical usefulness is a more imperative topic. Its answer is expressed in the one word, Organization. Organization means coöperation. So long ago as 1899 President Alderman realized the tremendous power of an organized alumni and issued a pamphlet of exhortation and advice to that end. President Venable, amid his multiplying duties, has urged it; but better still, the alumni themselves have awakened to the need of organization and have been slowly forming into local units, called Alumni Associations. These have been effected geographically by towns and counties. The next step is coöperation or federation. Therefore, last Commencement, 1911, a sort of constitution was enacted by the General Alumni Association at the Alumni Luncheon. This constitution establishes a General Assembly of the Alumni composed of delegates from the local associations according to pro rata representation. This Assembly is a forum for discussion of all matters pertaining to the interests of the University. It furthermore elects a body of fifteen, known as the Alumni Council. This Council has the full management of all business and funds of the General Assembly of the Alumni. Its chief officer is known as the General Secretary of the Alumni. He is to be a capable salaried official and to devote his entire time to the duties of his office. Here then is the skeleton of a perfect machinery for effecting a closer relationship between the alumni and the University. Will the alumni respond and heartily coöperate? If they are in earnest, a full delegation from every local association will be present at roll call of the General Assembly on Monday of Commencement Week, 1912.

No movement of importance in recent years has so elicited the interest of the students of the University, as the request for these thoughts implies. They are themselves organizing County Clubs in the University, microcosms, as it were, of the local county associations. There should be a relationship established between the two.

(Ex-President of the University and Friend of Everybody in Chapel Hill)

Ode

*Cool evening breeze blow gently o'er
Her slender form, if thou wouldst know
To scatter fragrance sweeter far
Than perfume rare on Afric moor,
Where wild, luxuriant lilies grow,
Which fresh and living incense breathers are.*

*Stir lightly wisps of auburn hair
That nestle round her temples white,
Low murm'ring in her dainty ear,
Caressing skin so soft and fair,
And if she speaks, waft in the night
Her words to me, however far or near,*

*Mingling with baser currents, sweep
O'er flowery meads and crystal streams;
Rustle through leafy limbs, and soar
Above the white-foam-crested, deep,
Blue sea, illumed by wan moonbeams,
Which, ghostly, flit on every desert shore.*

*When thou dost brush my face I'll dream,
Though crushed with harrowing care, alone
Upon the earth's remotest' lea,
A wild phantasmal dream, and seem
To feel her cheek against mine own;
Naught short of Heaven could be so dear to me,*

*Unless thou wast to gently blow
The innocence of her glad heart
From shore to shore to strangely bless:
Such charms thy magic art would know
Thy zephyrs would with ease impart
To all the world a pure sweet joyousness.*

Dialectic Literary Society

WHENEVER an Alumnus of the University returns to Chapel Hill one of the first places he visits, if he is a member of the Dialectic Society, is the Di. Hall. That he does this shows the prominent place that the Society holds in his recollection of college days. And rightfully does the Society hold this place of abiding prominence in his memory, for during the hundred and seventeen years of the existence of the University as a leader in the educational life of the State and Nation, the Dialectic Literary Society, whose counterpart is found in the Philanthropic, has been the most important factor in determining and moulding student life at the University.

Without speaking further of the worthy record of the Society, for it is known to all Di. men, it would, perhaps, be of interest to attempt to account in part for the maintenance of its place of honor in University life and in the esteem of its members. The spontaneity of the work done in the Society seems to me to be largely responsible for its value and its abiding influence. To work out some system whereby the business of the Society may be facilitated and its efficiency raised, or to prepare a debate for some contest is not looked upon as a task which it is better to do indifferently or to shun altogether; but, on the contrary, it is accepted as a labor which it is a privilege and an honor to do, and it is done with a patience and an excellence inspired by joy in the thought of being able to do something for which to be remembered and that will add further distinction to the Society for which, in times past, many worthy men labored when students here. In the Society the students have a time-honored institution whose present honor they alone are responsible for and whose present record is their honor or their disgrace. This responsibility they assume with seriousness and they bear with joy and pride. Something like this seems to me to account for the fact that whenever two or three Di. men are gathered together to talk of college affairs, they attest by their conversation the esteem in which the Society is held. And the Society in her archives holds recorded evidence of the seriousness and earnestness of purpose of her members, and in the many portraits that adorn her walls she bears witness to their honor.

The Philanthropic Literary Society

MOTTO: Virtue, liberty, and science.

THE PHILANTHROPIC LITERARY SOCIETY had its origin in "The Debating Society" organized the same year the University was founded, in 1795. In August of the same year, for some reason, a division was made, one part becoming "The Concord Society" and the other retaining the original, "The Debating Society." A year later both societies changed their names, "The Debating Society" becoming the "Dialectic" and the "Concord" becoming the "Philanthropic."

The history of the Philanthropic Society is one of close parallelism to and of happy association with the University. For many years membership in one society or the other was compulsory, and on the societies rested the task of maintaining discipline among the student body. In 1891, however, membership was made optional, which left the societies the opportunity for freer action and fuller development in the art of debating. Except for the trying years following the Civil War, when the doors of the University were closed, the Philanthropic Society has held regular weekly meetings and has continued to meet regularly to the present time. Three public debates between the two societies are conducted each year, and in these contests the Philanthropic Society has won its full share of honors. In the last few years a system of inter-collegiate debates has been arranged, and colleague with the Dialectic, the Philanthropic has sent its debaters against those of other colleges, and the results have been brilliant successes.

By a practice which has become an established custom, men coming from the western part of the State join the Dialectic, while those coming from the eastern section join the Philanthropic. Accordingly, the Philanthropic Society has been restricted in its influence to one section; but its value in shaping the life and destiny of the State and Nation can never be determined. In Presidents' cabinets, in Congress, in the State's highest offices, in college faculties—everywhere, in fact, we find its members occupying positions of trust and honor and distinguished because of their real worth. The walls of the Society are adorned with oil portraits of illustrious members who have gone out from its halls and brought credit to the organization that first taught them skill in dialectics and nurtured the spirit of fraternalism and respect for the moral and social virtues.

Thus the Philanthropic Society has been, by precept and example, a strong, vital, permeating force for good among the student body. But what of the future? What guarantee have we of future service? The Society is not one of past glory and cherished memories alone; it is to-day as vigorous and as influential as it was in former days. Present day problems are proposed and discussed with a gusto bordering on enthusiasm. Inspired by the past and realizing the high standard set before them, its members are resolute and willing, and if the present and past are any index to the future, there is just cause for optimism.

Carolina in Intercollegiate Debating

AMONG all the universities of the country we believe that the University of North Carolina holds a unique position in the field of intercollegiate debating. Unique for enthusiasm, work, and training, and consequent attainment.

It takes enthusiasm, hard work, good training to insure success in any worthy activity. These things, we are glad to say, are much in evidence among the debaters here at the University. A goodly per cent. of the students thoroughly appreciate the value of debating. To the debater, debating is a game of the intellect, intensely interesting and extremely worth while. The debater loves the forum with the same sort of whole-hearted enthusiasm with which the athlete loves the diamond and the gridiron. Also, the debater works. He digs hard for an understanding of the fundamentals of the question for debate, for a masterful logic, and for a clear, strong, accurate, hard-hitting expression. Nor does the debater work only by fits and starts. The representative Carolina debater is in training from his first year until he graduates. The Dialectic and Philanthropic Literary Societies, each with an enrollment of over two hundred men, almost exclusively devote their attention to debating. And every debate, whether it be intrasociety, intersociety, or intercollegiate, is on a competitive basis. Every debating team is chosen by a preliminary contest. Every debater has strong competition, and he must work hard for a place to win it. This enthusiasm, this work, and this training give to the individual the highest type of self-development—development that is truly representative of the University.

Our attainments in debate are commensurate with the enthusiasm, the hard work, and the thorough training of the Carolina debater. We cannot measure the incalculable self-development that has been gained by each individual debater, but our noteworthy record is highly indicative of splendid achievement. Out of thirty-three debates with foremost universities we have lost only ten. Our record in detail is: with Georgia, fourteen debates have been held and nine won; with Vanderbilt three, three won; with Johns Hopkins two, two won; with Washington and Lee two, one won; with George Washington two, one won; with Virginia four, two won; with Tulane one, one won; and with Pennsylvania five, four won.

Tau Kappa Alpha

THE TAU KAPPA ALPHA SOCIETY is a national organization, founded for the two-fold purpose of recognizing excellence in public speaking and of developing interest in oratory and debate among the undergraduates of American colleges and universities. The charter of the North Carolina Chapter was granted by the National Council May 30th, 1910. Any student who represents this University in intercollegiate debate is entitled to membership in the Society.

The Non-Fraternity Man

THE students at the University are divided, part into secret organizations and part not. Between these parts there is, and there always will be, a conflict of opinion and a difference of thought and action. This is inevitable. It is based upon the difference of viewpoints—that of the organization, and that of the individual—from which the two divisions of the student body look at any question. It is not to be regretted, however, so long as the conflict and difference do not degenerate into blind partizanship nor fanatical allegiance. It is a sign, not of weakness, but of life and strength.

The thing that clouds the question, the thing that arouses bitter antagonism on one side and bitter defense on the other is this: the organization, the fraternity, is looked upon as a mark of class distinction, as a thing that in some way gives superiority to its members, as a thing that separates the few from the many. If this be true, if this be the purpose of the fraternity, then the fraternity has no right to exist in a democratic college community. Consciously or unconsciously, every man makes distinctions, but no organization which deliberately fosters such distinctions has a right to life.

A few fraternity men do appear to think that membership in a Greek letter order elevates them above their fellows, but I do not believe such to be the opinion of a large number of fraternity men at this University. Certainly, I know that to the average, straight-thinking, fair-minded non-fraternity man any such opinion is mere rot of the most inconsequential variety. No man who possesses within himself a decent respect for the powers given him can ever be hurt by the attitude of this small minority in the fraternities. Life here is too free, too open, and the fraternity men as a body are too democratic, for any one to be troubled by what a few think.

In a number of ways the fraternity man is fortunate, very fortunate. The course of his life here is made smooth and easy. Friends here before him have prepared the way for him. He receives the support that organization always gives, and he gets the inspiration that comes from close friendships. He is given immediate social standing in the college community. He has a ready means of access to the friendship of a number of the Faculty. The fraternity is for any student a very valuable asset. Every normal student wishes to have these things in his college career. The lack of them and the desire for them are the causes, it must be admitted, of much blatant and insincere opposition to fraternities.

The fraternity is an asset, but it is not an essential asset. It is not necessary to friendships, honors, respect, or success of any kind here. The fine thing about our life at Carolina is that a man, if he be a man, can make of his life what he pleases. The non-fraternity student, by the uprightness of his life, the strength of his character, and the force of his power to think and act, can make of himself what no mere organization can give—a man. He can, with justice to all and fairness to himself, be sincere, broad, and independent. He can win respect and leadership, he can win the closest friendships, he can win in himself that higher thing—the consciousness that he is the inferior of none, the brother of all.

Cupid's Flight

She was my phantom of delight
I loved her true with all my might,
Till once I sat in soft moonlight,
My love was burning at its height,
And thinking sure it was all right,
I squeezed her hand a trifle tight.
Of course it was an oversight,
But quick she smacked with left and right.
I saw the stars extremely bright,
And heard poor Cupid in his flight
Thus bemoan his shameful plight
Oh Love! it is a cruel thing.

Young Men's Christian Association

THE object of the University Young Men's Christian Association, as expressed in its Constitution, "is to unite all students who desire to strengthen the spiritual life and influence of the University; to promote growth in Christian character and fellowship and aggressive Christian work, especially by and for students; to train its members for Christian service; and to lead them to devote their lives to Jesus Christ."

To accomplish this aim, which the Association has set for itself, it engages in many activities, which contribute toward making life on the campus pleasant for the newcomer and stimulating for every student. It strives to be of the largest service to the University community and to enlist as many men as possible in religious work.

Each week the Association holds meetings to which all students are invited; on Sundays it conducts Bible and mission study classes, and sends out students to teach in the Sunday Schools of the community; it conducts the Lyceum Course, and publishes the handbook and directory of students; from time to time it gives social receptions, and makes its building the center of the campus social life.

The Y. M. C. A. is coming to hold a more and more important place in the student life of the University and to make a definite contribution to the development of every well-rounded University man. It has already reached the point where there are few, if any, to whom it does not render a service, and its hope is that with every passing year that service may become more efficient and genuine.

J. C. L., '12.

Ministerial Club

The Ministerial Club was organized in 1907, and is composed of all those students in the University, who expect to make the Christian ministry their life work. Its object is to unite these students in Christian fellowship, development, and service.

Brotherhood of St. Andrews

Chapter No. 1352

The Brotherhood of St. Andrews is an organization whose sole object is the spread of Christ's Kingdom among men, especially young men. Its members are required to keep two rules: the Rule of Prayer, which is to pray daily for the spread of Christ's Kingdom among men, and the Rule of Service, which is to make at least one earnest effort each week to lead some man nearer to Christ, through His Church.

"De Rerum Natura"

Why is it, I often wonder, That a man's most cherished goal When once attained is barren— Just a goal that spurs his soul?	Why cast aside our holdings For a greater thing that's new? Truly distance lends enchantment To the golden apple's view!
--	--

But why when we have pulled them
 Do they lose their luster bright?
 Why should it be that gathered fruit
 'Comes common to our sight.

Why is it attainment of wishes Ne'er calms nor satisfies? I ask of my goddess of reason; Then to me my goddess cries:	This world was first a chaos, A filthy, fertile fen; A dark and dank and dismal place, And you a feeble man.
---	--

At first you groped your way from this;
 Now you advance with skill,
 Because God let ambition
 And to grasp things be man's will.

Now satisfaction, know you, To the fullest great degree, Each in his own attainment Would stop prosperity.	This lack of satisfaction Is the cause of growth in men, And it's made us what we are now Instead of what we might have been.

Athletics at Carolina

AMONG the several phases of college life in the University, athletics holds a prominent place. It is the one ground where every student can meet on a common footing, and where party rivalry plays no part. There is no partiality seen on the athletic field; and the fraternity and non-fraternity men meet with a single interest on the side lines, or bleachers, to cheer for their team. For several years we have been growing towards representative athletics; and each season sees us nearer our ideal—victorious teams recruited from the student body. The result has been a loyalty and support from the students, even in defeat, that is excelled in few other colleges.

The various branches of athletics in the University give every type of student a chance to make good somewhere. For those who lack the weight and temperament necessary on the football field there is track and baseball, where speed and endurance, or a sure eye may win them a place. In addition to these, tennis, basket-ball, and the gymnasium afford an opportunity for athletic achievement. In every branch there is the same requirement for nerve, skill, and self-reliance that gives to our college sports their prominence and popularity. That the college community as a whole is availing itself of the opportunity for athletic participation is shown by the fact that last fall there were four teams on the Varsity football field, and that every spring sees more than fifty candidates for baseball honors before the "canning" process begins. The gymnasium is always crowded, and the tennis courts are in demand at all times. A great interest is taken in class athletics, and here rivalry and class spirit compensate for the lack of skill and honor.

The athletic season of 1911 was an exceptionally successful one. Under the supervision of a trio of the best coaches here in years, Carolina was able to capture the scalps of many of her old rivals. In baseball she won sixteen of the twenty-two games played, two of these being one-to-nothing games against Virginia. The track team was able to bring back the trophy cup from the State Meet at Raleigh, besides winning two other meets and making a creditable showing at the Southern Intercollegiate Meet at Charlottesville. With only mediocre material, Coach Bocock was able to develop our best football team in five years, notwithstanding what our Thanksgiving score may argue to the contrary. In 1911, for the first time in our college history, Carolina produced a basket-ball team; and despite the fact that we were new at the game and had a heavy schedule, we made a good record. Basket-ball adds a new branch to athletics at Carolina, and bids fair to become one of the most important.

With the same competent corps of coaches to make the most of our amateur material, there is every reason to hope that another year will see athletics at Carolina not only representative, but triumphant enough to silence the most chronic kicker.

A SEPIA PRINT

Last night a lady fair and I
Had a talk and we talked of thee.
I gloried then as I told her how
We met, and then on up to now
The things we've done and planned to do
I told: till everything she knew—
I told her - forgive me! O what shall I do!—
That I loved her as much as I ever loved you,
I see her face now as it looked up at me!
My God! How I love her! Can it possibly be!
She's a sepia finish photograph print of thee.

King of Kluttz's Store

*You may talk about your Bogers
Your Sorrells and your Suggs
Your antiquated Colliers
And your prehistoric bugs,
But you haven't said enough
Till you say a little more
For you have to give me a close
On the King of Kluttz's Store.*

*Shoe strings, beeswax, chewing gum and books,
Umbrellas, kerosene and petticoats for cooks.
So fill the bumpers full my lads
And fill them up some more
For we'll have to gulp a good one down
To the King of Kluttz's Store!*

—G. G., '11.

Miscellanies and Locals

After the usual disorderly meeting no business of importance was transacted yesterday by the Faculty, save the election of the new annual quartet. Many were called—few were chosen, but the following were elected:

M. H. STACY—Rough Basso Profundo.

EDDIE MIMS—High Tenor.

ARCHIE HENDERSON—Low Baritone.

Immediately after adjournment the quartet rendered President Venable's touching little lullaby entitled,

“Oh you Senior, you had better study mo',
If you want to get yo' 'ploma 'fo' you go.”

Harmony reigned at all four corners until Dr. Mims's high tenor tried to “realize itself,” and Professor Stacy with his rough bass reached informally for a minor. It was then that Apollo, the god of music, rolled over in his grave and groaned, and Saint Cecilia left her piano in search of the smelling salts. Many windows were shattered.

Miss Nicky Post, the undaunted light-weight perfume pourer of the Tide-water region, defeated Miss Joel McAden, the preposterous powder puffer, pride of Piedmont, in a fierce perfume and powder fuss last week in the Arboretum. Miss Post was clad in lavender and old lace over green pajamas; dainty bells hung from her waist. Miss McAden preferred scarlet chemise trimmed in maroon maraboa; her hair was interwoven with baby blue ribbon. The bout was lively from start to finish. Hoyt's German was Post's main means of attack, while McAden introduced many bold onslaughts with the aid of Japanese Corylopsis. Mac became very boisterous at times and was penalized by three blows upon the wrist, inflicted by referee Clarence Norman. Once she even lost control so as to say "damn." Whereupon the referee fainted, but was brought to on hearing Fred Drane chant a few verses from Deuteronomy backwards. After profuse apologies the bout was resumed. The decisive blow came after twenty minutes of play, when Post worked a wonderful piece of strategem. She suddenly pulled forth a mirror and held it before McAden. Miss Mac was immediately overcome, forgot the contest, and, dropping all implements of warfare, started to picking powder from her pompadour. Posty took the situation in at a glance; she increased her offensive tactics, hurling perfume recklessly all over the opponent; she tickled her under the chin and knees alternating between whiffs of perfume. Finally Miss McAden cried "Piffles," and Miss Post was immediately proclaimed victor.

Mr. Willie B. Sorrell returned last evening from the State Carnival at Raleigh, where he has been spending two days and ten cents. Mr. Sorrell is one of the main springs and jewelers of this vicinity. If you want him to fix your clock just smoke a "cig" beneath his walls.

Mr. Thad Page was on the hill to attend a class or two several days ago. However, he was called back to Raleigh immediately.

Mr. Douglas Rights actually gratted a class last Monday. We don't like to be pessimists, but Douglas, "Beware! You are on the downward road to eternal damnation."

Mr. George Carmichael has opened a "beef" market on the campus. He carries a complete line of hard-luck beefs from the time he just missed drawing to a "royal straight" to a dissertation on why he is not better looking. "Rock" is on duty at all times and guarantees his produce to be very palatable to a "sourgut."

The "Negative Nonentity Boarding House Keepers' Association" held its regular monthly meeting on Friday last at "The Hall." Mr. Bright, chairman of the ways and means committee, read a brilliant essay on gormandizing as an invaluable aid to successful laziness. He sighted many instances from his personal experience. Adam Applejack applied for admission on the grounds that although he did do work, nevertheless he did it in such a systematically cumbersome way that he accomplished absolutely nothing. However, he was "blackballed" because he made false appearances to the public.

CO-EDUCATION

The Senior said
To the fair co-ed:
"I'm like a ship at sea;
Graduation is near,
But much I fear
That I unlucky shall be."

Then whispered she:
"A shore I'll be.
Come rest thy troubled oar."
When darkness fell
All was well,
For the ship had hugged the shore.

A Meeting of the City Fathers

There is no special reason why it should have happened. It seems that the city fathers, accompanied by the younger members of the firm, met by accident at the same time in front of Kluttz's store. And that the book auctioneer just happened along at the same time was no miracle.

"Shakespeare's Complete Works," cried out the silver-tongued book artist, "what'll you give me for it?"

"Two dollars," shouted Walter Stokes indifferently, making sure that Professor E. K. was looking at him. The book vender grinned and knocked it down to him with an accelerated rapidity. After Mr. Stokes's bold venture and departure the bidding gradually ceased, and the streets were now deserted save for the group of city fathers who stood near by exchanging village gossip. The disheartened auctioneer had tried to auction off every conceivable book from "Love's Labors Lost" to "Paradise Regained"—and without avail—but as the junior member of the firm of Eagles & Son gave an embryonic warwhoop, an idea penetrated the ivory crested cranium of the man of many books. Scrambling among his ill-arranged volumes, he finally fished up the coveted book.

"This, gentlemen," he shouted, turning toward the paternal herd, "is a gilt-edge, morocco-bound family Bible—space for family records a specialty."

With one accord the young paternal members of the Faculty ceased their gossiping, gathered up their young and rushed toward the auctioneer en masse.

"What'll you gimme for it," coaxed the auctioneer, displaying the glittering book.

"Two plunks," cried Father Daggett, drawing his jewel closer.

"Two and a half," groaned Pater Eagles as the infant Eagle clawed him above the eye, and a drop of blood crept over his brow.

"Two and a half, who will make it three?" chimed in the auctioneer with his clear, shrill voice.

"Three and a half," yelled Mr. Eagles, who now had blood in his eye.

"Four," said Dean E. K., who had not yet spoken on account of his modesty.

"Four, will you make it five?" answered the book butcher.

"Five," gulped Dr. Hamilton, as his young historian gave him an upper cut under the chin.

Just at this juncture Major Cain, who occupies bachelor quarters in the Barbee Flats, was preparing to cross the street, when the auctioneer turned toward him and shouted, "Family Bible—five dollars, will you make it six?" But Major only smiled, and, like the Levite in the parable, passed by on the other side.

"Six," grunted Papa Eagles, as his little Math. yearling butted him in the solar system—and father obeyed that impulse.

We dare not say to what desperate efforts these faithful paterni would have gone in their attempts to stand by their family records had not Bully Bernard oozed up just then. He put a quietus on the hullabaloo by staking his fortune on the book, in which he inscribed after purchase just above births: "Dedicated to _____, in memory of what might have been."

A NATIVE SKETCH POSED FOR BY "SEAT" BARBEE

No hostile elephant ever leaned on his bay window. No regiment of dead soldiers in their empty gloom ever doubted that there was "always room for one more." No adventurous insect save with suicidal intent ever attempted to encircle his equatorial belt. No beaver upon which he sat ever rose again. "Weel"—This is meant to be a description of "Seat" Barbee.

COLLEGE COURSES

There are various and sundry courses in this curriculum of ours. There are some of the pleasure giving variety, others of the time wasting variety, and still others of that variety that at the gong of the bell you feel like a Freshman after his first visit to the Bursar—much relieved. A few samples will suffice. Geology III has not been able to live down its rep. of being a "snap." English III and V are still "beans." And Math. IV has not ceased to be a "bull." The same species of courses are prevalent in all the universities, and much has been written recently in the leading magazines concerning the inefficiency of such a system of courses. The gist of these numerous articles seems to be that there should be no "snap," no "bull," and no "beans"—but a happy medium or a combination, so to speak, of all three.

Professor Dixon (emeritus), of Commons Hall, has made a decided step toward this coveted goal and is at present offering a special course in "snap beans and bull."

"GOLD DUST TWINS"

Extracts from the Case of Stockton vs. Patterson

A Breach of Promise Suit Tried in Moot Court September 25th, 1911, Before Coughenour, Judge, and a Jury

(Taken from the Court Stenographer's Report of the Case)

(Miss Dickie Stockton, the plaintiff, has just taken the stand.)

Duke Vogler (attorney for the plaintiff): Miss Stockton, please tell this Court and jury what you know, if anything, about the case at Bar.

Miss S.: You bet I will, and I guess I know a plenty, too. Jim Patterson had been coming to see me almost two weeks and had been awful nice to me, and one night he asked me if I would marry him, and he done it most beautiful, too, all down on his knees to me. And I said I sure would be delighted.

Vogler: Well, what did he say then?

Miss S.: He didn't say nothing as I noticed.

Vogler: Then what did he do, if anything?

Miss S. (blushing furiously): What do you suppose he did? Why, he kissed me, of course, and hugged me, too—the brute.

Vogler: How many times?

Miss S.: A great many times that night and every other night for a week until he met that old Battle thing.

Vogler: To whom do you refer by that old Battle thing?

Miss S.: To that deceitful wretch of a roommate of mine, Johnsie Battle. Oh, how I hate her!

Vogler: Take the witness.

Cy. Hogue (attorney for the defendant): Miss Stockton, I understood you to state a few moments prior to this time that you permitted yourself to be embraced and suffered your lips to be gently caressed by Mr. Jimmie Patterson. Now I desire to interrogate from you if you were not Particeps Criminis, or if, in fact, you did not take the initiative.

Miss S.: You will have to talk English to me. I can't understand your Dutch.

Judge: He means, I think, did you kiss Mr. Patterson first, or start anything yourself.

Miss S. (angrily): Certainly not, and good and well do you know it, Cy. Hogue, as many times as you have tried to—

Hogue (hurriedly): There, there! That will do, madam. Stand aside.

Hogue: Mr. Jimmie Patterson will please take the stand.

Hogue: Mr. Patterson, be so beneficent as to communicate to this Honorable Lex Fori and Intelligent Jury the entire knowledge you have of this deplorable and unfortunate affair. With any instances which may have come within the scope of your observation as to how Miss Stockton endeavored to lead you on and how she persuaded you to believe that she was possessed of a bounteous wealth.

Vogler: I object to that form of examining the witness, your Honor.

Judge: Objections sustained.

Hogue: If it may please your Honor, you are in grave error in the decision which you have just rendered; I beg of you, I implore you, I entreat you to reconsider the deplorable, in fact, the astounding blunder which you have just made in regard to the res gestæ, maxim, sac utere tuo ut alienum non—

Judge (interrupting): If Mr. Hogue has anything in point to say on the subject I will hear him. But I hold that as usual he has not; let the case go on.

Hogue (sputtering with rage): You don't know what you are talking about. You are false; I will see Dr. McGehee. I will op—

Judge: Fine him for contempt and see that he does not leave the room until he pays. (To the witness): You may proceed to tell what you know about the case.

Pat.: Well, Judge, you know how some of these summer Co-eds are, in for a good time and pretty skittish, too. Well, Dickie is one of the skittish kind, and after I had been going to see her about three weeks, and loving her up a little, of course, nothing serious, though, I met the other one, Johnsie, and she had Dickie beat a mile. Well, Dickie got sore 'cause I was spooning with Johnsie and raised all kinds of a row. That's about all I know about it.

Hogue: Take the witness.

Vogler: Mr. Patterson, this is not the first little affair of this kind you have had, is it?

Hogue: I object, your Ho— I mean, I object.

Judge: Objections overruled.

Hogue: This is the greatest miscarriage of justice ever perpetrated on the Honorable Moot Court of our great University. The thirteenth amendment of the Constitution provides that, We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union—

Vogler: Your Honor, I think he is raving again and wholly out of order.

Hogue (furiously): If I were not in court, and I hardly feel as if I am, I would say, sir, that you were prevaricating, and I also would like to inquire from what source my unsophisticated young friend acquired the assumption to correct ME on a point of law, and what does he know about that deep subject anyhow? It is irritating enough to have this Court eternally forcing his opinions on me without my having solicited them.

Vogler (also getting mad): That's all right; I know what the thirteenth amendment is, which appears to be more than my wise old friend does. And I again contend that he is wholly out of order.

Judge: Quite right, Mr. Vogler, let the case go on.

Vogler: This is not the first little affair of this kind which you have had, is it Mr. Patterson?

Pat.: Sure not; I have had eight or ten every summer—a new one for every good-looking girl I meet.

Vogler: Stand aside.

Hogue: If the plaintiff has no further evidence I would like to demur.

Judge: On what grounds?

Hogue: On what grounds? On all the grounds—all fifteen of them, which were provided for in such a case by our great Bill of Rights, the Constitution of the United States, and there so ably written by that great statesman, Andy Jackson, of the glorious old State of Tennessee.

Vogler: If it may please your Honor, I would like to tell my misinformed young friend that there are only six grounds for a demurrer in this State and that they are not contained in the Constitution but the revisal and that Mr. Jackson did not write it.

Hogue: There he goes again. There he goes again. What an assumption it is for that person to call me his friend. I object, your Honor, I object. I cannot endure the mortification of being associated with such an infamous party as that one who has just had the assumption to call me his friend—

(The defendant set up as a further defense deceit on the part of Miss Stockton, claiming that she had represented to him that she was very wealthy, in consequence of which he had frequently taken her to the picture show and once even bought her a lemon soda, whereby he was greatly damaged and defrauded of a large sum of money; to wit, sixty cents, and prayed judgment for the same and that he might go without day and recover his costs.)

The case went to the jury after a strong argument by both attorneys, Mr. Hogue's especially fine from a practical standpoint.

The jury returned a verdict of forty-five cents and costs to the defendant.

Braving the Rapids With Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model

OR CROSS-EYED BUT TRUE

WHEN the Blackwood Clarionette blazoned forth the arrival within the village precincts of Chollie Chuzzlewit, two time immemorial rivals secretly swore they would have him—Cleotilda Clamm and Helianthus McVan Ochstein, respective daughters of Sam Clamm, the Respectable, and Patrick McVan Ochstein, the Irresponsible. Chollie, our hero, oblivious of all fell designs, harmlessly betook himself into a café hard by, and having gastronomically killed a hot dog and some pale blue milk, sauntered out to a corn shucking o'er the lea. In the midst of the girlish laughter and boyish shouts, Cleo, beforetime mentioned, found the red ear, and selected Chollie as the most kissable. Thus was he informally annexed by Cleo, and thereby were the jealousies of Helianthus greatly intensified; and Chollie's name and fame thenceforth became a byword. His profession—that of vending maps and selling Jew's-harps—was glorified, and he was sought out by all as the delightfulest agent of Montsears, Wardbuck & Gomery they had ever known. But beware! O Cleo, for thy laurels are in danger and thy steady undergoeth fell transformations! For Chollie had met and secretly called on Helly (as she was known to her intimates about the ville). Passing her paternal tent one siesta he heard a scream, and on looking around, lo! he saw a fair maid in distress! Manfully rushing through the mud that surrounded the adobe tent, he skillfully rescued the crafty Helly from the clutches of a huge mantilla shawl. Thus came about the Janus-like weaving of the web that, unknown to even himself, threatened to entangle our innocent hero.

When Chollie at last realized that he was doubly loved, he began to profit by his implied connections, saving his meal ticket numerous punches and his stomach many qualms. He corrupted the youth with harps, and the maidens with tales of Romance; the men with tales of the City, and the matrons with deadly recipes. Yet, mercenary as he was, he felt a tender pity for his first love, Cleo, whom he had twice neglected to call upon.

And so, at last he resolved to bring matters to a close. The Belle of the

Bourgeois, who had kissed him, he was to cast away forever, and take the cultured but charmingly alluring suffragette who worked in the emporium for his bride. This was not unknown to Cleo, and she was meditating her sweetest revenge the night Chollie called to take her to the Ice Cream and Tonsorial Parlors for a farewell sandwich. Having watched with green-eyed Jealousy Helly's scheme materialize, and knowing Helly was doing it all for spite and did not intend to marry Chollie, she swore to make them unite in the bonds and embark on the stormy sea in a frail craft without a rudder. (Gentle reader, quell thy amorous thoughts!) So she asked Chollie to accompany her to Helly's house to pay her party call—for Helly had only recently made her out. (Imagine Chollie's titillating surprise!) The Damascus calcium had burst upon our hero when Helly said: "In the language of Shakespeare, 'Voulez vous,'" when they were walking under Ye Old Mulberry Sellers tree one gentle eve whilst Mustapha, the gardner-cook, crooned "Culinary Difficulties Cutely Demolished." Cleo had a clear field, for Helly's mother was at University station seeing Beulah Binford present "Lost in a Big City, or Carrie Nation vs. Near Beer." Knowing Helly to be a dull, boring, snarling delusion, fraud, misconception, and walking skeleton, Cleo thought to unmask her before Chollie's eyes and then make them marry. Arriving at the gate, and calling Helly out, and thusly phillipicced: That she knew Chahles a base falsifer and gay deceiver, who wanted to marry her for her money; that he had taken to Helly because of her big name, and since Helly's folks had come over in a cattle ship, whilst hers, Cleo's, had had to come by the Panama Canal; that everybody in town knew Helly had sworn to take Chollie away since Cleo had made a gunpowder drummer explosure a date with her; that she was not jealous, only rejoicing because Helly had a viper in her bosom, had swallowed a whale, and had otherwise disastrously defied the direful demons of demolition, destruction, desolation and death!

* * * * *

Chollie grew old carrying live burdens while Mrs. C. Chuzzlewit grew young looking for a new spouse; Cleo married the grocer's delivery boy, and no one knows whether they lived happily or died rejoicingly.

*The water dripped from the potato's eye,
The cabbage hung his head,
There was a sad old time in the kitchen that night
For the vinegar's mother was dead.*

Southern Life and Trust Company

GOOD POSITIONS FOR GOOD MEN

Eight years ago the Southern Life and Trust Company began a life insurance business. Its capital was $200,000.00. To-day its capital and surplus amount to $580,190.78. All this increase has been earned. It has insurance in force of almost $9,000,000.00. Briefly, this is the record of a successful Southern Life Insurance Company.

One of the reasons for this exceptional record is that the Company has been able to secure the services of ambitious men of character and ability. Men of this stamp are hard to find and we are glad to get in touch with them whenever we can. For such men we have a number of positions open, and their own qualities will furnish them with the best business capital which they can possess. During the past few years a number of University men have established themselves permanently and well in this work. We would like to see more follow their example.

ANSCO FILMS and CYKO PAPER

IF THE BEST IS NONE TOO GOOD FOR YOU, and if you can buy it for the same price, or less, would it not pay you to choose the best? The chromatic values of the Ansco film are correctly balanced. You get the correct effect in reproducing colors by photography. Then, if you will see that your prints are made on Cyko paper, you will find that they are clear and sharp, and greatly superior to those made on ordinary paper. If you wish softer and more beautiful pictures, use Ansco films and Cyko paper.

should not let their pride or prejudices keep them from soliciting life insurance when, as a matter of fact, the profession is above the average and the standard being constantly raised. There is good money to be made by hustlers in the insurance field and no other line affords such opportunities for not only making money, but for building up a good income.

If not interested in the above you probably need insurance. If so, why not patronize one of your best Home Companies. Write us.
