PREFACE

THE work now offered to the public has been specially prepared to meet the requirements of some who, having studied the "Zulu-Kafir Language, &c.," and the "English-Zulu Dictionary," have found that, in reference to the difficult parts of the language, such as the grammar and the dictionary, more light is needed. Among other things, the copious examples will, as illustrating the rules, be of service to them. The desirability of preparing a companion volume to the above was, some time ago, suggested to the author. Botanical and Geological terms, as well as those of Natural History, have been arranged in a convenient form. Various other additions have also been made, partly with the object of assisting those missionaries who are accustomed to attend the sick, and prescribe for them simple remedies. The writer knows from early experience the necessity of becoming acquainted, in the native tongue, both with the parts of the human body and the names of ordinary diseases. The author has also suggested methods of committing to memory long and unknown foreign words. To write chapters on mnemonics does not, of course, come within the scope of the present volume; but attention to the simple rules given will greatly assist in the acquisition of a useful vocabulary.

260815

The remarks, as to the superstitions of the South-African natives, will enable the reader to understand what would otherwise be unintelligible.

The preparation of this work has, for several months, early and late, absorbed much of the leisure of a busy man who believes that it will be as useful to beginners and others as the books which, for many years, have been favourably received.

OBJECTIVE VERBS.

See “ Zulu-Kafir Language, &c.,” Lesson 39, page 43.

Additional examples expressive of motion to a place :—

Examples.

Beza' kuwelela ngapetsheya, they came to cross over to the other side.

Babuyela ndawonye, they returned to one place.

Sakupukela endhlini, we ascended to the house.

Imikonto yafinyelela ezinnqoleni, the spears reached the waggons.

Sabuyela emakaya, we returned to our homes.

Badhlulela pambili em Lazi, they passed on before to the um Lazi.

Siyobuyela em Gungundhlovu, we shall return to Maritzburg.

CAUSATIVE VERBS.

See as above, Lesson 39, page 43.

The Causative form seems to embrace two ideas. The first is, to cause to move, or act; the second implies a development of energy. The general meaning is that which affects, as a cause. The Causative form in Zulu resembles the Hebrew Hiphil.

Examples.

Iyagwavumainja, the dog growls.

Sayigwavumisa, we made the dog growl (by irritating it).

Bonda isijingi, stir the porridge (this is a command).

Yibondise intombazana isijingi, make the girl stir the porridge.

Iyamila lembali, this flower is growing.

Uyamilisa lembali, you cause it to grow (that is, by proper attention).

Wapuma, he went out.

Ngampumisa, I caused, or made him go out.

Siyamtyetyisa umfana, we cause the boy to hurry (by threats, or promises).

In some connections, the Causative form is equivalent to help or aid, as when one carries part of a man's heavy load.

Examples.

Sayipumuzisa indoda ngomtwalo wayo, we helped a man with his heavy load.

Isihlobo sami siyangipetisa, my friend helps me to bind.

To express the thought that something has been "completely" or "thoroughly" done, the "is" of the Causative is doubled.

Examples.

Geza, wash ; gezisisa, wash thoroughly.

Tyanelisisa indhlu izingosini zonke, sweep thoroughly the house in all the corners.

Uyalumisisa kakulu lomuntu, this man bites very hard.

Londisisa isikwama sami, keep very carefully my purse.

Qina, be firm ; qinisa, make firm ; qinisisa, make thoroughly firm.

Qonda, understand ; qondisa, make to understand ; qondisisa, consider very carefully.

Fingqa, double up ; fingqisa, cause to double up ; fingqisisa, double up very carefully.

Cwilisa, dip or steep ; cwilisisa, steep thoroughly.

A few words in "ka" form the Causative by changing "ka" to "sa."

Examples.

Damuka, open in the middle (as a body of men) ; damusa, open a way into, &c., &c., i.e. make them give way.

Enyuka, go up ; enyusa, make to go up.

Goduka, go home ; godusa, make to go home.
Suka, get away ; susa, take away.

Some verbs in "la" form the Causative by simply changing "la" into "za."

Examples.

Sondela, approach ; sondeza, cause to approach.
Kumbula innwadi yami, remember my letter.
Mkumbuze ngennwadi yami, remind him of my letter.
Silimele, we are hurt ; basilimaza, they hurt us.
Vela sikubone wena, come forth that we may see you.
Veza inngane, bring forth the infant.
Veza imali yami, produce my money.

The Reflective Verbs in Zulu resemble the Hebrew Hithpael. They are called reflective because the agent acts on himself. The verbs are transitive and intransitive. See "Zulu-Kafir Language," page 43.

Examples.

Zazi, know thyself ; zazisa, make oneself to know.
Nikela, give for ; ukuzinikela, you must give for yourself.
Ungazingoba, you may conquer yourself.
Zinqumele, cut off for yourself.
Niyazitanda, you love yourselves ; ngizitanda, I love myself.
Bayo zisindisa, they will save themselves.
Asizikalele, let us bemoan ourselves.
Ufanele ukuzityo, you must speak of yourself.
Siyazisebenzela, we are working for ourselves.

In these examples the subject and object of the verb are one and the same.

RECIPROCAL VERBS.

These frequently occur in Zulu. The word has shades of meaning, but a prominent idea is, to be mutually interchangeable. See "Zulu-Kafir Language," page 43, also page 95.

Examples.

Niyatandana, you love one another.

Niyatandana nobabili, you both love each other.

Bayagolozana, they glare at one another.

Siyakusizana, we shall help one another.

Bayetembana, they confide in one another.

Batetisana abafazi, the women scolded one another.

Many Reciprocal verbs are used with "na."

Examples.

Bedukelana nabo, they strayed one from another.

Sitandana kakulu naye, he and I love each other much.

Sintanganye naye, he and I are the same age.

Savalelisana nabo, we took leave one of another.

COLLÔQUIAL CONTRACTIONS.

These are very numerous in the language, but a little attention to a few of them will give the key to all. In addition to those found in the "Zulu-Kafir Language," page 86, we give other examples. Letters are elided, and, in other instances, several letters are contracted into one or two. They are, even to those advanced in the Zulu, a little confusing.

Before the "ku" of the infinitive, the "e" in "ye" or "ze" is occasionally changed into "o."

Examples.

Uma beyokuqonda, batukutela kakulu, when they understood, they were very angry.

Baza bati uma bazokuhamba bonke, it came to pass when they had all gone.

Whenever "se" comes before the sound of "u" in the next syllable, the "e" may be changed into "o" = so.

Examples.

Sokuyisikati sokusenga, it is now time to milk.

Sokwanele, it is sufficient.

PASSIVE VOICE FOR THE ACTIVE.

In the "Zulu-Kafir Language," page 60, this subject is dealt with; but additional information may be needed. A similar peculiarity is found in the Hebrew, as: "May this land be given to Thy servants," that is, "May you give this land," &c. (Num. xxxii. 5.) "And the words of Esau were declared to Rebekah," or, "They told Rebekah the words of Esau." (Gen. xxvii. 42.)

Examples.

Some verbs, not reciprocal, such as lunga, dhlula, ala, eduka, &c., are used with "na."

Examples.

Lungani namazi enkosi, do as the chief tells you.

Sohamba ngomhlomunye, njengaloko sasikulume njalo nabo, we will go the day after to-morrow as we (we and they) said.

Wala nezinkabi zonke, he refused all the oxen.

FIGURES OF SPEECH.

1. HYPERBOLE.

Figurative expressions are characteristic of early literature. The vivid conceptions of the imagination predominate over general and abstract language. Hyperbole expresses much more than the truth.

Examples.

Iyeza indhlovu enkulu; izakusinyatela nezinyawo, a great elephant is coming; it will tread upon us with its feet = the enemy is coming.

Uyinkomo yabantu lomfundisi, this missionary is the people's cow, that is, he is a generous friend to the natives.

Waginga iminyaka ngeminyaka, he swallowed year after year.

Ngibilelwe ukufa, I am boiled over with sickness, that is, sickness has almost done for me.

2. IRONY.

This is a mode of speech in which the meaning of the speaker is contrary to his words.

Examples.

Akatukuteli yena, he is an irascible person.

Kanamali lomlungu, this white man has no money = he is very rich.

Aikulupele lenkonyana, this calf is not in good condition = it is fat.

IMPERATIVE MOOD.

Examples.

Bopelanini izinkabi zetu, inspan our oxen at once.

Yanini lapaya, go yonder.

Wozanini lapa, come here at once.

The particle "si" is sometimes found, especially in a participle, before a root of one syllable.

Examples.

Bakuluma besiti, they spoke, saying.
Yaisiti mkosi, the chief said.

The verb repeated may often be expressed by—"attentively," "thoughtfully," "continually," "again and again," "without ceasing," &c.

Examples.

Uname wangibona, wangibona, wangibona, my mother looked at me attentively.
Batyaya, batyaya, batyaya, batyaya, they fired volley after volley.
Babulala, babulala, babulala, they killed without stopping.
Wakuluma, wakuluma, wakuluma, he talked incessantly.
Batyaye, batyaye, batyaye, baqedeke, badhlule, baya' kubulala pambili, they fired round after round, and having finished, moved forward to kill farther on.

The repetition of a verb, as in Hebrew, often intensifies the action. See "Zulu-Kafir Language," page 41.

Examples.

Usedhle wadhla, he ate ravenously.
Senzile ukwenza, we have done our best.
Bayala nokwala, they refuse positively.
Sizakufa nokufa, we shall surely die.

THREATS

are used, as in other languages.

Examples.

Ngakubulala wena, I killed you, that is, I will be the death of you.

Woza unyatele innjobo yami, come and tread on my skin tails.

Cupe! ungapindi futi mfana, look out! boy, that you do not repeat that.

Ngiyinnyama ebindayo kuwena, I am a choking morsel to you.

Woza lapa ngiwapule amatambo ako, come here, and I will break your bones.

Ngakutyaya ngewisa, I will strike you with a knobkirrie.

Sanixotyana nonke, we will drive you all away.

Hamba shinga upanyekwe intamo, go, you scoundrel, and be hanged.

Another way of intensifying or reducing in force an action is simply to double the root of, usually dissyllabic verbs.

Examples.

Qopaqopa, mill (as the edge of a coin), from qopa, to notch.

Qotyaqotyana, act in a threatening or violent manner.

Hambahamba, walk about, from ukuhamba, to walk.

Bekabeka, look quickly or cautiously, from ukubeka, to look.

Jubajuba, flutter exceedingly, from ukujuba, to flutter.

Cabacaba, clear very carefully, from caba, to clear.

Citacita, waste a little.

Such verbs are sometimes used with "ukuti."

Examples.

Ukuti ngekengeke, go off tossing the head in a threatening manner.

Ukuti lekeleke, go along.

Trisyllabic Verbs elide the final syllable of the first part of the root.

Examples.

Guquguqula, turn a little, from ukuguqula, to turn.

Rapurapuna, cut much grass, from rapuna, cut a little grass,
&c.

The above rule seems to have several exceptions, as the root may have one meaning and the duplication another, as :—

Examples.

Buqabuqa, dash down (as a man), from buqa, go over the ground a second time.

Bungabunga, wag the tail (as a dog), from bunga, flock in small numbers.

THE DUPLICATION OF NOUNS.

Nouns, like verbs, are, for a similar reason, frequently doubled.

Iqalaqala (i), sharp, knowing person, from ukuqala, to begin with, &c.

USE OF THE VERB "UKUTI."

See "Zulu-Kafir Language," pages 27 and 68.

Additional remarks on the use of "ukuti" seem to be necessary. The verb in the primary sense means to "say," or think, as siyakutinina, what shall we say?

1. In some connections it should be rendered "just," as Ziti zidhlula izinkomo zetu, our cows just pass away (as by sickness).

2. It more frequently means "to happen," "to come to pass," "and," "now," "so it was," &c. :—

Examples.

Ngesikati ngokwati ngaso, at the time it happened.

Kwati ebuya ehamba, it came to pass when he went.

Kute mhla semuka, it happened the day we departed.

Kwati bangene esikepeni ekuseni, it came to pass, they embarked early in the morning.

Kwati kusihlwa sahlale kona, and so it was that we stayed there.

3. It is sometimes used to attract attention to a subject :—

Example.

Ngangisate ngihlabelela, I tried to sing.

4. With "nga" ti expresses such ideas as a "wish," or "seems to be" :—

Examples.

Ngingati umuntu, I seem to be a person.

Kungati ihashi, it seems to be a horse.

Kuyini lapana? kungatiti indhlovu mhlaumbe indhlulamiti, what is that yonder? It seems to be an elephant, or a giraffe.

Kungati singazi, would that we knew.

Kungati akulungile, it seems to be wrong.

Kungati sihlakanipile, we seem to be very clever.

5. It may also express "probably," or "I should think" :—

Examples.

Kwangati singafika em Gungundhlovn, I should think we could reach Maritzburg.

Kwasongati leyondoda ijojiwe, the man was probably impaled.

Kungati singafika, we can probably arrive.

6. The "ti" is occasionally doubled, and means "probably," &c,

Examples.

Sengatiti lizakuduma emtambama, in the afternoon it will probably thunder.

Sekungatiti singemuka, we may probably go.

Sekungatiti singalala kona, we shall probably sleep there.

Sengatiti kungavela innyanga ehlananipileyo, a clever doctor will probably turn up.

7. In some sentences it seems to have the meaning of "seemingly," "apparently."

Examples.

Bekungatiti inyoka, it was seemingly a snake.

Bekungatiti ubane, it was apparently lightning, i.e. a flash of, &c.

8. Ukuti may often be rendered "namely," &c. :—

Examples.

Bafika izolo, ukuti, abayizinyanga.

Bakupuka, ukuti, baya kwesikulu, they went up, that is to say, they went to a man of importance.

We cannot always render the idiom in English, and the explanations and examples given have by no means exhausted the subject. The verb must, in its various connections, be carefully studied.

DIMINUTIVE NOUNS, ETC.

(a) THE SIMPLE FORM.

See "Zulu-Kafir Language," page 89.

1. Change the final "o" or "u" into "w" and then add "ana."

Isilo, isilw, isilwana; from wild animal, small ditto.

Abantu, abantw, abantwana.

Into, thing; intwana, little thing.

2 If the last consonant of the noun be "b," "p," or "m," it is changed before the above termination. The "b" is changed into "j" or "ty," "p" into "ty," and "m" into "ny." Should two of these labials be together, they would be changed as follows, "mb" to "ny," and "mp" to "nty."

Examples.

Ingubo, inguty, ingutyana; the word means blanket, small blanket.

Intambo, intanj, intanjana; from cord.

Intombi, girl; intomb, intombazana, young girl.

4. When "a," "e," or "i" is preceded by "n," "t," or "l," then "yana" is the form used, the final vowel being dropped: umfula, umfuyana.

The student should make for himself diminutive nouns, not one or two, but a large number, and then correct, according to the above rules. He may, very occasionally, find exceptions. This lesson, though rather difficult, will, when thoroughly understood, be found very useful. We should resolve to master the subject, comparing this with the one found in the other work.

ANGLO-ZULU, ETC., WORDS.

The Zulu language has, like the English, been enriched by the addition of foreign words; and the meaning of other words has been extended. Jevons, in his "Elementary Lessons in Logic," page 37, says: "The meaning of a term in extension consists of the objects to which the term may be applied." "Extension is synonymous with breadth." A name is applied to a wider class of objects than before. The process is sometimes called "Generalization." Ingonyama is the primary meaning of the word lion; but in its extended form it denotes "Excellency," a title of honour given to viceroys, &c. To express some English nouns, Zulu words must be compounded.

1. National and personal names take as a prefix "u," "um," or "umu." But this rule has many exceptions in favour of the second class, the incipient of which is "ili," especially in the names of countries.

Examples.

um Sutu, plural abe Sutu ; i Ngisi, plural ama Ngisi.
 u Yisake, Isaac ; u Solomone, Solomon ; u Samyali, Samuel.
 i Kailo (i), Cairo ; i Filistya (i), Philistine ; i Kwebeka (i), Quebec.
 u Davide (u), David ; u Adonija, Adonijah ; i Edome (i), Edomite.

2. Collectives frequently take as a prefix "u."

Examples.

u Zulu, the whole of the Zulu nation ; u Sutu, the whole of that nation.

3. The names of rivers require "ili" or "um" as the incipient syllable.

Examples.

i Pishone, Pison ; i Havila, Havilah ; i Gihone, Gihon ; um Ferate, Euphrates.

4. Many common nouns require "u" as the prefix for the singular and form the plural in "o."

Examples.

Ushelene, shilling ; oshelene, shillings.

Umese, knife ; omese, knives.

Umbaimbai, cannon ; ombaimbai, cannons.

 THE DUPLICATION OF THE RADICLE.

The meaning of a noun, verb, or adjective is sometimes intensified or augmented by the repetition of the root. There is a greater degree, a larger number or size, more beauty or goodness. In a few instances the force is diminished. This rule, however, has many exceptions.

1. Examples.

Kanye ; kanyekanye, all together.
 Isikau ; isikaukau, break or interruption.
 Lenga ; lengalenga, dangle.
 Qopa, notch ; qopaqopa, mill, as edge of coin.
 Isele ; iselesese, toad.
 Unkulu, great one ; Unkulunkulu, very Great One.
 Isivungu ; isivunguvungu, whirlwind.
 Isitititi (isi), very foolish or helpless person.
 Itweletwele, great agitation or fear.

Ukuti tama tama, enjoy oneself very much.

Ukuti vanga vanga, speak very low.

Ukuti tuku, thrust, as with a great movement.

Ukuti tuku tuku, thrust, as with little movements.

Iwetyewetye, great liar.

Bekabeka, look cautiously.

Bekabeka, place quickly.

2. We now give examples of the many exceptions found in the language, or instances where the root means one thing and the duplication another.

Examples.

Kita, carry off frequently, as plunder ; kitakita, tickle.

Isipuku, kind of cloak ; isipukupuku, simpleton.

Pala, scrape ; ukuti pala pala, to run about.

Kuta, grow mouldy ; kutakuta, work wearily.

Ukuti futi, to do a thing hastily ; ukuti futi futi, to throng.

Isidaka, black soil ; isidakadaka, kraals thick together.

Buqa, harrow in as seed, &c. ; buqabuqa, dash down.

Bunga, flock of birds ; bungabunga, wag tail as dog.

Imbobo, hole, as eye of needle ; imbobombobo, soft rich soil.

Zama, strive ; zamazama, shake, rock.

Notwithstanding the exceptions, the rule will, when the student knows how to use it, be very valuable, especially when great emphasis is required.

ZULU RELIGION AND ITS INFLUENCE ON THE LANGUAGE.

The Natives believe in a supreme being called u Nkulunkulu. He is not, however, an object of worship, which seems to be restricted to the spirits of the departed, who reside underground near the villages whence, by death, they took their departure. The connecting link between the living and the dead is the "Bulu doctor," who is supposed to ascertain the causes of sickness and trouble. The dead appear to the living in dreams. The Zulu can understand and fully appreciate Isaiah xiv. from verse 9. The doctor's fee for a consultation is usually one shilling.

Examples.

Ancestral spirit, idhozi, or itongo.

To indicate successfully as, isanusi, ukubula.

Plant burnt in honour of the dead, impepo.

Feeble ancestral spirit, esompunzo isituta.

The shade is still in him, isitunzi sisekona.

You are speaking of a dead person, ungikumbuza amaliba.

Those below say so, kutya umhlaba.

Their spirits, abakubo.

Bayekubula ezinnyangeni, they have gone to consult the doctors.

Siyabonga amadhlozi, we worship the spirits.

Amadhlozi anamandhla amakulu, the spirits have great power.

Tree, the branches of which are laid upon graves, umlahlan-kosi.

Ngiyeke, ngiyeke, ngiyeke, Qqilaza ! leave me, leave me, leave me, Mumps !

Tetan' amadhlozi, address the spirits.

Siyakuya ezinnyangeni nakwezokubula nakwezokwelafa, we shall consult both the bula and medicine doctors.

Ukuhlaba unkulugwane, to howl as a dog.

Ngiti kwenza esennja isituta, I think the spirit of a dog did it.

2. They have charms to prevent spirits from entering huts, to preserve from sickness; also love and lightning charms.

Examples.

Charm, isibango.

Love charm, umbetelelo, umqotelo, umtelelo.

Ngitelwe isikohlela engalweni, singiyolele injama, spittle has dropped on the arm; it predicts for me meat.

This small bird (imbucu) is bad luck, imbucu le' isisila.

Kwehlile umhlola, an omen has alighted.

Ukupanga umhlola, to drive away a bad omen.

UKUHLONIPA WORDS.

This refers to the behaviour of people towards the chief members of their families. Words are, for the following reasons, invented:—1. A wife is not permitted to call her husband by his name. 2. Neither the husband nor his mother-in-law is allowed to mention the name of the other. 3. A girl may not mention the name of a married sister's husband. Ukuhlonipa customs have introduced a number of words into the Zulu language, only occasionally heard.

Example.

Instead of isandhla, hand, isamkelo would be used, because the proper name is Usandhla.

Common nouns would have to be found or invented for such proper names as u Dongana (little bank), u Jojo (finch, kind of), u Sihlahla (clump of trees), u Pikane (contend together), u Zungu (loneliness), u Zuladuma, the wife could not use either zula or duma. There are other names such as u Magaba (bottles), u Mehwana (small eyes), u Nhlaka (door frame), and many others.

ZULU POETRY.

SPECIMENS OF, BUT NOT MODELS.

(See "Zulu-Kafir Language," &c., page 71.)

Nanti irubo lamabuto ake u Tyaka, lokuti; this is a soldiers' song—the soldiers of Tyaka.

“ Waqedaqeda izizwe !
 Uyakuhlasela pi na ?
 He ! uyakuhlasela pi na ?
 Wahlula amakosi !
 Uyakuhlaselapi na ?
 Waqedaqeda izizwe !
 Uyakuhlaselapi na ?
 He ! He ! He !
 Uyakuhlaselapi na ? ”

The idea is that he had made an end of so many tribes, it was difficult to find others to conquer. The repetition of the interjection “ he ” expresses great astonishment. This is a specimen of native composition.

The following first appeared in print twenty-one years ago :—

TIXO YILONDE IN KOSIKAZI.

“ Praise God,” &c.

Dumisani u Tixo umtombo wenhlanhla,

Nimdumise nani bezulu ibandhla, u Yisi, non Yana, no Moya ongcwele.

The Hon. T. Shepstone, C.M.G., who kindly criticized some hymns for the author, translated the above doxology.

Umkululi wetu

 Umhlanleli wetu,
 Masijabuleke
 Ngenhliziyo zetu ;
 Umkululi ufikile
 Umkululi sezimzwile.

Translate this into English prose. In order to form a perfect rhyme, the vowel sounds and the parts following must be the same, the parts immediately preceding different, and the rhyming syllables must be different. Is the metre Iambic, or Trochaic, or Anapastic? And does it belong to the trimeter, tetrameter, or some other class?

Examine this hymn critically, and try to compose something better. But do not attempt such composition until the laws of Prosody have been very carefully studied.

State what metrical rules have been violated in the above composition, and enumerate, in order, the violations. The elision of the final vowel would not be considered a transgression.

These two verses with chorus are a translation of a well-known hymn.

THE CLASSIFICATION OF ZULU WORDS.

While preparing this Vade-mecum, it has occurred to the author that Zulu words may be arranged in three classes, the Guttural, the Dissonant, and the Musical.

1. The Guttural letter "r" represents the first class. Grout calls it a palatal; why, I know not. It is as much a throat letter as "g" in the Dutch language, and ך in the Hebrew. It imparts the quality of harshness to the words in which it occurs:—

Examples.

Isirelerele, large spear; rafurafuzela, act ferociously.
 Rara, desire greedily; isiraradolo, strong intoxicating drink.
 Raya, be coarse, or rough; ratyaryatya, rough, or coarse.

In very many of the words beginning with "r" there is roughness or hardness in the thoughts.

Examples.

Ukuti ralagaqa, come together in conflict; ukutu ratyaryatya, sound roughly.

Raraza, fiz; rudula, drag along the ground, &c.

2. The Dissonant class is distinct from this. The words contain the clicks "q," "x," "c."

Examples.

Uqumqumu, n., Cape gooseberry ; qunquta, run steadily on.
 Uqweqwe, crust of bread ; qoqa, collect in one place as cattle.

Qaqabula, scratch, as bushes ; xoxa, court, tell a story.

Celisisa, beg earnestly ; cemezeka, live comfortably.

The student will observe that when words begin with
 "c," "q," or "x," that click predominates, one of another class being seldom found ; so that they might be subdivided into "c," "q," and "x" words.

Examples.

Caca, be plain, or clear ; cicima, overflow ; cwecwa, pure, or shave off, &c.

Qaqamba, throb ; qaqana, rip together ; uqoqoqo, windpipe.

Ukuti xapa xapa, sputter ; ixoxi, a liar ; ixoxo, talk about ordinary matters.

In a few words both a click and a guttural are found.

Examples.

Iqwara, quagga ; icalara, a male dog.

The "x" click is very seldom found in words beginning with "p," but in those beginning with "b" all the clicks occur ; the class "b" is intended, and not every word.
 A similar remark may be made of words beginning with "n." Let the student examine the other letters of the alphabet.

3. The Musical. The vowels in Zulu are sounded as in Italian, and when these are combined with such consonants as "l" and "m," "v" and "p," that is, liquids and labials, the words are soft, sweet, melodious.

Examples.

Lamula, make peace ; landa, follow ; ubulima, misfortune.

Mangala, wonder ; monyula, withdraw ; isimungulu, a dumb person.

Vunula, adorn ; vanga, mingle ; imvubelo, leaven ; vula, open.

Pupuma, boil up ; pumula, rest ; pungula, unload ; puta, fail.

HOW TO COMMIT TO MEMORY ZULU WORDS.

While committing to memory hard and long Zulu words, the above classification will, it is hoped, assist the mental process. Let the unknown words be associated, as far as possible, with the known. In the mind familiar ideas become mental hooks on which to hang the unfamiliar.

Examples.

Bowler is a mental hook for the Zulu	bola,	rot,	decay.
Pooh! pooh!	„	„	impupu, flour.
The letter B	„	„	bi, bad.
The letter P	„	„	pi? impi, army.
Do, pa	„	„	Duba, treat with contempt.
Coal	„	„	kola, satisfy.
Bah! bah (interj.)	„	„	baba, be bitter.
Barn	„	„	isibane, candle.
Toe	„	„	isitole, isito.
Tea	„	„	tina, umtini.
Sing	„	„	singa, shave, &c.
Seal	„	„	sila, grind.

These examples could, of course, be multiplied. As soon as the reader has acquired some knowledge of Zulu words, he will discover that they become very useful mental pegs. An assimilative memory is needed. He should form the habit of receiving and absorbing ideas, so that they can, whenever wanted, be easily recalled.

Examples.

Ikati, cat, is a mental hook for	kati (adv.)	inkati,	point of time; umkate, space, &c.
Baba	„	„	babakazi, babama, babala, and many others.
Daka, intoxicate	„	„	idaka, indaka, isidaka, umdaka, ndaka, isidakadaka, umdakane.
Ihlaba, prickly aloe	„	„	inhlaba, umhlaba, hlabana, ihlabati, inhlabati, isihlabati, isihlabane, &c.
Komba, point	„	„	inkomba, isikombazane, ikombe, umkombe, and so on.

HOW TO COMMIT WORDS TO MEMORY, FURTHER ILLUSTRATIONS.

Zeal is a mental hook for the Zulu word	zila,	abstain from food.
No, ma	„ „ „ „	noma, whether, or.
Two	„ „ „ „	tula, be silent.
Me	„ „ „ „	mila, germinate.

From the above Zulu words, as mental hooks, form others. For example, taking the first word, "zila," we can associate with it the following:—Umzila, ukuzila, zileba, zilela, zilisa. In this way, one may easily fix in his memory about two hundred very useful words. And as they are, like garments on pegs, associated together, you cannot think of one without also recollecting the others. When the above plan is carefully followed, the learning of a language is no longer a task but a pleasure.

REMARKS ON THE "ENGLISH-ZULU DICTIONARY."

THIS part of the work, which has necessarily taken a long time to prepare, now contains Zulu for more than 23,000 English words—a number amply sufficient for all ordinary purposes. Many others, such as technical and scientific terms, cannot, at least for several years to come, be translated into the native language. Such foreign-looking words would resemble an unknown tongue. A Dictionary should simply keep pace with the mental development of the people. No great advantage, either to students or others, could possibly be gained by introducing a large number of Zuluisd words. Nor would it be considered desirable to largely increase the number of compound terms. A few of each class will be found in the lessons and the exercises. Many words are common, both to the Zulu and Xosa dialects. In some instances they are in meaning identical. When compared, the two languages are in many respects similar, having the same grammatical construction. It occasionally happens even among the Zulus, that words considered obsolete in one tribe are well known in another. There are also Provincial, Tefula, Hlonipa, and other terms. Similar remarks might be made of our own country. Such Cornish expressions as "He is very wisht," "Where is he to," and "I belong to be well," would not be intelligible in, say, the north of England.

The accent is usually placed on the penultimate; but when a word consists of several syllables, it often takes a secondary accent. Should the final vowel be elided, the accent would, of course, fall on the final syllable. This is also the case when monosyllabic particles, such as "nje," "ke," "ze," "ni," follow the final syllable. Other monosyllables, as "na," "le," "bo," have a separate, independent, and emphatic accent.

In past editions a few errors in spelling have unavoidably occurred. At the end of this volume corrections, in the form of "errata," will be found.
