tember 25 The weather since our last report has been cool and pleasant, and every way favorable for out-door business. We have not heard much, nor indeed any complaint of sickness this week; the soon as we can do so from medical advice. The Mississippi was yesterday morning 11 feet 2 in ches below high water mark, which would show a rise of 10 inches; but as it has been caused by the south easterly winds it is but temporary—is actual stage is 12 feet below high water mark.

COTTON.—In our remarks of the 18th inst. on the subject of this important article of culture and commerce, we said that its prospects were, to say the least of them, satisfactory; in which assertion we are amply sustained by succession advices from every quarter of the manufacturing world, from Liverpool, in particular, highly gratifying intelligence continues to be received and Liverpool may be justly considered the crite rion for the whole manufacturing interest of Great Britain. According to circulars from many highly respectable houses in that place, the market continues firm at fair prices, and, not-withstanding the imports from 1st Jan, to 24th, July, 1830, have exceeded those of the same time in 1829, 54,4000 bales, yet the demand continued unabated. To the planters of the United States this is all important information, for the increase in the import and consequent consumption of our cotton for the present year, exceeds that of last by 88,000 bales, while there has been a considerable decrease in the import from all other places. Thus the increased export of American cottons to that port alone, almost equals the excess of the present crop faceived here) over that of last year; and when we take into consideration the increasing comsumption of American cottons in France, we heritate nat to say that the prospects of the approaching crop are highly satisfactory, as well to the planter, as to the merchant and freighting interest. As we have digressed thus far from usual common place disposition of our remarks, we would said be seen that the probable appears and sainty of the two crops of the country of direct sources, though no doubt entitled to credence to a certain extent. The creps of Tennessee and N. Alabama are said to have been very much injured by the excessive droughts so much so, that in, some places the bowls have falled from the stall. The rich lands of Mississippi and Louisians have been very freedstive, while and Louisians have been very Productive, while the poorer have, given short crops; it is, howevery apposed that these two tates will not furnish less than they did last yells.
