SUCCESS OF COMMUNITARIAN CHEST ASSURED

IRISH PARLIAMENT WILL NOW SIT AS A CONSTITUENT BODY

Text of Irish Free State Constitution Bill Made Public To-day Embraces Vital Provisions of Irish Treaty; Governor-General Will Be Appointed By Proclamation.

London, Nov. 25.—The text of the Irish Free State Constitution Bill presented by Premier Bonar Law to the British Parliament yesterday and made public to-day, sets forth that the Irish Parliament is constituted in accordance with the Irish Free State Agreement Act, and is sitting as a Constituent Assembly, having passed the Irish Constitution Act embodying the Irish Constitution.

This constitution, the bill states, is to be construed with reference to the Irish Treaty, which is also embodied in the bill as a schedule, and it is provided that if any provision of the constitution is repugnant to the Treaty it is in respect to that repugnancy absolutely void and inoperative.

The Irish constitution is to come into being on its being proclaimed by the King, but the King is to appoint a Governor-General any time after the proclamation appoint a Governor-General.

The establishment of the Irish Free State, it is stipulated, shall not affect any liability to pay taxes or duties payable in respect to the current or pending financial years.

The second Bill presented by the Prime Minister, making provisions consequent upon the establishment of the Irish Free State, sets up a trust for providing colleges for ex-service men in Ireland.

This Bill modifies the existing government of Ireland as to which it applies only to northern Ireland. A Governor of Northern Ireland is to be appointed with a salary of £8,000 a year.

The oath to be taken by members of the Oireachtas is as follows: "I do solemnly swear true faith and allegiance to the constitution of the Irish Free State as by law established and that I will be faithful to His Majesty King George V., his heirs and successors, lawfully and constitutionally, in accordance with the said constitution."

GREEK CABINET HAS RESIGNED Athens, Nov. 25.—The Greek Cabinet has resigned. The political situation is extremely complicated. The military authorities are taking an uncompromising attitude regarding the former Ministers, who are on trial charged with treason.

REICHSTAG VOTES ITS APPROVAL OF GERMAN POLICY Berlin, Nov. 25.—The Reichstag to-day voted its approval of the motion made by the German Government in its declaration of policy. All the parties voted for the motion with the exception of the Communists and three members of the anti-Semitic party, who cast their votes against approval.

GERARD REMAINS "DEAD" TO GERMANY New York, Nov. 25.—James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, who was reported by German newspapers recently as having died in Paris, has no intention of denying the report. "No," he commented as he read clippings from German newspapers denouncing him as the enemy of Germany, "why should I tell them I'm alive, now that they've used up the obituary?"

DISEASE ATTACKS SIBERIAN EXILES PEOPLE REALIZE COMMUNITY NEED

Situation at Gensan, Korea, Reported Deplorable City's Drive for $86,600 Is Making Headway

Gensan, Korea, Nov. 25.—Admiral Star's "white" squadron, driven from Vladivostok by Siberian forces sympathetic to the Moscow Soviet, has sailed for Fusan, a southeastern Korean port with a military men and their families.

The situation of the rest of the refugees, ashore at Gensan, remains deplorable. Among the children sixty-two cases of measles have been reported, of which twelve were fatal.

Other Cities Having Great Success in Movement That the success of the Community Chest Drive in Victoria is assured, that the public is awakening to the realization that it is the most efficient and economical way of raising funds for the charitable work of the various organizations who have entered upon this modern plan, and that it is up to Victoria to show other cities in Canada and the United States that the Community Chest can be accomplished just as readily as elsewhere, is the sentiment expressed to-day by the volunteers at headquarters, corner of View and Broad Streets, where donations are being received.

Since the offices of the Community Chest have been established on the street level in place of an upstairs location, citizens have been flocking in to ask for information and make their contributions toward the annual fund which will cover the requirements of all the associations and organizations which have come under the head of the new movement.

Winnipeg is raising a Federated Charity Budget of $450,000 and the first day of the drive nearly $80,000 was contributed. Vancouver will start the drive next week. Tacoma has a wonderful organization working the canvassing according to the Victoria's delegates to the Pacific Northwest Tourist Association conference in that city.

The Rotary, Kiwanis, Gyo and other clubs in the city are lending their influence and support to the canvass. Anyone wishing to assist in the canvassing should telephone 271 or call at headquarters. The Rotary Christmas Tree will not be held this year so far as relief is concerned.

The effort is being concentrated on the Community Chest. Ex-service organizations are assisting the movement in every way possible.

TWO STUDENTS DIE IN COLLEGE FIRE SEAMEN'S CLAIMS FOR REPARATION

Heroic Rescues Made by Students as Flames Spread President of Navy League to Take Up Question in England

Winnipeg, Nov. 25.—Two students, W. A. Taylor, of St. Boniface and Lawrence Legree of Winnipeg, are dead and more than a score injured following a fire which destroyed the St. Boniface College early this morning.

ORPHAN REFUGEES IMPERILLED WHEN LINERS COLLIDED

Near Disaster at Western Entrance of Bosphorus To-day When Relief Steamship Belgravian, Carrying 2,000 Orphans, Crashed With Liner New York; Many Children Painfully Injured.

Constantinople, Nov. 25.—The American Near East Relief steamship Belgravian, carrying two thousand orphans from Asia Minor, collided with the trans-Atlantic liner New York at the junction of the Bosphorus and the Sea of Marmora this morning. Allied ships have gone to their assistance.

Constantinople, Nov. 25.—Two thousand Christian orphans were imperilled when the steamship Belgravian, chartered by the Near East Relief, collided with the trans-Atlantic liner New York at the western entrance of the Bosphorus this morning.

Allied ships dispatched hurriedly to the scene reported that many of the children had been painfully injured, but that there was no loss of life. Doctors and nurses were sent from the Near East headquarters here to attend the injured. The New York carried no passengers.

Reports received here declare panic reigned among the children following the impact, which tore away the bridge and forecast of the Belgravian, smashed the lifeboats and loosened several of the Connelly plates. The steamship's wireless apparatus was also put out of commission.

The Belgravian left Constantinople for Samsun, on the Black Sea coast of Asia Minor, on November 14 to begin the evacuation of 7,400 Greek and Armenian orphans, whom it was desired to remove because of the recent edict of the Turkish Nationalists giving the Christian population a definite period in which to leave the country. The orphans were to be taken to Athens, where the Near East Relief is planning to accommodate them in schools and monasteries.

NO NATION WILL GUARANTEE PEACE IN THE BALKAN ZONE

Lusanne, Nov. 25.—The request of the Turkish delegates to the Near East Conference for a neutral zone on Turkey's western boundaries has been held up, apparently because no nation wants to guarantee peace in any Balkan zone.

Ismet Pasha's statement that Turkey desired the powers to guarantee the neutrality of a belt thirty kilometers wide on each side of the Turco-Bulgarian and Turco-Grecian frontier along the Maritza River brought no definite decision by the Powers. It was evidently agreed that the neutrality question could be disposed of later.

CHILDERS MET END BRAVELY MASONRY OPPOSED TO KU KLUX KLAN

London, Nov. 25.—The place and manner of the execution of Erskine Childers has not been officially announced this morning. Some reports say that it occurred at Kilmallick Barracks, others at Port Bello Barracks. The Dublin Express states positively that Childers was shot by a firing squad at Kilmallick Barracks.

The Dublin Express states positively that Childers was shot by a firing squad at Kilmallick Barracks. The newspaper quotes a statement by the republican publicity department to the effect that after Childers had been told the execution was to be in haste and that he was to be a Protestant clergyman whom he had known as a boy.

The minister was with him, the statement said, when he walked to his execution. He spoke no word to his executioners.

London, Nov. 25.—A Cork dispatch to The Daily Mail says that the Corporation meeting was adjourned in consequence of the execution of Erskine Childers, Young women in the galleries, the dispatch adds, began to speak in protest against the execution, but the members of the Corporation were without listening. The correspondent adds that inasmuch as the ambushing of soldiers continues daily in Southern Ireland particularly in Cork County, the people regard the execution as necessary.

London, Nov. 25.—The execution of Erskine Childers draws no editorial condemnation in the London morning newspapers to-day. Several papers make no comment in their biographical material and introductory notes indicate neither surprise or censure. Everywhere there is recognition of Childers' ability and courage, and the obituaries and editorials deplore that his life had such an ending.

VISCOUNT GREY WARNS LORDS GRAVE EUROPEAN SITUATION

London, Nov. 25.—Viscount Grey, in House of Lords last night, gave a grave warning on the European situation. "People don't realize how ominous the situation is in foreign affairs," he declared.

"We are not far off, if indeed we have not reached a point at which Turkey, Russia and Germany are forming a combination. "The only chance of solving the problems of the Near East without disaster is for the Allies to preserve a united front."

WAR AGAINST CHIROPRACTORS GREAT INFUX OF TOURISTS EXPECTED

Dr. Whitnall, McGill Professor of Anatomy, Coming Here Chiropractors Efforts for Recognition to Be Strongly Contested

Montreal, Que., Nov. 25.—Western Canadian physicians and surgeons will contest efforts now being made by chiropractors to secure provincial recognition of their profession and status as medical practitioners.

Dr. Whitnall, McGill Professor of Anatomy, of McGill University, has left for Victoria, to present evidence to Government authorities in the matter.

Dr. Whitnall is recognized as one of Canada's leading authorities on anatomy. He declined to disclose the intention of his journey but an associate said: "You may be certain that he is not going at the request of the Chiropractors."

He will visit Vancouver, Victoria, Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Regina and Winnipeg. The chiropractors' campaign is now a live issue in the four Western provinces.

German Nonpartisan Cabinet Faces Hopeless Situation Berlin, Nov. 25.—The new Government assumes a legacy which consisted chiefly of an almost hopelessly tangled internal economic, financial and social situation, while the prospect of foreign complications threatened by impending action by the Entente in connection with reparations to-day was viewed among the Reichstag parties as already sufficiently tangible and menacing to bring havoc to Herr Cuno and his non-partisan Cabinet sooner than he or his well-wishers' success.

The Home Beautiful

FINISHED IN

COTTONWOOD PANELLING

Why have those cracked and unsightly walls in your home when the new wall board "Lamatec" will change it all at such a remarkably small cost.

"Lamatec" is not a composition, but a choice cottonwood lumber, with a beautiful soft natural grain, and built up in three layers by a special process which makes it moisture-proof.

Cottonwood "Lamatec" panelling is ideal for finishing in enamel flat wall paints or kalsomine; for stained effects showing the natural beauty of the grain it is unsurpassed.

Before making a decision, let us show you this new wall board. We are sure that its many extra good points over other wall boards will so appeal to you that it will be your immediate choice.

MOSCOW ENJOYS BUILDING BOOM

Property Damaged During Revolution Being Restored

Moscow, Nov. 25.—Moscow to-day is passing through a building boom more active than anything of the kind the white walled city has experienced in several generations. Real estate improvement has been virtually at a standstill since early in the world war, and after the revolution which eventually brought the seat of Government back to the ancient capital, Moscow became one of the most crowded cities on the face of the earth.

This fall, however, under the Soviet's new economic policy which permits private enterprise, including leases on property and buildings for 49 years, the rush to gain concessions by local investors began, with German, French and other foreigners also clamoring for privileges. The Government itself also has improved many buildings.

Hundreds of business houses, as well as fine old homes, were so badly damaged during the revolution that it was necessary to rebuild them. Walls of scores of other buildings, ruined by fire, are still standing in various parts of the city, but provision has been made for remodeling most of these next Spring.

Demand For Stores. Store space is in great demand, due to the stimulus given by the resumption of free trade, and numerous one story affairs have been put up in the shopping districts. They resemble the stores erected in a boom town in the United States. Small wooden shacks for the retail selling of books, fruit, clothing and various necessities, have been built temporarily here and there throughout the city, but these will be pushed aside with the resumption of trade through the ordinary channels.

Entire blocks have been cleared for apartment houses, with shop space on the ground floor.

There is scarcely a block in Moscow these days upon which some repair work has not been done, or a new building of some sort erected.

MANY FINE BIRDS AT DUNCAN SHOW

Quality of Poultry on Island Greatly Improved, Says Judge

Duncan, Nov. 25.—The fifth annual Poultry Show of Provincial Poultry Group No. 1 was opened Thursday with an unusually large number of entries. The largest entries were in the White Leghorns and White Wyandotte classes. In the exhibition of utility birds in both of these classes there was a high standard shown and competition was keen.

H. D. Reid, of Victoria, judged the exhibition and his criticism of the various classes was that the Barred Rocks were strong, large and exceptionally good. White Wyandottes, he said, were a strong class. A cock in this class owned by Mrs. Stephens, of Alberni, was a wonderful bird but was disqualified on account of two bad feathers. The White Leghorns were of very good quality. The Buff Leghorns formed a nice exhibit. Silver Leghorns also are a small class but a large cockerel was shown.

Fine Exhibits. The Anconas are a strong class. These shown by John Harris, of Chase River, could win in any British Columbia show. One pen of dark Cornish with a strong male bird, a great hen and a couple of nice Langshans were shown, and there was also a good display of old English Games and Game Bantams. There was a good exhibition of Homers which were of extra good quality. The American bronze turkeys, Mr. Reid considered were as good as any he had seen on the island. Geese were only of fair quality.

Quality Improved. Rocks, Cornish, Anconas, Silver Leghorns and Dorkings were good enough to hold their own in any British Columbia show. Mr. Reid thought the Silver Grey Dorkings, of which about a dozen were shown, are seldom seen in any western show. Mr. Reid judged in Duncan six years ago and considers that the quality of the birds has greatly improved since his last visit.

Mr. Reid has just recently returned from the Portland Fat Stock and Poultry Exhibition there. He succeeded in convincing the American judges that his Rhode Island Red cockerel was the best bird of its class and he also won prizes in Rhode Island Red pullets. Before leaving he sold his first prize cockerel for $75 to an American ranch that shows extensively in eastern cities.

WINNIPEG ELECTS LABOR MAYOR

Winnipeg, Nov. 25.—For the first time in the history of the city, Winnipeg yesterday elected a mayor endorsed by the Independent Labor Party, when Mr. S. J. Farmer, M.P., P., was returned as chief magistrate with a large majority over Ald. J. K. Sparling. Farmer was twice an unsuccessful candidate for mayor. Complete returns announced late last night, gave Farmer a majority of 2,819, the vote being: Farmer, 16,482; Sparling, 12,572.

COAL MINE FIRE. Co. Spur, Alta., Nov. 25.—The mine of the Yellowhead Coal Company caught fire a few days ago by spontaneous combustion, and sent out a cloud of smoke like a miniature volcano. Men have been working day and night to check the flames, with little chance of success. Unless the fire can be brought under control, it will likely mean the breaking up of the Coal Spur Camp, as an adjoining mine which took fire eight years ago is still smouldering, and was the cause of a large forest fire during last Summer.

Is 1923 To be A "Hell-Raiser's Year"

"Discontent has swept the country"; there is a "restless searching of the electorate for some new way out of its troubles." "It will be a 'Hell-Raiser's Year.'" In these words, independent Kansas City, Chicago, and New York editors in turn explain what happened on November 7th, and they express what seems to be the prevailing sentiment in second thought editorial interpretation of the election.

There is a very interesting news-feature in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week, November 25th, which analyzes the cause for Republican defeat and what the Democrats really gained. "There has been a general smashing of pronounced reactionaries," gleefully reports a labor daily (Minnesota Star), while the Newark News remarks that the radicals bearing a party badge are in the ascendancy, armed for assault for party control two years hence. If the forecast of conditions is accurate the programs of reactionary groups in Congress as shown in this article will be enlightening to the public at this time.

Other news-features in THE DIGEST this week which are unusually timely are:

METCHOSIN NOTES

The monthly meeting of the Metchosin branch of the W. A. was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. W. Reid, the vice-president, Mrs. F. Comley, in the chair.

After prayers and usual business a very interesting letter from Miss M. E. Soltan at the China Inland Mission Hospital, Kai Feug, Honan, was read, telling of the missionary work, in which the whole of the W. A. are particularly interested.

The members discussed further plans for the sale of work to be held November 30, which promises to be one of the most successful yet held by the organization. Mrs. Wareham of William Head, was welcomed as a new member. A very delightful tea was served by Hostess Mrs. Reid.

A very enjoyable whist drive and dance were held at Metchosin Hall on Thursday evening under the auspices of the Metchosin Women's Institute, twenty-eight players competing for the prizes. The lady's first prize, which was a particularly good ever sharp pencil, donated by Mrs. A. Snider, was won by Miss G. Scott for the highest score. The gent's first, won by P. Arden, was a pure-bred sethorra pullet donated by Miss Norman Wareham. A consolation prize, donated by Mrs. T. Barclay, was awarded to Mrs. Hextall for the second highest score, and the booby prize, donated by Mrs. Scott, was presented to Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Pullan. Coffee and sandwiches were served after the drive, and a very pleasant and sociable dance took place. It is understood that these delightful little gatherings will be held by the Women's Institute each month throughout the winter. Prizes have already been promised for the next one by E. Van der Byl.

Mrs. E. Humphreys, of London, England, is the guest of Mrs. Field, of Metchosin.

Mr. and Mrs. Fairchild have rented Buckhill Lodge at William Head for the winter months.

Colwood. The Colwood weekly whist drive was held on Wednesday night at Colwood Hall, there being the usual

PRAIRIE FARMERS WANT WORKABLE WHEAT BOARD

Calgary, Nov. 25.—Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatchewan governments will be asked to organize a workable Wheat Board, Limited Grain Growers' Limited, shareholders decided at the concluding session of the annual convention. If these Governments find they need enabling legislation from the Dominion Government, they will ask for it, it was decided. The vote on the question was unanimous.

DESPITE HER WAR LOSSES-GERMANY LEADS IN RAILWAYS

Berlin, Nov. 25.—Despite the loss of 7,400 kilometers (about 4,595 miles) of railroads as a result of the war, Germany still maintains her pre-war position as having the largest railway system in Europe, according to figures announced here. Her total distance is given as 57,545 kilometers, ranking fourth in the world, the United States having 48,523 kilometers, Canada and Newfoundland 64,012, and British East India 58,459.

The distance in kilometers of other nations' railways is reported as follows: European Russia, approximately 57,000; France 53,561, including approximately 2,000 in Alsace-Lorraine; Great Britain, 35,372; Austria, 28,971; Argentina, 27,246; Brazil, 23,128; Mexico, 25,492; Italy, 20,118; South Africa Union, 18,468; Central-Asiatic Russia and Siberia, 17,336; Poland, 15,828; Spain, 15,359; Sweden, 15,961; Japan, 15,338; Korea, 14,835; Czechoslovakia, 12,644; Rumania, 11,678; Belgium, 11,092; China, 11,004; Jugo-Slavia, 8,855; Chile, 8,231; Hungary, 7,025; Brazil, 6,565; and Australia, 6,000.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY SASKATCHEWAN ELEVATOR COMPANY

Regina, Nov. 25.—Hon. George Langley was re-elected president of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company at the annual organization meeting of the directors here. Hon. J. H. Maharg was elected vice-president and G. E. Muselman managing director. These three form the executive of the company.

W. C. Mills was elected secretary and P. E. Peterkin treasurer. The latter was also appointed to the position of assistant general manager.

ANNUAL POLICE BALL AGAIN PROVES BRILLIANT AFFAIR

Two Thousand Guests Enjoyed Ideal Hospitality Last Night

Of all the social functions which take place in Victoria during the year few have more popular appeal or are carried out with greater brilliance and perfection of detail than the annual ball of the Victoria Police-Mutual Benefit Association. Last night the popular "blue" again proved themselves ideal hosts and the 2,000 guests who danced at the Armorens found that no single detail conducive to their pleasure had been overlooked.
The huge ballroom had been converted into a bower of brilliant color by the use of countless flags and miles of bunting, a screen covered with flags and bunting serving to partition the supper room from the main dancing floor. Ozard's twenty-piece orchestra dispensed a most excellent programme of music from a flag-draped dais in the centre of the floor, and in the supper room the White Lunch served a delicious cold collation at tables attractively arranged with flowers and lighted by shaded table lamps.

Grand March

The ball opened shortly after nine o'clock with the grand march, led by the official Administrator, His Honor Chief Justice Macdonald, and Mrs. Fry, the Chief of Police partnering Mrs. J. A. Macdonald, followed by Mrs. Muskett and Miss Norma Macdonald, Constable Foster and Mrs. W. A. Gallieher.

Invited Guests

Among the guests invited were: Chief Justice Macdonald, Lieut.-Col. Robertson, Lieut.-Col. B. Russell, Brig.-Gen. Ross, H. J. Muskett, W. A. Luney, Walter Luney, R. F. Butchart, Chief Severus (Seattle), J. M. Langley, Premier Oliver, Hon. John Hart, Hon. A. M. Manson, W. E. Stanciland, J. North, Vernon Stewart, Dr. S. F. Toimie, Inspector Smeetham, R.C.M.P., D. RED CROSS TO ACT FOR GOVERNMENT IN DISASTER RELIEF

Empowered to Draw Supplies From Military Stores in Emergency

At the monthly meeting of the Victoria City and District Branch, Canadian Red Cross Society, a good deal of business was transacted. A letter was read from the provincial division asking for nominations for the provincial executive and it was unanimously agreed that the following be nominated for re-election: Sir Frank Barnard, Mrs. Mary E. Fleming, P. W. Jones and D. J. Angus.
The minutes of the meeting of the provincial division were brought up and it was noted that Mr. Ridington and Mr. Forsyth had visited Trans-Quila Sanatorium on September 19, in company with members of the Kamloops Hospital Visiting Committee. They reported that the Kamloops branch was to be commended on the manner in which they are caring for the soldier patients in the sanatorium. Several meetings were held between the hospital officials and the Kamloops representatives in regard to the work being carried on by the Red Cross. It was decided that, in the future, the small contributions distributed to the soldier patients, such as cigarettes, fruit, tooth paste, should also be given to the civilian patients as it has been very difficult and embarrassing for the visitors to pass by the civilians, many of whom are in the same wards with the returned men. The Government now provides clothing, dressing gowns to the civilian patients in need of same.

Country Nurses.

At present the Red Cross has nurses on duty in the following towns and districts: Nanaimo, Kamloops, Shuswap Lake, Arrow Lakes district, Valde, Trail and Penticton, and their services are very much appreciated in these districts, where they are doing excellent work. From February 1 until July 1, 1922, the nurses conducted the following classes and awarded certificates: Home nursing 482, Little Mothers 218, First Aid 191, making a total of 883.
Such isolated places as Whaletown and Pemberton Meadows have been helped by sending simple surgical and medical supplies, first aid kits, health literature and posters for the schools.

Emergency Relief.

With regard to disaster relief, the provincial branch was recently notified by head office that arrangements had been made with the Department of Militia and Defence by which, in the event of a disaster occurring, tents, blankets, field kitchens, all sorts of supplies, such as bolsters, caises, iron pads and mess tins may be issued from military stores to the Red Cross Society in the province concerned; the society, of course, is to be responsible for the supplies issued. This order has been confirmed by the Officer Commanding Military District No. 11 at Esquimalt. This, to all intents and purposes, means that the Dominion Government recognizes the Red Cross Society as their agent for disaster relief. At the request of the Government the provincial division recently undertook to administer a relief grant of $1,500 for the sufferers at Lang Bay.

Being a year since the last light-house survey was conducted, the branch recently approached Colonel Wilby, Agent of Marine, with regard to one of the nurses making another survey. He very cordially accepted the offer, and it is expected the Government steamer will leave some time in October, when a Red Cross nurse will accompany the survey. Bishop Schofield handed in a letter he had received from the Tofino Ladies' Guild telling of the great need for a nurse in that district and asking if the Red Cross would supply one. It was decided to forward this letter to the provincial division with a recommendation that a nurse be established in this district.
For T. B. Soldiers.
A letter was received from the T. B. patients at the Jubilee Hospital thanking the donors for the gifts, through this society, of canaries and cages. The birds are giving a great deal of pleasure to these men and help considerably to relieve the monotony of hospital life. A report was made on the progress of the hospitals have been visited and the following comforts provided: Nine sweaters, twelve suits underwear, two pairs underwear, eight shirts, eight pairs socks, one bedsheet, shaving brushes and soap, razor blades, hair brushes, playing cards and wool.

ORGANIZE DISTRICT UNION OF W.C.T.U.

Mr. John Harvey Elected President of New Organization
The general board of the W.C.T.U. met in the Y.W.C.A. yesterday afternoon, with Mrs. John Harvey, the president, in the chair. The annual reports were presented by the secretaries, and the minutes of the year which showed that the work had been very successful during the past year.
The membership in the various divisions having increased so much, it was deemed advisable to close up the work of the general board and organize a district union.
The retiring officers of the general board, the Hon. Mrs. L. B. Smeetham, Mrs. O. H. Hall, secretary, and Mrs. F. H. Laing, treasurer, were accorded a most hearty vote of thanks for their devoted and successful work during their term of office and the work of the general board closed.
Mrs. Spofford was asked to take the chair, when a district union, comprising the five unions in the city, was organized. Mrs. John Harvey was elected as president of the new organization, Mrs. A. E. Mitchell vice-president, Mrs. Frank Andrews, recording secretary, Mrs. John Hall corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Ennor treasurer.

After the New Year the new organization will be held weekly, which it is hoped will result in adding materially the forces that make for good in the city.

BRIDGE TEA FOR ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL

Arrangements for the bridge tea to be held on December 5 in the Ballroom Hotel to augment the funds of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital are almost completed, but friends who have not already signified their intention of taking tables are requested to telephone the convener, Mrs. Stuart Robertson, as a few more tables are still required.

SUCCESSFUL PUPIL

Miss Eileen Bennett, Burnside Road, has received notice from the Canadian Academy of Music, Toronto, that she has been awarded a prize for her work on the recent piano examination. Miss Bennett is a pupil of Mrs. Cornett.

Divorce Granted.

On Nov. 15 at Portland, Oregon, an absolute decree of divorce was granted by Judge Stapleton in proceedings brought by Robert William Askey, formerly of this city but now of Portland, against his wife Agnes Christine Askey (nee Campbell). The parties were married in the city of Victoria on August 12, 1912.

What ails the Child?

Why does it not grow big and strong? Think of this simple fact. The body is built solely by Food. The child can only get out of its food what that food contains. If the food is ill-balanced the child's growth is ill-balanced. If the food is lacking in certain vital elements, the child will be lacking in those vital elements which maintain strength and resist disease.
In nearly every case the food elements which the delicate boy or girl lacks are those contained in Virol. Virol has been specially designed by medical experts and skilled chemists to supply the vital constituents so often lacking in ordinary diet.

LIBERAL WOMEN HELD RECEPTION

The officers and members of the Liberal Woman's Forum were hostesses at a reception held yesterday afternoon in the Liberal Association rooms, in honor of the Ministers' wives and the wives of the Liberal members. Mrs. Walter Scott, president of the Woman's Forum, assisted by Mrs. Wm. Ivel, Mrs. C. W. Bradshaw, Mrs. Stuart Henderson, and Mrs. J. H. Fletcher, welcomed the guests of honor, among whom were Mrs. John Omer, Mrs. John Hart, Mrs. A. M. Manson, Mrs. T. D. Pattullo, Mrs. J. D. MacLean, Mrs. Sutherland, Mrs. Kergin and Mrs. F. W. Anderson. During the afternoon Mrs. C. W. Bradshaw, president of the Liberal Association, was accompanied by Miss Wilma Henderson. Announcement was made by Mrs. Spofford that at the next meeting of the Forum to be held on December 1, Mrs. Fatt of the Victoria High School, will address the members on "The Development of the Two Political Parties in Canada."
Crocker, the president of the town Institute, were appointed a committee to interview the management of the Hudson's Bay Company, with the result that the store has generously placed space on its second floor at the disposal of the Institute and the long-anticipated Women's Exchange will materialize at once. Full particulars of the conditions governing the Exchange may be obtained from Mrs. Todd, telephone No. 4385Y, or Mrs. Crocker.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE EXCHANGE STARTED

When the Victoria Women's Institute was first thought of the main idea was that it should be a centre to which the Institute on the Island could look for assistance. The principal line where help could be rendered most effectively was by way of a market for the products from the farm women.
While the idea was discussed, no definite action could be decided upon until Mrs. W. D. Todd, the secretary of the town institute, saw in a paper an account of the Women's Institute Exchange in the Hudson's Bay store in Edmonton. Mrs. Todd, who is also district secretary of the town institute, saw in the paper a report of the recent conference of the Vancouver Island Institutes.
The idea immediately became popular and Mrs. Todd and Mrs.

FAMOUS OUTLINE OF HISTORY

The Romance of Mother Earth

TO-DAYS INSTALMENT 66

The Aryan-Speaking People

Forefathers of the Western World

Problems in History

Do you know—
Why scientists believe that the ancient Aryans had wheeled wagons thousands of years ago?

Do you know—
What people of antiquity buried their dead much as is done in parts of India to-day?

Do you know—
Where walls of earth and palisades were first used to protect camps?

Do you know—
What people made intoxicating drinks of honey and barley in A.D. before 5,000 B.C.

Answers in Monday's installment of H. G. Wells's "Outline of History."

We have spoken of the Aryan language as probably arising in the region of the Danube and South Russia and spreading from that region of origin. We say "probably" because it is by no means certain. There have been vast discussions upon this point and wide divergences of opinion. We give the prevalent view. It was originally the language of a group of peoples of the Nordic race. As it spread widely, Aryan began to differentiate into a number of subordinate languages. To the west and south it encountered the Basque language, which was then widely spread in Spain, and also possibly various other Mediterranean languages.

The Conquering Kelts.
Before the spreading of the Aryans from their lands of origin southward and westward, the Iberian race was distributed over Great Britain, Ireland, France, Spain, north Africa, south Italy, and in a more civilized state, Greece and Asia Minor. It was closely related to the Egyptian. To judge by its European vestiges it was a rather small human type, generally with an oval face and a long head. It buried its chiefs and important people in metallic chambers—i.e., made of big stones—covered over by great mounds of earth, and these mounds of earth, being much longer than they are broad, were spoken of as the long barrows. These people sheltered at times in caves, and also buried some of their dead therein; and from the traces of charred, broken and cut human bones, including the bones of children, it is inferred that they were cannibals.

These short dark Iberian tribes (and the Basques also if they were a different race) were thrust back westward, and conquered and enslaved by slowly advancing waves of the taller and fairer Aryan-speaking people, coming southward and westward through central Europe, who are spoken of as the Kelts. Only the Basque resisted the conquering Aryan speech. Gradually these Kelto-speakers made their way to the Atlantic, and at that point remains of the Iberians is mixed into the Keltic population.

How far the Keltic invasion affected the Irish population is a matter of debate at the present time.

ual swings, as the broom of a servant who is sweeping out a passage swishes from side to side as she advances.

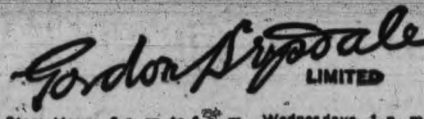

Spreading round the north of the Black Sea, and probably to the north of the Caspian, from the ranges of Central North-central Europe to the Iranian peoples who became the Medes and Persians and (Aryan) Hindus, were the grazing lands of a confusion of tribes, about whom it is truer to be vague than precise, such as the Cimmericians, the Sarmatians, and those Scythians who, together with the Medes and Persians, came into effective contact with the Assyrian Empire by 1,000 B.C. or earlier.

How the Primitive Aryans Lived.
East and south of the Black Sea, between the Danube and the Medes and Persians, and to the north of the Semitic and Mediterranean peoples of the sea coasts and peninsulas, ranged another series of equally ill-defined Aryan tribes, moving easily from place to place and intermingling freely—to the great contentment of historians. They seem, for instance, to have broken up and assimilated the Hittite civilization, which was probably pre-Aryan in its origin. These latter Aryans were, perhaps, not so far advanced along the nomadic line as the Scythians of the great plains.

time; in that island the Kelts may have been a mere caste of conquerors on a larger subject population. It is even doubtful if north of England is more Aryan than pre-Keltic in blood. There is a sort of short dark Welshman, and certain types of Irishmen, who are Iberians by race. The modern Portuguese are also largely of Iberian blood.

The Kelts spoke a language, Keltic, which was also in its turn differentiated into the language of Gaul, Welsh, Breton, Scotch and Irish Gaelic, and other tongues. They buried the ashes of their chiefs and important people in round barrows.

A Widespread Aryan Invasion.
While these Nordic Kelts were spreading westward, other Nordic Aryan peoples were pressing down upon the dark white Mediterranean race in the Italian and Greek peninsulas, and developing the Latin and Greek group of tongues. Certain other Aryan tribes were drifting towards the Baltic and across into Scandinavia, speaking varieties of the Aryan which became ancient Norse—the parent of Swedish, Danish, Norwegian and Icelandic—Gothic and Low and High German.

While the primitive Aryan speech was thus spreading and breaking up into daughter languages to the west, it was also spreading and breaking up to the east. North of the Carpathians and the Black Sea, Aryan-speaking tribes were increasing and spreading and using a distinctive dialect, called Slavonian, from which came Russian, Serbians, Polish, Bulgarian and other tongues; other variations of Aryan distributed over Asia Minor and Persia were also being individualized as Armenian and Indo-Iranian, the parent of Sanscrit and Persian.

In this book we have used the word Aryan for all this family of languages, but the term Indo-European is sometimes used for the entire family, and "Aryan" itself restricted in a narrower sense to the Indo-Iranian speech. This Indo-Iranian speech was destined to split later into a number of languages, including Persian and Sanscrit, the latter being the language of certain tribes of fair-complexioned Aryan speakers who pushed eastward into India somewhere between 3,000 and

NEW HEAD OF ACADIA IS WELCOMED

Rev. F. W. Paterson, D. D., Visits Local Baptist Congregation

Entertained by Graduates of Nova Scotia University

Victoria graduates of Acadia University did honor last evening to the new president, Rev. F. W. Paterson, D. D., of Winnipeg, who is leaving the appointment of Secretary of the Baptist Union of Western Canada to take over the head of that progressive institution in Nova Scotia, which has been identified for so many years with the educational work of the province.

Dr. Paterson told The Times last evening that Acadia had invited him at a time when the University was making steady progress, with a substantial endowment and student roll. The college had an investment of $300,000 in buildings, and a building fund of over $500,000 was planned for extensions and equipment. While a graduate of McMaster University himself, he had family associations with the maritime provinces, and would be glad to return there.

Dr. Paterson leaves the Baptist cause in Western Canada in prosperous conditions, though some of the prairie congregations have been hit severely by the crop failure, nor

CHINESE PIRATES AGAIN ACTIVE

British Steamer Yingchow Under Arrest by Chinese River Police

Shanghai, Nov. 25.—Sixty Chinese passengers, men, women and children, arriving here to-day from Hongkong on the British steamer Yingchow, were arrested by Chinese river police, aided by French police.

The passengers were held pending interrogation, examination of their baggage and search of the vessel. No reason was given officially for the action of the police, but it is reported that the ship's owner learned from Hongkong that a plot was afoot for pirates to seize her on her southward sailing from Shanghai in December.

According to information here, a similar plan was framed for the Yingchow. Pirates were believed to have intended to recruit forces in Shanghai to take passage south.

The Yingchow is operated by Butterfield and Swire and runs between Hongkong and Tsingtao.

SMUGGLING ALONG SEATTLE WATERFRONT

Will Be Prevented by New Regulation; Serious Complaints Received

Following serious complaints of opium smuggling into Seattle, the capture of $50,000 worth of opium on the waterfront this week and indications that enormous quantities of narcotic drugs are being smuggled into the port, the most stringent shipping regulations that has been enacted since the war, is being enforced by Millard T. Harrison, collector of customs for Washington.

WHEAT BARGES WRECKED

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Two lives lost, four wheat-laden barges believed sent to the bottom and four others piled up on the shore at Verona Beach, comprised the toll of a sudden storm on Oneida Lake yesterday.

The barges, which were in two fleets of eleven craft, commanded by Capt. Edward Thurston, off New York, were on their way from New York to Buffalo when caught by a squall that kicked up waves fifteen feet high.

The terrific wind was accompanied by a heavy snowfall. Officials estimated at $200,000 the value of the grain on the wrecked barges.

NEWS IN BRIEF The directors of the Chamber of Commerce will hold their weekly luncheon at Spencers' at 12.30 o'clock on Monday. Mrs. Commissioner Hodder, president of the Salvation Army League of Mercy and Home League for Western Canada, will meet the local branches on Monday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. J. G. Lister, President of the Teachers' Federation, and G. A. Ferguson of Vancouver; J. B. Bennett and Miss H. R. Anderson, of North Vancouver, and E. H. Locke, of Now Westminister, arrived in the city today to attend an executive meeting of the Federation. An enthusiastic audience in the Gordon House Hall listened with keenest enjoyment to the delightful concert given last evening by Mr. Jesse Longfield and his orchestra. One of the most attractive numbers was the Toy Symphony which was enthusiastically received. Victoria delegates to the Pacific Northwest Association meeting in Tacoma to-night include J. L. Beckwith, president of the Canadian Highway Association; P. B. Scurr, president of the Rotary Club; Frank Waring, chairman of the Tourist Trade Group of the Chamber of Commerce, and George I. Warren, publicity commissioner. The Greater Victoria Building Society held its nineteenth drawing for an appropriation at its offices in the Pemberton Building last night. Mayor Marchant, president of the society, occupied the chair. The winning numbers were Nos. 263 A and B, held by Miss Kate Merrill, of 2403 Douglas Street, who thus becomes entitled to a loan of $2,000, free of interest. The monthly meeting of The Canadian Order of Foresters was held on Wednesday evening at their hall, Government Street. Chief Ranger, Bro. Hoey, in the chair. After the regular business the lodge was thrown open for a whist drive, which was a great success. The following were the winners: Ladies, first, Mrs. Pinney; second, Mrs. Banfield; third, Mrs. Porter. Gents, first, J. Johnson; second, T. Prior; third, W. Ackerman. It is the intention of the order to give a whist drive every month during the winter, when good prizes will be given.

PROPOSE FLAT RATE FOUR DRESS HOTEL Aldermen Would Charge it $15,000 a Year For Taxes and Water That the Empress Hotel in future pay the city a flat rate of about $15,000 a year to cover its taxes and water charges probably will be the proposal upon which Victoria electors will vote at the December civic election. As a result of informal discussions on the subject by Council members such a scheme is most favored at the City Hall now. Several members, however, are fighting the extension of any concessions to the hotel after the end of the year, when the present tax and water rate exemption will cease. If the citizens approve the proposed flat rate of some $15,000 a month the city, it is understood, will negotiate an agreement on this basis for a five-year period insuring that the hotel guarantee to maintain its laundry operations here and keep its beautiful gardens in their present condition, and water would be sold to it at 40 cents per 1,000 gallons. The hotel would be allowed generous maximum of water and would have to pay for quantities over that amount, they said. Mayor William Marchant is urging an alternative scheme under which no taxes would be levied on the hotel building, and water would be sold to it at 40 cents per 1,000 gallons, the rate at which the city sells water to Oak Bay Municipality.

Hugh Walpole, the celebrated English author and lecturer, may be heard in Victoria in the Spring if the plans now being considered by the Women's Canadian Club can be brought to fruition. Such was the announcement made by Miss Margaret Clay, of the programme committee, before the executive yesterday afternoon, and it was decided to invite Mr. Walpole to give a series of lectures before the general membership. Mrs. Hyndman announced that the Club membership had increased to such an extent that there were now over 500 names on the list of members. Bishop de Paul will speak at the next meeting on the subject "Canada's Greatest Asset."

Dance at Saanichton.—The Saanich Athletic Club will give the first of a series of dances at the Agricultural Hall, Saanichton, on December 1. Preparations have been completed to make this the banner affair of the season, and no expense is being spared by the club in making its arrangements. Perry's three-piece orchestra will supply the music, while refreshments are in the capable hands of the ladies of the club. The Flying Line have agreed to run a special car, leaving at 7.30 p. m. and returning after the dance. Tickets can be obtained from members of the club, and judges from the sale, a large crowd is expected.

The sale of work under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Fairfield Methodist Church, Moss Street, was a decided success and the seating capacity of the hall was taxed to its utmost limit. Each item was lusted by a very appreciative audience. All who took part in "Grandpa's Birthday Party" did so admirably. Mrs. Walker Woods and Mrs. Roberts gave songs. The Misses Boyd and McDonough recitations, Miss Barbara McDonough, a pianoforte solo and Masters Dunbar and Arthur Morton an amusing nigger selection. The second part of the programme was given by Mr. Jesse Longfield and his orchestra. Many beautiful selections were given. Mrs. Jesse Longfield contributed two songs; also Mr. McDonough and Mr. Durant. The orchestra ended a delightful evening.

CARNIVAL DANCES IN STEPPING HIGH Spanish and Persian dances and the popular revival of the Merry Widow that featured the recent Fall Carnival have been included in the programme of "Stepping High" the gorgeous revue in aid of the Billy Muir Fund which will open at the Pangloss Theatre Monday night. The word "person" means and includes those of either sex. There may be discussion on the Farris proposal when it comes up, but it was said today at the Parliament Buildings that there was no doubt but that the women juries would carry. Judge Mrs. J. H. McGill and other women's rights leaders in Vancouver have been urging female juries and have led in the circulation of petitions.

TO PROVIDE ROAD FOR INDUSTRIES ON RESERVE AREA Steps to provide industries on the Reserve with road connection with the rest of the city were taken at a conference between Mayor Marchant, George H. Naden, Deputy Minister of Lands, and City Engineer P. M. Preston in the Mayor's office today. The conference showed that something must be done for the Reserve industries for at present the road to them, known as the Choberg Shipyard Road, is almost impassable. The Mayor said after the conference, "It is proposed that the city, the Provincial Government and the industries themselves share alike in the cost of making the road passable, the city doing the work. This course probably will be followed, if the Council accepts our recommendation."

COURT OF OPINION HAD NO POWER TO FIX DATE OF DEATH Leave to presume the death of George Weirich prior to that of his brother Karl Weirich was sought on behalf of the official administrator of Nanaimo County by D. R. Tait before Justice McNeil today in the Supreme Court Chambers yesterday. Karl Weirich, formerly resident at Parkville, died there intestate in December, 1917, with an estate valued at $12,000, it was said. The Weirich family, stated counsel, were originally of Cassel, Germany; two brothers and a sister coming to America in 1858. The sister, Mrs. Mary Hans, is now resident at New York. Other branches of the family were still alive in Germany, stated counsel. Affidavits from the members of the family still living showed that they had not heard from George Weirich in the past forty years. Counsel held that leave to presume death could be granted after a lapse of seven years, but for the purpose of the settlement of the estate the administrator wished to have the date of death fixed. Mr. Justice McDonald, stating that he was of opinion that the court could go no further than to presume death without any fixing of date, reserved judgment with leave to counsel to submit further argument at a later date.

WOMAN JURORS PLANNED FOR B.C. Women may sit on juries in British Columbia courts before the end of this year. J. W. deB. Farris, former Attorney-General, and now a private member from Vancouver, is father of the move in the House to introduce female jurors in the Province. He will bring his proposal up in the Legislature next week. Provision for female jurors, under Mr. Farris' plans, will be accomplished by an amendment to the Jury Act, by making it clear that the word "person" means and includes those of either sex. There may be discussion on the Farris proposal when it comes up, but it was said today at the Parliament Buildings that there was no doubt but that the women juries would carry. Judge Mrs. J. H. McGill and other women's rights leaders in Vancouver have been urging female juries and have led in the circulation of petitions.

CHINESE ACTORS ENJOY HUNTING TRIP IN SAANICH That temperament and vivacity as attributes of artists are not confined to the English speaking members of that profession became evident again in the Saanich Police Court today when two Chinese members of a theatrical company now playing at Vancouver were called upon to answer minor transgressions. Hu Yeh, one of the leading ladies of the company, Wong Sam, a fellow player, and Lim Bang were jointly charged with being in possession of a hen pheasant when it was found that Wong Sam was in a motor car on a public highway. Hu Yeh, the artist, was further charged with exceeding the speed limit in that she drove the vehicle beyond the limit of 20 miles an hour. The charges against Lim Bang and Hu Yeh, regarding to the presence of the loaded shotgun and the hen pheasant were withdrawn when it was found that Wong Sam would assume the responsibility for both those facts. Chief Peter Brogan gave evidence. James A. Alkman, appearing for all accused, pleaded guilty. The court imposed a fine of $50 on Hu Yeh for the speeding; a fine of $20 on Wong Sam for the hen pheasant, and a fine of $10 on Wong Sam for the presence of the loaded shotgun in the car.

CLOVERDALE AND LAKE HILL FOLK DEMAND BUSLINE Unanimous Resolution Urges Speedy Action on Council Residents of Cloverdale and Lake Hill districts of Saanich last night filled the Cloverdale School to capacity to voice their protest against existing transportation difficulties and demand the restoration of a bus service forthwith. A resolution to that effect was adopted unanimously and a strong committee was appointed to present the views of the meeting to the next meeting of the Council. Mr. McGillis, who has been active in urging better transportation on the Hill route, stated that the district was suffering loss of residents through this cause. Capt. Tennant remarked that while he had nothing against the present jitney drivers, there was no doubt a bus service was a better system. Mr. Williams asked if the Gorge Bus Company received protection by elimination of jitneys, was there any chance of them putting buses back on Lake Hill. A letter was then read from Eric Hamilton pointing out that he would not think of putting buses back on the route, and suggesting that the Saanich municipality was in a better position to co-operate with the City of Victoria and therefore that the Council should consider the question of municipal bus service to Lake Hill. Messrs. Douglas, Turner, Stonier and other speakers spoke strongly in favor of buses, as the only solution to the present difficulty. Action Necessary. Ex-Reeve G. McGregor came out strongly in favor of some immediate action being taken to arrange for a bus service. Mr. Stewart, late bus proprietor, stated that the opposition from city jitneys which ran to Tolmie Avenue would prevent any private concern putting buses on the route. He agreed the jitney service was not efficient. The councillor added that when the by-law was introduced, promises had been made by the jitney drivers that they would arrange a good service and work in harmony. In view of the present state of affairs, he would be willing to support in the Council the setting out of an area to cover the Lake Hill route and that a referendum should be submitted to the people in that area as to whether they would be favorable to municipal jitneys on Lake Hill, it being understood that if any loss should take place, such would be charged to the area concerned. He pointed out that a few weeks before election was a good time to approach the Council, as its members were usually very impressionable at that time. Move Resolution. It was moved by Mr. McGregor and seconded by Mr. Douglas that a resolution be sent to the Saanich Council asking that body to take immediate action on the petition already presented to them in connection with a bus service, and that the following be appointed as a deputation to meet the Council at next meeting: Mr. McGillis, Mr. Turner, Mr. McGregor, Mr. Holmes and Mr. Douglas. In moving the resolution Mr. McGregor stated that Saanich Council should immediately get into touch with the City of Victoria and ask that Council to co-operate should Saanich be in a position to begin a bus service. The resolution carried unanimously. Hector S. Cowper, C. M. C., was present, and outlined the procedure necessary to create a local area for a bus service, also pointing out that the Council of Victoria, if its members wished to co-operate, would require to go to the Legislature for power to eliminate the jitneys on Quadra Street. Reeve Watson, who arrived late, stated that he would do everything within his power to assist the people in this district to secure a better service. He had hoped that the Council had solved the problem, but it appeared that the jitney drivers did not work in harmony hence the reason for the present trouble. The Reeve said that he was quite willing to take immediate action to ask Victoria to co-operate, and would if necessary take up the matter with the city and the Legislature next day.

THE PLAYHOUSE

It is not often that the final number of an act is recalled several times, however this has been the case at each performance of the Balkan Princess now being staged at the popular Yates Street house. "Keep the World a Turning" was written especially for this show by Mr. Hincks while the music for it was furnished by Mr. Ernie Fitch. This is one of the songs in the extremely comical part being played by Bob Webb this week and sung in his inimitable manner with a full chorus it is making a distinct hit at each performance. Never before has Mr. Hincks offered the public of Victoria a better or brighter show and any who attend will come away with a feeling of an evening well spent. Many of Victoria's leading artists are included in the cast all of whom are doing their parts in a finished manner. To-night will be the last opportunity of hearing this opera, and any who have not already attended are advised to book their seats in advance, as there will no doubt be a crowded house.

ROYAL VICTORIA

"From now on I'm not going to assume that a man is a crook simply because he looks like one," said Florence Vidor following a final pre-view of "Skin Deep" in which she plays one of the feminine leads in this special photodrama of Thomas H. Ince's. "The wonderful thing about this picture to me, other than its tremendously fascinating story that moves with a thrill, is that it presents what will be to most of us an entirely new idea on the question of crime and criminals. The beauty of it is that there is no attempt at preaching. The story is built upon life itself supported by new developments in plastic surgery. After living in the atmosphere of this picture for weeks, I know that physical handicaps and defects play an important part in making many of our criminals." This great picture demonstrates the truth of this theory in a manner that is irresistible. And yet it has some of the most melodramatic and powerful scenes that I have ever witnessed. The facts revealed to me in this picture were a revelation to me and I know they will be the same to the millions of people who see it on the screen.

DOMINION

Hike father, hike son. That is Charles Swickard's attitude, at any rate. So when Rodolph Valentino picked up his baggage, shook the dust of other studios from his feet and hiked for the Paramount studios, Charles followed like a tailor in pursuit of his most elusive debtor. Swickard played the role of Valentino's father in Rex Ingram's production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," some time ago. Now he is with Valentino again in "The Young Rajah," a Paramount picture showing at the Dominion Theatre for the last time to-night. He plays the role of a Hindu mystic and priest. Wanda Hawley is leading woman.

CAPITOL

Douglas Fairbanks is not too old for birthdays—not yet. The presents he got on his last birthday were both useful and unique. There was a slide for his outdoor plunge at the Beverly home, two one-man boats and a Beaudouin tent, all from Mrs. Mary Pickford Fairbanks. And besides all this, she gave him a made-to-order Pom-pom day bed for his den. This is said to be one of the most expensive pieces of furniture of its kind ever built.

Another much-appreciated present consisted of a large parchment plaque bearing a photograph of Doug as D'Artagnan with a tribute to the star written by Edward Knoblock, world-famed dramatist, and below this the signature of every member of the Fairbanks studio organization. Then there was a list of comedy gifts: A stuffed duck from Jack Pickford; a South African ostrich saddle from Bessie Zeigman; a rubber purse from John Fairbanks, business manager for Doug; a pair of tickets to a good movie from Roger Lewis, magazine writer; three indestructible dog biscuits for Doug's police dog from brother Robert, and of course many others.

"The Three Musketeers" is now showing at the Capitol Theatre.

DOROTHY GISH PLAYS BLIND SISTER PART IN "TWO ORPHANS"

"When I was young and sad and lonesome and unattached," says Miss Dorothy Gish, "I loved to play merry parts and did cute little soubrettes like 'The Little Disturber' of 'Hearts of the World.' But now I am married to Mr. Renie and gay as a lark and supremely happy, why, it follows, of course, that I crave for contrast a serious and tragic stage self."

This is Miss Dorothy's explanation of why, to the astonishment of many thousands of her admirers, she is playing the role of the weepy Louise, the blind sister in D. W. Griffith's "Orphans of the Storm," a picturization of "The Two Orphans," made famous by Kate Claxton. This new picture, under a United Artists Corporation release, is coming to the Capitol Theatre shortly, so her admirers will soon get an entirely new vision of her.

Really, Miss Dorothy's success in the East in the Kate Claxton part that was long the mainstay of the stage "Two Orphans," proves an unusual versatility. Miss Lillian Gish is to appear in the highly emotional role of Henriette, the sister. They have not been together for the last few years. The present production recalls their old association on the speaking stage, and later, in "The Birth of a Nation" and "Hearts of the World."

HOCKEY STAR TO PLAY IN SPECIAL ROYAL ORCHESTRA

Frank Frederickson, Talented Violinist, in Music Lovers' Programme

Frank Frederickson, celebrated all over Canada as the cleverest center forward in hockey, but less known as a talented violinist, will play in the thirty-piece symphony orchestra which Manager Clifford Denham is assembling for Music Lovers' Night at the Royal Victoria Theatre Monday. Frederickson's appearance as a musician undoubtedly is creating a great deal of interest here, for he is well-known to thousands who have seen him in action on the ice.

It is not generally known that Frederickson is a violinist of no little natural talent, and the product of a long musical education. In his home city of Winnipeg he was a prominent figure in musical circles; but his time has been fully occupied during the Winters here, with hockey. He is much more fond of music than of hockey, and his violin is his one hobby. While he is chiefly devoted to classical music he has been known to indulge in jazz for relaxation. Critics who have heard his playing unusually fine tone from his violin. Mrs. Frederickson, his wife, is a very talented pianist.

Frederickson is only one of a large number of artists who will assist in making Music Lovers' Night successful, Mr. Denham says. The offering at the Royal Monday will consist of a sufficient number of Scottish national character to make them easily distinguishable, states one authority on national music and folk song, and Louis C. Elson, the latest writer on national music, who is an American and thus free from a special prejudice, speaks of them as "the most varied, most ancient and most beautiful of all folk songs." Many of these songs were written by the Baroness Nairne, a contemporary of Robbie Burns.

A study of the life and character of this gifted lady, with a number of her songs, has been prepared by Mary McIvor Jameson, and will form the leading feature of the Scottish entertainment to be given at St. Columba Church, Oak Bay, on Wednesday, November 29, at 8 o'clock. Eighteen Years Ago Motion Pictures Were Mere Cinematographic Reproductions of Events

From this nickelodeon stage there developed a NEW ART and one which to-day is among the leading industries of the world. The first attempts at dramatic continuity were made by a young Kentuckian—

David Wark Griffith

Working in a garret in New York, he made the first one-reel silent drama; then two-reel plays with delightful touches of nature and genuine art. On he worked to three-reel offerings and then to four and five-reel stories with genuine dramatic body and appeal.

The Real Beginning of pretentious motion pictures came when Griffith moved to California. He built the first studio in Los Angeles; took the first group of camera players there. In time he startled the world with his production "The Birth of a Nation," followed with "Intolerance"; then went to the field of war and filmed "Hearts of the World" for the British and French Governments. Returning to America, Griffith changed his base of operations to the East, where he built the largest and most thoroughly equipped motion picture plant in the world, on an island in Long Island Sound. Here he worked out "Way Down East" and spent an entire year weaving into a wonderful golden skein his latest tale of love and sacrifice.

THE PLAYHOUSE

It is not often that the final number of an act is recalled several times, however this has been the case at each performance of the Balkan Princess now being staged at the popular Yates Street house. "Keep the World a-Turning" was written especially for this show by Mr. Hinks while the music for it was furnished by Mr. Ernie Petch. This is one of the songs in the extremely comical part being played by Bob Webb this week and sung in his imitable manner with a full chorus. It is making a distinct hit at each performance. Never before has Mr. Hinks offered the public of Victoria a better or brighter show and any who attend will come away with a feeling of an evening well spent. Many of Victoria's leading artists are included in the cast all of whom are doing their parts in a finished manner. To-night will be the last opportunity of hearing this opera, and any who have not already attended are advised to book their seats in advance, as there will no doubt be a crowded house.

ROYAL VICTORIA

"From now on I'm not going to assume that a man is a crook simply because he looks like one," said Florence Vidor following a final pre-view of "Skin Deep," in which she plays one of the feminine leads in this special photodrama of Thomas H. Ince's. "The wonderful thing about this picture to me, other than its tremendously fascinating story that moves with a thrill, is that it presents what will be to most of us an entirely new idea on the question of crime and criminals. The beauty of it is that there is no attempt at preaching. The story is built upon life itself supported by new developments in plastic surgery. After living in the atmosphere of this picture for weeks, I know that physical handicaps and defects play an important part in making many of our criminals." This great picture demonstrates the truth of this theory in a manner that is irresistible. And yet it has some of the most melodramatic and powerful scenes that I have ever witnessed. The facts revealed to me in this picture were a revelation to me and I know they will be the same to the millions of people who see it on the screen.

DOMINION

Mike father, hike son. That is Charles Swickard's attitude, at any rate. So when Rodolph Valentino picked up his baggage, shook the dust of other studios from his feet and hiked for the Paramount studios, Charles followed like a falcon in pursuit of his most elusive debtor. Swickard played the role of Valentino's father in Rex Ingram's production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," some time ago. Now he is with Valentino again in "The Young Rajah," a Paramount picture showing at the Dominion Theatre for the last time to-night. He plays the role of a Hindu mystic and priest. Wanda Hawley is leading woman.

CAPITOL

Douglas Fairbanks is not too old for birthdays—not yet. The presents he got on his last birthday were both useful and unique. There was a slide for his outdoor plunge at the Beverly home, two one-man boats and a Be-Comin tent, all from Mrs. Mary Pickford Fairbanks. And besides all this, she gave him a made-to-order Pompeian day bed for his den. This is said to be one of the most expensive pieces of furniture of its kind ever built.

Another much-appreciated present consisted of a large parchment plaque bearing a photograph of Doug as D'Artagnan with a tribute to the star written by Edward Knoblock, world-famed dramatist, and below this the signature of every member of the Fairbanks studio organization. Then there was a list of comedy gifts: A stuffed duck from Jack Pickford; a South African ostrich saddle from Bennie Zeigman; a rubber purse from John Fairbanks, business manager for Doug; a pair of tickets to a good movie from Roger Lewis, magazine writer; three indestructible dog biscuits from Doug's police dog from brother Robert, and of course many others. "The Three Musketeers" is now showing at the Capitol Theatre.

local tenor, who will assist in the revue to be given at the Pantages Theatre beginning Monday night.

DOROTHY GISH PLAYS BLIND SISTER PART IN "TWO ORPHANS"

"When I was young and sad and lonesome and unattached," says Miss Dorothy Gish, "I loved to play merry parts and did cute little soubrettes like 'The Little Disturber' of 'Hearts of the World.' But now I am married to Mr. Renie and gay as a lark and supremely happy, why, it follows, of course, that I crave for contrast a serious and tragic stage self."

This is Miss Dorothy's explanation of why, to the astonishment of many thousands of her admirers, she is playing the role of the weepy Louise, the blind sister in D. W. Griffith's "Orphans of the Storm," a picturization of "The Two Orphans," made famous by Kate Claxton. This new picture, under a United Artists Corporation release, is coming to the Capitol Theatre shortly, so her admirers will soon get an entirely new vision of her.

Really, Miss Dorothy's success in the East in the Kate Claxton part that was long the mainstay of the stage "Two Orphans," proves an unusual versatility. Miss Lillian Gish is to appear in the highly emotional role of Henriette, the sister. They have not been together for the last few years. The present production recalls their old association on the speaking stage, and later, in "The Birth of a Nation" and "Hearts of the World."

MUSICAL CLUB'S CONCERT WEDNESDAY

Programme to Feature Liszt and Robert Franz

A short and interesting talk by Mrs. Herchner on the life and works of the great composers, Liszt and Robert Franz, will precede the delightful programme arranged by the Ladies' Musical Club as the next of their series of concerts at the Empress Hotel on Wednesday afternoon, November 29 at 3.30.

 Miss Marjorie Broley, Accompanist—Mrs. A. J. Gibson, God Save the King.

HOCKEY STAR TO PLAY IN SPECIAL ROYAL ORCHESTRA

Frank Frederickson, Talented Violinist, in Music Lovers' Programme

Frank Frederickson, celebrated all over Canada, as the cleverest center forward in hockey, but less known as a talented violinist, will play in the thirty-piece symphony orchestra which Manager Clifford Denham is assembling for Music Lovers' Night at the Royal Victoria Theatre Monday.

Frederickson's appearance as a musician undoubtedly is creating a great deal of interest here, for he is well known to thousands who have seen him in action on the ice. It is not generally known that Frederickson is a violinist of no little natural talent, and the product of a long musical education. In his home city of Winnipeg he was a prominent figure in musical circles, but his time has been fully occupied during the Winters here with hockey. He is much more fond of music than of hockey, and his violin is his one hobby. While he is chiefly devoted to classical music he has been known to indulge in jazz for relaxation. Critics who have heard his playing declare that he is able to produce an unusually fine tone from his violin. Mrs. Frederickson, his wife, is a very talented pianist.

Frederickson is only one of a large number of artists who will assist in making Music Lovers' Night successful. Mr. Denham says. The offering at the Royal Monday will consist of the usual motion pictures and a generous programme of music by the specially-assembled symphony orchestra.

Mets, Traveling at Top Speed Hustle Cougars to Tree Tops

Seattle Emerged Victorious From Thrilling Game At Arena Last Night; Obtained a Three-Goal Lead In First Period On Some Soft Shots; Victoria Was Rapidly Overhauling Mets when Eddie Oatman Drove Down a 20-Minute Penalty Which Cut Off Furious Rally; Plenty of Speed and Fight

Four goals in the first period by the Mets freed the Cougars and a goal in each of the remaining stanzas was sufficient to keep the cats up in the limbo for the rest of the performance at the Arena last night. Seattle hopped off the ice at the end of three torrid rounds with the score standing 6 goals to 4 in their favor and the leadership of the P. C. H. A. still their travelling companion.

Riley-Foyston-Walker! That is the combination that trimmed Victoria. This trio of fast skating forwards were tearing about the pond like kids at a picnic. They went through the Victoria defence at times as if it had been so much tissue paper. The right side of the Cougars' defence appeared most vulnerable to the Mets' attack, and the boys from the Sound city pulled most of their play on that wing. Riley, Foyston and Walker showed a lot of tricky plays and it was surprising the way they created openings for one another.

The Cougars did not show their real fight until they were three goals down in the first period. They opened the second stanza with a ferocity of attack brooding disaster for the Mets. Halderson, Frederickson and Oatman were on the forward line and this trio backed up by the whirlwind rushes of the two Loughlin boys drove Seattle back into their own blue line and forced the play. Two goals were chalked up to the Cougars and left them but one tally to the bad. Victoria kept pressing for the tying goal, but while they were expending their energies on the offensive, the double-shuffling Mr. Foyston skipped through and rattled the rigging for the goal that gave the Mets the game.

Oatman's Loss Hurt.

There was still a chance for the Cougars to overtake the Mets but Eddie Oatman ran foul of "Red" Briden and was chased to the cooler for twenty minutes. When the skipper disappeared the Cougars' attack seemed to disappear. While on the ice Oatman was one of the star performers and he scored two of the three goals that were on the Cougars' side of the scoring sheet at the time of his departure. He also got right in on top of Holmes on several other occasions and only brilliant saves by Happy saved the net. It was a costly penalty for Victoria. Seattle lost Briden, it is true, but his disappearance did not interfere with the working of the Mets' machine.

It was a pipkin of a game although Victoria did lose. It would have been nice to have had that game under the Cougars' hides, but then one went home feeling that he had seen a great display of speed, combination, shooting, checking, the odd sprinkling of blood and the odd display of dukes and shillshans. Seattle played one of those spectacular offensive games which turn in on themselves during the year. They were smugly under the licking that Vancouver handed them on Wednesday night and refused to take any chances with this game. Over-confidence beat them Wednesday, they said. They thought they had Vancouver's number before they went on the ice last night they were looking for a battle. They got it and they won.

Rickey Wasn't Missed.

It is just possible that Victoria held the Mets a little too cheaply. With Roy Rickey, the black-haired defence man, at home with an injured leg it certainly looked as though the Cougars had the deck stacked to their liking. Young Gor-Fraser, however, gamed up everything by turning in a wonderful game. Rickey was not even missed on the defence. Fraser, breaking stepping attacks and took his turn on the offensive.

he lifted the puck right into Holmes' pads. The play slowed up for a minute and the puck was left to rest at the Victoria blue line. None of the Cougars seemed to want the rubber. It didn't take the blunderbuss, Foyston, long to renew his acquaintance with the disc. Then to make things easier for Foyston the Cougars let him have an open shot and he scored. That was the goal that sent the locals down to defeat.

War!!

The pace seemed to be getting the nannies of some of the players. Morris tried to score and when Wilf Loughlin treated him roughly he became crazed with a desire to fight. Bernard, however, was too short to get to Wilf's chin with his padded dukes, so he made two wonderful backwing swings with his hickory. Fortunately neither cut connected with the disc. Wilf's koko might have been served up on a platter. Mickey Ion scented trouble and he hustled both belligerents to the bench for ten minutes. The puck had no sooner been faced off than Eddie Oatman got away on a rush. Briden cross-checked him near the Seattle goal. Edward thought that anything but a gentleman's trick, so he reprimanded "Red" with a clout across the fevered temple. Eddie's aim was very true and Briden suffered a nasty cut.

Ion's Iron Hand.

This bloody affair convinced Referee Ion that the teams were trying to take matters into their own hands. When they had been dishing up previous to the outbreak. Meekling went through the Seattle defence and was all prime to pepper a hot one at Holmes when Fraser tripped him. In addition Eddie was assessed ten bucks.

Third Period Fast.

In the third period the Cougars turned loose all the speed they possessed. Both the Loughlin boys were traveling like demons and the forwards pressed the attack right to the Mets' goal, but they could not score. Meekling put one right across the mouth of the net. Wilf Loughlin almost had a goal on a pass from Frederickson, but Holmes picked it off. The Mets back-checked vigorously in an effort to stop the Cougars, but the locals' speed was carrying right through to Holmes. The Cougars eased down half way through the period Seattle opened up and bombarded Fowler. Foyston made an opening and Riley went around Wilf Loughlin and scored the final goal for the Mets.

A Sniff of Dynamite.

During the interval Lester Patrick must have given his charges a sniff of dynamite. The Cougars came back on the ice with enough fight to trim a Turkish army. Lester shoved Slim Halderson over to left wing in place of Meekling, with Frederickson and Oatman holding down the other berth on the forward line. The combination seemed to function very well and within two minutes the lad with the Marcel waves had the vast multitude trying to blow the roof off. "Slim" hooked the puck near his own nets and glued his eyes on the Seattle goal. He gathered great speed, and he scored in that manner during the show. Frederickson tried a solo rush and he best everybody but Holmes. The big fellow seemed to have the tying goal at the heel of his tick, but

ENGLISH FOOTBALL WORLD IN TURMOIL OVER CANCELLATION

London, Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press Cable)—No question in recent years has so agitated the amateur football world here as the action of the football league in banning the Corinthians-Plymouth Argyle match set for last Saturday at the Crystal Palace. The game was called off because the Crystal Palace Club had protested that if the match were played it would adversely affect the attendance at the Crystal Palace Club's match at Selhurst, two miles distant.

In the more select amateur football circles there is a strong feeling in the matter, as is shown by letters published in the newspapers. The cancellation of the match, however, is generally condemned by the whole sporting community, the criticisms being mostly directed at the Crystal Palace Club, and not the league. The majority of the big London professional clubs agree that it was a deplorable incident and likely to antagonize many of the hitherto keen supporters of professional football.

Prominent members of the football world have expressed their regret that anything but a gentleman's trick, so he reprimanded "Red" with a clout across the fevered temple. Eddie's aim was very true and Briden suffered a nasty cut.

minutes: Wilf Loughlin, Victoria; 10 minutes: Briden, Seattle, 20 minutes; Oatman, Victoria, 20 minutes and 10 minutes; Riley, Seattle, 2 minutes. Third period: Rowe, Seattle, 2 minutes. Referee—Ion.

Favorites Failed In All the Big Races

Flat Racing For 1922, Which Closed In England To-day, While Brilliant and Successful, Earned Not Altogether Desirable Distinction of Providing Unusually Large Number of Reversals of Racing Form In Nearly All the Classics

London, Nov. 25.—(By Canadian Press)—Flat racing for 1922 officially closed with the running of the last race on to-day's programme at Lingfield Park, and, while the season has been a most brilliant and successful one, it carries into history with it the not altogether desirable distinction of having provided an unusually large number of reversals of racing form, particularly in the classics and the more important Cup and Stake events.

Taken in their entirety, racing conditions this year have been most favorable. While the early Spring meetings experienced cold weather, and it was necessary to abandon the Newbury Spring meeting on account of a snowstorm, trainers were later on spared the ordeal through which they had passed a year ago, the long dry spell with its accompanying hard ground that plays such havoc with their charges, particularly the two-year-olds. Throughout the season rain fell at most opportune times, and, services to keep the ground from becoming too hard, was an important factor in the development of a large number of exceptionally promising juveniles.

Mad Splendid Start.

Racing got off to an excellent start this Spring. There was ample material, the number of horses in training exceeding those of any previous year and the entry lists for the principal races for two-year-olds were unusually large. This was particularly gratifying in view of the fact that the preceding year, which was a year of general disharmony, was one of the most disappointing in the history of the sport. The season was marked by a number of reversals of racing form, particularly in the classics and the more important Cup and Stake events.

Series of Surprises.

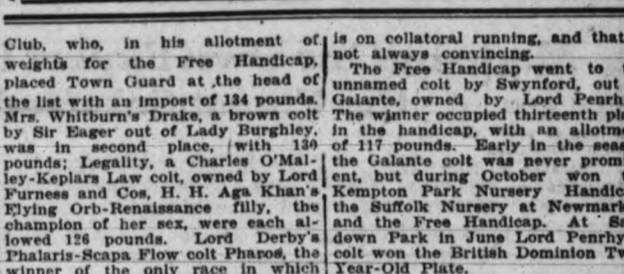

This year's classics have been a series of surprises. The first, the two thousand guineas, went to Lord Queensborough's St. Louis, who defeated the favorite, Lord Woolavington's Captain Cuttle. Two days later, in the one thousand guineas, Marshall Field's Billy Golden Horn, a hot favorite, finished third to W. E. Parr's Silver Urn, a ten to one shot. In the Epsom Derby, St. Louis went to the post a favorite, but the winner proved to be Captain Cuttle, who, with Lord Astor's Tamar, in second place, went to the post at 10 to 1 against.

Not Leading Three-Year-Old.

Whatever may be said against the season's three-year-olds, and it can be safely said that there was no outstanding one this year, several of the smart juveniles were developed during the year. Lord Woolavington's colt, Town Guard, by Hurry On out of William's Pride, after losing his first race early in March scored his sixth successive win, the "Gimcrack," and was conceded to be the champion of his year. This opinion was confirmed by T. F. Hawkins, the official handicapper for the Jockey

Huge Crowds Will Attend Harvard-Yale and Army-Navy Games in East

New York, Nov. 25.—Finis will be written to-day at the foot of most of the United States college football schedules in the east. The two outstanding games are the clashes between Harvard and Yale at New Haven, and the Army and Navy at Philadelphia.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—With every team in the Big Ten in action and each meeting a conference opponent, the curtain will drop on the western conference football season, today and indications are that the championship will be shared by the three undefeated leaders, Michigan, Iowa and Chicago. Badger will play Chicago at Chicago, Northwestern will meet Iowa at Iowa City, Michigan, who has been scored on but once this season, will play Minnesota at Minneapolis and the Ohio-Illinois battle will be staged at Urbana. Purdue opposes Indiana at Lafayette to decide which will occupy the cellar berth in the championship race.

YOUTHFUL GOLFERS NOW REIGN SUPREME ON THE GOLF LINKS

Youth reigns supreme in golf. When Glenna Collett won the recent women's national championship over the White Sulphur Springs course her victory rounded out the triumvirate of youthful national golf champions, Gene Sarazen, Jesse Sweetser and Glenna Collett.

Gene Sarazen, who has just turned 21, was the first to break into the spotlight of golfdom. Sarazen, by his remarkable victory at Chicago over one of the greatest fields ever gathered together in a national tourney, produced the greatest golfing upset of the season.

Sarazen's victory was first regarded in the nature of a fluke. He had a good day and more than his share of golfing luck, said the experts. However, it didn't take Sarazen long to prove that he was more than a mere flash.

Sarazen No Mere Flash.
When he won the honors in the professional golfers' tourney, and later followed it up by decisively defeating Walter Hagen in a special match, Sarazen proved that he was justly entitled to be ranked the greatest golfer of the year.

Sarazen's victory over Hagen really established him more firmly in golfing circles than his two other great wins. He met Hagen in the world series of golf and after trailing him for 25 holes he came from behind to win.

Jesse Sweetser, who won the national amateur honors by defeating the great "Chick" Evans in the finale, scored a victory that was almost as sensational as that of Sarazen when he beat the country's best.

Sweetser was born April 18, 1902, which means that he has yet to cast his first vote. Sweetser is a student at Yale. In 1920 he won the inter-collegiate golfing honors.

Scored a Great Triumph.
In many ways even more remarkable than the triumphs of Sarazen and Sweetser was that of Glenna Collett in winning the national women's championship.

Only a 19-year-old girl, pitted against the game's greatest players, she upset the jaws of the critics by playing consistent golf that couldn't be denied.

The final match certainly had an international flavor, Miss Collett being paired with Mrs. W. A. Gavin, one of Great Britain's leading players, who has enjoyed a much wider experience as a golfer.

When asked for her golfing formula she said that all women golfers might be enlightened thereby, Miss Collett simply said:

"I don't know how to account for my success other than that I love the game. Some folks take to golf like a duck to water, they seem to have a natural aptitude for it. Perhaps it is so in my case. That explains part of my success, the major portion of it is due to the efforts of my instructor, Mr. Alex Smith."

Two Fine Pieces of Horseflesh and the Man Who Owns Them

A week ago Mr. McCleave brought his stable of 23 hunters and jumpers back from the Portland and Salem Horse Shows, where they captured nearly one hundred ribbons. The horses in the pictures are the best jumpers in their class. Blarney Stone and Moderation both left the bar standing at 6 feet 8 inches in the open jump, defeating all the finest horses from California, Washington, Oregon and the East.

RIGHT OFF THE ICE

It was a great game, with the brainy team winning.

The six-man game looked a lot better last night. There were no end of thrills. The speed at times was terrific.

Wilt Loughlin showed his best work in years on the offensive. He didn't stop at the blue line. Defensively, however, Wilt was not up to form. He tried to stop the boys with his stick.

While Wilt Loughlin was on the bench for ten minutes Slim Halderson was used on the defence. Slim looked pretty slick there. And, by the way, Slim, congrats on that goal you got.

Seattle tried to pull a new one on the free shot they were awarded. The Mets started shouting towards the bench for Morris, and while they were staging the chorus Fraser slipped up on the puck and shot. The gar didn't work on Hec Fowler, anyway.

That club-swinging stuff is bad business. If the boys have to fight let them use their dukes. Oatman's clout at Briden didn't look good, and the same goes for Morris, who, while he didn't connect with Wilt's head, had the best intentions of doing so.

Jim Riley looks to be in for a banner season. He was stepping over the ice like a prancing hackney. He scored three goals and was on the move all the time.

Riley could not get through the game without a penalty though. Mickey Ion sent him to the bench for two minutes in the second period. It was the first time the anti-defence rule was enforced here.

This boy Fraser shapes up better each trip out. He doesn't need to be told to step into the ring. He finished the game with a goal. Several of the Congrats ran foul of him, but the red-haired youth didn't step back.

Frederickson gathered in an assist last night and still leads the scorers. The blonde was cheated out of a couple of goals by Holmes.

No one would have thought Clem Loughlin had a bad foot the way he was going last night. Man, how that lad does kick up the fakes.

Jocko Anderson was out on his new skates last night and he was hunting rebounds like Harry Meeking hunts pheasants. Jocko had the same luck as Harry—he didn't get any.

Fowler was a sick boy when he took the ice, and some of the goals that went in on him in the first period looked sore. But it wasn't all Hec's fault. He tagged some beauties during the game.

EMPRESS BILLIARDS

In the semi-final of the Empress billiard tournament last night Brewer (a. 100) beat Jones (r. 50) by twelve points after a good recovery by Brewer. The game was in Jones's favor up to the 200 mark, then his opponent struck his stride and played a wonderful game, leaving Jones at the 223 mark, when he ran out.

This evening at 7:30 Irish (o. 200) will play Sabo (o. 100), the winner of this match to play Brewer for the championship.

RUGGERS MAY PLAY IN SNOW FLURRIES

Argos and Queen's Meet Today; One Man Intends to Stop Conacher

Toronto, Nov. 25.—If the weather man is anyway near correct in his predictions, Argos and Queen's will have a firm footing for the Eastern Canada rugby final at the stadium.

Weather forecasts are for strong northwest winds with snow flurries, but mostly fair and quite cold.

According to the claims of the supporters of both teams, these conditions should be satisfactory to the players. Queen's are claimed to be at their best on a dry field, while the seulers say they are at home in any kind of going. The game commenced at 2:15 o'clock.

TORELORE, AT 6 TO 1, WINS LAST BIG RACE ON OLD COUNTRY TURF

Manchester, Eng., Nov. 25.—Torelore, by Beppo, out of Tor-tor, owned by Sir Medworth Mox, won the November Handicap, the last big event of the flat racing season, run here. C. R. Baron's Arravale was second and C. F. Kenyon's Orpi was third. Fourteen horses ran.

The stakes were £1,500 with additions making the event worth about £3,000. Caravale rode the winner, with Donaghue on Arravale and Thwaites on Orpi. The betting was Torelore 6 to 1, Arravale 100 to 5, Orpi 25 to 1 against.

ST. ANDREW TEAMS TO PLAY TO-NIGHT

Four Games Are Scheduled at the Trades Hall

Four games of basketball are billed for to-night at the Trades Hall, the first to commence at 7 o'clock.

In the opening game the St. Andrew's intermediates will meet the Congregational boys.

The second game will be between the "Wide Awakes" from the First Presbyterian Church and St. Andrew's junior girls. Two weeks ago the First girls defeated the St. Andrew's quintette after an exciting game, but this time the St. Andrew's hope to turn the tables. A thrilling game should result.

The Um-Tumbles boys will then take the floor in the third game and the St. Andrew's "Comets" will furnish the opposition. The Congregational boys have established a reputation for themselves and have one of the fastest junior boys' teams in the city. However, the St. Andrew's boys are confident of breaking their record by scoring a win over them.

The final game will be between the St. Andrew's senior men and the James Bay Methodists. These two teams always play a hard game and although both lineups are vastly different from last season an exciting game should result.

MEDALS ARRIVE FOR AMATEUR BALL CHAMPS.

C. McConnell, of the Victoria Sporting Goods, announces that he has received fourteen solid silver medals from A. G. Spalding, Limited. These medals are to be presented to the elite baseball team, British Columbia Amateur Baseball Champions.

CARL TREMAINE

Who is the leading contender for the bantamweight title? Joe Lynch is the present champion.

I nominate Carl Tremaine of Cleveland for that honor. I am sure the nomination will be unanimously seconded by everyone who has ever seen that little battler in action.

New Yorkers are still talking about Tremaine's meeting with Harold Faresse, a big favorite in that city, and touted as the next bantam title holder. Faresse lasted only three rounds in one of the most sensational bouts staged in New York.

Tremaine boasts a wonderful record. He has knocked out more opponents than any other bantam in the ring. When he goes into action fight fans get a real run for their money.

Knocked Out O'Dowd.
Only recently Tremaine knocked out Phil O'Dowd, one of the few bantams holding a decision over Lynch. A few months previously Lynch had lost his title to Pete Herman.

Another notable knockout scored by Tremaine was at the expense of Eddie Pinchott of Pittsburgh, who has to his credit an even break with Lynch over the 10-round route.

New Yorkers are still talking about Tremaine's meeting with Harold Faresse, a big favorite in that city, and touted as the next bantam title holder. Faresse lasted only three rounds in one of the most sensational bouts staged in New York.

Jimmy Dunn, who has developed such great performers as Johnny Kilbane, Bryan Downey, Johnny Karr and a host of others, is confident that in Tremaine he has the next bantam champ. As a matter of fact, Dunn says that Lynch will be slain of the title the first time he steps into the ring with Tremaine.

Another Terrible Terry.
Tremaine is the unusual type, very clever, yet a great hitter and aggressive. At times he throws cleverness to the winds and swaps punches standing toe to toe with his opponent. It is said of Tremaine that no battler has ever made him back up, and that he always has the last punch in a clinch. In many ways Tremaine reminds one of Terry McGovern when that great fighter was in his prime. He has plenty of color.

Tremaine is certainly entitled to a crack at the bantam title. His record justifies that assertion. To fail to bring him together with Lynch is an injustice to the fight fans of New York.

Tremaine is 23 years old. He has been fighting since 1917.

COMMUNITY CENTRE BASKETBALL LEAGUE

"Y" and J.B.A.A. Will Engage in Strenuous Battle To-night at Armaries

A fast basketball game is expected this evening at the Drill Hall, when the Y. M. C. A. and the J. B. A. A. will meet in the "A" Section of the Community Centre Basketball League.

Both aggregations are reputed to have strong teams and promise to make their opponents stop lively if they expect to win. Following the game the usual dance will be held.

This is the third game in this newly formed league and some good exhibitions of the hoop game will be played before the season ends.

CLYDE GOLDWATER

Johnny Weismuller, have a carol Clyde Goldwater, 17-year-old Californian, is on your trail. Goldwater is built along the lines of Weismuller and the resemblance between the two swimmers is rather striking.

Recently Goldwater won the national one-mile swimming championship in competition with many older and more nationally known swimmers.

Goldwater's time for the mile was 25 minutes and 2 seconds, which tied the Pacific coast record.

The youngster is a student at the Stockton, Cal., high school. He is coming fast, and coast experts feel certain he will push Weismuller hard for many records now held by the Californian.

Dick Jennings Jr., Pittsburg millionaire, is the latest speed sensation in automobile circles.

Recently, at St. Louis, Jennings broke the world's record for 4, 10, 15 and 20 miles, formerly held by Barney Oldfield.

The entry into the motor race game of Jennings will do much to boom the sport. Jennings is the type of sportsman long needed to fill the void left in the racing ranks by the passing of the late David Bruce Brown and Spencer Wishart, and the retirement of William K. Vanderbilt Jr. and Caley Bragg.

Jennings is a protégé of the old master, Louis Chevrolet. Aside from coaching him in the racing game,

S.P.C.A. REPORTS PROGRESS IS MADE

Keener Interest in General Work of Society Fostered by Animal Week

Officers of the S. P. C. A. elected for 1923 at the annual meeting last evening were: President, W. B. Pease; vice-presidents, A. R. Sherwood, Rev. W. Stevenson; hon. counsel, Lindley Crease, K.C.; hon. treasurer, J. T. Braden; hon. secretary, Miss D. Kitto; and hon. auditor, R. Genn; committee—Mrs. H. Crane, Mrs. W. P. Burton, Mrs. T. Gillatt, Mrs. Marcroft, Miss Lynam, Messrs. R. Hunter, R. T. Williams, J. A. Shanks, G. T. Maurice, with one vacancy to fill.

Secretary's Report.
The report of the honorary secretary, Miss D. Kitto, showed progress made during the year and emphasized the importance of installing the habit of kindness in the growing generations. Miss Kitto deals with the problem of the indiscriminate laying of poison, and other phases of the active field of the Society in this city. The observation of Animal Week had done much to strengthen the work of the organization and had gained innumerable supporters. She stated the report, which brings out that fact that the society is now in its twenty-eighth year in his city.

Miss Kitto continued in part: "Humane education of the young is of the utmost importance and should receive far greater attention than it does. It is the foundation of the whole movement. In proportion to the attention such education receives, will be the progress of our work in future generations."
"The question of performing animals has received considerable notoriety of late, both in this country and elsewhere. A petition has been circulated to secure passage for Bill in the coming session, prohibiting these useless and often cruel performances."
"A form of cruelty that deserves the severest condemnation is the desertion of animals by their owners, and this refers particularly to cats. There is not the slightest excuse for this neglect—it is a matter of deliberate cruelty. When helpless kittens are thrown out tied in sacks and with no power to help themselves we can call it by no other name than contemptible."
"A strong effort is being made in this country to suppress all Wild West shows, which are far from necessary or desirable. The American Humane Societies intend to fight this form of cruelty to a finish."
Poison.
"The indiscriminate laying of poison is causing much trouble to the society and great loss to owners of animals. Death by poison is so terrible that we shall use every effort to bring offenders to justice. The law is clearly defined and is continually evaded.

"Our list of supporters has been considerably lengthened this year, though in proportion to the population it is far too small. Mrs. Agar proved a valuable collector, with her heart in the work, and we hope to have her help in the future. We have received unexpected donations, however, from many quarters, gifts of money raised through the efforts of children being especially prized, as they show that our labors have not been entirely in vain. For various reasons we have decided to collect our own funds as usual, and not to join the Community Chest."
"In conclusion, we desire to thank heartily all those friends who have helped to finance our society for twenty-eight years, nor do we forget that small band of workers who have labored to promote a greater interest in and sympathy for the sub-human races. Again, we thank those of the clergy who remembered to observe 'Humane Sunday' when a special appeal is made for recognition of our efforts. The number should, however, be considerably increased, for we ought to appreciate the fact that humanity to animals is part of our Christian teaching and cannot be neglected."

"Our thanks are also due to C. L. Harrison (City prosecutor) Lindley Crease (hon. counsel), S. H. Hanks, Mr. Genn (hon. auditor), the press: Veterinary Surgeons R. Hamilton and H. Keown, Miss Ada Saunders for use of her studio and for collections, the police, both city and provincial, and the City Engineer."
Inspector's Report.
That 288 cases had been dealt with in the course of the year was reported by Inspector G. T. Maurice. The problem of the stray cat, and the wholesale laying of poison were commented on in the report, which stated convictions had in some cases been secured. The inspector is warm in his praise for the members of the Victoria police for assistance rendered on many occasions.

Under its various headings the report is as follows:
Horses, 88; destroyed, 1; dogs, 44; destroyed, 1; cats, 69; destroyed, 33; poultry, 13; sheep, 4; pigs, 4; cows, 27; destroyed, 1; birds, 6; goats, 4; sundry, 17; poison, 12. Total, 288.

President W. B. Pease said in part: "The Victoria branch of the S. P. C. A. was formed in February, 1894. I think we may congratulate ourselves on the increasing vitality that the activities of the society have shown in the last few years. Or perhaps I should rather speak of the recovery shown, as I am told that during long periods before the war the society was a very energetic and active one. I believe that a few years ago the society did a very wise thing in electing women to the Executive Committee. The ladies have always displayed an ardent sympathy for suffering animals which has supplied the dynamic force so useful in keeping the committee from sliding peacefully along a rut of routine."
Extension of Work.
The treasurer's report shows our financial position to be sound, but that desirable condition has been maintained by the curtailment of activities in some important directions which might be almost indefinitely extended with a corresponding increase of funds. A longer subscription list guaranteeing a reliable source of income would allow us to carry our activities into country districts and small towns now outside the range of our inspector's journeys. We might also regularly inspect with advantage logging camps and coal mines where horses and ponies are used in considerable numbers.

The cash in the Bank of Montreal, the treasurer reported, a year ago totalled $1,182.70, and the receipts since that time had been $1,517.70. The society had expended $1,523.31, leaving a balance of $1,176.44.

Home-made, but Has No Equal for Coughs

Makes a family supply of really dependable cough medicine. Easily prepared, and saves about $7.

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds. There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid confusion, ask for 2½ ounces of Pinex with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

SLURS ON COLONELS
CHEAP CRITICISM,
BARROW ASSERTS

"Four times out of the five I have addressed the House this session I have done so purely to correct misstatements of opposition members regarding the soldier settlements at Merville and Creston," said Hon. E. D. Barrow, Minister of Agriculture, in the Legislature.

He reviewed again the task with which the Government was confronted in establishing these areas and said that by next Spring it must be settled one way or the other how these settlements were to be conducted in future.

Hon. Mr. Barrow said that time showed whether or not a man was mentally and physically able to succeed in life. Almost invariably those properly equipped did so and the mis-fits failed.

He said that the 115 settlers at Merville presented 115 different problems. The farms ran in value from nothing to $4,000. Of the 115, farms had been secured by 23 for nothing. Thirteen veterans had obtained their places for less than $100 each; 12 farms cost between $100 and $200; 13 between $200 and $500; 11 between $500 and $1,000; 7 between $1,000 and $2,000; 14 between $2,000 and $3,000; 2 between $3,000 and $4,000, and three over $4,000.

All the men must be considered on a basis of equity, he proceeded. Many had borrowed up to the limit and in cases where they had been refused further aid criticism had arisen.

Cheap in Criticism.
Hon. Mr. Barrow said the opposition had been cheap in their criticism of Colonels Davies and Latta. These officials had performed good work. Mr. Bowser had objected to the appointment of Colonel Latta to the Land Settlement Board because he had been a printer. The truth was, said the minister, that Colonel Latta had pioneered as a farmer in Chilliwack and Surrey harder than the Merville veterans. Furthermore, he had left an enviable record.

The minister said that to call Colonel Davies a "petty grafter" was most unjust.

J. W. Jones interjected that the report of the Colonel's connection with the sawmill at Merville was contained in the report of the committee appointed by the Government to investigate conditions there.

Hon. Mr. Barrow: Colonels Davies and Latta joined up as privates and rose to be colonels.

After further explanation of the difficulties facing the Government in this connection, the minister appealed for fair play. Unusual conditions had led to the establishment of the soldier settlement areas, he said, and the Government was doing its best to give the veterans the best of the bargain.

The bishop was waiting for his train in an out-of-the-way village.

At This Changeable Season You Need a Tonic—

Carnol

The ideal preparation for anaemia, nervousness, weakness, sleeplessness, colds, coughs, influenza, pneumonia, bronchitis and when run down and convalescing.

CARNOL
Beef, Cod Liver Oil and Glycerophosphates

Each fluid ounce contains the soluble nutritive properties of two ounces of fresh Beef, the alkaloids of one ounce of Cod Liver Oil and ten grains Glycerophosphate Salts in proportionate combination.

DOSE—For adults, one table-spoonful before each meal and at bedtime. Children are happy and unaccording to age.

MANUFACTURED BY CARNOL LIMITED
40 St. Urbain St. - Montreal.

Ninety per cent. of all diseases are caused by a run down condition of the human system.

At no time of the year is it so necessary to keep fit than the present. The man or woman who is run down risks the chance of catching cold with its often fatal consequences—pneumonia, influenza, tonsillitis, bronchitis.

The same thing applies to the kiddies—keep them well and strong and while they won't be immune from colds, they will quickly throw them off if they are kept fit and healthy by taking Carnol.

There is no finer preparation known to keep the system in perfect health than Carnol.

It has accomplished wonders in building up run down constitutions. Thousands of bottles of Carnol have been prescribed by the leading physicians in Canada because they know its formula and know the value of every ingredient in it.

Carnol is one of the very few preparations containing glycerophosphate salts, commonly known as the "blood salts."

These glycerophosphate salts, in combination with iron, are universally recognized by physicians as positively the best blood builder and nerve invigorator yet discovered.

While these "salts" are the principal and most important ingredient in Carnol, it also possesses other excellent properties.

To stimulate and nourish the system, Carnol contains the soluble nutritive properties of fresh beef.

To complete this preparation, we have put in the extracts of cod livers with all the nauseating and bad tasting elements removed—it has been demonstrated beyond a doubt, times without number, that cod liver oil is not only a food but a flesh-builder, increasing the bodily resistance against all forms of disease, especially consumption.

As a specific for consumption in helping to stay this dreaded scourge, Carnol has accomplished the seemingly impossible.

Carnol is pleasant to take and children like the taste of it.

Carnol is a blood and tissue-builder and should be taken in cases of anaemia, consumption, as well as all diseases of a wasting nature, the result of impaired nutrition, poor and insufficient blood supply and wherever the system requires building up.

Carnol provides food for the nerves and food for the body, it increases weight and builds up the whole system.

Carnol has been especially beneficial in the treatment of rickets—a very common disease among ill-nourished children.

Never before in the world's history have there been so many cases of run-down constitutions, where the nerves of both men and women show the need of an upbuilding tonic.

The curse of the age is neurasthenia, or nerve troubles, which give you the "blues", make you feel miserable and depressed.

Unless this condition is checked, it may lead to serious consequences. In some cases a few bottles, or even a bottle of Carnol will produce good results, but permanent results can only be obtained in advanced cases by taking a Course of Carnol.

Remember, with every bottle of Carnol sold, we make the following guarantee, that, "If, after taking your first bottle of Carnol, according to directions you find that it has not helped you, that its action is not already recognizable and you can say so sincerely, take back the empty (or partly empty) bottle and get your $1.00 back. Remember we refund the druggist the purchase price—he loses nothing."

Price $1.00 a bottle

Your Druggist! (No one in your community knows the merits of Carnol better than your druggist. Every druggist is a highly intelligent and highly trained man and you can absolutely rely upon his advice—ask him what he thinks about Carnol.)

Woolen and Cotton Mills in

Trade With Australia and

Joseph B. Clearhue, Liberal member for Victoria, came out in the Legislature yesterday with the assertion that Mr. Bowser as Opposition Leader had no right to try to elevate himself by slandering the Province as he had done by deprecating the financial condition of the Province in the debates in the House so far this session.

Mr. Clearhue quoted from financial papers and reports of R. G. Dun & Co. to show that business in Canada had been steadily improving since last year and this improved condition in industry was reflected in the appreciation of the Canadian dollar, which had risen to such an extent that the American dollar was now at a discount in comparison with it.

The bountiful crop on the prairies this season had also helped out conditions, Mr. Clearhue said, and so had the fact that copper, lead, zinc, silver and gold production in B. C. reached new high levels.

"And yet with all this prosperity staring us in the face, we find the Leader of the Opposition making assertions that this Province is on the verge of bankruptcy," Mr. Clearhue said.

British Columbia has got a great future in export trade, Mr. Clearhue went on, telling of how this Province which is already third, coming after Ontario and Quebec in manufacturing, will jump almost to the forefront when advantage is taken by the establishment of cotton and woolen mills here to use the cotton and wool raw material which is an important exportable produce of Australia.

Antipodean Trade.
Mr. Clearhue pointed to the possibilities of this Province supplying Australia with fruits in return for wool and cotton products, as the fruit season there alternates with that of the northern hemisphere in which this continent is situated.

With the development of this trade he believed that British Columbia should get a large proportion of the lumber supply from Australia, now going to United States.

Lumber business is improving, Mr. Clearhue said, as indicated by the shipment of 84,000,000 feet for the first six months this year as compared with 72,000,000 feet for the first six months of 1921 shipped from this Province. In 1921 Australia took 27,000,000 feet of lumber from B. C. So far this year Australia has taken 25,000,000 feet.

Mr. Clearhue said there was also a great market awaiting British Columbia in the Orient.

"I predict that in a decade we will be able to look back and realize that the policy of this Government has been sound and fruitful for this Province," Mr. Clearhue added.

of Europe taught to students at lature yesterday afternoon by the Hon. J. D. MacLean, Minister of Education.

"One would have thought from the way the honorable member talked that this history was the only text book in the history course," Dr. MacLean said.

The minister explained that there are 67 history text books taught or available for university students taking the history course. Then he pointed out that the history under discussion was not a history of Canada, but a history of Europe.

Procedure.
When students get in the university, he also explained, the professor lecturing on the subject indicates the line of reading the student should follow and gives the bias, as it were, from which the students look at the course.

As this was the case, the viewpoint from history was taught, rests chiefly with the professors in charge of the department. In this regard he pointed out that Professor Eastman, head of the department, was a Canadian by birth, preceded by four generations in Canada of English ancestry. United Empire Loyalist stock. In the war this professor enlisted as a private and won his promotion to the status of officer on the medical staff, and Professor Eastman was Professor Sage, who enlisted at the beginning of the war and was in the army until discharged as a medically unfit, and Professor Seaward, graduate of Toronto and Oxford, who also enlisted and served during the war.

"With the history department, headed by Professor Eastman and with the men who have seen service overseas, is it reasonable to expect that men of this calibre are going to place in the hands of young people, books that are going to be injurious to them from a patriotic point of view?" Dr. MacLean asked.

Dr. MacLean also said that Canon Hincliffe had sought to create the impression that this history book was entirely anti-British. To refute this he showed the first page of the book was an illustration of the Aztecs entering a town captured from the Germans.

As for the full fourteen points of President Wilson, being given in the book, to which Canon Hincliffe objected, the minister pointed out the importance of the statement of war policy involved recalling how at the end of the war the fourteen points monopolized the comment all over the world to the exclusion of almost anything else.

Sought Far.
Dr. MacLean explained that in 1915 Professor Eastman had been sent to Europe to select the history library for the University of B. C. During this trip and right up to 1921 he tried but was unable to find a textbook on the subject written by a Britisher that was suitable or available. He pointed out that this was the admission in England that the book publishers there had no book that could be used in the course.

The minister quoted from the history textbook to refute assertions that Canadians were not given fair prominence for the part they played in the war in comparison with other people and that British and other Allied statesmen had not received prominence in keeping with the scope and purpose of the book.

In connection with the stand of Mr. Bowser on the construction of the buildings for the University of British Columbia, Dr. MacLean said that he had taken the trouble to go over the speeches of Mr. Bowser for the last few sessions and had not been able to find where he had once advocated that these buildings should be erected. In fact in some of the outlying districts, such as Greenwood, Mr. Bowser had actually criticized the Government for setting aside the lands at Point Grey for the University, and had criticized construction proposals, asserting that the buildings would not cost $1,500,000 as projected, but $5,000,000.

MILLION TO AID INDUSTRIES HERE, LAUNCHED BY BURDE

Strong arguments in defence of the Department of Industries were offered in the Legislature by Major R. J. Burde, Member for Alberni, and the only Legislative representative on the Industrial Council.

"It is entirely unfair for opposition members to injure the credit of this Province by their untruthful charges," he exclaimed. "The Government and the Legislature were forced to take action three years ago because of the demands of returned men, and I want to say that if the entire million dollars loaned by the department had done nothing more than relieve the situation existing at that time, the money would have been well spent."

Western Cordage Company.
On the other hand, the major contended that many of the loans were proving to be of a high order. For instance, the $250,000 loaned to the Western Cordage Company was turning out well, although the Industrial Council had had some fears when recommending the advance. Returned men organized the company and at the present time the best quality of rope was being sold for two cents per pound under the price offered by eastern agents.

In this connection Major Burde referred to a former member of the "solid five" Conservatives from Vancouver, Mr. Macgowan, whom he said was even to-day working hard against the interests of the Western Canada Cordage Company because of his connection with eastern firms manufacturing the same products.

He spoke of the former Minister of Finance of the late Government, A. C. Flumerfelt, who was a member of the Advisory Council when it was first formed. That gentleman had favored the loan to the Cordage Company but had later left the board without giving other than personal reasons.

"He owed a duty at that time, but that was overlooked," said the Alberni member, who added that in all, 1,000 applications for loans had been received and only 77 loans were granted. This showed the careful scrutiny of all requests for aid, he said.

Many Industries Flourish.

The Major said that many new industries were flourishing in this Province as the result of the work of the Industrial Department. Unfortunately, only $1,000,000 was loaned before the Finance Minister ran out of funds.

Many of the firms receiving assistance were in arrears only because the council had advised giving them more time in order to make good, he explained, and such criticism as was being directed against the Government was not its due.

Major Burde said that the loan made to the Schaeffer Machine Company, of New Westminster, was a good one. A deal was pending whereby the company would be able to return its loan to the Government in full, despite the statements to the contrary.

He wished Mr. Bowser long life, prosperity and success, but he thought the Opposition Leader would be well advised to confine his statements to the truth. Mr. Bowser owed his standing in the life of the Province to the consideration which had been shown him by the public, but he would not suffer through supporting an opposition party when that party was in the right.

PUT RED COATS ON HUNTERS, IS PLAN OF M'KENZIE

The chief complaint against the Government which the Conservative member for Similkameen, W. A. McKenzie, lodged in the Legislature was in connection with the work of the chief architect and the faulty construction of an important school at Prince Rupert. He claimed that through the incompetency of the architect, a Mr. Potter, it would require $46,000 to put into a safe condition the building in question. Further, he urged that the architect be expelled from the Architects' Association and amendments made to the statute which would safeguard the people from similar losses.

Mr. McKenzie maintained that the Government architect, Mr. Whittaker, did not appear to understand his business, and the government should pay a high enough salary to secure a competent man.

Special Hunting Clothing.

The Similkameen member agreed that too much time was taken up in the House with petty details, and he thought the Legislature could clean up its business in six or seven weeks. He suggested amendments to the Game Conservation Act, whereby hunters would be required to wear either red caps or coats while shooting, and recommended the establishment of game reserves that would more fully protect the wild life.

He suggested that a man be employed in the Southern Okanagan district to shoot crows, magpies and other destructive birds, and he would have the game license of $2.50 increased to 50 cents, to provide a fund for the establishment of a fish hatchery to furnish spawn for the propagation of game fish.

Mr. McKenzie said that while there was criticism due the Government regarding the high costs of the Southern Okanagan irrigation project, still it might be remembered that the work was undertaken under unusual circumstances, when labor and material were high. He said that if the main canal were finished to the international boundary it would be found that the best lands in the Province would be brought under cultivation.

Hedley Gold Mining.
Mr. McKenzie maintained that the retroactive legislation passed in 1918 regarding mining had resulted in driving the Hedley Gold Mining Company out of business for a year. Premier Oliver asked if this company had not made a profit of $2,400,000.

"This may be true," he admitted, "but they paid all the taxes they were asked to pay and carried on business at a loss because of requests from the Provincial and Federal governments. However, the company was forced to close down for a year. Later they re-opened, but have already commenced to close down operations."

Mr. McKenzie asked for an alleviation of conditions causing this, and argued that surely it was in the interests of the country to assist through reasonable legislation a company a pay-roll of $500,000 per month.

Will Your Boy Be Educated?

Of course he will, because you want to see him grow up to be a "real" man. When he gets out into the world and makes his mark, what pleasure and satisfaction it will bring to you!

But there is just one consideration—suppose you do not live until he is fitted for his life's work. This thought has escaped many a man. It is the chief reason ninety per cent. of children never complete their High School course.

The matter can easily be arranged—an education guaranteed to your children—through life insurance.

It is one of the great pleasures of life insurance representations to be able to advise fathers and mothers how to provide for the education of their children, who will afterwards pay honor to their parents, holding them in high regard for this chance in life.

LIFE INSURANCE IS "THE LOVE THAT NEVER DIES" AND WHEN EXTENDED TO YOUR CHILDREN REACHES ONE OF ITS HIGHEST FORMS OF EXPRESSION.

NEELANDS ATTACKS
NEW IMMIGRATION
PLANS OF CANADA

Protest against the plans of the Dominion Government announced on Thursday to let down the immigration bars of this country, was made in the Legislature yesterday by R. H. Neelands, Labor member for South Vancouver.

Mr. Neelands read the press dispatches from Ottawa declaring that they made it clear that it was not to be farmers alone who were to be brought in but workers generally, for the industrial field as well as the agricultural. In view of the large number of unemployed throughout the country, he declared such a policy to be the height of folly.

As for the importation of female immigrants as domestics, Mr. Neelands said that it would be much better to leave them alone if they were only brought here in order to offer something better to people in the upper strata of life.

Many students attending the university of B.C., Mr. Neelands declared, were only wasting their parents' money and their own time and are taking the places there of young persons who really should be educated because they have the capability for it, although they lacked the money.

Too many school buildings throughout the Province were put up as monuments of architecture rather than houses of learning, and this, he declared, was the reason why many communities found themselves in financial difficulties through over-spending. He said that it was not so much the quality of the buildings but the quality of the learning which was given that was important.

SOME FRESH FISH

Fish stories are associated usually with the forest and stream, lake or sea; now, however, comes the tale of the fish that occasioned surprise in the kitchen of a well known local residence. The housewife purchased fresh fish at the door from a Chinese vendor, and proceeded to cook the same. That the vendor had not forewarned himself when he said his fish were fresh became apparent early, as the fish commenced to flip and flop this way and that while being made ready for the pan. The sole, for such they were, were duly cooked and served on the table; but to the utter consternation of the family, the fish commenced a dance while actually in the act of being served on the plates of the prospective diners.

EDUCATION'S PLACE IN MODERN GROWTH

Dean Coleman Points Way to Victoria Teachers

Over a hundred members of the Victoria and District Teachers' Association gathered at the High School last night and, after dinner heard an inspiring address by Dean H. T. J. Coleman, of the University of British Columbia, who undertook to answer the question, "Is public education a failure?"

Hon. Dr. MacLean was also a guest and preceded Dean Coleman's address with an expression of his pleasure at meeting the teachers. A number of City Trustees and Education Department officials were also guests of the association.

Introduced by President T. W. Cornett, of the Teachers' Association, Dean Coleman recalled, as typifying a somewhat wide opinion, Bernard Shaw's epigram, "Those who can, do; those who can't, teach."

"I think our work should be taken seriously, and I agree with Hon. Dr. MacLean when he says 'nothing but good can come of discussion' of our affairs," said the Dean, remarking that, all in all, very little criticism of the teaching profession exists, and "at long last the schoolmaster is coming into his own."

He referred to the typical school masters of past generations, noted they were of an entirely different type to those gathered at the dinner and long since dead, all save the minds of a few super-critical.

The Issue at Stake.

"To ask if public education is a failure is tantamount to asking 'is democracy a failure,' and that in turn is identical with the question 'is humanity a failure,'" he said, and answered that question "no," in the sense of progress made, and I would answer it "yes" from the point of view that could have been accomplished in view of the vision of the state, or the church, or some of us at great moments, he said.

"I would call to your attention the fact that public education is by way of being a new thing, centuries younger than the state, or the church, or millenniums younger than the race; indeed, general public education is but little more than a hundred years old, going back to the beginning of the most wonderful century in the world's history," he said.

In that year a young Quaker genius, Joseph Lancaster, opened in London, England, a school on a monitorial system, where thousands of poor children were taught to read and write. Dean Coleman showed the simplicity of that scheme where one man taught ten lads, who in turn passed on their new knowledge to ten others.

"Lancker is gone, the monitorial system is gone, but they have left behind them something without which our present work could not be carried on. That is the class organization," said the speaker, bespeaking reverence for the memory of a very great man, "who taught his pupils to read, write and figure for the modest sum of five shillings per head, a figure I should, perhaps, not have mentioned in these days."

Another Great Influence.

Dean Coleman then recalled a Swiss educationalist, Pestalozzi, the originator of the present system of educating the mind to grow and not merely to absorb poured in knowledge.

"Through that man came a revolution in teaching systems, it is but little more than a hundred years since his discovery of the need of training a mind to think, and I mention this to show you how very, very young public education really is."

Subnormal Children.

Dean Coleman then dealt with the origin of the study of defective children and the discovery that what could be made of some children, he said, was not limited, and that some need certain types of special instruction and every chance the community can give them.

Outlining other steps which had led up to the modern free school system, Dean Coleman prophesied, "the end is not yet. The man who is going in the way of the steam roller is steps to get on over. There is a momentum in public opinion, influences which have been set at work by these great men have not as yet by any means spent themselves," he said.

Dean Coleman dealt with financial sequences of modern education, as they were reflected in public budgets. "I am a teacher, but as a taxpayer myself I am impressed with educational costs."

"But if we will think for a moment we will realize that ignorance costs valuated the war costs, we have not regarded the cost of justice enforcement enhanced by ignorance."

Value of Public Schools.

"I am willing to have this my chief message of this evening, that the one great bulwark of the community against wild thinking is in the common school," he said.

"I had said to myself that I would not, in this address, use the word 'Bolshevism,'" said the Dean, and then proceeded to use that word a string wherewith to thread together a number of similar thoughts and word pictures of the mind of that elegant savage, the average boy.

"Education is not free, it is earned with sweat and blood and tears, the least we can do is give the youth a chance to earn his education," he declared, and protested against the agitation to restrict University education to the children of those able to pay fees.

Tends to Plutocracy.

"It tends to create a plutocracy, it impairs the right of education, it impairs freedom; it leads to a system of confining higher knowledge, which means control of the real power of the state to a privileged plutocracy," protested the speaker.

"I went through the cards of the boys and girls at the University to find out if they were the children of the idle rich, I found eighty per cent. of the parents were wage earners, I found more street railway employees among the parents than there were capitalists, and I can tell you some pretty harrowing stories of hardships endured by some of these parents to send their children to University, and by the students themselves in their pursuit of knowledge," he said with feeling.

"I want you to understand me as seeing a close bond between the university and the common school when I say to you, 'the University is fundamental to the common school.' Where do your common school teachers come from, the University? There is your bond; the Normal School? who taught the Normal students?" said Dean Coleman when appealing for support for the University.

Textbook Storm.

Dean Coleman scathingly referred to the history textbook storm raised by Canon Hinchliffe in the Legislature. "Because one paragraph of one chapter of one book in nine courses says the Yankees won the war, the University gets this attention. That book was approved by the British as the only one as yet available, and was attacked by the Hearst press as being pro-British," he said.

"When I think of the bright groups of children in the modern chery schoolrooms I look forward to a splendid future for common education," said the Dean in closing.

Principal J. M. Campbell, of North Ward School, moved a vote of thanks to Dean Coleman for his address, in so doing he bespoke the friendly aid of Hon. Dr. MacLean for the provision of permanent buildings for the University. Miss Cann seconded the vote, which was adopted with great applause. The National Anthem closed the proceedings.

DR. BROCK TRAVELS IN ALLENBY'S TRAIL
THROUGH HOLY LAND

In Footsteps of Crusader and Saracen on Sacred Soil of Palestine

The slow rolling up of the Turkish flank from the first stand of that enemy at Iemalla and Kantara, on the Suez Canal, through four years of desert warfare, culminating in the complete collapse of the Turkish army, was graphically described by Major R. W. Brock, Dean of the Faculty of Applied Science at the University of B. C., in an address in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last night.

Major Brock was attached to the general staff of General Allenby, who took over the command of the Near Eastern forces in Palestine in June of 1917. How the Turk was forced from Kantara, on the canal to Gaza, hundreds of miles over the desert, and later to Jaffa, the seaport of the Jerusalem country, and Beirut, was described by the speaker, who illustrated his remarks by the frequent use of lantern slides.

The speaker dealt with the historical advance made by the British cavalry when they were leashed and slipped over a hundred miles into the enemy's country, rounding up the Turkish wing on the coast and turning his flank; the activities of the Royal Air Force in bombing communications and acting as the line of communication for the cavalry far in advance of their supports, and, lastly, the splendid heroism of the infantry, who in the middle of fever stricken regions pushed with a vigor that made the whole action a glorious success.

How the two Turkish army corps holding the line were cut off and made to surrender, followed by the final capitulation of that entire front, was followed stage by stage by the speaker, who emphasized the part played in the settlement of the war by the collapse of Turkey in the field. With their southern boundaries laid open Bulgaria and Austria gave in, and on Armistice Day practically every man in the British forces in the Near East was under orders for an advance on Germany through Austria and over the Austrian railroads commanded for that purpose.

It was not generally known how large a part the defeat of Turkey had played in the late war, stated the speaker, who traced from that capitulation the downfall of Germany. The speaker referred to the heroism of all ranks in the Near Eastern wing, living in a desert land under conditions that sent a large part of their forces to Kantara and base hospitals with malaria, dysentery and enteric fever.

Railroad construction over the sands of the desert, notably the memorial construction of the British main line of communications from Kantara to Ludd, and later Jerusalem, were dealt with in interesting vein by the speaker, who failed not to draw a sharp picture of the almost biblical appearance and customs of the native of the Holy Land.

It was interesting, he said, to reflect that over the very country traveled by the British forces under General Allenby, Crusaders had gone in days gone by, their forts still land marks on the tops of Palestinian hills. A very hearty vote of thanks was passed to Major Brock at the conclusion of his able address. Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith, M.P.P., occupied the chair. A short musical programme was rendered by Miss Starr and Mrs. Gibson.

B. C.'S DESTINY.
Away we glide. Range after range; dark gorges, smiling fruitful valleys. . . Mines among the mountains. The greatest mineral treasure-house in the Dominion, this. The richest forest province,
too. Coal on the seaboard; waterpower everywhere; magnificent harbors. Nature seldom proclaims the destiny of a country so clearly as she does here,—that British Columbia will be the busiest manufacturing workshop of the whole Pacific slope, may be of half the continent.

Soft music. "The loving herd winds slowly o'er the lea." Was ever contrast more abrupt? One step from the sterile glory of the peaks to the doubly fertile levels of the coast. Here the gentle protest of a lowing two-year-old: "You spoke of a cow giving 19,244 pounds of milk and $10 of butter in a year.
Tell her, with my compliments, that I've just given 28,388 pounds of milk and 1,994 of butter in the same time."
A world record.

The Western Gateway of Canada, Vancouver. See that great liner, steaming in from China and Japan, laden with Oriental treasure, silk and tea. Biggest ship on the Pacific, but dwarfed for a moment as she steals by the giant trees of Stanley Park.
Prairie wheat pouring out of this gate, some bound for Asia, the rest for Europe by the Panama Canal. Leap the Straits, alive with salmon, to—hover an instant over the Jewel City, Victoria. Smell the roses.

Careful now. Give a wide berth to this mountain or we might knock a hole in its new crown and kill an astronomer. Killing ourselves wouldn't make thirty cents' loss to the world; farmers and writers are common enough; but a good astronomer is rare as radium. In that revolving dome is the Great Eye of Canada, the priceless telescope, busy discovering stars that shone before the world was born.

Tourists of the air, as we fly north we look down on tourists of the sea.
They crowd the deck of a steamer threading its narrow way for hundreds of miles between mainland and islands. . . Hundreds of little boats catching halibut. . . A few days from now, these fish will be served up in St. Paul and Minneapolis. . . Suddenly appears a little town clinging to a steep hillside, with a monstrous mill covering the upper slopes.
Town, sending out shipload after shipload of transformed forest to be covered with printers' ink.

Money to Burn.
hind, but where's the land? Hidden under that cloud of smoke? Rise high, or we'll smother. Is Canada so gorged and bloated with riches that she must burn up her assets to get rid of them? "Fire prevention service has been greatly improved," they say. But it does not prevent.
Double, treble your detective force;
catch hundreds fire-makers and set 'em to work five years clearing broad fire-guards right and left through the forest.

Hear that hammering, through the cloud? It comes from a pioneer settlement. Old settler, a few, but mostly neat little frame houses.
Quite a bunch of soldier settlers around here. That's one building his barn. Now he stops. Mrs. Settler is just back with the wagon from the creamery.

"They were asking if we couldn't send in more cream," she says. "They can't supply the demand. Don't you think we might buy another cow?"
"Now's the time to do it, sure," says her husband, "now when cows are cheap. And half of that $300 for money I made trapping last Winter is in the bank yet. Guess most of the other boys are doing fairly well, too, in spite of the drought. Manager tells me he has more money in on deposit than out on loans."
Remarkable—one of the newest and one of the oldest settlements, both brilliant, exceptions to the general western rule of "more loans than deposits."

Pioneers of Peace River.
Over the mountains again: down into Northern Alberta. Big fields of
No. 1 wheat on the banks of the Peace, though oats, for a wonder, are poor. Another banker talks: "surprising number of loans paid off here."
His horse is a yearling. There's a man filling a silo with sunflowers, for his aristocratic herd of pure Jerseys. Talk about rough pioneers!

But hark: a baby's cry—a mother's moan. Not a moan of despair, as it would have been a few years ago, and is now in parts remote. See the doctor speeding out, though gasolene's 60 cents a gallon. He couldn't make a living here yet from individual fees, but the community ensures his stay by a grant of $500 a year and a free house in the village —over 30 miles from a railway station.

START CAMPAIGN TO STOP SWEARING

Rome, Nov. 25.—Italy has never produced a Carrié Nation or an Anthony Comstock. An anti-cigarette league or a prohibition society in this land is unthinkable. But Italy has her particular pet vice and knows it, so an anti-swear society has been formed in Verona to eliminate profanity from the country.
If the gentle accomplishment of swearing were as universally understood an art as painting or music,
American tourists would come to Italy especially to listen to its masters of profanity, for nowhere in the world exists such a wealth of colorful, resourceful, historical and archaeological swear words. The Italians in thus reinforcing their vocabulary, begin first with the Supreme Being and work down through all the saints of the calendar, and they remember all the oaths of the pagan world, which were not lost like its literature. Even the most devout Catholics say "Per Bacco" with every other sentence.

Each locality has its favorite epithets, Venetia and Tuscany being perhaps the most blasphemous, and each individual invents enough to outdo his neighbor.

The Verona committee, although started by Catholics, now has adherents among every party, including the Socialists, though the So-that Socialists are working with Catholics, even in such a noble cause.

The anti-swear committee purposes to combat the habit by issuing cheap copies of learned writers, Catholic meetings and teaching the populace a song reviling profanity.
Competition is now open for the pected that Mascagni, who is always amenable to opportunities, may walk off with the prize.

The committee already has made some impression by the publication of historical articles by former Sen-lead poured into their throats, or their tongues cut out, but inveterate addicts were burned alive.

"Show me how you dance and I'll

HAMILTON ASTRONOMER SQUARED AN ARCH-ENEMY

Mr. Wm. Bruce, as a Lad, Proved to the Maid That Peace Is Safer Than War.

DR. W. M. BRUCE, honorary president of the Hamilton branch of the Astronomical Society of Ontario and father of the late W. Blair Bruce, noted artist of Paris, France, although in his eighty-ninth year is one of the most vigorous and active men of his time.

No one would suspect that the keen sense of fun still displayed undiminished by Mr. Bruce to-day, combined with an accuracy of marksmanship, sometimes got him into such a scrape as the following:

It was Hallow'e'en, and in accordance with the custom from time immemorial, Bill Bruce and his chum (now a senator), dragged a huge tub into the kitchen, locked the doors, drew the blinds, and with a dozen rosy apples floating in the water proceeded to make merry in nature's garb.

The pipe hole appeared the face of their arch enemy, the maid, long, gaunt, austere, who had on various occasions brought them to justice.

The following morning the maid appeared with a black eye and a flogging was administered to the offender.

The Scotch are slow to anger, but sure. The same evening just as Jane opened the door in answer to her lover's rap, a perfect deluge of dirty water and rancid potatoes drenched his smug and hopeful avarice to his skin and left him shivering and like a drowned rat before his sweetheart.

Thornton is Moulded On Broad-Gauge Lines

New Chief of the Canadian National Railways Is a British Subject by Adoption.

Here is the new genial chief of the Canadian National Railways as Matt saw him, with the lines that went with the cut in the Sketch:

"Sir Henry Worth Thornton, who is leaving the Great Eastern Railway to become chief of the Canadian National Railways at £10,000 a year, is built on broad-gauge lines.

"Born in Logansport, Indiana, in 1871, he became a bachelor of science of Pennsylvania University, and began work at the bottom of the ladder as an engineer's draughtsman, rose to become general superintendent of Long Island Railway, which he left to manage the Great Eastern Railway of England amid mild sensation.

Hon. Mr. Fielding Tries Most for Precision

He Ponders Over the Proper Adjective in Regard to Ex-Premier Meighen.

HON. W. S. FIELDING has many fine characteristics, among them being incisiveness of statement, precision of language, and a disinclination to say anything but good of his fellow-men.

"Mr. Fielding, I'm interested in politics and politicians, but don't know much about either. Tell me something about those fellows at Ottawa who make the wheels go round."

"They must be a very fine bunch, according to your story," said the young constituent. "But I reckon some of them must have faults. Take Mr. Meighen. Isn't he inclined to be arbitrary in his actions, reckless in his statements, and turbulent in his tactics?"

"Mr. Fielding gravely studied space. 'Isn't that your opinion, Mr. Fielding?' the young voter persisted. 'Isn't Mr. Meighen downrightly inclined that way?'"

A SCOT'S NATURAL DEATH

THE difference between an Englishman and a Scotsman has been described as follows: An Englishman loves telling a story about some other fellow, and a Scotsman loves telling a story about himself.

A Scotsman in the Strand saw a passer-by drop half-a-crown. He dived into the traffic after it, was run over, and killed.

NO one will ever be able to write an epitaph for Admiral Sims "Born a man and dies an Admiral." William Sowden Sims, who has just been visiting Canada, is first and foremost a man and a personality. He has a clear head, a warm heart, a great soul, and an astonishingly keen sense of humor.

This brief article attempts to gather together as many as possible of his terse epigrams and vivid phrases and to portray his personality by means of his trenchant speech.

The Grimy Autograph That McKishnie Keeps

The Gloomy Signature of an Author Who Pities People Who Read His Book.

ARCHIE F. MCKISHNIE, the much-beloved author of stories of wild life, who is again in the public eye as the author of "Openway," his one publication for the year 1922, tells a story on himself that deserves the preservation of printer's ink.

While visiting Los Angeles, California, some time ago, McKishnie relates, he came upon two book shops, both with a considerable queue of people winding out of the open door.

On the other side of the street was a window display of McKishnie's latest book, and a similar sign in prominence, announcing that the author was that day in the city, and that he also would autograph all copies sold.

"Good stunt, this," McKishnie remarked. "Oh, not so bad," the autographer answered. "Must sell a good many books this way," the author further ventured.

"Oh, I guess so," was the languid reply. "But I just want to tell you that anybody that would read the bunk that's in this book deserves to lose the money he puts into it."

Blood is Yet Thicker Than Water or a Wife

At Least Dr. Gunn's Daughter Claimed to Be Closer Related to Her Father Than Her Mother.

THE REV. DR. WILLIAM T. GUNN, the popular general secretary of the Congregational Union of Canada and author of that classic of home mission work in Canada: "His Dominion," is able to tell a good story despite the cares and responsibilities of his office.

Recently he told this one on himself which opens up a nice problem in family relationships: Several years ago while enjoying a quiet evening at home on Victor avenue he was sitting on the sofa by the side of his wife when their young daughter came and sat on the other side of her father, and snuggled up close to him.

"You get away from there! What do you always want to be butting in for?" Saugling closer to her father the daughter surprised them with the question: "Who has a better right to sit close to him than I have? I am a closer relation of his than you are!"

ROSS HAD TO FORGIVE HIM WHO HAD SINNED

The Paymaster of the C.E.F. Succumbed Before Wit—The Young Officer Got His £10.

HAN General James Ross, chief paymaster of the C. E. F., the maple leaf soldier, empty of pocket and more or less stranded before the end of his two weeks' leave in London from France, found no truer friend.

One morning, near the first of the month, a rather worried looking young officer presented himself before the chief, in his office in Millbank street, and requested an advance of £10.

"But," questioned the colonel, "were you not here a few days ago on the same errand, and I did I not give you an advance then?"

"Yes, sir," admitted the worried looking young man, "but—"

"Sorry, then," interrupted the colonel. "I can give you nothing more until the 10th of the month."

"But, sir," pleaded the officer, "I'm stony broke, I owe a hotel bill and my leave is up to-morrow."

"Sorry," repeated the colonel, "you should have thought of your hotel bill before. I can do nothing for you. Call around on the 10th of the month. Good day, sir."

Two hours later, when he passed out to lunch, Colonel Ross was much surprised to behold, seated in a chair just outside his office door, the same young officer, wearing the same doleful expression.

"Are you still here?" he exclaimed. "What are you waiting for?"

"I'm waiting for the 10th of the month, sir," was the reply.

Whereupon the colonel had a good laugh, and the young officer got his £10—before the 10th of the month.

The Motor & the Movies

JOHN JONES and his wife and family were driving along Gerrard street east on Saturday afternoon in the Jones' small touring car. It was a chilly, raw afternoon, and John had the curtains closed tight.

But he was keeping a careful look-out and driving very slowly, for there were many children on the streets and John had a dread of hitting any of them. He had always a feeling that he could never drive again if he killed a child. So he was being very careful.

Suddenly, to his horror, he sensed rather than saw, out of the corner of his eye, a small, dark object catapult from the footpath towards the car. There was a bump. The car seemed to ride over a stone.

His wife screamed. He jammed on the brakes. As he glanced back through the curtains in the gloom he could see a dark little shape lying beside the curb. His heart was filled with dread.

He climbed out and rushed back. The little figure resolved itself into a small boy about five years old who was sitting on the edge of the sidewalk, snivelling and holding his ankle. A small girl seemed to be trying to console him. Jones was somewhat heartened to find him still alive.

"Where are you hurt, sonny?" he asked, bending over the boy.

"You leave me alone," walled the youngster. "Where do you live?" he continued. "I want to drive you home."

"You leave me alone," again cried the boy, getting to his feet and standing gingerly on his sore leg.

"But, look," exclaimed the puzzled Jones. "I must drive you home to have your foot seen to."

"You leave me alone," almost howled the boy for the third time. "I don't want to go home. I want to go to the movies."

And he limped off to the pictures with the girl. Even a collision with a car was not going to interrupt his arrangements.

Jones watched him return the corner, a brave, limping, somewhat saddened lad, and then he climbed slowly into his car and drove off. There was nothing he could do.

The Dog's Day

HOW fashions in dogs change is told by Mr. Darley Matheson in his new book, "Terriers."

For example, the new Kerry terrier, now so greatly sought after, is essentially the Irish terrier, except that it is "blue" instead of being red.

All-blue "Kerrys" now fetch extravagant prices, yet until quite recently, when a blue pup came in a litter, it was almost invariably destroyed, being looked upon as a degenerate throw-back, and, consequently, valueless.

Lady Joan Mulholland to Be Married; Princess Bibesco Goes to Washington

London, Nov. 25.—The election campaign through which the country has just passed has not killed London's dancing craze and there have been several charity balls given this week by society.

The ball organized by Lady Fulton and Mrs. Percy de Worms, was particularly successful, financially and otherwise. Princess Helena Victoria, Lady Mary Strickland, Lady Shaftesbury and Mrs. Colgate, were among those who attended this affair, the last named, taking with her a party of young people.

The recent fifth Victory Ball at Albert Hall was a brilliant affair. Up to date its predecessors had taken in over $200,000 for the benefit of various charities, the proceeds being given each year to aid a different cause. This year the National Fund for Nurses was the beneficiary. Norma and Constance Talmadge were present.

The most important social event of the present season was the reception Wednesday for Premier Bonar Law given by the Duchess of Sutherland at Hampton House, her charming town residence. She is a popular hostess of Mayfair, and although this was the first time she has entertained politically on a large scale, one of the most distinguished gatherings of social and political celebrities was present to meet the head of the Government.

Princess Mary Visiting

Princess Mary, who has since with her husband visit for a few weeks with the Earl and Countess of Harewood before moving into Goldborough Hall, is still receiving wedding presents although she has been married for almost a year. The latest gift consists of household linen presented by the women of Ulster through the Duchess of Abercorn. These linens are especially loomed and made by seven of the largest Belfast linen factories. The first installment of the gift contains twenty-two sets of pillow cases, all hand embroidered in Ulster with designs of Tudor roses and an embroidered monogram inset with Irish lace. A further installment is still in the process of production and this the Princess will not receive for some weeks yet.

"CANADIAN HERO" FOOLED LANDLADIES

London, Nov. 25.—An arch imposter with an amazing career of fraud was sentenced at Westminster to a term of imprisonment for nine months' hard labor for a series of mean frauds upon landladies. The man was George William Denham, aged 45, a native of Teignmouth.

He is very lame and, operating in an old uniform of a Canadian regiment and sympathy by a pathetic tale of wounds, ill health, and ruin following upon war service. His record of crime was revealed by A. E. Ross, Canadian investigation officer, who said that for years the prisoner had been masquerading as a Canadian soldier. Prisoner alleged that he joined up in the Dominion in 1914, but at that time he was serving a long term for larceny after many previous convictions. He had been twice deported from Canada, and had never done a single day's military service though he had imposed on the executives of various military hospitals and even on the governor of Wandsworth Prison, who recently sent a communication to the Canadian authorities to meet him as a discharged soldier.

The prisoner, who persistently denied his identity, told the magistrate that he was wounded in the spine and shell-shocked during his long service in France. He had, he said, been treated in various hospitals at Etaples, Rouen, and in this country. The fact was he was always masquerading for George Denham, who was his double.

Detective-Sergeant Smith produced the dossier of the prisoner's convictions in more than a dozen different names, and said that not only was he positively identified by finger prints and photographs, but there were officers now in court to identify him. He had been a pest to the Canadian authorities. Touched by his tales of woe many women had given him food and lodging, but he always cheated them, and in one case went off with a watch which was lent him.

The magistrate characterizing his denials as grotesque, and his career one of amazing fraud.

PEMBERTON DEALS WITH NORTHLIFFE

Novelist's Memoirs Tell of Great Publisher as "A Friend and a Man"

He Recalls Early Days and Instinct to Understand Reading Public's Demands

Couldn't See Why Others of His Staff Did Not Succeed as He Had

London, Nov. 25.—A striking story of the life of the late Viscount Northcliffe, written by Max Pemberton, one of the publisher's earliest friends, was published this week. It is entitled "Memoir; Lord Northcliffe." It treats of the remarkable man's character from his reporting days when he was not even employed regularly but was doing free lance work in Fleet Street.

Pemberton does not attempt to discuss either the political convictions which in his later days caused Lord Northcliffe to adopt such a strong line of action for or against the existing Government. He does, however, tell why Northcliffe attacked practically every movement and every position taken by Lloyd George after the armistice. He treats, according to his preface, with "a friend and a man."

Pemberton says of him that "to me he was a great and beloved friend, to all I believe, a great personality, a great patriot who rendered imperishable service to his country and who will never be forgotten by the countrymen."

The author goes on to talk of the man whose misfortune was that he had to start life "with poor health, but who, despite every disappointment, compelled success. As some men are born with a sense of the theatre, so he was born with an instinct and understanding of the great public which has never been surpassed or is ever likely to be. To his genius were allied the great business gifts of Lord Rothermere.

Pemberton paints something like a picture of the man who, starting from nothing, owned a paper when he was 21, was a millionaire ten years later and in the next decade probably the biggest publisher in the world.

"The relationship which had existed between Pemberton and Northcliffe, the one said to me, 'did not have luck,' embarrassed him," says Pemberton, "and he could not realize why his rise from a reporter to an editor and publisher was so much greater than that of any other man of his staff."

War Changed Northcliffe. In the last decade, the writer says, Northcliffe became another man. First came the war, which, "with the immense strain which Northcliffe suffered, transformed him from a person of boyish manner to a man of a different type, who came over him was almost imperceptible except to the intimate friends who met with him—almost daily in his private journey in the motor car. It was the change in his attitude toward the world which caused his friends to re-examine him, telling him that it would be his death warrant, but he merely replied to me: 'Max, I must go to Australia, I am thinking of the British race.'"

Pemberton deals with Northcliffe's illness by saying: "The saddest of all heart troubles he endured until a germ settled there, and from that time every heart beat pumped deadly poison into his arterial system. Naturally this affected every organ, and in earnest, too, his brain, and his friends who worked with him, not knowing what was the matter, were amazed and helpless.

"He became excited beyond reason, attacked fiercely those for whom he had the greatest affection, and finally in this mood he went to the theatre, where he wrote those amazing articles, which nothing but ignorance of his condition permitted to appear in The Times. A few weeks more and all knew the dreadful fact."

"BOOZE" FOR ALL AT THIS HOSPITAL

London, Nov. 25.—Some astonishing revelations regarding the treatment of patients at St. George's Hospital, London, in past years, were made by Sir Clifford Allbutt, in delivering his inaugural address at the opening of the Winter session of St. George's Hospital Medical School. Sir Clifford spoke of the conditions obtaining when he was a student at St. George's. "Every patient of St. George's," he said, "had his liquor as a routine—four to six ounces of port or sherry—often as good a deal more—when in peril of death a liberal ration of brandy; and when convalescent his ale.

"The cellar was filled with wines and brandies by the hoghead and sold by the ton, but we never heard of anything so vulgar as whiskey."

KING GEORGE GIVES PALACE GARDENS AS WILD BIRD HOME

London, Nov. 25.—(Associated Press).—King George has granted permission for the use of part of the palace gardens at Buckingham Palace as a wild bird sanctuary.

The committee recently appointed by Lord Crawford to consider the establishment of bird sanctuaries in the royal parks suggested among other places the grounds of Buckingham Palace and with the King's permission sites are already established there for bird retreats.

Other recommendations include secluded spots in Hyde Park, Kensington Gardens, St. James Park, Regents Park and Richmond Park, and it is hoped by establishing such retreats in other places the return of various species of wild birds to London. One of the problems in connection with such retreats is the menace of cats and squirrels, and while measures will be taken to exterminate the squirrels nearby residents will be expected to assist by keeping their cats at home.

The more popular of these chassis are overbooked, and there will be many disappointed customers.

LONDON GAY LIFE FAST COMING BACK; LIKE PRE-WAR DAYS

London, Nov. 25.—The gay and frivolous past of London is fast returning and one of the signs of it, it is pointed out by a writer in one of the newspapers, is the reappearance at the stage doors of the theatres of the gilded youth bearing enormous bouquets for their stage favorites.

"At the stage door of a theatre where a successful musical comedy was running," says the writer, "I saw four or five elegantly dressed young men lingering with bouquets of great magnitude in hand, waiting for their respective Cythereas of the footlights to appear. This return to the great tradition of London, it is pointed out, is the jeunesses coming of London better to sport an eyeglass and lay flowers at the twinkling feet of musical comedians, than the horn-rimmed spectacles and take an artistic interest in the more soulful forms of drama.

"Every theatre and restaurant seems to be crowded, the days of staying at home, doing nothing and going to bed early are over and the Londoner is in no way behind the rest of the world in going out, to see life and to be amused.

"I was struck by the amazing number of attractive women I saw among the curious and fashionable throngs of the theatres. In their pretty frocks, wonderful brocaded opera cloaks, and swayed by their elegant, silk hatted escorts, the sweetly waiting limousines. The lines of expensive-looking cars waiting all along the curb outside theatres every night are reminiscent of the old pre-war London.

GEARY, V.C. HERO, BECOMES PARSON

London, Nov. 25.—The Hill 60 hero, Benjamin Handley Geary, V. C. M. A. of Keble College, Oxford, and Westminster, was ordained to the Church of England priesthood at Chelmsford Cathedral in the presence of a large congregation, including his wife and mother. The ceremony was conducted by the Bishop of Chelmsford, with the Bishop of Colchester in attendance. In all, eleven candidates were ordained, five of them being laymen.

Mr. Geary held a crater on Hill 60 with a small contingent of East Surreys and Bedford, after all his superior officers had fallen.

OLD-FORT LEADS TO FORGOTTEN CAMP

London, Nov. 25.—The ancient earthwork discovered recently at East Acton by G. Basil Barham, of the East Herts Archaeological Society, was found to be of a far greater extent and importance than at first imagined, declares The Westminster Gazette. He has now traced it to the site of an Iron Age fortification, and has discovered an even stronger line of fortifications in its rear, turning to the north towards Willesden, at Acton.

At the angle he has found the site of an ancient fortification or "camp," of more than 8,000 square yards in extent, which possibly was the center of the original settlement at Acton.

MOWS WHISKERS WITH "LAWN-MOWER"

London, Nov. 25.—Professor A. M. Low, of Chiswick, has patented a safety razor on which the blades revolve in an enclosing sheath.

An ordinary safety razor blade can be used, the revolution being caused by pressing a button. Even if not very sharp, the blade cuts smoothly, it is said, on account of its swift movement.

Mr. Low says he uses the razor himself, getting a clean, smooth shave.

BUILDS GREATEST TORPEDO PLANE

London, Nov. 25.—The most powerful and destructive torpedo plane in the world is now being built to the order of the Air Ministry at a remote aerodrome on the banks of the Humber in Yorkshire.

This machine, which is intended to operate with the navy, will be able to rise from and alight on the sea, while its single 1,000 horsepower Napier "Cub" engine will drive it through the air at a speed approaching 150 miles an hour.

Beneath the fuselage will be slung a torpedo weighing one and a quarter tons, or alternatively two smaller torpedoes, while the machine will also be armed with a number of machine guns to protect itself in case of aerial attack.

As it approaches its objective it will be within a few feet of the water and discharge its torpedo, which will then speed just below the surface of the water towards its target.

first thrown into the form of letters. Hence this fighting, biting letter of the usually placid professor, written to a Miss Wilson on November 8, 1911: "We had a little visit of Mr. Struthers last night, and he and I went to hear Andrew Lang lecture on the Covenanters. You could not imagine anything more pitiful. The Covenanters at least killed people and got killed, which was serious enough in all conscience; but happily they were spared the anticipation of being made the subject of lectures from a certain contemporary, whom he criticises somewhat harshly in one of his letters, where he says, 'Bernard Shaw and the rest of them don't attract me, for a very reason you give. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and the cleverness of men who have the A B C to learn is in every sense the cleverness of a natural man, and however entertaining, does not build up.' Similarly he wrote to a friend about a local series of Gifford lectures. 'I have attended a number of these lectures, but the reports have not attracted me. It is too much to have a succession of philosophical lectures, and a good deal of religion ad hoc, and stammering through it before the public to the tune of £500 per annum or so. But now I am going to see an all-day stopper. If a lecture has an honorarium he can do without an audience.' This last extract contains a generous squeeze of the Denney acid, but it does not seem quite so deadly as the Andrew Lang one above.

OF DUNNICKER

As might be expected, there is much talk about travels across Scotland and up into the Highlands in these letters. Denney had to visit many churches and, especially after he was made principal, preach a great many sermons on anniversary Sundays in various kirks all over the country. That he had a good sense of humor and was aware of the fact that even the proverbial Presbyterian reverence for scholarship would not excuse a professor for preaching a bad sermon "I was at Dunnicker," he writes, "at the communion a fortnight ago. Fairweather, our minister, told me they had some very severe critics of sermons. I had taken his prayer meeting one night and had apparently not done one. Some made a disparaging remark, but was answered, 'It wasna that ill for a mornin' day. Another time I preached on 'I will be as the dew unto Israel.' Dew' quoth a deacon, 'there wasna a drop o' dew in't frae beginning to end; it was as dry as a mealcake.' At a Monday evening service an old woman was overheard as she went out: 'I just put on my auld shawls the night, and they were able to get.' Luckily he told me these things after the preaching was over, or it might have been embarrassing."

A FRANK CRITICISM OF BALAAM'S ASS

A large number of these letters were addressed to brother ministers, and the tone of many of them is therefore theological. Often Dr. Denney is polemical and heavily serious, but in the following paragraph he handles a higher critic with a light pen: "Late," he says, "I have been reading a book by a man, Grottelius, professor in Neuchateau, who enlivens his solid theology with smart remarks about his enemies—sometimes rather personal, but—sometimes very witty. German critics, he says, are so accustomed to tell everything they know, and sometimes more, that they naturally assume the Evangelists knew nothing they do not tell. In one place he mentions, with evident sympathy, an old professor of apologetics who used to say to his students, 'And if they say they don't agree with you, tell them they are wrong.' He makes the best remark I remember to have seen on Balaam's ass. 'Considering how the attention of Christendom has been diverted by this incident from the sublime oracles of Balaam, I have been tempted to think in my mad moments that this learned creature lost an excellent opportunity of holding its many of them American, are drawing just as much interest. American makes are more than holding their own among the best that Europe produces, with the Cadillac, Packard, Buick, Chandler, Essex, Hudson, Chevrolet and Ford going for size and power at a price which English manufacturers cannot match in spite of the 30 per cent duty.

What militates against American cars, however, are heavier taxes for the greater horsepower and higher gasoline consumption. With gas still at sixty cents a gallon, it is a large factor, and such as the Amlicar, which guarantees fifty miles an hour and fifty miles a gallon, have a strong talking point.

Although the most outward essentials the big luxury cars maintain the previous four wheel braking system, a new lightness and less power are noticeable features in the most expensive chassis.

A Rolls-Royce novelty this year is a 20 horse power model, which is attracting many customers, but the machine costs more than most family drivers want to pay.

The Renault also, in addition to a huge 45 horse power road locomotive, is being shown in a tiny 8 horse power style, and, with frills dropping in price, is attracting a host of prospective customers through about this exhibit. Another light French car, the Citroen, is being made with improved English coachwork.

In fact, English coachwork "is one of the real features of the show. Barker's limousine and landaulette on a Crosley chassis for the Prince of Wales is one of the most beautiful jobs seen this year, a fine example of body building with perfect

English bodies have reached a perfection for "all weather" equipment that is not to be found elsewhere. Hence tops that are easily raised, and windows that really fit, but do not obstruct the view, are common to all bodies. Glass windows disappear so as to make an absolutely open car salon limousine.

Popular attendance at the show has been remarkable with admission on most days as high as five shillings. Women show an extraordinary knowledge in discussing mechanical features. A saleswoman said that women now ask far fewer foolish questions than men, but that the latter were more interested in the machinery than in devices for comfort and in excellent taste. Many visitors at the show are of the opinion that the best automobile bargain in the world is an American chassis of the flivver type with an English body—"no whit less fine than Rolls's Crown."

X-RAY TARTAN GETS HERO FUND

London, Nov. 25.—The work of another X-ray hero has been brought to light by the award to Dr. John W. L. Spence, of Dundas, Edinburgh, of a medalion and an annuity of $850 by the Carnegie Hero Fund trustees. Dr. Spence, of Dundas St., Edinburgh, as the result of his X-ray work, his left hand is also badly damaged.

DR. DENNEY'S IMPRESSIONS OF CANADA

In 1909 Principal Denney visited Canada on the invitation of First-Minister Mackay, to deliver a course of lectures at Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg. There is nothing in his letters about Montreal or Toronto, and Winnipeggers will not be flattered by the fact that the only thing he thought worth recording when he was in the gateway city was a funny story which he had heard in Nova Scotia. "I must tell you," he writes, "once more I heard about Fraser, the Governor of Nova Scotia, who was very polite to me. He told it himself as belonging to the only occasion on which he was baffled at a public meeting. He was a candidate for the Provincial Legislature, which has charge of the schools, when for some reason the question of compulsory punishment came up. Like other candidates, he was heckled on this and pronounced against it. 'Gentlemen,' he said, 'I can't remember when I myself suffered under this brutal and barbarous custom. I can remember when every finger of my hand was scarred by the flames of the lash. And what was the offence for which I was so barbarously treated? Gentlemen, it was telling the truth.' The impressive pause with which he followed the question of punishment, it might have time to sink into the minds of his hearers, was broken by a rasping voice from the front much consideration for the 'man' it was the end of the meeting!"

HE READ THE "ILIAD" AND "DON QUIXOTE" IN VANCOUVER

Perhaps it was the newness of everything about him in the Canadian West that made his lectures read "Don Quixote" in Vancouver and fairly round through four books of the "Iliad" which he found in a lovely edition in his friend John Macdonald's library. The original in Vancouver when he could have gone fishing in any one of a hundred places in the mountains and the coast, was eating little notes in one of his letters dated at Vancouver, May 23, 1909: "People here have the flag of British Columbia and discuss their views and evidently think the powers above would think twice before falling out with people who have such a future as they. My say, however, they are very hospitable and very much addicted to their business, whatever it may be. There is no approbation or toleration of loafers, and not very much of the Scotch type of idleness or ungifted. The very prosperous are not usually very sympathetic."

TWO DRAWBACKS AT LAKE LOUISE

Dr. Denney complains bitterly that there were too many mosquitoes at Lake Louise. For once, however, he lets himself go in praise of the scenery. "The lake," he writes, "is a mile and a half long, and occupies a quarter of a mile in width, of a changing emerald color, and the mountains, with its vast and dazzling fields of snow, are not to be compared with the Jungfrau. You will have some idea of how imposing it is. I do think it almost the most wonderful place I have ever seen. Their experience of mosquitoes drawback, however, in that famous beauty spot—mosquitoes. "It does seem queer," he continues, "that man should stand in the Rocky Mountains and be victimized by a little black fly. Coming up here in the bus from the station there were two elderly gentlemen who discussed their views. One was American and took them gaily; I slapped one on my knee; 'No go,' he said; 'kill one and two come to the funeral. The other, who was Scotch, said he was Scotch and had some connection with Glasgow, took them proselytically, instructively. He had been everywhere and gave us a list of countries he had visited in Japan, Australia, New Guinea, the Zambesi and Uganda, besides many other places. He said he never met such a bore. The mosquitoes were a positive relief to him; what doctors call a counter-irritant." He winds up his remarks with a paragraph on Goethe's "Wilhelm Meister." That was another rather old book which he read while in Vancouver.

I find one in his letters, after all, to find some entertaining material in this rather formidable looking volume. Even a Scotch theologian might imagine him to be, in his learned commentaries and such a doctrinal work as his classic on the statement, Dr. James Denney is solemn enough, but in these letters he shows that his constant reading of his favorite volumes, Boswell's "Life of Johnson," had humanized him considerably.

Tommy Visits the Land of More-Than-Enough

TOMMY was one of those little boys who could never believe that "Enough is as good as a feast." Indeed, Tommy, "Enough" was a lost word in the place of which he used "more."

At a party Tommy would indulge in ice cream and other eatables dear to his boyish heart until not even his capacious accommodation could stand any addition to the travelling larner.

Despite this one fault, Tommy was not a greedy boy, for indeed he would be the first to offer to give away anything that he had. One occasion is still on record where Tommy was left in sole charge of the house for an afternoon and was told to feed the gold fish.

Tommy looked every two or three minutes at the gold fish until he thought they had a hungry appearance. Then he fed them. Two minutes later they still looked hungry and he fed them again. This he repeated at regular intervals until swollen to twice their normal size the poor fish fell to their own cupidity and died on the spot. You see, the gold fish too did not believe that "enough is as good as a feast."

It followed then that Tommy was forever getting into trouble at home and elsewhere. If he was not recovering from an over-large gorging of green apples he was sure to be in bed with a chill from staying in the water too long while swimming. He was what you might call a lucky unlucky boy for though he fell into all manner of trouble he always emerged much as before. Nobody could say just what might have happened if Tommy grew up that way, but it was not to be for he was to receive a lesson that taught him moderation in all things.

Concluding an unusually splendid dinner on the occasion of his birthday Tommy curled up in an arm chair and was soon asleep. The last thing he remembered clearly was thinking he could have done without the last helping of pudding he ate.

It seemed to him all at once he was flying swiftly through the air. Though it took him some time to make out his surroundings he discovered he was seated in the back of an air-trich. He wriggled into a more comfortable position. "Keep still or you will fall, Tommy," said the ostrich, crossly.

"Where am I going?" asked Tommy.

"I am taking you to the land of the Princess Toofat, in the Kingdom of More-than-Enough."

Tommy watched the clouds roll by as the ostrich flew on and on. Presently he discerned a number of villages on the ground below. "What place is that?" he asked his strange guide.

"That is a part of the suburbs of the Kingdom of More-than-Enough; there are many villages, Toofall, the second Toofall, the third Toofall, and so on; there are many of them," explained his guide, adding, "We will land here." So saying the ostrich circled down in graceful curves to the ground and Tommy stepped off his back.

At first his eyes detected little difference between this new land and his own country. The people looked much alike, the houses were built in a similar manner and everything seemed much the same. After a while, however, Tommy began to notice peculiar differences. For instance, the dogs all had their tails too long, and barked too loud. The automobiles were driven too fast, and they seemed to grumble at their engines for not doing better. The roofs of the houses projected too far, and nearly hid the windows, in consequence there were too many windows and hardly any walls at all. The inhabitants all seemed to eat too much, for they were excessively stout.

Taking Tommy by the hand the ostrich led him on up the street and opened a pair of golden gates leading to a drive. "This is the home of the Princess, Tommy," he said, "and I will leave you here."

Tommy watched his companion out of sight and then turned to make his way up the drive. A change seemed to have come over himself, he noticed. Was it fancy or was he really very much fatter than he had been? In no little fear he surveyed himself. His arms seemed to have grown twice as round and plump as before. His legs, once lean and wiry were now short and fat. He felt heavier and could not walk as easily as was his wont. In short he had grown tremendously stout.

Ascending the steps of a large marble castle Tommy rang the bell. There was no doubt about this for even the bell rang too loud and "I want to go home," said Tommy beginning to whimper.

"Very well, you must come and see the Board," said the guide, starting off afresh. The Board it transpired was a board of examiners, seven of whom sat around a table that was too large for them, making it necessary for them to shout to one another to be heard.

"You are tired of the Kingdom of More-than-Enough, are you?" roared the President.

"Yes, sir, I want to go home," said Tommy meekly.

"Well, have you had enough?" asked the Chairman.

"Yes, sir, more than enough," said Tommy. As if a spell had been lifted from him Tommy awakened in the arm chair where he had fallen asleep.

That night at supper his mother asked Tommy if he had had sufficient pudding. "Yes, mother, more than enough," was the reply, and he "lived happily ever after."

could be heard echoing all through the place. After a long wait Tommy heard footsteps approaching and presently the door was opened. Before he had time to introduce himself the footman turned to another domestic behind and said, "Tell her highness Tommy Not Enough has arrived." Conducting the boy the servant led him to an antechamber and presently he was taken into the courtroom to the foot of dais whereon was seated the Princess Toofat.

"Gracious, here is another—what is this Kingdom coming to; we will soon be so crowded that we will not have enough room to turn around," said the Princess in anger. "What is your trouble, young man?" she demanded of Tommy. Before he could answer the court chamberlain spoke up, "May it please your highness, Tommy is the boy who can never get enough," he said, "But it does not please me—this Kingdom is becoming overrun with such as he," was the angry retort. "Show him over the kingdom and then if he will not repent he will have to stay and become a subject, I suppose." Saying thus the Princess Toofat waved a hand that was quite large enough for two people and Tommy Not Enough was hustled away.

Outside the courtroom he was met by a steward of sorts, a short too-fat little man who talked too quickly and apparently drank too much.

"Come along with me," he said, all in a rush, and before Tommy had got this separated and re-placed in slower time he was seized by the hands and hustled along at a tremendous pace.

The first town that he was to see was that of Toowealthy. Here it seemed the streets were paved with gold, the lowest coinage in use was a sovereign, and nobody worked. Indeed to be true nobody could be got to work for all were too wealthy. There were no stores, for no merchant wanted to make any more money, having already too much. There were no schools for school teachers were all retired in affluent circumstances. In consequence the town of Toowealthy was in a shockingly dirty state, for all its inhabitants were too proud to work.

Tommy, well nigh breathless was pulled along to the next town, not far away; indeed the towns in the Land of More-than-Enough were too close together, and it was hard to say where one began and another left off. This said the guide was the town of Toofat, one of the principal centres of the land. There was little exciting here save that its inhabitants were monstrously stout. Even the dogs were so plumb that they waddled rather than walked. Tommy noticed there were no restaurants and the guide explained that the entire populace were dieting and would not eat.

In wonder Tommy passed on the town of Toogreedy, where the inhabitants were so greedy that they never left the breakfast table for fear some other member of the family would get an extra bite. "It is here you would live until you were fat enough and then you would be sent to the town of Toofat," said the

This said the guide was the town of Toofat, one of the principal centres of the land. There was little exciting here save that its inhabitants were monstrously stout. Even the dogs were so plumb that they waddled rather than walked. Tommy noticed there were no restaurants and the guide explained that the entire populace were dieting and would not eat.

In wonder Tommy passed on the town of Toogreedy, where the inhabitants were so greedy that they never left the breakfast table for fear some other member of the family would get an extra bite. "It is here you would live until you were fat enough and then you would be sent to the town of Toofat," said the guide, adding, "Have you seen enough—there are yet towns of Tooflood where even the clocks tick with the boom of a canon, Toosleepy where the citizens never wake up, Toowet where it rains all day and all night, and many other."

"I want to go home," said Tommy beginning to whimper.

"Very well, you must come and see the Board," said the guide, starting off afresh. The Board it transpired was a board of examiners, seven of whom sat around a table that was too large for them, making it necessary for them to shout to one another to be heard.

"You are tired of the Kingdom of More-than-Enough, are you?" roared the President.

"Yes, sir, I want to go home," said Tommy meekly.

"Well, have you had enough?" asked the Chairman.

"Yes, sir, more than enough," said Tommy. As if a spell had been lifted from him Tommy awakened in the arm chair where he had fallen asleep.

could be heard echoing all through the place. After a long wait Tommy heard footsteps approaching and presently the door was opened. Before he had time to introduce himself the footman turned to another domestic behind and said, "Tell her highness Tommy Not Enough has arrived." Conducting the boy the servant led him to an antechamber and presently he was taken into the courtroom to the foot of dais whereon was seated the Princess Toofat.

"Gracious, here is another—what is this Kingdom coming to; we will soon be so crowded that we will not have enough room to turn around," said the Princess in anger. "What is your trouble, young man?" she demanded of Tommy. Before he could answer the court chamberlain spoke up, "May it please your highness, Tommy is the boy who can never get enough," he said, "But it does not please me—this Kingdom is becoming overrun with such as he," was the angry retort. "Show him over the kingdom and then if he will not repent he will have to stay and become a subject, I suppose." Saying thus the Princess Toofat waved a hand that was quite large enough for two people and Tommy Not Enough was hustled away.

Outside the courtroom he was met by a steward of sorts, a short too-fat little man who talked too quickly and apparently drank too much.

"Come along with me," he said, all in a rush, and before Tommy had got this separated and re-placed in slower time he was seized by the hands and hustled along at a tremendous pace.

The first town that he was to see was that of Toowealthy. Here it seemed the streets were paved with gold, the lowest coinage in use was a sovereign, and nobody worked. Indeed to be true nobody could be got to work for all were too wealthy. There were no stores, for no merchant wanted to make any more money, having already too much. There were no schools for school teachers were all retired in affluent circumstances. In consequence the town of Toowealthy was in a shockingly dirty state, for all its inhabitants were too proud to work.

Tommy, well nigh breathless was pulled along to the next town, not far away; indeed the towns in the Land of More-than-Enough were too close together, and it was hard to say where one began and another left off. This said the guide was the town of Toofat, one of the principal centres of the land. There was little exciting here save that its inhabitants were monstrously stout. Even the dogs were so plumb that they waddled rather than walked. Tommy noticed there were no restaurants and the guide explained that the entire populace were dieting and would not eat.

In wonder Tommy passed on the town of Toogreedy, where the inhabitants were so greedy that they never left the breakfast table for fear some other member of the family would get an extra bite. Y. M. C. A. Centre of Much Activity

FOLLOWING a bumper rally at which the Boys' Work Department of the Y. M. C. A. was hosts on Saturday, 300 boys from the public schools of Victoria were sent away after a evening's entertainment that will live long in their minds.

The visitors were taken in charge by the boy members and entertained at a programme that concluded its final number in a grand massed "swim." With nearly 300 boys in the pool at one time the scene in the bathing quarters resembled a gigantic frog pond; but with the "craak" left out; in its place were the merry shouts of the visitors as they splashed and chased one another through the warm waters of the pool.

Promptly on time the programme came to an end at 9:15 p.m. As a direct result of the evening many of the school boys who were guests that night are now members of the institution, and taking an active part in its work.

This is a typical programme of a week in the Boys' Work Department of the Y.M.C.A., which is based on the fourfold training:

Monday—Afternoon, Students' Club gymnasium classes; evening, Employed Boys' Brotherhood, supper and meeting; Junior and Intermediate Corps, swimming.

Tuesday—Junior B gymnasium and swimming.

Wednesday—Tumblers' practice; Junior A gymnasium and swimming; Junior Employed Boys' supper and meeting.

Thursday—Students' Club supper and meeting; Junior and Intermediate Employed Boys' gymnasium.

Friday—Junior B gymnasium and swimming; Employed Leaders' meeting; grand rally of all clubs followed by separate club meetings; Radio Club meeting in wireless workshop.

Saturday (all day)—Morning, Preparatory and Junior Beginners' swimming; Junior A Leaders' gymnasium; 5:30 p.m., Junior E leaders' meeting; Junior A and B, boxing club.

In addition to these activities, which make a busy week for the instructors, set periods are set aside for Bible study, and educational work. At the Friday rally a prominent speaker appears to talk on matters of interest to the boys.

The games of the Boys' Department are open to students in the afternoons and to employed boys in the evenings. Keen interest is now being taken in the boxing club, newly formed, and also in the Radio Club. In the latter work the boys are busily engaged in making up their own sets in the workshop, which is a model facility for this recreation.

The Radio fans receive technical instruction Friday nights, the class working in interest and numbers.

Altogether the Boys' Work Department is nearing the end of what proved to be an exceptionally good year, with many new friends and the friendship of former associates warmer than ever.

Wireless Question Box

"P.H.L." asks what the receiving range of wave lengths for his station will be, given a stated set of instruments and antennae. If P.H.L. will tell us the nature of his aerial wire, and its diameter a formulae may be given to approximate the result. By far the more practical means, though, would be to secure the loan of a wave metre for a short while and make the practical measurement of the set as it stands, for no matter how near theory may be to the fact, the wave metre is an exact result under working conditions.

Will You Be Lieutenant to Father Christmas?

FOUR short weeks until Christmas, and everyone on their best behavior. Soon now we will hear Jerry say to his mother: "I have been a good boy, haven't I mother?" and his mother will answer "Yes, Jerry, what are you going to ask from Santa Claus this year?" Then will follow a list of wants as long as a good sized freight train, and indeed poor Santa Claus would need that train to carry all Jerry could take.

Christmas, with its message of Peace on Earth and goodwill to men has no more lovely expression than in the anticipation of our little friends who look for Santa Claus; but the world is very large and there are a great many children living in its widely scattered parts. Santa Claus, no matter how tireless he may be will not be able to get around to all. Undoubtedly he will seek out the good. Santa Claus wants a Lieutenant.

Notwithstanding the aim of Santa Claus to visit all homes where there are good children, it just may be that in so large a number of homes where children wait for him Santa Claus may be unable to complete his rounds and some little child will wait in vain. Then it becomes the duty of every toy that the good work of Santa Claus is carried on. Every little girl and boy may easily help in taking care of those Santa Claus can't visit, and in a very easy manner.

Every year as time goes on we acquire toys and playthings that we love dearly for a season and then become so accustomed to that we no longer play with them. Yet perhaps these very toys are the ones that some little girl or boy is longing for. Would it not be a kind thought to collect the toys and games we do not need and see that they get into the hands of some little child on Christmas Day?

We are told that it is better to give than to receive, so surely when we have such a large share in the receiving it would not hurt to give a little. None of us are so blind to the enjoyment of our own good things that we cannot see the longing of another. Let us form a Christmas Spirit Club and undertake to see that at least one child is made the happier for our actions on Christmas Day.

To belong to this club is a very simple matter. The only test is the sole necessary qualification for membership. There are no fees to pay and nothing to do beyond turning the kindly spirit of Christmas into a least one good turn on that great day. It may seem very early to speak about Christmas, but our time-worn dolls and games will need a little refreshing before we could pass them on to another.

A Teddy bear, rag doll, or drum; a tin horn, hoop or sleigh, nothing is too old or out of date to be of use. The smallest and most ragged rag doll will delight the heart of some little girl as much as if it were the most expensive toy in town. Though, Little Reader, you may have grown up to look upon dolls as dolls, and not as companions, you will remember the time when a doll was the best chum of all.

Enter the attic, now; seek out a toy that you have discarded and set about getting that one plaything into shape to give it away this Christmas. When the great day comes and you have seen what Santa Claus has brought for you, then take your offering to the first little girl or boy who is without, and the remainder of that day will be a long round of joy and merriment for yourself. In making others happy lies one of the surest ways of being happy oneself.

It may be that all your dolls and games have been broken up or otherwise destroyed, and if that be so it will not debar you from membership in the Christmas Spirit Club. There are many toys that may be made without either money or pains, and aside from all toys, many a child would be as pleased with the apple you will receive on Christmas Day as you expect to be with all the good things Santa Claus has in store for you.

If, Little Reader, you are lost for an idea to carry this out, write and tell us about it; for among our many little friends we have so many ideas that we could never hope to make use of all. Remember the Christmas Spirit Club is a club, you create yourself, you must be president, secretary and membership all in one. You will sit and draft out the good deed that you wish to do, and when the time comes do it. Then you will have qualified as a true member of the club, and will be proud of the happiness you have helped to bring to another.

There are well over 5,000 children in this city alone; just think what 5,000 Christmas Spirit Clubs could do to make this community a brighter and happier place to live in? If you are willing to form yourself into this club of one and prepare for a Christmas good deed, write and tell us what idea you have in this connection, and it may be your plans will aid another to do good likewise. Address all communications to Children's Editor, The Times, Victoria, B.C.

Naval Brigade Boys Will Be Entertained

This evening the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Boys' Naval Brigade will treat the boys of the local division to a social evening to be staged in the Connaught Seamen's Institute. The boys will attend in numbers and it is expected that parents will be on hand to take an interest in the enjoyment of the occasion. The boys will sit down to a supper, followed by a concert and social hour. The band of the Brigade will be in attendance, and it is expected that the boys themselves will provide several numbers of the entertainment programme.

Dog Stowed Away on Asia

WHEN the Empress of Asia docked here this week one of the first "passengers" to alight was Chow, Chow, an Airedale terrier, with a twinkle in his eyes, stowed away on the big C.P.S.S. liner on her former run to this port and has now completed the double crossing of the Pacific. True, the little dog's status was changed during the time for it left a stowaway, and came back an honored passenger, and indeed the pet of the ship's officers and complement. When Chow left on his transpacific travel tour he was a lean and active Airedale terrier, when he returned he had so prospered in health and spirits that he was no longer lean. It was a fat and contented doggie that strutted down the gang plank to the shore this time. The terrier, apparently lost on board as the steamer was put off here on her former outward run, was out off here where his owner must be.

BUDDY AND HIS FRIENDS

THE MORNING AFTER
Buddy brought his tough friend,
Bucky Kelly, home for the night visiting other Beaver colonies in the Summer time, wandring miles from home and having a good time. Not a stroke of work does he do.

"And in the Winter time he is comfortable in his home, protected from the cold. And would you believe it, Mr. Blue Jay said that those Beavers can go from their homes into the Winter and bathe. Ugh, it makes me shiver now to think of it!"

"Think of having three meals a day and taking a bath in the Winter without leaving our home, or at least going out of sight of it. I tell you Racey, I am almost sorry at times that I am not a Beaver."

"Do they eat chickens and ducks?" asked Mr. Coon.

"No," replied Mr. Fox, "and that is the only reason I do not wish to be one. Not to be able to enjoy a nice fat bird would take all the joy out of life for me and the Beaver lives on the bark from trees, birch, aspen, willow and others, and in the Winter he has the roots and things at the bottom of the pond."

"It seems to me he has a pretty easy time of it," said Mr. Coon, "I wonder who started that saying about working 'like a Beaver'?"

"I don't know," said Mr. Fox, "but I will be fair enough to say that Mr. Beaver when he builds a dam or his house, works very hard indeed, so maybe that is how the saying got about. Someone must have seen him when he was at work, but it seems to me a good saying would be taking life easy 'like a Beaver,' for excepting September and October when he is preparing for Winter and doing repairs he does very little work."

"Yes, sir, if I didn't like poultry so well I would choose to be a Beaver," said Mr. Fox, trotting off through the woods and leaving Mr. Coon sitting there wondering if Mr. Beaver of all animals was the one most to be envied.

HOUSEHOLD REFINANCE

How to Make a Tray for the Invalid

(This is the second of three articles which Mrs. Solar describes as the handiest things Mr. Solar ever made for the house.)

If you have ever been too ill to come to the table and have had to eat your meals from a chair placed at the side of the bed or a serving tray propped on your knees, you will appreciate the convenience of a tray which can be placed in front of you with the legs resting on the bed covering. This tray, which can be used while the patient is propped up on pillows or lying flat on their back, will also be found convenient for holding stationary while writing or papers or magazines for reading. It has the advantage, also, of having folding legs, making it very compact for storing.

Begin work by making the tray bottom. If you can get one piece of wood wide enough for this, so much the better; otherwise, glue up several pieces. Next make the legs and fasten them to the spreader as shown in the illustration, using temporary finishing nails and glue. Hinge the legs to the bottom of the tray. Also make the spring clip and screw to the block, which is in turn glued and screwed to the bottom.

Now make the back and side rails, cut to shape, and with a 3/4-inch bit make the hand-holds. The back is attached to the bottom piece with glue and brads.

If you use a cheap, soft wood, finish the piece with one coat of undercoating and two coats of enamel, rubbing between coats as directed on the can. However, if a good grade of material, such as gum, walnut, or oak, is used, the piece may be filed, stained, and varnished.

Don't wait until someone in your family is sick before starting this tray, for if you enamel it plenty of time must be allowed for drying.
