REPORT ON THE LOCATION OF THE JAPANESE INTELLIGENCE
ORGANS, CONDUCTING INTELLIGENCE AND SABOTAGE ACTIVI-TIES AGAINST THE MONGOLIAN PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC UP TO AUGUST 9, 1945

Compiled on the basis of the records of the Frontier Corps Department, Home Ministry of the Mongolian People's Republic, at the request of the latter.

By the time the Mongolian People's Republic entered into the war with Japan, the Kwantung Army Headquarters and its Second (Intelligence) Division for the purpose of conducting sabotage activities against the Mongolian People's Republic had on the territory of Manchuria two intelligence sections, located at Hailar and Vanemiao, six intelligence sections, located at Altan-Amel, Jalai-nur, Amgalan, Halun-Arshan, Ganjur-sume and Zun-Uzumchin, as well as seven intelligence groups (Cf: the sketch map).

To conduct sabotage activities against the Mongolian People's Republic from the Territory of Inner Mongolia the Japanese headquarters of the Mongolia-Suiyang grouping had four intelligence sections, located at Baotow, Huhu-hoto, Zapshir and Dolonor, four intelligence sections, located at Pansiang, Bazun-Sunit, Bandid-Gengen and Batohalg respectively as well as twenty intelligence groups (Cf: the sketch map).

In the course of several years all above-mentioned Japanese intelligence organs conducted sabotage and bandit-and-espionage activities against the Mongolian People's Republic, where spies were intensively sent by armed bandit and subversive groups.

The sketch map of the Japanese intelligence organs is attached to this report.
