DEDICATION

TO HERA AND THOSE
OTHER IMMORTALS
WHO HAVE GUIDED
THE ARGONAUTS
THROUGH MANY DE-
-VIOTIC WANDERINGS
IN SEARCH OF THE
GOLDEN FLEECE

“For each of us has a golden fleece to seek,
and a wild sea to sail over, ere we reach
it, and dragons to fight ere it be ours.”

Acknowledgement is due to Charles Kingsley, and to William Morris for versions of the story of the Argonauts. The passage above, and those appearing in the text, in italics, are quotations from “The Greek Heroes,” and from “The Life and Death of Jason.”

I.

OW in the ancient times, so runs the tale,
Came Jason to Iolchus to prevail
Upon the reverend elders, that they let Him follow Hera's bidding, till he get
The Golden Fleece, youth's brave desire,
For which ambition battles frost and fire.
Full many a question wise the elders plied
Ere Jason's feet upon the bricks might stride,
Ere he could call companions from their rest
To join with him and for the trophy quest.
A braver crew was not in all the land,
And mighty was the sword within each hand.

OR leader they chose Jason, and allied
Their vows to stand by him whate'er betide.

ND now build they a ship of gallant size,
An oar for every man within her lies;
And painted blue her frame, and on her prow
They laid the magic green of a spruce bough,
The while the wind blew whispered words like these:
"Nobilitas in omnibus." The seas
Upleaped to meet the craft, and she did long
To cut the waves in tune with Orpheus's song.
Then, 'twixt the thronging people, happily
The Heroes sped their way down to the sea.
The craft lay gleaming in the light, and there
Upon the shore the shouts ascend the air
In jubilation as of victory won.

AND now red flames sweep up to meet the sun,
And clouding smoke, and fiery embers rise
High in the symbol of the sacrifice
Of self to purpose. Then a favoring breeze
Bore on the eager ship to meet the seas;
The flames died down, the embers rose no more,
As Jason and the Heroes left the shore;
No longer for themselves the quest to make,
Since now a common purpose they partake.
And each man bent his strength upon his oar
To bear the Argo rushing from the shore.

HOW many the heroes that have churned the seas
Since this, but not with glorious fame like these.
Thus they rowed on o'er every tossing swell,
Past great Olympus, where Immortals dwell,
And council hold, to seal the fate of all;
And past that steeped town which fain would call
The Heroes to their ruin.

In that place
Termed Isle of Cyzicus, they rest a space,
To joy their sea-tired eyes upon the scene
Of song, and sports, and dancing on the green.
And as they labored, ne'er expecting ease,
Through swelling wave and brightly sunlit seas,
Now toiling hard, now riding with the breeze,
Forsooth they came into a fair country,
Its green fields sloping gently to the sea.

THEY trimmed the sail and drew the long oars up,
And there the feast was spread, and there the cup
Of happiness brimmed o'er, as in the sun

The pageant gleamed before the throne of one
Who was the mistress of it all. When dipped
The sun behind the wood, again they slipped
Far out the rippling sea. And soon they feel
An ice-cold blast which would their blood congeal,
For lo, the Blue Rocks in their vision loom,
That gnash and grind, and roar of coming doom.
Down sank the Heroes' hearts, the while they sighed:
"Yet must we row between if we would stride
On to our quest. If Hera will be nigh,
Though arduous the task, we'll pass them by."
Then, shouting, rushed they through the cold blue gap,
And forth they came, without looked-for mishap.
All oars at rest, into a pleasant sea,
Now for a space they sailed right wearily.
Then bending joyfully to dripping oar,
They gathered strength; the Argo eastward bore.

II.

IGH three full months within a quiet bay
The sail they furled, and passed each summer day,
Where limpid streams made music for their ears.

'Mid fragrant flowers, forgotten were their fears
Of feats to be accomplished by each one.

HEN came a day when the quest, not half begun,
Must be resumed, for tasks awaited yet
Ere the Golden Fleece they reached. White sails they set
To the fresh breeze, the anchor raised from the sand,

And loath, with sighs, they left the summer strand
For a "land of bitter blasts, . . . and misery,"
And many a snare which they could not foresee.

ITH courage high, and lightsome hearts they sailed,
Till, led by the gods to a doleful land, they paled
At sight of giant brothers there who ruled,—

In the art of making work for men well-schooled.
The one was Biblycus, of blackish mien,
And one, Forensycus, whose yellowish green
And loathsome look did fright them into spending
Full half their days in labor never ending.
The Heroes toiled through nights and sought no ease
Till they could 'range their thoughts in A's and B's.'
Alas! 'Neath those, to find sub-one and two
Seemed oft to them a monstrous thing to do.
Thus many a fight they had, nor ceased their pain
Till nothing of those giants did remain.

WHEN they'd subdued the peevish brothers' powers,
The Argonauts could while away some hours;
So, to a glittering town, where one might see
Bright, mirrored lights, they travelled gleefully.
There music hearts and spirits set on fire
From Centaur Chiron's harp and Orpheus' lyre.

NOR was that dance and entertaining cheer
The only pleasure of the opening year,
For truly,—though one scarcely dares to say
Such tales be true as spread from day to day,
They saw the Immortals from Olympus float
Like swallows to a barn; in spotted coat
Of leopard skin came one of them costumed,
Whose hat of black with brilliant red was plumed;
Some gayly robed, and some of stately port,
Together did they revel and make sport,
Till every Hero there laughed heartily,
And longed for more of this rare company.

BUT soon the gods full measure did repay
For antics joyed; then, later, in the May,
One struggle yet awaited ere their helm
Could turn to calmer seas and fairer realm:
In feast were all the Heroes gathered
Upon the hill-side, green, in numerals spread,
When lo! As if from clouds of air, there flew
The Harpies bold,—those maiden birds whose crew
Had ravage planned; nor did they leave a dot
Of all that feast, to spoil which was their plot.

LONG sailed the Argo, true from prow to stern,
Heroic midst the trials it must learn.

And when the rites were o'er, with solemn chants -
They wreathed and twined their way in mystic dance.

III.

DOON spied the Argonauts a goodly land
With promise of fair joy on every hand,
But as the Argo raced up to the shore,
Each man bethought him of the arms he bore.
A coast-guard met them at the water's edge,
"No need of armor here," he smiled. "I pledge
My honor, your sojourn with us will be Free from all strife, a time of jollity."

THEN were they straightway taken to the king,
And spent the night in play and banqueting.
Fair maidens danced, a minstrel sang, and then
Their host turned unto Jason and his men.
"Give us a song, or tale of thine own land—
It must be fair to 've nourished thy good band."
Then, nothing loath, the Argonauts did play
With mimic art, "The Road to Yesterday."
Breathless their hosts did sit till they were done,
And no small stint of praise the players won.

ANOTHER day they spent in games of skill
And strength, and tests of tempered will,
Within a high-ceiled hall, with hangings rare
Of ropes and rings and ladders in the air.
A valorous, chosen few, their country's pride,
Against the Argonauts in contest vied;

Yet, though their strength was great, and keen their play,
The Heroes, all agreed, had won the day.

WHILE yet they sojourned in that pleasant land,
The day drew nigh when Jason gave command
That they commemorate with mystic rite
Their glorious victory in that bitter fight
Which they had waged just one year previous
Against the giant fierce, Forensycus.
An ancient bull they worshipped, made of brass,
Whose nostrils breathed illuminating gas
And fire mysterious and misty vapors,—
This worshipped they with joyous, mocking capers,
And when the rites were o'er, with solemn chants,
They wreathed and twined their way in mystic dance.

NOW soon their visit drew unto an end;
Leaving that land, their way they onward bend
To that fair place, o'er which Aetes, king,
Doth rule, from whom the Heroes seek to wring
Their Golden Fleece, their just desert. That man,
Fearing their strength, with cunning soon began
To try their wit. The Argonauts must sow
Abroad mysterious seeds for future woe.
Some seeds bore mystic writing, such maybe
As "23" or "99 T. C."

The Heroes did the deed with all good cheer,
But what the future held you now shall hear.

Refreshment in three days of merriment came,
With dance and song, was spread abroad their fame.

IV.

NE moment till the summer days had flown;
The Heroes looked to reap where they had sown.
They gazed abroad upon the self-same field,
And lo! There was indeed a fearsome yield.
As serpents' teeth, to earth-born warriors sprung,
Broadcast responsibilities were flung.
Nigh two full weeks they labored, hearts still strong,
To foil the vast confusion of the throng,
Or ere the good earth swallowed up the foes
And left but order once again; on those Same fields now eager horsemen trooped about;
Some groups of ten now marked an oval out.
In realms of mind, of sports, and elsewhere,
Each Hero did the burden seek to share.
But soon they'd learned that they did nothing lack
While they were clad in dignity of black,
And something called "seniority prestige"
Among the others made of them sole liege.

ULL oft would many a trial these men assail
But 'mid the terrors none of them did fail;
'Round yon entrancing city now loomed high
A buttressed wall,—that ban did patience try—
The guard was Brimo, huntress of the child,
Called Poliomyelitis, monster wild.
Three heads that showed,—a horse, a hound, a snake,
Forbad them dance and theatre pleasures take;
Indeed 'twas long from football they did fast,
So many dangerous germs they found broadcast.

But, truly did they prove in time of woe
That they vain, perilous pleasures could forego.

GOOD-NATURED rivalry did now abound
And for a week the country all around
With cheer and speech their parties wide proclaimed,
For in the art of eloquence they were famed.

OFTIMES they in their quest impatient grew,
And some despaired the storied Fleece to view.

REFRESHMENT in three days of merriment came,
With dance and song was spread abroad their fame.
Through lands of pleasure onward Argo sped,
And little did they reckon, or peril dread.

THEN all at once a dragon met their gaze,
That 'round the Golden Fleece on guard e'er stays.
This beast to sooth they toiled both day and night,
And penned long yellow charms for his delight.

So soon as he in slumber closed his eyes,
Came many a rite to celebrate the prize.
And, lastly, going proudly with good heart,
They all came to the wished-for shrine, apart,
Midmost the temple, where the pure Fleece lay,
Awaiting capture there, in bright array.
But Jason stayed his hand, and pondering said:
"The goal is reached, which yet I somewhat dread

*To draw unto me; since I know indeed,
That henceforth no slight toil shall be my meed."*
Still loyal, cheered the Argonauts at length,
And to what might befall them pledged their strength.

HE Fleece then in its splendor fairly burned,
And each took reverently the share he'd earned.
Regretfully they left the Argo dear,
Each o'er the Unknown Sea his Craft to steer;
Each pledged high standards higher still to make,
And listened to the words that Hera spake:
"May all be well, and on the noisy ways
Still may you find some wealth of happy days."

Tree Day, June 2, 1917

THE GREAT TREE

In a country of sunshine and youth, a Great Tree spread its protecting branches. Here, too, the Dryad of the Blue Spruce led the dance of the dryades. Wearying at last, the Dryad stole aside to rest beside the Tree. In the summer wind that moved among the branches she heard vague whisperings, rumors of change, of new dancers by the lakeside. And she felt her heart heavy within her. The Spirit of the Great Tree knew her grief and pitied her.

As in a dream, the Dryad heard soft, far strains of music, sweeter than she had ever known. Bright dancers flashed into view. She knew them for these spirits who, like herself, had once danced in the shadow of the Tree. On they came. The dryades of the Purple Beech, the Oak, the Locust, and the Tulip Tree; the spirits of the Maple, Birch and Pine—all these and others danced before the Dryad of the Spruce. Breathless, she watched the swift freedom of the dance. Her reluctance faded, and her heart thrilled with longing to join the whirling, billowing, colorful chorus.

The dryades paused. Radiant in beauty, the queenly spirit of the Great Tree stood among them. In a voice that was like April night wind among pine trees, she spoke, telling of the dance by the lakeside that never ends but is ever sweeping forward into the larger dance wherein the world may hear sweet echoings of the music of the Tree. The Dryad of the Blue Spruce took her place among the dancing dryades and then the spirit of the Great Tree summoned from the woodland the youngest Dryad.

Timidly she came—this delicate nymph—and the Spirit welcoming her sent her forth to dance with the dryades by the water until she too should be ready for the larger dance into which the Dryad of the Spruce had entered.

So in the country of sunshine and youth, protected by the Great Tree, the little group of dryades still danced by the lakeside.

Department of Hygiene

The Hygiene Department is a veritable little college in itself. It has its own faculty, building, student body, graduate club, and cheer. The faculty numbers sixteen. The building is Mary Hemenway Gymnasium. The student body is composed of those who are taking the regular hygiene course of two years, those who are taking the course in three years, and those who are members of any class in college, taking some hygiene work each year, receiving their B.A. degree at the end of the fourth year and the certificate of the department the fifth year. The Graduate Club numbers twenty-seven members, representing sixteen different colleges. The department cheer is given in tones suggested by the placards in Mary Hemenway Hall.

Sh! Sh! Sh!

Hygiene, hygiene, hygiene!

He: "Have a good time at Prom?"
 She: "Very nice Eddie."

Miss Shackford: "I am requested to announce that _____ is coming to Wellesley next Tuesday evening. Mr. _____ will read some of his poems to us, and afterwards, I believe, he will say something."

Member of the Faculty (upon seeing the sketch on page 14 of this book): "Ah, yes! I presume that represents the children flocking around College Hall Centaur!"

One of the Maids at Prom. (to a perfectly respectable young man): "Didn't I meet you at a dance last week?"

P. R. Y. Man (blushing violently): "N-n-no—I think not!"

CONFUSION.

Junior (calling to a Senior, who has recently announced her engagement): "Congratulations, Ruth!"

Ruth (whose mind is on the Phi Beta Kappa key, which she is wearing for the first time): "Thanks! I worked long and hard for that!"

Education Student (trying to show her knowledge in a blue-book): "Rousseau's mother died in early infancy, and his father, being an unprincipled man, allowed him to grow up."

Mary (at the Prom., attempting to present, or introduce, her partner): "Miss Smith, may I produce Mr. Jones?"

of Interest to Women

While we do not sell women's clothing, it is our experience that there is, on the part of many women, especially those interested in sport, a growing tendency to purchase from us for their own use Motor Coats, Sweaters, Wool Caps, Waistcoats, Gloves, Mufflers, Boots, Leggings, Puttees, etc., liking these articles all the more apparently because, as distinct from being "mannish," they are the very things that are worn by men.

HYSTERICAL BALLADS

I met a Wellesley College girl,
She was thin and under-fed;
I prayed her tell me what was wrong—
And this is what she said:

"Our butter was the first to go
We must economize—
The price of eggs"—her tears did flow—
Has mounted to the skies."

"And since potatoes 'gan to rise,
We never see them more.
A salad is a rare surprise—
The war is at our door."

"By your thin cheeks and hollow eyes,
You'll surely starve," I said.
"Alas, we must economize."
She sighed and bowed her head.

POTATOES—$6.50 A BAG.

"We shall eat hay again."
Thus Vachel Lindsay chanted.
What seemed an idle fancy then
We soon shall take for granted.

Mary, Ethel, Kate and I
 Vowed we'd never part—
 Vowed we'd live or starve together,
 In pursuit of Art.

Planned to rent a studio
 Down in Greenwich Vill.—
 Planned to share our Fame together
 Or our last lone bill.

Said we'd live on bread and cheese,
 Or bread alone until
 We had earned enough together
 To eat our daily fill.

Broken now are all those vows,
 Broken is my heart—
 We who planned to live together
 Even now must part.

For Mary is pursued by Art,
 Ethel marries Bill—
 I alone am left to starve,
 For Kate's engaged to Phil.

ODO·RO·NO
THE TOILET WATER FOR EXCESSIVE PERSPIRATION

There is only one way to find complete relief from perspiration—only one method that will make you feel absolutely safe, and that is to divert it from the parts like the armpits, where even the normal perspiration cannot evaporate. This is what Odo-ro-no, the perspiration corrective, does! Two or three applications a week of this preparation will keep the armpits, etc., pleasantly dry and odorless. Odo-ro-no prevents perspiration odor by making the thing that causes it impossible.

Get Odo-ro-no today and find complete relief from all perspiration annoyance to-night. 50c. and $1; trial size, 25c. In Canada, 70c. and $1.40; trial size, 35c. By mail postpaid, if your dealer hasn't it.

“So Nice and Fresh and Cool”

A Vassar girl, writing home, said:

“We are going to have a Hallowe'en spread here Friday night, and Orange Jell-O is to be served for the dessert.

JELL-O

is so different from fudge and gingersnaps and the other things we eat all the time—so nice and fresh and cool to relieve the monotony.”

There are seven pure fruit flavors of Jell-O: Strawberry, Raspberry, Lemon, Orange, Cherry, Peach, Chocolate. Each 10 cents at any grocer's.

Little folders in Jell-O packages contain all the instructions anyone needs in making the “made-in-a-minute” Jell-O dainties, but we shall be glad to send you the fine new Jell-O Book if you will favor us with your address.
