Job Potson's Experiment.

It was a disagreeable, stormy day out of doors, and in the village store were collected a dozen, or more, of social spirits, engaged in drinking cider and talking politics. By and by they had talked the political field dry, and one of the number, Sam Shute by name—a red-nosed, clear eyed man, opened upon the subject of domestic government. He ventilated himself in general, and finally approached one of his hobbies as follows:

"I tell ye, my boys, a man's got to be master in his own house if he ever expects to be anybody. Just let your wife gain an inch, and she'll take an ell. Let her once take the reins, and she'll be sure to beat them. Lord! what a thing a man must be to let his wife rule him!" Thereupon Mr. Sam Shute finished his mug of cider, and then filled his mouth with tobacco.

"That's a fact," cried Tom Burnham, in a thick, foggy voice. "Egad, I'd like to see a woman rule!" "I never had it in my family. Oo, sirs, I hold the reins myself. My wife moves when I tell her to. She's got her lesson, and she knows just what to depend on."

Tom Burnham finished his mug of cider, and lighted his old black pipe. "You're right," chimed Lot Quimby, lifting his great dirty boots on to the stove-hearth as he spoke. "If a man provides a home for his family, he's got a right to be boss. Thunder! I'd like to see a woman pullin' me around by the nose."

"The fact is, resumed Sam Shute, emptying his mouth upon the floor, these ere women have got two leadin' strings, and when they can't pull by one, they try the other. In the first place, they want to govern like masters,—that suits 'em best; but, ef they can't do that, then they try to fetch us around by fretting and coaxin'. But they don't come none of their nonsense over me. Lord! When a man once puts his foot down, what can a woman do?"

"That's so," pronounced Burnham, digging up the moist tobacco in his dirty pipe with the blade of his jack knife, and then puffing away for dear life. "That's so," he repeated, after his pipe was once more in smoking order. "I have had 'xperience in that. When a man once puts his foot down, a woman can't do nothin'. A woman'll pull an' haul just as long as there is a chance of havin' her own way; but when she finds that she's got a master, why, Lord bless ye, she'll be like a colt with the bit in,—there may be some kickin' and strugglin'; but she's got to come 'round, finally. Women have to be broken just like colts."

"Eggzactly!" said Lot Quimby, lowering his boots to the floor, but leaving a part of the dirt upon the stove hearth. "You've hit the thing precisely, Tom. Egad, there's some comfort in a man's feelin' that he's boss of the establishment. If I've ever got to be a slave, I hope I shan't be a slave to a woman—that's all I've got to say. As long as I own a house, I kalkilate to rule in it. What's your opinion, Job?"

This last remark was addressed to Job Potson, a small sized, quiet looking man, who sat in the corner, smoking a new pipe.

"I guess," said Sam Shute, with a laugh, "that Job is a little on the other tack."

"Shouldn't wonder," added Tom Burnham, with a wink. He ran a broom straw through the muddy stem of his old pipe, and then continued,—"His wife's got the upper hand, I rath'er guess."

"Not by a derned sight," exclaimed Job, in high dudgeon. "No, sirs! My wife don't rule me. You're nightily mistaken if you think that I'm henpecked."

"But Mrs. Potson does just about as she pleases, I take it," suggested Shute. "And, added Burnham, who had got his pipe a going once more, "I rath'er guess Job does jest about as she tells him to do."

"That's so, fast enough," said Lot Quimby.

But Job declared that it was not so; and he became very angry when his companions laughed at him, and expressed their pity for him.

But when Job Potson went out from the store, and started for home, he began to wonder if they had not told the truth. Job was not a large minded man. He was an honest, kind hearted, truthful man; but he lacked energy and decision. Still, he had some pride, as all small men are apt to have; and the remarks of his companions had touched him in a tender spot. As he walked slowly homeward he thought the matter over, and finally came to the conclusion that his wife did rule. He called to mind all the domestic arrangements and doings of the week, and he was forced to admit that he was, in many respects, the governed party. He stopped square in the road, and put his foot down.

"This won't do!" he declared, to himself. "I must turn over a new leaf. By the great Moses! I'll be master in my own house! We'll see who'll govern!"

Sarah Potson sat in her kitchen, engaged in mending her husband's frock. She was a medium-sized, mild-faced woman, with clear hazel eyes, and dark brown hair—a faithful, loving woman, frugal and industrious, and possessing a great share of firmness and decision. The house was clean and in order; the shed was a pattern of neatness; the barn was well kept; the cows and pigs were fat and sleek; the orchard was trim; and the farm was productive; and a careful observer, who had watched the doings of fifteen years, would have said that Sarah Potson was the genius who presided over all this order and thrift.

Job Potson reached his home, and hung his hat upon the back of a chair, and sat down by the stove.

"Job," said his wife, without stopping her needle, "as soon as you get warm, I guess you'd better fix our front door-step. And after dinner would be a very good time to secure the beam over the tie-up. You had better do it before the stanchions get loose. The cattle can work them a little now. 'A stitch in time saves nine,' you know."

"I'll look out for my barn," said Job, placing rather an undue emphasis on the my.

His wife's needle fairly stopped, and a look of curious surprise crept over her face. What did the man mean?

"But, Job," she suggested kindly, "have you noticed that the beam is loose?"

This rather staggered Job Potson; but he quickly recovered himself, and placed his right foot a little more firmly upon the floor.

"Sarah," he said, "I will look out for my own affairs. If you will attend to your duties here in the house, you'll do enough."

"Job Potson, what do you mean?" "I mean this," replied Job, speaking quickly and snappishly. "He hadn't the strength to speak slowly and sternly. 'I mean this: I'll be master of my own affairs. I don't need a ruler; and, what's myre, I don't intend to have one!'"

Like all men who are venturing beyond their depth, Job Potson was forced to make up in bitterness what he lacked of power.

At first his wife was astounded; but when she saw that he kept his eyes upon the fire, not daring to raise them toward her; and when she saw that his teeth were closely shut, and his head cocked over upon one side, the truth flashed upon her. She was a woman of quick keen perception, and she knew something of her husband's character. She knew that he had been down to the store, and she knew who were in the habit of congregating there. It was just as plain to her perception as though she had heard Sam Shute and Tom Burnham ventilating their stores of domestic philosophy.

"Job," she inquired quietly, "what are my duties?"

Now Job had put his foot into it; and he must not back down. He was not a diplomat, and he answered, bluntly and squarely:

"Your duty is, to obey your husband; and, he added, fixing himself firmly in his seat, "I hope you will do it."

"Do you mean that you are going to turn over a new leaf in our family?" inquired Mrs. Potson.

"That's it, exactly," cried Job. "You have hit it the first time."

"And you are to be master?"

"I AM?"

"And hereafter you want none of my suggestions?"

"Hereafter I shall pay such attention to your suggestions as I may think they merit."

Mrs. Potson resumed her sewing.

"Poor, dear little man!" She didn't say this aloud; but she thought it to herself. A quiet smile stole over her pretty face, and she patted her trim foot upon the floor. She had not the least thought of being angry with her husband—not the least in the world. She knew his weakness; and she knew that somebody had been thorning him.

"Job," she said, after she had reflected a few moments, "I am your wife. You are a man, while I am only a woman. It is right that you should command. I am your most humble servant. Give your orders as you please, but I beg of you to treat me kindly."

And then, with sober face and bended head, Sarah pursued her work.

What in the world was Job Potson to say now? He had never heard his wife speak so soddily and solemnly before. He sat no longer firmly in his seat. He sat upon nettles. He got up and went to the closet; he tried to whistle; and finally he left the house. He went to the barn, and examined the beam over the tie up. It was loose, and he saw at once that it ought to be fixed; but he would not do it that day—it would look too much like being governed by his wife. By and by he went around and looked at the steps at the front door. They certainly needed fixing; but he would not do the job until after dinner. His wife had told him that he had better do it before dinner. If he put it off till afternoon, that would show that he was not controlled by his wife.

For an hour and a half Job Potson loafed around the barn and shed like a man who knew not what to do with himself. The door-step and the tie up beam troubled him. He knew that they ought to be fixed; but he could not turn back so soon upon the new road.

At length the dinner horn sounded, and Job went in and took his seat at the table. The old smile that had, for fifteen years, cheered him morning, noon and night, had faded from his wife's face, and she gazed upon him meekly and submissively.

"Will my master have some of this sauce?" she asked. There was no irony in the tone—no malevolence; but she spoke quietly and politely.

"Yes," said Job, "I should like some of it."

But his dinner did not taste good to him. He did not feel at home. He felt, to use one form of his own thought, "like a cat in a strange garret." After dinner he went out and smoked in the shed; and then he went and fixed the door step. This was finished about the middle of the afternoon, and from then until supper-time he worked at his wood pile.

At the supper table he felt more nervous and uneasy than he had done at dinner. Once or twice he ventured to raise his eyes to his wife's face, but there was no smile for him—none of the old happy look.

This was more than Job Potson had been prepared for. He had—or supposed he had—screwed his courage up to the point of meeting his wife's show of temper. In fact, he had a store of harsh commanding words, already arranged, to hurl back at her when she should dare to question his authority, or offer to treat him with contempt. But he had not planned for meeting such an emergency as this. He had announced his intention of governing his wife, and she had taken him at his word. What should he do? How should he commence? What sort of a task had he before him? As he sat in the chimney corner, after the evening's chores had all been done, smoking his pipe, he felt very much like a man who has attempted to "speak in meeting," and has forgotten his speech. His wife had been in the habit, every evening, when she was well, of singing and chatting over her knitting; but her voice was now hushed.

At nine o'clock he arose to attend to the cattle. He looked for the lantern, but could not find it.

"Where is my lantern?"

"I guess it is where you left it," said Sarah. She laid down her knitting, and went out into the porch, where she found it setting on a bench. She lighted and handed it to her husband.

"Shall I do anything more for you, Job?"

She was calm and passive; he was choking with perplexity.

"That's all," he gasped. And then he went away and fed the cattle, and got in his wood for morning.

What a cheerless evening it had been! On the following morning Job found the same sad face at the breakfast table—no smiles—no cheer—no social chatting. After breakfast he went out and fixed the beam in the tie-up; and then he was at his wit's end. What would he have given at that moment for a suggestion from his wife. By and by a lucky thought struck him. He could break the ice without lowering his own dignity. He went into the house with this purpose.

"Sarah," he said, with his hands working nervously in his pockets, "what do you think about having the loom put in order?"

"I don't think anything about it, Job. You will do as you think best."

"But you know whether you want to use it or not, don't you?" Mr. Potson exhibited a little feeling.

"The wool is at your disposal, Job. If you please to have some cloth made, I will spin and weave it. You have but to issue your orders." Her voice was very low and calm, and her bearing was respectful.

"But," said Job, petulantly, and almost in temper, "you know whether the loom wants fixing."

"If it is your wish, my husband, I will go and examine it, and report to you. I will do anything you say. Only be kind to me, and don't expect me to anticipate your wants. Shall I go up with you now?"

"Yes."

The loom was in the shed-chamber, and thither Job led the way. His wife pointed out to him what was necessary to be done, and then left him at his work. Dinner and supper—cheerless and dark!

Job Potson had gone the length of his line. What in the World to do with himself he did not know. How could he work to advantage without the suggestions of his wife? Where were the hints and helps, and encouragements which, for so many years, had been his guides and assistants? And, when he came to think of it seriously, what sort of a piece of work should he make of it in attempting to rule and govern a person who knew more than he did, and who understood better what should be done? And, furthermore, how was he to call back the light and smiles, and keep up the warmth of the old love?—What would his home be with that light and warmth withdrawn?

Job Potson took his pipe down from its little shelf over the fire place, and filled it with tobacco. But he did not light it then. He held in his hand a while, and finally laid it upon the mantel. Then he went and stood before his wife, trembling like an eager child.

"Sarah, I want to enjoy my smoke this evening."

She looked up at him, wondering what he meant.

"How can I help you, Job?"

"Tell me that I have been a confounded fool!"

"Job—"

"And then kiss me, and be good to me; and let us be as we always have been."

She started up, and pat her arm around his neck, and kissed him.

"Sarah, you won't—"

"Tut, tut, Job. You are one of the best of husbands, and I love you truly and fondly. Now go and light your pipe, and we'll have a chat. I want to tell you about Mrs. Brackett's visit to Boston and how she found her lost brother."

Job Potson was once more happy and content; and at the close of the pleasant, social evening, he was resolved that the suggestions of men, who knew no more about the joys of a peaceful, orderly home than they knew about the inhabitants of the moon, should lead him never again to try domestic experiments.

THAT'S MY DAD.—On a recent publication day of a newspaper printed within a thousand miles of Peoria, (Ill.), a boy some ten or twelve years of age came into the office, and with a peculiar kind of grin upon his face, inquired if "that paper," pointing to the copy, "has an account of the man that had been murdered at Delavan." He was answered in the affirmative, when, depositing five cents upon the table, he remarked with an air of self importance, "Well, that's my dad, and I want to read about him."

HALLAM, the historian, and Rogers, the poet met;

"How do you do, Hallam?" said the poet.

"Do what?" said the other.

"Why, how do you find yourself?"

"I never lose myself."

"Well, how have you been?"

"Been where?"

"Pshaw! How do you feel?"

"Feel me and see."

"Good-morning, Hallam!"

"It's not a good morning."

WHEN General Lafayette was in the United States, two young men were introduced to him. He said to one, "Are you married?" "Yes, sir," was the reply. "Happy man," quoth the general. He then put the same question to the other, who replied, "I am a bachelor."

"Lucky dog" said the general. This is the best essay on matrimony extant.

AN Irishman attending a Quaker meeting heard a young Friend make the following announcement: "Brethren and sisters, I am going to marry a daughter of the Lord." "Och, 'n ye are," said Pat, "faith an' be jabers, an' it'll be a long time afore ye'll see yer father-in-law."

A gentleman riding through a country town saw a board with "This Cottage for Sail," painted to it. As he was always ready for a pleasant joke, and seeing a woman in front of the house, he stopped and asked her very politely when the cottage was to sail. "Just as soon as the man comes who can raise the wind," was the reply.

"I am like Barlam," said a dandy, on meeting a pretty girl in a narrow way, "stopped by an angel." "And I am like the angel," said she, "stopped by an ass."

A country schoolmaster thus describes a money-lender: "He serves you in the present tense; he lends you in the conditional mood; keeps you in the subjunctive, and ruins you in the future!"

PUNCH's jokes now are of this calibre: The other day a middle aged gentleman, while walking across the bridge of the Serpentine, fell in with somebody else. Their names have not yet transpired.

ANOTHER RACE.—A Race has been closed between the Oregon mare "Snip" and the Sacramento horse "Red Miller," to be run on Saturday, the 14th inst., on the Knight's Landing Race Track, for $600. Distance 300 yards.

We learn that property sold well at the "Mound Ranch" sale on Wednesday, the first day. The proprietor, Geo. D. Howell, Esq., is selling out preparatory to removing to Reese River, where he, in company with others, are erecting a quartz mill.

SHERIFF Gray, tax collector for this county, made our place a visit on Saturday last as per advertisement for the purpose of receiving the contributions of our citizens toward the support of Government. He and his Deputy, Mr. Wood, were quite busy most of the day.

THE weather has been delightful since Monday—clear, calm, cool and bracing. Contrast this week with the three weeks preceding, and it was wicked to desire a more lovely climate. It is true until we have rain to lay the dust, a drive on our roads is not as agreeable as it might be.

BARNUM OUTDONE.—We do not intend to compete with the great showman in humbugging the unsophisticated, but we think modestly that we can show a greater curiosity in our little shop than any visitor ever saw in the three stories and basement of the corner of Broadway and Park Row. We have generously placed our friends on the "free list," and invite them all to call and have a "site."

TABLE OF DISTANCES FROM AUSTIN.—Allard's map of the Reese River mines gives the following table of distances from Austin to the several important points both East and West, as well as to the several Reese River mining districts:—To New York, 3,118 miles; St. Louis, 1,978; Salt Lake City, 362; Ruby Valley, 113; Jacobsville, 6; Virginia City, 178; Sacramento, 327; San Francisco, 467; Geneva, 11; Guadalajara, 23; Lander City, 11; Pleasant Valley District, 15; Washington District, 40; Ravenswood District, 26; Simpson's Park District, 6; Augusta District, 40; Mount Hope District, 10.

SILVER.—The Alta states that all the people of that city are interested in silver mines: "Not only the capitalist and the banker," says that journal, "but the wholesale and the retail merchant, the lawyer and the physician, the preacher and the editor, the carpenter and the blacksmith, the jeweler and the hotel keeper, the tailor and the shoemaker, the drayman and the stevedore, the clerk and the laborer, the milliner, the teacher, the man servant and the maid-servant—all own shares in some silver mine." When a whole people become speculators as the Alta says the inhabitants of that city are, there is a great certainty that somebody will have to suffer. No less than $25,000,000 of silver stock is now owned in that city, according to the authority from which we quote.

A SWINDLER ARRESTED.—Officer Ellis, of San Francisco, has gone to Ruby Valley with a requisition on the Governor of Nevada Territory for the arrest of a man by the name of Boody, who is detained at Ruby by the military commander of that post, under authority from Gen. Wright. It is stated that Boody was in the employ of John I. Jeffries, an extensive dealer in cattle in Washington Territory and British Possessions; that Boody sold $23,000 worth of cattle, pocketed the money, came overland to California, missed the last steamer for Panama, and started overland. His arrest at Ruby was on telegraphic information. He traveled under different aliases, such as Brodie, Blood and Moore—the last being assumed on the steamboat for Sacramento.

EXPORT TRADE.—The Bulletin says our export trade is suffering for the want of suitable tonnage.

Board of Supervisors.
On Monday last, the 2d inst., the board of Supervisors of Yolo county met pursuant to law. Present full Board.

It appearing that an error occurred in transcribing the real estate assessments of Stephen Hill, to the amount of $1320, it was ordered that the tax collector adjust the same, and receive tax on the sum of $650, valuation of the land instead of on $1980.

Ordered, that the Clerk of the Board procure an account book in which he shall enter in the form of an account, charging the State of California with the several sums allowed and ordered paid to the several military companies of the county, and that said clerk furnish the county Treasurer with a statement of said accounts at each and every time the co. Treasurer shall proceed to make a settlement with the State Treasurer.

Ordered, that the County Treasurer elect of Yolo co., be required to give bonds in the penal sum of $40,000, for the faithful discharge of the duties of said office, and that the Justices of the Peace elect be required to give bond in the penal sum of $500, for the faithful discharge of their duties.

[Communicated.]
A loyal Man.

A great deal of time and breath is spent in these days in writing and talking about loyalty and disloyalty. Now let me say as a candid observer, that I have seen much that was vanity and vexation of spirit in the conduct of men in these last days. I have seen men that would do almost any thing for office. Some talk loyalty and act treason. Some act loyalty, and to the understanding of their political opponents talk treason. Some are like the tree in Missouri,—they are so straight as republicans, that they lean a little the other way. They hold their anti-slavery faith as a condition of Christian purity and term of communion at the Lords table. And yet they are the leaders in the band of Sabbath breakers, Sunday visitors and Lord's day pleasure riders. What does all this mean? Strange consistency! If this is religious faith carried out in practice, we must confess that we have been, and are yet in the dark as to what constitutes Christian faith and ethics. Shame and confusion will certainly overtake such pretenders. I have seen men that would be decoyed off from their proper work in the gospel ministry, "the old fashioned preachings," of "peace on earth and good will to men," and have converted their pulpits into political rostrums, their congregations into sub-worshippers at the altar of Moloch, who are anxious that their Brethren and Sisters, Fathers, Mothers and little ones, "because they are esteemed unholy in their institutions and civil claims, should be passed through fire, flame and smoke, to their inhumane Deity. While he ascends the pulpit with a document more like an editorial of some rabid sectional paper, than a sermon, and there bows his knee, but not his heart, and pours out, mostly to his congregation, a bloodthirsty war whoop, which he calls a prayer—(but we thank our God that he will not answer the prayer of the wicked). Then he proceeds with his sermon, which is full of rage and boasting, such as is common in these days of extended evil! My God! is the above truth? It is too true!

The faithful minister of the gospel is, in these days, almost as much exposed to persecution and death, from the superstitious in the land, as they were in the witch-craft days of New England. Silence in the pulpit is received as prima facie evidence of disloyalty, so they charged in those days. More anon.

CANDID AND TRUE.
SPORTING.—Julius J. Poirson, of Petaluma, has hunted in that region for the past two seasons, and has given his tally lists to the Journal for publication, thus:
Season of 1861-62 (83 days' hunting), killed 3,646 quails, 18 deer, 57 hares, 5 grey squirrels, 27 wild cats, 9 grey foxes, 31 polecats, 87 hawks of all species, 7 racoons, 17 rattlesnakes.
Season of 1862-63 (94½ days' hunting) killed 4,482 quails, 21 deer, 45 bears, 7 wild cats, 8 grey foxes, 14 polecats, 38 hawks of all species, 3 racoons, 5 rattlesnakes.

SHOOTING.—On the 10th ult. a dispute arose between Andrew Morgan, late of Iowa, and one Van Luven, on the summit of the Blue mountains, Washington Territory, in relation to the ownership of a horse, when Van Luven drew a pistol and shot Morgan, the ball entering behind the left shoulder, coursing downwards, injuring the lungs, and lodged in the spine, producing paralysis. He died in a day or two.

A HOUSEHOLD WORD.—They have to use the word "windy" so often in their weather articles over in Washoe, that, in order to avoid repetition, they have been driven to invent synonyms. The Gold Hill News coins the term "boreastical." The Sacramento Bee suggests as a good speculation for the News to get a patent for the word, and sell "rights" in San Francisco.

OUTDOOR EXERCISE.—Henry Ward Beecher urges American women to take more outdoor exercise. He says the Swiss women "walk with great perseverance, ride where any one can, stand over a precipice with composure, and perform all manner of adventurous feats."

THE Virginia City Bulletin says a wealthy gambler arrived at that place, a few days since, with $40,000, for the purpose of "operating," and lost half that sum before many days.

COSTLY.—The Virginia city Bulletin says the editor had occasion to purchase a load of small wood, a few days since, and upon calculating the expense, found that every stick cost upwards of ten cents.

THE STATE OF WASHOE.—By the following extract from the Carson (N. T.) Independent, it will become evident to the reader that the political pot is boiling at a high degree of temperature in that Territory. Politicians are prospecting as lively as the miners. Every lawyer, first, second and third rate, in the Territory, is expecting to strike a rich lead in the State, when it is pushed up out of the Territorial chaos. Office was a profession in California with these men, and they went over the mountains full of experience in this line of business. The Independent says:

"We snuff the smoke of the battle afar off." We see the gathering of the clans—hear the note of preparation, and watch the trains that are being laid. The elections will soon be at hand. The constitutional convention will meet next week—transact the business with which is charged—and before adjournment, appoint a day for holding an election for State officers and members of the Legislature. In anticipation, some of our patriotic citizens—who are earnestly desirous of serving the country in a civil capacity, are figuring for one or other of the offices in the gift of the people or of the Legislature. They are beginning to talk everywhere—and to the voice of the people, and their wishes, we lend a willing ear. We know what is coming. By and by, old politicians will hear such a crack of thunder as will scare them out of their boots; while the small minnows who now imagine themselves floating in perfect security, will—well, they will see sights! "Patience, cousin, and shuffle the cards!"

BATON ROUGE YANKEEZED.—A correspondent of the St. Louis Republican, of evident rebel sympathies, writes from Baton Rouge, La.:

Baton Rouge has degenerated, and is now nothing more than a Yankee village. The greater part of the male population have gone into the rebel ranks, and the females have either departed for the heart of Dixie, or else take their snuff in the seclusion of back parlors, where the Yankee entereth not. Yankee cavalry kick up the dust; Yankee idiom is the medium for the interchange of ideas on the street; the roll of Yankee drums has superseded the tinkle of the ubiquitous piano; and the "Bonnie Blue Flag," which bears but one single star, has given place to "John Brown's Body." In walking the streets you can almost fancy that you can hear the sound of the hammers of the shoemakers of Lynn; and the other day, in the course of a prospecting tour, to see if there was anything left that I had seen before, I was electrified by coming suddenly upon a sign of "Fresh doughnuts for sale." Shades of the cavalier and Huguenot! Fresh doughnuts!

SPECIAL NOTICES
Dr. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, should be in the possession of everybody in the mining region. As a preventive of various dangerous diseases to which the gold seeker is liable, it has no superior. While it is quite palatable even as a beverage, it is speedy and powerful in its effect upon the system. In all cases of Diarrhoea, Dysentery, and the prevailing fevers consequent upon exposure, the Bitters will be found invaluable as a corrective. No man should enter upon the exposed camp life of a miner, without being provided with Hostetter's preventive of stomach disease, nor should any of those who are now engaged in the occupation, fail to have recourse to the Bitters.—Sold by all Druggists and dealers everywhere.

Dr. Guyott's Improved Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla, IS A SURE REMEDY FOR Hereditary Taint. Thousands of individuals are cursed with grievous complaints, which they inherit from their parents. The use of the Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla will prevent all this, and save a vast amount of misery, and many valuable lives, for it thoroughly expels from the system the latent taint, which is the seed of disease, and so takes off the curse by which the sin or misfortune of the parents are so often visited upon the innocent offspring.
Parents owe it to their children to guard them against the effects of maladies that may be communicated by descent, and children of parents that have at any time been affected with consumption, scrofula or syphilis, owe it to themselves to take precaution against the disease being revived in them. Guyott's Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla is a sure antidote in such cases.

BY OVERLAND TELEGRAPH.

The following dispatches are from the Sacramento Union:

New York, November 4th.—A Folley Island letter, dated October 29th, to the Herald, speaking of the reopening of the bombardment of Sumter. says: From all our sources of information we judge it was the intention of the enemy to erect within the battered walls of Sumter a sand battery similar to Wagner, but unlike that work secure from approach by ssp or parallel. The present purpose of Gen. Gilmore is believed to be to prevent the consummation of Beauregar's plans—if necessary, to level the foundations of Sumter to the water's edge. Moultrie and Johnson have so far fired their shots against battery Gregg, but the accuracy of their fire is entirely destroyed by the guns which we have trained upon them. On Tuesday, October 27th, five of our heavy rifled guns, between Gregg and Wagner, were directed at the spire of the St. Nicholas church in the city of Charleston, and at least three shells exploded in the city. Whether they were successful in accomplishing any injury is not yet known. The general belief is that our batteries will succeed in utterly destroying Sumter and driving from it what garrison is now holding it.

Deserters from the enemy acknowledge a fear among the rebel soldiery that we will yet get into the city. Those who closely watched the fort on Monday morning, 26th, say a steamer took from the fort to the city a large number of troops immediately after our batteries opened upon it.

Chicago, November 4th.—The returns of the Wisconsin election yesterday for State officers yesterday show a large Union gain, and indicate the election of Lewis—Union candidate for Governor—by twelve or fifteen thousand majority.

The Union ticket is elected with large majorities in Illinois, New York, Massachusetts, Missouri, and Kansas. In New Jersey the Assemblymen will probably stand four Democrats and five Republicans—a gain for the latter of two.

MINING MATTERS.—The District Court of Nevada Territory, on the application of the Gould & Curry Company, has restrained the El Dorado Company from working its ledge, it being claimed by the former company. The same Court directs the Ophir Company to show immediate cause, if any, why they should not be restrained from working ground claimed by the Burning Moscow Company.

A PURPOSE.—Mr. James Taylor, a farmer on the lower Sacramento road, has harvested forty thousand bushels of grain this year, and stored it up in a brick, fire proof granary. His purpose, says the Stockton Independent, is to load a ship with grain for Liverpool, and go as supercargo himself on a visit to his native land Scotland. He has a family of sons who do the labor of the farm, and with whom he will leave the charge of affairs during his absence.

BORAX.—A lake of this valuable article has been discovered in Lake county, and a company has been formed to clean it out. We understand that borax has also been found in several localities in that county, and in some places in an almost pure state. Eventually this will undoubtedly be a valuable business in that county.

CAT ALOGUE.—We observed, yesterday, in front of one of the forwarding houses, a coop, similar to those used for the transportation of chickens, but containing, in this instance, some ten cats of full size, en route for Washoe, (unless we were "sold,") for the direction on the outside was certainly "Howell, Black & Co., Virginia City. Put in some water every day." We judge this shipment to be the pioneer of the above stock. As we have searched the Price Current, of San Francisco, and find no quotations, we are unable to state whether they are sold by the pound, dozen or yard full.—Bee.

A CALIFORNIA BANK PROPOSED.—A correspondent says: "A bank of issue, under the National Banking system, as elaborated by Secretary Chase, and now going into operation in the Atlantic States, is already talked of in monetary circles in San Francisco, and is among the probabilities of the immediate future.

A fire broke out in the Empire Hotel, Auburn, on the 28th ult., which spread and destroyed a large portion of the wooden buildings of the town. Loss, $50,000. Insurance $5,000. Supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

DRUNKENNESS is fearfully on the increase in Carson City and Nevada Territory, says the Independent; and from that vice come all the crimes that the Territorial papers are forced to chronicle.

At a Democratic mass meeting in Lincoln, Illinois, October 10th, a serious difficulty arose between some Copperheads and Union men, in which several parties were killed.

Geo. Smith, of Bear Valley, has sued the city of Nevada, claiming $30,000 damages, claimed to have been sustained by the falling of the suspension bridge, a year ago last June.

DR. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

THE OPERATION OF THIS PALATABLE

remedy upon the stomach, liver and excretory organs is singularly soothing and conservative. It regulates, recruits and purifies them. Dyspepsia in all its forms yields to its control and invigorating properties.

Invigorate the System.

Vigorous digestion and pure bile produce nutritious blood, and nutritious blood a healthy frame. Does the victim of a dyspeptic stomach and a disordered liver desire to know how the digestion may be improved, the bile and other fluids of the body purified?

Dr. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters

Will accomplish this desirable revolution in the system, regulating the secretions and excretions, giving tone to the animal juices which dissolve the food, strengthen every relaxed nerve, muscle and fibre, and brings the whole machinery of vitality into vigorous and healthful play.

Strengthen the System.

The best means of imparting vigor to the broken-down frame and shattered constitution, which has yet been invented or discovered, is proffered to the feeble of both sexes and all ages in

Dr. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

Debility, from whatever cause arising, may be cured; strength, in whatever manner it may have been wanted, may be restored by the use of this powerful and healthful invigorant. For indigestion and all its painful effects, bodily and mental, they are a positive specific.

A Word to the Aged.

In the decline of life the loss of vital force consequent upon physical decay can only be safely supplied by some vivifying preparation which recruits the strength and spirits, without entailing the exhaustion which is always the final effect of ordinary stimulants. We tender to the aged

Dr. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters

As an invigorant and restorative, immediate in its beneficial action and permanent in its effects. It tones the stomach, improves the appetite, and acts like a charm upon the spirits.

For Females.

Thousands of ladies resort to it as a remedy for hysteria, fluttering of the heart, nervous headache, vertigo, general debility, and all peculiar disturbances & derangements to which, as a sex, they are subject. It cheers and enlightens the oppressed mental powers, as well as strengthens the body, and its use is never followed by any reaction.

Beware of Counterfeits. Purchase only of reliable dealers, sold everywhere.

Dr. Guysott's Improved

EXTRACT OF Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla

Will Cure without Fail

Scrofula or King's Evil, Cancers, Tumors, Eruptions of the skin, Erysipelas, Chronic Sore Eyes, Ringworm or Tetter, Scald Head, Rheumatism, Pains in the Bones and Joints, Old Sores and Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Diseases of the Kidneys, Loss of Appetite, Diseases arising from the use of Mercury, Pain in the Side and Shoulder, General Debility, Dropsy, Jaundice, Lumbago, &c.

Dr. Guysott's Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla put up in the largest sized bottles, contains more of the Honduras Sarsaparilla than any other preparation extant, which is combined with the extract of Yellow Dock, the extract of Wild Cherry and the Balsam of Fir, thus making the remedy more thoroughly efficient than any other Sarsaparilla before the public. At the same time it is perfectly free from ALL mineral poisons, which can not be said of any other of the Sarsaparilla compounds. The invalid should beware of poisons. Mercury, Iron, Quinine, Potash, Iodine, Sulphur, Arsenic, and many other mineral and metallic poisons enter into and form the active basis of most of the Sarsaparilla and panaceas of the day. Guysott's Compound Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla does not contain a particle of the substances; as any one can ascertain by applying the necessary tests.

These poisons may occasionally remove disease, but they so vitiate the blood and impregnate the whole system with their baneful effects, that the first cold or the first attack of disease, prostrates the patient's strength and subjects him or her to the most excruciating torture, and renders another cure almost impossible and hopeless. Let all poisonous Sarsaparilla preparations alone, and use Guysott's Improved Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla, which is thoroughly efficacious, perfectly harmless and purely vegetable. All kinds of diseases yield to its genial influence.

Caution.—Beware of counterfeits. All genuine Dr. Guysott's Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla has the name of JOHN D. PARK, Present Proprietor, Cincinnati, O., on the label.

Remember this fact when buying, all without the name of "JOHN D. PARK, Cincinnati, Ohio," on the label are counterfeits.

Sold by all Druggists.

Tarrant's Cordial Elixir of Turkey Rhubarb.—This beautiful preparation from the TRUE TURKEY RHUBARB has the approval and sanction of many of our best physicians as a valuable and favorite Family Medicine, and it is preferable to any other form in which Rhubarb is administered, either for adults or children, it being combined in a manner to make it at once palatable to the taste and efficient in operation.

THE Knight's Landing News.

VERY COOL.—An apparently unsophisticated youth went into one of our refectories a few days ago, and asked for something to appease his hunger. The keeper gave him a very good dinner, after which the youth said to his friend, "If you ever come up our way, call."

"That won't pay. Your dinner is a quarter."
"O, I haint got no money; but if you will come up to Allegany county, I'll give you a better dinner for nothing!"

"Why, you're very cool," said the keeper.
"Why, yes, I'm a very cool chap, so much so that mother makes me stand in the pantry in hot weather, to keep meat from spoiling."

THE BEST PLACE.—A Dutchman and his wife were traveling, and they sat down by the road exceedingly fatigued. The wife sighed—"I wish I was in Heaven!" The husband replied—"I wish I was at the tavern!" "Oh, you old rogue, you always want to go to the best place."

A garrulous barber, being required to shave a celebrated wit, asked him, "How shall I shave you, Sir?"—"In silence," was the reply.

CONDRUM.—Why is I the happiest of the vowels? Because I is in bliss; E is in hell, and all the others are in purgatory.

A RARE OCCURRENCE.—A young lady in Springfield, Mass., broke her neck recently in trying to escape being kissed.

PATENT COMBINED GANG PLOW,
SEED SOWER AND HARROW.
We have purchased the right this great labor-saving implement for the State of California, and are having a number made in the Atlantic States for this market.
With this combined Machine one man, with six horses, can do the work of three twelve inch plows, besides sowing the grain, and harrowing it in as he proceeds, thus finishing his work in the best manner possible, without being obliged to travel over the plowed ground. This Machine was very thoroughly tested by the farmers of Santa Clara county, where some eighty are now in use; also, by the Messrs. Hensel & Kethley, of this county, and Messrs. Hoppin Brothers, near Cacheville, Yolo county. It is made very substantial; is not liable to get out of order, and being on large truck wheels, the Gang Plow, Seed Sower and Harrow, runs lighter than three plows would, cutting the same amount of land.
We are desirous of having these plows generally introduced throughout the State, and are therefore prepared to offer very favorable inducements to farmers and the trade. The following are some of the names of our customers who have used them for the past two seasons:
Sacramento county—Hensel & Kethley.
Yolo county—Hoppin Brothers, L. M. Curtis, Caleb Davis, C. Travers, A. J. Scroggins.
