GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1917

TUESDAY WILL DECIDE FLOOD CONTROL PROJECT

There is only one thing to be remembered at this time when Here June and December go hand in considering the election for flood control next Tuesday, and that is that nothing counts but votes.

There is no further time for argument. The people of the country districts and in the cities and communities outside of Los Angeles city are strongly in favor of the flood control measure. But Take those among them that are opposed to it, in all probability cannot be changed.

The action, then, which confronts every man and woman who believes that this measure should pass, is to get all the favorable votes to the polls on Tuesday. In order to do this, as much energy and time must be expended as at a presidential election. And so far as Los Angeles county is concerned, who shall say that this election is not as important as the average political election?

This election for flood control is not a political question—it does not elevate one man above another, nor exploit one man to the lane in those days, which seem so of in landing a newcomer. Of course disadvantage of another. It is a project purely for the people, and far away to the young generation of ed in landing a newcomer. Of course affects every one in the county, whether a property-owner or not.

Those who are anxious to win this election must remember that votes are all equal at the polls, and that this is not a question now and for the Greater Glendale blessed will be the investor who is of inducing friends to vote, but a question of getting out all voters in every precinct. This election is to be carried by a majority, not by a two-thirds vote, and the large vote in the country districts which Mr. Parker wrote. By the will not exchange their Glendale will offset the light and somewhat hostile vote in the city of Los Angeles.

It will be a long time before this question can come up again. We must win now or be forced to suffer damage for an indefinite time. Make this your first order of business next week-that you get the vote out for flood control.

One important eleventh hour victory has been won in Los for many moons. Angeles during the week, which is explained in a telegram read on Monday to the flood control committee in the directors' room of fice at 138 South Broadway, Los merce would appoint an immigration the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.
