THE BIG MILL ON THE WEST COAST

Sutton Lumber Company Will Start Machinery in Six Weeks--Another Mill on Alberni Canal.

(Special Staff Correspondence.)

The general advance in commerce and industry that is so beneficially affecting British Columbia at the present time is being experienced to some extent at least on the West Coast of Vancouver Island, and indications are not wanting that during the next few years there will be felt that general improvement in the development of that section of the island that its immense natural wealth has always justified a confident expectation of. At present the movement is almost entirely in the direction of exploiting the great timber wealth, and the large saw mills are just on the eve of starting to saw and ship lumber, both of which promise to be most successful and profitable.

The principal mills at Mosquito harbor on Clayquot Sound is owned by the Sutton Lumber Company, of Seattle, and has been constructed under the direction of Mr. J. H. Pake, a veteran lumberman of Michigan and Minnesota, who is thoroughly familiar not only with the requirements of the lumber trade, but also with the latest and most economical methods of production. He has been intimately associated with the development of the lumber sawing business in the East for the past forty years, and has to his credit the intention of quite a number of labor saving devices that are now considered to be indispensable in any modern saw mill plant. Under his direction the saw mill at Mosquito Harbor is now assuming shape for practical work, and it is believed the plant will be in actual operation within six weeks or two months.

Just November the work was started, and already the mill building is completed, the powerful engine and boilers in place, the machinery almost in readiness to turn over, and a whole place a scene of busy activity, at which a hundred men are bending all their energies toward the completion of the enterprise, which will give permanent employment to about two hundred men, and establish quite a little town where only six months ago was nothing but a desolate wilderness.

During the same time that the mill has been under construction two gangs of loggers with five donkey engines have been at work getting out logs, so that no time will be lost in producing lumber as soon as the plant is ready to operate. Already there are many millions of feet of logs in the water, and about a hundred men are constantly at work adding to this quantity, and it is expected that by next fall there will be sufficient logs available to keep the mill going all next winter without the necessity of continuing logging operations during the winter months, which is well known to those familiar with the business is both disagreeable and unprofitable to employers and workmen alike.

Beginning this week the big pile driver will begin driving piles for what will be

One of the Largest Wharves in British Columbia. This wharf will be from eighty to one hundred feet wide, and several thousand feet in length, and having along its frontage a continuous stretch of deep water, which will be of great advantage to the trade. All this wharfage of course is not required for the accommodation of vessels, as it is not thought there will ever be more than one or two vessels loading at once, but owing to the very rough and rocky condition of the country along the water front it is found much more feasible to provide a number yard on the wharf than to clear and level land for that purpose. It is calculated that enough wharfage will have to be supplied for storing at least five million feet of lumber.

tends to make life brighter and more pleasant and profitable than it has been in the past on the shores of Clayquot Sound.

Another saw mill that will undoubtedly bring considerable benefits to the settlers of the beautiful Alberni valley is that of the Woods Brothers at New Alberni, which is expected this week to be in shape to begin actual operations. This mill, while not so pretentious as the big mill at Mosquito Harbor, is still thoroughly equipped with the latest modern plant, and under the direction of men who have spent many years in the lumber business in this province, and are fully acquainted with all the requirements of the trade. Their mill is designed to cut from thirty to forty thousand feet per day, and will produce fine and cedar for export.

For several months past two logging camps have been in operation along the shores of Alberni Canal, and this mill also will start with a large stock of logs on hand, and a rosy outlook for a most successful business. In addition to this, the ever increasing demand for good lumber is stimulating investigation of the unexploited timber, which extends for miles on every side adjacent to Alberni. Every week there are parties of timber cruisers going out in all directions, and the location and purchase of extensive tracts of timber has already been contemplated in more than one instance. This undoubtedly will be followed in the near future by the establishment of other and larger mills, which in turn will bring other industries into operation, and especially will it direct attention to the many splendid mineral prospects in the vicinity, and those who know Alberni and its resources best are the most confident that it only needs the introduction of capital in order to transform the present little village into a Thriving and Prosperous City, the centre of probably the richest and most beautiful section of country in all British Columbia. At present reality, first class land for agricultural purposes can be bought at a low price in Alberni valley, and already numerous enquiries have begun to make the settlers prick up their ears, and it would not be surprising if prices would stiffen up in response to the better actual conditions and the still brighter prospects ahead.

Another modern marvel which has recently somewhat startled the land in the Alberni valley is the introduction of the automobile. It is not many months ago since the first suggestion of driving a motor car over the mountain road from Nanaimo to Alberni was received with incredulous smiles, but now the trip has been made several times by different machines, and it is difficult to say, but one of the certainties is that in a few months there will be one and probably two automobiles travelling regularly between Alberni and Nanaimo, and one of the first and most important requirements of that district is for immediate improvement of the roadway between these two points, so that the full benefits of the new method of locomotion can be realized. For years they have been asking for a railroad, and here is all the advantages of a railroad ready to their hand.

Look up Alberni! Marvelous changes take place in a day in this twentieth century, and it is not one of the least probable that before another twelve months have passed you will see an infinite development of industrial activity that will both astound and delight you.

THE NEW LIFEBOAT.
Craft Will Be Brought Here From Vancouver by D. G. S. Quadra Next Week.
Captain Gaudin, British Columbia agent for the department of marine and fisheries, has returned from Vancouver in the Terminal City, he took over for the department the new lifeboat built for service in these waters. The craft will be brought to Victoria on the D. G. S. Quadra, which he expects next week.

while she was at the Terminal port, but who was released before the vessel sailed, has not yet been forwarded to Ottawa. Miss Stevens, the official stenographer engaged for the investigation, was taken suddenly ill after the hearing and was unable to transcribe her notes. As she will very ill, Captain Gaudin has advised the department of Ottawa that he has found no evidence of foul play.

BAMBATTA DEAD.
Rebel Chief Was Killed During Recent Fight in South Africa.
(Associated Press.)
Durban, Natal, June 15. It is now definitely known that the rebel chief, Bambatta, the cause of all the recent outbreaks, was killed in the fighting which occurred June 10th.

His death had been previously reported and denied, but his body has been fully identified.

The revolt is now expected to speedily die out.

LIVELY TIMES FOR HERBERT H. ASQUITH

RIOTOUS SCENES AT POLITICAL MEETING
Women Suffragists Ejected From Hall Tried to Assault Chancellor of the Exchequer.

(Associated Press.)
New York, June 16. A dispatch from London to the Sun, describing the woman suffrage affair at Northampton yesterday, says:

The woman suffrage agitators carried out their threat to attack their ministerial aversion, Herbert Asquith, chancellor of the exchequer, on his delivering a political speech at Northampton. The demonstration, however, ended in the discomfiture of the agitators after a furious tussle, but the police eventually had to protect Mr. Asquith from the violence of a street mob.

The chancellor had hardly begun his speech when three well known women suffragists, Misses Kenney and Billington and Mrs. Rawood, arose among the crowded seats allotted to women, screaming denunciations at the speaker as the ministerial opponent of their claims, and making the usual demand for votes.

The hall was instantly in an uproar. The bulk of the audience shouted "Turn them out." Stewards rushed to remove the women, but they shrieked above the din and with the help of a short whip from beneath her cloak and lashed wildly at the men's heads and shoulders. Three of them, however, seized her, and fighting like a tigress, she was bundled down the steps screaming. Her companions remained shouting. Another man hastened to assist her, and with the help of other women, who are not suffragists, they were hoisted upon the shoulders of the men and bundled out, struggling and shrieking.

As soon as they were gone a party of Socialists in the body of the hall started an uproar in behalf of the ejected women. It took long to deal with them and the uproar and struggle lasted half an hour.

MAD KING OTTO MAY BE DEPOSED

QUESTION OF SUCCESSOR UNDER CONSIDERATION
Germany and Austria Approve Proposal to Make Prince Luitpold Ruler of Bavaria.

(Associated Press.)
Vienna, June 16. In well informed quarters here it is considered probable that King Otto of Bavaria will soon be deposed.

When Prince Luitpold was in Vienna recently he took part in a discussion in court circles as to the absurdity of Bavaria being ruled in the name of an insane sovereign and of the Viennese court communicating this view to the Bavarian government.

Prince Luitpold, it is understood, was assured that both the German and the Austrian court circles approved the plan for some time actively discussed in Bavaria of making him king. A change in the Bavarian constitution, however, would be necessary before this could be done, and it is doubtful if the diet would assent to the project.

THE MASSACRE OF JEWS CONTINUES
RIOTING STILL IN PROGRESS AT BIALYSTOK
Peasants Murdered Proprietor of Estate Who Refused to Distribute His Land.

(Associated Press.)
St. Petersburg, June 16. 2.35 p.m.—M. Vinaver, a constitutional democratic member of the lower house, has received the following dispatch from Bialystok, dated 2.45 this morning:

The rioting proceeded throughout the day with unabated fury and is still continuing with no signs of cessation. "It is impossible to send particulars of the horrors."

Death Roll Increasing.
Warsaw, June 16. The latest messages received here from Bialystok say that the sacking of Jewish houses and shops accompanied by conflicts in the streets between the mob and the troops continued until last night.

VIGOROUS VICTORIA'S STEADY ADVANCEMENT

Geographic Position of Vancouver Island Will Make It the Britain of the Pacific Coast.

When Victoria was first called the "Outpost of Empire" the corner of the phrase, indeed, better than he knew. Not only is this city an island, it is the outpost of the British Empire on the Pacific coast. Geographical position as towards the continent of Europe made Great Britain what it is and London the metropolis of the world; Vancouver Island and Victoria occupy exactly similar locations. When the westward march of empire makes the corner of the world from on the Pacific, Victoria will be found to occupy an equally good strategic position as the big cities of the old land when the wave of population swept across the Atlantic and made the United States, British Columbia need fear no competitor in the rush for Oriental trade. From as far south as San Francisco all vessels making the great circle pass abreast of and to the north of Vancouver Island and travel will eventually take the shortest route. The tea and silk trade has been snatched from the transportation companies by the south and hurried eastward over the C. P. R., the harbor and the city for the Boston and New York markets are shipped from a British Columbia port. There are good times ahead, they have in fact already come, and Victoria is feeling more than her share of the general prosperity.

LOOKING TO SOOKE FOR MORE WATER

ANOTHER PROPOSAL IS BEING INVESTIGATED
Mayor Morley and Other Officials Spent Yesterday in Foret-Primeval—The Situation.

The water problem is still under serious consideration. Since carrying the Highland district scheme as far as possible—full-making provision for obtaining full information as to its practicability, the city council have taken up an alternative project. This has for its object the providing of Victoria with Sooke lake water.

Late last night a small but distinguished party of civic officials, covered with dust and evidently exceedingly weary, drove into town from the country. It comprised His Worship Mayor Morley, Water Commissioner Bayman and City Engineer Topp. They had spent the day in the vicinity of Sooke lake investigating the possibility of establishing connection with that body of water. Having left on Thursday night they had the whole of yesterday at their disposal for inspection purposes, and according to report, very little time was wasted.

Rising at 4 o'clock or thereabouts and eating a frugal breakfast they started on their peregrinations first making a cursory examination of the lake and then piercing the mountains on the city side in all directions. It is stated that the Mayor's knowledge of forestry helped the party out of making a tight place, that the water commissioner has reduced his weight several pounds at least, and that the city engineer has decided to forgo the pleasure of hunting grouse next season, having already had sufficient violent exercise for one year.

Their report upon the water question is favorable. Sooke lake, they say, would provide an inexhaustible volume for the domestic and other uses of the population of this community for all time to come. Besides its size it has wonderful depth, and in addition, the water is of splendid quality, being perfectly clear and exceptional cool. They estimated that by the construction of a dam 100 feet high the water could be increased 20 feet or more, if such a thing ever became necessary.

Of course the most important question was whether there was any comparative economical way of bringing the water through the hills to Victoria. It was known, and in fact is common knowledge, that Sooke lake and its tributaries comprises such an immense volume that it would be quite enough to provide a city many times the size of Victoria with water for many years.

DECORATION DAY

Knights of Pythias Will Parade Tomorrow Accompanied by the Fifth Regiment Band.

To-morrow afternoon the Knights of Pythias lodges of the city will observe decoration day. The committee in charge has made suitable arrangements for the event. The members of the society will assemble at Castle Hall at 1:30 so that the parade may be formed and leave promptly at 2 o'clock. The Bathing Sisters will also take in this ceremony and all members of the local lodge or visiting members are requested to be at the hall by 1:30.

The Fifth Regiment band has been engaged to attend and will head the procession. Flowers for decoration purposes may be left at the K. of P. hall not later than 11 a.m.

Looking to This City
for pointers as to how to induce tourists, manufacturers, residents, farmers and all classes of population for the upbuilding of a community.

"You people in Victoria are doing something all the time," said a prominent mainland real estate man this morning, "and since you started boosting have been able to give Vancouver money. We all thought the capital was a sleepy old place. Maybe it was for many years, but you are certainly alive now. The only thing you want is a steering committee. Meet every arrival of importance, steer him into your new permanent exhibit, hold out the glad hand and you'll get such an increase in wealth and population as will surprise everybody. I'm from Vancouver, and mean to stay with the old town, but British Columbia is big enough for both cities to grow."

Activity in contracting circles is extremely noticeable, and it is interesting to note in connection therewith that nearly all the work being done is local people. The exception of Thomas Catterall is a sample of this. Seen this morning he said: "I am extremely busy just now. There are no particularly big jobs on hand, but yet I have over thirty carpenters at work besides bricklayers, stoneasons and plasterers. Residences are being enlarged, and the most noticeable feature in the building trade for the past couple of weeks is that nearly all the work is being done for Victorians."

New Office Building
to the B. C. Electric Railway Company. It is a substantial brick and stone structure, two stories in height, 80 feet at the southwest corner of Langley and Fort streets. Now that it is nearing completion a good idea can be obtained of the interior arrangements. The fittings are of fir, treated with Mandy's stain, that is the best possible to bring out the grain, and of a richly polished. Entrance is given by a pair of folding doors at the corner angle to the general waiting room, which will be fitted up for accommodation of the public. To the right of this is the gas demonstration room with which is connected a taximeter test bench, room, that will be used to show the possibilities of fuel gas.

The general office is a spacious apartment, 28 by 38 feet, lighted by four series of plate glass windows and a skylight on the side roof farthest from Langley's street. Behind it are three separate rooms for the manager, stenographers and other officials, and a large vault room has been placed in position. All the partitions are loaded glass at the top, with Japanese patterned glass in the lower sections. To the rear of the vault is a lavatory for use by the office staff. The boiler room, with storage space, and the engine room, are at the rear of the building. Special attention has been paid to the hardware fittings. They were ordered from the Victoria Hardware Company, and are finishing in bronze. The brick, which the building is constructed was specially imported from Seattle, and is the same as that used in the Express Hotel.

Geographic Position of Vancouver Island Will Make It the Britain of the Pacific Coast.

When Victoria was first called the "Outpost of Empire" the corner of the phrase, indeed, better than he knew. Not only is this city an island, it is the outpost of the British Empire on the Pacific coast. Geographical position as towards the continent of Europe made Great Britain what it is and London the metropolis of the world; Vancouver Island and Victoria occupy exactly similar locations. When the westward march of empire makes the corner of the world from on the Pacific, Victoria will be found to occupy an equally good strategic position as the big cities of the old land when the wave of population swept across the Atlantic and made the United States, British Columbia need fear no competitor in the rush for Oriental trade. There are good times ahead, they have in fact already come, and Victoria is feeling more than her share of the general prosperity.

ing extensive improvements in their private residences. Among these is D. R. Ker, who is about to have the front portion of his house at Yates street and Esplanade road entirely renovated. Australian hard work will be employed, considerably, the ceilings being washed and the walls being white washed. A prominent mining man, whose name it is not advisable to disclose, is contemplating a large addition to his recently purchased house on Rockland avenue. W. E. Oliver has had a house built for his coachman near the residence at Oak Bay. Grant & Conroy are about to close several deals of importance to Winnipeg people. Lee & Fraser find the influx of outsiders has stimulated interest by local buyers, who realize the low figures at which Victoria real estate is at present held. Among other sales during the past week were the three lots on Green street, two lots in the Fernwood estate, house and lot in Victoria West, six acres of the Oakland estate, and several pieces of acreage property outside the city. They expect to close a couple of more deals on Monday.

Among the sales made by Emberton & Son since Monday last are the following: Acre lot on Fiddlers Bay road, near Belmont street, $1,750; lot on Dallas road, $1,000; and a lot on South Turner street, near Dallas road, $500.

Land & Investment Agency during the week among other transactions sold 1 1/2 acres of the Fairfield estate. There is now only one piece, 1-1/2 acres, on the market. This company also sold two lots in the Phoenix subdivision of the same estate, and three acres of the McNeill property at Shoal Bay. In addition the R. C. Lande sold the property at the Glendening estate near Cordova Bay.

R. A. Ogilvie has just purchased the residence built by W. Y. McCarter in the Colodonia park grounds. Dr. O. M. Jones is having plans prepared for a 30-foot brick addition to the building on Ford street, he recently purchased from Dr. Duncan. It will cover the ground occupied by the old office of the former.

Trap fishing started a week earlier than stated in this morning's Colonist.

The First Lift was made by Findlay, Durham & Bridge on Saturday last at Fiddlers Bay, as stated in the Times of Monday. Spring action were running freely yesterday, the Capital Canning Co. obtaining 300 fish from the Short port at Clover Point. On Monday the first lift will be made at Clover Point, and the first mentioned firm expects to get a thousand fish from these two traps then. Up the West Coast the traps and canneries are looking forward to a good season. H. C. Brewster has rectified the trouble that hindered work last season, on his traps near Kennedy lake, and the canneries are now ready to be busy shortly. At the Capital cannery, at the outer wharf, can making is being prosecuted with.

No less an authority than James J. Hill pointed out a day or two ago the iron possibilities of Vancouver Island, to which, excepted at Harlow, he has a large tract of land. He is a couple of weeks ago, interviewed in St. Paul he said, in reply to a question:

"Do you believe Western Canada will be a manufacturing country?"
"Some day, and on a large scale."
"There is an abundance of iron of very high quality about the north coast of Vancouver Island, Texas and other islands along the coast, and a great deal of coal of that same quality, and there is an abundance of iron on the east side of the main range of the Rocky Mountains, together with an abundance of good coke about the coast. I have a region on the west side of the main range."

"Where will the market be?"
"The Orient for a time will furnish a good market, but China has its own iron and steel."
"Coal and iron."
probably the largest undeveloped resources of its kind in the world, but British Columbia has the high seas, hasn't it?—and with the coal and iron close to the high seas, there wouldn't be any trouble in finding a market." The chief geologist at Harvard is authority for the statement that iron ore is getting very scarce in Great Britain, France and Germany, and thus Europe will be one of the great markets for Canadian iron and steel.

The above are a few of the factors working steadily to make Victoria great. Vancouver Island is the destined scene of a few years, to be the great Britain of the Pacific. An amount of construction is being ordered from the Yale-Towne Company, and are finishing in bronze. The brick, which the building is constructed was specially imported from Seattle, and is the same as that used in the Express Hotel.

The influx of homeseekers from Manitoba and the Northwest still continues.

Among the Transactions noted within the past few days is the sale by P. R. Brown Limited, of the Smith cottage and five lots on Foul Bay road to J. W. Fletcher, a new arrival from Moose Jaw. The same firm yesterday completed the transfer of a handsome bungalow and two lots at the corner of Springfield avenue and Esquimalt street, to J. B. Hughes, formerly of Stonehart, Man.

ANNUAL MEETING OF CONSERVATIVE PARTY
Officers are Re-elected—Address Given by Premier McBride Before the Local Gathering.

The annual meeting of the Liberal-Institute hall last evening. Officers were re-elected as follows: President, A. E. McPhillips, K. C. Vice-presidents, H. F. Bishop, A. J. A. Douglas and R. Bolden, treasurer, J. L. Tait, secretary, Thomas Cashmore. The executive committee was selected as follows: R. E. Gosnell, H. B. Thomson, W. H. Price, W. Mable, J. Brown, J. E. Phillips, J. H. Penketh, C. H. Barnard, P. J. Riddell, H. J. Cookson, H. Maynard, H. D. Helmcken, K. C. W. Ryan, Mr. Eccles and E. A. Lewis.

Mr. McPhillips in his opening address reviewed the past year, laying great stress on the winning of Alberta and seeking consolation in the local vote accorded J. L. Helmcken in the bye-election. In order to make the speech conform to the established tradition, he attacked the Federal Government on the question of better terms for British Columbia.

H. Dalys Helmcken lauded the ability shown by Premier McBride, and moved a vote of confidence in the government. J. L. Helmcken seconded it, and it was carried. Premier McBride responding, said pleasant things of the local association, and proceeded to tell of his visit to the interior. He said that the ministers had tried to familiarize themselves with the local conditions by visiting the different sections. This often proved very trying, the Premier doubtless referring by this to the trip first concluded when he visited the interior in company with Hon. R. P. Green, and learned what the country thought of the Kaelen Island expositions and the Columbia & Western and the Midway & Vernon policies of the government.

The Premier said he found the country prosperous. He found the mining industry making progress, and there was considerable activity in taking up land. He held out the hope that when the elections came, Victoria would return four Conservatives instead of four Liberals to the legislature. He pointed out that the government was in its fourth year, and that an election would soon have to be held. Mr. Moore, from Alberta was present, and also addressed the meeting. He gave some attention to the politics of his own province, stating that the Conservatives of Alberta had not lost hope through their defeat. He had been pleased with what he had seen in British Columbia, and praised the work done by Premier McBride for the Conservative party.

NEW SANITARIUM.
Institution Which Opened at Port Townsend on Thursday Has a Great Future.

On Thursday last the Northwestern Sanitarium was opened at Port Townsend, marking another step for successfully combating disease on the Pacific coast. The institution is under the superintendence of W. B. Simons, M. D., formerly of the Mount Taber sanitarium at Portland. He has under him an efficient staff of skilled men and one lady physician. The new sanitarium is in a beautiful location. It is situated on a bluff overlooking the Sound, and commands an excellent view of the Cascades and Olympics. The building is equipped with all modern improvements, and the system to be adopted will be that of the famous Mount Taber sanitarium.

The new institution will be capable of receiving 25 patients, and starts off into service with a future that appears full of usefulness, and that will meet a want long felt on Puget Sound.

BILLIARDS IN LIONS' CAGE.
A sensational performance has taken place at the Stoke Hippodrome, where two local billiard players arranged to play a match of twenty-five up in the cage of a lion's cage.

THE HOUSE, WHICH WERE UNDER THE CONTROL of a lady trained—sat round the cage on pedestals. Shortly after the game had begun one of the animals gave a loud roar, which so frightened one of the players that he dropped his cue.

As the game proceeded the lions grew excited at the presence of the strangers, and dashed round the cage in an alarming manner. The match lasted some ten minutes, and the players were loudly cheered as they left the cage.

MANY PEOPLE HAVE CATARRH OF KIDNEYS AND DON'T KNOW IT.
Backache, a Warning Symptom of Kidney Trouble.
Pe-ru-na Is Invaluable in Such Cases.
Prominent Persons Who Have Been Cured.
Mr. J. Blyler, 1505 Ohio street, Des Moines, Ia., writes:
"I wish to state my appreciation of your excellent remedy.
I have always enjoyed excellent health, except frequent and painful attacks of bladder trouble, which doctors failed to relieve or cure.
Upon recommendation I used Peruna to my utter satisfaction, not having had an attack now for four or five years." J. Blyler.
Mr. Leonard Brandl, 216 Bleeker street, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:
"I was sick three months with catarrh of the kidneys and lungs. I was treated by my home physician and relieved to some extent, but after I had worked again for two weeks, my old suffering—backache and pains in the right lung—returned. The dreadful cough which bothered me day and night lasted six months and no one could help me. I tried three different patent medicines, without avail. I could scarcely eat anything and slept only a few hours each night.
I tried to take Peruna. I did so and the second day my appetite had improved. I took a teaspoonful of Peruna every hour, day and night, for three weeks. Now I have taken five bottles. I can eat enough for two people and am able to sleep well.
Whenever I meet a sick person, I advise him to take Peruna. I thank you a thousand times for your medicine, as it was the only remedy that saved me. We continue to keep it in our family." Leonard Brandl.
We have on file many testimonials like the ones given here.
We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast array of unsolicited endorsements we are receiving every month.
No other physician in the world has received such a volume of enthusiastic letters of thanks as Dr. Hartman for Peruna.

EXPLODING "SCANDALS"

Conservative journals have revelled in alleged scandals in connection with the administration of some of the departments of the government at Ottawa and have given all the publicity they could to charges of extravagance, "grafting" and maladministration. But they have been very careful not to publish much of the evidence brought out before committees of the House of Commons in support of their allegations. Practically all their charges have melted into the air under the light of publicity. The attacks of the opposition have been directed principally against the North Atlantic Trading Company and the provisioning of the steamer Arctic for a three years' exploration trip through the frozen waters of the North. Mr. Foster and his friends have been so unfortunate in their business affiliations as public men that such a thing as honest administration of public affairs is beyond their comprehension. They naturally believe, and exemplify their belief in their conduct, that if any transaction is traced back to its inception something corrupt will be revealed involving the natural tendency of public men to turn their opportunities to personal profit. They insinuated that some of the ministers were interested financially in the work of the North Atlantic Trading concern. They found one officer of the Department of the Interior whose mind was filled with discreditable sentiments respecting a brother official. He was willing to talk and was brought to Ottawa to un-bosom himself. They thought they could prove through the man Jury that some of the members of the government at least were shareholders in the North Atlantic Trading Company. The refusal of the ministers to disclose the names of the shareholders in this concern confirmed the opposition members in their suspicions. In order to set their minds at rest the Premier offered, in confidence, to lay before the leader of the Conservative party a list of the shareholders of the company, explaining that owing to an agreement with such shareholders for their protection in their own countries it was impossible to make the matter public. The offer of Sir Wilfrid Laurier was rejected, of course, because its acceptance would have shattered completely the case the opposition had set up. All that has been proved in connection with the North Atlantic Trading Company's operations is that some of the officers of the government were engaged in a private feud, and that the one who played his information at the service of the opponents of the government was in the habit of travelling third class on the railways of Great Britain and charging the department with a first-class fare. When checked in this dishonest habit, Mr. Jury announced his determination to "get even" and made no secret of his sentiments in this respect. Nor have we seen a great deal of the evidence published with respect to the provisioning of the Arctic for her three years' cruise. This task was carried out under the supervision of employees who have long been in the service of the department. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries was not on the dock attending to every detail. It may be presumed that Major J. D. Moodie, of the Northwest Mounted Police, was commander of the expedition. He was at Quebec a couple of times during the loading of the vessel, and examined samples of everything on board. Major Moodie said he had been 22 years on the Mounted Police for Canada, and had been on the frontier and in the far north a great part of that time, and, therefore, knew something of the necessities for travelling up there.

There, one journey was to Yorkton from Edmonton, which took fifteen months to go and return. He said liquors were not necessary and should not be used on land journeys except for medicinal purposes, but on long sea voyages, like the Arctic's nine months' locked in the ice, some liquor and tobacco were necessary to relieve the monotony of the long, dreary days and nights. "There is poor ventilation and bad light at the best," he said, "and to keep the men contented and in health you must amuse them and give them change of food." He said they always observed holidays. Under other circumstances they were liable to get surly, and that usually means death. He said that the liquors and tobacco were only for medicinal purposes, and he swore the issue was confined to holidays and special occasions. Free cigarettes were confined to the crew alone, as the Mounted Police had to pay for theirs. Everything issued from the stores was carefully requisitioned for under his own order, and nearly all the whiskey, all the gin and over 3,000 of the cigars that were taken were brought back. "If the government sent a body of men into a country like the Arctic regions without being properly supplied what would you say?" asked Mr. Macpherson. "I should consider it was a criminal action," Major Moodie replied. "Generally speaking, from your experience, would you consider the Arctic was too well provided for?" "Not at all."

Seattle Post-Intelligencer: Within one month from the date of his capture, Bill Miner, bandit, sentenced by a provincial judge, was in the provincial penitentiary at New Westminster, B. C., serving a life sentence. It once took the King County Court machinery nine years to send a murderer to execution, and the Massachusetts authorities have been more than two years getting the murderer of Mabel Page to the electric chair. While the Miner case may not be the rule in Canadian courts, the delays characteristic of those of America are rarely met in practice there. The fundamental difference is that British judges do not play politics. The contrast is an eloquent argument for a non-political American judiciary.

AN IMPENDING CRISIS

A. E. McPhillips, K. C., is imbued with a faith in the McBride "Liberal-Conservative" government that ought to remove mountains of political infamy. Speaking last evening at the meeting of the political association of which he is president Mr. McPhillips said "the laxity in morality of public life of Canada as administered by the Liberal government at Ottawa showed how the fair name of the country had been besmirched by this party, which was willing to so degrade Canada." This may be characterized as a typical McPhillips' sentence both as to construction and as to the political sentiments expounded. There was but one feature lacking to give it force. The setting of the platform from which it was delivered was not all that could be desired or all that it might have been. There was a notable absence of figures prominent in recent transactions in which the government has been involved which would have added significance to the words of the loyal president of the "Liberal-Conservative" Association. The Chief Commissioner's presence did not grace the assemblage of which he has on former occasions been a prominent feature. If around the Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works all the prominent figures in the Kaiser Island deal; the adventurers (male and female), had been artistically grouped, with in the background an appropriate banner emblazoned with a legend respecting the high morality of the Sehl's Point transaction, then there would have been a general verdict to the effect that the "ensemble" bore a significant relationship to the expressed sentiments of the virtuous president of the association.

THE OLD LEAVEN

It will be remembered that one of the first important acts of the present Dominion government on attaining to office was to abolish the complicated, expensive and partisan system of registration and preparation of voters' lists set up by the previous administration. The corps of revising barbers was discharged and the electoral lists prepared by the provincial authorities were accepted by the Dominion as fulfilling all the requirements of the situation. On the whole the reform has been satisfactory. There has been but one exception to this general rule, and that is in the case of Manitoba. The administration there is Conservative, schooled in the methods of the Toryism of the past. Previous to the last Dominion general election it was claimed that the Manitoba voters' lists had been padded and revised by the Dominion government. The revision of his friends in the Dominion electoral field. The system in vogue there is still in force, according to reliable authorities and according to the following testimony from a Winnipeg authority: "On Friday last the Free Press published some facts as to the manner in which one Gilbert Dennett, the revising clerk appointed by the Roblin government to revise names of electors in the provincial constituency of Kildonan and St. Andrew's, conspired and carried out his important duties. Dennett deliberately denied the right to the franchise of over forty properly qualified electors. Many of these had walked over twenty miles in order to register. There can be no dispute as to their qualifications. Mr. W. H. Hastings, ex-civil servant and present political organizer for the Roblin government did not attempt to deny this at the Court of Revision—but quantification was the last thing considered by the zealous Dennett. He told some of the applicants that if they were "on the right side," he might manage to get them on, but as they refused to receive as a favor what they should receive as a right, or to avow which of the political parties it was their intention to support, they had to walk the weary miles back to their homes, debarred and deprived of the inestimable right to the franchise concerning which Premier Roblin becomes periodically eloquent. True, twenty-six out of the more than two score had their names added to the list of electors at the Court of Revision, but that was no fault either of Registration Clerk Dennett, or of any political supporters of the Roblin government."

An influential deputation, claiming to be absolutely "class unconscious," waited on the Times this morning and wanted to know whether the tramway company after digging up the streets is under any obligation to restore the disturbed parts to the condition in which they were previous to disturbance. Is it a fact that the company is responsible? Is not the work referred to being done under contract? And whether the operations are under the direct supervision of the company or not, have not civic officials power to enforce the strictest compliance with municipal ordinances? "We have had some experience with the man who wants to "stop his papers" and stop it when a suddenness that gave us a jar. Emperor William of Germany has not only stopped his paper because it gave his majesty offence; he has stopped the papers of all other subscribers, he has prohibited the wheels of the press from going round, and closed up the entire works. We believe there are one or two men in British Columbia who devoutly wish they wielded such autocratic powers as this sovereign of mediæval mind.

It may transpire that the band of hold-up men in Manitoba acquired their early training running a seaside hotel, Montreal Star.

"They ran a "seaside hotel" in Manitoba no doubt. But where do you know is: Where do some of them get their early training in geography?"

"HONEST JOHN" ON THE WARPATH

Now Westminster News: JOHN OLIVER, M. P. P., paid a visit to John yesterday and was interviewed by a representative of the Daily News with respect to the story printed in the Columbian in which a land purchase made to his profit rather than to his credit. Mr. Oliver said he thought it better not to discuss the matter through the newspapers, as he proposed, immediately to take steps to give the gentleman who was advertising him as a "grafter" a chance to make their accusation good in the courts. Political hard knocks he could give and take in good part, but when political animosity led men to attack his private character, that was another matter. He had not heard of the Columbian's attack upon him until Wednesday night, and yesterday morning he came to town to see his legal advisers.

BRITAIN RETAINS CUP

United States Players Defeated in Lawn Tennis Contest for Davis Trophy. London, June 16.—The United States was today beaten in the doubles for the international contest for the Davis cup, and thus lost all chances of recovering the trophy in 1906. The British holders, having lost the two singles yesterday, have now taken the cup out of their grasp. The Americans themselves realized that in the enforced absence of Boals C. Wright they had hardly a ghost of a chance. Gladly, the Northern champion, played an exhibition game with Kreigh Collins, the American reserve man. The Englishman won 6-2, 6-1. In the challenge cup contest, the brothers Doherty beat Holcombe Ward and Raymond D. Little, Americans, by 3 sets to 1. The scores were 3-6, 11-9, 10-8. The British thus retain the cup. The games were sharp and interesting.

The funeral of John P. Austin took place yesterday afternoon. The pallbearers were: D. R. Ker, E. White, Col. Wolfenden, T. S. Gore, J. E. Wilson and E. M. Ford. There was a large attendance at the funeral and many floral offerings were received.

The steamship Umatilla sailed for San Francisco last evening carrying a "scratch" crew of non-union men. Before leaving Seattle between 150 and 200 of the strikers gathered on the dock and pickets were placed so as to surround the ship. The crew were subjected to desisting positions on the vessel. Although no violence was offered to any one, many threats were made, and to guard against any violence a number of police officers were on hand. The Pacific Coast Steamship Company are making a big effort to keep their ships in operation, and expect to dispatch the City of Puebla north to Victoria from San Francisco to-day. The City of Topeka was sent to Alaska to-day. She called at the outer wharf and spent most of the morning in loading freight.

James Hughes, a Scotchman, 44, was an employee of the Phoenix Bridge Company, while at work on a new bridge at Quebec, was knocked off by a passing engine and hurled to the rocks below and dashed to death. He leaves a wife and family.

The annual convention of the British Columbia Teachers' Institute, which will be held in Victoria on the 25th, 26th and 27th of the present month, promises to be attended by a large number of delegates. Conservative estimates place the total at about five hundred, although it is impossible to arrive at any definite figure. Some idea of the attendance may be gleaned from the fact that Vancouver alone will have a representation of about a hundred. As the organization covers the whole of the province it can easily be seen that the number mentioned is not an exaggeration.

Some weeks ago the Times published a complete programme of the proceedings of the institute, but there have been some additions. Since then Superintendent Eaton has been endeavoring to arrange for a public meeting to be held on the evening of Wednesday, the 27th, in the Victoria theatre. His plan is to have a number of take place between some of the prominent educationists who will be in Victoria at that time on some question of general interest. Mr. Eaton believes that such a thing would not only be interesting, but would be valuable as a means of general instruction. He expects to be able to make a definite announcement in the course of a few days.

The teachers' convention, as already stated, will open on June 25th and continue until 28th inst. On the latter day there will be a picnic at the gorge which will be a thoroughly pleasant time.

A VALUABLE CITIZEN. Washington Scientist Now One of Most Enthusiastic Victorians.

In February of last year a gentleman residing in Washington, D. C., read in the coast paper that a rancher in the Alberni district, Vancouver Island, was planting potatoes. The gentleman in question laid down his paper, looked through his window at the driving snow storm, and asked himself if a country where potatoes were planted in February would not be a good place to live in. The result of his cogitations afterwards when he stepped from his boat in Victoria, he had great difficulty in convincing the Eastern ticket agent that he wanted to go to Victoria, the particular agent insisting that Vancouver was his objective, but he finally secured the necessary passage.

Arriving here he purchased the Pacific Muckentle home on Head street, and to-day he is one of the most enthusiastic Victorians to be met anywhere. It is doubtful if any one individual in the city sends out so many newspapers and other literature to Eastern people with a view to enlightening them on Victoria's charms. Since the endorsement of the Tourist Association and the extension of its plan of action he has been one of the most active and energetic members of the civic affairs committee, and has already proved his value as a citizen.

Mr. McCurdy, the gentleman in question, has a national standing in the branches he has made his own, his work being thus outlined in the Toronto Globe's "Men of the Day" column in the issue just to hand: "Arthur Williams McCurdy, scientist and inventor, was born at Preston, N. S., April 15th, 1856. He is a son of Hon. David McCurdy, member of the legislative council. He graduated from the Whitby, Ont., Collegiate Institute, and became a student and member of the University of Toronto. Professor Alexander Graham Bell at Belton Brough, N. S., and at Washington. He is the inventor of a method of printing statistical maps by the use of the interchangeable 'map type.' From researches in photography he evolved a scientific system for automatic development of plates and films, and demonstrated that salt or sea water may be used in the process. His researches of six years resulted in the introduction by the Eastman Kodak Company, September, 1902, of the 'kodak' developing machine and its accessories. Mr. McCurdy was awarded the John Scott premium and medal by the Franklin Institute, 1903. His residence is now at Victoria, B. C."

RUSTIC RUMINATIONS

ON POLITICAL REPUTATIONS.

I'd like to-day to take a wider range.
To deal for once with somewhat broader things.
Suggest for all our body politic a change.
I who till now have dealt but with the things of the tissues.
For instance, we have ruled that in our city
To boast is praiseworthy, to knock's a pity.
Well, that's a rule which if the best men warrant,
Has much to recommend it. Let's go further.
And if the ideal knocker is abhorrent,
If no one wants his native place to murmur,
Let's try our rule in daily practice, when we come to dealing with our fellow men.

I'm tired of politicians and of papers
That talk of nothing but the public grabber.
Whose only sauce is cayenne and the capers.
Of politicians, which must move the laughter.
Of envious neighbors. Can't we really find An honest man? Are we unfair or blind?

It seems to me that slinging so much mud
Won't lift the Liberals the least bit higher.
If — were a teacherous old blood,
It wouldn't help the Tories from the mire.
'Twas only make our ancient shame some heavier.
If we could fix the crime of theft on Laurier.

What makes a soldier fight when hope is gone?
What renders vain temptation's constant stings?
What gave the Gordons half the fights they won?
The faith men felt in them: their own prestige.
But we choose men to go and represent us,
Assuming they'll steal cash for brains they've lent us.

Is it not true that Canada forgets
The fact implied in all representation.
That he who represents a people, sets
In his own self the type of all that nation.
If he who is our best acknowledged mean,
If he is filthy, how can we be clean?

Let's stop this grovelling in the common sewer.
Let's wage our party war with other tactics.
Let's find some weapons nobler and newer.
Let's leave the basement and inspect the attic.
Find someone honest, someone with a brain,
Who works for public good, not private gain.

I'm easy fooled, and I'm opposed to Paterism.
And yet you know I don't believe need steel.
Then Dick McBride B. C. may have a better one.
And yet I fancy for the public weal.
He and McDonald have a common care,
And Talbot's honest, though he makes us swear.

By his economy in all but taxes. True
To this mud slinging and exploit the treasures
Of this our island home, by making use
Of men who'll spend their time evolving measures
Unhindered by this need which has arisen
Of proving they ought not to be in prison.
Thus we may make the world at large believe
It's possible to make an honest livelihood.

Algebraic symbols were first used by Vieta 159, logarithms by Naper 1614, and decimal fractions 1617. A precise measure of length was first suggested by Huygens, the Dutch astronomer, 1653, upon the basis of the length of a pendulum vibrating seconds of mean time.

The best as bad as you assume they be.
SAA-NICH HAYSEED.

Sir,—While not wishing to be personal,
are not ruminations usually associated with the female brand of domestic bovines? If so, it is not hard to judge either the sex or the appearance of your doggerel-mongers. SAA-NICH HAYSEED.

It is too bad the poor creature should waste his (or her) life doing chaff, use this spelling advisedly as the production of such couplets as those inflected on you must prevent the possibility of S. H. doing chores. And so he wants a Chink. Well, there are lots in Victoria for him, but maybe they could as soon go to the warm place as Saanich, and as soon work for you Hayseed as the very devil himself. He will find many who will give him a Mongolian for a worn out wife and very likely something to boot. If his wife is worn out, boots have probably played an important part in it. Let me, too, drop into poetry and advise Saanich Hayseed to take the following
as a parable:

There was an old man and he had an old cow,
But he had no food for his wife;
So he pulled down his fiddle and played
her a tune.
Saying, "Consider, good cow, consider,
The fiddle and bass, in a ruminant mood,
Said, I am not thirsty for knowledge,
Just give me an armful of oaten straw
And get ye away to your porridge." JOCK

To the Editor:—In the attempt at verse last Saturday, "Saanich Hay-seed" draws some rather peculiar and laborious deductions on the work and scrub and mine and till the heathen Chinese is to be prohibited from entering the country. May I add another query, and ask who tills the lands which are to-day giving a certain portion of Canada the reputation of the "granary of the world" or where and by whom are the great mines of this continent being developed?
These are subjects that need hardly be debated. British Columbia has had good illustrations of the evil effect of Chinese labor in connection with the lumbering, fishing and other industries of the province, and the results are apparent even in Saanich or the Chinese can wash, scrub, mine and till, but the fruits of his labor are never shared; they are sent out of the country. "This being true there can be no other benefit derived from Orientalism in this province. It is, of course, cheap to the one seeking only the amassing of wealth with no view to the future
or the uplifting of his fellow subjects.

ONE WHO THINKS ALL LABOR
HONORABLE.

To Saanich Farmer:—
I am glad at last to see the question of Chinese labor solved, and that by my brother farmer from Saanich. In spite of all the prating of labor men
we can't get along without the Chink in our province. One year's exclusion has proved this. CHINK FOLK have realized this as well as the farmer, who has been deprived of the only labor which he can afford to pay for.

The union man got the Mongolian excluded. Let the law act in protection of him and him alone. But allow the farmer who has no need for skilled labor a chance to have his land cleared and tilled. The farmer would even extend good for evil, to these very union men and give them the opportunity which we know they seek to obtain. CHINK IN THE KITCHEN and the landry.

Continue your agitation for the Chink. ANOTHER HAYSEED.

WHEN LONG BREATHS HURT
You can know that trouble exists which needs quick attention.
Proper action consists in a vigorous rubbing of the chest and side with Ner-ville, which sinks into the tissues
where the pain is seated and gives relief in a few minutes.
No liniment so clean, so strong, so powerful. Results guaranteed with every 25c. bottle of Poison's Nerville.

KARL RIEDELSBERGER,
Violinist and Organizer of String Quartette Which Will Appear at Concert on Tuesday.

Karl Riedelsberger, the violinist and organizer of the Riedelsberger string quartette, which is to be a feature of the attractive season-closing musical event at the Victoria theatre on Tuesday evening next, wears a Masonic charm almost as large as himself. Incidental thereto he tells a curious story
out of his own life.

"I am indeed proud of being a Mason," he said, "more so probably than any other Mason in the West, for I owe to the craft everything that I am. I was born in East Prussia, one of a family of thirteen children. My father was more abundantly blessed with olive branches than with the riches of the world, and so sent me to the free public school for a rudimentary education. I remained there for two years, until in my eighth year I was singled out as more or less talented, and at the expense of the city connected sent to a high school. That is the way they do with promising boys who are poor, somewhat unlike the method of the great republic of equality."

"Shortly after my entrance into the high school my sister bought me a very cheap half-size fiddle for Christmas. It cost the equivalent of fifty cents and was probably as cheap a present as she could get me. All the musical knowledge in the family was confined to my father's knowing how to fiddle and my mother's possession of an untrained but very beautiful voice, the inheritance of Slavonic ancestors, and a voice that never seemed to tire. With the assistance of my parents I picked a few airs, folk-songs, etc., until I could play them correctly on my violin. One day at school the singing master, who also played the violin, left the room for a few minutes, and I seized the opportunity to try his instrument and to test the case with it. I was enjoying myself thoroughly when the master re-entered, and with all the German severity he could manage, ordered me to put down the instrument, at the same time asking me where I had learned those old folk-songs. I told him from my mother, and as the statement was, "The incident was closed."

"The next day I was called into the faculty room and ordered to play those same old folk-songs tunes for the faculty. Why? That was none of my business—the very first in a German school.
Next day again the principal took me to the side of the staircase, and he opened and closing the entertainment,
at the latter end of which the accompaniment to Grieg's "Land-Sighting"
and Wagner's "Pilgrims Chorus" will be played by the quartette. The prices
for this notable event are on the dollar
scale of the theatre, and the box plan
opens to the public on Monday morning at the theatre."

defence of the Key City trophy, will take place on the following day, for that and for prizes purchased by the association. Following this programme a banquet will be held and presentation of trophies will follow. More than likely this part of the programme will take place at the rooms of the Bellingham Club in South Bellingham. The election of officers will precede the banquet and the love feast to be held by the yachtmen.

"Secretary Abbott has received word that Vancouver will send twenty-two boats, Seattle nine boats, Victoria nine boats, Nanaimo four boats, Amarcote
one boat, Port Townsend one boat, East Sound one boat, Bellingham will send sixteen boats in the regatta, the Ariadne, the Two-Step, the A-Sharp, the Onida, the Rhododendron, the Arbutus, the Rainier, the Seagull, the Opal, the Skiddoo, the Marble and the Garland. The boats of the 'A' and 'B' classes will both contest for the Key City trophy, now held by the Ariadne of this city.

"Expenses of holding the regatta will be less than at first estimated, and it is now likely that $1,200 will cover the amount necessary to make a successful meet."

SWIMMING.
INTERESTING ADDRESS.
A meeting was held last evening at the Y. M. C. A. rooms when Ian St.
Clark delivered an address on swimming, life-saving and water polo. His first look up the former, remarking that the only way to become a swimmer was to learn one stroke and stay with it. The trouble with nearly all was that they jumped from one method to another, thus tiring themselves in a short time. The stroke used for long distance swimming was the web-breast stroke and, in his opinion, was the best to take up at the onset.
That utilized for speed was a fast overhand one, which propelled the swimmer through the water very rapidly.

The speaker then went on to life-

day lessons with this teacher began. I was started on a course of harmony and the piano, and a piano put into our house without my knowing anything as to whom the good fairly was. All my musical tuition experience was paid by the principal, and this secret procedure continued for two years. Once my father mustered up enough courage to see the principal as to the source of the so great kindness, and was brusquely told it was none of his business. That ended father's inquiries. He had been too long a borrower.

"Within two years I accomplished enough to play quite a difficult work by David, and I noticed that my teacher took particular pains with that composition. I prepared it for public performance by memory, and on a certain evening was ordered to appear at my teacher's house to accompany him to the place of my first public appearance. Mind you my parents were not even asked to go along.
My teacher took me to a large beautiful hall—the hall of the Free Masonic Lodge of Immanuel, where I performed for a magnificently dressed assembly of men and women. They seemed to have over my playing, but the only impression I have retained of that memorable evening to this day, is the fact that the ladies looked so handsome and the ice-cream was so good.
And this very lodge was paying for my education, and its worshipful master was the principal of my school, and paid for it until I graduated from college; then sent me to Berlin for three years at their expense, all without even asking for a 'thank you,' all with the noblest spirit that God ever put into man. Do you wonder that I am proud of being a Mason?"

"Here Riedelsberger will be heard in violin solos as well as with his quartette Tuesday evening. There will also be solos by Erwin Gastel, cellist, and Miss Olivia Dahl, the splendid Norwegian singer, will contribute two notable groups of songs. The Arion Club, the third feature of the combination musical attraction, are in the programme for two double numbers,
opening and closing the entertainment,
at the latter end of which the accompaniment to Grieg's "Land-Sighting"
and Wagner's "Pilgrims Chorus" will
be played by the quartette. The prices
for this notable event are on the dollar
scale of the theatre, and the box plan
opens to the public on Monday morning at the theatre."

CRICKET.
MATCH IN PROGRESS.
At the Jubilee hospital yards this afternoon a match is in progress between the 'A' eleven from the Victoria Club and a team representing the Collegiate school. The contest started at 2 o'clock.

LEFT FOR SEATTLE.
Last evening a Victoria team left for Seattle to try conclusions with that city's eleven on their own grounds. The game commenced at 10 o'clock this morning, and will be continued
throughout the day.

THE RING.
AN EVEN BOUT.
A Philadelphia dispatch dated yesterday says: "Harry Lewis, of this city, and J. Gans fought a fast six round bout at the National Athletic Club to-night, in which neither man had the advantage. There was lots of action in the early rounds, both men exhibiting far more cleverness in getting away from blows than in delivering them. Lewis did his best work with his left. When Gans seemed disposed to get in close quarters, Lewis could retaliate. Although Gans put up a fast fight, he was a little bit slower

He gave an interesting demonstration, having one of those present on the platform and act the part of an apparently drowned person. The first thing to do when a person is found in the water is to estimate conditions as to lay their hands higher than their feet. Next was to take a coat, roll it in a bundle and lay it under the head.
He followed this up by giving a clear and complete explanation of the best method of resuscitation.

Referring to water polo, Mr. St. Clair said it was introduced originally by a huntsman on the game of polo. Some enterprising individuals took barrels, fixed a hobby horse head at one end and a tail at the other. Then mounting the improvised steeds and propelling them with a broom they proceeded to amuse themselves by knocking a ball about the surface of the water.
The idea developed and gradually it was changed and became accepted seriously as one of the best aquatic pastimes extant. It was, Mr. St. Clair said, the finest possible recreation for developing swimmers.

Concluding, he spoke of organizing a polo team. He said that the possibility of bringing off a number of British Columbia championship matches had been under consideration for some time. As there was no team here, however, the proposal had never been carried out. He was still endeavoring to form a local club and asked those present interested in the matter to cooperate.

There was a large response and the probability is that a team will be organized in the near future.
After a vote of thanks had been tendered Mr. St. Clair the meeting dispersed.

THE NEW GRAND OPENS MONDAY

WELL CONSTRUCTED AND BEAUTIFULLY DECORATED

Programme For Initial Week Shows an Extremely High Degree of Merit.

The vanishing point, that old bug-bear of perspective, received the full consideration from Architect J. J. Donnellan when he designed the auditorium of the new Grand theatre.

Victoria has cause for congratulation in the new Grand. It will be a family theatre of the highest class, and operating under the Sullivan and Conside circuit will assure a class of attractions impossible to houses run under isolated management.

Robert Jamieson, the manager, is known all over the province as one of the ablest, theatrical men on the coast, and his name is sufficient guarantee that nothing of a mediocre nature will be permitted in the performances.

As manager of the Victoria theatre for seven years, eight of which he also operated the Victoria opera house, he showed a capability in catering to the amusement loving public that elevated these theatres from losing into paying propositions.

The bill for the opening week is, a particularly strong one, and augurs well for the future.

Opening the programme Eugene Ellsworth and Madge Burt will appear in their funny farcette "Domestic Pets," followed by Billy Link and his Ho-Bo-Cab regiment, assisted by Millette Chartres.

There will also appear the well known European duo of acrobats, Coyage and Sining, giving specialties, including head to head balancing, Falarde, the instrument man, will give a symposium of what one man can do with music.

The old favorite, Frederic Roberts, will render the new illustrated song, "Longing For You," and the programme will conclude with the latest set of laughable moving pictures, entitled "Moving Day."

After the grand opening on Monday evening there will be a daily matinee and night performances for the rest of the week.

Musical will be furnished by a four-piece orchestra, under Prof. M. Nagle, and its quality will be understood when it is stated that Signor Claudio has been engaged as violinist.

The new Grand can compare favorably with any theatre of its size on the Pacific Coast. Its seating accommodation is perfect, opera chairs being provided for the audience of 800, which is the capacity of the house.

Both the main floor and balcony have a good stage, the line of sight from eye to stage being impossible of obstruction. There are twelve boxes, in two tiers of three each on either side of the proscenium. The view from all of these is perfect, as they are extremely spacious, the front of each being curved in a half circle to afford additional space.

Delicate tints of blue and rose form the scheme of decoration, relieved by a dado of gold bronze round the main floor and balcony. The front of the latter and the outside of the boxes are also tinted in gold, and when the lights are turned on, will present an extremely brilliant appearance.

Crimson velvet plush has been used for the railings of the balcony, orchestra and boxes, and the partitions between the latter are covered with the same material. Paul Beyrau has directed the interior decorations, including the several paintings which represent music, the drama and fine arts.

These are painted in natural colors, and are connected by a chaste fresco designed in cupids and roses. The ceiling is colored light blue, and its junction with the walls is decorated with highly ornamental cornice. Old rose has been chosen for the walls, and forms a pretty contrast with the other colors used in the decorations.

Lighting, which always forms an important feature of a theatre, has been lavishly provided, more than a thousand bulbs in all being employed for this purpose.

Triple rows of red, white and blue lights, about the heads and footlights. These are continuous round the proscenium arch and the ceiling cornice. The sounding board at the top contains six fixtures of six lights each, and the face and walls of the balcony are also plentifully supplied. In case, at any time, the electrical current should be cut off gas fixtures have been placed in all parts of the house, on the stage and in the various offices.

Nothing has been omitted that would render the furnishings of the new Grand more complete. A silk tulle curtain has been laid on all abate and stairways and Brussels carpet on the floors of the boxes. Appropriate draperies and decorations have been provided for the latter, and altogether the furnishings are of the highest class.

Better than ordinary accommodations have been provided for the performers in the dressing rooms under the stage. They are all neatly carpeted, fitted with porcelain basins and nickelled faucets, provision being made for both hot and cold water at all hours. A ladies' parlor has been arranged to the right of the main entrance, which is furnished with every convenience for the sex. The manager's office is on the first floor, over the box office, and consists of two rooms, to which access is given by a short flight of stairs, branching from those leading to the balcony. The building throughout is heated with hot water with independent sets of pipes.

Mention has previously been made of the admirable arrangements against danger from fire. The city's requirements have been more than met. An additional safeguard is provided by the use of an asbestos drop curtain, and a large perforated pipe extending across the inside of the proscenium aisle. A turn of the hand to the valve provided would, in case of necessity, cause a veil of water to fall between the stage and the audience. The automatic skylight over the stage can also be opened in case of fire, and the direct access to the outside air would cause a fire preventing the blaze reaching over the footlights.

Exteriorly the new theatre presents a unique appearance. White and gold has been employed in the decoration. The commodious lobby has a mosaic floor in which the name of the house has been incorporated, and an ample number of doorways, both front and rear, permit easy entrance or exit. The new Grand theatre will

An Enemy of The King By Hagenbuch Wyman

So the letter by which the governor was so irritated came from the Duke of Guise, and concerned myself. My work in Paris had not been in vain. Instinctively I grasped the bill of my sword, and at the same time I smiled to myself to think how La Chatre might have felt had he known that while himself and his secretary were the only persons in the inn kitchen, the Duke de la Tournoire saw and heard them from the crack of the slightly open door at the top of the stairway. To make myself safe from discovery, I now took my eye from the crack, keeping my ear sufficiently near to catch the words of my enemies.

Blaise, who had heard enough to acquaint him with the situation, and whose open-eyed face had taken on an expression of alertness and amazement, clutched the handle of his sword. Neither of us moved or spoke, we both listened. But the governor's next words were drowned by the noise that came from outside, as the landlord opened the front door to re-enter the inn. La Chatre's men, now supplied with wine had taken upon them with whose words and tone we were well acquainted.

"Hang every heretic high!"

"Where the crows and pigeons pass! Let the brood of Calvin die!"

"Long live the mass!"

"A plague on the Huguenots!"

"Let the cry be battle cry!"

"Huguenots, Huguenots, Huguenots!"

"Long live the King!"

The wagers uttered the word "Huguenots" and the exclamation "ah" with an expression of loathing and scorn which could have been equated only by the look of defiance and hate that suddenly alighted on the face of Blaise. He gave a deep gulp, as if forcing back for safety, some answering cry that rose from his breast, he sought exit. Then he ground his teeth, and through closed lips emitted from his mouth a low growl, precisely like that of a pugacious dog held in restraint.

The landlord closed the door, and the song of La Chatre's men sank into a sadly melodious murmur. The host then went out by a rear door, and the governor resumed the conversation.

"Corbueil! He is a real! This Tournoire, who makes his excursions by night and who cannot be tracked to his burrow."

"We know, at least, put in the secretary in his mid-way, that his burrow is somewhere in the wooded mountains at the southern border of the province."

"Then he knows those mountains better than the garrisons do," said La Chatre. "The troops from the southern border of the province."

"When such a task as the capture of this rebel is intrusted to many, it is not undertaken with zeal. The chance of success, the burden of responsibility, the blame of failure, are alike felt to be divided."

This observation on the part of the youthful secretary seemed to be regarded by the governor as presumptuous. It elicited from him a frown of reproach. His look became cold and haughty. "Whereupon," Montignac gently added:

"As you, monsieur, remarked the other day."

La Chatre's expression immediately softened.

"The governor's brains are in the head of the secretary," thought I, "and their place in his own head is taken by vanity."

"I remember," returned La Chatre. "And I added, did I not, that—ahem, that—"

"That the finding of this Huguenot nuisance ought to be made the particular duty of one chosen person, who should have all to gain by success, or better still, all to lose by failure."

And the grave secretary looked at his master with an expression of secret contempt and amazement, although the innocent governor doubtless saw only the respect and solicitude which the young man counterfeited.

"You are right," said the governor, with unimpeachable satisfaction. "I ought to reward you for reminding me. But your reward shall come, Montignac. The coming war will give me the opportunity to serve both the King and the Duke of Guise most effectually, and by whatever favor I gain my faithful secretary shall benefit."

"My benefit will be due your generosity, not to my poor merit," monsieur, replied Montignac, with an irony too delicate for the perception of the noble governor.

"Oh, you have merit, Montignac," said La Chatre, with forty condescension. "Then he glanced at the letter, and his face, clouded with a frown, while, he added, in obedience to childish necessity of communicating his troubles, 'my favor depends, even for its continuance in the present degree, on the speedy capture of this Tournoire. Theascal appears to have acquired the special animosity of the Duke by some previous act. Moreover, he is an enemy of the King, also a deserter from the French Guards, so that he deserves death on various accounts, old and new.'"

Herein I saw exemplified the inability of the great to forget or forgive any who may have eluded their power.

"Let me, therefore," continued the governor, "consider as to what person shall be chosen for the task of bagging this wily game."

And he was silent, seeming to be considering in his mind, but really, I felt, he was strong motive for accomplishing the service with success. For, indeed, the work is easy. The chosen spy must be a man of quick taking pleasure in showing the rapidity and ingenuity of his wits, his shrewdness, but to go to the southern border, pretending to be a Huguenot trying to escape the penalties of the new edicts. In one way or another, by moving among the lower classes, this supposed fugitive will find out real Huguenots, or whom there are undoubtedly some still left at Clochonne and other towns near the mountains. Several circumstances have shown that this Tournoire has made himself, or his agents, accessible to Huguenots, for these escapes of heretics across the border became at the same time when his rescue of Huguenot prisoners began. Without doubt, any pretended Protestant, apparently seeking guidance to Guemene, would, in associating with the Huguenots along the Creuse, come across one who could direct him to this Tournoire."

"But what then?" said the governor, his eagerness making him forget his presence of being a spy, his secretary.

"To find him is not the matter, but to make him prisoner for the Duke—desires him to be taken alive. He probably has a large following of rascals as daring and clever as himself."

"Knowing his hiding place, you would send a larger body of troops against him."

"But," interposed the governor, "I really glad to have found a weak spot in the plan suggested by his secretary. In order to equipt him with his hiding place, if he has a permanent hiding place, my spy would have to leave him. This would excite his suspicions and he would change his hiding place. Or, indeed, he may be entirely migratory, and have no fixed place of camping. Or, having one, he might change it for any reason, before my troops could reach it. Doubtless, his followers patrol the hills and could give him ample warning in case of attack."

"Your spy," said Montignac, who had availed himself of the governor's head, to empty a mug of wine, "would have to find means of doing two things—the first to make an appointment with La Tournoire, which would take him from his men; the second, to inform you of that appointment in time for you to lead or send a company of soldiers to surprise La Tournoire at an appointed place."

"Par dieu, Montignac," cried the governor, with a laugh of derision. "Drink less wine, I pray you! Your scheme becomes preposterous. Of what kind of man do you take him to be, this Sieur de la Tournoire, who offers a reward, in my own province, for my head, and that of the Duke of Guise?"

"The scheme, monsieur," said Montignac, quietly, not disclosing to the governor the slightest resentment at the latter's ridicule, "is quite practicable. This is the manner in which it can be best conducted. Your chosen spy must be provided with two messages, with which he may have communication as circumstances may allow. When the spy shall have met La Tournoire, and learned his hiding place, if he have a permanent one, one messenger shall bring the information to you at Bourges, that you may go to Clochonne to be near at hand for the final step. Having sent this messenger, the spy shall fall ill, so as to have apparent reason for not going on to Guemene. On learning of your arrival at Clochonne—an event of which La Tournoire is sure to be informed—your spy shall make the appointment of which I spoke, and shall send the second messenger to you at Clochonne with word of that appointment, so that your troops can be at hand."

"The project is full of absurdities," Montignac, said the governor shaking his head.

"Enumerate them, monsieur," said Montignac without change of tone or countenance.

"First the lesser one. Why impede the spy with the necessity of communicating with more than one messenger?"

"Because the spy may succeed in learning the enemy's hiding place, if there be one, and yet fall in the rear of the design. It is his hiding place is at least something worth gaining, though the project accomplish nothing more. Moreover, the arrival of the first messenger will inform you that the spy is on the ground and has won La Tournoire's confidence, and that it is time for you to go to Clochonne. The appointment must not be made until you are near at hand, for great exactness must be observed as to time and place, so that you can surely surprise him while he is away from his men."

"Montignac I begin to despair of you," said the governor, with a look of commiseration. "How do you suppose that La Tournoire could be induced to make such an appointment? What pretext could be invented for requesting such a meeting? In what business could he be interested that would induce him to interview at a distance from his followers?"

"I thought the governor's questions quite natural, and was waiting in much curiosity for the answer of Montignac, of whose perspicacity I was now beginning to lose my high opinion, when the inn maid entered the kitchen, and the secretary repressed the reply already on his lips. She took from the spit a fowl that had been roasting and brought it to our chamber. To avoid exciting her suspicions, I had to leave my place of observation and reseat myself on the bed."

Having placed the fowl, hot and juicy, on the table between us, the maid went away, again leaving the door partly open. Blaise promptly attacked the fowl, but I returned to my post of outlook.

"Lack of zeal!" I heard the governor say. "Par dieu! where have I let a known Huguenot rest in peace in my province since the edicts have been proclaimed? And I have even made Catholics suffer for showing a disposition to shield heretics. There was that Huguenot of this very town—"

"M. de Varion," put in Montignac.

"Ay, M. de Varion—a good Catholic. Yet I caused his arrest because he hid an old friend, that Polignart, who had turned heretic. Mon dieu! what can I do more? I punish not only heretics, but also those who shield heretics. Yet the Duke of Guise hints that I lack zeal."

"As to M. de Varion," said Montignac, "what is your intention regarding him?"

"To make an example of him, that heretic who 'Cholle' will give shelter to a Huguenot on the score of old friendship. Let him remain a prisoner in the chateau of Fleaurie until the Judges, whom I will instruct, shall find him guilty of treason. Then his body shall hang at the chateau gate for the encouragement of the crowd."

"For what?" said Montignac, listlessly, "he has no family to give trouble afterward."

"No son," replied the governor. "Did not M. de Brissard say that there was a daughter?"

"Yes, an unmarried daughter who was visiting some bourgeois relation in Bourges at the time of her father's arrest."

"When she learns of her father's incarceration she will probably pester me with supplications for his release. See to it, Montignac, that this M. de Varion be not suffered to approach him."

"My eavesdropping was again interrupted by the return of the inn maid. On going out of the chamber this time, she closed the door. Hunger and prudence, together, overcoming my curiosity, I did not open it, but joined Blaise in disposing of the dinner. The table at which we ate was near the window of the chamber, and we could look out on the grassy space of land before the inn. La Chatre's men were moving about, looking to their horses and harness, talking in little groups and watching for their master's appearance at the inn-door."

Presently four new figures came into view, all mounted. From our window we could see them plainly as they approached the inn. One of these newcomers was a young lady who wore a musk. At her side rode a maid, slim, youthful and fresh looking. Behind these were two serving boys, one tall, large and strong, the other small and agile.

"By the blue-heaven!" Blaise blurted out, "a dainty piece of womanhood!"

"Silence, Blaise!" I said, reprovingly. "How dare you speak with such liberty of a lady?"

"I thought I was supposed to be masquerading as a gentleman," he growled. "But it was not of the lady that I spoke. It was the maid."

TRAIN ROBBERS SEEK NEW TRIAL

APPLICATION MADE FOR IT THIS MORNING

Mr. Justice Irving Finds No Ground For Allowing the Request of Counsel.

In Chambers this morning an application was made on behalf of the three prisoners convicted of robbing the C. P. R. train near Kamloops, looking to a new trial. A. D. MacIntyre of Kamloops, appeared on behalf of the three prisoners—Edwards (Bill Miner), Dunn and Colquhoun—and brought the matter before Mr. Justice Irving, who tried the men.

A new trial was refused by Mr. Justice Irving on the two points which Mr. MacIntyre raised. The latter took as his first ground that comments had been made by the prosecuting attorney in his address to the jury to the effect that there was evidence to be put in relative to a belt being claimed by one of the prisoners, and if necessary a witness would be called to prove this. Information had come to him, Mr. MacIntyre said, that this was made in the course of the trial.

This evidence he claimed was obtained after the arrest of the men, and the comments were unfair as no evidence was put in relative to it.

He cited cases to show what where comment had been made on a prisoner not giving evidence on his own behalf or of his wife not going to the box, although the jury was warned not to pay attention to the remarks, it was held that the mischief had been done.

The second point raised was that at the second trial the three men were not arraigned, and not given an opportunity to plead. Mr. MacIntyre contended that every trial should be held. The arraignment was an important part in the trial, and the court was not in this case cognizant of how any or all of the prisoners would plead. The second trial was a separate court of over and over again.

The C. P. R. will spend between $50,000 and $60,000 this summer improving the road-bed of the E. & N. railway. So much work is in contemplation that the company has decided to have an engineer permanently located in Victoria. A. W. R. Wilby, who left for the Mainland last night after looking over the ground, will return in a few days and act in that capacity.

The sum mentioned, which has been included in the company's appropriations just received by local officials, will be spent filling in bridges between two miles this side of the summit and Shavnigwan lake.

"There is no truth in the report that the round house and machine shops will be moved from Wellington to Victoria this year," said a prominent railway official this morning. "While such a step will probably be taken in the future, it is evidently not to be taken at present. In the absence of terminal facilities such a change would be impossible. These facilities will certainly be provided at the earliest possible moment as the traffic certainly warrants it. The necessary track space will not only have to be laid out, but rails, turntables and other works for handling cars in place before the removal of the round house can be made. In view of this I do not think it possible there is any truth in the rumor. I may say, also, that the company's engineers who have been investigating conditions in Victoria during the past week and left last night to report, know nothing whatever about the matter."

Mr. H. H. G. general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific Elevator Company organization, stated that the intention of his company was to build a terminal elevator at Fort William and Tiesin, on Georgian Bay, each having a capacity of 2,500,000 bushels, and costing upwards of three-quarters of a million.

MOBS CONTINUE TO FLUNDER AND KILL

Authorities of City Are Unable to Prevent Slaughter of Jews—Revolutionists Killed.

(Associated Press.)
 Berlin, June 15.—5:20 p. m.—A dispatch to the Telegraph from Bialystok, dated Saturday, 4 p. m., says: "Plundering and murdering continues. The garrison here and of the several neighboring places is in possession of the city, which is on fire. Further fires are continually breaking out. The situation is frightful. A few Jews through high payments, have been allowed to escape."

Authorities powerless.
 St. Petersburg, June 15.—5:30 p. m.—The dispatch from Bialystok to the newspapers here today contains no fresh information. No doubt the censor controls the telegraph. Dispatches sent by the Associated Press remain unanswered.

The House Gazette prints a special report from a German declaring that the governor of that city has expressed himself to the effect that there is no hope of stopping the butchery of Jews at Bialystok for two or three days. He is quoted as adding that mobs are invading the trains passing through Bialystok and are dragging out and killing passengers. The Jews who escaped from Bialystok are wandering starving in the fields or woods.

Jews Barricade Houses.
 Odessa, June 15.—The Jews at Kishineff are in a state of panic in view of a report that a Jewish massacre is threatened. They have barricaded all their houses and stores and the town is patrolled by cavalry, while pickets of infantry are stationed at strategic points. Messages from Yelissabrad and Kremenets report that anti-Jewish excesses are also apprehended there.

Revolutionists Killed.
 Simferopol, Province of Taurida Russia, June 15.—Seven revolutionists, including two women, who were agitating for a political strike here, were killed by a mob yesterday.

On War Footing.
 Odessa, June 15.—Instructions have been issued to the effect that all the infantry regiments and army reserve men in the southern and southwestern provinces are to be temporarily on a war footing in the event of the peasants rising against the nobles. The Cossacks are to be mobilized into flying brigades. It is stated that similar instructions have been issued to the provincial commanders-in-chief in central and northern Russia.

INSURANCE LOSSES.
 Two More Companies Announce They Will Pay Dollar for Dollar.

(Associated Press.)
 San Francisco, June 15.—The insurance companies that rejected the suggestion of a 75 cent compromise put forward by their associates in the "Firewriters' Bureau" have received two additional offers to their members. The Insurance Company of North America and the Niagara of New York have announced that they will pay dollar for dollar on their losses.

CREW OF ARGUS SAFE.
 (Associated Press.)
 Seattle, June 15.—The crew of the schooner Argus, which was burned at sea, it is learned, are safe.

THE TRAMPING PARSON.
 The vicar of Piles, Eng., Rev. A. N. Cooper, whose long walks in foreign lands have earned him the title of the "Tramping Parson," has begun another long tour, of about 600 miles in Sweden. Last year he walked around Denmark. His other long tramps include from Pley to London in 1886; from Hamburg to Paris for the exhibition in 1889; across Belgium in 1897; and around Holland in 1892. Then after an interval of a few years, he walked to Venice in 1900, to Monte Carlo in 1903 and over the Pyrenees into Spain in 1904.

W. K. Brewster, of Seattle, F. A. Sims, of Vancouver, E. Collins and Thos. McNish are at the King's Hotel.

B. Lingerberger, of Astoria, who is deeply interested in the mild curing of salmon, was in the city yesterday. He was a guest at the Driford.

Miss Mabel Cameron has returned from Vancouver, where she has been attending the Normal school for the last year. G. W. Clinton, of Cumberland, who has charge of the Dunsmuir coal mines at that point, is at the Driford.

E. H. Fisher, post office inspector, returned last night from an official trip to the Mainland.

Lieut. Col. Craig, his wife and son, of Ganges Harbor, are guests at the National.
