INTRODUCTION

- WHAT? A redlink is an internal link which signifies that the linked-to page does not exist. A redlist is a list of redlinks.

- WHO? Everyone; anyone. Some communities, such as WikiProject Women in Red (WiR), have developed an extensive body of redlists (>300).

- WHEN? Use for all events.

INTRODUCTION cont.

- WHERE? WiR redlists are maintained in the project Navbox template.

- WHY? We place an equal value in redlist development as we do in article creation.

TYPES

- CROWD-SOURCED: Missing articles within a specific scope; preferably at least one reference.

- DICTIONARY-SOURCED: Dictionaries, anthologies, other books.

- WIKIDATA-GENERATED: Created using SPARQL; updated by Listeriabot.

- BY IDENTIFIER (ODNB): Base Léonore, Bibliothèque nationale de France, CiNii, Czech National Authority Database, Freebase, Integrated Authority File, International Standard Name Identifier, Library of Congress Control Number, National Library of Australia, ORCID, Système universitaire de documentation, Union List of Artist Names, Virtual International Authority File, Web NDL Authorities

CONSIDERATIONS

- Serves as a basis for creating new articles.

- All new articles must satisfy Wikipedia's notability criteria.

- Check for systemic bias.

- Some of the "redlinks" listed have articles in other language Wikipedias, but many have not yet been covered in any Wikipedia; translation assistance is welcome.

- Feel free to remove any links that turn blue.

CONSIDERATIONS cont.

- If crowd-sourced:
  - Provide references whenever possible
  - Incomplete, under development, so you can help by adding to it.
  - If you know of a missing article(s) which belongs on the list, add to the existing sections or start a new section if none of the existing sections is a good fit (it doesn't matter if the new redlink is the only one in a section).

WHAT'S NEW?

- Librarian in Residence for your community to coordinate your program
