

Paris, May 10, 1850.

The past week has been a joyous one at Paris.

It has been a week of light and joyousness, of a week of relaxation after the suspense and anxiety of the electoral campaign, and to some into the streets and places, after having left at home for the day the children, the women, the old and the young.

The good humor and politeness of the French enabled them to move through immense crowds without bad humor or fighting.

It was the anniversary of the proclamation of the Republic, and the people of the Republic had demanded forty thousand dollars for its celebration.

The chief decorations for the fete were on the Place Concorde. In the middle, the tall obelisk of Luxor was surrounded with sphinxes, which were brightly illuminated.

The scene at night was one of fairy beauty. The observer who stood at the gate of the fountain, looking in lines around him, saw the highest fountains which surrounded it.

Such was the splendor of the 4th of May, that the President of the Republic, and the legal institutions of the country.

The debate on the bill for changing the mode of electing the President of the Republic was held on the 10th of May.

Such an elapsed before much press or objection was raised against the bill.

That may be as brief as possible. I will only say that Longley & Brother, of Cincinnati, have agreed upon by the English convention and P. M.

That may be as brief as possible. I will only say that Longley & Brother, of Cincinnati, have agreed upon by the English convention and P. M.

For the National Era.

The resolutions which have been introduced into the Senate by Mr. Clay, in order to effect a compromise between the North and the South, are a noble effort to settle the question of slavery.

I see that I must close. But I hope I have said enough to excite the attention somewhat more strongly in this direction.

ONE OF THE LENDERS.

THE MORNING.

At the request of Dr. J. M. Bernhart, we publish the following correspondence.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

For the National Era.

The resolutions which have been introduced into the Senate by Mr. Clay, in order to effect a compromise between the North and the South, are a noble effort to settle the question of slavery.

I see that I must close. But I hope I have said enough to excite the attention somewhat more strongly in this direction.

ONE OF THE LENDERS.

THE MORNING.

At the request of Dr. J. M. Bernhart, we publish the following correspondence.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

For the National Era.

The resolutions which have been introduced into the Senate by Mr. Clay, in order to effect a compromise between the North and the South, are a noble effort to settle the question of slavery.

I see that I must close. But I hope I have said enough to excite the attention somewhat more strongly in this direction.

ONE OF THE LENDERS.

THE MORNING.

At the request of Dr. J. M. Bernhart, we publish the following correspondence.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

For the National Era.

The resolutions which have been introduced into the Senate by Mr. Clay, in order to effect a compromise between the North and the South, are a noble effort to settle the question of slavery.

I see that I must close. But I hope I have said enough to excite the attention somewhat more strongly in this direction.

ONE OF THE LENDERS.

THE MORNING.

At the request of Dr. J. M. Bernhart, we publish the following correspondence.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

For the National Era.

The resolutions which have been introduced into the Senate by Mr. Clay, in order to effect a compromise between the North and the South, are a noble effort to settle the question of slavery.

I see that I must close. But I hope I have said enough to excite the attention somewhat more strongly in this direction.

ONE OF THE LENDERS.

THE MORNING.

At the request of Dr. J. M. Bernhart, we publish the following correspondence.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

For the National Era.

The resolutions which have been introduced into the Senate by Mr. Clay, in order to effect a compromise between the North and the South, are a noble effort to settle the question of slavery.

I see that I must close. But I hope I have said enough to excite the attention somewhat more strongly in this direction.

ONE OF THE LENDERS.

THE MORNING.

At the request of Dr. J. M. Bernhart, we publish the following correspondence.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.

It is proper I should acquaint you to the enclosed letter from Mr. Isaac Sheen, one of the signers of a petition which is presented to the Governor of the State of New York.