b. Number Employed (column 2). This will be the daily average strength for the month reported upon. Care must be exercised to insure that only work days are counted when dividing to determine the daily average. For example, in an activity where the work month for Japanese personnel is 26 days, the total number of man days worked for the month should be divided by 26 rather than the actual number of days in the month, to determine daily average employed.

c. Regular Manhours (column 3). Regular manhours as shown in this column cannot exceed the total number of straight time manhours authorized for the number of employees shown in column 2. For example, in a normal month consisting of 26 work days the regular manhours for four (4) employees could not exceed 832, based on 208 hours for each employee.

d. Tax Withheld (column 8). The amount to be entered in this column will be the total shown on the Japanese payroll for Tax, Health Insurance, and Welfare Annuity.

e. All figures entered in column 3 and in columns 4 through 9 on the report must check across and down to insure against error when the individual reports are consolidated in this headquarters.

f. All Japanese personnel employed will be shown on the report except personnel employed through direct arrangement and paid in yen. No differentiation will be made between Category I and Category II personnel on the report.

g. All units, staff sections, or other activities receiving a manning table for Japanese personnel from this headquarters are required to submit an Operative and Productive Labor Report so as to reach this headquarters not later than the 25th day of the following month.

3. A separate report will be rendered on domestic servants by all units, staff sections or other activities authorized, and using, domestic servants. In the case of reports on domestic servants an exception to paragraph 2a, above, will be made. On domestic servant reports under Classification of Employee (column 1) the actual duty performed will be shown, such as gardners, firemen, housekeepers, house managers, maids, houseboys, cooks, chauffeurs, nursemaids, laundresses and any other category of domestic servant utilized.

4. A revised form for the submission of this report, dated 2 June 1949, is attached. This form will be used effective with the report for the month of May, and will be submitted in single copy only.
