TELEGRAPH ADDRESS, "BULLITT."

FOR THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.
HENRY CLAY,
OF KENTUCKY.
Subject to the decision of a National Convention.
NEW-ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.
THURSDAY MORNING, NOV. 11, 1845.

"We have given up the greater portion of our time, to day, in the news brought by the General. Several documents and other matter have been recently disclosed."

MARYLAND.

The election of the Legislature of the State took place on Monday last in the Bay state. The candidates for Governor are Edward Keyte, the present sole executive, and Marcus Morton, the great defeated, who refers to the horrors he has seen for, we believe, the health of the nation. The returns show that Van Buren was in command at the polls in the first of record elections—over 500,000 of his party. Morton is not far from a majority as he is in his present situation.

The leaders on the present occasion have been more than usually active in their efforts to revolutionize the state. With the habitual part of the population in politics with a number of extraneous questions in view of striking the venerable minority. The leaders of the Whigs, in view of the victory of Van Buren, have furnished themselves with stout arguments of discrediting the popular resources of the party. They have been trying to produce an income evidence for the last two years, but have hitherto had no success.

New-York Review.—We have received the New-Yorker of the 5th, through the post office, with considerable regret. The General's Address says, "we have received but few reports; but, as far as we can learn, the whole" (from nothing definite can be ascertained) "is very unfavorable." The report of England is still absurdly pressed, and the rest of the European difficulties, the subject of English, has probably led him to refer to all this in a French article.

The present account of the money market which comes from the American is not very creditable to the strength of the party. It is clear that whatever the Van Buren men have done, they have not been able to succeed, trust to a similar result.

We shall receive return in about a week."

MISSISSIPPI ELECTIONS.

We have received papers of the 5th, through the post office, with considerable regret. The General's Address says, "we have received but few reports; but, as far as we can learn, the whole" (from nothing definite can be ascertained) "is very unfavorable." The report of England is still absurdly pressed, and the rest of the European difficulties, the subject of English, has probably led him to refer to all this in a French article.

The Morning Chronicle (of Boston), "The Whigs have now been beaten in every state excepting Massachusetts. The whole succeeded in the Bay state, and the same may be expected to win the race, and were overruled by a large majority. This year the same game has been played, to be succeeded, trust to a similar result."

The court of appeals at the trial of the 11th, the 12th, and 13th inst., concluded.

Brown, (1.) 547.
Dodge, (1.) 545.
Thompson, (1.) 545.

The house has carried the senator and one representative to a small majority.

The legislature, in its third, (1.) 545, and fourth, (1.) 545, for as we are enabled to find an opinion from the court of appeals, has been rejected.

Should the whole succeed, it will be a glorious, though an unexpected triumph. We have reason to hope that the state will prove true to the cause.
