Personals

Miss Beatrice Miller of North Dakota, was the guest of Mrs. J. E. Rockhold on Wednesday.

T. S. Lawrence is building a garage for a temporary residence at 1122 Campbell Street at a cost of $500.

Louis Nunn of 317 Hawthorne Street has been obliged to lay off from business for a few days and is confined to his home by a heavy cold.

H. J. Eggers has taken out permits for two six-room houses to cost $6000 each, one to be built at 335 North Isabel and the other at 331 North Isabel.

Geo. Prickett is starting two four-room houses, one at 401 West Harvard, with a garage, at a cost of $2300, and the other at 471 West Harvard, to cost $2200.

Judge F. H. Lowe is building a garage, to contain three rooms, which he and his wife will occupy as a temporary residence. It is on the rear of the lot at 643 North Central Avenue and is to cost $700.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Cowan, of Shreveport, La., Wednesday, February 11, 1920, a son. Mr. and Mrs. Cowan were residents of Glendale from the fall of 1913 to the spring of 1917, Mr. Cowan being connected with the Evening News.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parker of North Central Avenue attended the North Dakota Picnic at Sycamore Grove last Saturday and met many old friends. They found a good many who have either located or are planning to stay permanently in Southern California in South Pasadena, Long Beach and other suburbs of Los Angeles.

A letter received from Mrs. Evelyn M. Tuft, postmarked at the State Hospital at Napa, Cal., says: "I am selling my home place in Glendale, as it seems wise for me to remain in this part of the state. To say that I miss my friends in Glendale would not express it. I am truly homesick and lonesome many times for Red Cross days, although of course am happy to know that surgical dressings are no longer in demand for soldiers."

Mrs. Eckstein, sister of Charles Cushing, in charge of the Branch Library at Brand and Los Feliz Road, is proving up on the land she has been homesteading in the Antelope Valley. It is near Fairmont, and is about 25 miles from Lancaster, or four hours' ride by auto from here. She has 160 acres, of which fifty is susceptible of cultivation, the rest wooded. It has a delightful climate, high and dry, and Mrs. Eckstein, who is a nurse, may decide to start a sanitarium there. She will receive her certificate of title very soon and then it will no longer be necessary for her to live upon it.

ENTERTAINING EASTERN FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bardsley, who owned a ranch on Sixth Street in North Glendale, have sold it and are now living in a little home at 542 Lexington Drive. They have been entertaining a good many friends and relatives from Minneapolis, Minn., and from East Orange, New Jersey. One friend who has been spending the winter in Los Angeles and paying $60 a month for a room and bath, decided to pack her trunk and return to her Eastern home when her landlord notified her that her rent would be raised to $100 a month. She is not poor and brought out a $6000 car, but has become disgusted with the profiteering of apartment house owners and so is going home.

RESTRICTIONS DO NOT RESTRICT

Some Glendale builders are commenting on the fact that restrictions in many residence districts have been rendered innocuous by the great advance in material and labor. A $2500 restriction was formerly considered amply sufficient to prevent any but fine appearing residences being erected but now that sum will build only a moderate-sized California house. One contractor declared recently that a house which he knew to have cost $3500 four years ago could not be duplicated today for $8000.

PITTSBURG GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. S. Y. Free of Pittsburg, Pa., are guests of Mrs. Free's father, L. W. Babcock and family of 413 N. Isabel. Mr. and Mrs. Free come to California every 2 years to attend the meetings of the Western Fruit Jobbers' Association, which meets in San Francisco. They were in attendance all last week. Mr. Free is president of Free Bros. Co. wholesale fruit and produce distributors. The Frees are greatly in love with California in general and Glendale in particular. Sam says you will see us out here to live in your beautiful California after about five more years of business. They are doing a $2,000,000 yearly business now. They leave Monday morning for the east, but will stop en route at Rocky Ford, Colorado, to visit a brother, Geo. T. Babcock, who also has his eye on California as soon as he gets a "meal ticket."

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. CHARLOTTE SCOTT

Friends of Mrs. Charlotte Scott—and the term "friends" included all who knew her, were shocked and grieved when the word circulated among them that she had suddenly expired yesterday morning, February 11, 1920, about ten o'clock. It was evidently heart trouble, of which she had experienced several previous attacks without knowing what they were, attributing her illness to indigestion. She was seventy-seven years of age and was of a very sunny disposition which made her beloved by all who knew her, especially her neighbors, who will feel her death keenly. She has always been active, interested in other people and always busy making little gifts for friends or acquaintances. Not a Christmas has passed in recent years; that the children of the neighborhood have not been invited to her home to receive the small presents with which she decorated a pine tree in her front yard, and she was dear to every child of her acquaintance. By her own children she was idolized and her passing is to them a terrible blow. Only the night before her death she had gaily caught her son, James, by the arm, singing "Waltz Me Around, Jimmy," as well apparently as she had ever been in her life, and as light upon her feet. In many ways she was an unusual woman who will be greatly missed. She had been the mother of eight children, three of whom survive her—the son and daughter with whom she lived, James P. Scott, and Mrs. Nellie Traugott, and a son, George Scott, at Albany, New York.

Funeral services will be held at the Scott home at 1615 South Glendale Avenue Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

U. H. S. WELFARE ASSOCIATION

hemmed in by business buildings, made necessary by the great expansion the city is now experiencing, and which is bound to continue.

Architect Lindley, who was referred to as one of the very best in his line in California and who had made a specialty of preparing plans for school and church buildings, both in this state and New York, was asked to state if in his judgment provision could be made for the present needs of the High School by enlarging the buildings now in use. He said he had gone over the buildings and also the plans from which they were constructed and he was positive the main building could be remodelled at a very moderate cost to provide an auditorium of the capacity needed and ample additional class rooms, to suffice for the needs of the school for five years to come. This would mean some alterations in the basement, also. It was stated by more than one of the speakers that the members of this association want it distinctly understood that they are not obstructionists. The welfare of the schools and of the children is dear to the hearts of all and that is just why they oppose a bond issue to buy high-priced land in a congested district, and put new buildings thereon at a time when labor and material are prohibitive in price, when for a small amount of money present buildings and equipment could be enlarged for present needs, and a commodious site secured on which adequate permanent buildings could be constructed when prices are stabilized. And this new site can be used meantime for an athletic field. These views, it was stated, should be given fullest publicity, that every voter might know the true conditions; and it is the duty of every member of the Association to present them fully to his neighbors.

It was voted to have a Publicity Committee, the duty of which would be to present the views of the Association to the public through the press and by word of mouth, thus educating the people in regard to the real purpose of this opposition to the proposed bond issue; a Finance Committee to provide funds for the necessary expenses; an Auto Committee to see that plenty of machines are available to provide transportation to and from the polls for all who require it, and to meet incoming cars in the evening to convey those returning from their work in Los Angeles to the polls and then to their homes; and an Executive Committee to plan and oversee the work generally. H. M. Butts, chairman. A. T. Cowan, G. B. Woodberry, J. C. Sherer and E. K. Barnes compose the Publicity Committee, as named by the chair; H. P. Courtney, chairman; C. C. Stevenson and C. W. Ingledue the Finance Committee; Max Green was named as chairman of the Auto Committee, he to appoint his associates. The chair said he would announce the personnel of the Executive Committee later.

It was decided to hold the next meeting of the Association on Friday evening, February 20, if the hall could be secured for that night, and meanwhile every member was urged to work earnestly to educate the voters along the lines advocated by the Association. Adjournment.

DISTRICT Y. M. C. A.

WORK AMONG THE BOYS IS PROGRESSING; GROUPS AND CLUBS FORMED

The Sunday Afternoon Story Club which meets every Sunday afternoon at the Intermediate school building, at their regular meeting elected officers. Thomas McClellan was elected president, Paul Edmonds, vice president, and Sherman Quick, secretary and treasurer. The boys take a keen interest in their club by being regular in attendance and always have a few new members to vote in at each meeting. Next Sunday starts a new story and it promises to be a thrilling one, too, so all the boys in town who expect to join ought to get in at the beginning of the new book. The club is planning a hike some Saturday soon and the last Sunday in the month the boys will have a "feed" after the meeting, for members only. The place for the last meeting will be announced Sunday the 22nd.

Red Triangle Club

The 8th grade boys of the Intermediate school met Tuesday evening in regular session for the business meeting and election of officers.

W. G. Boyd has taken the leadership of this club and the way things have started off it promises to be one of the best groups of the county Y. M. C. A. The membership roll is now complete and a second club is being started. These boys have set a high standard as they have taken a stand for clean sport, clean speech and clean life among the boys of the entire school.

Their course of study will be from "Men Who Dared," and the first lesson was "A Sailor Who Dared to Take Ridicule."

The following officers were elected: Fred Easley, president; Paul Bettis, vice president; Fobert Frazee, secretary and treasurer; Theo. Haig, chairman athletic committee; Kenneth Lee, chairman educational committee; Walter Krukow, chairman social committee; Burnham Warner, chairman religious work committee.

Next Sunday afternoon the local Y. M. C. A. will hold a Boys' Workers' Conference at the First Congregational church in which the men interested in boys will meet from all the lower San Fernando valley. State Secretary W. D. McRae and County Secretary R. P. Anderson will be on the program. This meeting will be the first boys' workers' training conference of the lower San Fernando valley district.

THE ROCKHOLD FAMILY

Mrs. J. E. Rockhold of 330 West Burchett has quite recovered from the bronchial trouble which tormented her during the war and is now in excellent health. She thinks the return of her husband and son from the war zone and her freedom from anxiety on their account may have contributed to her improvement. Her son, Howard, who was in the Champagne offensive, the biggest battle in which American forces were engaged, has told her some thrilling tales of the things he saw and went through at that time, though he is rather reticent about talking much about it. In commenting on the experience, he said: "I wouldn't take ten thousand dollars for it, but I wouldn't go through it again for a million." After returning from the front Howard took a civil service examination for a postoffice clerkship and won fourth place in a list of eighty applicants. He is now employed in the Los Angeles postoffice and likes his position very much except for the confinement it entails. He is doing night work at present which detains him until after the last Glendale car has departed, so he is making the Y. M. C. A. Club his headquarters. Mrs. Rockhold is at present confined to the house caring for her little daughter, who is suffering from grippe.

APPROVES CITY PARK

most good. Parks, he declares, have been one of the crying needs of Glendale. Everywhere around Los Angeles parks are to be found where tourists can enjoy the city's hospitality in these out-door beauty spots and where there is every convenience provided for their comfort. Glendale alone has been negligent in making such provision and Mr. Flower hopes she is going to remedy it now.

Another thing that he feels is greatly needed is a tourist hotel where visitors of the better class who come from the east and who want a taste of the foothills and the real California can find pleasant, comfortable accommodations. He mentioned sites along Verdugo road that he thought would be ideal and very accessible by electric cars, not to mention by automobiles. As an income proposition he did not think it was to be urged upon investors, but rather as a civic asset which Glendale greatly needs and for which citizens and business men can afford to boost, though he had no plan as to how it could be brought about. He seemed confident, however, that such a hotel would attract many residents of the better class to Glendale. As conditions now are they can find no shelter here, so go to other towns which have hotels, become interested and invest in homes there.
