THE SECOND WEMBLEY

ALTHOUGH TO-MORROW'S ceremony at Wembley will necessarily lack some of the pomp and circumstance which marked the opening of the British Empire Exhibition on the first occasion last year...

The Canadian Pavilion undoubtedly earned first place among the Dominion entries last year. It won very warm commendation because it was the first to be spick and span and ready for business when the King touched the button on the opening day.

This country's entry was a sound investment from the start. It was one of the finest educators that could have been employed. It corrected many misconceptions of Canada and Canadian life in general and did much to awaken a new interest in this part of the Empire.

The impression created by the industrial section, moreover, was important both in its immediate practical sense and in its demonstration of living standards in this country. The comprehensive nature of the exhibit instantly destroyed many fancy notions about conditions in a land which not a few people imagine is still frozen up for half the year.

As a result of Canada's participation in the Exhibition again this year the flow of immigration should be considerably increased. The Pavilion contains at least sufficient evidence of waiting opportunity to outweigh much of the damage which misfits and disgruntled settlers may have caused in their newspaper walls.

COURAGEOUS WORDS

BY NO MEANS ALL OF the Italian senators are afraid to speak their mind in opposition to the present method of government. Precedents of what has befallen a number of public men and journalists who had dared to attempt to thwart the dictation of Mussolini do not dampen their ardor.

indictments ever heard in an Italian Parliament after Premier Mussolini's reference to the "disappearance" of Signor Matteotti. This Milan newspaper proprietor, immediately following the publication of a moderate article in the Stampa di Torino by Senator Frassati, which resulted in the sacking of the latter's home and threats to his wife and son, boldly arraigned Mussolini in the Senate and denounced his system in the most vigorous terms.

He warned the Premier that "the Italian State is not and cannot be either Mussolini or the Fascist Party" and reminded him that "it is formed by all Italians and must be directed by men whom the Italians lawfully and legally choose."

Such an attempt is an attempt to erect a prison for the public conscience and to stifle public life, for without freedom there is no true life. What fruit had Fascism borne apart from the establishment of an apparent external order? Could justice be freely administered? Were infractions of the law punished? On the contrary, violence of every kind was being done.

And among the many anxieties of this hour, one especially afflicts me—the thought that men of democratic and liberal mind have adapted themselves to this fashion of violence, remembering only the antecedent Socialist acts of violence and allowing their faith in liberty to be insulted and trodden underfoot.

These were courageous words for an opponent of Mussolinism to utter last Summer when Fascist outrages were more the rule than the exception. Their effect, however, is beginning to urge the Italian people to recognize the position to which black shirt rule has reduced them. But the difficulty facing them now is just what shall replace the present order and yet protect the country against a return of the vacillating methods of government which preceded rule by force.

THE UPLANDS BY-LAW

IF THE NUMBER OF letters which have been published by the newspapers can be taken as an indication, the Uplands by-law which the taxpayers of the municipality of Oak Bay will deal with to-morrow may well be regarded as an issue of first class importance to that community and of more than general interest to the people of this city.

It is beyond question that the property involved is already a valuable part of the appeal which this section of Vancouver Island extends to prospective residents. It is equally apparent that any course which would strengthen that appeal would be beneficial in the widest sense. Reversion of the Uplands area would be extremely unfortunate and the immediate effect would be depressing to a degree.

icular issue will be settled in a manner conforming to the progressive standards which the municipality long ago set.

Proclamations of complete harmony between the members of the Government and Field-Marshal von Hindenburg are encouraging for the time being. The test will come when the old warrior wants to do something to which the Government will have to object.

DR. FRANK CRANE

"Friends With Life"

A BOOK, entitled "Friends with Life," has been published by Anne C. E. Allison, one-time Dean of Women in the University of Wisconsin.

The early Greeks had too keen an intelligence and too much freedom of judgment to fall to persecute all those in-of-darkness in man's condition, and of injustice and pain sometimes in the march of events—and yet the Greek race was more than any other, a friend to life.

Both imply a friendly attitude on the part of the individual. It is useless to speculate as to whether this attitude is justified by the facts or not. What is of value is that one gets much more out of life by being friendly, and one is helped much more by being friendly than by being distrusting. And that one is much more likely to make a successful career by taking optimism as his working attitude.

UPLANDS BY-LAW To the Editor:—Considerable has been written in opposition to the Uplands By-law which is being submitted to the ratepayers of Oak Bay for approval on Saturday, May 9.

In a different category, however, is the letter from Councillor Ashe appearing in the Review. He is, I think, a representative of the ratepayers who are being resorted to in this regard, and his letter is well worth reading by all interested in the Uplands problem.

UPLANDS BY-LAW We desire to endorse the proposed agreement with the Uplands. With our going into the details which have been carefully gone into by the Reeve and Council, we advocate the by-law for the larger reasons which make the agreement desirable.

UPLANDS BY-LAW AND OAK BAY RATEPAYERS To the Editor:—The reason that the council gives for the proposed by-law for the year is the fact of the failure of the Uplands Company to pay the $37,000 overdue taxes for two years.

PERSISTENT OBSTRUCTION BY TORIES MAY JETTISON MUCH VITAL OTTAWA LEGISLATION

Government May be Forced by Constant Delays to Abandon Important Parts of Sessional Programme; Premier Cannot Give Assurances That Promised Laws Will be Passed Unless Opposition Stops its Sniping Tactics.

Ottawa, May 8.—Whether Parliament will be able to complete the important programme mapped out for it by the Government or leave many vital matters undecided when it adjourns is a question which the Opposition must decide. Unless the Opposition halts the obstruction tactics which dragged the Commons through five weeks of fruitless talk on the budget it is certain that midsummer and adjournment will find the order paper crowded with unfinished business.

When Parliament met in February the Government intended to finish up the session before the hot weather and had made all its plans accordingly.

With remarkable rapidity business was laid before the House and for some weeks it was handled expeditiously by the House. It looked as if the session would be short and businesslike. Then the Opposition sensed an early election, and with the memory of West Hastings and other disasters in mind, the last thing the Opposition wants is an early election. Reasoning thus, the Opposition figured that the best way to prevent an early election was to hold up the progress of Parliament and keep the Government busy. Accordingly, the obstruction policy was adopted. It has been a complete success, this blockade. It prolonged the Budget debate to unheard-of lengths, it held up business at least three weeks, and it completely any assurances as to what measures would be brought down and put through at this particular session of Parliament.

Looking back over the history of this session it is not difficult to find ample cause for the Premier's dissatisfaction. The Conservative obstruction has been applied wherever and whenever the slightest opportunity presented itself. The very first piece of important legislation, the Peterson shipping subsidy, was blocked for seven days, although it is not usual to discuss Government bills for more than a few minutes when they are first introduced, full consideration being reserved until later stages. Three days were spent talking on the pension fund legislation which is identical with that passed last year and rejected by the Senate. And then came the long-drawn-out, fruitless budget debate, which cost the Canadian people in cold cash something under half a million dollars.

Records on file here show that the Budget debate just over is a monument to the success of obstruction. It occupied no less than twenty-four full days of oratory. And yet in twenty-three years of the last thirty years the Budget has not occupied more than ten days at the outside. In several sessions it did not take up more than five days, and in some sessions but one or two days.

The length of the recent debate is attributable largely to the idea that the Government is going to the country this year and there will not be many more opportunities to get speeches into Hansard. Elections always drag the debate out to uncomfortable lengths, but this year's performance makes most of the previous election arguments seem short and snappy by comparison.

COL. C. A. HODGETTS REPORTS GROWTH IN AMBULANCE WORK

Director-General is Conducting Team Tests for Championship

Col. C. A. Hodgetts, M.D., Director-General of the St. John Ambulance Association in Canada, is visiting Victoria in the course of an official tour, examining ambulance and first aid teams. Col. Hodgetts remarks upon the great growth of public interest in the work of the association, as evinced by the fact that he has examined over 150 teams this year, as compared with eighty-six in 1924. Col. Hodgetts declared with pleasure that he has noted, in the course of the present tour, a great increase in the average quality of the work performed by the teams.

This year the championship tests will be participated in by teams from all the provinces for the first time on record.

Col. Hodgetts came over from Vancouver yesterday, having already examined teams in that city and at Trail and Nelson.

After testing a number of military, first aid and ambulance teams in Victoria, Col. Hodgetts will hold examinations at Chemainus, Nanaimo, Cassidy, Ladysmith and Cumberland.

COMMANDER GIVES DANCE AT BARRACKS FOR PARIS VISITOR

Members of the naval and military set were guests attending the farewell dance given by Commander Brabant, S.N.O., at the Royal Canadian Naval Barracks, Esquimaux, last night in honor of Miss Vivian Maitland, who will leave Victoria to-morrow for her home in Paris. She has been visiting here for the last three months, during which time she has become a social favorite.

A four-piece orchestra furnished the music to which the naval and military officers and their wives and Commander Brabant's civilian guests danced.

Among those at the dance were: Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey Baynes, Col. and Mrs. Eaton, Major and Mrs. Eberts, Dr. and Mrs. McCallum, Capt. Mitchell, Lieut. and Mrs. Oland, Miss Jean Dunbar, Miss D. Symons, Lieut. and Mrs. Godfrey, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Green, Lieut. and Mrs. Parks, Lieut. Donald, Lieut. Grant, Lieut. Gow, Lieut. and Mrs. Hart, Monsieur Carriere, and others.

Miss Maitland took advantage of the opportunity to bid her friends here goodbye, telling them what an enjoyable stay she had had in Victoria and to people when she gets back to Paris. She will leave from Montreal next week on the St. Montreux.

MEMORIAL PARK

South Vancouver, May 8.—Thirty acres of municipal property will be turned into a Great War Veterans' memorial park by the South Vancouver Municipal Council, acting in co-operation with returned soldier organizations of the district, it was decided at a council meeting last night.

It is planned to construct baseball and football grounds with bleachers this year.

COUNCIL NOW SEEKS REVENUE

Perplexing Situation Disclosed in Report of International Council of Women

Washington, May 8.—Passing from a series of uncheduled and harassing events, the convention of the International Council of women came to grips to-day with another perplexing situation disclosed in a report that the council's finances are at a low ebb.

The delegates had before them the treasurer's statement and a report by the finance committee, along with recommendations that revenue be provided from additional sources.

Removal of peace literature from among exhibits in the convention auditorium basement remained a live topic, refreshed by a statement on behalf of Mrs. Henry Villard of New York, chairman of the Women's Peace Society, that the exhibit was placed with the permission of a convention committee. The publications urged total and immediate disarmament.

Officials of the American council explained that the exhibits were apart from the convention proper and that they had sought to remove "objectionable literature" because of possible injurious effect on the whole organization.

Newspaper accounts of the convention were criticized by L. S. Rowa, director-general of the Pan-American Union, who addressed the delegates last night. The press in Washington, he said, "in an unfortunate attempt to be witty, has utterly misconstrued your larger purposes." Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt described the reception of the visitors as "inhospitable and discourteous," and declared "an apology and an explanation is due you."

SURGEON DIED

Brookville, Ont., May 8.—Dr. Charles M. Cornell, eighty, celebrated surgeon, died here to-day.

Anti-racing Arguments Used Against Railways

Perplexing Situation Disclosed in Report of International Council of Women

Ottawa, May 8.—A new kind of anti-racing agitation has been heard in the House of Commons. Dealing with duplicate train services, W. F. Maclean, Conservative, South York, Ontario, described "two mad trains rushing to Toronto," with passengers cheering them on from the car windows.

The same kind of racing was going on everywhere, he said, and if it did not stop Canada would be wrecked. Expensive competition would wreck the C.P.R., Mr. Maclean said.

Mr. Maclean suggested a commission to ascertain exactly what was the debt of the National Railways. The question of consolidation of services could then be put in the hands of a committee of five men composed of executives of both roads. The shareholders of the C.P.R. should be justly dealt with but "the mad dance of competition must stop."

He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labor and a fine of $100, with an option of an additional two months.

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 6

Appearance of Tea No Guide

The only way to test tea is to taste it. Many people have the idea that a finely rolled and 'tippy' tea is superior in flavour to a large rough leaf. In reality this is not of necessity the case. The altitude at which the tea plant grows determines the amount of essential oil and alkaloid theine in the leaf. The essential oil gives tea its flavour; the theine contributes the stimulating value. The only way to insure always receiving a uniform quality is to insist upon a skillfully blended and scientifically sealed tea like "SALADA" whose reliability, goodness and delicious flavour have become a household word.

of the dandelion blossoms left over when Ma made the pie.
 "Taking some blossoms, Jingle and Jangle softly rubbed them on Uncle Wiggly's twinkling nose, and as softly, as he slept, that they did not awaken him. The yellow blossoms made a lot of yellow dust on the bunny's nose. When he awakened and looked in the glass, he saw that his nose was yellow, instead of pink.
 "Oh, call Dr. Possum—quick!" he shouted to his wife. And when Dr. Possum came and looked at Uncle Wiggly's yellow nose, he said:
 "What have you been eating?"
 "Dandelion pie," answered the bunny.
 "That accounts for it!" Ahem!" said Dr. Possum. "I must give you some very bitter medicine, to change your yellow nose back to pink."
 Then, Jingle and Jangle felt sorry, and not wanting Daddy Wiggly to take bitter medicine, they jumped out from behind the chair saying:
 "That's only yellow dandelion dust on his pink nose. It will rub off!"
 And with their handkerchiefs they rubbed Uncle Wiggly's nose until it was pink again.
 "Ahem!" laughed Dr. Possum. "I guess I am not needed here with my bitter medicine, and back to his office he went. Uncle Wiggly shook his paw at Jingle and Jangle, yet, at the same time, he could not help laughing at them. He thought he promised not to yellow his pink nose again.
 And if the apple pie doesn't flop over upside down and try to make itself look like a strawberry shortcake, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly and Bully's splash.

WOOL PRICE SLUMP STIRS PRODUCERS

London, May 8.—The remarkable slump in wool prices is attracting attention, the prices having fallen about forty per cent. in four months without much apparent cause. The buyers, it is said, miscalculated the rate of consumption and consequently have many thousands of bales on hand but not enough to account for the recent slump.
 Albury, N.S.W., May 8.—The New South Wales wool sales have been postponed owing to the unsatisfactory position of the London market.
 Melbourne, May 8.—A conference of the national council of wool selling brokers and the Australian wool growers council has decided to cancel all-wool sales throughout Australia until July 1 when they will be resumed if circumstances warrant.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggly's Dandelion Pie

Uncle Wiggly was very fond of dandelion pie—which is a pie made especially for rabbit gentlemen from the bright, yellow blossoms of spring dandelion blossoms. So one day when Mrs. Longears asked her husband what he would like for desert at lunch that noon he answered right away quick:
 "Dandelion pie!"
 "Then," said his new wife, "if you will gather the yellow blossoms for me, I shall be very happy to bake you the pie."
 "I'll take some of the little bunnies with me and we'll pick so many blossoms as never was!" cried Uncle Wiggly, and he blew a kiss from the end of his pink, twinkling nose, and away he hopped, over the fields and through the woods, to the meadow where the dandelion grew.
 With their new daddy went Jingle and Jangle, two of the little rabbit children, and if you ever saw two mischievous little tykes, always looking for some trick, or joke, to play, those rabbit girls were the worst.
 "I wonder if we can play any trick on Daddy Wiggly to-day?" whispered Jingle to Jangle as they hopped along to the dandelion meadow.
 "I don't know," answered Jangle. "But maybe if we make a noise like a fox our new daddy will shout and give a big jump and run—until he finds out we did it."
 "All right—let's!" giggled Jingle.

The three friends were hopping along together

So those little tykes, all of a sudden, made a rustling sound in the bushes, such as the Fuzzy Fox might make, and just then Uncle Wiggly had picked up a big stone to see how strong he was, and to be sure he had no rheumatism that day.
 "My goodness! Is that the Fox making the rustling noise in the bushes?" cried Mr. Longears, but it wasn't at all, being only Jingle and Jangle playing a trick. But Uncle Wiggly didn't know, so he jumped and ran and dropped the big stone he had picked up. The stone fell in the brook, across which the bunny gentleman leaped. And the stone splashed up a lot of water which got all over Jingle and Jangle.
 "Oh, my dears! I am so sorry I wet you!" cried Uncle Wiggly when he looked back, after he had made sure there was no Fox. "But I thought it was that bad chap after me!" chuckled Mr. Longears. Jingle and Jangle didn't say anything, but I think it served them right.
 Soon after that they reached the meadow where grew many yellow dandelion blossoms, and Uncle Wiggly and the two little rabbit girls gathered as many as they needed before they hopped for home again.
 Mrs. Longears, with the help of Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, baked the dandelion pie, and when Uncle Wiggly saw it on the luncheon table he smiled a happy smile and cut each of the rabbit children a piece. For himself he took two pieces, as he was very fond of this pie.
 After lunch Uncle Wiggly went to sleep in his easy chair. Then Jingle and Jangle, creeping in, seeing their new daddy asleep, said, one to the other:
 "The trick with the Fox didn't work. But we'll play one with some

Purchase Your Paints and Brushes Saturday and Be Ready for the Job on Monday

Time to Paint Up

Before the hot weather arrives, 5,000 Victoria homes should have a coat of paint. And if these homes get that coat of paint depreciation will be halted to the probable extent of a million dollars.

A neglected house will depreciate twice as fast as a house that is painted at regular intervals. A coat of paint not only protects your house, but also protects your capital investment.

Paint brightens up your home, creating happier living conditions. It is an investment in optimism and the joy of life.

Paint makes a city attractive to visitors, increasing the tourist traffic, which puts the money into the pocket of every Victoria citizen.

For the sake of happiness and prosperity, get out the paint brushes next week.

CRIME INCREASE PUZZLES POLICE HEADS OF WORLD NOW GATHERING IN NEW YORK

Flaming Youth and Speed Aid Criminal Life, With Motors Forming Big Problem; Many Phases of Lawlessness to be Reviewed by Noted Delegates to Convention Opening Next Week.

New York, May 8—Many inventions which man made to get from place to place have created most of those problems which the International Police Conference, meeting here May 12 to 16, hopes to solve.

Automobiles, aeroplanes, telephone, telegraph, radio, are making so much work for criminal chasers that they have to revise their methods to keep the pace. The hardest term in the vexed equations of crime prevention and crime detection is flaming youth, which sins recklessly and yet refuses to stay in one place or to align itself with the recognized criminal classes.

Youth tends most to what the police call "The Devil on wheels" in all parts of the world are "motorized crime," which is the police of the United States.

BUILDING COLLAPSES DURING FURIOUS STORM—During a storm, which swept from Illinois to Pennsylvania, the five-story brick building occupied by the Isaac Walker Hardware Company at Peoria, Ill., collapsed. Two men were killed when the building crushed a two-story garage next door.

especially in the big cities, probably have the hardest fight of all on their hands, although Great Britain, France, Germany and many other nations, as their police commissioners will say when they get here.

are struggling with many a new phase of lawlessness. London is beset by the growing infrequency of hold-up men who pass his calling in broad daylight, in crowded city streets, which is something of which the constabulary could once say "it isn't done."

All this is very upsetting for the conventional wrongdoer once began his career early and let time seam his features with his accumulating years. He usually kept to certain haunts and was an habitual criminal—with a police tag. Attend the line-up of persons and suspected persons any morning at Police headquarters and you will find nineteenth-century and those present young or youthful persons, who do not look any more like burglars, zeags or hold-up men than many smart, alert, thin-soled crime ferreters of to-day look like detectives.

It is for the moralist to analyze the cause of so much youthful and non-habitual wrongdoing. The reasons for it all may be in the lack of restraint which followed the World War; in the lack of parental control; in the growing infrequency of moral and religious teaching; in the erosion of the prohibition law. Undoubtedly all of these have something to do with the growth of crime among what we call the rising generation.

Young semi-professional or amateur criminals are worrying the police all over the world, because they will not follow the old game, but insist on playing it in the "Lone Wolf" style. There are thousands of independent operators, who go in and out of the crime market. There are intermittent sinners in their way. Often they lead apparently honest lives for several years, while many so order their routine that they can keep their portraits out of the Rogues' Gallery and their jejune bodies always out of jail.

European delegates to the conference, who already are arriving here, sympathize with the American police, who have to cope more than do the crime detectors of any other nation with the floating or rather speeding criminal population. Old World countries no longer than our states have differing languages, and so unless he is a natural-born polyglot, the European criminal finds it difficult to cross a boundary line and lose himself. He will be intercepted at the border, questioned and cross-questioned, and his speech may betray him. If he finally gets some kind of a place to live, he must give an account of himself at the police station, no matter if he is as good as some of the younger element in the criminal world looks to be.

This country, as Commissioner Enright observed the other day, is often the land of freedom and opportunity for the criminal. The burglar, the rum runner, the drug peddler can carry on their nefarious callings in New York and vanish into some respectable New Jersey suburb and be lost. There are no toll gates, outposts and inspectors at state boundary lines. The automobile or the motorcycle, or even the aeroplane, may become the magic carpet of the modern thieves of Bagdad-on-the-Hudson.

It is the opinion of those who are developing the International Police Conference as an institution that there are not enough police in the smaller towns and the rural districts in this country to challenge and capture fleeing criminals or to check them up when they go to new communities from the scenes of crimes in other states. They also feel that there should be a more ready means of giving alarms, which will be heard throughout the land, whenever atrocious crimes are committed.

For example, brace of desperate young thugs kill a shopkeeper in a city and escape from the locality in an automobile, which they abandon at the roadside. A country constable finds on the car certain well-defined finger marks and gets a photograph or drawing of them. If he is near New York City or some other municipality where there is a large and well equipped police department he forwards the finger prints, and after a delay of several days may get some information.

It is now proposed as one of the activities fostered by the conference to establish at Washington a central police bureau, probably under the direction of the Department of the Interior. The purpose of this bureau would be to give information rather than to prosecute, and hence the suggested alliance with the Interior Department rather than with the Department of Justice.

To this central national bureau, and its affiliated bureaus in foreign countries as well, could be sent photographs and finger prints, and from it similar information could be sent to all police departments. The mail could be used generally, but of ten finger prints could be transmitted by wire, just as photographs are. There are such characteristic markings in finger prints that even when photographs of them are sent by wire the characteristics can be detected. There is also a secret code which some police departments of this country already are using for transmitting news from coast to coast among themselves, in which finger prints can be described in fifty words or less, in such a way that the descriptions will serve for identification purposes.

When the New York Police Department starts an international chase after a criminal it sends out about ten thousand circulars, with photographs and finger imprints, if such are available. When other police departments want information they send here for it because of the very extensive criminal library and picture collection which is housed in the gut-domed quarters in Centre Street.

There are in New York police headquarters with records with finger imprints, Dr. Carleton Smith, Special Deputy Police Commissioner, has 300,000 more of such records of narcotic peddlers, dealers and addicts from all parts of the United States; also a fairly comprehensive fingerprint bureau established at Washington in 1919, with at least 1,000,000 records at the start.

There is a nucleus of such a bureau at police headquarters now, which could be developed, it is believed by its sponsors, into a very formidable agency for criminal talking. Such a bureau could co-operate easily with the police departments all over the world, on the lines of similar bureaus in foreign countries, which are organized with close relationships to the national governments. It would become, in the opinion of its advocates, an effective means of carrying police information to all parts of the world. In connection with a discussion of plans for such bureaus, there also will be some interesting demonstrations of rapid communication by telephone, telegraph and radio.

Rapid transportation, made possible by the automobile, is adding to the congestion of city streets in all parts of the world, and therefore it will have a liberal slice of the proceeds of the traffic control conference. How to stop the three-notch speed of the motor bandit will be thoroughly considered. New York and London are having the most trouble with overcrowded streets, but other large cities also are arriving at the saturation point of traffic, as the sales of cars increase in Berlin, Paris, Vienna and Madrid. The foreign delegates, as well as the 900 or so American representatives, will see the adoption of a new system of traffic control, in which the present colored lights will be supplanted by the rarer colors of red and green, a reform which many motorists will hail with satisfaction.

Those who have driven or motored in English city streets find they should turn to the left instead of the right, as is the custom in the United States. The traffic division of the approaching conference will endeavor to formulate standardized rules of the road and traffic regulations which can be used for all parts of the world. A man from New York can then drive his automobile, as seen through the streets of Philadelphia without getting the equivalent of the white ticket, or finding himself on the way to court. In Bergen County, N.J., there are said to be seventy-two different police jurisdictions, all with their own ideas of what is fit and proper for a motorist to do and as to how fast he can travel.

So far police authorities from fifty-three foreign countries have signified their intention of attending the conference, which is about twice as many from abroad as attended the last one. Many of the delegates have military titles and some are called "Dr." their degree being that of "Doctor of Laws."

Glancing down the list of countries alphabetically from Argentina to Venezuela, one encounters the names of many personalities well known in police circles.

From Argentina's capital, Buenos Ayres, is due Horton Fernandez, Inspector-General of Police.

Austria is represented by Johan Shober, police president, who held many important political offices and is credited with putting down the rising Bolsheviks in six weeks when they attempted to run things in Vienna.

From Canada will come David Coulter, Chief Constable of Hamilton, Ont.; Commissioner Walter E. Stadeland, of the Victoria, B.C., Police Department; P. Belanger, Chief of Police of Montreal, and a large delegation of officers and men of the Northwest Mounted Police, popularly known as "Mounties."

England is sending Mr. Bassom, of the Metropolitan Police, New Scotland Yard, London; J. H. Watson, Chief Constable of Bristol; Sir Robert Peacock, Chief Constable of Manchester, and Capt. C. E. Gower, president of the Chief Constables' Association of England and Wales.

M. Delange, General Controller of Judiciary Research of Paris, is on his way from France.

Berlin has established a new safety police, to deal primarily with traffic and street accidents, and its head, Commander Kauppisch, is looking forward with much interest to an inspection of traffic conditions and a study of their control when he reaches New York.

PROTECTIVE MEASURES BY MASONIC ORDER

New York, May 8.—The Masonic fraternity in this state to-day launched vigorous measures against spurious organizations claiming to be Masonic which have mulcted thousands of persons.

Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins, a past grand master, reporting for a special committee, told the session of the state grand lodge New York was honeycombed with false Masonic bodies. The organizations, he said, sold Masonic degrees and collected money for raising temples which never existed.

Justice Tompkins was empowered to attempt to obtain legislation which would make the merchandising of Masonic degrees a punishable offence.

SUPERTWIST

Another Goodyear Contribution!

The history of The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, from its humble beginnings to its present-day supremacy, reveals a continuous record of invention, improvement and contribution to the progress of a great industry. That record is studded with such signal achievements as the All-Weather Tread, the first straight-side tire, the tire-building machine, the braided piano wire bead, the practical pneumatic tire for motor trucks, the All-Weather Tread solid tire for motor trucks. And now SUPERTWIST.

In addition to their wonderful riding qualities, Goodyear Balloon Tires have the advantage of being extremely durable. This is in great measure due to Goodyear's remarkable new cord fabric, SUPERTWIST. Extra elastic, and far outstretching the breaking point of ordinary cord fabric, SUPERTWIST gives Goodyear Balloon Tires the maximum capacity to absorb road shocks, avoid stone bruise and similar injuries. The only balloon tires built with longer-life SUPERTWIST are Goodyear Balloon Tires. Following the tremendous success of Goodyear Balloons, due largely to SUPERTWIST, this remarkable fabric is now used in all Goodyear Cord Tires—and in Goodyear Cord Tires only.

Such tire improvements as SUPERTWIST are made possible only by Goodyear's big, world-wide business—a business which puts us in touch with motoring conditions all over the world, which puts us in touch with every source of raw materials, which enables us to maintain efficient laboratories and research departments. All these advantages are centred for you in the stock of your Goodyear Selected Dealer.

BANDITS HOLDING THREE CAPTIVES FLED

Mexico City, May 8.—Frank F. Doughty and the Misses Gwen Waterland and Elizabeth Best, British subjects who were held captive by bandits for three days in the mountains near Cuatla, in the state of Morelos, arrived here yesterday. They said they had been well treated, except by the mosquitoes. Doughty and the young women were captured by three armed men, who took them to a wooded part of the mountains. The bandits demanded $25,000 ransom, but later reduced the amount to $4,000. Early Wednesday morning, on the approach of cavalry forces sent to rescue the bandits, the captives made their way back to Cuatla.

"The Circular Staircase"

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Her story, broken with sobs and corrections from the other two, was this: At two o'clock (two-fifteen Rosie insisted) she had gone upstairs to get a picture from her room to show Mary Anne. (A picture of a lady, Mary Anne interposed.) She went up the servants' staircase and along the corridor to her room, which lay between the trunk-room and the unfinished bathroom. She heard a sound as she went down the corridor, like some one moving furniture, but she was not nervous. She thought it might be men examining the house after the fire the night before, but she looked into the trunk-room and saw nobody.

"The hole's there all right, Miss Innes," she said. "But the bar was gone when Mary Anne and Rosie went up to pack my trunk." "That wasn't all, Liddy's voice came funereally from a corner. 'Eliza said that from the hole in the wall a burning eye looked down at her!'"

"The wall must be at least six inches thick," I said with asperity. "Unless the person who drilled the hole carried his eyes on the ends of a stick, Eliza couldn't possibly have seen them."

"But the fact remained, and a visit to Eliza's room proved it. I might as well tell you that I had drilled a hole in the wall, passing between the bricks of the partition, and shooting through the unresisting plaster of Eliza's room with such force as to send the rod flying on to her bed. I had gone up-stairs alone, and I confess the thing puzzled me: in two of three places in the wall small apertures had been made, none of them of any depth. Not the least mysterious thing was the disappearance of the iron implement that had been used."

"I remember a story I read once about an imphish dwarf that lived in the spaces between the double walls of an ancient castle. I wondered vaguely if my original idea of a secret entrance to a hidden chamber could be right, after all, and if we were housing some erratic guest, who played pranks on us in the dark, and destroyed the walls that he might later, hidden safely away, to our amazed investigations."

"Mary Anne and Eliza left that afternoon, but Rosie decided to stay. It was about five o'clock when the hack came from the station to get them, and, to my amazement, it had an occupant. Matthew Geist, the driver, asked for me, and explained his errand with pride. 'I've brought you a cook, Miss Innes,' he said. 'When the message came to come up for two girls and their trunks, I supposed there was something doing, and as this here woman had been looking for work in the village, I thought I'd bring her along."

Already I had acquired the true suburbanite ability to take servants on faith; I no longer demanded written and unimpeachable references. I Rachel Innes, have learned not to mind if the cook sits down comfortably in my sitting-room when she is taking the orders for the day, and I am grateful if the silver is not cleaned with scouring soap. And so that day I merely told Liddy to send the new applicant in. When she came, however, I could hardly restrain a gasp of surprise. It was the woman with the pitted face.

She stood somewhat awkwardly just inside the door, and she had an air of self-confidence that was inspiring. Yes, she could cook; was not a fancy cook, but could make good soups and desserts if there was any one to take charge of the salads. And so, in the end, I took her. As Halsey said, when we took her, it didn't matter much about the cook's face, if it was clean.

I have spoken of Halsey's restlessness. On that day it seemed to be more than ever a restless impulse that kept him out until after lunch. I think he hoped constantly that he might meet Louise driving over the hills in her runaway; possibly he did meet her occasionally, but from his continued gloom I felt sure the situation had been, and Gertrude, always apprehensive lately, was at the door almost instantly. A moment later Louise had burst into the room and stood there bareheaded and breathing hard.

"Where is Halsey?" she demanded. Above her plain black gown her eyes looked big and somber, and the rapid drive had brought no color to her face. I got up and drew forward a chair. "He has not come back," I said quietly. "Sit down, child; you are not strong enough for this kind of thing."

I don't think she even heard me. "He has not come back?" she asked, looking from me to Gertrude. "Do you know where he went? Where can I find him?" "For Heaven's sake, Louise," Gertrude burst out, "tell us what is wrong. Halsey is not here. He has gone to the station for Mr. Jamieson. What has happened?"

"To the station, Gertrude? You are sure?" "Yes," I said. "Listen. There is the whistle of the train now."

"She relaxed a little at our matter-of-fact tone, and allowed herself to sink into a chair. "Perhaps I was wrong," she said heavily. "He—will be here in a few moments if—everything is right."
