

CALLS PEOPLE WAR WEARY.

But Leo Trotsky Says They Do Not Want Separate Peace.

Leo Trotsky, a Russian revolutionist now in America, said last night in the office of the Novy Mir, the Russian Socialist newspaper, that the committee which has taken the place of the deposed Ministry in Russia did not represent the interests or the aims of the revolutionists, that it would probably be short lived, and step down in favor of men who would be more sure to carry forward the democratization of Russia.

Mr. Trotsky said that the cause of the revolution was the unrest of the mass of the people who were tired of war, and that the real object of the revolutionists was to end the war not only in Russia but throughout Europe. He denied that the uprising was in any way a German plot. The revolutionists, even if they had it in their power, would not make a separate peace with Germany. They do not favor Germany, they do not wish to see Germany win," he concluded, "but they are tired of war and the privations of war and they wish to stop fighting."

The New York Times

Published: March 16, 1917

Copyright © The New York Times