At the instance of President Thomas Fell, the Board of Visitors and Governors of St. John's College, in the summer of 1905, authorized Mr. Walton Hood Grant of the class of 1903 to prepare a complete register of the College. The work was done at once, but has suffered two years delay in publication. The names of the Graduates are taken from the Record of the College, and the dates are authentic and correct. The year in which other students, who are called Alumni, left, cannot be determined from the Records; and they may not, in some instances, have been placed in the proper periods. The list does not profess to give the names of all who may, at some time, have been students of the College, but who left without receiving a degree. Therefore, the publishers will be glad to make corrections and additions in order that this Register may become more complete and be kept up to date.

Corrections and additions can be sent direct to the Williams & Wilkins Company, 2427-2429 York Road, Baltimore.

A BRIEF HISTORICAL SKETCH

As introductory to the establishment of ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE, a brief retrospect of previous legislation with regard to collegiate education in Maryland will be appropriate.* The first effort to establish a College in Maryland was made by the General Assembly, convened in the city of St. Mary's, in the year 1671. An Act was then passed by the Upper House of Assembly for "founding and erecting a School or College for the education of youth in learning and virtue." This was returned by the Lower House with certain amendments providing for the differences in religious views existing at that time among the people, which amendments were not acceptable to the Upper House, and there the bill rested. In 1694, the then Governor, Sir Francis Nicholson, sent a message to the Legislature, proposing "that a way be found for the building of a Free School for the Province," and offering to give money for its maintenance. The plan was heartily approved, and the General Assembly offered subscriptions of tobacco and suggested that there be two Free Schools, one for the Eastern Shore at Oxford, and the other for the Western Shore at Severn, now Annapolis. No further action was taken at this time, but in 1696 an Act was passed which resulted in the establishment of the KING WILLIAM SCHOOL. Governor Nicholson gave to the School a lot in the town of Annapolis, with the house thereon, and the Legislature appropriated money to it, but the school-house was not finished until 1701. It was of brick and stood on the south side of the State-house, between it and the present iron railing.

*The facts stated in this retrospect are, through the kindness of General John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, taken from a manuscript document on file in the U. S. Bureau of Education.

This School is noted in the annals of the State as the nursery of some of her greatest men, amongst others the distinguished lawyer and statesman, William Pinkney. Eighty-five years later, it was incorporated with ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE. It would appear probable that under the Act of 1696 no other Public Free School than the King William School had been established, for in 1723 we find an Act passed for the erection of "one School in each county, as near the centre thereof as might be, and as should be most convenient for the boarding of children."

An important educational record is a paper, now in the Executive Department at Annapolis, entitled "Proposals for founding a College at Annapolis," and endorsed, "By the Upper House of Assembly, 17th March, 1732-3, read and recommended to the consideration of the Lower House of Assembly." This would have been a great step in advance, and would have anticipated by half a century the establishment of the first College in Maryland, proposed too at a time when Harvard College, in Massachusetts, and William Mary College, in Virginia, were the only collegiate institutions in this country,—but for some unknown reason the General Assembly neglected to perfect the requisite legislation, and the second attempt to establish a College in Maryland failed.

In 1763 the project of establishing a College was revived. A committee of the General Assembly presented a report recommending "that the house in the city of Annapolis, which was intended for the Governor of this Province, be completely finished and used for the College proposed to be established." The expense was to be defrayed out of the Public Treasury, and the annual cost of the Faculty, consisting of seven masters with five servants, was provided for. The report was adopted, and an Act embodying its recommendations passed in the Lower House, but it failed in the Upper House, and we are told, that, after a lengthy and acrimonious discussion, with several messages from one House to the other without producing harmony of sentiment, the Assembly was finally prorogued, and so this third effort met the fate of its predecessors.

As showing that the intention of establishing a College at Annapolis had not been abandoned, we have a letter, dated October 4th, 1773, from William Eddis, Surveyor of Customs at Annapolis, to a friend in England, stating that "the Legislature has determined to found a College for the education of youth in every liberal and useful branch of science, which will preclude the necessity of crossing the Atlantic for the completion of a classical and polite education;" and that it had been determined to finish the building on the banks of the Severn, formerly designed for the Governor's mansion, and to apply it to the purposes of collegiate education. This building is now McDowell Hall, the central one of the eight buildings constituting ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE.

It is presumed that the troubled times, and the Revolutionary War soon breaking out, prevented the immediate execution of this long-delayed plan, but it was still borne in mind, and when quiet was once more restored, the Charter of ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE was granted in 1784, two years after a like Charter had been granted for the establishment of WASHINGTON COLLEGE on the Eastern Shore. The Preamble to the Act of 1782 states "that previous attempts had failed because of the difficulty of fixing a situation on either shore of equal convenience to youth of both shores, and it was therefore desirable that the inhabitants of each shore should consult their own convenience in founding a College for themselves." In pursuance of this plan, ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE was established by Act of Legislature (chapter 37) in November, 1784. On the 1st of March, 1786, Annapolis was selected as the site of the College, Upper Marlborough being the only other place voted for, and in the same year the King William School was incorporated with the College. The College was opened on November 11th, 1789, and we are told that "the dedication was performed with much solemnity, all the public bodies being in attendance, and forming a long procession from the State House to the College Hall."

The charter of ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE provides that "the said College shall be founded and maintained forever, upon a most liberal plan, for the benefit of youth of every religious denomination," and authorizes certain specified agents, among whom are clergymen of the Roman Catholic, Episcopal and Presbyterian Churches, "to solicit and receive subscriptions and contributions for the said intended College and Seminary of universal learning, of any person or persons, bodies politic and corporate, who may be willing to promote so good a design." Private subscriptions to the amount of £10,000 were collected, and "to provide a permanent fund for the further encouragement and establishment of the said College," the Legislature enacted that "the sum of £1750 current money ($4,666.66) be annually and forever hereafter given and granted as a donation by the public to the use of the said College." Established on such a liberal basis, the College, under Dr. John McDowell as Principal, discharged its duty faithfully and efficiently until 1806, sending forth yearly as her Alumni young men afterwards prominent in the history of Maryland and Virginia. In January of that year the Legislature, by a majority of only eight members, saw fit to withdraw the annuity, and the Visitors and Governors were compelled to announce the temporary suspension of the College. In 1807 Rev. Dr. Bethel Judd was chosen Principal, and in January, 1812, $1,000 of the annuity were restored. A lottery granted in 1821 added $20,000 to the funds and enabled the College to continue in operation. The Rev. Dr. Henry L. Davis served as Principal from 1820 to 1824, and Rev. Dr. William Rafferty from 1824 to 1831. In 1831 the late Rev. Dr. Hector Humphreys was appointed Principal, and by "his persevering efforts and personal influence with the members of the Legislature," in response to a memorial of the Visitors and Governors, that body in 1833 added $2,000 to the annuity, provided the Board of Visitors and Governors should agree to accept the same "in full satisfaction of all legal or equitable claims they might have or be supposed to have, against the State." Glad to obtain even this small amount, and anxious to prevent a suspension of the College, the Board consented, and "the deed of release was executed and entered upon the records of the Court of Appeals." At the same time the Governor of the State, President of the Senate, Speaker of the House of Delegates, and Judges of the Court of Appeals were made ex officio members of the Board, thus indelibly affixing to the College the character of a State Institution. In 1833 a committee of the Legislature was appointed to visit the College, in whose report we find the following statement: "The prosperity of St. John's College is deemed a subject of great importance, so that the youth from every portion of the two great divisions of the State may convene with the well-grounded assurance of being able to acquire a liberal education, and at the same time, consummate the patriotic anticipations of the charter.—It is believed in no way can this parental aspiration* be so well realized, as by sustaining on a liberal scale a Seminary of Learning at the seat of legislation." The committee further recommend raising money by subscription and remark: "It is an expedient resorted to by many flourishing seminaries of learning in distant States, to which our own citizens have liberally contributed, whilst the unpretending character of this Institution has shrunk from resorting to so familiar and legitimate a mode of obtaining assistance. The authority and policy of such a measure are urged on the consideration of the Visitors and Governors, and earnestly commended to the public." Encouraged by these marks of legislative approval and support, the Visitors and Governors authorized and requested the Principal to collect subscriptions for the erection of additional buildings, and for the Library and Philosophical Apparatus, and appointed a committee to coöperate with him in carrying this resolution into effect. It was proposed to collect $30,000, about $11,000 of which were secured, and in June, 1835, the cornerstone of Humphreys Hall was laid, with imposing ceremonies, and an address from Chancellor John Johnson, a distinguished Alumnus of the College. From this time on we have lists of Graduates for each year, except '43, '45, '48, '51, and '54, until 1855, when the College was reorganized, and in the same year Pinkney Hall was erected. Two years afterwards, the venerated and esteemed Principal, Rev. Dr. Humphreys, died, and the Rev. Dr. C. K. Nelson was chosen as his successor, under whose administration the College continued in successful operation until 1861, when its exercises were suspended.

To understand the present position of the College, a brief statement of the efforts of the Visitors and Governors to recover the appropriation granted by the charter "annually and forever," is necessary. In the year 1859 the Board of Visitors and Governors believing that the Act of 1806, withdrawing the appropriation, was a violation of chartered rights and therefore null and void, after obtaining the consent of the Legislature, submitted to the Court of Appeals the following points for decision: "(1) Whether the annual appropriation of the Act of 1784 constituted a contract on the part of the State which could not be legally repealed by the Act of 1806. (2) Whether this last Act was not a violation of that section of the Constitution of the United States which declares that 'no State shall pass any law impairing the obligation of contracts;' and (3) Whether the Act of 1784 constituted such a contract as would, if entered into between individual citizens be binding upon them." All three of these points were unanimously decided by the Court in favor of the College. The Visitors and Governors then, believing that their predecessors in 1833 had transcended their powers, and relying upon that provision of the charter which declares that "in case at any time hereafter, through oversight or otherwise—any ordinance should be made by the Visitors and Governors contrary to the tenor of this charter—it should be null and void," brought suit to recover the withheld appropriation, but the Court held that the Visitors and Governors could not avoid the release given in 1833, and the suit was decided against them. Without resorting to the Court of final appeal, the Supreme Court of the United States, the Visitors and Governors addressed a memorial to the Legislature in 1866, in response to which that body restored the arrearages of the annuity of $3,000, suspended from '61 to '66, and appropriated an additional sum of $12,000 per annum for five years, from 1st of June, 1868. The College buildings, which had been occupied as a hospital during the late war, were soon put in thorough repair, and Dr. Henry Barnard, of Connecticut, later Commissioner of Education, was elected Principal, by whom the College was reopened in September, 1866. On his resignation the following summer, Dr. James C. Welling, later President of the Columbian University, Washington, D. C., was chosen Principal, and the College opened in the autumn with 115 students. Before the close of the next session the Board of Visitors and Governors, in anticipation of the increased annuity, passed an ordinance establishing one hundred and fifty State scholarships, each scholarship entitling the holder to "exemption from the payment of room-rent and tuition fees in any department of St. John's College." The Board also entrusted the privilege of making these appointments to the Boards of School Commissioners in the several Counties, and placed the charge for board, fuel, lights and washing at as low a rate as they could possibly be furnished.

In the summer of 1870, Dr. Welling resigned his position, and in the following October James M. Garnett, LL.D., was chosen. The Legislature of 1872 continued the annual donation of $12,000 for six years from 1st of June, 1873, made a special appropriation of $5,000 for the Library and Philosophical Apparatus, and provided for furnishing both board and tuition free to fifty students, two from each Senatorial District in the State, on condition that they teach two years in the State after leaving College: these Scholarships are tenable for four years. Beginning with a Freshman Class in 1867, the College graduated its first Class since the reorganization in 1871, and has continued to send out its Graduates each succeeding year.

In 1880 Dr. James M. Garnett, with other members of the Faculty, tendered their resignations, the Legislature of 1880 having discontinued the appropriation of $12,000.00 which had originally been granted as an equitable satisfaction in part of the arrearages due the College under the original contract of the charter of 1784. These resignations were accepted by the Board of Visitors, and the Rev. Dr. J. M. Leavitt was invited to undertake the administrative duties of the College.

In the Summer of 1884 Dr. Leavitt resigned, and went abroad for his health, and Prof. William H. Hopkins, subsequently appointed President of the Woman's College, Baltimore, Maryland, was installed as acting Principal. He maintained control during the sessions of 1884-1885 and 1885-1886, but in spite of strenuous efforts on his part to ameliorate the condition of things, no appreciable progress was made. Under his direction and personal efforts the detail of an officer from the United States Army, and also of an Engineer from the United States Navy, were obtained, in accordance with the provisions of certain acts of Congress, with the conditions of which St. John's was able to comply.

He resigned in the Summer of 1886 to accept the position offered to him by the Trustees of the Woman's College, Baltimore, Md., and Dr. Thomas Fell was called to occupy the presidential chair.

On the 26th of June, 1889, the College celebrated the 100th anniversary of its existence under the title of St. John's College. Many of the old students returned for the occasion, and friends who had not met for years exchanged the heartiest greetings. Owing to the large assemblage of visitors a tent was erected on the campus in the shade of the famous old poplar tree, where the literary features of the programme were carried out.

At 10 o'clock, in imitation of the ceremony observed at the founding of the college in 1789, the Board of Visitors and Governors, the Faculty headed by Dr. Fell, wearing his academic gown and hood, and Alumni, formed in procession at the State House, and, escorted by the battalion of college cadets in uniform, under command of Lieutenant Jamar, U. S. A., marched to the tent on the campus. On the platform, erected under the ancient poplar tree were seated, among others, Governor Jackson, who was, ex officio president of the Board of Visitors, Rev. Drs. C. K. Nelson and John M. Leavitt, and Dr. Wm. H. Hopkins, former principals of the College; President Fell, Dr. Abram Claude, Major Sprigg Harwood, Captain John Mullan, Messrs. Frank H. Stockett, Nicholas Brewer, J. Shaff Stockett, Philemon H. Tuck, John S. Wirt, Dr. T. Barton Brune, Dr. James D. Iglehart, Rev. Dr. Orlando Hutton, and Philip R. Voorhees. An historical sketch of the College was read by the latter gentleman, after which followed a centennial ode by Rev. J. M. Leavitt, D.D., and an address by the Rev. Leighton Parks, D.D., of Boston, an alumnus of the College.

After the benediction had been pronounced by Rev. C. K. Nelson, D.D., the commemorative tree was planted on the college campus by Mrs. Jackson, wife of Governor Jackson. At the close of the ceremony an artillery salute of twelve guns was fired by the College Corps in honor of the event.

The Legislatures of 1890, 1892 and 1894 recognizing the just claims of the College, restored a portion of the original grant by appropriating the sum of $6,000.00 as an annual payment to the College.

Toward the close of 1891 the Board of Visitors authorized President Fell to initiate a movement for the formation of an endowment fund. In pursuance of this object he has met with much success, and as one of the results of his efforts in this direction has paid off a mortgage debt of $30,000.00. incurred by reinstating and equipping the College after the Civil War.

The Legislature of 1896 also granted a special donation of $5,000.00 for improvements and repairs, which was expended in building a steam power house, adding new bath rooms, and in making general repairs.

In 1901 a new Scientific Building was erected and dedicated to the memory of Henry Williams Woodward, the father of James T. Woodward, President of the Hanover Bank, New York. And in 1904 a dining hall and new dormitory for students was added to the group of buildings.

In 1905 Mr. Andrew Carnegie made a donation for the erection of a new building on the campus. It has not yet been built.

The value of the College buildings and effects is estimated at $250,000.00.

President Fell, in his last report submitted to the Board of Visitors, says the number of students on the roll for the session of 1906-1907 amounts to 207.
