BIOGRAPHY

ANTHONY, WILLIAM ARNOLD, Electrical Expert, was born at Coventry, R. I., Nov. 7, 1835. He graduated from the Yale Scientific School, receiving the degree of Ph. B. Professor Arnold taught science at the Providence Conference Seminary, also at the Delaware Literary Institute, at Franklin, Pa. He was appointed, in 1867, to the professorship of physics and chemistry at the Antioch College, located at Yellow Springs, O. He filled this chair for two years and was then called to Iowa Agricultural College to fill a similar position. Professor Anthony came to Cornell Univ. in 1872, and for fifteen years was the head of the department of physics. He then became consulting electrician for Mather Electric Co., of Manchester, Conn., from 1887 to 1893, and is at present professor of physics at Cooper Union Night School of Science. He was the author, with Professor Cyrus Fogg Brackett, of Princeton, of the "Manual of Physics," also of "Lectures, Notes on the Theory of Electrical Measurements," published in 1898.

SETH, JAMES, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1860. He was educated at George Watson's College; Univ. of Edinburgh, which conferred on him in 1888 the degree of M. A. He studied at Leipzig, Jena, and Berlin. He filled the position of professor of philosophy at Dalhousie College, Halifax, Nova Scotia, from 1886 to 1892, and was incumbent of the same chair at Brown Univ. from 1892 to 1896, and was Sage professor of moral philosophy in Cornell Univ. from 1896 to 1898, and has been professor of moral philosophy in the Univ. of Edinburgh since 1898. He is the author of "A Study of Ethical Principles," published in 1894, a sixth edition being printed in 1902.

WHITE, HORATIO STEVENS, Educator, was born in Syracuse, N. Y., Apr. 23, 1852, and is of New England parentage. His early education was obtained in public schools of his native city; he entered Harvard, graduating in 1873. After studying and traveling in Europe, he entered the law office of Judge G. F. Comstock, F. M. Finch and D. Boardman, and was admitted to the bar of New York as attorney in 1878, and as counselor in 1879. He was appointed in 1876, assistant professor of Greek and Latin at Cornell Univ.; after filling this position two years, he became assistant professor of German, which chair he filled till 1883, when he became the head of the German department. Prof. White was dean of the general faculty from 1888 to 1896, and dean of the Univ. faculty from 1896 to 1902. He edited Lessing's "Ausgewählte Prosa und Briefe" (1888); Otis's "Elementary German" (sixth edition, 1889). He is also author of "Selections from Heine's Poems" (1890); also of "Selections from German Prose and Composition" (1889). Mr. White is at present professor of German at Harvard Univ.

SPRAGUE, HOMER BAXTER, Lecturer, was born at Sutton, Mass., Oct. 19, 1829. He graduated from Yale Univ., being the valedictorian of the class of 1852. During 1853-54 he was a student at Yale Law School, and was admitted to the bar in the latter year. Mr. Sprague practiced law at Worcester, Mass., and New Haven, Conn., and was also principal of Worcester High School. At the opening of the Civil War he raised two companies and served as captain, major and lieut.-colonel in the 13th Connecticut Infantry. Colonel Sprague was wounded at Irish Bend, La., and was member of two "forlorn hopes"; was breveted colonel for bravery at Port Hudson, and afterwards commissioned colonel. He was taken prisoner at the battle of Winchester; during the later days of the war served on court-martials, military commissions and freedman courts, etc., and was mustered out of the United States service Apr. 28, 1866. Returning to civil life, Colonel Sprague was principal of Connecticut Normal School and member of Connecticut legislature of 1868, where he secured the abolition of tuition "rate bills"; professor of rhetoric and English literature in Cornell Univ. from 1868 to 1870; principal of Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn, 1870-75. He was head master of Girls' High School of Boston from 1876 to 1885; founder and first president of Martha's Vineyard Summer Institute; president of Mills College, California, 1885-86; president of Univ. of North Dakota 1887-91; Univ. extension lecturer 1892-96; professor and lecturer at Drew Theological Seminary from 1896 to 1900. He is at present a lecturer on Shakespeare, Milton, etc. Prof. Sprague received the degree of Ph. D. from the Univ. of New York, and is the author of "Fellowship of Slaveholders" (1857); "History of 13th Connecticut Infantry"; "Free Text Books for Public Schools" (1879); "High School and Citizenship" (1883); "Educational Party Needed" (1886); "Voice and Gesture" (1874-1903); "Alleged Law Blunders in Shakespeare"; "American Liberty" (1900); "Memorial Day" (1902).

DUDLEY, WILLIAM RUSSEL, Professor of Botany, Leland Stanford Jr. Univ., since 1892, was born in Guilford, Conn., Mar. 1, 1849. He graduated from Cornell Univ. in 1874, receiving the degree of B. S. He studied natural history in the Agassiz School, Penikese, Ida., and at Harvard Summer School. He filled the chair in Cornell Univ. of assistant professor of botany from 1876 to 1883, and professor in charge of cryptogrammic botany from 1883 to 1892. He studied at Universities of Strasburg and Berlin in 1887 and 1888. He is the author of "The Cayuga Flora"; "Lackawanna and Wyoming Flora"; and with Prof. M. B. Thomas, "Manual of Histology."

SHAFFER, NEWTON MELMAN, Physician, son of Rev. James N. Shaffer, was born in Kinderhook, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1846. He entered the New York Hospital for the Relief of the Ruptured and Crippled, as a student, on the first day it opened its doors. He graduated under the auspices of this institution in 1868 and soon after became assistant surgeon at the New York Orthopædic Dispensary and Hospital; this position he held until 1875, when he was appointed surgeon-in-chief, and was at the head of that institution for twenty-two years. From 1882 to 1886 he was clinical professor of orthopædic surgery in the Univ. Medical College, and for sixteen years had a daily service at St. Luke's Hospital. In 1896, he was recalled to the professorship in the Univ. Medical College, but resigned in 1898 to join in the formation of the Cornell Univ. College of Medicine in New York City, receiving the appointment of professor of orthopædic surgery. Dr. Shaffer established an orthopædic laboratory, and it was arranged by him as one of the departments of the Cornell Univ. Medical College. In May, 1873, the position of orthopædic surgeon was created for Dr. Shaffer at St. Luke's Hospital, it being the first position of the kind in the United States. On his resignation in 1887, from the hospital staff, he was made consulting orthopædic surgeon, and filled a like position at Presbyterian Hospital and New York Infirmary for Women and Children. He was the first to propose the organization of an orthopædic society in New York City and helped to form a national association; while president of the American Orthopædic Association he brought about the admission of that body to the Congress of American Physicians and Surgeons. Dr. Shaffer is member of a number of medical societies, and was delegate to the Seventh and Tenth International Congress. He is the author of "Pott's Disease of the Spine," "The Hysterical Element in Orthopædic Surgery," and a volume of "Brief Essays on Orthopædic Surgery."

HOWLAND, WILLIAM MONEFELDT, was born in Charleston, S. C., Feb. 19, 1841. He graduated from Harvard Univ. in 1863. He filled the position of assistant professor of French in Cornell Univ. from 1869-70. He was a ripe scholar but his physical strength was but in poor accordance with his mental power. His death occurred at Bloomfield, N. J., Apr. 1, 1894.

POLK, WILLIAM MECKLENBURG, Physician, was born in Ashwood, Tenn., Aug. 15, 1844. His early education was obtained in Marion, Ala., and at St. James College, Md.; at the latter institution he prepared for admission to the Military Institution of Lexington, Va., then under the personal direction of General (Stonewall) Jackson. After a preparatory course in mathematics and science he entered West Point Military Academy. At the commencement of the Civil War, Dr. Polk was in his seventeenth year, physically equipped with a knowledge of military tactics which was to be of assistance to his government. Dr. Polk saw service under Generals Jackson and Zollicoffer, and participated in the battles throughout Mississippi, Tennessee, Alabama, Kentucky and Georgia. His position in the Confederate Army brought him in close contact with its leading figures. At the close of the war, Dr. Polk accepted a position as superintendent of iron works in Alabama; he, however, became interested in the study of medicine and attended the medical department of Univ. of Louisiana (now Tulane Univ.). In 1868 he continued his studies in the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York, and graduated the following year. He then became an interne on the medical staff of Bellevue Hospital. At the close of the required service he received the appointment as one of the curators to the pathological department of the hospital, in which capacity he served one and a half years. Later he received an appointment as assistant demonstrator of anatomy in Bellevue Hospital Medical College; he was afterwards advanced to the position of materia medica, therapeutics, and clinical medicine in the same institution. Dr. Polk filled this position four years, when he accepted the appointment to the professorship of obstetrics and diseases of women in the medical department of the Univ. of the City of New York. At the inauguration of the medical department of Cornell Univ. in New York City, Dr. Polk was honored by the appointment of dean of its faculty, he filled also the chair of diseases of women. He now devotes all of his time to this institution; to the advancement of gynecology and to special surgical work in diseases of women. He is a member of a number of gynæcological, obstetrical, and medical societies. The Univ. of the South conferred upon him in 1893 the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

WHITTLESEY, JOSEPH HOTCHKISS, was born in New York in 1822. He was a member of the graduating class of 1844 of the United States Military Academy at West Point. He was appointed brevet second lieutenant, 2d Dragoons. He served during the Mexican War, also in the Civil War, retiring from the United States service in 1863 with the rank of major. He was professor of military science and tactics at Cornell Univ. from 1868 to 1870. He died at Seattle, Wash., Aug. 2, 1886.

HAMILTON, WILLIAM JOHN, was born in Pennsylvania, May, 1844. He graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point, June 15, 1868, receiving the commission of second lieutenant in the Fourth Artillery, U. S. A. In 1869, he became assistant professor of mathematics at Cornell Univ., which position he resigned the following year. He died at Bristol, Pa., Jan. 22, 1872.

EVANS, EVAN WILHELM, was born at Swansea, Wales, Jan. 6, 1827. His parents emigrated in 1831 to Bradford Co., Pennsylvania. He attended the district schools and graduated from Yale Univ. in 1851. He was from 1852 to 1855, principal of the Delaware Literary Institute at Franklin, Pa. In the latter year he became a tutor at Yale, and in 1857 he accepted the professorship of natural philosophy and astronomy in Marietta College. He filled this position seven years, when he engaged in mining engineering. At the opening of Cornell Univ. he was appointed professor of mathematics, which chair he filled until his death at Ithaca, N. Y., May 22, 1874. He was the author of "Primary Elements of Plane and Solid Geometry," and of "Studies in Cymric Philology," in the Archæologia Cambiensis.

BRENEMAN, ABRAM ADAM, Chemical Expert, was born at Lancaster, Pa., Apr. 28, 1847. His preliminary classical education was obtained at private schools, and he pursued his scientific studies at Pennsylvania State College. He received, in 1866, from the latter institution, the degree of S. B. Mr. Breneman was, from 1868 to 1872, professor of industrial chemistry at Pennsylvania State College, from 1875 to 1879 assistant professor of industrial chemistry at Cornell Univ.; he was then promoted to full professorship, filling the position until 1882. Since his retirement from college work, Prof. Breneman has been engaged as an expert before courts, a writer, lecturer and investigator on chemical subjects. He was chairman of the international jury on mineral waters at Chicago and St. Louis Expositions.

OGDEN, HENRY NEELY, was born at Dexter, Me., Apr. 30, 1863. He was prepared for college at the Episcopal and Cheltenham Academies at Philadelphia, and then took the regular course in civil engineering at Cornell Univ., where he was graduated in 1889 with the degree of C. E. The following year he served as an instructor in that college of civil engineering, and during the succeeding summer visited sewage farms in Europe and was present as a member of the International Congress of Hygiene at Brighton, Eng. In the fall of 1894, he returned to Cornell as an instructor. During 1895-96 he was the chief engineer of the Ithaca Sewer Commission, and in charge of the construction of the sewer system and pumping plant. In the summer of 1897, he made a study of sewerage system in Europe. During subsequent years he had charge of the construction of the masonry arch and high retaining wall at the entrance to the university campus, and of various surveys for real estate development, electric railway projects, the athletic field, etc. In 1898 he was promoted to an assistant professorship, and is now in charge of the courses in sanitary engineering and of descriptive geometry.

POTTER, ZIBA HAZARD, Physician, was born at Philippe's Brook, Yates Co., N. Y., June 29, 1836. His early education was obtained from private tutors; he studied medicine with his father; attended Hobart College, and received from that institution the degrees of A. B. and A. M. He also received the degree of M. D. from the Geneva Medical College, and later the degree of LL. B. from the Law School of Union Univ. Dr. Potter was for four years assistant surgeon in the Union Army during the Civil War, and was from 1868 to 1882, assistant professor of mathematics at Cornell Univ. Dr. Potter at present (1905) lives in retirement at Bethlehem, Pa.

LUCAS, WILLIAM E., Manager in Mexico of the Mexican International Fuel and Petroleum Co., was born near Columbia, Fayette Co., Indiana. His preparatory education was obtained at the Academy in Fairview, Indiana. He entered Cornell Univ. in 1875, graduating with degree of Ph. B. two years later. He was tutor in rhetoric at Cornell Univ. from 1877 to 1881, and in the latter year was promoted to assistant professor of rhetoric and composition, which chair he filled until 1883. Since that time Prof. Lucas has been engaged in commercial and mining enterprises. He was private secretary to the Mayor of New York 1883-84, and receiver of Marine National Bank of Duluth, Minn, 1896-99. His present address (1905) is Urbana, Ill.

BARNARD, WILLIAM STEBBINS, was born at Canton, Ill., Feb. 28, 1849. After a year at the Univ. of Michigan, he entered Cornell Univ. at its opening year. He became interested in the study of natural history and accompanied Prof. Hartt in his expedition to Brazil. After graduating in 1871 with the degree of B. S., he spent two years studying at Jena, Germany, and received the degree of Ph. D. Returning to Cornell Univ., he gave a course of lectures, also at Anderson School, on Penihese Island and Summer Schools in Normal and Peoria, Ill. From 1876 to 1878 he was professor of natural science at the Oskaloosa (Iowa) Normal School. The next two years he gave instructions in entomology and invertebrate zoology, and afterwards became an assistant in the entomological division of the Bureau of Agriculture, in which position he made valuable observations upon destructive insects. During the last two years of his life he was professor of natural history in Drake Univ., Des Moines, Ia. Prof. Barnard died Nov. 13, 1887.

STEPHENS, HENRY MORSE, Educator, was born at Edinburgh, Scotland, Oct. 1, 1857. He attended Haileysburg College, from 1871 to 1876, and was, from 1877 to 1880, at Balliol College, Oxford, Eng. From the latter institution he received, in 1892, the degree of M. A. After finishing his collegiate studies, he was engaged in journalistic work and in contributing articles to the Academy, Daily Chronicle, Speaker, etc. He was also London correspondent of the Statesman and Friend of India, and editor of the India Magazine. He was staff lecturer on Oxford Univ. Extension System from 1890-94, and for two years lecturer on Indian history at Cambridge, Eng. Prof. Stephens accepted, in 1894, the chair of modern European and English history at Cornell Univ., which position he filled till 1902, when he became professor of history and director of university extension at Univ. of California. He is the author of "History of French Revolution"; "Albuquerque," Syllabus of a Course of Lectures on Modern European History.

SWEET, JOHN EDISON, was born at Pompey, N. Y., Oct. 21, 1832. His education was obtained at the district schools, and at the age of eighteen was apprenticed to learn the trade of carpenter. He became a builder and architect in the South, but at the opening of the Civil War returned to his native State. He was made professor of practical mathematics at Cornell Univ. in 1873, and filled the chair six years, resigning to become the president of the Straight Line Engine Co. at Syracuse, N. Y., a position he now fills.

GARDINER, EDMUND LE BRETON, Hydraulic and Civil Engineer, was born at Brookline, Mass., Nov. 7, 1851. His preparatory education was obtained at Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., and he became a member of the class of 1875 at Cornell Univ. After graduation he became instructor in mechanical arts, and in 1879, he was promoted to assistant professor of mechanical engineering and machine construction, which position he held for one year. Prof. Gardiner then engaged in commercial pursuits and became manager of the Dundee Water Power and Land Co.; in 1895 he was controller of the East Jersey Water Co., and in 1902 president of Jersey City Water Supply Co.; he is connected in an executive capacity with some twelve similar corporations.

HEWETT, WATERMAN THOMAS, was born at Miami, Saline Co., Mo., Jan. 10, 1846; son of Waterman Thomas and Sarah Woodman (Parsons) Hewett. He is of English ancestry, his family having emigrated to New England about 1635. Through the Hopkins and Warrens he is of Mayflower stock. Settling in Marshfield, Mass., its members intermarried with the Thomas family, which was active in the struggle for independence, and also with the Watermans. Upon his mother's side he is descended from the Parsons family, which furnished several eminent jurists to the commonwealth of Massachusetts. After the death of his father, who had been a fellow law student with Jonathan P. Cilley, and later a lawyer in Maine and a planter in Mississippi and Missouri, the family removed to South Paris, Me. He completed his preparation for college at the Maine State Seminary in Lewiston in 1864, and was graduated at Amherst College in 1869. He was especially distinguished in the classics, obtaining highest honors in Greek at his graduation, both at the seminary and in college; he then went abroad and studied modern Greek at Athens, attending lectures at the university there and afterwards at Heidelberg. Returning to America in 1871 he was made assistant professor of German in Cornell University, and in 1883 was appointed professor of the German language and literature. This position he has held ever since, but has had frequent leaves of absence for foreign study, and has spent several years in attendance at the universities of Leipzig, Berlin, and Leiden. His first publication was a work entitled "The Frizian Language and Literature, a Historical Study" (1879), in recognition of which he was elected a member of several of the learned societies of Holland. He is the author of "The University of Leiden" (1881), "University Administration" (1882), "The Aims and Methods of the Collegiate Study of the Modern Languages" (1884), "The Present Condition of Instruction in the Modern Languages in American Colleges" (1885), "The House of Orange" (1885), "Introduction to the Life and Genius of Goethe" (1886), "Wilhelm Scherer" (1887), "The Mutual Relations of Colleges and High Schools" (1887), "The Revised Constitution of the Netherlands" (1887), "The Study of Modern European Literature in America" (1887), "Ministers and Sovereign in Germany" (1888), "Homes of the German Poets" (1889), "The History of Cornell University" (1894), "Matthias de Vries and his Contributions to Netherland Philology" (1895), "University Life in the Middle Ages" (1898), "Sources of Goethe's Printed Text" (1898), reprinted in the Weimar "Goethe Ausgabe," Band 50, "Frederick W. Robertson" (1902), "The Historical Use of the Relative Pronouns in English Literature" (1904), "Cornell University; its Founders, Benefactors, Officers, Instructors, and Students. A History." Illustrated. Four volumes (1905). He has edited Goethe's "Hermann and Dorothea" (1891), Uhland's "Poems" (1896), "A German Reader" (1899), and has also contributed numerous articles on literature and the history of education to the Nation, Harper's Magazine, Atlantic Monthly, Science, the American Journal of Philology, the Goethe Jahrbuch, the Modern Language Notes, the London Academy, the Critic, Independent, Academy, the Deutsche Litteraturzeitung, and other periodical publications, to Johnson's "Cyclopædia," the "Poetry and Philosophy of Goethe" (1887), and to the transactions of learned societies. His article on "The House of Orange" was translated into Dutch and published in Holland to commemorate the seventieth birthday of the King. Professor Hewett is the general editor of Macmillan's "German Classics," and American contributor to the Weimar Goethe "Lexicon," also contributing editor of Americana Germanica. Of his earlier work on Goethe, von Loeper, the famous editor of Goethe's works, wrote: "Professor Hewett has attained the highest plane of excellence in classical German in America." Of his edition of "Uhland's Poems," which the London Times pronounced "the best existing edition," Professor Kuno Francke said: "It is the first account in English of Uhland which betrays a full grasp of Uhland's literary individuality, the first book which gives a view of Uhland's development, and the first book which rightly defines his place in the history of German literature." His writings on the philology of the Netherland languages led to his election as foreign member of the Society of the Frisian Language and Literature and of the Society of Frisian History, Antiquities, and Philology, also of the Society of Netherland Literature.

WING, CHARLES HALLET, was born in Boston, Aug. 4, 1836. He graduated from Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard Univ. in 1870, receiving the degree of B. S. He then became professor of general chemistry and chemistry applied to manufactures at Cornell Univ. He filled this chair until 1873, and afterwards became non-resident professor of organic chemistry. He has been professor of industrial and organic chemistry at Mass. Inst. of Tech., but at the present time (1905) lives in retirement at Brighton, Mass.

BEHRINGER, GEORGE FREDERICK, Clergyman, was born in New York, Oct. 13, 1846. His preparatory education was obtained in the grammar schools and the Free Acad. of New York. He entered in 1866 the sophomore class of Penn. Coll., Gettysburg, Pa., and at the opening of Cornell Univ. he entered the senior class, graduating the following year, receiving the degree of A. B. He was appointed assistant professor of German in 1869, retaining the position one year, when he resigned, going abroad to study in the universities of Halle, Tuebingen, Leipzig, and Geneva. On his return to America he was literary editor for Funk & Wagnalls for several years. Doctor Behringer has been pastor of Lutheran churches in Des Moines, Ia., Brooklyn, and New York; also the foreign exchange editor of the Lutheran Observer. He was from 1887 to 1890 professor of church history at Hartwick Sem., and in 1896 received the degree of D. D. from that institution. In 1883 he translated and published the "Life of Luther," also the "Life of Zwengli."

EMERSON, OLIVER FARRAR, Educator, was born in Traco, Muscatine Co., Ia., in 1860. He graduated from Iowa Coll. in 1882, and three years later received the degree of A. M. from that institution. He entered Cornell Univ. in 1899, remaining two years, when he received the degree of Ph. D. He was superintendent of schools at Grinnell and Muscatine, and principal of the Academy of the Iowa Coll. Mr. Emerson was instructor in English at Cornell Univ. from 1889 to 1891, and assistant professor of rhetoric and English philology from 1892 to 1896; since that time he has filled the same chair at Western Reserve Univ. He is the author of "History of the English Language" (1894); "A Brief History of the English Language" (1896); editor of Johnson's "Rasselas" (1895); "Memoirs of the Life and Writings of Edward Gibbon" (1898).

SCHMIDT, NATHANIEL, Professor of Semitic Languages and Literature in Cornell Univ. since 1896, was born in Hudiksvall, Sweden, May 22, 1862. He received his elementary education at the gymnasium of his native town, and entered the Stockholm Univ. He received the degree of A. M. from Colgate and Berlin universities. Professor Schmidt was professor of Semitic languages and literature at Colgate Univ. from 1888-1896. He is the author of various historical works on the Oriental and Semitic nations, and is at present in Palestine, absent on leave.

BYERLY, WILLIAM ELWOOD, Mathematician, was born in Philadelphia, Dec. 13, 1849. He graduated from Harvard Univ. in 1871, and was assistant professor of mathematics at Cornell Univ. from 1873 to 1876. He resigned this position to accept the same chair at Harvard Univ., and in 1881 was promoted to a full professorship, which position he now fills. Professor Byerly is the author of "Elements of Differential Calculus" (1879); "Elements of Integral Calculus" (1881); "An Elementary Treatise on Fourier Series and Spherical, Cylindrical, and Ellipsoidal Harmonies" (1893); "Problems in Differential Calculus" (1895).

EDDY, HENRY TURNER, was born at Stoughton, Mass., June 9, 1844. He graduated from Yale Univ. in 1867, receiving the degree of A. B., and from the Sheffield Scientific School the following year with the degree of Ph. B. In 1870 Yale Univ. conferred on him the degree of A. M., and Cornell in 1870 made him a C. E., and in 1872 a Ph. D. He studied at Univ. of Berlin and Physikalische Inst., Berlin in 1879, and following year attended Sorbonne and College de France, Paris. Professor Eddy has held various professorships; he was instructor in field work in Sheffield Scientific School 1867-68; instructor of Latin and mathematics, Univ. of Tenn., 1868-69; assistant professor mathematics and civil engineering, Cornell Univ., 1869-73; adjunct professor of mathematics at Princeton Univ. 1873-74; professor of mathematics and astronomy and civil engineering, Univ. of Cincinnati, 1874-90; he was also acting president and president of this institution, and president of Rose Polyt. Inst., and since 1894 has been professor of engineering and mathematics at Univ. of Minn. Professor Eddy is the author of numerous scientific and technical books and papers.

ADAMS, CHARLES KENDALL, Educator, was born at Derby, Vt., Jan. 24, 1835. After an elementary education in the common schools, he studied two terms in the Derby Acad., but in 1856 his parents emigrated to Iowa. In the fall of that year he studied Greek and Latin at Denmark Acad., and in September, 1857, he was admitted to the Univ. of Mich. In the third and fourth year of his college life he became interested in historical studies. During this time he was assistant librarian of the Univ., and was in charge of one of the lower classes in history. In 1864 he received an appointment as instructor in history and Latin, and was advanced to an assistant professorship in 1865, and two years later was appointed full professor of history. The latter position he accepted on being allowed a year for special study at the universities of Heidelberg, Leipzig, Berlin, Munich, Bonn, and Paris. On his return from abroad he introduced the German seminary system for instruction of advanced classes in history. Professor Adams' "Democracy and Monarchy in France" was published in 1874, and the following year was translated into German. His "Manual of Historical Literature" appeared in 1882. In 1885 he was elected president of Cornell Univ., and held this important post seven years. On Jan. 7, 1893, he was inaugurated president of the Univ. of Wisconsin, which position he held at the time of his death, July 26, 1902. Among President Adams' recent publications are "A Plea for Scientific Agriculture," and "Higher Education in Germany." He received the degree of LL. D. from the Univ. of Chicago in 1878, and in 1886 the same degree was also conferred by Harvard.

BABCOCK, CHARLES, Emeritus Professor of Architecture, Cornell Univ., was born at Ballston Spa, N. Y. He graduated from Union Coll. in 1847, and three years later received the degree of A. M. from that institution. Shortly after his graduation he became a member of the firm of Richard Upjohn & Co., prominent architects of New York. Professor Babcock was ordained in 1860 a deacon in the Protestant Episcopal Church, in 1864 a priest, and was rector at Greenwood Iron Works, N. Y., from 1863 to 1870. In the latter year he became professor of architecture at Cornell Univ., which office he filled until 1896, when he was made emeritus professor. From 1874 to 1892 Professor Babcock was rector of St. Paul's Church at Ithaca, N. Y. He is honorary member of Amer. Inst. of Arch., and honorary corresponding member of the Royal Inst. British Arch.

SMITH, BRAINARD GARDNER, Educator, was born in Rathboneville, N. Y., Oct. 20, 1846. He was prepared for college at Whitestown Sem., and graduated in 1872 from Hamilton Coll. He received in that institution the degrees of A. B. and A. M. Professor Smith was associate professor of elocution and oratory at Cornell Univ. from 1887 to 1893. In the latter year he was made professor of oratory at Hamilton Coll., which chair he filled five years. He is at present engaged in editorial work at Ithaca, N. Y.

RITTER, ERNEST (Johann Friederich Karl Ernest Ritter), was born in Waltershausen, Germany, Jan. 9, 1867. He was prepared for college at the gymnasium at Gotha, and attended the universities at Jena and Göttingen, and in 1891 received from the latter institution the degree of Ph. D. He was private tutor at the Univ. of Göttingen from 1893 to 1895, but in the latter year became assistant professor of mathematics at Cornell Univ., which position he held at the time of his death in New York City, Sept. 22, 1895.

VAN CLEEF, FRANK LOUIS, Translator of Dutch Records, was born in Wellington, O., May 20, 1863. His education was obtained at Oberlin Coll., from which he received in 1884 the degree of A. B.; the following year he received the same degree from Harvard Univ., and in 1890 was made a Ph. D. by Bonn Univ., Germany. He was professor of Greek at Univ. of Wisconsin from 1891 to 1894, and assistant professor of Greek at Cornell Univ. from 1894 to 1896.

BARR, JOHN HENRY, Factory Manager for Smith Premier Typewriter Co., Syracuse, N. Y., was born at Terre Haute, Ind. June 19, 1861. He graduated in 1883 from Univ. of Minn. with the degree of B. M. E., and afterwards received the degree of

M. S. He was assistant to the mechanical engineer of the Calumet Hecla Mine in 1883-84; mechanical engineer of Lake Superior Iron Works 1884-85; instructor in mechanical engineering at Univ. of Minn. from 1885 to 1888. Mr. Barr then became a student at Sibley Coll., Cornell Univ., and the following year he received the degree of M. M. E. After his graduation he was assistant professor and professor of mechanical engineering at Univ. of Minn., and in 1891 was made assistant professor of mechanical engineering at Cornell Univ., and in 1895 he was promoted to assistant professor of machine design, and to full professorship in 1898, which position he held five years. Professor Barr is the author of "Kinematics of Machinery."

BLAKE, ELI WHITNEY, Educator, was born in New Haven, Conn., Apr. 20, 1836. He was graduated at Yale in 1857, after which he attended for a year the Sheffield Scientific School and passed several years in Europe, studying chemistry and physics in the universities of Heidelberg, Marburg, and Berlin. Returning to America, he was made professor of chemistry and physics in the Univ. of Vermont and State Agr. Coll. in 1866-67. From 1868 to 1870 he was professor of physics and mechanic arts at Cornell Univ., and during a portion of the same time was acting professor of physics at Columbia Coll. From 1870 to 1895 he filled the chair of physics at Brown Univ. He was a Fellow of the Amer. Ass'n Adv. Sci., and a member of other scientific bodies, to whose proceedings he has frequently contributed valuable papers. He died at Hampton, Conn., Oct. 2, 1895.

KEMP, JAMES FRUMAN, Geologist, was born in New York City in 1859. His early education was obtained at the Adelphi Acad., Brooklyn, and he graduated from Amherst Coll. in 1881. He then became a student in Columbia School of Mines, where he remained until 1884, receiving the degree of M. E. From 1888 to 1889 he was assistant professor of geology at Cornell Univ. At the present time (1904) he is professor of geology at Columbia Univ. Professor Kemp is the author of "Ore Deposits of the United States and Canada" (1893), and "Handbook of Rocks."

PECK, TRACY, Educator, was born at Bristol, Conn., May 24, 1838. His early education was obtained at public schools of his native town, and the Williston Sem., at Easthampton, Mass. Graduating from Yale in 1861, he went abroad and studied at Berlin and Bonn, Germany. He was from 1871 to 1880 professor of Latin at Cornell Univ., resigning that position to accept the same chair at Yale Univ., where he is at present located. Professor Peck received in 1902 the degree of LL. D. from Rutgers Coll., and is the author of several works on the Latin language.

COMSTOCK, THEODORE BRYANT, Geologist, was born at Cuyahoga Falls, O., July 27, 1849. He graduated from the Penn. State College with degree of B. of Agr. in 1868, and from Cornell Univ. two years later. Mr. Comstock taught natural science at various institutions, and in 1875 became assistant professor of geology and paleontology at Cornell Univ. This position he held until 1879, during which time he founded the department of economic geology at Cornell, also the Kirtland Summer School of Natural History, Cleveland, O., and was assistant at Harvard Summer School of Geology. He was from 1885 to 1889 professor of mining engineering and physics at the Univ. of Illinois; assistant State geologist of Arkansas 1887-88; filled the same position in Texas 1889-91. He founded the Arizona School of Mines, and from 1893 to 1895 was president of the Univ. of Arizona. Professor Comstock presided at National Irrigation Congress held in 1893 at Los Angeles, Cal. He is at present located in that city, and has been consulting engineer for some of the largest mining companies in the world. He received in 1877 the degree of B. S. from Cornell Univ., and that of Sc. D. in 1886 from the same institution.

MACKOON, BELA PHILLIPS, was born at Hume, Allegany Co., N. Y., Apr. 1, 1840. He graduated from Hillsdale Coll., and received from that institution the degrees of A. B. and A. M. He was for one year tutor at his Alma Mater, and afterwards professor at Whitestown Sem. In 1868 Professor MacKoon went abroad, and for two years studied in the universities of Berlin, Leipzig, and Bonn. Returning to America, he became assistant professor of German language and literature at Cornell Univ., and in 1877 was promoted to a full professorship. Professor MacKoon was obliged to resign his position in 1883 on account of failing health; he went to California, and, to get the benefit of outdoor work, purchased a vineyard, which he supervised until his death, at Alhambra, Cal., Feb. 9, 1899.

HATHAWAY, ARTHUR STAFFORD, Professor of Mathematics, Rose Polyt. Inst., Terre Haute, Ind., was born in Keeler, Mich. He was a member of the class of 1879 of Cornell Univ.; on graduation received the degree of B. S. in mathematics. He then became professor of mathematics at Friends High School at Baltimore, Md. Professor Hathaway became a student at Johns Hopkins Univ. in 1882, receiving the degrees of fellow and honorary fellow in mathematics from that institution. He was from 1885 to 1889 instructor of mathematics at Cornell

Univ., and was promoted to assistant professor in the latter year, holding this position until 1891, when he resigned to accept the chair he now holds at Rose Polyt. Inst. He is the author of "Primer of Quaternions" (1896); "Primer of Calculus" (1901).

MOTT, WILLIAM ELTON, was born in Burlington, N. J., Jan. 24, 1868. He was a student at the Univ. of Penn. in 1884-85, and then at the Mass. Inst. of Tech., from which he was graduated in 1889 with the degree of S. B. in civil engineering. He was engaged as an assistant in civil engineering at the same institute the following year, and then for two years was in the active practice of his profession with consulting civil and hydraulic engineers in Philadelphia and Boston. In 1892 he came to Cornell Univ. as an instructor in civil engineering, and in 1901 was promoted to the rank of assistant professor. During his summer vacations he was frequently employed in the service of the New York State Weather Bureau, and in the summer of 1898 was in charge of the field work of the survey of the college forest at Axton, N. Y. During the latter half of 1900 he was absent on leave to assist Emil Kuechling, consulting hydraulic engineer in the study of the water supply for the barge canal project of the State of New York. During the period from June, 1903, to September, 1904, he was absent on leave in Europe to pursue advanced studies in hydraulics in the Polytechnicum at Zurich, and to examine European plants for water supply and power development. Mr. Mott's work in the college has been mainly devoted to teaching theoretical mechanics and hydraulics, as the principal assistant to Professor Church, which work has been of a high order. In addition to this he has extended the elective course on hydraulic constructions.

CRANDALL, CHARLES LEE, was born at Bridgewater, N. Y., 1850. His early education was obtained in the public schools of the state. He entered Cornell Univ. at the opening of that institution, and graduated from the course in civil engineering with the class of 1872, receiving the degree of B. C. E. For the two years following his graduation he was engaged in an architect's office and as an assistant engineer on railroad work. He returned to the university in 1874 and took up the work as instructor in civil engineering. During the summer of 1878 he was engaged in geodetic work in Massachusetts, and from 1879 to 1891 held the position of city engineer of Ithaca, N. Y. He was appointed assistant professor in 1875, associate professor in 1891, and professor of railway engineering and geodesy in 1893. He has published the following: "Railway and other Earthwork Tables" (1886-93-1902); "Notes on Descriptive Geometry" (1893); "Notes on Shades, Shadows, and Perspective" (1893); "Transition Curve" (1893-99).

CHURCH, IRVING PORTER, was born in Ansonia, Conn., July 22, 1851. His parents, six years later, removed to Newburgh, N. Y., where he attended the Newburgh Free Acad. and later prepared for college at the Poughkeepsie Riverview Military Acad. He entered Cornell Univ. in 1869; graduated in 1873 with a degree of B. C. E.; five years later the degree of C. E. was conferred upon him. In 1874 he became assistant master at Ury House School, Fox Chase, Penn. He was appointed in 1876 assistant professor of civil engineering in charge of applied mechanics at Cornell Univ. In 1891 he was promoted to associate professor, and in 1892 was made professor of applied mechanics and hydraulics. Professor Church is the author of the following works: "Statics and Dynamics for Engineering Students" (1886); "Mechanics of Materials" (1887); "Hydraulics and Pneumatics" (1889); "Notes and Examples in Mechanics" (1892); "Diagrams of Mean Velocity of Uniform Motion of Water in Open Channels" (1902).

STEBBINS, ALFRED, Educator, was born at Chester, Mass., June 11, 1812. He graduated from Amherst Coll. in 1838, and taught in Ithaca Acad. 1840-43; also in private schools until 1847. In 1848 he became principal of the Northampton (Mass.) High School for Boys, filling this position for five years. He then took charge of the Monroe (Mich.) Young Men's Acad., remaining there until 1855. He was then engaged at private school until 1865, and for the next five years he was a resident of Europe. Professor Stebbins in 1870 accepted the chair of romance languages and literatures at Cornell Univ. He filled this position twelve years. His death occurred at Ithaca, N. Y., July 15, 1887.

CLEVELAND, WILLIAM CHARLES, Professor of Civil Engineering, Cornell Univ., from 1868-75, was born at Baltimore, Md., July 5, 1839. He graduated from the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard University in 1862, receiving the degree of B. S. The following year he became U. S. inspector of ironclads, which position he resigned in 1865, and in 1868 became the first professor of civil engineering at Cornell Univ., which position he held at the time of his death, at Ithaca, N. Y., Jan. 16, 1873.

HARTT, CHARLES FREDERICK, Geologist, was born at Fred-ericton, New Brunswick, Aug. 23, 1840. His early education was obtained at Horton Acad. and Arcadia Coll. He became interested in the geology of his native country, and was invited by Professor Agassiz to enter the Museum of Comparative Anatomy at Cambridge as a student. Continuing his geological investigations he joined a party that made a survey of southern New Brunswick for the provincial government. The result of this expedition was published in 1865, and in that year he was appointed geologist to the Thayer expedition that visited Brazil to study the fresh-water fishes. The following year Mr. Hartt was appointed professor of geology at Vassar College, and in 1867 made a second expedition to Brazil. Returning in 1868, he was made professor of geology and physical geography at Cornell Univ. He filled this position till 1875, his vacations being spent in Brazil exploring the Amazon River. In 1875 Professor Hartt was invited by the Brazilian government to institute a geological commission for that country, of which he was chief at the time of his death of yellow fever in Rio Janeiro, Brazil, Mar. 18, 1878.

BROWN, JOHN JACKSON, Educator, was born at Amenia, N. Y., Feb. 7, 1820. His paternal grandfather was a Methodist minister under John Wesley, and our subject's early life was passed under the religious influence of a pious family. Mr. Brown filled pastorates in various churches in western New York until 1857, when he accepted the chair of natural sciences in Dansville Sem. He filled this position two years; he then became principal of that institution, but in 1863 was called to a similar position at the East Genesee Conference Sem. at Ovid, N. Y. He soon became known as one of the foremost educators of the State, and in 1865 accepted the chair of natural science in the Valley Sem. at Fulton, N. Y., and from this position five years later he was elected to the professorship of chemistry and industrial mechanics in Cornell Univ. Among his associates he soon attained a high rank, and won the pseudonym of "Cyclopædia of Science." On the establishment of Syracuse Univ. he was unanimously elected to the chair of physics and chemistry in that institution. This position he held till 1889, when he was made emeritus professor and given unlimited leave of absence to recuperate his failing health. He died at Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 15, 1891.

WHEELER, BENJAMIN IDE, President of the Univ. of California, was born at Randolph, Mass., July 15, 1854. His early education was obtained at the public schools of Haverhill, Mass., and Saco, Me., but he was sent to Colby Acad., New London, N. H., for his preparatory training for college. He entered Brown Univ. in 1871 and graduated in 1875, delivering the classical oration of that year. From 1875-79 he was a teacher in the classical department of the Providence High School; from 1879-81 instructor in Brown Univ. At the end of this period he went abroad and studied at the universities of Heidelberg, Leipzig, Jena, and Berlin. The spring of 1885 was devoted to travel and study in Greece. He received the degree of Ph. D. at Heidelberg, and on his return to America was appointed instructor in Harvard, but in 1886 was elected professor of comparative philology in Cornell Univ., and in 1888 professor of Greek. He retained these positions until July, 1899, when he was elected president of the Univ. of California. Professor Wheeler is the author of "The Greek Noun-Accent" (1885); "Analogy in Language" (1887); "Introduction to the History of Language" (1899); "Dionysos and Immortality" (1899); "Organization of Higher Education in the United States" (1896); "Life of Alexander the Great" (1900); editor of the department of philology in Johnson's "Cyclopedia," and in Macmillan's "Dictionary of Philosophy and Psychology."

HALE, WILLIAM GARDINER, Educator, was born at Savannah, Ga., Feb. 9, 1849. He was of English and Scotch-Irish ancestry; his boyhood was passed in Peterborough, N. H., and he prepared for college at Phillips Exeter Acad. He graduated from Harvard in 1870, and four years later was made tutor of Latin in that institution. He was afterwards appointed to a Harvard traveling fellowship in classics, and studied at the universities of Leipzig and Göttingen, and in travel in Italy. Temporary ill health caused him to discontinue his European studies, and on his return to this country he was re-appointed tutor in Latin at Harvard. In 1880 he was called to the professorship of the Latin language and literature in Cornell Univ; he resigned this chair in 1892 to accept the head professorship of Latin in the Univ. of Chicago, a position he now fills. In 1895 Professor Hale received the degree of LL. D. from Union College, and in 1896 he received the same degree from Princeton Univ. He has been associate editor of the Classical Review since 1895, and is the author of "The Art of Reading Latin" (1887), "The Cum Constructions—Their History and Functions" (1887-88), "The Sequence of Tenses in Latin" (1887-88), "The Anticipatory Subjunctive in Greek and Latin" (1894), and with Carl D. Buck, "Hale-Buck Latin Grammar" (1903).

EMERSON, ALFRED, Associate Professor of Classical Archæology, Cornell Univ. (1891-97), was born in Greencastle, Franklin Co., Pa., and educated in Paris, France, and London, Eng., in elementary schools in Dresden, Saxony, and Neuwied-on-the-Rhine, Prussia (Moravian Brethren's School) for his high school course, also attending, later, the School of Technology, Munich, Bavaria, and the School of Arts, Athens, Greece. He studied philology, archæology, history, philosophy, etc., at the Royal Univ. of Munich, Bavaria, at Princeton Coll., Princeton, N. J., and at the Johns Hopkins Univ., Baltimore, Md. He received the degrees of master of arts and doctor of philosophy from the Univ. of Munich in June, 1881; was fellow in Greek at Johns Hopkins 1882-84, and instructor in classical archæology in the same university during 1884-85. Was professor of Latin at Miami Univ., Oxford, O., 1887-88, professor of Greek at Lake Forest Univ., Illinois, 1888-91. Some of Professor Emerson's literary work is comprised of the following: "Doctorate Dissertation De Hercule Homérico" (Munich, 1881); "Recent Progress in Classical Archæology" (Boston, 1890); contributor to The Nation, to the American Journal of Philology, to the American Journal of Archæology, and to Johnson's "Universal Encyclopædia." He came to Cornell in 1891, and organized the university collection of plaster casts, of which he was curator. From 1897 to 1899 he was professor of classical studies at the American School of Athens, Greece. Later he was employed in the purchase of works of art for the museum of the Univ. of California in Europe, and in the arrangement and classification of the classical section of the Archæological Museum of the Univ. of California.

HITCHCOCK, EDWARD, JR., Educator, was born at Stratford, Conn., Sept. 1, 1854, a son of Prof. Edward Hitchcock, and grandson of President Hitchcock, both of Amherst College. The younger Hitchcock graduated from Amherst in 1878, and took his degree of A. M. there three years later; he studied medicine and took the degree of M. D. at Dartmouth College in 1881, afterwards spending some time in post-graduate medicine work at Bellevue College and Dispensary, New York City; Dr. Hitchcock returned to Amherst and practiced his profession and was appointed instructor in elocution under his father. Later he was appointed instructor in Amherst College, afterwards to the same position at the Massachusetts Agricultural College. Dr. Hitchcock was appointed acting professor of physical culture at Cornell Univ. in 1884, and two years later full professor.

FUERTES, ESTEVAN ANTONIO, Civil Engineer and Educator, was born at Porto Rico in 1838, his father being a government employee. He was of mixed origin, his ancestors being of the Spanish, German, Polish, French and Irish people. He was early intended for the army or diplomatic service, but showing a preference for civil engineering and republican institutions, on reaching manhood he emigrated to this country. Graduating from the Troy Polytechnic Institute in 1857, he returned to Porto Rico and entered the royal corps of engineers. He became director of public works for the western district of the island, where he constructed canals, lighthouses, bridges, etc. He finally returned to the United States and found employment on the Croton aqueduct, and in 1871, he was engineer-in-chief of the government expeditions to Tehuantepec and Nicaragua. In 1873 he accepted the deanship of the school of engineering in Cornell Univ., remaining in this position until his death at Ithaca, N. Y., Jan. 16, 1903.

CALDWELL, GEORGE CHAPMAN, Chemist, was born at Framingham, Mass., Aug. 14, 1834. His early education was received in the public schools of Massachusetts and New Hampshire. He entered, in 1851, the chemical laboratory of the Lawrence Scientific School, Harvard. After graduation he spent three years in special study in Germany, two at Göttingen, and one at Heidelberg. On his return to this country he became first assistant professor of chemistry at Columbia College, afterwards professor of chemistry, physics and botany in Antioch College at Yellow Springs, O. In 1864 he was appointed professor of chemistry in the Pennsylvania College, of which he also became the vice-president. Since 1867 he has been connected with Cornell Univ. as professor of agricultural and analytical chemistry. He is the author of several chemical works.

PERKINS, WILLIAM RUFER, was born at Erie, Pa., in 1847. He graduated from the Western Reserve College, Cleveland, O., in 1868, with the degree of A. B., and subsequently received the degree of A. M. He was tutor and instructor in Greek at this institution from 1869 to 1872; and for the next three years he was connected with a school at Youngstown, O. Professor Perkins then returned to his alma mater and filled an assistant professorship until 1879, when he came to Cornell Univ. He was, from 1879 to 1882, assistant professor of ancient languages, and from 1882 to 1885, assistant professor of American history. He then went abroad, studying at Bonn and Berlin, and in 1888, he became professor of history at Univ. of Iowa, which position he filled at the time of his death at Erie, Pa., Jan. 27, 1895.

OLIVER, JAMES EDWARD, was born in Portland, Me., July 27, 1829. His preparatory education was obtained at Lynn Academy, of Lynn, Mass. He entered Harvard in 1846, graduating three years later, being the class poet, and Phi Beta Kappa. Professor Oliver became assistant in the Nautical Almanac office, at Cambridge, Mass., from 1850 to 1867. He then engaged in study and private teaching in New York and Philadelphia, and in 1871 came to Cornell Univ., being for two years assistant professor of mathematics, and was then promoted to full professorship, which chair he held at the time of his death at Ithaca, N. Y., Mar. 27, 1895.

TUTTLE, HERBERT, Educator and Historian, was born at Bennington, Vt., Nov. 29, 1846. He was of English descent. His parents removed to Hoosick Falls, N. Y., in 1853, where he was prepared for college. Graduating from Univ. of Vermont in 1869, he became a journalist, and was for a time on the staff of the Burlington Times and Free Press, occasionally contributing to the Boston Advertiser. While in Europe, in 1871, he attended lectures at the Sorbonne, Paris, and the Univ. of Berlin, Germany; as a representative of the New York Tribune he reported the sessions of the court of Alabama claims. For eight years he was Berlin correspondent for the London Daily News; for two years of that time he edited the International Gazette. Returning to his native country in 1881, he was elected professor of international law and political science at the Univ. of Michigan, and became associate professor of the history and theory of politics and international law in Cornell Univ. in 1883, and subsequently, in 1887, was elected professor of that department. Prof. Tuttle filled this chair till 1890, when he was made professor of modern European history, an office he retained until his death at Binghamton, N. Y., June 21, 1894. His published works are "History of Prussia" (4 vols.); "German Political Leaders" (1876). The degree of A. M. was conferred on him by Univ. of Vermont in 1880, and that of L. H. D. in 1889.

TYLER, MOSES COIT, Author and Educator, was born at Griswold, Conn., Aug. 2, 1835. Graduating from Yale in 1857, he took a theological course at that college and also at Andover. He was for two years pastor of a congregational church at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. For many years he held no parochial charge, though, in 1881, he took orders in the episcopal church. The Univ. of Michigan called him in 1867 to the chair of English language and literature, where he remained till transferred to Cornell in 1881 as professor of American history. Professor Tyler was literary editor of the Christian Union from 1872 to 1874. His published works are "Brownville Papers" (1868); "History of American Literature during the Colonial Period" (1878); "A Manual of English Literature" (1879), and "Patrick Henry" (1888). The Univ. of Wooster, Ohio, made him an LL. D. in 1874, and Columbia Univ. an L. H. D. in 1888. Professor Tyler died at Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1900.

BOYESEN, HJALMAR HJORTH, Author, was born in Fredericksvoern, Norway, Sept. 23, 1848. At the early age of eleven he was placed in a gymnasium at Christiania, where he remained until he entered the university of that city. He displayed a great facility in the acquisition of languages, and after a course of study at Leipzig, graduated in 1868 from the Univ. of Norway. The following year he came to America and became associate editor of the Fremad, a Norwegian newspaper in Chicago. In 1874 he was made professor of German literature in Cornell Univ., where he remained till 1880, when he accepted a similar professorship at Columbia College. His published works are numerous, and he became especially popular as an English story-teller both in prose and verse. A number of Professor Boyesen's works have been translated from the English into German, Norwegian, and Russian. He died in New York City, Oct. 4, 1895.

WILLIAMS, SAMUEL GARDNER, Educator, was born near West Winfield, N. Y., Aug. 15, 1827. His preparatory education for college was obtained at the Whitestown Seminary, and he was graduated from Hamilton College in 1852, valedictorian of his class. He began his active career as principal of the academy at Groton, N. Y.; and was called to Seneca Falls Academy, where he remained till 1859. In that year he came to the Ithaca Academy, where he prepared a large number of students for the first classes in Cornell Univ. From 1869 to 1879 he was principal of the Central High School of Cleveland, O. His favorite studies were the natural sciences, and in 1879 he was chosen to fill the chair of general and economical geology in Cornell Univ., and seven years later was transferred to the chair of pedagogy in the same institution. In 1883 he received the degree of Ph. D. from Hamilton College. Professor Williams was the author of a "History of Modern Publication," first published in 1892, with an enlarged and revised edition in 1896. In 1897 he returned with the honorary title of professor emeritus. Professor Williams died at Ithaca, N. Y., May 19, 1900.

CRAFTS, JAMES MASON, ex-President of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was born in Boston, Mar. 8, 1839. He graduated at Lawrence Scientific School, Harvard, in 1858, receiving the degree of S. B. He studied chemistry at Berg Academy, Freiberg, and Univ. of Heidelberg, and at Paris. He was appointed professor of chemistry in Cornell Univ. in 1867, resigning three years later to fill the same position at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He afterwards became professor of organic chemistry at this institution, and was president from 1897-1900. Professor Crafts is the author of various works on chemistry.

VAN NESS, WILLIAM PERCY, Major United States Army, was born in New York City, Dec. 18, 1845. He received his preparatory education at the Univ. of Maryland, and attended the United States Artillery School. Major Van Ness was employed from 1863 to 1867 in Maryland, Virginia, and Michigan, by officers of the corps of engineers United States Army. He was commissioned Sept. 20, 1867, a lieutenant, in the first regiment of artillery, U. S. A., and later promoted to captain and major.

He was attached to his regiment during the riots of 1877 at Pittsburg, Pa., also during the war with Spain. He was professor of military science and tactics at Cornell Univ. from 1875 to 1877, also from 1886 to 1889, and again from 1900 to 1904.

PRENTISS, ALBERT NELSON, Educator, was born in Cazenovia, N. Y., May 22, 1836. He studied at the Cazenovia seminary and afterwards entered the Michigan Agricultural College, receiving the bachelor's degree in science in 1861, and three years later the master's degree. He enlisted immediately after his graduation as a private in the Union army, but the following year was discharged, owing to re-organization of Gen. Fremont's army and the disbanding of a special signal service corps to which he was attached. He then became associate principal of Kalamazoo High School, and from 1863 to 1868 he was professor of botany and horticulture in Michigan Agricultural College. He was elected in 1868 to the chair of botany and horticulture in Cornell Univ., holding the position till his death at Ithaca, N. Y., Aug. 14, 1896. Professor Prentiss was associated in 1871 with Prof. C. F. Hartt, and a number of Cornell students, in a scientific exploring and collecting expedition to Brazil.

LAZENBY, WILLIAM RANE, Horticulturist and Botanist, was born in Bellona, N. Y., Dec. 5, 1852. His boyhood was passed on his father's farm and attending the district school, and Penn Yan Academy. Graduating from Cornell Univ. in the class of 1874, he was immediately appointed instructor of horticulture in that institution and became assistant professor in 1877. In 1881 Professor Lazenby resigned his position in Cornell Univ. to accept the new chair of botany and horticulture in the Ohio State Univ. at Columbus. He not only drafted the bill for the establishment of the New York experiment station at Geneva, but greatly promoted the organization of the State experiment station of Ohio.

McCAUSTLAND, ELMER JAMES, was born of Scotch-Irish parentage in Wisconsin, Jan. 9, 1864. In 1888, after having completed most of the required work for the degree of B. S. in civil engineering at Cornell College, Iowa, he left his studies and entered upon railroad work, first with the Southern Pacific Co. in California, and later with the Illinois Central system in Iowa, returning to take his degree in 1892. During the year 1896-97 he was scholar in civil engineering at Cornell Univ., taking the degree of M. C. E. in 1897, and from 1897 to 1900 he was instructor in civil engineering in that institution. In 1901 he was appointed to the professorship of civil engineering in the school of mines and metallurgy of the Univ. of Missouri, which place he held until his appointment to an assistant professorship in civil engineering in Cornell Univ. in 1902. In 1903 his title was changed to that of assistant professor of mining and surveying. He is the author of the following articles, published in the transactions of the Association of Civil Engineers of Cornell Univ.: "Tests of Brick Piers" (1901), and "Heavy Sewer Construction in Concrete" (1902). He assisted in the revision of the chapter on statics in "Trantvines' Engineers' Pocket Book" (1902).

JACOBY, HENRY SYLVESTER, was born near Springtown, Pa., Apr. 8, 1857. He was graduated from Lehigh Univ. with the degree of C. E. in 1877. In 1886 he accepted a call from his alma mater, where he spent four years as an instructor in civil engineering. In 1890 he came to Cornell Univ. as an assistant professor of bridge engineering and graphics, being promoted to the rank of associate professor in 1894, and of full professor in 1900. In 1903 he was relieved from all other courses except those definitely included in the department of bridge engineering, and his title modified accordingly by omitting graphics from it. He is the author of "Notes and Problems in Descriptive Geometry" (1892); "Outlines of Descriptive Geometry," in three parts (1895, 1896 and 1897); "Text Book on Plain Lettering" (1897).

DYER, LOUIS, Author and Lecturer, was born at Chicago, Ill., Sept. 30, 1851. His early education was obtained in his native city, Switzerland, and France. He graduated from Harvard in 1874. He then entered Balliol College, Oxford, where he spent four years and received, in 1893, the degree of A. M. Professor Dyer was assistant professor of Greek at Harvard Univ. from 1881 to 1887. He settled at Oxford, Eng., where he now resides. In 1890 he was a lecturer at Balliol College, acting professor of Greek at Cornell Univ. 1895-96; Hearst lecturer on art Univ. of California in 1900, and following year repeated lectures at Univ. of Chicago, Western Reserve, Cornell, Vassar, Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Smith, Johns Hopkins, Columbian, Bryn Mawr and Columbia, also at Metropolitan Museum of New York. Professor Dyer is the author of various works pertaining to Greek history, language and literature.

REGISTER

EXPLANATORY NOTES

In preparing a register of the Matriculates, which includes both graduates and non-graduates of the University up to the summer of 1903, not including, however, the non-graduates of the summer school, agricultural, and winter veterinary classes, the course pursued and the degrees received are given. The list of Matriculates was originally obtained from the Registrar of the University, and a data blank with queries was mailed to each one. As this necessitated correspondence that extended not only to various points in the United States, but to Europe, Asia, Africa, and South America, many inquiries were returned owing to the inability of the postal authorities to trace the movements of a large number of the graduates and non-graduates. The address and material furnished by the Registrar in such cases had to be used, and no changes could be made from that originally furnished by the Matriculates at the time of their entrance to the University. Besides the common abbreviations for degrees, the following are used to denote the various courses of study, etc.:

A.—Arts.	Lic.—Licentiate.
Ag.—Agriculture.	Lit.—Literature.
Arch.—Architecture.	M.—Mechanical Engineering.
C.—Civil Engineering.	Math.—Mathematics.
C. (following M. P., etc.)—Certificate.	Matr.—Matriculated.
Ch.—Chemistry.	M. P.—Medical Preparatory.
Ch.-Phys.—Chemistry and Physics.	N.—Natural History.
Dr.—Drawing or Draughting.	O.—Optional.
E.—Electrical Engineering.	Ph.—Philosophy.
Gr.—Graduate Student.	Pharm.—Pharmacy.
H. P. S.—History and Political Science.	S., Sc.—Science.
L.—Letters.	S.-L.—Science and Letters.
	Sp.—Special student.
	Sr.—Surveying.
	V. S.—Veterinary Science.

An asterisk (*), as usual, indicates the decease of the person to whose name it is prefixed.

CORWIN, CLARENCE ELBERT, 220½ Q St., Washington, D. C. Ph. B. '99.

CORWIN, RICHARD WARREN, physician and surgeon, Pueblo, Col. b. Binghamton, Broome Co., N. Y., May 24, 1852. Cornell (M. E.) '72-'74; Univ. Michigan, M. D., '78; spent two years studying medicine in different foreign hospitals. Member Univ. crew '74; rowed with crew of Saratoga. While at Cornell was taxidermist for the Univ.; at Mich. Univ. was curator of museum, and taught comparative anatomy and microscopy while studying for medical degree; member of editorial staff of Univ. paper from medical department. Chief surgeon Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. since 1881; superintendent sociological department same company 1901; chief surgeon Colorado & Wyoming R. R. 1901; surgeon Denver & Rio Grande R. R. 1881; surgeon Colorado & Southern R. R. 1884; surgeon Colorado State Insane Asylum 1888. The Colorado Fuel & Iron Co., of which Dr. Corwin is chief surgeon, employs seventeen thousand men. At various points in Colorado and adjoining States the company, under his supervision, maintains a corps of about fifty physicians and surgeons, with small hospitals for the accommodation of injured or sick employees. At Pueblo is a central hospital, the result of Dr. Corwin's observations in Europe and America as to the construction and operation of the most modern institutions of the kind in the world, and erected under his direct superintendence. Connected with it is a training school for nurses, the combined institution, pronounced a model by competent judges, being under his active management. The sociological department of the company, of which Dr. Corwin is superintendent, is concerned with the organization and conduct of the schools attended by the children of the miners, as well as with the proper housing of their families and general welfare work in its broadest and most useful sense. An exhibition of methods employed in carrying out these objects was made at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, with the result of securing three medals in a world competition; two of them were gold and one silver. By this striking object-lesson, as well as by his writings and teachings on the subject of sociology along the lines indicated by his experience at Pueblo, Dr. Corwin has done much to interest and educate the public. He is the author of many sociological and medical papers, and of "Classification of Birds." Is president of Rocky Mountain Mich. Univ. Alumni Ass'n; ex-president Rocky Mountain Cornell Alumni Ass'n; member Amer.

The Cornell Vintage of 1880.

(A BOTTLE OF PORT, VINTAGE OF 1880. TO THE CLASS OF 1880: GREETING.)

My classmates! For you are in my class.
I was born in the year of Eighty.
When through the Cornell Gates you did pass
Out to your future work more weighty.

Five and twenty years have come since then.
They have added much to my bouquet.
They have made, I know, far better men
Of you who meet here again to-day.

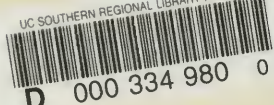

After five and twenty years I bring
Draughts of liquid sunshine to impart
A genial glow and warmth, which shall sing
"Hail, all hail, Cornell," in every heart.

Of my life's blood freely do I give.
May your future cares be less weighty!
This toast I do now propose: Long live
All the boys in my class of Eighty!

The above lines were read by Lee J. Vance, who offered a bottle of port wine, vintage of 1880, at the twenty-fifth reunion of the Cornell Class of 1880, at Ithaca, N. Y., June 21, 1905.
