DAI NIPPON SEINEN DAN

The Headquarters (Honbu) of the Dai Nippon Seinendan is in the Nippon Seinenkan situated in the outer garden of the Meiji Shrine in the Yotsuya-ku and used to publish the periodicals called "The Seinen Shido" and "The Seinen".

On the occasion of the card of "The Seinen" being made, the technical mistake was made under the pressure of time, by which the "Seinen" published by the Nippon Seinenkai and the "Seinen" published by the Headquarters of the Dai Nippon Seinendan were treated as if they were different periodicals, whereas they are the one and the same periodical. This mistake was corrected, later on, as a result of reinvestigation.

The Hall of Japanese Youngman

We have noticed some mistakes in our previous report, of which we had no time to make precise researches, because of being requested to present it till the nest day of the requisition. Since then, we have made more precise researches, asking for informations of the responsible persons of that time, and we get more accurate report, which we should present here.

Remark
Vacant after Ogishi's retirement

Manager Sukumo,Hatagun,Kochi-ken

Vacant after Nakamura's Retirement

Delegate Unknown

2. Schedule of the Akebono Formation
Superintendent - Manager- editorial members.

As the Akebono publishing office was a mere publishing office that published the monthly magazine"Akebono", it had not any other special formation but a superintendent, a manager and several editorial members. However, there has been neither superintendent nor manager since Ogishi and Nakamura's retirements.

When the superintendent and the manager had reitred there was set a delegate instead of them.

3. There was not settled any special bureaucratic in the organization of the Akebono publishing office.

Additional members;

We regret that at present, the details of the organization are unknown to us except the above, because the necessary documents were destroyed by the bomberment,march,20th yearmshowa, and the organization was disprsed just then.

File "Nippon Hyoron"

ISHII 17 Nov 48

1. Yasuo Hongo, an ex-editor of Shufu-no-TOmo has been cleared of the purge. Although the activities of the magazine were most pronounced after the Pearl Harbor attack, I am afraid its co-operation, as the public remembers it, with the militarists and ultra-nationalists was too active to accept his clearance as fair. (The magazine's wartime circulation was over 1,000,000.)

2. Toshisada Suzuki of "Nihon-Hyoron-sha" was an active enemy of the militarist authorities. He dared to publish distinctly liberal publications, was arrested, indicted, and found guilty by the authorities. Thus, he was not a mere passive neutral, but remained, until the very end of the militarist and ultra-nationalist regime, a persistent, active enemy of the authorities and their ideologies, thus proving himself to be one of the very few true liberalists who remained loyal to their liberal ideals in spite of severe persecution, as the public well remembers.)

To lose such a daring fighter by purge is indeed a great loss to the publishing circles of our new Japan, where the reactionary faction is still exerting its powerful influence.

What we are greatly concerned with now, however, is the fact that his magazine "Nihon Hyoron" is getting to be a distinctly communist magazine now without him. Nihon Hyoron which was (and still is in the public eye,) a very close second to Iwanami's "Sekai" has now gone a good way toward communists; judging from the contents of its recent number, we may say that it has become a powerful communist tool.

In short, to lose T. Suzuki from the publishing circles by purge, which many of us,(and I am confident that the Japanese public will agree with us,) feel he does not deserve, is not only a serious loss in the democratic movement in Japan, in losing such an influencial, daring fighter, but it is making (and has already made to a certain extent,) a greater addition to the communist movement by offering it as its tool one of the most respected magazines in this country.
