On 21 April 1945 Insig G. B. HANOVER, flying a TBM-3, was assigned a photographic mission over southern Okinawa. Insig P. A. O'BRIEN accompanied him as fighter escort. The planes took off at 1230(I); landed at Nakama field at 1320, were briefed and took off on the mission at 1425. Hanover took photographs from 1450 to 1650. The two planes returned to base at 1700(I).

The following was photographed: supplies and headquarters at 7888 C and D, supplies at 7288 B C D H L M, barracks at 7969 Y, gun emplacements in 7971 B. All were verticals of 1:5000 scale, taken with a K-17 6" camera from 2500 ft. altitude. As a special job for General Hodges, verticals and obliques were made of both sides of ridges in 8167 U V.

While Hanover was making his photograph runs O'Brien had the opportunity to engage in a bit of strafing. He spotted two trucks in target area 8066 and got them afire, destroying them. Three other trucks in 8167 were hit one burned, other two would not. All three were damaged.

After Hanover dropped his film on the strip designated, they returned to base.

Only light smoke and inaccurate AA fire was encountered, this firing from the vicinity of Ha-ha airfield.
