BOARD OF TRUSTEES

ADDRESSED BY MR. WOODBERRY ON CONDITION OF VERDUGO WASH

The regular meeting of the board of trustees of the city of Glendale was held in the city hall, Monday evening, Jan. 24, 1916. Present, O. A. Lane, president of the board, and trustees Chas. Grist, J. S. Thompson, A. W. Tower and Geo. Williams. Also present: T. W. Watson, city manager; J. C. Sherer, city clerk; W. E. Evans, city attorney; H. B. Lynch, manager Public Service department; Edward Lynch, city engineer; A. H. Lankford, fire marshal.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved. There were no communications on file.

The City Manager made his report. He stated that a foot bridge is required on Broadway at the school house, and on motion of Trustee Williams, the same was ordered to be provided immediately.

He reported having spent about $325.70 on Verdugo Wash during the late storm, action being required immediately. This expenditure was made and proved very effective as far as it went. He asked for the concurrence of the Board in this action and authority to do necessary work of this kind when required in the future. Upon motion of Trustee Thompson, the action of the City Manager was endorsed and full authority given him to do such work as in his judgment may be necessary in cases of emergency.

The city manager requested that such members of the board as could possibly do so should look over the situation along the wash and familiarize themselves with conditions there.

He also recommended that some work looking toward protection from storm water be done along Sycamore Canyon Wash. He reported that the temporary work done along the Verdugo Wash by the city engineer had been very successful, but that more work of a similar nature is required.

Mr. Woodberry addressed the board in regard to the conditions along the Verdugo Canyon Wash, stating that in his opinion it is absolutely necessary for the protection of the city during the next month or more, that temporary work of a nature similar to that recently done by the City Engineer be continued above such work, as there is danger of the storm breaking out above the point that has so far been protected. No action was taken.

At 8 o'clock the hearing in the case of the opening and widening of Penn street was called. There being no protestants present, the report of the city engineer previously presented to the trustees was reread, and upon showing that a majority of the frontage in the district favored the improvement, upon motion of Trustee Grist, protests against the same were denied.

The manager of the Public Service department reported good progress in sinking the new well on the pumping plant lot on San Fernando road; a depth of five hundred feet having been attained, perforations made in the pipe and work almost completed, ready for test.

The following demands previously referred to the finance committee, were ordered paid.

IN DEADLY ASSAULT

JOE VALENCIA OF LA CANADA ALMOST KILLED BY CORNALIA NUNEZ

La Canada's peaceful shades were violently disturbed on Sunday by a serious encounter between two Mexicans, who first attempted to settle their differences by argument of words and that failing fell to argument of force. It appears that Cornalia Nunez, an able-bodied Mexican, had a dispute with Joe Valencia, who is of a peaceful disposition and believes in watchful waiting. Valencia appeared to have the better of the dispute which arose out of some family matters, as these Mexican affairs generally do; but when Nunez found that words were too much for him and that the argument was plainly going against him, he seized a heavy club and began an assault on Valencia which ended in the complete discomfiture of that individual.

With sweeping blows, according to the bystanders Nunez broke several ribs in Valencia's body and then proceeded in his blind rage to pound that unfortunate into mummy. When the cruel assault was over word was sent to Constable Purrier of Burbank. The constable proceeded to La Canada and placed Nunez under arrest. Meantime the ambulance had arrived and Valencia, after having received first aid, was conveyed to the County Hospital. There it was ascertained that he was suffering from a fracture of the base of the skull and that several ribs had been broken and that he had many other contusions. The fracture of the skull is serious and up to the present Valencia has not regained consciousness. He is thought to have but a small chance of recovery.

Nunez was brought before Judge Harry Miller and after arraignment and examination was committed to the county jail to await the outcome of Valencia's injuries. His trial was set for February 2.

DESPERATE FIGHTING AT MOUTH OF YSER

GERMANS TAKE FRENCH TRENCHES AND ARE DRIVEN OUT AGAIN AFTER HARD FIGHTING

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
PARIS, Jan. 25.—It was admitted today that the Germans yesterday made a desperate attack on the French trenches at the mouth of the Yser. Before making the attack they fired 20,000 shells in an attempt to prepare the way. They were so far successful that their massed columns reached the first line of defense and occupied a part of the French trenches. Later the French drove them out after a fierce bayonet charge. The slaughter was enormous. The battle is continuing with French artillery gradually dominating the Teuton guns.

GERMAN AND BRITISH AIRMEN CLASH IN FIGHTS OVER DUNKIRK AND NIEUWPORT

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
LONDON, Jan. 25.—Frequent clashes between German and British airmen characterized the situation on the West today. Two swift German planes made an attempt to raid Dunkirk this morning. They dropped several bombs but were driven off without having done much damage. Among the sensations of the day was a duel between German and British aeroplanes. This took place over Nieuwport, in presence of the excited inhabitants. Ultimately the German was destroyed by the British. The Germans are showing great activity since they got the new Fokker machine.

FOR AN APRIL DISPLAY FROM ROAD TO RANCH

LOS ANGELES HORTICULTURAL EXPERT GIVES VALUABLE HINTS ON PLANTING

When the weather is mild during January and February, preparations should be made in the flower garden for an early spring display. Where fall sowing of flowering plants was neglected, it will be necessary to visit the nurseries, where small plants of all classes of hardy annuals and perennials are raised. Our best nurserymen raise them by thousands and the plants are properly prepared for transplanting so the amateur gardener takes little risk and is enabled to buy very cheaply. It may help the amateur and prospective exhibitor to enumerate a few of the better known kinds and give a few hints on culture.

When purchasing pansies, it is always best to buy from a reputable nursery and obtain them before they flower. Plants purchased in bloom do not keep up a display so long as those allowed to make a growth where they are to bloom. Pansies flower best in a partially shaded position, especially during late spring and summer. The soil should be good, but not unduly rich, well decayed manure and leaf mould being added instead of strong fresh fertilizer. In land deficient of grit, add a liberal proportion of sand, but this is not usually necessary in foothill lands containing decomposed granite or other alluvial deposit.

Always use a trowel for planting, never a dibber, as it is important that the roots are well spread out, not crowded into a small hole. And plant firmly, a plant set loosely is blown about by the wind and never has a chance to establish itself. No matter what the weather is at the time of planting, always water thoroughly. The roots may not need the moisture but it will wash the particles of soil close around the roots and prevent wilting. As soon as the surface has dried out sufficiently, loosen the top soil with a small cultivator or rake and always keep it loose. This causes a film of dry soil or mulch as it is termed, that prevents loss of moisture by evaporation and the action of the sun. The same method of culture should be followed with the other plants referred to below but a few of their peculiarities will also be noted.

Petunias are among the most showy of summer flowering plants, easily grown and thriving in parkways, on dry banks and in other places when summer conditions are hard on vegetation. The plants should be set out as early as possible in order that they may have their flowering season extended over a long period. The single varieties and the Ruffled Giants of California are far preferable to the doubles for outdoor gardening.

Many of the poppies are among the showiest and prettiest of garden flowers. While some of them are well known and almost universally grown, there are others seldom seen that deserve more attention. For instance, there are many lovely forms of the Oriental poppy with a great showy blossom that never fails to excite admiration, yet they are seldom seen in California gardens. The Iceland Poppy is smaller, but contains most lovely colors, the flowers being on long slender stems that render them very useful for cutting for table decoration.

Among perennial plants, few are more beautiful than the Larkspurs or Delphiniums. The shades of blue from the lightest sky blue to the deepest ultramarine are not excelled by any plant known and they grow very freely if the soil is well enriched. They should not be planted closer than three feet apart as they make large clumps. The aquilegias or columbines again are graceful and elegant and as easily grown as a daisy. Speaking of daisies reminds one of the newer kinds of Shasta daisies that produce immense white long petalled blooms far before those of the older types.

For dwarf borders or parkways, verbenas are very showy and free blooming. The scarlet type is a gorgeous thing, always in flower while the purples, pinks and whites are unrivalled in their respective colors. These are only a few of the many things that can be grown easily by the amateur exhibitor and information on any of them can always be had from the asking from nurserymen.

MRS. HAMER

F. L. GETTEN, TRAVELING MAN, SETTLES ON CITRUS ORCHARD NEAR GLENDALE

After many years spent on the road as a traveling man, Frederick L. Getten came to California to live. Mr. Getten's business took him all over the country and gave him opportunity to learn the nature of different climates and the possibilities of different soils. Struck with the wonderful climate and the fertile soil of California he decided to try some part of this State. To that end he has purchased the citrus orchard at Sixth and Grand View avenue, formerly owned by W. H. Brown.

"My travels," said Mr. Getten, "took me over a very large part of the United States. My home was in Glen's Falls, N. Y. That is one of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of New York state. People come from all parts of the country and of the world to enjoy its beautiful scenery. It lies well away up toward the Lake George region and has many attractions for those who are enamored of the outdoor life amid primitive conditions.

"However, I had always had a longing to see California, the land of so many dreams. Pictures of the sunny winters of this favored spot used to rise before me when the grip and ice got the East in their grip and the thermometer went down to 12 or 20 below with a howling blizzard helping to make one feel the cold. Like many other Easterners I had visions of a wonderful land of grape vines, orange trees, olive groves and perpetual sunshine. After a reasonable time my desire has been fulfilled.

"My first attempt at settlement was in Tulare county, at a place called Terra Bella (beautiful land). There I had an olive ranch, but after a year's experience I decided that Southern California offered greater attractions both of climate and of agricultural conditions.

"I finally came to this district, where I was charmed with the natural beauty of the country and with the possibilities of citrus ranching. My present holding of 10 acres is as much as I feel able to manage just at present. The ranch is in fair condition; but I am going to improve it.

"There is every prospect that this will be a good year for citrus fruits. Lemons are rising in price and oranges and grape fruit command remunerative prices. I have contracted for the marketing of my fruit and altogether I think I have a good prospect of making the ranch pay.

"I am charmed with this section of the country. The soil is kindly and prolific; the climate is mild and agreeable. I have found the greatest courtesy and kindness among my neighbors and among the people of Glendale with whom I have come in contact. I anticipate much pleasure and I hope for some profit from my new venture."

PLEASANT SHOWER PARTY

More than forty people assembled at the home of Mrs. John Orth, 435 S. Central avenue, Friday night, last week, to do honor to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Marple of Tropic, who were married on Christmas Eve. Those present were the members of the Christian Church choir of which Mr. and Mrs. Marple are also members, and the members of their Sunday School class. About 9:30, in the midst of the entertainment, Mrs. Marple was summoned to the door and there was presented with a large basket, containing many beautiful and useful presents. The "shower" was quite a surprise to the young wife and was gracefully acknowledged by herself and Mr. Marple. The evening was pleasantly spent with games and music. A novel guessing game, the "Art Catalogue," afforded much amusement. Dainty refreshments were served.

FLOODS FROM THE CANYONS

From all that is being said and written at present on the subject of controlling the floods that annually threaten the safety and even the existence of certain properties in Glendale, it may be seen that the public is profoundly interested in this subject. It seems to be agreed on all hands that part, at least, of the trouble originates in the upper canyons whence the waters flow down to the city through the Wash and other streams.

There seems little doubt that the dam work done in Haines canyon, for instance, has been partly effectual in breaking the full force of the floods and in retaining the water in the soil to the benefit of vegetation and the further protection of the watersheds. It is recommended by many excellent authorities that the first step taken be one of protecting the vegetation on the hills from fire. That seems a very proper idea.

It has been shown that the destruction by fire of the natural covering of the hills permits the flood waters to run off at such a rate that the channels of the different streams are not large enough to contain them. This year the rain, excessive as the fall was, came on gradually and ran off without doing the damage which it would have done had the fall been precipitated in a few hours instead of within a few days.

In order to prevent the rainfall from running off all at once it is very properly suggested that the protection of the mountain vegetation from fire is the first step of importance. The conservative effect of the brush on the rainfall of the mountains is only beginning to be understood. It is stated credibly that for 30 years the amount of water coming down Haines canyon would very readily have passed through a 4-inch by 4-inch culvert or bridge. That was before the hills were denuded of their natural covering by fires. Since the hills have been burned off these little streams have grown to a flood that would fill a bridge 40x40.

There is little doubt that the worst part of the trouble comes from fires. They ruin the watershed and spoil the beauty of the hills and valleys. A writer on this subject who has lived near Haines canyon for years tells of noticing in a small canyon north of Sunland where for many years a boulder weighing 100 tons or thereabout stood undisturbed in the wash; but after the hills were burned off the first storm moved this boulder down the canyon entirely out of that locality. That is an example of what happens every year in the rainy season, now that the natural protection of the hills is gone.

Every effort must be made to battle with this evil. Reforestation, the building of retarding dams in the canyons and the protection of the banks of the streams by tree planting and other means—all are necessary for the prevention of floods and the preservation of property. In the Alps in Switzerland retarding dams have proved exceedingly effective and although conditions in Haines canyon and other canyons of the Los Angeles watershed may not be exactly similar there can be no doubt that the check dams are proving useful and that in conjunction with other conservation work will do much to modify present conditions on the watershed.

VALUE OF JUDICIOUS ADVERTISING

This newspaper constantly receives testimony to the value of its columns as an advertising medium. Properly conceived and judiciously used advertising always brings results. When a party has something to offer that many people are likely to desire it is naturally not difficult to get answers to an advertisement; yet even in writing such an ad there is an art that is necessary. Written in the proper manner an ad of this nature will receive ten times as many answers as if it were carelessly thrown together and expressed in the commonplace way.

It is easy to write commonplace advertising; but very difficult to write advertising that arrests the attention, seizes the imagination and brings the reader to the point of inquiry. If an ad accomplishes that result it has fulfilled the end of its existence.

Many people wonder at their non-success in advertising when the fault is really their own and they have attempted to carry out a purpose with inadequate material and with inadequate perseverance. The value of advertising is often entirely lost because it is not persevered with. Again it may be persevered with too long and may lose its effect simply because people may conclude that the thing advertised is of no value because it apparently fails to secure a customer.

There is a vast difference in the manner in which the advertising of a house or a piece of property is to be prosecuted and the manner in which some business or proprietary article is to be pushed. This requires some little knowledge of the subject of advertising. Naturally the first requisite of an ad is that it be expressed in such language as conveys instantly to the mind of the reader the nature and use of the article. Then it must be so expressed as to convince the customer that the article or whatever the thing advertised may be is just the thing he or she wants. If there are many other articles of the same kind on the market the ad must convince the customer that this particular one is the best of them all; that it has qualities none of them possess.

Again no matter how excellent may be the manner in which you have expressed your ad you must place it in the proper medium or your money will be thrown away. You have to reach the public; but you must be sure that you are reaching the right public, the public that is likely to buy the thing you have to sell. Certain newspapers reach certain classes of a community as do certain magazines. One need not use as advertising mediums magazines or papers that go into the homes of people who are opposed to the use of the article you advertise.

Advertising must be reasonably expressed, truthful, conveying the impression that what is claimed for the thing advertised is not only the truth, but the whole truth and nothing but the truth. An advertisement should be attractive; it should place the matter advertised in an alluring light; it should strike the reader in the most sensitive part of his mind and make its appeal irresistible to those who are in a position to purchase or invest.

Above all an advertiser must not have the faint heart. Most of the great successes in advertising have been made just by adding the little more at the psychological moment. Many of the great national advertisers tell of how after having spent a quarter of a million in advertising without great results they were on the eve of giving up and were persuaded to hold on and stake all they had on their campaign and that "little more" was what turned the scale in their favor.

Advertising is like driving a nail. It needs many taps with the hammer to drive the nail home. It is this constant tapping that finally brings the result. It is cumulative. One blow succeeds another and the sum of the whole is what produces the effect. It is folly to begin advertising without mapping out a campaign and adhering to it, or without having a definite idea of what financial appropriation one is justified in spending in this way. When all these things have been considered and arranged the results of advertising may be counted on with almost mathematical certainty.

PEOPLE ARE SLOW TO LEARN

Evidence is everywhere about us that people are slow to learn. Thousands of citizens of Los Angeles County know more about flood dangers than they did before the rain of ten days ago. The course of water channels in many parts of the county was entirely changed. Property that heretofore was pronounced as safe from damage by floods, was washed away, or nearly so. Citizens of this country are being taught by the action of the floods that damage may come to almost any part of the county, and that what is for the interest of one community in the way of fortifying against floods, is also for the interest of all or near-by communities.

They say that it is impossible to understand how the Bayard could lose her masts as there has been no heavy weather since Sunday. It is hinted that there has been some "spy" work here.

A MESSAGE OF TRUST AND OBEDIENCE

The Monday Night Guard gathered at the Presbyterian church on Monday night for the message from Dr. Pratt on "Trust and Obedience." The authority of the message was from Second Kings, 4:1-7. The widow and her two sons. She was a minister's widow in dire distress who went to the prophet Elisha, God's representative, for help in her extremity. She knew where to take her troubles, so many do not know. The press teems with accounts of those who do not know, so they try to end it all in suicide. The enemy of souls leads men into trouble that he may persuade them thus to end it. God gave Elisha supernatural powers to use for this widow, because she had sufficient trust in him to come to him. God knows our every need, but we must bring them to him with a willingness to trust him, use the resources he has given us, and depend entirely on him.

Our poverty is God's opportunity to bestow his riches; with nothing of our own we are just where God can help us. God can use only empty vessels, as he pours in, he is asking that we pour out. This widow was obedient to the letter, the blessing was poured out to the extent of her expectation. Obedience is found to bring results, God has pledged himself that it shall. When a believer is filled he unfaillingly overflows in testimony of God's goodness, this is his normal condition. This widow's trust and obedience brought safety to her sons, paid her debts, and gave her enough to live upon the remainder of her life.

Many believers testified that God had never failed them when they were willing to trust and obey him in this day when the world is saying it can't be done. They are not willing to trust him to do so.

LYONS-PATTERSON

This evening is the date chosen by Miss Alice Patterson and George Lyons for their marriage, which is to be solemnized by Rev. E. H. Willisford at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Minnie Patterson of 1443 Riverdale Drive.

The unattended bride will be given into the groom's keeping by her brother, Earl F. Patterson, the service being said before an improvised altar of greenery, potted plants and white blossoms, this same decoration being observed throughout the house. Lady Marion carnations being abundantly employed in showers. Unusually lovely will be the bride in her sheer veil wreathed in orange blossoms falling gracefully over her gown of white bridal satin and point lace. Her shower bouquet to be of white roses and hyacinths.

Miss Irma H. Patterson, sister of the bride, will play the Lohengrin wedding march as the couple enter and soft strains of music during the service. An elaborate buffet supper, white and green predominating, the confectons, wedding cake and ices all carrying out the dainty color scheme. Guests present will number a full fifty.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyons will leave immediately for Coronado, where the honeymoon will be spent.

The bride's going-away gown is a natty suit of blue, with accessories to match and chic hat of white.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Lyons will reside at 1459 Riverdale Drive, which the groom has recently decorated and furnished for his bride.

The Turkish government explains that it "removed" a number of Armenians, without, however, mentioning the destination.

PROHIBITION BILLS

WIDE VARIETY OF LIQUOR LEGISLATION—RANDALL LEADS WITH FIVE BILLS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25.—(Special Correspondence)—Every conceivable sort of prohibition legislation has been proposed in the present Congress, ranging from dry summer camps in the forest reserves to a nation-wide drouth. About twenty bills have been introduced, but Randall of California leads all with five measures, dealing with the use of the mails to advertise liquor, divesting liquor of all interstate-commerce privileges, prohibiting issuance of federal liquor licenses except with provision that no sale shall be for beverage purposes, excluding liquor from all National parks and forest reserves, and barring employment in the civil service of the United States of any person who drinks intoxicating liquors.

It was quite a joke when Congressman Sabath of Chicago dropped his bill in the hopper. It proved to be about as "dry" as Chicago is on any day but the Sabbath, and Sabath, notwithstanding his name, is just as wet as Chicago is. His little bill prohibits the sale of liquors to boys and girls under 21, when they are away out on the ocean. That's all!

The District of Columbia will surely be voted dry this time, for, in addition to the fact that six or seven members have written that kind of legislation, it's on the boards as good political doctrine this year. The old parties are not anxious to put dry planks in their platforms, but they would like to get into the good graces of the "dry" voters. Result—make the District of Columbia dry quick, and claim the reward!

The National Constitutional Amendment has been reintroduced this year worded just as it was in the last session, when it received a majority of eight votes in the House. It reads:

"The Sale, Manufacture for Sale, importation for sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes in the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof, and exportation thereof, are forever prohibited."

This will be known as the Sheppard-Webb bill, Senator Sheppard of Texas and Representative Webb being its sponsors. They are two of the ablest men in Congress. The big fight will be to get a vote on this amendment.

Abercrombie of Alabama and Randall of California have clashed over their bills to prohibit the use of the mails for liquor advertising of any kind. Abercrombie would stop mailings going to dry states only, while Randall would strike the business out of the mails everywhere. The Solicitor of the Postoffice Department today announced that Randall's bill could be enforced, but that the other could not be, because of the endless confusion involved in properly instructing 60,000 postmasters and thousands of other employees as to proper and improper mailings under it.

Senator Owen wants authority to issue search warrants for liquors—in the eastern district of Oklahoma, to suppress the traffic among Indians. Senator Gronna of South Dakota would make Hawaii dry, and the Senate actually voted yesterday to make the Philippines dry so far as taking in outside liquors is concerned.

Morrison of Indiana would prohibit importation of liquor from one state into another with the mild penalty of losing all "title, claim and interest" in the liquor, should it be discovered before the violator drank it. Randall's bill on the same subject divests liquor of its interstate character, making all state lines the dead wall and provides a penalty of $1,000 and two years; the second offense will call for five years in jail.

Caraway of Texas would have a liquor dealer put up in oil colors or gilded a sign with the name of the owner in letters three inches high.

Several bills provide that government licenses shall not be sold in dry territory. Randall's bill on this subject provides that a local license must be exhibited which specifically prohibits any sale for beverage purposes, before a government license can be issued. The effect of this is National Prohibition by legislative enactment, requiring only a majority vote. It retains the Internal Revenue machinery of the government to enforce the law. Some Prohibitionists want the entire Internal Revenue Act repealed, which would throw the liquor business onto the states with no federal law to restrain it. Under Randall's plan the liquor seller would still be subject to Uncle Sam's penalty of one thousand dollars for blind-pigging, yet the government would issue no license where the sales were to be for beverage purposes. The enactment of this law would deprive the treasury of about two hundred and thirty-five million dollars internal revenue taxes on liquors, and of course for that reason it cannot pass at this session. The big fight for this law will come in the next Congress. Randall proposes to replace the revenue deficiency with a high sur-tax on incomes above ten thousand dollars.

The Ontario rancher who has just purchased $70,000 worth of blooded cattle must take the ranch business quite seriously.

Although trains are running between Berlin and Constantinople there are lots of people who would be glad to upset the schedule.

Delegates will be present from the 14 Adventist churches in Los Angeles, and from Pasadena, Whittier, Glendale, Burbank, San Fernando, Long Beach, San Luis Obispo and many other places in the southern part of the state. E. E. Andross, of Glendale, president of the Pacific Union Conference of the Seventh-day Adventists, having jurisdiction over the states of California, Arizona, Nevada and Utah, and Western Colorado, will be present, and take a leading part in the conference. E. W. Farnsworth, of Oakland, Cal., vice-president of the union field, also will attend. Claude Conard and Prof. M. E. Cady, of Oakland, secretary-treasurer and educational secretary, respectively, of the Pacific Union Conference, and G. W. Reaser, field secretary, are expected. Elder B. E. Beddoe, of Los Angeles, president of the Southern California Conference, will preside at the sessions.

Other leading members of the denomination who will be present are: B. M. Emerson, Los Angeles, secretary-treasurer Southern California Conference; Clyde Lowry, Los Angeles; F. I. Richardson, Long Beach; H. G. Lucas, San Fernando; V. H. Lucas, Pasadena; J. W. Adams, G. A. Snyder, Los Angeles; E. A. Brown, H. S. Preter, San Fernando; H. F. Rand, J. H. Rogers, Los Angeles; F. R. Shaeffer, G. A. Rauleder.

HOW TO MAKE GOOD

Dr. James R. Pratt has a message for men, "How to Make Good." He will bring it at the evening hour of worship at the Presbyterian Church tonight at 7:30. This is Brotherhood night, all men are invited to occupy reserved seats. A cordial welcome will be lacking to none, the message is to women and children as well as men. The music, under the direction of Miss Irwin, will be inspiring.

Wednesday is the great day of these pre-communion services, a day of prayer and praise. Rev. W. E. Edmonds will have the first hour, 10:30 to 11:30; Rev. John Hunter of the Los Angeles Bible Institute from 11:30 to 12:30. A social hour and "help yourself" lunch at noon. A special prayer service from 1:30 to 2:00; at 2:00 o'clock Dr. Pratt will take the hour for the study on prayer. Let nothing keep anyone from hearing this wonderful message. Bring your Bible, read the 20th chapter Second Chronicles before you come. This is the time and place for inspiration, an uplift and a great blessing. The afternoon cottage prayer meetings and evening services will be continued throughout the week leading up to the communion and reception of new members either by letter or confession of faith.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Wednesday evening, at 7:45 o'clock, the first of the three pre-communion services will be held. Rev. Daniel T. Thomas will be the speaker. He will have for a topic, "The Life of Prayer." Mr. Thomas is a man of pleasing personality, and of deep spiritual power. The church choir will be present to lead in the singing.

The topic of the pastor's sermon last Sunday morning on "Enlarging the Bible" was of much interest and profit. The subject more fully stated was "How to Enlarge Your Knowledge of the Bible." The speaker emphasized especially three things: First—By a larger knowledge of the Bible; Second—By a larger use of the Bible; Third—By experiencing more of the teachings of the Bible in the daily life. "To know the words of the Bible is important, but to know and experience its spirit is vastly more important. The people were urged to study the "Old Book" and practice its teachings.

THE WIND
 I saw you toss the kites on high
 And blow the birds about the sky;
 And all around I heard you pass,
 Like ladies' skirts across the grass—
 O wind, a-blowing all day long,
 O wind, that sings so loud a song!

I saw the different things you did,
 But always you yourself you hid.
 I felt you push, I heard you call,
 I could not see yourself at all—
 O wind, a-blowing all day long,
 O wind, that sings so loud a song!

O you that are so strong and cold,
 O blower, are you young or old?
 Are you a beast of field and tree
 Or just a stronger child than me?
 O wind, a-blowing all day long,
 O wind, that sings so loud a song.
 —Robert Louis Stevenson.

INDIANS SHOW THEIR GRATITUDE

In Anna Howard Shaw's "Story of a Pioneer," are many interesting experiences of the wilderness frontier where she lived as a girl. Speaking of the Indians, she writes:
 "In my first encounter with them I was alone in the woods at sunset with my small brother Harry. We were hunting a cow James had bought, and our young eyes were peering eagerly among the trees, on the alert for any moving object. Suddenly at a little distance, and coming directly toward us, we saw a party of Indians. There were five of them, all men, walking in single file. . . . their moccasined feet causing not even a rustle among the dry leaves that carpeted the woods. . . . Harry was carrying a rope with which we had expected to lead home our reluctant cow, and I seized one end of it and whispered to him that he would 'play horse,' pretending he was driving me. We pranced toward the Indians on feet that felt like lead. . . . but as we passed them they did not give to our little impersonation of care-free children even the tribute of a side-glance. They were, we realized, headed straight for our home; and after a few moments we doubled on our tracks and, keeping at a safe distance from them among the trees, ran back to warn our mother that they were coming.
 "As it happened James was away, and mother had to meet her unwelcome guests supported only by her young children. She at once prepared a meal, however, and when they arrived she welcomed them calmly and gave the best she had. After they had eaten they began to point at and demand objects they fancied in the room . . . and my mother who was afraid to annoy them by refusal, gave them what they asked. Though they left without expressing any appreciation of her hospitality, they made her a second visit a few months later, bringing a large quantity of venison and a bag of cranberries as a graceful return. These Indians were Ottawas; and later we became very friendly with them."

A WATER-LOVING BIRD

The story of the dipper, a bird that loves the water, is told by Oliver G. Pike in his book, "Bird Biographies." The dipper may even build its nest under the dashing water of a small fall, where it has to pass through the water every time it enters or leaves the nest. This bird delights in the water, and it may be seen for hours diving into the swift brooks or running over the stones with the water flowing over its back and wings. It even walks along up the stream, breasting what must seem to it a very strong current of water.
 Mr. Pike knows a dipper's nest under an old bridge. One of the stones had fallen out, not far from the flowing water, and in the space thus left the dipper had made its nest. Mr. Pike happened to be there one day when four baby dippers were learning to fly and swim. He writes: "On a rock in the river the parents sat, bobbing up and down, spreading their wings and calling loudly. Backwards and forwards they went to their young, urging them to follow them." One gave a hop and slipped down into the water, but, not a bit scared at this mishap, he followed his parents, and found to his astonishment that his wings would carry him wherever he wished to go. The other three followed, one giving the quaintest "le hops from stone to stone, as though he did not wish to get his feet wet. One would have

LEGEND OF PEKINESE

All ancient story told in Town and Country relates that the lion, king of the forest, was very fond of a marmoset, which is a small South American monkey. But the lion was so big that the marmoset was afraid of her friend, so the lion went to those who ruled in the forest and said:
 "What can I do? . . . I cannot make my voice small or my body small."
 His answer was: "You must remain as you are; you are the king of the forest—be content."

 But the lion was still unhappy, and at length returned to plead his cause once more. He asked to be turned into some other shape; he did not care what shape so long as he became small like the marmoset.
 And then the rulers said: "We must humiliate you to a certain extent for not being satisfied that you are the glorious monarch of the forest, and we will give you the shape of a dog, small and shapely."
 The lion was much pleased when he found himself changed into a small dog with a mane and small loins. They told him: "You will start a new kind of dog—you will have a face of a lion and mane and body of a lion, and be tawny, and your color will be of the sun, and forever and ever you will be known as the 'lion dog.'"
 And so began the Pekinese breed of Chinese dogs who are centuries old and are still called "lion dogs."

CAMPING OUTFIT ON WHEELS

Few cars are more fully equipped for touring than one driven by a Michigan motorist who does much overland traveling. It is a six-cylinder, seven-passenger machine that has been fitted with many ingenious and utilitarian devices which make it a veritable camping outfit on wheels.
 It is provided with very complete cooking facilities, has hot and cold running water, a disappearing dining table, a refrigerator capable of holding enough provisions for two days, a double hammock bed, and abundant storage space. With these accessories the tourist may travel for hundreds of miles in comfort without planning his itinerary to include towns with good hotels for night stops.
 The dining table is fitted to the top and back of the front seat. Beneath this is a refrigerator which is drained through the floor of the car. The luncheon kit is of the suitcase type and includes vacuum bottles, all necessary dishes for serving several persons, and silverware. A dust-proof trunk is carried on a baggage rack at the rear. This is of sufficient size to hold three suitcases, thereby eliminating the discomfort which comes with crowding the tonneau. On the left running board is a special tool box in which various accessories, including a rubber vulcanizer, are packed. The tires are pumped and the upholstery cleaned by means of a four-cylinder pump permanently mounted with the motor.
 When driving through city streets a small electric warning signal is used, but on country roads a powerful marine horn is employed. The car naturally is equipped with an electric starter and lights. In addition to the usual lighting equipment, however, there is a dome lamp for illuminating the interior of the machine at night when a stop is made and it is desired to read or write. Roller shades that may be operated from the driver's seat dim the headlights for city use, while a green pilot lamp, mounted on the left fender, assists approaching motorists to pass safely on narrow roads at night. A searchlight is also attached to the windshield of the driver's side of the car.
 A hammock bed is designed to be hung lengthwise of the car above the seats. The right half of this may be set up so that one person may sleep while the car is driven by another. A lavatory is provided on the left running board, as well as a dish washer. A cold-water tank contains water for drinking and cooking purposes, and also supplies the radiator.

HOW COWS AND HORSES GET UP

How cows and horses get up? Lots of people don't know, and perhaps some people think that both animals behave in the same way. But a cow always rises first on her hind legs, leaning on her "elbows" in front; and a horse, on the other hand, rises high on his forelegs first, sitting back for a moment just like a dog.—Detroit Free Press.

FLOODS IN SONOMA

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Jan. 24.—Floods in Sonoma county inundated considerable territory today. The electric railway tracks between Santa Rosa and Sebastopol are under water and many bridges are threatened.
 Mexico forbids the importation of opium. Apparently Carranza is tired of doped revolutionists.

supposed that he had on his best shoes. And so down the river they all went, bobbing and skipping and diving over the stones and pebbles and along the smooth sandy river bed."

THREE ODD DESSERTS

Maids of Honor, from the White House Cook Book: Take one cup of sweet milk and one cup of sour milk, put in a double boiler over boiling water and let stand long enough to set the curd. When set, strain off the milk and rub the curd through a sieve. Add to it a tablespoon of melted butter, a cup of sugar, yolks of four eggs, juice of one lemon and a little of the grated peel. Have ready tartlet pans, lined with puff paste crimped at the edges; after beating the mixture, pour it into the tarts and bake.

Pineapple Pie: Line a deep pie plate with puff paste, and crimp the edge. Grate one fresh pineapple and add its weight in sugar, half its weight in butter, a cup of cream, the yolks of five eggs and the whites of three eggs. Mix well, pour into the crust and bake like lemon pie. When done have the whites beaten stiffly with a little powdered sugar and spread over the top, returning it to the oven long enough to lightly brown the meringue. The pie may be eaten hot or cold.

Meringue Pudding: Beat to a stiff froth the whites of three fresh eggs, with one pound of sugar. Add the juice and grated rind of one lemon. Put a layer of sponge cake in the bottom of a glass dish, then a layer of the meringue and repeat the layers until the meringue is used up. Dot the surface with candied cherries and chill well before serving.

ONE MAN VILLAGES

It only takes one man to make a village, as is illustrated by the village of Skiddaw, in Cumberland, England. Its one villager complains because he cannot vote, but this is impossible where there is no one to prepare a voter's list and no public building in which to publish the list as the law requires. In a Northumberland village there is also a single inhabitant who refuses to pay for the upkeep of the roads because that which passes his own farm is plenty good enough for him. The 12 inhabitants of another village have no roads, no rates, no public institutions of any kind.

WHERE REINDEER WORK

Many people have an idea that reindeer are more ornamental than useful, says the Detroit Free Press, but they have a very wrong idea of the pretty animal. The reindeer fills many requirements and is very useful. In the far north it is a beast of burden and proves itself fleet, strong and obedient. Reindeer herds, under the guidance of the United States government, are filling an important place in the lives of the natives of Alaska. Some years ago a missionary to Labrador imported a herd of reindeer into that country. The animals have proved nothing short of a boon to the dwellers in that place.
 Following success with the animals there, the Canadian government shipped a herd from Labrador to the Meckenzie district in northern Canada, where climatic conditions very much resemble those in Alaska and Labrador. Owing to the long trip by steamer, rail, scow-boat and trail, the animals were forced to travel 4000 miles.

NOTICE OF STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING

Notice is hereby given to the stockholders of the Bank of Glendale, a corporation, that the Board of Directors of said corporation, at its regular meeting held on Tuesday, December 14th, 1915, duly passed a resolution calling a meeting of the stockholders of the Bank of Glendale to be held in the Directors' Room of the Banking House of said bank, located on the Southeast corner of Broadway and Glendale Avenue in the City of Glendale, County of Los Angeles, State of California, on Tuesday, February 15th, 1916, at the hour of 4 o'clock p. m., for the pur-

EAGLE ROCK

Mr. A. Witham of East Colorado boulevard, who was injured some time ago by falling from the roof of a house on which he was working, is at his home now and has about recovered.
 During this "unusual" weather we have noticed at least three or four large autos in this vicinity which got stuck in the mud and had to be pulled out by ropes and horses.

Mr. and Mrs. James Fitzgibbon, who have been living in one of the Harvard Court bungalows, have rented one of J. Crego's houses on West Myrtle avenue and are occupying it now.

A large number of young people from the Christian Endeavor society spent a most pleasant evening last week Saturday at the home of Bertha Buck on Eddy avenue. Various games and music took up the evening and delicious refreshments were served.

F. J. Moll has returned to his home here, having been to Catalina on business. Mr. Moll owns considerable property on this island and makes trips back and forth frequently.

It might be of interest to many friends and acquaintances of Sam Van Orden Prichard, formerly a student at Occidental College, to learn that he has been awarded a Cecil Rhodes Scholarship at Cambridge by the board of examiners in San Francisco.

A speaker from the Los Angeles Community Training school for Sunday School workers was out Wednesday evening and delivered a very good talk to a large crowd of interested people at the M. E. Church.

The religious census was taken Saturday afternoon by the three leading churches here. Each church sent out 15 members and each group headed by a captain, to canvas the whole city. The results have not been brought to the light yet, as it will take considerable time to sum them all up.

Miss Cory, who is employed at Beverly Hills, was a Sunday guest of Rev. and Mrs. Martin Post of Ridgeway avenue. The former and latter are sisters.

Among those of our citizens who have been entertaining the gripe the past week or so are Mrs. M. Post of Ridgeway avenue, Mrs. E. Lawton of East Adams avenue, Mrs. A. D. Crow of Harvard Drive, Mrs. Walter Brown of West Colorado boulevard, Rev. Creswell of Highland avenue, and Mrs. Hall of Myrtle avenue.

The Cash Grocery has a new Ford delivery auto.

If the rains do not interfere the members of the Twentieth Century club plan to plant the clubhouse grounds some afternoon of this week. This will be a decided improvement and should add much to the attractiveness of the building.

We are very glad to note the improvement of city mail delivery service the past week or two, and hope it shall continue to improve.

A number from the different Sunday Schools in Eagle Rock are attending the Los Angeles Community Training School for Sunday School workers, which is being held at the Y. W. C. A. building under the direction of several of the best Bible teachers obtainable in California. Every Monday evening since Jan. 10 to March inclusive these helpful meetings are held.

Very surprised indeed were the people of Eagle Rock when they learned of the tragic death of Mrs. Farnam, who ended her life Thursday afternoon by taking poison in a rest room in one of the downtown stores at which she was employed. The maid in charge of the rest rooms heard a moaning in one of the rooms and found Mrs. Farnam lying on a couch and in terrible agony. She was at once taken to the emergency hospital, where she partly revived and declared she did not want to die and begged to be saved. She told the attendants she did not understand why she took the fatal dose. When she found out there was no help for her, Mrs. Farnam wished she had given a dose of poison to her little boy, so he could die with her.
 Mrs. Farnam and little son had recently come to Eagle Rock and lived with her sister, Mrs. Alexander of West Park avenue. Besides the boy, who is about seven years old, and the sister, Mrs. Farnam leaves her husband, who happened to be out of town on business when her death occurred. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to this sorrowing family.
