NEW ORLEANS MONDAY MORNING, JUNE 27, 1864.

MONDAY MORNING JUNE 27,

American Soldier Takes Duty.

At 12 o'clock, General Butler, Major General, took command of the New Orleans garrison, and assumed the responsibility of the defense of the city.

This day, at 12 o'clock, McRae & Laddie, with Purvis, Pease, and others, under Major General, took command of the New Orleans garrison.

Franz's Fudge Cookies Last.—Whereas it is known that the fudge cookies of Franz's Fudge Cookies have been powerfully recommended by both by memory and conversation, in many cases, as being the best in the world, it is now known that they are, in fact, made by the same man, and are to be had at the original Franz's Fudge Cookies last, 120 Royal Street.

Cognac Cakes and Paper Cooks of the Frenchman have, from New York, our thanks for courteous and acceptable attention.

Arrival of the Yacht.—The steamer "Yacht" came from New York yesterday morning, and will be at the New Orleans wharf about noon to-day. The complement of the crew will be in place.

The steamer which, through the news upgrated from Port Hudson was probably Levitan or Empress, one or both of which may be early this morning.
