ORDINANCE IS NOT FAIR SAYS STEPHENSON

Councilman Attacks Proposed Plan Prevent Burning Rubbish

ACTION WAS DEFERRED

Hours 6 to 10 a. m. Will Work Hardship on Residents Working in City

The ordinance regulating burning rubbish in the city limits was discussed by the council last night and held over for one week for action. The ordinance prohibits burning rubbish in the business district and sets the hours for burning in the residence district between 6 and 10 a. m.

Councilman Stephenson refused to vote on the ordinance as it stands, declaring that the average man living in Glendale and working in Los Angeles burns the rubbish at his home on Saturday afternoon. Under the new ordinance this would be prohib-

He scored the clause making it unlawful to burn rubbish in the business district at any time. According to Mr. Stephenson, by permitting business men to burn their rubbish in the rear of their stores it would be a means of lessening trouble caused the city by the hauling away of trash and would save considerable money for the city in the matter of hiring men for the trash wagons.

Sanitary Inspector Hollenbeck was called and spoke upholding the proposed ordinance as it is, saying that burning trash in the business district should be prohibited for sanitary rea-The matter will be discussed by the committee of the whole at the next meeting.

GLENDALE'S POST BE IN FOCH PARADE

World War Leader to be in Los Angeles on Dec. 5th is Report Now

Glendale Post No. 127 will be represented in the parade in honor of Marshal Foch, French hero of the World War when he arrives in Los James Mc-Angeles on December 5. Bryde, Al Moniot and Rev. Calder-wood were appointed a committee at the meeting of the local post Friday night to meet Marshal Foch, in Los Angeles on his arrival and to take part in the parade as a unit in the marshal's guard.

One candidate was initiated and the regular order of business was rushed through to give the Legionairies time to enjoy the seven reels of pictures that were to be shown. The feature of the evening was the production of Mary Pickford in "The Hoodlum," one reel of pictures of the Armistice day parade was also shown. This picture is the property of the Glendale Post

No. 127 of the American Legion.
The drive for membership is still on and going strong. According to Emil Kiefer, commander of the Glendale post, it is to the interest of every former service man to become a mem ber of the Legion as the organization can be of great assistance to them in securing aid through the Home and Farm Loan Act recently passed by the state legislature and effective within a short time. The Legion is also proving of value to the members in the matter of handling war risk insurance and the matter of readjusting compensations.

ARREST TWELVE IN MURDER MYSTERY

OAKLAND, Nov. 26.-Twelve persons, two of them women, have been jailed as a result of the murder of Mrs. Amanda Pfankuchen, who was Prepared With Big Holiday found lying dead in her kitchen on October 15 by her attorney, Howard J. Piersoll. Mrs. Pfankuchen had a mania, according to Piersoll, for investing all her funds in diamonds. She is said to have had $25,000 worth of diamonds in her possession. None of them have been found, although every possible hiding place in the house has been searched thoroughly by the police.

LOCAL MERCHANTS READY FOR BIG RUSH

Stocks in All Lines of Business

Christmas shopping in Glendale starts off with every prospect of exceeding all previous records. It is quite reasonable to expect that Glendale merchants will realize better holiday sales this year than ever before. Why this will be so is due to several causes, namely, quite an increase in ter selected stocks and stocks bought feature of the show will be a penny in such a manner that they can meet the prices charged in the city minus the expense and time of going to the city and lower rentals is also an im-

TOURNAMENT OF HORSESHOE PITCHERS IS ON

Some of State's Best Hurlers Are in for Championship Game

SOME ARE SCIENTIFIC One Man Knows Number of Revolutions of Shoe to Hit Peg

Members of the State Horseshoe Pitchers' Association are engaged in the last day of the annual state championship tournament and some of the best shoe hurling talent in the southern part of the state has turned out to throw "wicked hoof covering" for the championship title.

There is Gilman Hoyt for instance. Hovt comes from Long Beach and is a student at the University of California and figures things, even sport, from a scientific angle. He has an ambition to be the state champion horseshoe hurler and in a recent un-official game he defeated the present holder of the title.

The science of pitching a horse shoe has been figured out so accurately by young Hoyt that he knows exactly how many times a shoe turns around from the time it leaves his hand until it settles down over the Every time he throws a shoe it lands with the points, or toes, pointing toward the stake.

G. M. E. Jensen of Long Beach is another man that is figured by the "dopesters" to run up a high score. Jensen pitches a consistent game, averaging about three ringers out of five throws. When he and Gilman Hoyt play against each other, fans witness a pretty contest.

W. R. Bradfield of Long Beach and Billy Crick of Newark are also figured as high point men. Entrants who registered for the first day of play were H. C. Thomas, William Beck, William Honer, Bert Fickes, J. H. Pearson, W. F. Reid, C. B. Thomas, George Dickerson, A. F. LANDRU, STUNNED BY What Every Husband Knows. HEAP OF EVIDENCE AGAINST HIM

Scores of Human Bones Found on His Estate Says Physician

VERSAILLES, France, Nov. 26.— Stunned by the sudden bolt of strong prosecuting evidence, Henri Landru, the "Bluebeard of Gambais," hunched down, silent, in his seat in court here today and for the first time since the opening of the trial, he had no cross fire to counter the claims of the prosecution. Doctor Gauvenez, an expert, testified that the charred bodies found in the ash heap at Landru's Gambais villa were those of "The teeth from three of the bodies indicated the bodies were burned," Dr. Gauvenez declared. "There were also some domestic animal's bones found in the same pile."

This corroborated the damaging testimony of Dr. Paul, who told the court that hundreds of fragments of the human structure, including 150 from human skulls, 47 from human teeth and 45 from human hands were found in three places on the Gam-bais estate. This proved that at least three human beings had been disposed of there, he said.

AMERICA IS FED UP ON ALL JAZZ MUSIC

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 .- Is America tiring of "jazz" music, as American popular music is termed?

That is a question which is en-gaging the attention of theatrical men and professional musicians as well as the amusement seeking public in general, as a result of the au-nouncement of Oscar Radin, conduc-tor of "Blossom Time," a musical show based on incidents in the life of Franz Schubert, the celebrated composer, that his orchestra would play Schubert's celebrated "Unfin ished" symphony as entracte music at the performances of the play. Mr. Radin states that it is the result of popular demand, for several strains from the symphony are em-ployed as themes for the musical accompaniment of the operetta. Many of Schubert's songs are sung during the action of the piece, including "Serenade" and others.

DO IT

Build that house now; construct that highway at once; build that school, that church, repair that broken pavement; build that garage, and even that chicken coop, now-not tomor-

Go ahead with your plans; speed the nation on the road to full employment and thus hasten the day of individual and national prosperity and safety.

Préach this everywhere; put it into effect, and remember, business men of Glendale, men of "big business" and men of "little business," that there is something in this infinitely higher and more important than the small amount of money involved which you think you could save by waiting.

Some men put off the day of salvation, expecting to attend to it on their death bed, but not many ever succeed in doing it at that hour. "Do it now, and do it with all your might," should be the motto of every man in Glendale who expects to do any construction work in the near future. "Do it now," and thus do your part toward individual and national business salvation—and even more.

Procrastination is more than the thief of time; it is the murderer of opportunity.

in a man's power; genius is that in whose power a man is.-James Russell Lowell (1819-1889).

JAPAN SEEKS FRIENDSHIP

According to one correspondent at least, Japan seeks the friendship of the world; desires the world to have confidence in the honorable intent of the Japanese.

There seems no insuperable obstacle. Japan is more than welcome to the friendship of the world. Such friendship would be thrust upon it were the opportunity afforded.

The powers are looking for peace. Friendship must be the basis of any permanent peace. Otherwise peace is nothing but an armed truce.

The Japanese now at Washington should be given to understand that there is also attending there a bevy of correspondents bent upon sowing the seeds of racial hatred; that these correspondents do not represent public opinion but merely the opinion of their employer, and that for this opinion Americans have no respect.

The sincere desire of the United States is for peace on a solid foundation of understanding and amity. Touching naval disarmament the terms of the United States have been given frankly. If Japan accepts them such course will be deemed evidence of good faith, and a step will have been taken in the direction of the friendship for which Japan expresses desire.

THE ANGLO-JAP ALLIANCE

Lord Northcliffe is one powerful Englishman who desires abrogation of the alliance with Japan. It happens that Northcliffe is not a favorite in his own country just now. He has a frankness that is appalling to the people of a nation inclined to be re-While on occasion he may be mistaken, he never fails to let the public know what he thinks.

Northcliffe says that alliance is hurtful to China, prejudicial to Anglo-American relations, unpopular in the British domains and even harmful to Japan. If he is able to demonstrate all this, the alliance will be left without excuse for existence. Regardless of the opinion of the English publisher, it may be said that a compact strictly between two nations, when both of these nations are party to an agreement embracing themselves and a third power, would be a singular anomoly. In fact, it is not easy to see what legal or moral right the two-party compact could have in the circumstances.

The United States opened the conference by showing its hand. There was no possibility of concealment nor of double purpose. In consonance with the spirit thus manifested, the dissolution of the old alliance must follow as a matter of course.

VICTORY IN DOUBT

Moving picture censors in Pasadena forbade the exhibiting of a certain film. The management of the house thus inconvenienced procured an injunction forbidding interference with the show. It was a temporary injunction, to be sure, but the advertised stay of the picture also was temporary.

A judge of the superior court, having issued the injunction, witnessed a display of the film in order to decide whether to make the injunction permanent. Evidently the picture did not please him greatly for he dissolved the injunction.

Meanwhile the picture had been an attraction for the stated time, and had passed on to other fields, and to the consideration of other censors.

The censor won in principle, and the show people won in fact. Just how to apportion the laurels of victory is a puzzle. Perhaps on a fifty-fifty basis.

HIGH-HEELED SLIPPERS

High heels are approved alone by the persons wearing them. Artists condemn them as inartistic. Doctors say they displace various organs too valuable to be thus treated with impunity. Insurance companies denounce them as the cause of accidents. Transportaion companies know them as the reason for many an action at law.

Nevertheless, while fashion decrees the wearing of the high heels, no other consideration counts. Such heels will be worn, and the resultant breakage of bones be regarded as an episode, unfortunate but in no sense reformatory.

Recently a lady of 65 had the mischance to stumble and tumble down stairs. In her suit for damages she averred that the stairway was ill lighted. The defendant set forth that the plaintiff had been stilting along on lofty heels. The court considered gravely. It is embarrassing to tell a lady what she ought to wear. This is particularly true when the lady has reached an age that ordinarily might be regarded as discreet. The plaintiff lost. Clearly enough, if feminine price leads to the wearing of high heels, and the high heels lead to a fall, there is nothing to be done about it. Excepting, of course, the extending of sympathy, and the admonition to adopt a different

THE SCHOLAR

A few days ago, Dr. George N. Burnham died in Pomona. He was visiting a sister there. Dr. Burnham was a professor in the University of Cincinnati. Of him Prof. Hale of Yale had said, "I regard Prof. Burnham as the leading authority on Latin in the world." He was a profound scholar, so recognized by educational leaders everywhere.

Dr. Burnham's name was not familiar to the average reader. He has created no great stir. In the play of intelligence as it illumes the mind of the thinker, there is little of the spectacular. Yet such a mentality as that of Burnham cannot represent lost energy. It is not as a torch in remote places, wasting its light. Other minds, smaller minds, brought within play of its ura, partake of, and in turn reflect the wisdom perceived there.

When a teacher in the course of his career comes into intimate contact with students, if he is a great teacher, he gives to each an uplift and an impetus. The force of his intellectual processes serves as a dynamo. It becomes an incentive to thought. It takes plastic material and shapes it into enduring character.

The value of the scholar, the man who pursues, achieves and loves knowledge, is beyond all calculation. There is no way of tracing its influence. Doubtless this influence finds expression in a thousand different ways, even effecting lives of those who may be unaware as to the source of their in-

FORCE OF DISBARMENT

A young attorney who rejoiced in the title of criminal lawyer, and doubtless to some extent, in the emoluments thereunto pertaining, had the mischance to be disbarred. Such an experience is far from being sought by any attorney. It is likely to break his direct connection with crime, and to cause a hiatus in the procession of fees.

The attorney in question cannot try a case at the bar. He takes his faithful typewriter in hand and proceeds to try a case in the public prints. Under the guise of giving an unbiased account, he appears for the defendant. He points to what he conceives to the errors of the state, very much as he would do if he retained the old privileges. His new position gives him certain advantages, as there is no judge to restrain him.

If a disbarred lawyer may not plead in court, and yet is given the right to plead direct to the public, the force of disbarment is less than had been supposed. Ordinarily the lawyer subjected to such ordeal, is glad enough to keep out of the limelight. If he chooses to do otherwise, perhaps there is nothing to be done about it.

DARING DEATH

Many of the "death daring" feats proclaimed by circus posters really fall short of the description. Some of them are as safe as the act of mowing the family lawn. In creating movie thrillers, however, there are stunts that require the utmost courage, and that not infrequently result fatally. There does not seem to be much sense in this risking of human life.

A few days ago one of the "stunt" actors tried to ride the stream projected through a dam by the force of the water behind the structure. His brains were dashed out as the stream hurled him against solid

Not long before this, an actor had been killed in trying to pass from an automobile to an airplane, both mechanisms being in rapid motion. More recently another actor essayed the same useless venture, and survived. In all probability he will yet be killed in the attempt to do something else equally

DISARMAMENT IMPOSSIBLE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

President Harding, in a letter which he wrote to Miss Ella T. Freed of Brooklyn, in reply to her communication urging him to work for complete disarmament, said that while he was in favor of "reasonable limitation of armaments," he feared that "universal disarmament is beyond the hope of realization, and even its desirability at this time might well be questioned."

This is perfectly true. That is to say, it is perfectly true that with the conditions as they are, with the world disorganized as it is at present, disarmament is impossible.

But when the President adds that "thousands of years of history, recording the wars and controversies of mankind, suggest that human nature would have to undergo a revolutionary reorganization to make universal disarmament possible," he is, with all due respect to his high office, emitting

As it has often been asserted, the cause of wars is not human nature. It is not human nature for one population to go up and slaughter a neighboring population. It is not human nature for people to leave their families and their business to go out and kill each other. If it be human nature, it is human nature as assassination, theft, and blasphemy are human nature. That is to say, it is a perverted and minor portion of human nature, which it is the business of individuals and of society to repress, to punish and correct as much as possible, business the world has, although imperfectly, succeeded measurably in

The cause of war is precisely the same as the cause of street fights. It is the lack of police, which means the lack of government.

The reason why it is true that disarmament is impracticable at the present time is simply that the United States refused to join the Allies at the close of the war in such a co-operative association of nations as would render wars impossible.

And so long as there is no court in the world to settle disputes between nations and no interna-tional constabulary to enforce the decrees of that court, just so long will the fields of earth be arenas of carnage, and the seas graves of shattered fleets. So long as each citizen carries his own revolver, sword, or bowie knife and wreaks his private vengeance according to his own notions of justice, just so long will the city be a barbaric camp and not an ordered mart. And just so long as each nation keeps up its own army and navy ready to fight any other nation; so long as each individual nation refuses to acknowledge any canon of justice except its own sense of honor; so long as the nations cannot agree to come together and find some sort of international police, just so long will the insane rivalry of national armaments continue to play havoc with the commerce of the world and periodically to take its toll of humanity's first-born.

This is the plain, simple truth, the remorseless logic that some time or other we shall have to ac-

Possibly you have heard of Procrustes. If you have not, you may think he was a movie

Or from the name a new brand of shortening. But he was neither.

The probability is you have heard of him. And you may have an indistinct recollection of something about a bed.

The bed of Procrustes. To which allusion is often made.

If you did not for the moment recall Procrustes it would be nothing to your discredit. The history of the world and of life is stored with many names and dates and incidents and

It would be too much to expect any one person to remember all of them.

So we will explain that Procrustes was a robber of ancient Greece. Legendary, but there was perhaps some foundation for the legend. And the legend is that he captured victims of his predatory lust and took them to a cave-or some

Where he had a bed. On which he laid his captives.

If they were too long for the bed he sawed off their legs to make them fit the bed exactly. And if they were too short he racked them until they fitted.

Procrustes had a ghastly sense of humor.

But in the main he disposed of his captives. Which was his legendary object. And the bed served its purpose. For the probability is that no one fitted it ex-

The object of the humane person would have been to make an adjustable bed. And to make the individual comfortable by

There is in the world today evidence of the Procrustean tendency.

To measure people by a foot rule. Or to weigh them on scales of preconceived

Some of us are distinctly Procrustean in our judgments.

We have a Procrustean bed of thinking. Preconceived notion. On which we lay our friends and acquaintances and people generally. And we accept them or reject them as they fit the bed or not.

We have certain fixed beliefs.

Fixed as the Procrustean bed. And we measure our acquaintances by these fixed beliefs and notions of ours. We seek to cut them off if they are too long for the bed. And to rack them if they are too short.

Intolerance and bigotry are two of the four posts of the Procrustean bed of thinking. Many of us lack tolerance.

Our notions are fixed and determined and hard and unyielding. And we expect others to measure up or down to

There is a Procrustean tendency, too, in edu-

To make the student fit the bed instead of seeking to make the bed in some degree fit the student. And there is a Procrustean tendency in creed. Which seeks often to shape the individual instead of to develop him.

We forget that people are not exactly weighable or measurable or determinable. That they are living, breathing, thinking, feeling

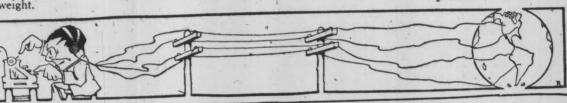

That emotion and predisposition and a lot of things have to be taken into consideration.

That we cannot go out into the market when we want some one to render service and say: "Give me a hundred and forty pounds of human being five feet and nine inches high who can do two and a half horse powers of work in eight hours."

There are many persons who can think of Procrustes only with horror.

And yet whose methods of thinking and acting are distinctly Procrustean. Theirs is the bed Theirs is the rule of thumb.

Theirs is the creed and dogma. And who does not weigh, measure and believe accordingly is anathema. JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Ode On Solitude-Alexander Pope (1688-1744)

Happy the man, whose wish and care A few paternal acres bound, Content to breathe his native air In his own ground.

Whose herds with milk, whose fields with bread, Whose flocks supply him with attire; Whose trees in summer yield him shade, In winter, fire.

Blest, who can unconcernedly find Hours, days and years, slide softly away In health of body, peace of mind, Quiet by day.

Sound sleep by night; study and ease Together mixed, sweet recreation, And innocence, which most does please, With meditation.

Thus let us live, unseen, unknown; Thus unlamented let me die; Steal from the world, and not a stone Tell where I lie.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA E. STEWART

A few months ago a party of would-be pioneers started from one of our large eastern cities. One had gone before to prepare the way. The others what they conceive to be the duty of crowding into had disposed of their property and interests and make for themselves new homes in Idaho. They were interviewed and photographed all along the way. No particular hardships were encountered, save an occasional halt for minor repairs. Their spirit of adventure was widely commented on, and commended as a relief from exorbitant rent paying.

commended as a relief from exorbitant rent paying.

But there wasn't very much of the pioneer spirit in those who composed the caravan, for already they are tired of their bargain. Making new homes in what for them was comparative wilderness, was too hard a task. They were not willing to endure disappointments and hardships and privations in the making. When they found themselves far from supplies and the various household conveniences which had been theirs the spirit of discontent quickly entered the band. Now, they are anxious to get back to the homes they despised. But the distance is long and the price of gasoline has ad-

Comment on the News By HENRY JAMES

Steffansson says he will make another dash for the North Pole next July. There are several things about such an expedi-tion that the layman does not understand. In the first place, he is puzzled as to why a slow, prolonged and generally ineffective journey should be called a "dash." Nobody ever starts for the unknown Arctic strated.

Of course it is necessary to touch upon the matter with reserve. So great a man as Daniel Webster once regarded the whole northwest, now cut into prosperous states as an area of desolation. strated. ous states, as an area of desola-tion not worth even looking at.

Time has proved Daniel's error.

Between any latent wealth that may be secreted around the pole, and the world outside, it is certain that nature has erected a very competent barrier. Dashing against this, and often being dashed to bits in consequence, allures a peculiar and adventurous type of mind.

If after Steffansson has produced the steffans of the steffans

If after Steffansson has prolonged the projected dash through a period of years, he finally discovers the open sea of his dreams, there is a proper curiosity as to what he intends doing with it.

Many Business Matters at Meeting

At the regular meeting of the city | board of trustees Tuesday night, a committee headed by Mr. Cox, appeared before it asking for the improvement of Varney street. They asked to have it graded and surfaced. The board informed the committee that this was not a proper time for such work, that it could be more satisfactorily done after the beginning of the rainy season.

A communication was read to the board from Wilbur Smith and wife of Hollywood in regard to the improvement of the upper end of Providencia avenue. This matter was referred to the street committee.

The street committee asked that it be given another week in which to investigate the matter of the proposed opening of the portion of Eleventh street which is how closed. The board approved the map of a

This building is equipped with the tablet department, chemical or medicine vault, the workshop and garage. In this department the Sani-tate tablets are made. The machine that makes these tablets is capable of making 250,000 tablets in an eight-hour day or 250 tablets a minute. These are put up 20 to a string in small boxes, five of which are placed in larger containers. In this department is also located the seven and one-half ton drying oven, the largest of its kind in this section of the country. The metal in the heavy iron door is two inches thick, there being 20 shelves upon which the medicine, to be dried by vacuum, is placed. The manufacturing building is completely equipped and the machinery is right up-to-theminute.

The ground and buildings of the Harrower laboratories represent an investment of more than $40,000, while the equipment of the buildings cost more than $50,000. The opening of this institution on Monday evening promises to be one of the big events of the month.

FEDERAL JUDGE IN COURT PAYS FINE

PASADENA, Nov. 26.—Page Morris, federal judge for the Minnesota district, pleaded guilty here today to the charge of turning a corner in his automobile without giving the required signal. He was fined $10, which was instantly paid. The original charge against Judge Morris was that reckless driving, when Mrs. Elizabeth Holmes was injured. The charge was changed this morning to violation of a city ordinace. Police Judge Frank C. Dunham assessed the fine after the plea had been announced by Judge George E. Waldo, Morris' Judge Morris was present in court but his name was not mentioned when the case was called. Judge Dunham Glendale 680-J showed the jurist every consideration. According to Chief of Police Kelley, this morning. Morris is no longer driving his own car, his family having persuaded him to relinquish that pleasure.

CROWN PRINCE WILL GET CLOSE TO HIS PEOPLE BELIEF

Noted Jap Writer Sees Change in Old Order of Keeping Royalty Aloof

By MOTO TAKATA (Written for the United Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 .- The appointment of Crown Prince Hirohito has been a foregone conclusion and has been virtually decided on for months. Even before the crown prince made his last trip to Europe last spring, it was practically decided by the empress and Japanese leaders that the young prince should take his father's place on the throne and become regent. Very probably the crown prince's trip was arranged with this end in view so that he could be-come regent with a broader knowledge of the world.

I don't think that there will be any immediate radical changes in the policies of the Japanese government as the result of Crown Prince Hirohito coming to the throne.

However, a liberal tendency in Japanese politics undoubtedly will be furthered by the crown prime becoming regent. The more immediate result will be a closer relation between the royal family and the people of Japan. Such a relation has been prevented heretofore by the "red tapeism" of royal affairs. But quite recently the Japanese officials themselves have recognized the necessity of close relations between the royalty and the Japanese people. The ancient, traditional belief in Japan that the "emperor is the God, not a human being," has become obsolete and un-workable in modern Japan.

SEAGULLS GIVE US HINT BAD WEATHER

If indications mean anything, Southern California is due to have a cold, hard winter. Friday afternoon a large number of seagulls were seen flying about, just over Brand boulevard, and reports from other towns nearby say that small flocks of these birds have been seen flying over the alfalfa patches and vegeover the alfalfa patches and vegetable gardens for several days. This is a sign, according to the old-time weather prophets and seafaring men, that never fails. When the seagulls fly inland it is a sign of the approach of an extremely cold and unpleasant winter. Gulls hovering over Glen-dale seem to have established their headquarters on Harvard street on the site recently occupied by the

THREAT OF DEATH.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.-A threat of death in event that Sacco and Vanzetti are executed has been received by John W. Dyck, American consul at El Paso, Mexico. The threat was signed by "the committee for the syndicate of truckmen, port of Vera Cruz." It was dated November 8.

Ere the dusk and the night, Ere the noon too long past, In the thick of the fight, While the pulses beat fast, While the dreams yet are bright -Be it so, at the last.

While the hopes yet are high, With the heart of a friend I have loved beating nigh, Ere the trunk of me bend, And the rheums mist my eye-Be it so, at the end.

While my brow still is wet From the sickle and flail, With the eyes of me set On the height still to scale, While my soul cries "not yet"-Let me then touch the Grail.

With my breast to the blast And the heart of me light, While the blows falling fast In my soul's bravest fight, Ere the noon too long past Let it then come the night.

While my spirit still hot For the work haply planned, Where the arches are wrought And the tall columns stand, Be it there—at that spot, The tools fallen from my hand!

There never was a time when you—the contractor, the builder, the salesman, the collector-needed a Ford Runabout more than now-right now. For these are the days of hustle and get-there.

And there is no car that gets you there and back again, quicker, safer and more economically than a Ford Runabout. Low in the cost of maintenance with all the sturdy strength, dependability and reliability for which Ford cars are noted. On account of the unusual demand we urge that your orders be placed as early as possible.
