There in no Republican Party.

IT WILL BE.

Whatever the political status of the colored man in this country will be will largely depend upon himself. The colored voter must not wait for an opportunity to improve his political status; he must make opportunities. The sooner the colored voter throws away sentiment and is guided by that which he knows is just and proper, the sooner he will improve his condition politically. The white man follows his conscience. The colored man follows sentiment. Sentiment is a deceptive and very often dangerous thing at times. The colored man has an idea that his debt of gratitude to the Republican party will never be paid. There is no Republican party now. The party that was once called and known as the Republican party has passed out of existence. We have parties now that deal in practical politics. Human rights, civil liberty and equality before the law have no standing in platforms of political parties. The colored man clings to one God, the same as he clings to one party. Whitt, Elijah E, clk J M Hale Co, h He forgets he is an American citizen. He still believes that he is the slave of the Republican party. Existing conditions convince The Bee that both the so-called Republican and Democratic parties are endeavoring to eliminate the colored man from politics. If that is so, will the colored voter continue to be the willing tool of the Republican party? The last Republican platform declared it would reduce Southern representation. The party has won. The President has gone South and made terms with those who disfranchised the negro and enacted "Jim Crow" laws. The President may be right in making terms with those who once endeavored to destroy the Union to the exclusion of the colored man. The colored representative doesn't think so. Within his breast there is a feeling of resentment and he knows it. He is too cowardly to say so. Many of them are looking for official recognition, hence they will not express their true convictions. Will the colored man ever assert his independence? Will he throw away this sentimentality and be a man in deed and in fact? They are all in doubt as to the probable policy of President Roosevelt toward the colored man. They are waiting with suppressed indignation. The President has declared that he will give everybody a square deal. It is hoped that he will. The colored voter will declare his independence in the near future, come what may. It will be.—Washington Bee.

THE NEGRO'S OPPORTUNITY IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

From time to time this journal has pointed out the opportunity that market gardening offers the negro in this section of the state. Market gardening offers our people the surest and quickest road to independence and self support of any other calling in this section. While other occupations giving the negro self employment require a small fortune to commence with, the main capital required to start a market garden is a willingness to work. Lands suitable for the purpose can be rented cheap most anywhere, especially near the coast, where it is best adapted. Six or eight weeks after planting, the gardener will have vegetables of some kind ready for the market, which will find ready sale at paying prices.

After this he gathers and plants every day in the year—cabbage, peas, beets, onions, radishes and many other vegetables growing in the open fields the year round. The market gardener finds at his door a ready market for everything he produces. Now, and for many years, the demand for vegetables in this section has been greater than the supply, and prices are fixed accordingly. Owing to the rapid growth of Los Angeles and other Southern California cities, the present condition in the vegetable market will exist for years to come. Here is a field the negro can enter with very little competition; a field that invites him, offering inducements to become self supporting and independent, that he can not find elsewhere. No one is better fitted for market gardening than the colored farmer who comes here from the South. His industrial training and frugal habits will make him independent from the start. But if he would take advantage of the great opportunity now offered him, he had better take hold at once, for already white men are looking this way and the Chinaman who has had things his own way is preparing to move. The colored farmer, who labored 365 days on 40 acres of land in the South for less than it took to feed and clothe his family, can take five acres here and open a bank account while living like a prince. The colored farmer who comes here from the South and stops in the city makes a serious mistake. The opportunity to make money is greater in the country, for the poor man, with the opportunity to spend it less than in the city. The facilities for educating the farmer's children in this state are as good as those offered the children of Southern cities.

There are millions in truck gardening and colored farmers can control them if they will.

NEED OF ORGANIZATION.

There is urgent need among the colored citizens and voters of organization if they hope to check the spread of race discrimination in this section. The colored citizens have thousands of staunch friends among our white fellow citizens who want them to have fair play, but unless the negro organizes, thus putting himself in a position to safeguard his own rights, his white friends will be greatly handicapped. The man who sits down and waits for others to fight his battles is beaten in the start. There are some things that need to be done for the negro that he will have to do for himself. In spite of the advantages enjoyed by the Germans, Irish and Jews, by being members of the white race, they each have organizations to look after their civil and political rights and guard against any possible discrimination. But the negro, who is the victim of all sorts of discrimination, have no organization to safeguard his rights. If the colored voters were organized, they could get representation, not only in the city council, but in the state legislature. If the whiskey, gas, railroads and other interests controlled by white men, need and have representation in the city council and state legislatures, most assuredly, the negro, whose rights are being daily infringed upon, need and should have representation in the law making bodies named. The negro has more friends among the Republicans who control the city and county politics now than at any time in the history of the party, but he will have to be organized to make his wants known.

United States Senator Flint, Post-Master Flint, his brother; Senator Pendleton, Leo Youngworth, Oscar Lawler and J. G. Mott are broadgaged and progressive young leaders whose words are as good as gold and whose friendship for the negro has been repeatedly proven. But unless the negro organizes to help himself, he will simply lose ground and friends and opportunity. The uselessness of the present so-called organizations for the advancement of the negro are so well known and so thoroughly mistrusted that lengthy mention of them would be a criminal waste of space. Their only object for existence is for political plunder during campaigns and try to pull down worthy members of the race who secure creditable appointments, as they attempted to do in the case of Foster Jacobs.

The appointment of Wickliffe in the harbor commission, Editor Greene and Captain Crumbly to clerkships in the Assembly, and Jacobs in the city assessor's office has brought forth not one word of commendation from these so-called race organizations. The men who made the appointments certainly deserve the thanks of the race and no one is in a better position to extend these thanks than the organizations claiming to represent it. Have they done it? No. And yet the appointments named were the best that could have been made, the gentlemen appointed being among our most worthy and capable citizens. The colored voters, almost to a man, are grateful for their appointments, and it is a reflection upon them that they have no organization through which to make their gratitude known. We must have organization to guard our interests and stand by friends. The man who cares nothing for his friends has no future.

WHAT JAPANESE VICTORY MEANS.

Means that all dark races will receive a better treatment; that no nation, Christian or pagan, can win that plays and uses Christianity for racial purposes. Japan, though a pagan, but a true pagan in all of her teachings of equality and justice, has crushed Russia with her hypocritical religion. The Japs appoint all in their naval and military school. You do not have to have the pull of some congressman or senator to get admitted to the examination. Then, color has no affect on a man's qualifications. America ought to learn from this naval battle that rich men's sons or any particular color will not and cannot win against brain and brawn. The Japanese will control the Asia, and if linked with China, America may then realize that she, like they, must cultivate all of her citizens.—Western Enterprise, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Right, brother, if this country would pursue the same course, how much better it would be for all concerned. We would witness national growth instead of the present national decay now apparent to all. The appalling increase in open contempt for law, mob violence, the rapid growth of race prejudice and color discrimination, the practice of the officers of the federal government of winking at violations of the law respecting the rights of citizens of color, will have but one effect—the stifling of patriotism. No country that winks at crime and puts a premium on hypocrisy can win in the supreme test.

NO SAND LOTS FOR THE JAPANESE.

The New York Times warns all white men who are disposed to perpetrate upon the Japanese the sand lot outrages formerly perpetrated upon the defenseless Chinaman, to think twice before they act. The Times says in substance, that the Japanese will not tolerate any foolishness; that they are in a position to have their treaty rights respected, and will not be slow about doing it. The outrages that have been visited upon the Chinaman and American citizens of color by mobs, and through the medium of class legislation can not be practiced upon the Japanese. The Chinaman and Japanese are in this country by treaty and because the white men need them and furnish them employment. If any wrong is done it was done by the white men who made the treaties and furnish them employment, and the fight should be made upon them and not upon the aliens.

JUDGE TOURGEE PASSES TO HIS REWARD.

The death of Judge Tourgee removed from the stage of human activity a friend of manhood rights and one of the few men who never deserted the negro or his cause. One by one our friends are passing away. The ranks of those who put manhood rights above all else are getting mighty thin. In the present crises the negro can ill afford to lose such a friend. The rebel flags have been returned, and the sons of the heroes who saved the Union are asking pardon of the men who tried to destroy it. The negro and his rights are to be sacrificed upon the altar of reconciliation. It is only those who stoop to raise the lowly that live forever.

NO COLONIZATION.

The colored citizens should be cautious about colonizing themselves in this city. Instead of buying homes in one locality or on one street they should scatter out and locate in every section. Unless they do this they will come to grief. The policy of buying homes here and there among the cultured white residents heretofore pursued is a good one and should be strictly adhered to. It guarantees you better police and fire protection. It prevents the organization of Jim Crow schools for negroes, which would be followed by Jim Crow cars and Jim Crow courts, such as we have in the South. Life and fire insurance companies charge a higher rate in negro communities than they do in white ones, claiming that the risks are greater. Buy property where you can get your money out of it if you conclude to sell. Go slow! Go slow!! Go slow!!!

Negroes should train their children to lead virtuous, temperate lives. Honesty and industry should be encouraged; hypocrisy and self conceit condemned. The Japanese owe their victory over the Russians to proper training, respect for law order, and above all respect for the rights of others. The boys and girls who lead virtuous, temperate lives will rule the world for God, no matter what race or color they represent.

It Will Go Into Your Scrap Book.

Elsewhere in these columns we publish "The Gray Road of Sorrow," written by Mr. John S. McGroarty of The Times. It is undoubtedly his greatest production and will in coming time find a place with the poems, "Oh, Why Should the Spirits of Mortals Be Proud" and "Twenty Years Ago." The reader in whose bosom this poem does not arouse some tender recollection has not seen much of life.

The Sawtelle Sentinel's Easter edition was creditable in every particular. Creditable to its publishers, creditable to the business men whose cuts and business cards appeared therein. As an advertising medium for Sawtelle it distanced all competitors. The Sentinel is the coming journal of a coming town, the representative of the young and progressive element of the community. The Sentinel has a good field and the ability to care for it.

Mr. Geo. Dennis, Jr., dealer in teas, coffee, spices, etc., whose place of business is 114 E. Market street, is doing well. Mr. Dennis came here recently from San Francisco, where he was prominent in business, political and social circles. He is a native son and is one of the most gifted colored orators in the state.

Attorney Nash, late of Boston, Mass., has settled permanently in this city, with offices in the Bryson block. His selection of this city is a good one, as time will prove. Judging from his appearance, he is a gentleman of ability and culture.

A DISTINGUISHED VISITOR.

Mrs. Hattie Hall King, a prominent teacher from Ohio, who is making a tour of the west, was the guest of Mrs. Moxley at Santa Monica on the occasion of her visit to the ocean. Accompanied by Madame Moxley and Shores, she visited Sawtelle and the Soldiers' Home. She was well pleased with her visit. Mrs. King was the first colored person to hold a position as teacher in the white schools of Columbus, Ohio. She and Mrs. Moxley are old friends, having known each other since childhood.

THE GRAY ROAD OF SORROW.

The world has many a road for the feet of you and me,
They cross the winding hills where the winds are blowing free,
They dip down the valleys and through many a place they're cast
And the gray road of sorrow, oh, we come to it at last.

We come to it at last, in the mists and sighing rain,
And though we leave it oft the whiles, we come to it again;
We come to it again with the sighing rains that fall
On the gray road of sorrow that loves and lures us all.

Once I thought to never walk that gray road hedged with yew,
Nor ever did you think to come, if I can read you true—
'Twas then that life and love were young, our blood with youth aflame,
Yet I found you on the gray road when first to it I came.

I found you in the sighing rain, beside the hedge of yew,
With the trouble dim upon your eyes that once were dancing blue,
With the trouble in the eyes of you, the hot tears on your cheek,
And the lips of you a-tremble with the word you could not speak.

And yet, oh, heart of me, as we wander down the years,
We fear it less and love it more, that gray road of tears—
That gray road of sorrow with its whispering yew and rain,
Its heartaches of memory, its trouble and its pain.

For, trod we ne'er the gray road, but always laughed along
The paths of the primrose and the sunlit trails of song—
Had we walked but where the happy throngs of mirth and pleasure go,
The throb of the gray road we had not learned to know.

And 'tis not when the laughter and lilt of joy and song
Rings down the way of roses where the gay and happy throng,
That life has most to give us, but it is when falls the rain
On the gray road of sorrow with its heart-break and pain.

So, here's my glass to yours, and I'll quaff with you the wine,
And I'll give you back another song for that you gave for mine,
But when God calls us near Him, with souls and hearts laid bare,
The gray road of sorrow is the road that we must fare.

—JOHN S. M'GROARTY, in The Los Angeles Times.

WESLEY CHAPEL.

The laying of the corner stone of Wesley Chapel, Methodist Episcopal church was witnessed by a large and enthusiastic audience. Rev. Dr. Ryder of the Westlake Methodist Episcopal church, preached an eloquent sermon. Dr. Adkinson, presiding elder, had charge of the collection. Nearly $1600 was raised. The building, which will be one of the most classic looking in the state, will be completed by September 1st, at the dedication of which the congregation hope to raise $2,000. And from the present outlook the $2000 is very likely to be raised.

Mr. G. G. Brown, who has been confined to his bed for many weeks, is able to be out again. This is gratifying to his many friends. Mr. Brown, after serving several years as night watchman at the Huntington railway shops, resigned on account of ill health. During his term of service he shot three white sneak thieves, one of whom carries a wooden leg as a memento of Brown's unerring aim. While working for Huntington, he was the means of securing many jobs for members of his race.

Mr. T. M. McClellan, who suffered from several attacks of hemorrhages is on the road to recovery. But few men have rendered the community greater service than Mr. McClellan. THE RUSSIAN FLEET A TALE THAT WAS TOLD.

The fleets commanded by Admiral Togo and Rojestvensky have met and the Russian fleet is a tale that was told. Gallant old Togo took or sunk everything in sight, with losses to his fleet too insignificant to mention. The battle of the Sea of Japan goes down in history as the world's greatest naval battle. How the awful destruction of the Russian fleet was wrought, the world may never know. Behind the guns and on the decks of the Japanese ships none but Japanese stood, and they alone can tell the story if they so elect. The defeat of Rojestvensky was expected, but the world was not prepared for the news of the utter annihilation of his fleet without serious loss to his adversary. The destruction of the Russian fleet, which left its home waters with the sound of trumpets, was the work of a few short hours after the battle began. In a few short hours mammoth battle ships costing between 20 and 50 million dollars were lying on the bottom of the ocean, mere heaps of steel ruins. Wedged in between dismounted cannons and broken and twisted steel were the dismembered remains of hundreds of human beings.

SAWTELLE HAPPENINGS.

Mr. and Mrs. Mason G. Reed have sold their home and purchased a lot on 7th street, in Santa Monica, where they will erect a modern cottage. Mr. Reed has remodeled the old Hunt's barber shop which he purchased some time ago, and it is now one of the neatest in Santa Monica. The loss of Mr. and Mrs. Reed is seriously regretted. We wish them much success in their new home.

Mr. Belsinger, recently of Lelande, Miss., who has a brother engaged in farming there, was much interested in the growing crop on the editor's farm, and was greatly surprised to learn that immense crops of potatoes, corn, pumpkins and melons were produced here without irrigation. The visitors seemed to enjoy their visit to Sawtelle and vicinity greatly and their coming was a treat to us.
