Intimate Sketches of the Careers and Personalities of Men Powerful in the World of Amusement, Whether or Not Prominent in the Public Eye

It can be easily remarked without fear of refutation that no name, if any, is more widely and more favorably known in theatrical circles than that of Abraham Lincoln Erlanger. The mere mention of the producer's name brings up the train of successes, both before and since his association with Marc Klaw was entered into, that pays homage to his business acumen. Today he is known as New York's eminent theatrical figure, the head of the firm of K. & E., the large producers, as well as having heavy and active interests in Klaw & Erlanger's Exchange, the firm of Hayman, Klaw & Erlanger, Klaw & Erlanger Amusement Company, the K. & E. Construction Company, the New York Theatre Co., the K. & E. New Orleans Theatre Co., the Illinois Amusement Co., Power's Theatre Co., Chicago; Frohman, Rich & Harris, Boston, and is also prominently interested in many other corporations. His success is the more pronounced because of his humble start and the rigid but ambitious career that he outlined for himself, which culminated in the amplification of theatrical enterprises that are now under his supervision.

To Cleveland, Ohio, it is that we look for the early history of the youthful Erlanger, although his birthplace was the sister lake city of Buffalo, N. Y. He acquired with unusual rapidity the education obtainable in the public schools of the Cuyahoga City, and finished also a commercial course at the Spencerian Business College. When attending school, young Abe gave vent to his indomitable ambition by taking charge of the opera glasses and cloak room at the old Cleveland Academy of Music, in the days when it was under the management of John Ellsler. When the Euclid Avenue Opera House was built, Mr. Ellsler took young Erlanger along with him as general all-round assistant.

The venture proved a fiasco for Ellsler, and the theatre passed into the hands of Mark Hanna, who placed his nephew, Lew G. Hanna, now a major in the United States Army, in charge. Hanna recognized the ability of young Erlanger without much delay, and installed him as business manager and treasurer of the enterprise. The incident marked the birth of a new era in Cleveland theatricals, and one which subsequently made itself felt throughout the country. By his system of advertising and accomplishing publicity, Cleveland was transformed from one of the worst to the best of show towns in the country. In less than a month a promotion placed him in absolute managership of the house.

Mr. Erlanger's first regular road engagement was that of advance agent for Mr. and Mrs. George S. Knight, for a duration of two months, after which he and John H. Baylin became their managers. The tour was gratifyingly successful, and by reason of the record made, Erlanger was engaged by Chas. P. Jefferson. He managed the spring tour of Jos. Jefferson. He remained in this connection for five successive years, being obliged to travel but ten weeks out of the year. Bookings at that time were horrifyingly uncertain. Jefferson, although at popular prices, could not tell just where his bookings would take him. He had then toured the East and North for twenty-eight years. Young Erlanger arranged a tour throughout the entire South and West for Jefferson at the now current $2 price, something hitherto unaccomplished and considered an impossibility.

After the opening tour of the Jeffersons Erlanger entered into an arrangement with Marc Klaw, who was managing Effie Ellsler, and with him took charge of the route of the celebrated actress. The two young managers decided to take their star from Philadelphia to Little Rock, Ark., a distance at that time the record for a dramatic jump. The association of the two men soon became a co-partnership, which has continued for over a score of years without the slightest suggestion of a friction.

Together they bought out the old Taylor Theatrical Exchange, the first of its kind in New York, in 1894, on $500 borrowed capital, secured from the funds of old David Bidwell, the manager of the Academy of Music and St. Charles Theatre in New Orleans. They soon entered the production field. Their first venture was The Great Metropolis. This was followed by The Country Circus, A Round of Pleasure, Miss Dynamite and Jack and The Beanstalk. About ten years ago, Mr. Erlanger originated what is now known as the "Theatrical Syndicate," which has become one of the greatest theatrical powers in America, and probably in the world. He is the guiding genius of this great institution, which controls many of the principal theatres in the United States.

In 1898, Klaw & Erlanger became interested in the production of Hall Cain's The Christian, and the next year made their great production of Ben-Hur, which is in its thirteenth season and has netted them a profit of over a million and a half dollars, besides paying to the estate of General Lew Wallace something like $350,000 in royalties. One of Mr. Erlanger's greatest achievements was the building of the New Amsterdam Theatre, which represents an outlay of over $2,000,000, and generally conceded to be the finest theatre structure in the world.

Personally, Mr. Erlanger is rather reserved, but to those who know him intimately he is one of the most genial men in the world. He possesses a most lovable and sympathetic character. These attributes are not generally credited to him, but to really know him is to respect him and like him immensely. He is generous both to friends and to charitable purposes.

He is a remarkable athlete, and is an amateur boxer of note. He is also an enthusiastic horseman, and can hold his place in the saddle with the best of them. He enjoys a good dinner and a funny story, as all his associates can testify. A business man in business hours, he is a big boy and full of fun when his day's work is done.

New York, Sept. 19 (Special to The Billboard). An impressive victory was that of George Arliss in his heavy role of Lord Beaconsfield, in Louis N. Parker's historical drama, Disraeli, at Wallack's Theatre, Monday, September 18, depicting the diplomacy of this masterful British statesman in the most triumphant stroke of his political career.

The World strikes the keynote of laudation by giving the following tribute: "The portrayal of Benjamin Disraeli, by George Arliss last night in the drama, Disraeli, by Louis N. Parker, at Wallack's Theatre, stamped itself immediately as an example of character delineation, which stands in a class by itself among all the attempts in recent years to represent great personages of history on the stage. Not since the curtain was drawn on the careers of Henry Irving and Richard Mansfield has a New York audience witnessed a performance that could approach it. It is also unlikely that these departed geniuses, to either of whom the role might have strongly appealed, could have excelled the sheer histrionic power with which its present actor sketched the bold outline, and then filled in the detail of what at once became a living figure.

It is a dangerous undertaking when the stage sets out to reproduce a great world figure whose personality and career lie so close to the present that it has not been dimmed and softened in the perspective of time. So it may be argued that the Disraeli of Arliss' imagination is not in every respect the Lord Beaconsfield of the third quarter of the nineteenth century in England. That may or may not be true, but it has little bearing on the present matter. The essential fact

New York, September 21 (Special to The Billboard).—Edgar Selwyn, author and leading protagonist of The Arab, welcome to our midst! You have demonstrated your ability as both writer and performer. You infuse the spirit, the color, the atmosphere, in short the Levant and the Orient, in your latest production, which elapsed New York at the Lyceum Theatre Wednesday, September 20, for its first metropolitan production. Your delineation of the religious wavering and beautiful dragoons his religious conversion to the Christian God of his Syrian nomadic tribe, is the most delightful and artistic bit of work you have yet accomplished. The work has been produced of three particularly meritorious dramas: The Passers by the Woman and The Arab. Selwyn can well be proud to receive classification and inclusion in this splendid triunity.

The Sun commends the new play for its merit, its truthness to tribulation of the misadventures and the tribes that are the subjects of their endeavors. It terms the love sentiment that pervades the play throughout as most appealing. The restful at the fall of the curtain is praised in most offensive liberality. There is but one fault it finds and that is an overwhelmingly amount of precautions in preparing a background for the intrigue that develops the story. It pronounces the effect as "a lack of finger" in act number one. The fault is a small one and will doubtless be smoothed out by the actor-author.

The Tribune finds the play a pictorial one, but of the variety that does not go deep into realities. The Times, however, takes exception to this statement and upholds The Arab for its Oriental atmosphere and Syrian color. The scene of the play is laid in a Syrian village east of Damascus. There are uprisings on the part of the Muslims in that district against the Christians. The young sheik's son, Jamil Abdullah Azam, is a convert to Christianity, speaks English and loves the daughter of the man in charge of the American mission. When the insurgents advance to murder all Christians, this young Moslem prevents the massacre, saves his love and at the sudden epidemic death of his father becomes sheik of his tribe and protector of the town.

The Times speaks as follows: "For people who like the pictures and the atmosphere of the Orient served in melodrama" (Continued on page 60.)

New York, September 19 (Special to The Billboard).—The Casino has become a recognized house for musical comedies; the latest occupant, which opened Monday, September 18, and one that enjoys the entire reputation for a successful run is The Kiss Waltz, a Viennese operetta in two acts. Like the tinsel humor that Hungary contributes to the present-day field of entertainment and also like the American adaptation of all visitors from this continental country, the latest debutante contains a pleasing plurality of diverting specialties ably executed by competent artists. Singing, dancing, kissing, flirting, and sordidly disarming give merely a suggestion of the at mesmeric levity with which a really consistent plot for musical comedy is embellished. The Casino calls the new offering a musical cocktail and enumerates the various ingredients that impart its delightful theatrical palatableness.

The cast is itself counted for much in reviving the oscillatory production up to the redoubtable point. Flora Zabelle, Robert Warwick, Eva Davenport, Charles Bieglow, Adele Rowland, Martin Brown, Elsa Ryan and Wm. Pruett were particularly responsible for the successful reception accorded the premier presentation. In fact, Alan Dale praises the work

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY

Tim Murphy has begun his season in The New Code, which he will use until the new year, when he is to produce a new modern comedy by Paul Willstach, author of the spectacular dramatic version of Thais.

Blanche Ring in her new vehicle, The Wall Street Girl, under the side management of Fred McKay, begins her preliminary engagement at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., October 2, whence she goes to Pittsburg and later to Chicago to commence her metropolitan engagement in the early part of November at the Garrick Theatre.

Considerable difficulty was found in securing a title to the new Eddie Fox Show, Over the River. Several others tried to write a suitable title but without result. J. Rosmond Johnson, the color-demonstrator, has found the right one. His recent work in composing for the Folies Bergere's midnight review showed J. Rosmond Johnson his ability far beyond the writing of ragtime for colored and black acts.

Ann Warrington has been engaged by Arthur Hopkins for an important role in his production of The Fatted Calf. She is to play the part originally assigned to Julia Hammette.

The three-hundredth performance of The Court was given at the Belasco Theatre Tuesday night, September 19.

The company that is to play The Grumblers in the South opened at Norrisdown, Pa., Monday night, September 18. Charles Mackay and Lillian Keville appeared in the leading roles.

Joe Weber will invite to the matinee on September 27 of A Man of Honor the clergymen of New York.

Miss Gertrude Elliott opened her season in Joseph M. del Paterson's play, Rebellion at the Royal Alexandra Theatre in Toronto, Monday night, September 18. She came to her sister's theatre, the Maxine Elliott on October 30. In her company are A. Scott Gatti, Fuller Mellichamp and others.

Mabel McKinley Baer, niece of the late President McKinley, is being sued for $2,000 on behalf of six-year-old Abraham Schultz, who was struck by her automobile at Fifth Avenue and Twentieth Street on August 19. The singer was in the car at the time according to the complaint.

Report has it that Josephine Brown, the actress, will wed William Gillette.

The Hartford (Conn.) critics have called The Little Millionaire, the vehicle in which George M. Cohan has returned to the stage after a absence of two years, a distinct triumph. New York gets her peep at it this week.

The 11th successful week of the big new Hippodrome production, Around the World, began on Monday, September 25. New York's largest playhouse has been filled at every performance since the opening night of the new spectacle, which received the endorsement of every critic in town without a single exception.

New Play a Perfect Gem

THE WOMAN, a play by William C. DeMille. THE CAST.

- The Hon. Jim Blake, Representative from Illinois... John W. Cape
Tom, his son... Harold Vashburgh
The Hon. Mark Robinson, Representative from New York... Edwin Holt
Grace, his wife... Jane Peyton
The Hon. Matthew Standish, an Insurgent... Cuyler Hastings
Ralph Van Dyke, corporation counsel... Y. & N. R. R.
The Hon. Elias Gregg, Representative from Kansas... Stephen Fitzpatrick
The Hon. Tim Seltman, Representative from Pennsylvania... William Holden
Wanda Kelly, phone girl at the Keswick... Mary Nash

New York, Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—David Belasco's preponderating feature of The Woman, the political drama which had its premiere at the Republic Theatre Tuesday evening, September 19. He has selected a skillfully devised play, interestingly plotted, realistically embellished, and grandly language. For this Wm. C. DeMille deserves the credit. His product unfolds with gripping interest, works up to a veritable compelling climax and unfolds in its denouement with a rapidly most superbly executed, gruesome at first, but relieved at the end by the cheerful character of Wanda Kelly, the phone girl, who, though humble in station, proved to be the grand constant next to the naked revelation of the identity of the woman in the case, that Jim Blake and his cohort of party machinists had ever met. So concentrated and closely bound is every figure one to the other that even she, though lowly operator that she seems, not only establishes her fitness as a wife in a public meeting's boss, but can bear in a public pedigree that focuses the light of parental approbation upon her.

The Republic has a play that will round with it all season. Of this there is not the slightest doubt, or else the writer is a poor discoverer of public tastes and dramatic triumph. Standing out in every scene, in every situation and in every character is the hand and touch of Belasco that is recognized as synonymous to technical perfection and esthetic quiescence of the production of the drama.

WEEK IN NEW YORK CITY

ACTS NEW TO NEW YORK

Synopses of Sketches and Criticisms of Various Vaudeville Acts Making Their First Appearance in Metropolis. Criticism Determined by Opinion of Audience

FRÖHLICH, Sketch Artist, Hammerstein's Victoria; 12 minutes; in two. As a vaudeville act, Fröhllich is above par in his line of work. Fröhllich begins by drawing black and white sketches, making several of them neatly and rapidly. His next picture is made for comedy purposes. From a sheet of black paper he cuts the form of a dancing girl. This he places behind his sketch paper, turns on and revolves an incandescent light, which produces the effect of an oriental dancer going through her capers. His last effort is a pretty night picture, made in colors. Fröhllich's work commanded interest during the twelve minutes he occupied the stage.

CHESTER AND JONES, Singers and Dancers, Hammerstein's Victoria; 9 minutes; in one. The number of two men singing and dancing acts in vaudeville is large. The majority of these acts follow one conventional routine, have little that is new worth mentioning, and naturally pass before our vision without leaving any impression. Chester and Jones, however, will not easily be forgotten by an observer of their work. It must first be told that the steps they undertake is the result of a sincere effort to relinquish the much-trodden path of conventionality to their brethren. The aftermath is that they have rounded out a finished and entertaining dancing offering. Little singing is done, a number being rendered only at the opening.

MILES DOMINA MARINI AND MARCEL BRONSKI, Classic Dancers, Hammerstein's Victoria; 10 minutes; in one. At the Metropolitan Opera House, Miles Marini and Bronski will be pronounced excellent. But at Hammerstein's, principally, or even, perhaps, any other vaudeville theatre, these classic dancers will hardly create excitement. At the Victoria, Miles Marini and Bronski danced through four numbers, of which the third, the Dying Swan dance, seemed the best liked. The act was on next to closing at Hammerstein's, but the greater number of auditors remained seated more out of curiosity than anything else.

ALTUS BROS., Club Jugglers—Fifth Avenue, 7 minutes; in one. The Fifth Avenue Theatre program last week (September 18), had for its opening item The Altus Brothers, two men whose juggling feats brought applause all through the act. The rapidity with which they work the small objects they possess and the consequent finish of the number combine into giving The Altus Brothers as entertaining seven minute specialty as could be desired.

BUD AND NELLIE HEIM, Juvenile Entertainers, Fifth Avenue; 12 minutes; in two. For a juvenile, little Bud Heim is a corking comedian. He works like a matured fun-maker. A bit of his comedy is impromptu material, which shows that the chap's powers of perception are acute. His comical bearing is rather unusual for a youngster. Nellie Heim, probably the elder of the two, lends valuable aid to Bud. The Fifth Avenue audiences delighted in the work of The Heims and applauded generously. (Continued on page 61.)

HAMMERSTEIN'S BILL

Dramatic Playlet Dope Principal Act on Program Last Week. Frank Fogarty, Yorke & Adams and T. Roy Barnes Share Equally as Fun Makers

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—The dramatic allotment of this week's program at Hammerstein's is furnished by Herman Lieb and his company, playing Joseph Medill Paterson's story of existing cocaine traffic under the name of Dope. The playlet tells of the efforts of two reformers to stop the flourishing sale of "coke" to degenerate. A druggist's shop is the place of business. The reformers trap the druggist lute selling cocaine to a boy. As the druggist passes the drug over the counter to the youth the cocaine is snatched up by one of the do-ye-good teachers to be used as evidence in the case which they hope to bring against the cocaine dispenser. It later develops that one of the reformers is interested in the firm which manufactures the "coke," and sells it to the druggist, while his companion also obtains money by the sale of the drug through her mother's ownership of the building tenanted by the druggist. The reformers, fearing the revelation of their connection with the traffic, send away the officer who has been summoned by them to arrest the druggist. Careful delineation of characters is made by Mr. Lieb, and his support, which includes Irving Williams, William Burnett, Miss Evelyn Walls, Frank K. Liew, Master Fred Tompkins and Miss Mabel Day. The company was placed to close the first half of the show.

Fröhllich, crayon artist, was assigned to the get-away niche, with Chester and Jones, a pair of nimble dancers, filling spot No. 2. Both turns are reviewed under New Acts. The hoop rollers with an act like a production—The Kratons—were exceptional applause winners for so early a position as No. 3. For the quadruple section Stella Tracey in set a neat single act. Four numbers, namely, You Are My Harbor of Love, O'Reilly (with Tad Brogue), After the Honeymoon and That Mysterious Rag were her selections. Her final number, while singing which Miss Tracey is robed in night raiment, and during which were used shutter light effects, is a corking finale, mainly because of the splendid manner in which it is handled.

As an extemporaneous comedian, T. Roy Barnes, of Barnes and Crawford, is, to plier an adjective from the vocabulary of the classics, "there." His foil is the late-comer, of whom there are many, especially at the Victoria. On first after the intermission, Max Witt's Melody Lane Girls, a quartet of singing maidens, sang themselves into favor.

Yorke and Adams, following the Max Witt act, registered a success, as did Willard Simms, in Flinder's Furnished Flat. Simms' efforts to paper a room are ludicrous. Frank Fogarty, the Dublin minstrel, elicited laugh after laugh, as he always does. Miles Domina Marini and Marcel Bronski, classic dancers, reviewed under New Acts, and Bert McKeese, the acrobatic clown, whose finish is highly sensational, wound up the program.

Irvin Simon, manager of the Hopkins Theatre, Louisville, Ky., was in New York this week, making arrangements for a book which he will use with his burlesque company to be put on the road next season. At the Hopkins Theatre, which is a Sullivan & Considine link, Mr. Simon says business is flourishing.

IRENE FRANKLIN.

She was featured on the opening bill at the Bishwick Theatre, Brooklyn, last week, and was tendered an ovation.

Allen, Van Hoven, Leonard and Bayton, Hall Bros., Joe and Ed. Palmer, Harrison and Buckley, Ross and Brown. Broadway—Geebs and Amato's Apple of Paris, Ed. Gentry, Edgar Atchison Ely and Co., Harriet's The Bathing Girls, Stepp, Mch. Kline Barnes and Crawford, Carlmell and Hanna Lane and O'Donnell and Pope and Fred dog, Uno. WALTER AND LESTER HERE.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Walter and Lester, comedy magicians, who are themselves as the world's worst wizard, arrived in New York, Wednesday, on the Hudson. The act is booked for a 25 weeks' tour of the Sullivan & Considine Circuit, opening September 24, at Cinetone.

PERTINENT PATTERN

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Commencing with next Wednesday, October 5, the Winter Garden will present Gabby Deslys, the siren of the Portuguese evoking, in a series of the most pretentious musical comedy satires under the collective title of Revue of Revues. Deslys will appear as Chelene in Les Debuts de Chelene, previously offered by the famous Parisian comedienne at the Alhambra in London. The action of the piece will be conducted with much pantomime and little French, and the star will render two songs in English. Her support will include Germandele as Rene, Edgard Chatel as Filip, and Harold Craue as Burton. The scenes represented are the Rue St. Germain in Paris and the chamber of Chelene. A cast of two hundred people will be in her support, including Dorothy Jordan, Maud Raymond, Kate Ellmore, Lylla Barry, Frank Finney, Harold Craue, Harry Johnson, Clarence Harvey, James H. Carson, Doris Cameron, Grace Kimmons, Ernest Hare, Edward DeNoyer, George Margerold, Sam Williams, Mabel DeYoung, John Shrode, Rayn and Batsch, Arthur Hill and the Four Musical Hodges. The first scene in the Revue of Revues will depict a meeting in the clovis outside of New York Bay. Satan, the Statue of Liberty and a choice coterie of spirits will be predominating characters. An elaborate scene showing Louey Park will follow the episode in the air. Another scene will burlesque the reception of Admiral Togo while in America. The Bronx Zoo is also to be represented on the stage. The Japanese ballet and a company of Spanish dancers from London will form the concluding features. The Fox Players are presenting in vaudeville an operetta called The Will of the Wisp. The little company includes A. Percy Woodby, Miss A. Robin, Miss Sylvia, Miss Hazel Kingdon and Miss Helen Morris. Louise Graetz, formerly of The Hamiltons, will soon return to vaudeville as a single act. Her former partner, Richard Hamlin, is preparing material for the number. Louise Marlo, the singing comedienne and German vaulter, is presenting a new act over the United Time. Miss Marlo is under the direction of Richard Hamlin, the man in brown, formerly of The Hamiltons, opens as a single act on the Sullivan & Considine Circuit at Spokane, Wash., October 1. Hamlin is looked over the time for 25 weeks.

Suggestions for All-Star Bill

- WEEK OF SEPT. 13 Imaginary bill framed up by New York correspondent and including acts appearing at the several vaudeville houses, importance of act is indicated by position given: A—Altus Brothers, Club Jugglers. Fifth Avenue; in two. B—Bud and Nellie Heim, Juvenile Entertainers. Fifth Avenue; in one. C—Simone de Beryl, Posting Colonial; full stage. D—Max Witt's Melody Lane Girls, Singing. Hammerstein's; in one. E—Edgar Atchison Ely & Co., comedy play let, Billie. Colonial; full stage. INTERMISSION. F—Six Musical Cuttys, Musicians. Colonial; open in full stage; Close in one. G—Herman Lieb & Co., in Dope. Hammerstein's; full stage. H—Lillian Russell, Songs. Fifth Avenue; full stage. I—Rawson and Juue, Boomerang Throwers. Fifth Avenue; full stage.

There is variety in the foregoing program. No two acts on the entire bill are alike in the matter of offering. The ever fair Lillian Russell is given the stellar position on the bill. Surrounding her is entertainment that would cause even the most blasé of theatregoer to straighten in his seat and emit an occasional whoop. Herman Lieb must be accorded second spot in the All-Star race. The remainder of the acts are so evenly matched insofar as merit in their respective work is concerned that it is necessary to proclaim all of them a tie for third place.

TRAGEDY ON CIRCUS LOT

Three Men Killed in Pistol Duel During Concert Performance of Yankee Robinson Show—Circus Management in No Way Responsible for Tragedy

Madill, Okla., Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Friday night on the show lot at Madill, there was enacted perhaps the worst tragedy ever witnessed amid such surroundings. The Yankee Robinson Show had had a big day and people and showmen were both satisfied. Just as the night concert was about over two men forced their way into the show without paying admission. One of the management called the attention of an officer to the presence of the men who had by that time reached the end of the reserved seat section. While the officer was expostulating with the two men a liveryman who was not implicated, butted in and took the side of the men. In an instant the argument became heated and the liveryman, who is reported to have been drinking, pulled his gun and shoved it into the face of the special sheriff. The latter drew his gun and as he did so, the liveryman shot and lustantly the special officer shot the liveryman and both dropped dead on the same spot. Before they fell they fired seven shots. One of these shots hit an innocent bystander in the neck and he died during the night. Another young man was shot in the leg. The concert was in progress at the time and the families of all three persons killed were in the tent and witnessed the tragedy. Pandemonium prevailed for several minutes on account of the excitement. No blame is attached to the show as it had absolutely no connection with the affair except that it happened to be the stage setting for the tragedy.

AIRMAN INCINERATED

Unable to Endure Jeers of Onlookers, Youthful Aviator Makes Flight, Although Knowing His Machine Was Unfit for Sailing—Is Burned to Death in Air

Troy, O., Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—Another aviator was forced into the air by the jeers of the crowd, and Frank Miller, aged 23 years, a Toledo (O.) aviator, was burned to death in midair before the eyes of the terrified spectators on the Miami County Fair grounds here. The aviator lost control of his machine when about two hundred feet in the air. As it started to fall the engine caught fire and communicated the flames to the gasoline tank, which exploded, wrapping Miller in flames. The craft struck the ground with great force. Miller's already charred body being buried underneath the motor.

Miller's engine had been acting badly in previous flights, and he had refused to make an ascent until the crowd started to jeer and call him coward.

It is only a few weeks ago that John I. Frisbie, one of the leading aviators, stung by the taunts of the crowd, made an ascent in a damaged machine at Norton, Kan., and was killed.

HARRY O. STUBBS.

Mr. Stubbs is well known in theatrical circles, but especially in Columbus, O., where for the past several seasons the Stubbs-Wilson players have filled summer engagements at Olantangy Park.

RIVER AVIATOR IS CHOSEN.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—Hugh K. Robinson the aviator, has been nominated by the Mississippi River Flight Association to make the Minneapolis to New Orleans hydro-aeroplane flight of 1,917 miles. Robinson was selected from more than forty applicants. The start will be made from Minneapolis, October 11. He will fly for a purse of $20,000 raised by the river cities, in which he is to give exhibitions.

SOUTHERN ACTRESS DIES.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 18 (Special to The Billboard).—Word has been received here of the sudden death in Brooklyn, N. Y., of Miss Florence Elizabeth McHale, aged 24, a young Memphis actress, who has been playing a prominent role in Madame Sherry. The remains will arrive here September 21.

Musicians' Strike Not Felt

Chicago, September 22 (Special to The Billboard).—While Col. W. A. Thompson was cheerfully counting the money that a capacity audience had handed into the boxoffice for seats to the performance of Rosecroft Wednesday night, he was notified that the orchestra had refused to go on unless paid for the week in advance. The demand was so unwarranted and preposterous that he dismissed the strikers without further ceremony.

Col. Thompson explained to the audience, and offered them the alternative of "money back" or grand opera with piano accompaniment. The audience was game and with a loud shout agreed to the latter proposition. The ensuing performance was one of the most novel and successful ever given in America. Each number was cheered to an encore and some soloists were called back half-a-dozen times.

On Thursday eleven new faces looked out from the orchestra pit. They belonged to the new men whom Col. Thompson had hired to take the place of the strikers. He had expected that he would be able to retain his musical director, but the union called him out, and once again the Colonel had to lean into the breach and extricate his performers from the dilemma. In this instance he did it by acting as his own conductor, a role which he filled easily and to great applause. Negotiations are now under way looking to a peaceable solution of the trouble.

CURTISS AT FAIRS.

During the present season the Curtiss Exhibition Company has contracted for, and carried out, exhibitions at thirteen state fairs, viz: South Dakota, Vermont, Montana, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Missouri, Maine, Alabama, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Utah, Georgia and North Carolina. Contracts are coming in to the company's office every day from secretaries of state fairs throughout the country, particularly fairs in the Southern states.

CINCINNATI PLANS PAGEANT.

Business and commercial organizations of Cincinnati are outlining the plans for a great historical pageant, something on the order of the old Cincinnati productions, to run several weeks in September of next year.

One hundred thousand dollars will be asked to carry out the scheme, $6,000 of which was subscribed at a meeting of the Cincinnati Historical Association, who originated the idea.

BULLET FAILS TO MELT.

Trinidad, Col., Sept. 17 (Special to The Billboard).—Mrs. Fred Fisk, "the human target," appearing at a local vendeville theatre, in a shooting turn, apparently catching bullets fired across the stage in her teeth was painfully wounded here last night when the bullet, which was made out of wax, failed to melt from the heat of the explosion and struck her on the side of the head.

Street Car Strike Hurts Fair

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—The Michigan State Fair now going on has been hit hard by the strike of the street car men in this city. With the big eight day fair under way only two days and thousands of visitors coming into the city the rest of the week, a tramp of the street car lines means a probable big failure for the enterprise.

INCREASED SHOW LICENSE.

Fayetteville, Ark., Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—The license of the Hagendrick Wallace Shows for their engagement in this city, September 18, was increased to $800 a performance. The circus refused to pay this amount and moved the show three miles out of town.

The Wallace Shows could have made money despite the high license, but did not want to establish a precedent. Twenty-five thousand people who come to Fayetteville are up in arms against the city officials. The show lost heavily by wagons sticking in the mud at the junction lots and by losing their date at Ft. Smith the next day. They, however, cancelled their date for September 20 and showed at Ft. Smith, during them one day behind.

Circus Sale Postponed

The Assignee's Sale of the Famous Robinson Shows, which was to have taken place at Morgantown, Ky., September 27, will not occur on that date as the circus has been taken out of the hands of W. C. Bland, assignee, and placed in charge of the Federal Trust at Louisville, Ky. The Columbia Trust Company, Louisville, Ky., which is handling the affair for the court, when interviewed by The Billboard, Monday, September 25, stated that the property would be sold at auction to the highest bidder, but that the persons interested in the show have not yet determined when the sale would take place.

BALLOONISTS FALL.

Rockville, Conn., September 21 (Special to The Billboard).—Two balloonists were injured at the fair grounds yesterday. Prof. Marsh and Eddie Berlinger made a double ascension and tried parachute drops. The combined weight of the men was too much to allow the balloon to rise to the right height to permit the several parachute drops. Berlinger's second parachute was only about fifty feet from the ground when it opened and he struck heavily, sustaining probably fatal injuries. Marsh's unaided jump in attempting to open his third parachute, and as it was not opened sufficiently to check his fall, he also fell heavily.

THEATRE MANAGER IS DEAD.

St. Louis, Mo., September 23 (Special to The Billboard).—John Fleming, for many years manager of the Grand Opera House and later of the American Theatre, died here September 23, after an illness of nearly a year. Tuberculosis was the cause of his death. Fleming had gone West about two months ago in an effort to find relief, returning to St. Louis two weeks ago. A widow and two brothers survive him.

MME. SIMONE ARRIVES.

New York, Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—Mme. Simone, the French actress, arrived by the White Star Luer Oceanic, Wednesday, September 20, with her husband, Claude Casimir Perier, son of a former president of France. Mme. Simone had played nine years, getting her inspiration to start dramatically from the commendation of Bernhardt, and at that time she had appeared in only nine plays. Mme. Simone will open at Daly's on October 9, in Bernstein's The Thief, following in The Squall, which she said had been produced in London so altered that Bernstein could not recognize it. The actress said: "I shall play it here as Bernstein wrote it. It is what you might call tense. It is not a play for young girls. It is true, but it is free from vulgarity. It is a stirring story of Paris life."

Performers Disappear Mysteriously

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 20 (Special to The Billboard).—On Aug. 22, 1911, the Bellmonts (Harry and Pearl) and William Meyers, wife and little daughter, left here to fill an engagement as free attractions at a celebration at Houston, Mo., for Aug. 24, 25 and 26. They arrived there and completed their work, and we are advised that they left there on Sept. 21 by wagon for Cabool, Mo., (Houston being some 14 miles from Cabool, the railway station), saying they were coming to Kansas City for a few days' stay, and then to Chicago and New York, to fill time booked by Mr. Wilson, of New York. Since that time no trace of their whereabouts can be had. No reason can be assigned for their apparent disappearance, they having purchased a small farm near here, and were planning it for their future home. Their many friends fear for their safety, and desire that you give this space, that it may bring some news of them.

MINNESOTA STREET CARNIVAL.

Lake City, Minn., Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—A grand carnival and street fair will be held here October 1, 5, 6 and 7 under the auspices of the Retail Merchants' Association. Ten distinct acts have been secured at a cost of $1,000, in addition to the other carnival attractions.

Advertising literature is now being distributed and the whole country within a radius of one hundred miles will be covered. The streets will be especially illuminated every night and downtown thoroughfares will be one brilliant "white way."

FREDERICK JULIAN ILL.

Chicago, September 20 (Special to The Billboard).—Dangerously ill and nearly crippled, is Frederick Julian, one of the best known stock actors that ever played Chicago boards. Mr. Julian is at present at the Lakeside Hospital, and his friends are seeking to raise a fund to render him more comfortable. Miss Anne Sturhewal, now playing in The Deep Purple, was the leading lady of the stock company with which Mr. Julian was identified some years ago and she has started a subscription for his benefit.

A MILLION GIVEN PREMIERE.

Newburg, N. Y., Sept. 19 (Special to The Billboard).—An audience that filled the Assembly of Music here tonight witnessed the premiere performance of the American version of the French farce, entitled A Million. The American adaptation is by Leo Hiltchstein, and produced by Henry W. Savage. Critical opinion is that the play will be one of the biggest farceful winners in years.

RAILROAD RATE

In Oklahoma Lowered by State Commission—Managers Welcome New Order Which Will Also Benefit Playgoers—State Heretofore Shunned by Theatrical Companies

Most all people will welcome with pleasure the proposed order issued by the corporation commission of the State of Oklahoma, fixing the rates for handling private baggage on passenger cars for special routes between Oklahoma points. The rates will be lowered as follows:

Two passengers and two baggage cars, $50; for 48 persons, two passenger cars and three baggage cars, $65.

The new order covers day coaches or Pullman cars and baggage cars owned or rented by the occupants and loaded with properties, scenery, theatrical paraphernalia or other baggage. The cars are required to be stopped 48 hours without charge.

GEORGE L. MARION SAVED

Pennsylvania Board of Pardons Commutes Death Sentence to Life Imprisonment—Marion, in a Letter to The Billboard, Thanks His Friends for Their Assistance

Wilkesbarre, Pa., September 20 (Special to The Billboard).—George L. Marion will not hang. The death sentence was commuted by the State Board of Pardons which met this afternoon to imprisonment for life. The reasons for the commutation are now being incorporated in an opinion which will be sent by the pardon board to Governor Tener for his signature. The governor has the power to withhold his approval, but the possibility of such action is very remote, the usual procedure being to immediately approve the change of sentence as recommended.

The monster petition circulated by The Billboard and signed by thousands of members of the theatrical profession was sent to Governor John K. Tener and the pardoning authorities, and is believed to have been the chief factor in saving Marion's life.

Prominent theatrical people from all over the United States and Europe also sent letters, and a telegram was received from the Theatrical Alliance now holding a convention in San Francisco, representing the sentiment of 2,500 show people.

There is no doubt but that Marion was suffering from temporary insanity at the time of the crime. Andrew Hourigan, assistant district attorney at the time of the trial, wrote that a commutation of the sentence would meet the ends of justice, as he considered there was a doubt as to Marion's sanity. Dr. H. B. Meredith, the chief insanity expert for the prosecution, stated in a letter that "while Marion was apparently sane, still, his mind was so obscured that he probably did not realize the serious nature of his act."

Immediately upon learning of the commutation of his sentence Marion addressed the following letter to The Billboard:

County Prison, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.,
September 20, 1911.

Dear Billboard:

Please accept every manifestation of deep, sincere gratitude and thanks to The Billboard for the great part taken which went so far towards my victory. Thank my brothers and sisters in our beloved profession and the amusement world generally for this true, loyal devotion during the dark hours I have passed through. I am grateful, very grateful, to them. Believe me, gratefully yours,
(Signed) GEO. L. MARION.

Dinklespiel's X'mas, with Bernard A. Reinold featured, will be produced in play form in New York, January 14, 1912.

The Veiled Prophet Celebration

The Veiled Prophet will visit St. Louis Tuesday night, October 3, on his annual pilgrimage, and this year in greater splendor than ever before. Historic events and personages of the eighteenth century will be the subjects portrayed by the floats which will again number twenty-two. The chronology of subjects ranges from 1705 to 1780, almost the entire century. It is designed to give a fair representation of the historic events of the entire world and portray a character or illustrate an epoch of every nation. Contrasts in character scenes are sought after; thus, the coronation of a king and the first reception of the first American President are depicted. Emperor Joseph of Austria is shown distributing bread to the poor, while a following scene reveals the dashing Queen of Hungary on horseback.

The barbaric splendors of the Orient furnish opportunities for colorful decorations on several floats, and the general theme is decidedly instructive, not only recalling the characteristics of mighty potentates but illustrating the modes of the times.

NOTED ACTRESS ARRIVES.

New York, Sept. 20 (Special to The Billboard).—Mme. Simone Casimir Perler and her husband, M. Casimir Perler, arrived in New York today and took up residence at the Hotel Plaza. Mme. Simone is one of the most noted of French actresses, and is hailed by many critics as the successor of Sarah Bernhardt. Mme. Simone is to appear under the direction of Lydell and Co., at the Century Theatre, in a series of dramas, making her American debut in The Thief.

M. Casimir Perler, Mme. Simone Casimir Perler's husband, is a son of the late Casimir Perler, at one time president of the French Republic.

MURRY SUCCEEDS DECKER.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Jules Murry has been appointed by the Shuberts to succeed Jim Decker as their general booking agent. Decker resigned the position about two weeks ago.

The Grand Opera House, Carthage, Mo., opened Sept. 23 with The Third Degree. The house has been extensively improved, the interior refurnished and the seats rearranged.

Circus Traveling in Arkansas

The Hagenbeck Wallace Show has made some new records in circus troubles in Arkansas. One of the worst cloudbursts ever known in that state hit the show at night at Fayetteville and, with the bottom gone out of the two-mile road to the runs, the showmen, horses and elephants had one awful night, and the trains were not loaded until afternoon of the next day. The date the show was to be in Ft. Smith, Ark. was postponed until the next day. The horses were pulled apart, horses had to be pulled out of the mire by teams, and many people had their w. escapes and had to be heroically rescued from frightful deaths in sink holes of mud and water. The center poles were taken out of the wagon and snaked the entire two miles on the mud like saw logs.

Mr. Wallace got in touch with R. M. Harvey, the general agent, who happened to be in Ft. Smith, and finally decided to show Ft. Smith the next day, one day behind the advertised date. Mr. Cory, assistant manager of the show, and Mr. O'Donnell, general press agent, were also in Ft. Smith, and these three got some tall hunting and arranged for the exhibition the following day. A record-breaking crowd had come to town on the date scheduled only to go home disappointed, and, of course, it was not expected that many of these would return the next day. However, the city folks turned out fairly well to the afternoon show, but the country people were missing. There was a tremendous advance sale for the

APPALACHIAN EXPOSITION.

The Great Appalachian Exposition at Knoxville, Tenn., is in its second week, and special days and fine programs continue to draw large and enthusiastic crowds.

The big feature of the week is Phil Parmelee, the famous Wright aviator, who will give eight flights in a Wright biplane. During the week Parmelee will attempt to rival Beachie's famous feat at Niagara by flying under the Tennessee River bridge, which is 100 feet high.

Rings opened September 21 and continued for six days, giving lovers of this form of amusement an opportunity to witness some of the best performers in action.

Each show will also be held this week, with one of the finest dogs ever shown in the country entered. This will be followed by the breeds of chickens. It stands that the exhibition will be a high-class one.

The daily exhibition of Palm's spectacular diving King's Mountain are probably the most interesting exhibitions here, and every person who witnesses by large crowds.

The attractions will continue through the week with new ones added from time to time. Weber's Band concerts are very popular, and Parker, in daily flights in his dirigible, is always sure of a large audience. The United States life-saving crew give exhibitions in the presence of throngs, and the diving men are doing well with two performances by Little Mover, the diving queen.

New Arena for New York

New York, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—The raising of Madison Square Garden, slated to begin February 5, 1912, will leave the American metropolis without a home for circuses, Wild West shows, horse shows, military tournaments, athletic games, bicycle races, sportsmen's shows with indoor trap shooting and ensemble scenic effects as adjuncts, trade shows, philanthropic fairs, mass meetings and star pugilistic encounters.

Mr. Stephen M. VanAllen of Jamaica, L. I., manager of the successful new Sportsmen's Show of 1911 at Madison Square Garden, with the experienced show promoter, Mr. William J. Pohl, and other associates, is engineering a project to build a new arena and exposition building as large or larger than Madison Square Garden, properly constructed and with a better location. Five sites are under consideration, but their locations are not divulged now for real estate reasons.

Boston, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—The Drama League, of Boston, with a membership of 2,000, has named a committee of seven to attend all first performances at local theatres and decide whether the league shall give or withhold its support. Local managers have been asked to cooperate with the league and to furnish a list of plays expected for this season.

Polly's Farewell Season

This being the farewell season of Polly of the Circus, Frederic Thompson has surrounded his St. Leon with a big cast of well-known players and a production which eclipses the original one by far. J. M. Abrams, who is in advance of this production, says that he expects an even greater season, financially, than the first road tour this company had. This is Mr. Abrams' fourth season ahead of Polly. This attraction is headed eastward and when the season is ended, it will have traveled upward of 50,000 miles. The St. Leon family of five is featured.

INCORRECT REPORT CORRECTED.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Through some misunderstanding, a report has been issued stating that "Cy Whitaker's Place" was booked for Whitney Opera House, Chicago.

Cy Whitaker's Place, a dramatization by Rev. William E. Dufforth of Joseph C. Lincoln's popular novel, will be too large a production for the Whitney stage and its presentation there was never contemplated. The play will be given first in the Eastern cities and when it does reach Chicago will be offered at one of the larger theatres.

The Nelson and Gann Stock Company opened the season at the Ellis Theatre, Rensselaer, Ind., Sept. 14, and were greeted by large audiences.

THE GRAIN OF DUST

New Play Moulded from David Graham Phillips' Celebrated Novel Affords James K. Hackett Ideal Starring Vehicle — Excerpts from Critics' Opinions

THE GRAIN OF DUST, a play made by Louis Evan Shipman from the novel by David Graham Phillips. Presented in Chicago at the Blackstone Theatre, September 17, 1911, by James K. Hackett and his company, with the characters cast as follows: Frederick Norman, Mr. Hackett; William Tetlow, E. M. Holland; Isaac Burroughs, Frazier Coulter; Clayton Fitzhugh, Vaughan Trevor; James Galloway, Charles Stedman; Edward Lockyer, Frank Burbeck; Timson, Fred A. Sullivan; Cherk, Daniel Jarrett Jr.; Mrs. Clayton Fitzhugh, Miss Olive Oliver; Josephine Burroughs, Miss Pauline Neff; Dorothea Hallowell, Miss Mary Moran.

Chicago, September 18 (Special to The Billboard).—Hardly is it possible for a dramatic author to catch the full spirit of a novelist's work in preparing it for the stage. This is as true of Louis Evan Shipman's acting version of The Grain of Dust as of any of its bookish predecessors. The fault in this case, as in most instances, is the embarrassment of material afforded by the inspirational story and the dramatist's inability to utilize it in a four act play without neglecting its salient points. To those who have read David Graham Phillips' great novel the theme of the play is held enough, but others may find it somewhat disjointed.

Above all else, the psychological study afforded by Frederick Norman, the fiery, resourceful young lawyer, for the cold, whimsical stenographer, is one that must necessarily command the interest of the patron. It needs, however, to make it tangible, the illumination of a multitude of sidelights that may be applied by the novelist, but which clog dramatic action when put into a play. In consequence, the character of Dorothea Hallowell, as presented on the stage, seems logical and overdrawn. Miss Mary Moran plays the role in the conception of the author and the dramatist, but fails to make it convincing for the above-named reasons.

Mr. Hackett gives a powerful interpretation of Frederick Norman. It is doubtful if he ever has had a role that better demonstrates his technical skill. At all times he is in thorough grasp of his subject, and his demonstration of mingled strength and tenderness for the woman for love of whom he sacrifices his career, is the height of artifice.

E. M. Holland as William Tetlow, the pedantic, unimaginative office man, has a bit in which he acquits himself with his usual artistic. Frazier Coulter, Isaac Burroughs, the captain of finance, plays his part in masterful fashion. The supporting characters are sustained in capable manner.

Excerpts from the opinion of the Chicago critics follow:

Percy Hammond in the Tribune—"The Grain of Dust emerges from the process of dramatization a plain and somewhat aimless story about a corporation lawyer who fell in love with his stenographer, broke his appointment to marry the daughter of a mighty client, married the typist instead, permitted himself, thereupon to be ruined by the mighty client, lost his wife, regained his fortune, regained his wife, and was happy at the terminal.

"It is said to be somewhat aimless because its romantic section, which involved, in the novel, a vast amount of sram psychology, is indefinitely recited; its incidents are baldly stated, without the explanation demanded by their peculiar nature. Thus, the lady of the

THE LADIES' LION

Jefferson De Angelis Inaugurates Illinois Theatre 1911-12 Season in a New Musical Play of His Own Writing, Which is Pronounced Entertaining

THE LADIES' LION, a musical play by Jefferson De Angelis and W. J. Francis. Presented by Jefferson De Angelis and company in Chicago, at the Illinois Theatre, September 16, 1911, with the following cast: Lieutenant Fussy, Jefferson De Angelis; Captain George Fairweather, Frank Rushworth; Senior Rosell, Hubert Wilke; Bill Rowhard, Charles Prince; Second Lieutenant Fairweather, Morgan Williams; Beatrice, Florence Martin; Rose Hyde, Anabelle Whitford; Tommaso, Thomas Gaffolla; Antonio, Eugene Francis; Marie, Anna Millward; Felicia, Carroll City.

Chicago, September 20 (Special to The Billboard).—Jefferson De Angelis is partial to the comic opera. This fact was demonstrated to playgoers at the premiere, September 16, of The Ladies' Lion, a musical play of his own construction. The event also marked the opening of the new season at the Illinois Theatre, and called forth an audience composed of the social elite of the Western metropolis. The play is somewhat reminiscent of Pinaflore, with one of its scenes on the deck of a warship, and much of its humor harks back to other days. The general consensus of opinion, however, is that it is entertaining and possesses one or two lyric gems. The scenery, which Frazee & Lederer are said to have imported from Holland, will not partake largely of the stock of the Dutch scenic painter. Mr. De Angelis himself, however, shows much of the art that has given him his distinct place as an original in the American stage.

Of the play, O. L. Hall of the Journal says: "The Angelis proved himself a writer of generally good verse, an occasionally fair wit, and a poor plotter. His comic opera looked back to the days of Pinaflore, was clothed largely in uniforms, and had one of its acts on the deck of a warship. Its comic interest centered in a confusion of identities and its structure stood largely on a foundation of silliness. The plot seemed to have something to do with the shore adventures of a captain and a lieutenant, the first a traditional sailing tenor and the latter a traditional operatic clown.

"If songs alone could make comic opera, The Ladies' Lion would have measured up to standard. It's Folly to Play with Cupid, sung by Miss Whitford, was a very pleasant thing and was good music. So was The Story of a Bell, which Miss Martin sang. Miss Martin and Rushworth joined their voices attractively in I've Been Lonesome, and there were some good tries and concerted numbers. De Angelis gave himself the comic songs and made the hit of the performance with one of them which very well deserved the show in its refrain, which ran:

We live in the madhouse over the hills, Erie Delmarter in The Inter Ocean sums up his impressions as follows: "The Ladies' Lion, briefly, is a musical comedy rather obvious as to plot and situation, mildly diverting in dialogue and above the average in its musical score.

"The story hinges upon the same old trite notion of the good-looking naval officer with an enthralling past—not lurid, but extremely romantic and persistent. His wedding to the daughter of a Monte Carlo functionary is postponed by the inadvertent arrival of this lovely

He will appear in Over the River, a new play, which will begin the season at the Studchaker Theatre, Chicago, September 28.

SAID AND SEEN IN CHICAGO

Chicago, September 23 (Special to The Billboard).—With the opening of three more theatres and a notable revival of Pinaflore scheduled for the coming week, the Chicago theatrical pot is now bubbling with its usual effluence. Sunday inaugurates the new season at the Auditorium, where Harry Askin's musical comedy, The Girl I Love, will play a three weeks' season for the benefit of the Fellowship's Benevolent Association Fund. This play, which has been seen at the La Salle Opera House last season. The company is new except in the case of Harry C. Lyons, who still plays the part of the chauffeur. Among the newcomers in the cast are George Fox, Ted Burns, John E. Dove, Henry Gardner, Eugene Henry and Leonora Novato. There is a large supporting chorus. The drill squad of the police force will be an added attraction at every performance.

On Monday night Fay Templeton will make her reappearance on the Chicago stage after an absence of five years as Buttercup in the revival of Pinaflore at the Lyric. The revival, which was accorded merited praise when presented in New York last season, will enlist the services of a notable cast including De Wolf Hopper as Dick Dandey, Eugene Cowles as Bill Bodestay, Robert E. Graham as Sir Joseph Porter, George J. MacFarlane as Capt. Corcoran, Edith Becker as Josephine, Alice Brady as Helie, Arthur Aldrich as Ralph Backstraw, and Harold Crane as Bob Beckett.

Thursday night has been selected for the reopening of the Studchaker upon which occasion Chicago playgoers will witness the metropolitan premiere of Over the River, the new musical show in which Edwin Foy will star. The book is from the pen of George V. Hobart and H. A. Du Souchet, and the music is by John L. Golden. The piece derives its title from the fact that couples doing time on Buckwell's Island in New York are said to be rustating "over the river." The play will be given its tryout at Grand Rapids, Mich., next Monday night, and will then be brought here for its final polishing. Maude Lambert will be the prima donna, others in the cast are the Reed Sisters, Berrell Barbra, Harry Benson, M. J. De Stewart, Lester Crawford, William Selery, David Andrade, the Vanderbilt team of West, Fields and Carroll, and forty show girls.

There will be a change of bill at the Angeles on the Globe on Wabash Avenue is now called, Col. W. A. Thompson's opera company undertaking a revival of the timely opera, The Bohemian Girl. The production will be staged and costumed handsomely, and Marie Alda Hermal and the excellent corps of vocalists are sure to acquit themselves creditably in the Puffinbarger.

Blond Berginmore and Sidney Drew will be the headliners of the new bill that comes into

Chicago Burlesque News

Chicago, September 21 (Special to The Billboard).—Charley Howard and James E. Cooper are responsible for one of the biggest laugh successes seen in burlesque in Chicago this season. Mr. Howard plays the character of a German who is inclined to jealousy and Mr. Cooper of a grinch who hates himself. There is a strong supporting cast of clever people, some of whom have excellent voices. The jokes are abundant and beautiful, there being changes made by both principals and company for every one of the numbers. This is the last season that the company will bear the title. When it leaves "the big town" next year, the billing will read, James E. Cooper's Big Girlie Show, Beauty, Youth and Folly, and will be under the management of Mr. W. V. Jennings, who has been the pilot for the Jerry Lilies Company for the past three seasons. The leading juvenile part is capably carried by Mr. Robert Algier. Mr. Jim Dixon plays the part of Col. Holland. Marly Reagan is extremely funny in his conception of Lem Meeker, the "tesawn constabable." Johnny Walker has the part of a Scotch ladle and plays it well. The principal feminine roles are carried by Lucia Cooper playing the part of Von Krigger's wife; Iella Shall, as the sister of the Scotch lad; Fanny St. Clair, as the widow; Gloria Martinez, as Miss Shall's school chum; and Dorothy Hayden and Jeanette Sartore, as bellhops. The opening song, Goodbye, Honey, Boy, Goodbye, is put on by Robert Algier and the chorus; Harbor of Love, by Fanny St. Clair and the chorus; I Am a German Millionaire, by Charley Howard and chorus; and Highland Queen, by Johnny Walker, which proved the hit of the first part songs. The other numbers out on in the first part are, Don't Blame Me, Make Me Love You As I Never Loved Before, We Don't Speak to One Another Now, and the closing Handing chorus by the entire company in hunting costume.

The bill was opened by Alexia and Schall comedy entertainers and dancers. The entire work of Mr. Schall is very commendable and the dancing of the team won high praise. James E. Dixon, the street singer, rendered a number of special songs in the dramatic charm. Mr. Dixon's dramatic work in these numbers is exceptionally clever and scored heavily.

Bellew Scores in Mollusc

Chicago, September 19 (Special to The Billboard).—The new season was inaugurated at Powers' Theatre last night with the first Chicago appearance of Kyrie Bellew and company in Hubert Henry Davis' comedy, The Mollusc. "A charming trifle," "a happy play and a happy cast," and "jolly fun" are some of the critical compliments heaped on the new offering by the Chicago writers. The title of the play is applied to a lady whose habitual lassitude invites her comparison to a bannock, and the manner in which she is cured of this fault is the theme of an evening's entertainment.

Mr. Bellew as Tom Kemp acts with his usual certain technique and attractive personality, and his comedy encounters with Miss Isabel Irving and sentimental passages with Miss Jane Laurel are a delight to the patrons. Isabel Irving is the Mollusc, and a most attractive "selfish shellfish" she is in her bimby leers and gossamer lousing gowns. The husband victim of the Mollusc is amusingly delineated by Frank Goldsmith, ideally fitted for the role both in appearance and his acting. The role of the governess, whose growing sympathy for the husband is happily checked by the advent of Tom Kemp, the Colorado brother, is capably played by Jane Laurel. From all appearances, The Mollusc is at Powers' for a long run.

After a week of darkness, due to the cancellation of Bothwell Brown previously scheduled, the Princess Theatre will begin its new season Tuesday night with Philip Bartholomae's merry farce, Over Night, which has had a long and successful run in the East. It will be acted here by the original company, which includes Margaret Lawrence, Saldie Harris, Grace Griswold, Theresa Deagle, Ernest Truax, Wallace Worsley, and others. The play deals with the complications growing out of the separation of two couples of new-yorks and the action takes place on a Hudson River steamer.

THE WEEK IN CHICAGO

ACTS NEW TO CHICAGO

WELL-BALANCED BILL

Acts Making Their First Appearance in the Western Metropolitan Commented upon—Suggestions Made for Their Improvement, Based on Opinion of Audience

Program at Majestic Theatre Last Week Includes Five Acts New to Chicago—Ruth St. Denis is Headline Attraction, but is Not Appreciated

OSCAR LEWIS AND SAM GREEN. Comedy sketch. Wilson Avenue, Chicago; fourth in five-act show. Time, 18 minutes; opening in one, going to full stage and closing in one.

Lewis and Green have not adhered strictly to originality in their act. One of the gentlemen appears in one, singing a song. The song goes very big but the applause is kept up by an man in the audience. This is the other party of the act, in the character of a Swede. After some parley and argument he goes on to the stage and is engaged as a cook in a restaurant. They exit and the curtain is raised showing the interior of the restaurant. There are a number of signs here displayed, which are instrumental in making the act a big laugh success. Some of them are as follows: In case of the nightmare, don't blame the horse rider; Eat here and die in the alley; Tables reserved for boys; Spring chickens 47 years old; Swedish biscuits with the hairy side out. The boys have wisely given the audience about two minutes to read these signs before they appear. At this point some good comedy business is introduced. The boss is teaching his new Swede cook how to prepare a steak. The Swede substitutes sugar for salt and washes the steak off in an ordinary laundry tub with a wash-board. The act closes in one with singing and dancing and goes very big.

RUTH ST. DENIS. Majestic, Chicago. Seventh in nine-act show. Time, 15 minutes; full stage; special setting. Number of women, one. Number of men, four.

When the curtain is raised on Miss St. Denis' act there is an exclamation of admiration throughout the entire audience. The setting is rich and beautiful. Four of the native priests are discovered worshipping the idol. Miss St. Denis is seated on the shrine in the image of Radha, a Hindoo goddess. Before the shrine a priest is kneeling in prayer. Miss St. Denis descends from the shrine, then follows the dance of the Five Senses, which expresses the central teaching of Brahminism. There is here introduced clever pantomime acting and dancing by Miss St. Denis. The dancing (3) constitutes much running back and forth on the stage on her toes. This seemed to disappoint the audience as they seemed to expect dancing and not art. The act went well but not as big as was expected.

MACRAE AND LEVERING. Majestic, Chicago. First in nine-act show. Time, 10 minutes; in full stage.

Here's a novelty cycle act worthy of a spot on the best bills in the best houses. There is a refreshing abundance of rich comedy throughout the act. A number of freak cycles are ridden by the comedian of the act. The straight man is one of the cleverest in his line ever seen on the Majestic stage. The team work of the duo is exceptionally clever and goes very big. In closing the act the Acrocycle is introduced by the comedian. This is an ordinary bicycle fitted with piano and propeller. It is raised from the stage by the invisible wires such as are used by the burlesque strong acts. The boys took four bows and proved a big success for an act in their position.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 20 (Special to The Billboard).—With the continued cool and favorable weather in Chicago the business in all the theatres is steadily increasing. This applies to the Majestic, which, owing to the change of policy of the American Music Hall has no important competition. The Majestic is a very large house but were there two or three hundred additional seats they could easily be disposed of about half the time during the present boom in business. The headline attraction this week is on the same order as that of last week. Both are artists but a trifle too high brow for the appreciation of the average vaudeville audience. Ruth St. Denis is the headliner this week and while her act is no doubt the highest in art, it is not appreciated for its full value. There is a great amount of pantomime in the act but very little real dancing, and when the average vaudeville follower sees billing announcing a dancer he naturally expects dancing. The setting for Miss St. Denis' act depicts the interior of a Hindoo temple. The light effects used are novel and pleasing to the eye. This setting is undoubtedly instrumental to a good part of the success of the act. This week finds a well-balanced variety bill. There is a noticeable absence of conflicting acts. Five acts out of the nine are new to Chicago.

The bill was opened by Macrae and Levering, in a comedy novelty cycle act. The offering is reviewed under New Acts.

Hal Merritt presents his cartoon monologue, Ipswich. Mr. Merritt offers a fairly good monologue while he is working on his cartoons. There was only one cartoon worthy of favorable mention. This represents a diving girl and, with various additions, Mr. Merritt evolves her into various characters of different types of women seen on the streets. This part was cleverly executed and well received. Mr. Merritt closes his act in a pantomime of a young lady "doing" her hair. He is exceptionally clever in this and the natural comedy introduced sends him away amid a roar of applause.

Sager Midgley and Company present a farce comedy called, Early Morning Reflections. The act is good and full of comedy but it is to be regretted that it is not original. The base of their act represents the mirror stunt used by the Hanlon Brothers, but is not worked nearly so well. It is reviewed under New Acts.

Ethel Green has been seen here before with Billy Gaston and has always been very successful. She appears working alone in a repertoire of songs, straight and character and may justly feel proud of her great success. Her offering is reviewed under New Acts.

Jamea F. Dolan and Ida Lenharr present a burlesque mind-reading and second sight act, called Some Mind-Reader. The idea is new and original and the legitimate part of the act was received just as well as the comedy part. It is also reviewed under New Acts.

George W. Cunningham and Herman Marlon offer a novelty called An Acrobatic Talk-fest. The comedy in the act is a trifle overdone, there being too many falls and too much slapstick. However, it went very big. The acrobatic work of both gentlemen is exceedingly clever, some entirely new feats being introduced.

MAZIE KING.

For the past three years Miss King has been appearing on Broadway as a feature member of Lew Fields' productions of the Midnight Sons and the Hen Pecks. She is now in vaudeville, on the Orpheum Circuit, presenting her own pantomime, entitled, The Legend of the Spring. Last spring Miss King performed the remarkable feat of walking down 2,700 steps from the top of the Metropolitan Tower, New York City, on the tips of her toes.

VAUDEVILLE CHATTER

A Hirsch, formerly manager of a vaudeville theatre at Moose Jaw, Can., is now Chicago representative of George H. Webster and has a desk in Charles H. Bontwick's Agency; all of the business going through Bontwick. Mr. Hirsch is showing himself as a hustler and sees show every night. He has pulled off some pretty big things. He secured Count the First for a week at Fargo on his way to open on the Panhandle Time. Gardner, West and Sunshine opened at Fargo September 18, and Mr. Hirsch is advised that they were a big success. Mine, Gertrude opened September 25 at the Orpheum, Fargo, and will tour that circuit. Casad, Irwin and Casad start the tour on October 8. Leo Remondone and Company open October 2. This is only a few of the many acts he has secured for the Webster Circuit.

John and Mae Burke were billed for the Linden Theatre the last half of last week, but Gilroy, Haynes and Montgomery filled the date. Manager P. S. Hatch released the Burkes as they had a chance to get Orpheum bookings. This is the third time this season that the J

C. Matthews office has so accommodated these players.

H. M. Miller is certainly making a success out of the Hamilton Theatre at 68th and Halsted Streets. His first shows always have capacity. He gives two shows a night and three on Sunday night. Miller believes in ten cents all over the house and attributes much of the success of the Hamilton to this policy.

The Western Vaudeville Managers' Association took charge of the bookings of the Wilson and Willard Theatres last week and already acts are appearing at those houses that are identified with the Association.

The reported engagement of Frank Merritt and Stella Tracy seems to have been a prank on the part of their friends. It was printed in a paper at Escanaba, Mich., and clippings sent to Chicago gave rise to the report.

L. O. Whittier and the Wengers left Chicago last week to begin a tour of the Hodkins Lyric Circuit.

Good Bill at Wilson Ave. Theatre

Chicago, Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—With the exception of the Ratuskeller Trio, the headline act which was furnished by Frank Q. Boyle, the management of the Wilson Avenue Theatre should be grateful to the W. Y. M. A. for one of the most evenly balanced bills seen at the house in a long time. It is a purely comedy bill and this is the class of offerings that seems to please the Wilson Avenue audience best. While all the acts border on comedy situations there is a contrast in the nature of each offering. In conjunction with the extraordinary offering this week, business has come back on up to last season's record when the S. H. U. sign was most always in evidence. Manager Licant seems highly elated over the prospect of big business for both the Wilson Avenue Theatre, of which house he is manager, and of the Willard, in which he is also interested financially. The show for the first half is opened by Frechal Brothers, European acrobatic jugglers. The comedy situations are a trifle overworked at times but their far and acrobatic stunts were well liked. They work fast and smoothly and with an abundance of good stunts.

Emil Subert appears second in place of Edith Montrose. It is not our pleasure to claim the reputation of Miss Montrose but here's hoping that she is not so overbearingly presumptuous as to attempt to "ball out" the audience just because they do not see fit to applaud an offering not worthy of their exertion in this particular. Any one who has played the Wilson Avenue knows that it is one of the most generous audiences in vaudeville theatres. Emil Subert opens by singing a song which no self-respecting hearer would care to applaud very much. The song is poor and poorly rendered, and Mr. Subert "queered" himself completely with one of the most intelligent audiences by trying to call them down. Mr. Subert follows with a song with a fairly good monologue and a little over nicely, but the folks in the audience seemed to resent his opening jibe and were slow in giving him credit for an offering that may be truly termed good.

"Bill," Mazie B. Raymond, assisted by Lilian McNell, offers a singing, talking and dancing act in full stage, the feature of which is Miss Raymond's Irish songs which score very heavily. Miss McNell's dancing is well re-

Parkway Theatre Establishes Record

Chicago, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—Through the engagement of the Se-Heras, one of the best mind-reading and second sight acts and a bill of strong feature acts, the Parkway Theatre is doing the best business of the present season this week. Madame Se-Hera was featured heavily in Chicago several years ago when K. & E. were putting on all-star vaudeville at the Auditorium. The Se-Heras offer one of the most mystifying acts ever seen in Chicago, and while the act might advantageously be cut above five minutes, it goes exceptionally big for one of its nature.

Mr. Se-Hera assists his wife and works through the audience by answering questions and having Madame identify unseen articles offered by people in the audience. No pads are used, thus proving that the talent is really genuine.

The show for the first half is opened by the Hamilton Brothers, in a knock-about act. The offering was recently reviewed in these columns. The act went very well at the Parkway and brought several encores.

Lillian Wright, Lloyd and Clayton, a trio of two gentlemen and a lady, offer a dancing act. This act was also reviewed two weeks ago when the trio appeared at the Wilson Avenue Theatre.

The Cliff Nelson Players appear third in their comedy skit called A Trip to New York. This offering was reviewed under New Acts in these columns recently. The act is filled with live comedy situations and proved the hit of the Parkway bill.

The Three Dixie Girls appear in colonial costumes and put over a very good quality of harmony and solo numbers in popular and old favorite songs. Evidently this trio of young ladies believe that "appearance is half the battle" and resultantly they win. The act scored heavily on Wednesday night and the girls were forced to respond to several encores.

The show is closed by the Se-Heras in their mind-reading and second-sight offering. As formerly stated, the act would be improved by cutting about five minutes off the time. They went very big and had difficulty in getting off.

When Henry W. Savage presents Madame X in Chicago this season, Raymond will be played by Frank Herbert, who started his career only last season under the tutelage of Hart Conway. The critics spoke highly of his early attempts.

THEATRICAL EVENTS OF THE WEEK

RETURNS TO FIRST LOVE

Eva Tanguay to Become Star in New Musical Melange Under the Direction of F. Ziegfeld, Jr.—Erratic Eve will Have Proprietary Interest in Production

New York, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—Eva Tanguay, who as a result of the Percy Williams' contest at the close of the last vaudeville season was accorded the honor of being vaudeville's greatest star, has come to terms with F. Ziegfeld, Jr., to be featured as the star of a musical comedy melange, in which she is to have a proprietary interest. The deal was arranged so as to assure the erratic star an equal if not larger salary than the one she obtained last year, as well as removing the necessity of appearing twice daily. The name of the new play has not as yet been divulged, but is supposed that it will partake largely of the nature of the Ziegfeld Follies.

COHAN COMES BACK

The Yankee Doodle Boy Returns to Stage in His Latest Musical Creation, The Little Millionaire—Premiere at Hartford, September 18th

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—The Little Millionaire, George M. Cohan's latest musical show, had its premiere at Parson's Theatre on September 18, and was accorded a warm greeting by a large audience. The plot is based upon the will of a rich woman who made it a condition of the enjoyment of her millions that if either her husband or her son married after her death without the other's consent that he should forfeit his share of the estate. The son has fallen in love with a chorus girl and the action of the play consists of the attempts of various persons to pry him loose from her, thinking that his father would never consent to his wedding. They all fail to separate the lovers and eventually it is discovered that the father also wishes to be married, an everything ends happily. The show went with a sharp front start to finish. The first and third acts are regular musical comedy and the second straight farce. The author played the title role in his usual eccentric manner, not forgetting to ring in his customary song about the F. S. D. His father and mother appeared with him and both played their parts well. Miss Lila Rhodes was excellent in the leading female part, and Tom Lewis did some fine work as Postigo, the wine agent, and was responsible for most of the humor. The production is well staged and will no doubt enjoy a long New York run. The complete cast was as follows:

- Henry Spooner, a Millionaire . . . Jerry J. Conroy
- Robert Spooner, Just as Wealthy as His Father . . . M. J. Conroy
- George Russell, Spooner's Secretary . . . M. J. Conroy
- Hil Costigan, a Wine Agent . . . Tom Lewis
- Roscoe Handover, a Bad Man . . . Sydney Jarvis
- Danny Wheeler, Robert's Chauffeur . . . Earl Reddy
- Edward Pumber, Spooner's Butler . . . Donald Crisp
- Leah, Manager Heavy Art . . . William Ford
- Starts at the Heavy Art . . . William Ford
- Mrs. Prescott, Goldie's Aunt . . . Goldie Gray
- Goldie Gray of the Zig Zag Folly Co. . . Goldie Gray
- Julia Rhodes . . . Julia Rhodes
- Bertha Burnham, Roscoe's Accomplish . . . Josephine Whitford
- Miss Trimmer . . . Maude Allen
- Mary, Goldie's Maid . . . Amy Mortimer
- Policeman . . . Percy Rogers
- Page Boy . . . Charles W. Wolf

NEW YORK BURLESQUE NOTES.

Hyde & Bohman Show at the Columbia Theatre last week, is said to be the most expensively staged and gowned of any advance burlesque that has yet appeared on Broadway. Miss Mills, the star, is said to have paid $1,200 for her gown, the Red Rose. Incidentally, these dress creations were made by Frances and endorsed by A. B. Cramer.

Rohde's Kirtchevoker Burlesquers, with Roger Imhof, Harry Sailer, James J. Luke, Buff and Walsh, Hugh Conn, Corine Imhof, Carl Schroeder, Zella DeMar and a beauty chorus have started on their Western trip around the Wheel, accompanied by the usual big business that follows this organization everywhere.

This season Louis Robie is presenting The Love Kiss and for an afterpiece Casey, the Piper, is being offered. In the latter skit, Imhof, himself, is seen as the irrepressible "Casey."

As regards the equipment of scenery and costumes Robie has this season spread himself, and has provided an unusually massive production for a burlesque attraction.

EXCUSE ME IN FRENCH.

New York, Sept. 20 (Special to The Billboard).—Rupert Hughes, the author of Excuse Me, which Henry W. Savage is exploiting with three companies this season, has arranged with Alexandre Blsson, the author of Madame X, to adapt his farce into French.

A Sterling Vaudeville Bill

One of the best vaudeville bills that has been seen in Cincinnati opened at Keith's Theatre Sunday, September 24 for one week. While Miss Mabel Hite is the headliner, position to which she is entitled, there are a number of other acts on the bills than can easily be considered headline attractions. An act which has been reviewed in these columns before and one which created more laughter than any vaudeville sketch seen here this season is Dinkelspiel's Christmas. This sketch furnished continuous uproarious laughter. Perhaps a little less German in the speaking parts would be appreciated by persons not familiar with this language. Aside from this the sketch is above criticism.

Rice, Sully and Scott, in Fun on the Tambo-line Bars, were good as the opening act, although the material they use is not at all original.

Charles Nevins and Ada Gordon find ready applause for their act, Little Miss Manicure. Miss Gordon as the Scarecrow Girl, made a pronounced hit.

Following this act, T. Eckert, tenor and pianist, and Emma Berg, soprano, offer a bit of choice opera, in which they introduce a number of vocal selections that went well with the audience. Mr. Eckert is an exceptionally good performer on the piano and gave imitations of the banjo, guitar and mandolin, etc., in a way that earned him rounds of applause. The act is well staged and the costumes used were beautiful. Mr. Eckert's rendition of Spring Time is particularly excellent.

Two very talented musicians appearing on the program as Guerrero and Carmen, offer fifteen minutes of music, which was enjoyed by the entire audience. Guerrero has an excellent stage presence and performs on the violin in a manner calculated to please the student, as well as those not familiar with this instrument. His harmonies are especially excellent, although this part of his performance was not fully appreciated by the entire audience. Carmen, a very beautiful young lady, exquisitely-gowned and bejeweled, is a master of the harp. Their act closes with a rendition of some semi-classical selections, including The Bohemian Girl, Lustspiel, Toreador Song from Carmen, Cavalleria Rusticana and Miserere from Il Trovatore. It has been a long time since Cincinnatians have had the pleasure of seeing and hearing a musical act of this quality.

Mabel Hite, in Twenty Minutes of Polishness, gave a vocal imitation of well-known stage celebrities in her inimitable style. She makes four changes of costume but does not keep the audience waiting as is the case with some other artists giving acts of this kind. Tom Kelly is a good pianist and a great help to Miss Hite.

Clifford and Burke have some new jokes and gags which they put over in good style. Rice and Prescott close the well-balanced bill, which is particularly enjoyable.

Everett Wilson and Ed, Reilly have leased Joyland, a former moving picture theatre at Wilmington, Del., and opened Sept. 18 as the Lyric, with vaudeville. Sam Messel of Atlanta Ga., is supplying the acts.

Greek exponents of Telepathy and Prophetic Vision, appearing in vaudeville.

Al. G. Field Retires Temporarily

Richmond, Va., Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—Al G. Field, the veteran minstrel owner and principal artist of Al G. Field's Minstrels for over twenty-five consecutive years has been compelled to retire, temporarily at least, from the stage, on account of bad health. Mr. Field has been suffering for some time from acute nervous indigestion, and has been warned by his physician to take things quietly and leave business alone.

NEW THEATRES FOR STAIR.

Toledo, O., Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—E. D. Stair and J. M. Lowrey have announced that Toledo is to have a new theatre to take the place of the old Lyceum Theatre. The new playhouse will be as fine as any in the city, and will be known as the New Lyceum. It will be constructed on either St. Clair street, near Keith's new theatre, or on Summit Street, between Madison and Adams.

Mr. Stair is also planning a new $175,000 theatre for Cleveland, to be erected on the public square. Plans for both houses have been prepared by Architect Milton W. Johnson.

New York Manager a Bankrupt

New York, Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—Herbert M. Horkheimer, theatrical manager, residing at 72 Claremont Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities $41,338, and assets $48 cash in two trust companies. Included in the liabilities is an action pending for $22,000 brought against him by Violet Hale of 517 West 113th Street. Among those he owes for salary are: Ann Warrington, $800; Sadie Williams, $50; Gladys Clark, $50; Josephine Dougherty, $20; Miles McCarthy, $20; and William Ingersoll, $20. Among the other creditors are the Metropolitan Printing Co., $1,000; American Play Co., $200; H. A. Green & Bro., $1,102; Linder & Co., $150; royalties; Darcy & Wolford, $100; royalties; H. S. Horkheimer, $1,000 services; Osborn, Searle, $567; Judgment; George N. Counts, $1,250 loan; Leelle, Ltd., $450; Tagge, society milliner, $75; Slayne & Co., $450; and Lord & Taylor, $100. A year ago it was reported that Mr. Horkheimer had brought a plot of land in the Bronx to build a theatre to cost $200,000.

Aletheia and Aleko, Greek telepathists and exponents of prophetic vision, have some open time in November. They have just received their beautiful new scenic production from the painter, J. Schneider.

What the Doctor Ordered

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Metropolitan theatregoers are still holding in memory the last pleasant work of A. E. Thomas, Her Husband's Wife, which was produced here a season or more ago. They recognize in the young author one of the American types that has done much to encourage observers of the present tendencies in our theatres.

In his latest effort, the playwright sticks closer to narrative than he does to dramatic etiquette, he has infused lines of great wit and pungency, such as will endorse the Wagoner's & Kemper production on the strength of its cleverness to the ordinary audience. The story is of fabric commonly seen before—the treatment while containing evidences of originality in development, are in the main of a revamped nature, yet the comedy, the naturalness of the conversation, the simplicity are able capable to make What the Doctor Ordered as long lived as reason should allow. The critics varied in their regard for its humor, the Tribune even finding the farce lacking in spots. The Sun looks upon the new Astor Theatre production, which enjoyed its premiere last Wednesday night, September 20, with more optimism and extends words of congratulation to the young playwright upon the successful outlook of his production.

The Times, however, evidences no great portion of favorable prediction as the following quotation will tell: "The immediate result was a scene at the luncheon table, with the wife alternately throwing fits and plates the first of which brought down her hair, while the second demolished the best set of china—a wedding gift from one of the mothers. "The present season has already brought early matrimonial difficulties has provided the main theme. As Thomas is a man of taste he could hardly have been responsible for much of the violent and ancient business with which portions of the play are padded out, and which suggested a pantomime or vaudeville interlude rather than a natural development of the comedy idea he had in mind. Nor is he to be blamed for a certain quality of aggressiveness which crept into much of the acting, and which eventually became very wearing on the nerves. "In this respect Miss Virginia Hammond was the chief offender, her noisy protestations and persistent halving of many of the lines leading chiefly to that tired feeling. Mr. Hires W."

BUTTERFIELD EXPANDING.

Hattle Creek Mich., Sept. 20 (Special to The Billboard).—Through a deal just closed, W. Butterfield of Hattle Creek, secures an interest in the vaudeville theatres in Flint and Port City. This makes a compact circuit of three theatres. Mr. Butterfield is giving the world his entire attention and attractions are being booked by the Western Vaudeville Managers' Association. Besides these vaudeville houses, he is interested in two stock houses, and four one-night stand theatres, and reports that the season has opened well in all houses.

WEEK THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

THE FRIARS' TOUR

Inspired by the Success Which Attended Their Jaunt Last Summer, Stage Notables Plan Trans-continental Tour in Which Twenty-seven Cities will be Visited

Definite arrangements have been concluded for the forthcoming coast to coast tour to be made by the Friars' Club next spring and autumn as was the one made last May, as the Friars' Club Frolic. The literary planned by the committee, which is headed by Mr. A. L. Erlanger, the general director of the entire tour, has been under consideration for the past two months and now that it has been passed upon by the officials of the various railroads, who are to carry the organization across the continent it is in shape to be announced. Including the orchestra, the entire organization will consist of about 115 members, who will make the tour by a special train to be furnished by the Pennsylvania R. R. Co., and which will consist of six compartment cars, two dining cars, one baggage car and one combination club car. The latter will contain for the comfort and convenience of the traveling members a barber shop, baths, telephone services at all cities visited, valet service and any other conveniences that may be necessary. At all stops special ticket service giving baseball returns and other news, will be connected with this car.

After playing an initial performance in New York City, the organization will proceed to Atlantic City, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, Denver, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Portland, Seattle, Spokane, Butte, Minneapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Toronto, Buffalo, Rochester, Boston, Providence and probably to New York for a return engagement. Altogether, 27 cities will be visited and the entire tour will cover a distance of 8,768 miles. The cost of the special train, including about 9,000 meals to be served en route, will be $37,520.

The literary may be changed to include a performance in Chicago on the way to the coast and another in the same city on the company's return on its way back to New York. The committee in charge of next year's Frolic will be the same as handled the tour given in May of the present year. As already stated, Mr. A. L. Erlanger will be the general director.

Fields to Have Chicago Theatre

Chicago, September 23 (Special to The Billboard).—In Low Fields' American Music Hall, Chicago is to have a counterpart of the New York Winter Garden and the Folies Bergere. The date of opening has been set back to October 9 that ample time may be had for thorough preparation. The plans provide for an expansion along the lines that made the Weber & Fields Music Hall one of the Broadway sensations a decade ago.

Marcus Loew and William Morris are lessees of the theatre, and the negotiations that brought Low Fields into the game were conducted by Aaron Jones, who was at one time the lessee of the property, but who is now acting solely in the capacity of agent for Messrs. Loew and Morris.

The interior of the theatre is being remodelled and refurbished and extra boxes are being added where the north promenade formerly was. The scale of prices will range from boxes at $2 to $4 for balcony admission.

The company, which is not yet complete in personnel, will be approximately as follows: Max Rogers, baritone; H. Haven, baritone; North, Harry Cooper, Harry Fisher, Hugh Cameron, George Quinn and Flora Parker. Negotiations are now under way with Marie Dressler, a name synonymous of equal reputation to lead the aggregation.

A burlesque on Get Rich Quick Wallingford is being prepared for an opening number, and several other acts will be interspersed. Gaby D'Arby is reported to be an early attraction at the new playhouse.

SEASON OPENS WELL.

Results from the main office of the Bijou Theatre, Enterprise Company and the Bijou Amusement Company at Battle Creek, Mich., show that the season in that state has opened very well. Besides the eight vaudeville theatres which are now all open, the one-night stand theatres, operated by the Bijou Amusement Company, have started off well. The touring for the season, while not overly heavy, shows a first class line of attractions and what few good shows have been in the state have all been satisfied with the results.

The Bishop Players, which is the new stock of the Gortrick Theatre, Grand Rapids, opened September 3 to a turn away business and the Bishop established himself immediately as a popular actor.

Mr. Edward Russell is leading man and stage star of the stock company at the Bijou Theatre, Saginaw, Mich., and has been playing to satisfactory results since August 7. Both the stock companies are personally under the management of W. B. Butterfield, with headquarters at Battle Creek.

TAKE MY ADVICE PREMIERE.

William Barry, Pa. Sept 17 (Special to The Billboard).—Take My Advice, William Collier's new play, was presented for the first time at the Grand Opera House last night.

Ed C. Hayes is the big scream with the John W. Wood Minstrels.

ADVERSELY CRITICISED

Modern Marriage Has Premiere in New York, and while Play Possesses Much Cleverness, Consensus of Opinion is that Broadway Run Will be of Short Duration

New York, September 19 (Special to The Billboard).—The Harrison Rhodes three-act comedy, produced by Cyril Scott on September 16 at the Bijou, has not been acclaimed with predictions for long life by the New York critics. They acknowledge, however, its cleverness, and relish its dapper satire on the follies of up-to-date woman. Their chief contention is that the story of the play is not quite suitable for light comedy. Mr. Scott is given the credit for all his talent, for he knows and possesses many of the laugh-producing devices at his fingertips. Individually, he is of stellar caliber. His cast did all within their power to ably support him, Miss Stevens, in particular, developing the comedy with significant intelligence and surety. Catherine Calhoun, Loretta Wells, Margaret Seddon and Olive May all demonstrated their ability in their several roles. The press even devoted special comment to the characterization of the hesitant authoress by Miss Seddon. It is not likely that Modern Marriage will remain long on Broadway.

FLYING BANVARDS SAIL.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—The Six Flying Banwards sailed Wednesday on the Lusitania. They are booked to open at the Folies Bergere in Paris, October 1, for a month's engagement. A six weeks' stay in Brussels will follow, upon the fulfillment of which they go to London, opening December 23, and remaining in the British center until February 10. In London they will play at the Royal Agricultural Hall.

New Chicago Booking Agency

The Columbia Theatrical Exchange, a new booking agency for singers, musicians, moving picture operators and equipment, and in fact, all talent for photoplay theatres, was opened in Chicago recently.

Mr. O. C. Phillips, the general manager, has had years of experience in this line, having at one time theatres all over the United States and will be remembered by some of the best houses in this country as a feature singer. Mr. Phillips tries out each and every one of his singers personally, and can readily guarantee a manager when he is looking for talent for his theatre just what he wants. Mr. Phillips claims the friendship of probably more managers than any other one agent in his line in the West. These same managers have welcomed Mr. Phillips in this field and while the new firm has only been established two weeks the demand for singers thus far exceeds the supply. The feature of the new firm is a department of equipment which stands ready to supply machines, films, song slides, operators or talent at any time of the day or night.

Mr. Phillips may justly be called a pioneer in the moving picture game, he being one of the originators of this popular diversion.

Offices of the Columbia Theatrical Exchange are located at Room 495, 145 N. Clark Street.

SHOULD INTEREST PLAYERS.

The Pocket Umbrella Co. of Findlay, O., has recently put on the market a telescoping umbrella that is a real luxury. It telescopes into a compact form of about 15 inches long; there is no folding necessary or waste of time, but simply squeeze a little spring in the top of the umbrella, and it will push in the handle, and the whole umbrella telescopes inside of itself. When telescoped it does not look bulky, but as a miniature umbrella. This umbrella can be carried in an ordinary small suit case or traveling bag, even in the hip pocket. Of course this is the only umbrella that gives its owner the proper service. When traveling you can not lose it but always have it with you. We all agree that such an umbrella has long been needed. There are thousands of traveling men who are willing to pay any price to get an umbrella which they can have with them all of the time. The company seems to understand the importance of an article like this. They spent a fortune to make it correct; every part of the umbrella is electroplated, which means the umbrella looks superior to the ordinary one. It is also absolutely rust-proof. When the umbrella is open for rain or being used for a walking cane you can not tell the difference from the high-grade ordinary umbrella. Through this umbrella thousands of hats and suits of clothing will be saved every year from being spoiled when caught in showers. In our opinion this umbrella will change the umbrella habit of the nations.

Bob Wingate is on his seventh week of the Inter-State Circuit, with the rest of the time to follow. Bob is making a big hit; they all like the "bones."

and the others on the committee will be George M. Colan, Sam H. Harris, William Collier, William Ellinger, Emmet Corrigan, Raymond Hitchcock, George Honey Boy Evans, Jerry J. ### THE OVERTONS.

Albert DeSoto and wife, clever song and dance artists, also impersonators, known to the stage as The Overtons, are well known in the West. Mr. DeSoto is a full-blooded Indian, and an artist of ability. This team will probably be seen in the East this season.

T. M. A. NEWS

IN MEMORIAM.

Bobby Reed, clown and concert performer, late of the 4 Paw Sells Bros' Circus, died at his home, 189 Oliver Street, Paterson, N. J., September 18, of tuberculosis. He was also three seasons with the John Robinson's Big Show. He was buried under the auspices of the Paterson Century Lodge.

T. M. A. MEMBER HONORED.

Chicago Lodge No. 4 had its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, September 12, in hall 913, Masonic Temple. A large and enthusiastic number of visitors and brothers attended the meeting. A most pleasant feature of the session was the presentation of a beautiful loving cup to Brother Louis M. Heinrich. Our worthy secretary, H. P. Larson, made an eloquent presentation speech of some length and was cheered to the echo at its finish. The cup was from the many friends of Brother Heinrich in the grand and subordinate lodges who attended the Wheeling convention and was a fitting testimonial of the friendship and esteem Brother Heinrich was so pleased with the gift that he was unable to respond in his usual eloquent manner.

T. M. A. NOTES.

An invitation is extended to all members of the T. M. A. playing Houston, Texas, to visit the new club rooms of Lodge No. 13, 1111 1/2

Congress Avenue, where the latch-string is always out and where members can view a rare collection of photos of people prominent in the theatrical world. Members or performers are invited to mail a photo to Secretary John P. Morgan, which will be given a prominent showing. This includes Harry W. Richardson of Cincinnati and Joe Nixon of Piqua, O. Tom J. Boyle, E. K. Lathrop and Julius F. Hall are the trustees of the club, and Jim Hilliard is the steward, and everyone paying the lodge a visit is assured every courtesy possible. All theatrical papers are on file.

Richmond (Ind.) Lodge No. 98 is in a very prosperous condition. The traveling members of the order are always welcome and are made to feel themselves at home. Elmer Layman of Richmond was initiated in the lodge at a recent meeting.

Harry Superior, advance agent of Get Rich Quick Wallingford, was in Cincinnati last week paying the way for the popular Cohen & Harris comedy. Harry is a member of Boston Lodge No. 2.

The members of the East Liverpool T. M. A. Lodge went to Beaver Falls last week, where they were royally entertained by the T. M. A.'s of that place. The journey was made on Sunday afternoon, and it was a tired crowd that came home late in the evening.

Chas. N. Le Roy, formerly with Le Roy and La Retta, contortionists, is playing through Canada, being routed to the Coast by Geo. H. Webster.

IN PUBLISHERS' ROW

Notes from American Music Publishers of Their Latest Songs, and the Artists Through Whose Aid They Are Popularized

SELDEN WILL WRITE BOOK.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Edgar Selden has contracted to write the book for the vehicle of The Broadway Gaiety Girls next season. Selden has written several burlesque successes, including the book of The Whirl of Mirth, which is one of the Western Wheel's best attractions.

MOVE INTO LARGER QUARTERS.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—After October 1, the New York Sheet Music Clearing House, of which William H. Penn is president, will be located in the Forty-fifth St. Exchange Building, at 141-147 West 45th Street. The firm now has offices in the Broadway Theatre Building. A substantial increase in business necessitates the removal into larger quarters.

M. WITMARK NOTES.

The Church City Four, who played the Wilson and Willard Theatre last week, and open in St. Louis this week, has replaced some of their old numbers with the latest song successes, Good-bye, My Love, Good-bye, If All My Dreams Were Made of Gold and Neptune, which the bass of the quartette does very fine.

Billy Martyn and Houze Sisters, who joined the Shean and Gallagher Show at Kansas City this week, went very nicely with the new rag song, Ragtime Love, and this trio was without doubt one of the biggest hits of the show when they sang the song success of the season, Baby Rose.

The Marlonette Trio, who are playing a return trip over the Webster Time, have added the song hit of the season to their act, Baby Rose, and they close their always pleasing singing act with Any Girl Looks Good in Summer.

The Southern Quartette, who played the Grand Theatre last week, were callers at the Witmark office after new numbers for their act, and decided on the new ballad, If All My Dreams were made of Gold which looks like a big success, also the novelty song hits, Baby Rose and Frisco Rag.

Russell and Shreve, who are playing Logansport this week, went very nice the opening performance with Witmark's new rags, Ragtime Love and Frisco Rag. Both numbers took encores.

Whittier and Crossan, playing for Walter Kiefe, Bijou Theatre, Oshkosh, Wis., this week, when they sang for the first time Ernst Ball's latest ballad, Good-bye, My Love, Good-bye, were forced to repeat the second chorus. This number is a successor to In the Garden of My Heart.

The Three Dixie Girls, another one of Harry Sprigold's finds in vaudeville, opened at the Parkway Theatre, and was without doubt the best singing act that played at this house for several months. Their song hits were Witmark's Baby Rose, Take Me Back to Babylon, Aradilla and Good-bye, My Love, Good-bye. All numbers were delivered very nicely, taking many encores and bows.

Miss White, who has been held over at the Congress for three weeks, where she has been going very big with In the Garden of My Heart, has added Ernst Ball's latest ballad hit to her act, Good-bye, My Love, Good-bye, which made her respond to an encore.

STERN & CO.

Grotta Mack is using I'm Getting Kind of Lonesome for My Old Kentucky Pal.

Estelle Tolin, the soprano, is singing the Mississippi Dippy Dip.

Billy Walsh has selected Stern's novelty song, On the B. A. R. Amy Francis is also using this number.

Some of the performers using Henry & Bryan's great song, I Like The Hat, I Like the Dress and I Like the Girl That's In It, are Gladys Rich, Holly White, Bobs Senin Sisters, Mike Fertic and Lillie Diamond.

Jack Driscoll, the tenor with the big voice, is singing nightly at the 14th St. Theatre, Krause & Goodall's ballad, I'll Go With You to the End of the World.

Miss M. B. Randall writes from San Francisco, Cal., that she is singing almost a full catalogue of Jos. W. Stern & Co.'s songs.

Leon Berg, the general representative of Huritz & Seaman, has struck the prize winner of the entire burlesque wheel. There was considerable competition among the various song writers as to which song would receive the most encores, and it is safe to say that Leon has eclipsed them all with his latest success, entitled The Beautiful Isle of Love, with which Miss Jennie Austin is stopping the show, taking ten encores at every performance. It is predicted that at least 250,000 copies will be sold, and manager Joe Huritz guaranteed to sell 25,000 with his own show. Jos. W. Stern & Co., who are wide awake to this, advanced Mr. Berg a large sum on this number.

MUSIC NOTES.

At the song test held at the Saratoga last evening, Rae Samuela, that unique girl rag-time songster, put over her favorite song hit, Monkey Rag, in such fine style that she received nine encores and the prize. Miss Sophie Tucker, it is reported, sang another song in place of the Monkey Rag. Miss Tucker made this song known in New York when she sang it at Hammerstein's Victoria.

Belmont and Harl are featuring a brand-new song which is the talk of their act. They will be in Chicago October 2 at the Casino Theatre.

Gilliland's Black Hussar Band has closed the summer season, which has been a very successful and profitable one.

Conrad and Widdy, now on United, are featuring the Monkey Rag. The violin rag-time playing of Monkey Rag is a treat, and the boys surely are making good.

Lee Copeland of Dockstader's Minstrels will sing a new Thompson song which he is now

A birthday surprise party and banquet was given September 3 at Winsted, Minn., in honor of Mrs. Dr. J. M. Prentice, wife of Dr. J. M. Prentice, proprietor of the Modern Quaker Remedial Co. The event took place in the big tent of the company after the show, the reserve seats being set aside and a large dining table set in their place. The decorations were elaborate and a fine repast was enjoyed by not only the show people, but a number of the leading citizens of Winsted. Many costly and beautiful presents were given to Mrs. Prentice, among others a handsome diamond ring and a name, Tom Davis, Frank Smedley, Frank Brown, Russell Green, Billie Johnson, Joseph Fauson and June Rube.

Miss Blanche Mead and her dog Sparky have been spending the summer with friends at Dayton, Ky., and preparing for a hard season, as she is booked solid for forty weeks.

Frank Merritt and Claudia Tracey, two vaudeville performers, were married in Summit, Mich., September 12. The two concluded an engagement at the Grand Theatre at Escanaba the night of the 11th. Some of the audience became aware that they were to be married and all during their turn they were showering with rice.

M. E. Moore has decided to enter the vaudeville producing business in earnest, and will move from Vincennes, Ind., to Chicago, where he will open up an office. One of his acts, Lorna Jackson and the Bah-Bah Boys, is rehearsing at the Princess Theatre in Chicago under the stage direction of Hamilton Colman. Another act, Aubra Rich and her Stage Door Johnnies, will take the road shortly.

A report from Hamilton, Ont., Can., states that several weeks ago a vaudeville performer by the name of Lee or Harry Hartell came to Hamilton to fill an engagement at the Crystal Theatre. He became ill and it is said upon representing himself as a White Rat a local physician gave him medical attendance. Upon his release from the hospital he is said to have left Hamilton owing about $150.

Winninger Brothers and associate players opened the season at Waukesha, Wis., in Daniel Sully's The Matchmakers. The roster of the company is as follows: John Winninger, Joseph Bernard, Joseph McLeod, Charles Murston, Adolph Winninger, W. Howard Fitz, Joseph Winninger, Mitchell Ingraham, Adele Hurley, Mary Avery, Louise Winninger and Ward Caldwell.

Victor Foster and Edna Erick have been engaged by James S. Bevilin and will appear very soon in a musical comedy dance creation in one. Mr. Foster will have plenty of opportunity as a comedian, singer, dancer and pianist. Miss Erick will be remembered as the soprano ingenue with Marie Cahill. She is a talented pianist and an accomplished singer.

The Girl and the Tramp, Company D, is playing to good business in the big one-night stands of the Central States, and will play the East, opening on three night and one week stands October 15. The show and people are making good, and return dates are being offered nearly everywhere. Mr. Stanton, the stage-director, is filling the position very successfully.

Leslie and Knade are now in their sixth week on the Griffin Circuit, playing Porcupine, Ont., where the big fire was. South Porcupine has been rebuilt and two new houses opened there, the Rex, booked by Griffin, and the Princess, booked by H. Rich of Toronto. Both houses expect to play two vaudeville acts, one single and one double.

Lajos Ritzko, the Hungarian Gypsy violinist, who played during the summer season at Sandy Grove Park, Philadelphia, Pa., has entered vaudeville, booked on the Gus S. Circuit, and opened at the Dixie Theatre, Philadelphia, September 21.

Spencer Walker has been engaged for good by Kilroy & Britton's Millionaire Kid Company, playing the Star & Haven Time. This is Mr. Walker's fifth season under the management of Kilroy & Britton.

Lewis and Lake are more than making good with their two shows. Harry C. Lewis is managing the No. 1 Show in Calgary, and dainty Marjorie Lake (Mrs. H. C. Lewis), is managing the No. 2 Show at Van Conver.

The Woods-Ralton Co. are booked solid on the United Time by Joe Paige Smith and are meeting with their usual success everywhere. The No. 2 act of the Musical Marlinea is doing nicely on the smaller time.

Quier and Quaint have signed for their second season with the Star Show (Woodson Wheel) and their act with the new dancing finish is getting three or four curtain calls every performance.

Manning and Hutcher will not appear as a team this season; Mr. Manning has doubled up with W. J. Hargood of Wichita, and the two will do an act permitting Miss Hutcher to take a rest.

Sewell Brothers, the famous Parisian Apollon, and Miss Kitty Lynn are resting in Pittsburgh after a successful tour of the Pacific Coast. They open in October, and are booked solid.

Rathaway, Madison and Mack opened their season at Shubert Theatre, Utica, N. Y., and were the hit of the bill. Thos. J. Fitzpatrick is handling the act and always has it on the go.

Bernard A. Reinold, who is featured in Dinokopla's Christmas, has bought a large tract of land on Cedar Lake, N. J., and is building two Junglows for next summer's occupancy.

Medice and Keesee write from Sydney, Australia, that they are featured at the National Amphitheatre and are very successful. They are contemplating a tour of South Africa.

Frank Whitman, "The Dancing Violinist," is still getting the applause in his sixth month at the Broadway Theatre, New York, with Lew Fields' production, The Henpecks.

Kampain and Holl, the original "Southern Song Birds," opened on Holkins Time in South Beaumont, Texas, and are making a big hit, featuring "The Harlem Dances."

LEO FEIST.

Prominent New York Music Publisher.

rehearsing. Monkey Rag will take a prominent place in the show, which it will fill to perfection.

After the beginning of the regular theatrical season in September, A. H. Woods' next important production will be Modest Suzanne, which is at present the rage in Berlin. The book is an adaptation of the French farce, Fils a Papa, by Mars and Desvallieres, to which Jean Gilbert has given a musical setting not only extremely melodious but well orchestrated. The inevitable waltz, which in this case happens to be a very good one, a spirited Rummel march and the song of the Chaute Suzanne will furnish new material for the whistlers and barrel organs. Manager Woods is having two American versions made of Modest Suzanne by well-known writers, and the one that looks best to him will be produced.

Miss Ruby Rotnour, who was featured in the Middle West by her father, J. H. Rotnour, in connection with the Florida Voca Companies, is meeting with unlimited success in singing the prima donna role in the musical comedy, Merry Mary. The company just finished a successful week at Cincinnati, where she received some very pleasing press notices.

Prof. F. G. Loraine, the magician, of New York, is starting a show from Regina, Sask., Canada. He will tour Canada and the United States and then go to Australia.

pair of diamond earrings, presented by Mr. Prentice. Everyone had a good time and all were pleased by the novel experience. Mr. Prentice writes that he received 136 replies to a recent ad for performers in The Billboard and as a result he has been able to put together three of the strongest medicine advertising shows on the road.

Lyndon's Vaudeville Company closed its tent season September 16, and opened in opera houses September 18. The company is booked solid until Christmas, and no change will be made in the personnel with the exception of a new sketch team to take the place of Frank and Jennie Campbell, who closed September 23, to go to their home in Marine Mills, Minn., to get their children arranged for the winter. The company played return dates all summer to good business, and found The Billboard a most welcome visitor every week.

That Girl Zenola, the feature of the E. H. Benjamin Hit City Show, announces that she will close with that attraction in Salt Lake City, October 7. She will go to San Francisco, and after a week's rest will open as the feature at the Cafe Cafe. It is said that Zenola will receive the largest salary ever paid a dancer to appear on the West Coast. For the engagement she has selected the Dance of 1,000 Mirrors as a feature.

The following is the roster of Kibbie & Martin's E. T. C. Co., Western Wm. Kibbie, sole owner; C. F. Ackerman, manager; Grant Luce, Clarence Adams, Frank Williams, George Linck, George Strother, Bobbie Simmonds, Vester Ehardt, Carl E. Smith, J. S. upon the historical aspect of any period, neither has he hesitated upon archaeological detail of scenery and costume. The aim has been to create the awe-inspiring atmosphere suggested by the poet; for, although there are not lacking in the play scenes of sunlit realities, yet it is mainly seen in the splendour of the night in which the supernatural silences and sounds are felt and heard.

The setting is truly barbaric. And the acting, especially in that of the chief part, corresponds to the rugged and stern nature of Macbeth's surroundings. Everything is in tune. From the red hair of the Scots, the huge fierce mustaches of Macbeth and Macduff, the primitive armor of the soldiers, to the uncanny scene on the barren heath and the rough walls and battlements of the castle, everything was in perfect keeping. Likewise the martial scenes are represented with great spirit, and the fighting in the last act is the last word in realism.

Many of the stage effects are entirely new. The witches, in flavin hair and gray robes, are caused to fly on and off the stage on wires with effects representing rapidly moving clouds. An elaborate arrangement is introduced for the movements of Banquo's ghost: while the three apparitions in the incantation scene appear out of a huge cauldron, which, later, is removed to the back of the stage to allow of the ascent, from its smoke, of Banquo's successor right up to the flies—a new effect worked on the great wheel principle. And in other scenes, in which they are not actually brought on by Shakespeare, the witches make their presence felt by thunder, lightning and moaning winds, all heightening the general uncanny nature of the play.

Tree's performance is far and away the best he has ever given in any Shakespeare play. The amount of study which he must have given to the part must have been enormous, so carefully is every detail thought out, so profound is the understanding of the value of every word he speaks. For once he has dropped all his mannerisms and completely sunk himself in the character he is portraying. He is the brave, fearless soldier gradually broken down by the weight of his crimes. The long speeches he delivers are not just the mere efforts of elocution, they are the soliloquies of an unsettled mind and a troubled soul. He is ably seconded by Boucher, both in the bringing and reception of the pitiful news of the butchery of the mother and child, but also in his magnificent declamation after the discovery of the murder of Duncan. Miss Violet Vanbrugh, however, as Lady Macbeth, is hardly a success. Her speeches are stilted and she plays the part with a soft womanliness entirely out of keeping. The remainder of the company are all tip-top and it would be hard to discriminate between them. Never, in fact, have I seen so large a company kept at so high a level in a piece of this magnitude. From beginning to end the production amply repays the months of unrelenting work bestowed upon it, and from present appearances, especially in regard to the advance booking, it seems as though it has at least a six months' run in front of it—and a six months' run at His Majesty's is, to put it mildly, at least equal to a twelve months' run at the average theatre.

With Shakespeare the fashion just now, and with a promising and most popular young actress being given her first chance in a great classic part, it is not surprising that Fred Terry's new production of Romeo and Juliet can also be written down as a brilliant success. Not that one can say that Miss Nellson Terry has exactly set the town on fire with her Juliet. That would be expecting too much from a young girl. From time immemorial in this country it has been realized that, with the piece practically consisting of two plays, although a slip of a girl can do well in the earlier scenes yet when coming to the black tragedy of the later, none but a woman of mature years can rise to the height of passion demanded. All the same, Miss Terry does really well, even though the fulness of medieval Italian passion has so far been denied her. She plays with an engaging tenderness and in her acting there is the feeling of the impending doom. To contrast her with, say, Adeline Nelson in the part would be unfair, but all the same she gives every indication that she is in the line of the great English classic actresses and that latent within her are all the qualities of genius of the Terry family. The Romeo is Vernon Steel, one of our young coming actors, and his performance is also excellent, except that he, too, is insufficiently full-blooded in the part and tries to play it with Saxon restraint rather than with the Southern overwhelming passion. The company contains many fine actors: Alfred Brydone as Capulet, Louis Calvert as Mercutio and Fisher White as Friar Lawrence. The biggest personal success is that of Rosina Fildes as the nurse to Juliet; giving an entirely new interpretation to the part, full of dry humor when with Romeo and yet the impersonation of womanly tenderness in her relations with Juliet. The force and sincerity of her acting when she thinks she discovers the dead body of Juliet made an enormous hit on the first night.

The play is stuporously mounted and every detail of the richly colored Renaissance dresses, property and scenery is archaeologically correct down to the very smallest item. The scenes, especially the ballroom, are a triumph

Amusement News from the Strange Land of the Antipodes, Where the First Signs of Spring Are Now Visible, and Open Air Amusements Are in Season

Sydney, N. S. W., August 30 (Special to The Billboard).—Spring will be with us in another week and then the faces of the open-air shows will beam with smiles and the money will begin to roll into the coffers of the suburban shows like water. More shows will begin to appear on the scene and all nature will take on a bright and cheerful appearance. We have had ten days of torrential downpour which has added millions sterling to the wealth of this fair land. Sousa and his band join this steamer at Auckland for the return home. Mrs. Sousa and her two daughters have had one of the finest trips of their lives, and many of the members of the band say that they are coming back to this land of sunshine to live after their engagement with the band has terminated. Sousa may have had some receptions in his travels, but I don't think he has had many where the people turned out in such force as they did in this city and where so much show was made and such a reception given as the Lord Mayor of this city gave to him and his band of sixty performers.

As already advised by me four weeks ago today, J. D. Williams, managing director, Leon Phillips, treasurer, and Alderman E. Lindsay Thompson, director and architect, of the J. D. Williams Amusement Company, Ltd. (capital only $1,000,000), left for a tour of the world, and your scribe was the last man in Australia to shake hands with Mr. Williams. When the steamer was sailing by the wharf, he reached over and extending his hand bade me, "Good-bye and good luck," and incidentally remarked, "Doc, you are the last man to shake hands with me in Australia." Well, the cable has kept us in touch with the party and the last stated that they had reached Vancouver in safety and had a fine trip, and now I suppose he will keep the wire hot with new things to come forward and new improvements that will be introduced into his numerous ventures.

The Melba Theatre in Melbourne is breaking all records here, and their Columbia next door is slowly but surely on the rise and soon will be another monument to Mr. Williams' get-there policy, and I think he has already set the Australian people thinking. In Sydney, the Lyric—supposed to have been built by Mr. Spencer, but it was not—is also under the control and management of Mr. Williams, with E. J. Donnellan, well known amongst Sullivan & Conside's people, having been connected with the last named member of the firm, he being a brother-in-law, as the manager of this theatre. You can pass there any night at 7 and see hundreds of people standing outside waiting to get in, and so it has been every day since the place opened its doors, and I guess that Mr. Spencer wishes now that he had tackled that theatre himself, instead of letting it slip into another man's hands, and J. D. W.'s wish is that he could get hold of a couple of theatres in the city in equally as fine situations as this one, and says that he may build a couple more before he is finished with the matter. There is not much chance for argument now as to the position held by parties in the moving picture business. The palm here must be given to Mr. Williams. J. D. W.'s wish is progressing very well with their new Olympia Theatre, and when finished it will be the most modern and up-to-date place this side of the line. Messrs. West's people will open the 9th prox. at their old summer stand at the Glaciarium and, as they own the Princess next door, I hear rumors that they will produce vaudeville there, but of that I am not sure. The Wests will open the Lyric Theatre at Manley and Lyric No. 2 at Mosman's next week, and soon the open air shows will be in full swing, as we will see very few cold days here from this on. The backbone of the cold weather is broken, and spring, the finest season of the year, will be here in the next two weeks.

Taken on the whole this has been the most severe winter that I ever knew in Australia. We have had rain and cold enough for snow, but that is a luxury we know not of in this city, not even a frost, let alone snow; but we feel the cold as much as you do in the States and are not so well prepared for it, either. Colonial No. 1 and Colonial No. 2 Theatres are going some and then some more, and nightly sees the sign "house full" not put up, but regularly demonstrated by an enormous crowd awaiting the letting down of the barriers and admittance more as the ones who have seen the whole show go out.

There is much talk here of the big six days' bicycle sports that are to eventuate in this city and Melbourne, the promoter being J. D. Williams, with large money prizes, and entries are pouring in from all over the States and Europe as well. Mr. C. Post Mason, who came out here as an artist to Mr. Harry Rickards, is the manager, and looks after the disbursement of advertising matter, etc., as well as acting as press representative for the firm and manager of Nos. 1 and 2 Colonial Theatres here. He is kept pretty busy with the many interests he has to look after, and looks well in the motor car provided by the company to run around. As time is money, it is the cheapest in the end. It looks so diminutive alongside the manager's car that it looks as though it had been picked long before. It was ripe. The Crystal Palace is beginning to assume something like a start, but there is considerable excavating to be done before they will get at the cornerstone which is to be laid with great pomp and ceremony with a swell banquet thrown in. Mr. Bud Atkinson is the managing director, Mr. Charles Williams treasurer, and J. D. Williams a very large shareholder, but this is NOT a branch of the Greater J. D. Williams Amusement Company, as many suppose, but the companies' offices will all be located in that building, on the top floor, and so I presume in but a very short time after the Palace opens its doors, the Greater Company will have to absorb it, for Bud tells me he is going to make them think some and then some more when he gets in opposition to them, and I guess that Bud will make good.

There are some picture shows in the suburbs that are doing just as fine a business as I would want, and a nice wad they cut up between the three partners. I know that one show at Marricksville, a suburb of this city—the Victoria Theatre—has one of the very best businesses in this country. They can seat 1,800 people and by bringing in benches, chairs, etc., they can ring in another two or three hundred, and I guess they give as good value for their patrons' money as any show in this city.

The New Broadway Theatre on George Street, West, is giving continuous shows and seems to be doing a splendid business, as I see crowds waiting outside in the evening. King's, next to the Glaciarium, are also on a good wicket. The Albambra has changed managers. E. J. Kilpatrick has got that theatre now and he is also running continuous shows. It took J. D. Williams some time to educate them up to the continuous shows, but it took the Australians but little time to copy his movements.

There are so many new and large theatres opening that it will be hard to give notices to all of them in any one letter. Mr. Frank Musgrove, the lessor of the Palace and the Criterion Theatres, has bought out the Victoria Theatre on Pitt Street, and he also is running from 10:30 to 10:50 daily and doing well with moving pictures. The American, at the old Queen's Hall, which has all been rebuilt, is at the same time running continuous shows and doing alright.

At Her Majesty's Our Miss Gibbs is running. H. B. Irving having just closed a very highly successful season and opened in Melbourne on the 29th. The Merry Widow is drawing packed houses and seems to never grow old here, and the crowds that are nightly seen coming out of the Royal testify to how strong the hold is on the masses.

Another picture show of some magnitude is to be built in George Street. The architect are Messrs. Scott and Green, and the builders, Messrs. Baxter and Hepburn, have signed the contract to carry out the work in six months. The plans provide for two distinct blocks under one roof. The total frontage will be 85 feet, and the depth of each block 162 feet. A dividing wall will separate each of the blocks, and the building will consist of three stories and a basement. The site is close to Bathurst Street, on the eastern side of George Street.

Mr. George Tallis, a partner in the J. C. Williamson Company, on being interviewed said that the amalgamation of the J. C. Williamson, Ltd., and the Clarke-Meynell Proprietary, Ltd., Theatrical Companies had been the subject of negotiations for some time. The new directorate would consist of Messrs. J. C. Williamson, G. Tallis, Hugh Ward and Clyde Meynell. All the theatres at present under the two firms would be conducted by the joint company. These would comprise the following Australian theatres: Theatre Royal and Her Majesty's, Melbourne; Her Majesty's, Theatre Royal, Colborne, Sydney; Opera House, Brisbane; Theatre Royal, Christchurch; and Opera House, Wellington. Altogether about ten or eleven companies would be conducted by the new enterprise. The new company would really come into operation on September 2, when the Melba grand opera season would commence at Her Majesty's and The Chocolate Soldier at the Theatre Royal, Melbourne.

PRIEUR OPTIMISTIC

European Film Manufacturer Discusses the Situation and Finds Moving Picture Business in a Salutary Condition in America and His Own Country

Mr. R. Prieur, head of the Lutz Film Company and prominent film dealer in Europe, arrived in New York Sunday, September 10, on the Lusitania. He has much to say regarding the outlook for the film business and expresses his opinion regarding the importation of foreign films into any country, either the United States or a country of Europe.

Lux films are heavy sellers throughout all parts of Europe, and Mr. Prieur explained the basis of the cause of his success in the manufacture of films to suit so many different classes of people. For instance, he says, the Russian demands the melodramatic in his picture productions. Too much display of bloodshed and too strong a plot can not be shown to the Russian people. The Italians and Spaniards likewise are strongly inclined to the intensely dramatic production and many films which would never be permitted to be shown in England and France or America will create capacity houses in Russia, Italy and Spain. No discussion can be too frank and no treatment of the immoral character too drastic to please the eyes of these three nations.

France, while requiring a simpler treatment, is still an admirer of the strong plot. While a greater sense of humor and somewhat cleaner methods are demanded in the treatment of the villain, it is nevertheless the audience's desire that this individual be dealt with unsparingly. Comedy, likewise, must be broad and not long on subtlety. Facial expressions are not enough for the French, quick bodily action is needed to carry on the play.

In England and Germany a different condition prevails. The melodrama will not be tolerated in either of these countries. The deep plot and the strong story are demanded in Germany, but crude methods will never pass, and as for England, the simple but clever tale with little reflection on moral codes is the cry of the theatergoer. In these, like the countries of North America, the strictly American film is almost the universal demand. England is the biggest market for American films, while Germany comes a close second in size.

As for the cowboy film, England and Germany divide here very abruptly. Germany will have none of them. Strange as it may seem, a country long partial to deeds of valor and exhibitions of skill and personal conquest puts the taboo on feats of skill and daring as performed by the American cowboy. England, on the other hand, takes quite naturally to cowboy stuff. There is somewhat of a reason to be found for this in the fact that cowboy films are forced upon the market. To begin with,

TWO NOTABLE FILMS

Charles Dickens' Masterpiece, David Copperfield, Produced by Thanhouser Co. in Three Reels—Kalem's Colleen Bawn Draws True Picture of Irish Life

New York, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—Continued to a space of three thousand feet, three reels, this monster subject is yet one of the most brilliant productions released through the regular channels for some time. In like so many reproductions of famous stories of famous plays, this one would have been immensely interesting without the fame already attached to it, for it is so cleverly done and so clearly put on that it is at once intelligible and entertaining as a plain simple production.

The proper atmosphere has been obtained with stage arrangements and varieties of scenes too numerous to mention. The costumes, so easy a thing to do correctly, has been handled both by the director and by the artist in the cast. The numerous scenic scenes, the boarding school of Trevelyan and what like scenes are all real and natural pictures, and when up and so well connected with the story they remain indelibly stamped upon the memory long after the film has been seen.

The production is divided into three distinct parts as well as the film itself, each part being commensurate with the divisions in the film, so that each reel is a complete story by

KALEM'S COLLEEN BAWN.

New York, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—The fact that the Kalem Company, at least one of the stock companies, will produce practically to take this picture also would suggest that a splendid production is forthcoming, while the fact that the film is the length of three ordinary reels and is to be released as one film sharpens one's expectations somewhat beyond normal. Audiences are not disappointed in this, a really magnificent production, although there is a lack of dramatic effect which it seems is noticeable. Too much should not be expected of a film of this character, however, as the plot is laid down and must be followed, and when one looks at a production of this kind he must take the dramatic qualities of it as a matter closed to discussion and view the film from the standpoint of a reproduction and not a production. As the reproduction goes, it has even surpassed the story itself as told by the author and has gone back to the tale as it was told by the inhabitants of the little village and around which the scenes are laid.

More K. & E. Film Trouble

New York, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—Klaw & Erlanger are again coming by Ben Hur play film pirates. Last spring they successfully prosecuted film pirates in Ohio and Missouri, and it was thought that the conviction of a jail sentence in the Ohio case would prove a sufficient lesson. But it seems that another colony of pirates began operations again. This time it was the Virginia Theatre in Washington, D. C., where the pirated copies of Ben Hur were shown. The producing firm through their Washington attorneys, Madley and Gately, were in conference with the United States District attorney for the District of Columbia for the purpose of instituting proceedings against John Adams, proprietor of the Virginia Theatre, and several other moving picture houses for giving performances of Ben Hur last week. Adams admitted giving the performances, but claimed he did not know the play was copyrighted. In the course of his statement he said he secured the film from Harry K. Lucas, of Charlotte, N. C., and that he took it, as he does other films, for exhibition. The fact is that in connection with the Kalem Company permanent injunctions have been issued to restrain the sale of any films or of giving any performances of Ben Hur. Lucas is one of several small independent film concerns who are peddling their films mostly to moving picture houses in obscure localities. Virginia proceedings against Adams for his infringement of the copyright of Ben Hur will be instituted in the United States Court of North Carolina.

CONVENTION NOTE.

The New York Edison Co. convention of electrical supply manufacturers and current consumers held a mammoth assemblage at Spring Lake, N. J., last week, ending Saturday, September 23. Delegates attended from all sections of the Union. The Hotel New Marlborough was made headquarters and the very large hall was re-arranged in a colossal hall 50x125 feet, with four centerpieces, furnished by M. Magee & Son, tent manufacturers of New York City. A myriad of Edison lamps and bulbs were strung all over the outside of the inside of the big white canvas.

SALES COMPANY BALL.

The splendid efforts of the Sales Company of the "Association" and especially the efforts of the ball committee, have assured the success of the ball through the acquisition of a grand advertising proposition. No ball concern or business man connected with the independent film business and many song and supply men, have taken advertising space in the program, and only a few more pages are to be filled. Great interest is being manifested in the event, and elaborate preparations are being made for the reception of the many guests expected. The souvenir pillow covers are being made, a large order having been issued for them. The ball will no doubt surpass any similar past event both as a social and business success.

An Imp Feature Film

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Under the direction of Mr. Frank Griddin, the newly-engaged director of one of the Imp stock companies, one of the most interesting and finely done of Imp pictures has been produced, 'Tween Two Loves is not a new story, but it is so old to those who know human nature that it bears repetition well. It is not a brilliantly plotted tale, although it is clearly outlined and as played moves simply.

The greatest claim the play can lay to newness is the staging and photography. The characters have been placed well in the foreground and faces have been kept turned to the camera all the time, presenting good facial expressions without ever disclosing the fact that an attempt has been made to stage the people in this way. A fire scene toward the close of the sketch is likewise well done and rich in naturalness. The property and the fire are well arranged, while the rescue which must occur is done in a most natural way and is thus truly exciting.

Good photography, careful acting, clever staging and direction and the arrangement of very few people in the cast are most noticeable points and points which go to make the film the first of a new series.

PEED IN NEW YORK.

Together with the announcement that the Yerkes Mfg. Co., manufacturers of sound effects for moving picture and dramatic play-houses has moved into the entire building at 202 E. 88th Street, comes the news that Horace S. Peed has been engaged as representative for this concern. His past experiences in the motion picture field makes him pre-eminently fit for this new capacity. There is no doubt that he will be able to bring a lot of new and fresh ideas that will work to the advantage of his employers. Peed was formerly with the Electric Theatre Supply Co. of Philadelphia, and also operated the exchange business extensively throughout the South with headquarters at Norfolk, Va. The Yerkes Mfg. Co. has been reincorporated with a $10,000 capital.

PEARLMAN MAKES PURCHASE.

Chicago, September 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Mr. Pearlman, the well-known manufacturer and patentee of the Perfect Calcium lights, last week purchased the Reliable Film Exchange of Chicago. This does not mean that Mr. Pearlman will discontinue his calcium light business, but on the contrary he intends to make it even larger and to give it his entire attention, while the film exchange will be under his brother's management who has been associated with the film business for the past twelve years. Mr. S. Pearlman also has a wide knowledge of the business, having managed several branch offices for the various large film exchanges.

Although the Reliable is not a buying exchange at the present time it is Mr. Pearlman's intention to enter it into the class just as soon as conditions will permit. At the present time he is busily engaged in installing various systems and building up his stock so as to be prepared for the time when he will wish to commence buying new film.

Famous Baseball Pitcher Film

Chicago, Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—The thousands of ball fans who daily read of Big Ed. Walsh's wonderful curves as he pitches the White Sox to victory, know but little of his past. When they see with what dexterity he handles the unruly bronchos in "Old Wyoming Days," a feature film of Western life being produced by the Western Feature Film Co. of Chicago, they will more than wonder at the ability of this man. It is amazing to see with what ease "Big Ed" handles the unbroken bronchos, and with what grace he sits the saddle. If one were not so thoroughly familiar with his vocation, the impression would be that he was a veteran cowpuncher. It is said that Ed's boyhood days were spent on a Wyoming ranch.

Besides "Big Ed," the film contains innumerable scenes of Western life and Western sports. It depicts scenes of western country in a manner that leaves no room for a doubt that it is the genuine article. These pictures were taken in a typical Western Wyoming town during a Fourth of July celebration, and show the Westerner in all his glory.

It is evident that the merit of this film is being appreciated by the state right purchasers, as territory is selling fast. As a Western feature, it is claimed by those who have seen it, to have no superior.

Kalem Changes Directors

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—A reorganization in the New York Stock Co. of the Kalem forces will bring one of their Western directors, Mr. Kennan Buel, to New York to take charge of the studio work there. The new studio is located at 231 West 49th Street, having been moved to these quarters from the old location along side the offices of the company on 23d Street. The stock company will be changed almost entirely as soon as Mr. Buel arrives.

Mr. George McFord, one of the most popular actors the Kalem Company employs and one of the most popular in the business, is to take Mr. Buel's place at the head of one of the Western companies in which he has been working.

PLAYHOUSE NOTES.

The new Victoria Theatre, Clarksburg, W. Va., erected at a cost of $40,000, opened September 11, playing high-class vaudeville and moving pictures. The Victoria is up-to-date in every respect and has a seating capacity of 500. John W. Duffy is the owner and manager. The Odeon, Fred Pleckett, manager, vaudeville and pictures; Bijou, W. Simeral, manager, pictures; and the Star, Jack Marks, manager, pictures, are the other theatres in Clarksburg, and all report good business.

After being closed several months for repairs and decorations, the Wonderland Theatre, Mankato, Minn., opened the season September 11 with vaudeville and pictures. This pretty little house, under the management of I. L. Stone, now presents a beautiful appearance. The Wonderland and Unique Theatres here are controlled by the American Amusement Co., at Minneapolis, which also has several other theatres throughout Minnesota.

The Bethick Opera House, at Belvidere, Ill., opened early in September under new management, McFowell Bros., having succeeded Loop and Dyrart, who run the house last year. The new managers are experienced theatrical men, and have gone to considerable expense in remodeling and redecorating the theatre.

Tim Murphy, for the third consecutive season will be the opening attraction at the Auditorium, Hattiesburg, Miss., October 2. Manager Bixler announces a fine line of attractions for the coming season. Hattiesburg is in the midst of a prosperous community, and is a good theatre town.

The New Bedford Theatre, New Bedford, Mass., is doing well with high-class road attractions part of the week, and moving pictures and vaudeville the balance. Hathaway's Theatre, in the same city, is housing the Lester Longergan Stock Company, which has become very popular.

G. C. Goy, in The Cry Baby, has surrounded himself with a strong cast and will play the Northwest up into Canada. The show is all new from start to finish this season, carrying special scenery, not using a piece of house stuff. A fine line of special paper is also carried.

The Majestic, Duluth, Iowa's, finest theatre, opened its second season September 17 with vaudeville. The Majestic is a new theatre, absolutely fireproof and up-to-the-minute in every detail. Jake Rosenthal is manager, and the house staff remains the same as last year.

The Grand Opera House at Amarillo, Texas, has not been very successful for the past two seasons, but J. D. Moore, the new manager, promises to reverse the order of things, and will present the best attractions that come to the Southwest in the attempt to do so.

The Temple Theatre, Lockport, N. Y., opened Labor Day after undergoing extensive repairs. Henry Thurston is manager and photoplays and split week vaudeville are presented. Hodge Opera House also opened Labor Day, playing Stearns's Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Extensive improvements are being made on the old Dixie Theatre at Cleburne, Tex., and the name will be changed to Majestic Theatre.

The house will be on the Sullivan & Conditine Circuit and will also show motion pictures. J. F. Green is manager.

Childster Theatre, Bowling Green, Ohio, opened September 20 with Howells' Pictures as the attraction. Manager John S. P. Cony has looked some of the best attractions on the road and looks for the best season in the history of the house.

The Mankato Theatre, Mankato, Minn., thoroughly overhauled and redecorated, will open October 2 with Chimmey (about as the attraction). C. H. and J. O. Gresham are lessees and managers of the house, with Charles Richards as stage manager.

McGowan & Gilbert have taken the management of the Opera House at Newton, Kan. They propose to regain the eastern Newton, which was best on account of poor management.

The Yazoo Theatre, Yazoo, Miss., has been thoroughly renovated and is now one of the finest theatres in the South. The house opened September 23 with The Gamblers. D. Weberstein is manager of the theatre.

Burby Brothers, lessees and managers of the Masonic Opera House, Oskaloosa, Iowa, opened the 1911-12 season with The Aviator, playing to good business. Roy Wertman has been appointed resident manager of the theatre.

W. H. Stevens will manage the new Keith Theatre in Lowell, Mass., which is about completed. Mr. Stevens formerly managed Keith houses in Haverhill and Lawrence, Mass.; Portland, Me.; and Montreal.

Memorial Opera House, Mansfield, O., opened the season with The Travelling Salesman August 28.

DEATHS.

LOUCHARD—George E. Louchard, aged 41, died September 12 at St. Paul's Sanitarium, Dallas, Tex. He was born in France and had lived in Dallas for twenty-five years. He was a member of Dallas Union No. 127, Stage Ban players and was past president of the Dallas and San Antonio locals. Louchard was well known to the working crews of traveling companies and was a hard worker for the union.

HENDERSON—Fr. I. Henderson died suddenly at Elgin, Ill., September 16, of apoplexy. Fr. Henderson was 76 years of age, and was the founder of the Illinois Comedy Co., with which he conducted the medicine business thirty years ago. Four children survive him, one of whom is Dr. I. Henderson, retired commodore. The remains were interred at Spring Lake Cemetery, Aurora, Ill.

MARRIAGES.

BARNETT WORLEY—Virgil Barnett and Bessie Worley, both with the 101 Ranch Wild West Show, were recently married. Miss Worley is from Chicago.

FRANCIS BALISS—H. H. France, scenic artist with Weaver's Associate Players, and Miss Emma Baliss, of Uniontown, Pa., were married at Greensburg, Pa., August 25.

SMALL BALISS—Miss Vera Baliss, snake charmer of Macy's Eye in One Show (date of Jacksonville, Ill.), and J. C. Small, The Billboard agent, and trainmaster of Macy's Olympic Shows, were united in marriage at Nettleson, Ark., September 29, by a local justice of the peace. The entire company were witnesses to the ceremony and were the guests of honor.

A PITIABLE CASE

In the issue of the Billboard, dated March 18, 1911, the story was told of John Birks, at one time connected with the profession of amusement, languishing in the Montana State Prison under a life sentence for a crime to which another confessed guilt on his deathbed. Birks has already served twelve years in prison for a crime committed by another.

Last spring, The Billboard assisted in raising a fund to enable Birks to hire attorneys to bring the matter to the attention of the Governor of the State and the Pardoning Board, which was done. Matters of this kind, however, move slowly, and Birks is still in prison, deprived of his liberty for a crime committed by another. Birks was sentenced to prison by a Judge DuBose, who was afterwards sent to prison himself to serve a six months' sentence for contempt of the United States Court. It seems that Birks had incurred the enmity of DuBose shortly before his (Birks') arrest, and that DuBose was prejudiced against him. In passing sentence, Judge DuBose stated that he did not believe that Birks had fired the shot that killed the man, but that he believed that Birks knew who did, and that if Birks would tell him, he would fix the punishment at the minimum sentence of ten years. Birks did not know and could not tell him, whereupon the judge in a rage sentenced him to prison for life.

The Billboard is in possession of newspaper clippings which show Judge DuBose to have been a man of strong prejudices, one, who, when he had made up his mind in regard to a case, pulled for the side that he favored with a zeal and a persistence that left the other side altogether out of it. In the face of this evidence, it is reasonable to suppose that Birks is right when he says that DuBose was prejudiced.

A. J. Galen, State Attorney-General of Montana, has investigated Birks' case, and reported favorably on it. Ex-Governor B. F. White, of Montana, president of the First National Bank at Dillon, has also interested himself and promised to bring the matter before Governor Norris.

Birks is not in need of money at the present time, but asks the members of the dramatic and amusement professions, through The Billboard, to write to Governor Edwin L. Norris and to the Board of Prison Commissioners, at Helena, Mont., and urge an immediate consideration of his case.

BLANCHE RING.

The cover page illustration of The Billboard this week is the latest photograph of Blanche Ring, a favorite comedienne who will this season appear in a new play, The Wall Street Girl. This production will open at Wilkes Barre, Pa., on October 2, as a preliminary engagement to her Chicago run at the Garrick Theatre. The new play will be under the management of Fred McKay.

Sypher & Peters, managers of the Majestic Theatre, at Chico, Cal., and H. H. Howell, has succeeded Mr. Peters in the firm. Mr. Peters will embark in the theatrical business elsewhere.

ADVERTISING TALKS

The fact that most advertisers well know the really remarkable results obtained from advertising in The Billboard, renders it unnecessary for us to reproduce a number of letters every week from pleased advertisers expressing appreciation; but here is one just received to which we can not refrain from calling attention. Here is an advertiser who actually wants us to insert a notice to keep him from getting so many answers to his ad.

Here is what he says:

"Wapakoneta, O., Sept. 14.

"In your issue of the 2d inst., I advertised two hundred opera chairs for sale. Sold them the next day after your paper came out and since have had so many inquiries and have received so many letters regarding those chairs that I feel you should help me out by notifying your readers that the chairs are sold. For awhile I tried to answer all inquiries, but gave that up as a hard job. It would have required the services of a first-class stenographer. It is impossible for me to express my full satisfaction at the excellent results of your advertising columns.

"Yours very truly,

"CURRY S. PYLE."

As opera chairs are used in theatres, it is reasonable to suppose these letters were received from theatre managers. Evidently the "circus paper" has a wide circulation among the theatres.

This theatre circulation is also indicated by the great number of letters received from managers of small theatres, inquiring where they can secure attractions. They have the playhouses, but they find it difficult to book a sufficient number of good attractions to make their investment in theatre property profitable. Many of these house managers have accepted the suggestion to advertise for shows through the columns of The Billboard. They have found this to be a perfectly satisfactory method of securing attractions and they are not compelled to pay a booking agent's commission.

If independent shows playing small time, would advertise their open dates, and managers of independent theatres would all keep cards in the paper, giving the size of their theatres and drawing population, it would enable both traveling managers and house managers to get together. Now that the season is just opening, if house managers will send in advertisements of their open dates, they will have little difficulty securing attractions to fill them.

Letters and telegrams are constantly being received from traveling companies in need of players. Not being engaged in conducting a booking office, we are not in a position to supply them, but repertoire companies playing in the West have found that an ad in The Billboard reaches all players seeking engagements more expeditiously than a message to Broadway.

In this department THE BILLBOARD will print each week the choruses of late songs especially recommended by their publishers for use on the stage. Artists who find these numbers suitable for their act can obtain complete professional copies by addressing the publishers. This department constitutes a valuable aid for professionals, as only songs that have intrinsic merit and are especially adapted for use on the stage will be produced. Performers will, by consulting this department, be spared the time and trouble of trying numerous songs that have no particular value, or give no evidence of attaining longevity.

Resume of the Week's Important Amuse

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The season thus far has seemed remarkably slow in getting under way, a condition that has been noted not only in Philadelphia but throughout the theatrical centers. Indications point to the fact, however, that a change is soon due. The week of September 18 brought a number of new attractions, some of them of first importance and by the early part of October there is every promise that a goodly number of productions will be under way. The weather for one thing has made the going a pleasure only for the most ardent first-nighter—a fact amply attested by poor houses.

Of the plays of the week the Daniel Frohman comedy, Thy Neighbor's Wife, won the most favor. While the comedy received diverse criticism in other cities the critics were unanimous in declaring it to be an effort in the direction of characteristically American playwrighting and a thoroughly laudable effort. The play at any rate proved pleasing to a large audience on opening night.

The revival of Plazaire with DeWolf Hopper and Fay Templeton apparently received its strongest welcome because of the mere presence of these two favorites but poor business was the rule.

One of the largest events was the opening of the American with the Blauy Spouner Stock Company in The Squaw Man. This stock company will undoubtedly prove to be one of the most successful ever in this city. The cast is an excellent one and the house one of the most beautiful and best located in town. Impressive ceremonies marked the christening of the stage with wire before the rise of the curtain and S. R. O. has been the sign for the balance of the week.

The Girl in the Taxi, at the Chestnut Street Theatre with Bobby Barry, aroused only the most feeble of enthusiasm and the entire cast was far inferior to the company which appeared here last season for a run. Of the musical shows which have so far appeared, The Winning Widow, at the Grand Opera House, scored the highest. Manager W. D. Wegfarth has apparently been endowed with wonderful good fortune in his attractions at this Stutz & Haylln house. The musical comedy was bright and sparkling and aroused the first real feeling of the season.

Margaret Anglin, in the comedy, Green Stockings, made her initial appearance in comedy at the Adelphi and is reviewed separately.

The Chestnut Street Opera House, with the Orpheum Players, is a house which received a capacity audience weekly regardless of weather or any other conditions. The Hell to the Hoors was Manager Laferty's offering for the week of September 18, with The Girl with The Green Eyes to follow.

Manager William Miller of the William Penn, continues to hold vaudeville records here with runaway business at each performance. The Bijou, a similar house, has inaugurated the season with two shows a day instead of three with tripped results.

The smaller houses are all doing well and the field is apparently open for plenty more.

ALBANY, N. Y.

Mr. E. M. Hart, late of the Shubert Theatre, Rochester, N. Y., has started his first season as manager of Harmanus Bleeker Hall, Albany, N. Y. In which post he succeeded J. Gilbert Gordon, with a fine list of attractions. All the Shubert, Brady, Schiel and Savaze shows will be seen during the season, which will continue until March, 1912, when the Lytell-Vaughan Stock Co. will return. The Hall is in a prosperous condition and Mr. Hart comes to Albany with many years' experience to back him. Harold Baldwin is treasurer and Charles Stone, assistant treasurer at the Hall.

Manager E. M. Hart of Harmanus Bleeker Hall, has secured the opening of Low Fields' new show, The Never Homes, for his theatre, Sept. 25-27. Mr. Fields has been trying out his musical successes in Albany for two years, and this city expects to speed the new show on to a long Broadway run, as it did Tillie's Nightmare, The Jolly Bachelors and The Hen-Pecks. "A kinematocolor in six scenes, by Glen McDonough, Baldwin Sloane and E. Ray Goetz," is the description given The Never Homes. The company comes to Albany a few days before the opening, to put the final touches on it, and with cast including Geo. Maresca, Jess Dandy, Al Leach, Will Arcelo, Joseph Santley, Lillian Hurlen, Rosette Clifford Vera Finlay, The Sorntner Sisters, Helen Hayes and "Arcadia," will present Low Fields' latest show, which treats of the humorous side of the future triumph of women suffrage. After the Albany engagement, the company goes to the Broadway Theatre to succeed The Hen-Pecks.

BALTIMORE, MD.

Aviation has advanced considerably from the experimental stage and the aerolane has demonstrated its possibilities as a factor in aerial navigation. Up to the present time, the aeroplane has been used as a thriller for the amusement of the public and as a means to attain speed records. Its use as a vehicle for social jetting is a novelty. Lieut. John Rodgers of the United States Navy, has become an aviator and has attempted many flights with his new Wright biplane. Lieut. Rodgers left Chicago Park, the Government aviation ground, about 1 p. m., September 16, and arrived in this city about 2:30. He landed at Pimlico and replenished his stock of gasoline and then visited some friends at Roland Park. He then made several flights which amused the people in the suburbs and then flew to Hyattsville, where he landed on his father's farm and spent a week end visit. He left Pimlico at 3:55 and arrived at his father's farm at 5:25. After completing his stay at Hyattsville he flew all the way to Annapolis.

The Industrial and Pure Food Exposition was opened with brilliant festivities by Mayor James H. Preston. The exhibition is the largest of its kind that has been attempted here and its brilliancy reflects great credit upon the promoters who have labored zealously for the success of this mammoth enterprise. The company erected the booths so that the exhibition would have a uniform appearance. The color scheme is white enamel woodwork with green canvas back ground. The scene presents a striking appearance.

The show drew a good crowd opening night and it will increase as the days pass. The exhibits from the city departments attracted much attention and there is much to interest the taxpayers. The newspapers have taken keen interest in this event, which is something unusual. The American, the Sun and the News have attractive exhibits.

Many merchants and firms have attractive displays of food products and merchandise. A candy concession from Coney Island is doing a great business. The block in front of the Armory is brilliantly lighted with columns of incandescent lights. The proceeds of Wednesday night will go towards the $20,000 fund that the citizens are raising to send the Fifth Regiment to Atlanta, October 7.

Miss Vera St. Low was injured while performing on a trapeze at the fair at Prospect Park last week. She was picked up by an attendant and as her injuries were slight she was able to proceed with her performance the next day. The fair proved a great success.

S. P. Nixon of Nixon & Zimmerman, was in the city last week to inspect the improvements in the Academy of Music and was delighted patrona vaudeville and moving pictures which were very entertaining. The receipts for this attraction were always above the others and the management was highly gratified with Weaver's efforts. Captain John L. Young and Joseph Dawson, from Young's million dollar pier, were visitors at the park last Sunday as the guests of Joseph De Vito. They were much pleased with the park and expressed their delight over its attractive appearance.

The Columbia Players are receiving excellent patronage at Albaugh's Theatre, whither they came after twenty-two weeks in Washington. On the opening night, 200 of their auditors from the National Capitol came over in a special car from the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. It is said that the same bunch will come over again on September 25. The personnel of the company is composed of people who have talent and can give a clean-cut performance with good results and this point appeals greatly to the patrons. SYLVAN SCHANTHAL.

BOSTON, MASS.

All the Boston playhouses are now running in full sway. The New National which opened on Monday, September 18, had the largest crowd with the result. He was accomplished by his daughter, Mrs. Nixon Nirdlinger, and his two grandsons. He was en route to Staunton, Va., where his grandson, Samuel, will enter the Military Academy. While in Baltimore, Mr. Nixon was in consultation with his general manager, Thomas M. Love of Wheeling, W. Va., who has consummated an important real estate deal for Mr. Nixon.

C. E. Whitehurst, owner of the Red Moon Moving Picture Theatre, has asked Building Inspector Preston to grant him permission to remove the ticket box from its present position and place it upon the building line.

Manager Tunis F. Bean of the Academy of Music, has placed a contract for fifty uniforms which the young lady ushers will wear this season. They will have a military appearance with blue dresses trimmed with gold braid and brass buttons.

Marshall Farnan states that he will positively not allow any of the Kenia Buffalo films to be exhibited in any moving picture establishment. He has issued a warning to all of them.

River View Park closed for the season on September 17 and there was a great crowd present. The Royal Artillery Band entertained the patrons in their most artistic manner and it will be the 10th feature at the park next season. Manager William J. Cahlan is delighted with the success achieved at the park this summer. Through his managerial ability the park had the most successful summer season experienced in its sixteen years of its history. Mr. Cahlan was always on the job and gave every detail his personal attention.

Frank Weaver deserves the palm for his excellent manner in packing the Park Theatre with large crowds every night. He gave the of first nighters ever known in Boston. It is estimated that fully 8,000 people greeted the opening of this modern, popular-priced amusement center. The large force of police on hand was insufficient to keep the surging mobs from breaking in the front doors.

The Majestic opened with the Albion Opera Company, in The Booleman Girl, which played to the usual large crowds which attend this popular opera.

Overnight, the regular comedy by Philip Barthelemy, completed its seventh and last week at the Shubert on Saturday night, September 23. The hotel clerk of Boston, on the invitation of Arthur Aylesworth, who plays the part of the fresh bled clerk, witnessed the play on Monday night.

Traveling in a Pullman car is still proving popular at the Tremont, where capacity houses are seeing the performance of Evans Mr. who has started his fifth week in Boston.

It is the universal opinion here that Raymond Hitecock has never been better suited in a play than in The Red Widow, in which he is appearing at the Colonial.

Everyone is anxiously awaiting the arrival of the celebrated Irish Players at the New Plymouth. Mr. Fred L. Wright will know in Boston theatrical circles, will be the local manager of this house.

Zelda Sears is without a doubt unsurpassed or indeed unequalled in the presentation of the spinner type. She was very well liked in The Nest Egg, at the Park, where she closed a three weeks' engagement on Saturday, September 23.

RUSSEL T. BAILEY.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The present week has nothing in a way that is exactly new, as most of the attractions have been seen here before. The attraction that is creating the most interest is The Sign of the Cross, which ties, Roban has made into a play this season. It is not as intense as was his vaudeville sketch but it is pleasing good business and has received praise of the press of the city. The other attractions are plays that have been seen here before and the business accorded them is fair. Next week promises better inasmuch as we will have more that is really new and the Century and Shubert theatres will get back to playing motion pictures. The Columbia continues to remain our only theatre for exclusive vaudeville and is doing a big business as a result. The weather has been cool and most of our audiences will quit doing business before the end of the present month. The announcement is made that the Imperial Theatre will open on October 1, with a stock company under the direction of Walter S. Baldwin, of the Baldwin-Melville Stock Company. The first production is The Christian.

The members of the New Clifford Stock Company which will open the Imperial Theatre October 1, are Franklin Clifford, leading man; Louise Dunbar, leading woman; Charles Kellar, heavy; Jack Montague, juvenile; Hugh Gibson, character man; L. O. Hart, character parts; Estelle Morton, character woman; Lillian Branscomb, ingenue; George Albert, light comedian; Elmer Ruffham, stage director and C. C. Van Sacke, general business manager.

The second and last week of Lempis Park Carnival is proving better than the first. While the receipts were good, they were not up to what the management expected the first week. The weather was mostly against a carnival and this week the people are coming better. The management will make some money.

The twenty annual fair of the St. Louis County Fair Association, will open on September 21, at Grove Cedar Lake Park, and will continue for four days. Long lists of entries have been made in the various departments and the fair promises to be the most successful ever held at this writing.

The Savoy Amusement Company operating the Savoy Theatre here dissolved during the past week and was bought by a new company who will operate it again as a motion picture house. Mr. J. M. Adams, the well known singer of St. Louis, will assume the management of the theatre in the future.

The Golden Harkness of pictures on view this week at the Standard Theatre here, are drawing immense business. The pictures are the best ever shown of a wrestling match, and Manager Leo Ruchebach of the Standard, is more than pleased his patrons with the films. The Imperial Burlesque are the regular attraction, and these pictures are run as a special feature.

It is promised that the most brilliant stock season opens at the Edison Theatre. The opening production, His Millionaire Heir, is to be elaborately put on. The company includes Raymond Dietrich, leading woman; Gustav Haussig, leading man; Jenny Lembach, soprano.

The Bijou Theatre here was sold at auction last week for the settlement of two judgments. The place only brought something over $1,000, and the two judgments eat up all of this amount. The house will be operated this winter under new management, it is said.

Miss Mamie Saunders, who fell from her horse at the St. Louis Show, here last week, is getting along nicely at the hospital here, and will leave for Denver, her home. She states that she expects to be able to rejoin the show, and do some riding before the close of the present season.

A bill is being introduced in the city council here for the purpose of taxing automobile shows for the extent of $200 a day. The St. Louis Automobile Show is to be held at Forest Park, Highlands, the first week in October. Whether the bill will apply to this exhibition depends on the fact it is to be given in an enclosed show space, is to be determined. These shows were not taxed heretofore.

Tom Boldest, the aviator, has been making some highly successful flights under the backing of the Eastern Theatrical Exchange of this city. He has just closed a contract to fly at the Vaudville (Mo.) Fair, on September 25. His contracts are all made in advance of money.

Word comes to the from Jim Barfield that Mr. Jack Henning has left his employ, and that he is contracting with another aviator from the Hamilton (Mo.) Horse Show. He has his bookings way into November.

J. J. Shubert appointed Mr. Mathew Smith manager of the Garlick Theatre here to succeed Louis Judah, who resigned last week. Mr. Smith is a veteran theatrical manager. He was in charge of the Western road company of the Midnight Sons last season.

The Two Bills Shows will play this city week of October 1. It will be our Annual Fall Festival week, and they should do well.

The Shubert Theatre has not as yet settled their difficulty with the musicians union, and will continue without an orchestra for the present. The Garlick Theatre began this season without the use of an orchestra, and as the musicians claimed to have a contract for furnishing music this theatre they refused to play at the Shubert until the difficulty was settled, which so far has not been done. The theatre will have Rockwell's Minstrels next week, and will need an orchestra.

Mr. Harry Buckley, former manager of the Garlick Theatre, and a protégé of Dan S. Fisher, is to re-enter the managerial field at the Edison. A representative of Louis A. Fisher, chief stockholder of the Edison, said that negotiations now pending will probably result in Mr. Buckley becoming house manager at the Edison. Mr. Buckley, now acting as general arrangements, will take up his duties on September 25. It must be said that the rise of Mr. Buckley in the theatrical field of St. Louis has been rapid. A few years ago he began as an employee under Dan S. Fisher at the Garlick Theatre, and realizing the worth of his ability, Dan soon saw that there was a future in this field for Buckley, and he gave him a most careful schooling until today he is one of the bright lights of the city in the amuse

Amusement Events in Big American Cities

Mr. Buckley has made a host of friends in the profession, who will be pleased to see him in his advancement and recognition of his worth.

There are lively doings in St. Louis in the amusement line. Frank A. Talbot, the manager and owner of the New Hippodrome, has announced that he will get more satisfactory results if he runs his own billposting plant and employ the only theatre manager in St. Louis who owns all his own boards and locations. The Hippodrome billposting crew which is composed of S. S. Murphy, formerly advertising agent of the American Theatre; George Bruenn, formerly of the St. Louis Billposting Co.; Charles Slattery, formerly of the 101 Branch, and Johnny Dix, who was connected with the same show. Jack Black has charge of the teams and wagons.

The crew have already over 700 permanent locations and expect to more than triple this by the time that the New Hippodrome opens in October.

This new billposting plant has come into existence with the most noticeable intentions in the world. Manager Talbot's orders are that there is plenty of room for everybody and that no other theatre's showing is to be interfered with. Every location he has is properly contracted for and no dabs or snipes are put up without an imprint board. This is the ideal way to go about things as no one can kick, and the theatres are not paying for a lot of paper which is to be wasted in a covering war.

WILL J. FARLEY.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Lombardi Grand Italian Opera Company, which is making a record both artistically and financially at Idora Park Theatre, after its six weeks' contract will play a two weeks' engagement at the Majestic Theatre, Los Angeles, and then come on to San Francisco and play Cort's New Theatre for one week when impresario Lombardi will introduce several artists entirely new here, together with new operas, after which the company will play Cort's Northwestern houses, working to Chicago, where the entire company is booked for a season.

There Grant, impresario of the French Opera Company, left September 8, direct for Paris to attend the embarkment of his company, which will leave Cherbourg, France, on October 14 and is due to arrive here November 6, at the time for the grand opening of a season of twenty weeks at the Vallonia Theatre, November 13. A corps of artists is now at work here preparing entry now scenery for all the productions.

Sessa's Band of sixty people will give eight concerts here beginning October 1, giving four afternoon and four evening concerts at Leonard Hall. The management is under Will J. Greenbaum, over 2,000 seats will be offered at the popular price of 50 cents.

Anna James and Emilio de Gargoya will appear in joint recitals during the week of October 22. Two concerts will be given in San Francisco and one in Oakland.

During the parade of Kingdome, circus in Stockton, September 11, Jess Borman a county player, was crushed to death before the eyes of hundreds of people. Borman overstepped, and leaning that the parade was in motion he had really pressed an cut across into the road wagon, and after hauling his car to a friend he started to climb up the side of the wagon, but slipped and fell. The rear wheel of the heavy wagon passed over his body, mauling it in a frightful manner. The crushed and the body was taken to the morgue. Borman was a native of Hot Springs, Ark., his father being chief of police of that city. The body was shipped East.

Fred Busby, formerly manager of the Savoy Theatre, has been engaged as advance agent for Bessie, who goes on the road with a musical comedy company under the management of Mr. Oscar Thayer.

Billiard calls this week included Princess Susanna, the budget tight wire walker, Frank Hartley, the boy juggler, who is playing over the S. & C. Circuit, and will return to England shortly, and the Bell Boy Trio, which is also playing the S. & C. Circuit. It being three years since their last visit here.

Baty London, a vaudeville singer, who left here April 18, singing his way across the continent, reached New York and was immediately arrested on a warrant secured by his wife and sent to Ludlow Street jail in lieu of $1,000 bail.

It has been reported that the receipts for the opening week of Cort's New Theatre run close to the $20,000 mark with an exceedingly big second week. Baty Mine was the bill and scored a laughing hit.

A letter received in this office from Miss Grace Wilson, postmarked Manila, mentions that the show business there is very good, and that after filling a six weeks' engagement she departed for Bangkok, Siam, to play four weeks at the Royal Theatre, with four weeks to follow at Siam and Singapore.

Art Kinnin, formerly stage manager of the Grand Theatre, is now manager of the Esplanade Western Company, stationed at San Rafael.

Arrangements are in progress to play Orpheum three days a week at the Delphic Brook Theatre, Sacramento.

James Post's Musical Comedy Company is scheduled to open September 24 at the Marquis Theatre, Baroka, Cal. They are booked for three weeks.

W. W. Brock will hold a Grape Carnival at the Grand 7.

W. W. Brock, at the foundation opened to the public, with a big advance sale through the grape vine. Several of the old favorites of the crowd and were given a real home.

They included Philo Saffinger, George W. Adams and Jack Raffard. Judging from the big and pronounced hit made here, this will be the only one of their engagements to be a date precedent. The Country Boy's opening date September 25.

The opening of Cort's New Theatre, which is a very lively one for Cort has been the theatre beautifully illuminated. Philo Saffinger draws the promoters up off stage. A big advance sale for the second week has already been made. Miss Nobody was the star, featuring Miss Olive Vall, opens week of September 18. Miss Vall is a San Francisco girl, making her initial appearance here at Fisher's Theatre. She has a host of friends in this city, and from all reports is now a real star.

Kuntz and Kunz writes from Honolulu to this office under date September 8. After a most pleasant sea voyage, they opened at the Bijou Theatre, and caught on at once. Their high class singing and violin numbers were appreciated and their wardrobe was pronounced the most elaborate yet seen on the Islands. They write everybody connected with the theatre are most courteous, dressing rooms large and airy, and that they are already offered time to play Hilo and the other island cities, and are exceedingly pleased with their engagement.

Allen Doone and Miss Edna Keeley are also playing the Bijou Theatre, Honolulu, where they are well known and big favorites. They are on their way to Australia. This is Mr. Doone's third season in Honolulu, where he is always welcomed.

This office received a letter dated August 12, from Hessele, the juggling comedian, postmarked Sydney, Australia, in which he writes: "He is meeting with unbounded success, playing over Brecken's Vanities Circuit, and that his original contract of sixteen weeks has been extended to twenty four weeks. After finishing

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The closing week of September brings a welcome change of weather from the summer heat of the first part of the month, and now the theatres are coming into their own. These cool evenings are just what the theatregoing public needed to make them swarm to the theatres.

Kansas City is to hold open house for seven weeks this fall, the first event being the National Conservation Congress, which meets here the week of September 25; and, by the way, President Taft will be here on that date. This pleasure season, or carnival season as it might be called, will last until late November, and for each week there are a great number of interesting events scheduled for the city. Now the city is thronged and business is going at a very fast clip. Every one is anxious for business, and this attitude means for the success of the theatres.

The Willis Wood Theatre offered the week of September 24, George Leban in The Sign of the Rose.

The week of the 24th was the third and closing week of the motion pictures of Dante's Inferno at the Shubert Theatre. On Monday, September 18, the pupils from the Kansas State School for the Blind were the guests of Resident

This season there are generally two headliners and sometimes more on the bills, and the bills are bigger and better in every way, showing that the Orpheum is doing a very fine business.

Unadvertently it was mentioned in these columns that Mr. Leroy Simonds was business manager at the Willis Theatre this season. Mr. Simonds was there in that capacity last year, but has not been connected with the Gills for some time. J. K. Sherlock, the treasurer, and E. S. Brigham, manager, are looking after the business end of the Gills this season. The Gills each week offers very good shows and is certainly getting the money.

The new Woodward Stock Company, which opened for the season at the Auditorium Theatre, Saturday, September 16, is going very good here. The members of the company for the most part are all strangers to Kansas City, but all seem very capable and bid fair to be as popular with the Auditorium patrons as the former Woodward Stock Companies have. O. D. Woodward is manager of this theatre and company, and all the plays are put on under his personal direction.

Wednesday, September 13, was the annual inspection of the Gayety Theatre, the Kansas City house of the Columbia Company, one of the largest of America's amusement comedies and the Eastern Wheel of burlesque. The censor committee, whose duty it is to inspect all of the theatres on the circuit, and incidentally to review all of the attractions, included the following well-known amusement managers: Sam A. Scribner, general secretary of the company; Herbert Mack, manager of the Columbia Theatre, New York; Chas. H. Waldron, owner and manager of the Gayety, Boston, and Jack Singer, well-known producer and owner of the Behman Show, and a number of other attractions. The censors viewed Rose Sydell's London Impresarios, the show at the Gayety that week, and the theatre itself, and left here that night for St. Louis. Mr. Singer remained in Kansas City, however, for the opening of his new show, painting the Town, the week of September 17.

A warrant was issued September 18, for the arrest of H. H. Tammen, at the instance of the city license inspector. Mr. Tammen, one of the owners and proprietors of the Sells-Flain Circus, which was in town for the two days of the 17th and 18th, was charged with misrepresentation in the number of cars required to transport his circus when the license to give the show was applied for by the advance agent. Mr. Tammen was not taken into custody his personal promise to appear in the municipal court being accepted by the license inspector. Circus licenses are graded on the number of cars used. The license inspector asserted that when the Sells-Flain applied for the license he represented that there were but fifteen cars used in carrying the circus, and when the license inspector visited the show, he found twenty three.

The ordinance that was recently introduced in the city council to reduce the license of the circus was referred to a committee, and up to the present that committee has made no report. The 1911 Annual Missouri Valley Fair and Exposition opened Saturday, September 23, for two weeks at Electric Park. The park was most elaborately and handsomely decorated in grains and grasses typifying the agricultural and horticultural feature of the Fair, and the thousands of electric lights from which Electric Park gets its name, were varicolored, casting a subdued and delightful light over the entire park and shows. All of the merchants and manufacturers' pavilion was taken by representative Kansas City firms, and these exhibits formed one of the features of the Fair, for here it was where the fun and jollity prevailed, for souvenirs, quaint useful and comical were distributed among the crowds, and every one of these things, then there were culinary and toy-like exhibits, agriculture and flowers, great big red apples for which Missouri is famed, and which seemed the largest ever exhibited, and then the poultry show, the kennel show, food show, etc. Every thing is handsomely arranged and is on a more lavish scale than the two preceding fairs. Sam Benjamin is secretary of the fair, and M. G. Helm, owner and proprietor of Electric Park is the treasurer of the Association. Mr. Helm generously donated the use of his big amusement park for the fair. The fair extends this year for two weeks, the closing being October 8. There are special features every day and interesting programs and music by the Banda Rossa and Sorrentino, and this is a drawing card in itself, but in the evenings the park is just packed with friends and admirers, exhibitors, and those interested, and then, just the curious. Business is expected to far outstrip last season's fair, which was a record-breaker, and the 1911 Missouri Valley Fair and Exposition will be written up as one of big success. WILLIAM W. SHELLEY.

THE ORPHEUM THEATRE, MADISON, WISC.

The Orpheum will be opened about October 26, and will be under the management of D. R. Herkel, formerly business manager of the LaSalle Opera House, Chicago. The house represents an expenditure of $80,000.

his Australia engagements, he is booked for a tour of New Zealand, with Africa and Eng and to follow.

Francis Valentine big show printing last was destroyed by fire September 15. The owner of the fire is unknown. The loss is estimated at $50,000. Messrs. Holbert and Roche, the proprietors of the above business, are certainly playing in hard luck, as they have been through several previous fires, coming out with big losses.

REBE COHEN.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

Fred Niles, who played Macanley's Theatre, made a speech to the White Rats, Actors from all the houses were present at the meeting which was held at Booking Theatre. Fred explained the object of the White Rats. Miss Frances Aldrich, who was playing with the Ross-Milton Musical Comedy Company at Bowling, Ky., quit the show and returned home to Washington. She alleges the company assessed her several times, charging violation of rules against which she protested. She brought suit in a magistrate's court and secured judgment for $300. After she was awarded the verdict she said that she would buy a ticket back to her home and no more to the city for her.

The Novelty Theatre is now having the finishing touches put on. It will be the most up-to-date picture show in the South.

Manager Morton Shaw of the Avenue, reports good business since his house has opened. This house is now running melodrama, having been closed for a few seasons.

ARTHUR V. SHUCKLER

Manager Earl Steward and Manager Ira A. Miller of the film production of the Inferno, to "view" the pictures. This proved very interesting, both to them and the management. The lecturer explaining the pictures added material, but these blind pupils have an imagination of their own, and through this were enabled to "see" all of the pictures and get much pleasure therefrom. A great vote of thanks was given Mr. Steward and Mr. Miller for this treat for these poor unfortunates.

Another was the opening for the Shubert Theatre the week of September 3, and during the month these motion pictures of Dante's Inferno have been on exhibition at the Shubert, so that the regular season may be said to commence the first of October, when from then until the close of the season there will be week after week of the attractions. The Piper, a new play, will be at the Shubert for the week of October 2, the pictures closing Sunday night, October 1.

Jason E. Raitkin, treasurer of the Grand Opera House, said in speaking of the exceptionally fine season the Grand has opened to, that the theatre had a great many surprises in store for Kansas City, and these were some splendid shows, coming "in fact, for the next six weeks, every show that is booked here will do an absolute capacity. We are sure going to be busy."

This season the Orpheum is offering great acts, the Kinetophone and Concert Orchestra, in stead of seven acts, pictures and orchestra of the previous years. Business Manager Lawrence Lehman says the acts are not shortened in any way, that the usual vaudeville time is given each one. The theatre commences a little earlier now than the former 2:30 and 8:30.

COLUMBUS, O.

The present season has been open two weeks. None of the house managers will have reason to complain if the past two weeks' business is a criterion on which to base the future. True, the two first-class houses are not open as yet, the Colonial playing Shubert attractions, having but one show in so far, Alvin Jimmy Valentine for state fair week and the New Hartman not being ready. The latter named theatre is expected to open about October 15.

Al. Wiswell, the well known theatrical manager, has been sent to Toledo by the Shuberts to handle their house there. Wiswell has had years of experience in the show business and will no doubt meet with his usual success in handling that plant.

The Southern Theatre, the house that for fifteen years handled the best attractions, traveling, will open its doors to the many friends of stock on next Monday night, under the able leadership of Harry G. Stubbs. There is no question in the minds of those in the "know" as to what the venture will be a pronounced success, as Columbus is noted for the exceedingly liberal treatment they give a first-class stock organization. The leads will be in the hands of Sam Van Duzer and Augustus Phillips.

Bumper Crops in Louisiana Insure Heavy Attendance at State Fair—Other Southern Cities Preparing for Big Fairs and Expositions—Secretaries' Reports

LOUISIANA STATE FAIR.

With the farmers rejoicing over bumper crops, the business men enjoying constantly increasing trade, two hundred country newspapers and other agencies liberally advertising the approaching event, and one million population within a radius of 100 miles to draw crowds from the sixth annual State Fair of Louisiana, which opens at Shreveport on October 31 to run six days, promises to be the best in point of attendance and number of exhibits in the history of the fair. Judging by the splendid conditions prevailing on all sides and in all lines, this year's fair will undoubtedly be splendidly patronized.

All of the million people referred to as living within a radius of 100 miles are not citizens of Louisiana, but that is because Shreveport is in the northwestern corner of Louisiana. Many of the million reside across the boundaries in the states of Texas and Arkansas, but they look upon Shreveport as their mother city. Therefore those states have sent big representations, and the visitors have found the show up to expectations. This year they are coming back and are going to bring neighbors with them. With very few exceptions, everybody has done well in the financial line, and all of them have money to spend, more than during the past few years, because the crops, which help the city folks as well as those in the country, are better than they have been for years. In fact, the farming results could not be much improved upon.

Profiting by experiences during the other fairs, the management this year has had the Louisiana show more systematically put before the people than during the previous year. A majority of the million people living within the 100-mile radius are furnished with copies of the newspapers containing write-ups of the attractions they are to find at the fair this fall, but those who do not read the papers are having the scenes placed before them by means of thousands of big bills and posters. These are being scattered throughout this section, on every barn and fence and on many of the store buildings. The best billposter in this section is carrying on this campaign and the reports state that the literature distributed by his agents is flooding the country.

In the cities, especially Shreveport, Dallas, Tex., and New Orleans, La., much newspaper space is being given the fair. Special articles are telling of the Louisiana exhibition and the open-air and Gladway amusements that they are going to find, as well as the big array of agricultural products and other things of educational value.

In doing their share of the advertising, the railroad companies, through their ticket agents, are distributing folders, showing the people what they have in store at Shreveport at the fair. These agents are also distributing literature in regard to the accommodations arranged for all the visitors and the unusually low rates on the railroads.

The officials of the association, especially the secretary, Louis N. Bruggenhorff, have striven as never before to furnish the best of attractions, and the list showed that the visitors are not going to be disappointed.

The reports from the section embracing the big population are to the effect that the attendance from each vicinity is going to be the largest on record, which means that the concessionaires and show people are going to enjoy a mighty good business here this year.

PRINCE NICHOLI AND G. W. WILLARD.

The photograph from which the above illustration was reproduced was made shortly before the death of "The Little Russian Prince," who died suddenly in a railroad depot at London, Can., September 16. His manager, Mr. G. W. Lester-Willard has received many letters of condolence from friends in the profession who mourn the death of the famous undertaker.

state wide attention is a monster land show bringing together all the products of the entire state in a big exposition building. Exhibits will be seen from practically every county in the state. In addition to the Texas exhibits there will be the usually large showing of natural and manufactured articles from Mexico and a monster exhibit from the Island of Cuba, which has just been arranged and sent out under government supervision. The exhibit will contain a number of the articles recovered from the wreck of the Battleship Maine, which have been secured by special permission of the United States government.

The railroads have made more concessions than ever before in the history of the association and with the cheap rates that have been authorized there is very indication that all attendance records will be broken during the fair, which opens November 3 and closes November 12.

The big show will be opened by Governor O. B. Colquitt and the first two nights will be given over to the annual horse show, one of the most attractive social functions of the Southwest and about the only place where the wealth and society of America, Mexico, Cuba and South America mingle under the dazzling lights of amphitheatre and ball-room.

On five days of the fair there will be running and harness racing, the feature event being the Texas Thoroughbred Association Futurity Race for a purse of $1,000, on Wednesday, November 8.

The last day of the meet has been set aside as Mexico Day and will see a tremendous in-pouring of señoritas, Mexican officials and business men.

There will be three days of automobile races, four days devoted to a kennel show and on each day there will be special athletic contests and games.

Wortham & Allen's Shows have been booked for the Midway attractions and the association has closed several contracts for the highest classed free attractions.

Ewing's Zouave Boys' Band has been engaged for the ten days of the show and arrangements are now being made to secure in addition one of the leading military bands of St. Louis. The night feature will be Pain's Last Days of Pompeii, a contract having just been closed with the Pain Company.

The International Fair and Land Show at San Antonio this year bids fair to be not only the biggest thing of the kind in the state but in the entire Southwest and concession men are already piling into town to get in on the ground floor.

The association this year will pay out $50,000 in cash prizes in addition to the numerous diplomas, medals and special prizes that will be awarded.

The San Antonio hotels are already getting ready for the big thrush of visitors and many of them expect to hang out the S. R. O. sign before the exposition is formally opened.

ALABAMA STATE EXPOSITION.

This exposition is situated in the central city of the agricultural South. A navigable river and seven trunk lines of railroad gives maximum transportation facilities. The people of this territory are fast realizing that home seekers are coming South, not only on account of a milder climate, but from the fact that one to four crops a year can be grown on the same ground. All the grasses, cereals and fruits and that greatest of all products, King Cotton, is grown in great abundance. Government experts have pronounced the soil in this territory the best in the world for all agricultural purposes. It is the finest county under the sun for the raising of thoroughbred live stock; can furnish pasture nearly the year around. Alabama knows she possesses this great wealth and is inviting first class immigrants and foreign capital to make this their home.

Realizing that people only believe part of what they read, but are anxious to be shown, the citizens of Montgomery organized this exposition, which they are making the show window of the South's resources. Last year's exposition was the greatest agricultural display ever made in the South and the outlook this year gives promise for a much larger and grander display than ever before. Agriculture is not a lone feature, but live stock, poultry and manufacturing products are given special attention. In fact, the display of machinery and farming implements this year will cover more ground and building space than at any other fair or exposition in the South with probably one exception.

The building which is used for exhibition purposes is 200 feet square, two stories, and a 25 foot balcony space around the entire building. The negro building is 90 foot square, two stories, and of splendid architecture and well built. This is the only exposition in the United States that has a building devoted exclusively to negroes.

The track is one mile and is considered one of the best in the country. We have racing each day, our lowest purse is $400. We will also have motorcycle races and balloon races and fifteen splendid free attractions. The Bar-Lord Carnival Company, two of the best bands in the country for furnishing the music and there will be a magnificent fireworks display each night. The people of the Northern, Western and Eastern States are given a special invitation to visit this exposition. People from all over the South will be here and will extend them a hearty welcome.

SPOKANE FAIR READY.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—All is in readiness for the 18th annual Spokane Interstate Fair, which will be held October 28. Aviators Eugene Ely and Crosswell Dixon will make aeroplane flights in stead of Lincoln Beachey and Bob St. Henry, as first announced. The fireworks display will be one of the big features of the night show, which will be in charge of Bert Gregory.

FAIR SECRETARIES' REPORTS.

The preliminary outlook for the annual event of the New Castle County Agricultural Fair Association at Wilmington, Del., August 29, 30, 31 and September 1, was better than ever before. Good factors, with plenty of horses, the largest exhibit of farm machinery ever shown in Delaware, a 50 per cent increase in the general exhibits, a blue list of free attractions, including the Helikopters, Polar, and Captain Winston's Trailed Seals, with California Frank's Wild West as the big pay attraction and a lengthy list of privileges, assured the management the greatest fair in the history of the state. But the weather, however, completely spoiled the event. The heavy rainstorms that swept over the Atlantic Coast almost put this and the other fairs in this vicinity out of business. The attendance on the first day was 5,000, second and third days, off; fourth day, 2,000; fifth day, the only one it did not rain, 4,000.

Agricultural County Fair at St. Hyacinth, Que., Can., was held September 5 and attended by 5,000 people. In addition to the agricultural and live stock exhibits there were some interesting horse races and three good acts of equilibristas. There was also one concession on the grounds, outside of the refreshment stands, and this did a good business.

Accepting flight by a Curtiss aviator was the big drawing card for the Clay County Fair Association's annual fair at Clay Center, Kan., September 5 to 8. There was also a good racing program and fine concerts by a military band as well as the usual agricultural and live stock exhibits, which, owing to the good industrial conditions prevailing in the neighborhood, were very numerous and of a high class. The privileges all did well and were the best in this line ever seen at the fair. The attendance was as follows: first day, entrance fee, second day, 3,000; third day, 7,000; in spite of the bad weather; fourth day, 5,000.

A total attendance of 125,000 was reported from the Western Fair, held at London, Ont., Kan., September 8 to 16. Rain on the 14th and 15th kept the attendance down on these two days, but the 150,000 would probably have been reached had there been a fine line of exhibits and attractions, and a complete list of privileges, all doing a good business.

The dates of the 1911 event of the Smith County Fair Association at Smith Center, Kan., were September 5 to 8, but rain on the 5th kept the attendance down to 1,000 on the first day, 3,200 on the second day, and 5,000 on the third day. Flight by a Curtiss airplane were offered as a free attraction. A full line of privileges was granted. The association is already at work to enlarge the scope of the fair, and to make it bigger and better than ever for next year.

Excellent industrial conditions and the best ever had and show of live stock and exhibits in general are the report from the Van Wert Agricultural Society Fair, held at Laurens, N. H., September 5, 6, 7 and 8. The first day's attendance was 1,000; on the second day it rained heavily; third day good weather brought 6,000 people to the grounds; on the fourth day the weather was cold and cloudy, which kept the attendance down to 1,500. The big feature was the Aeroplane Ladies, Afroza and Pearl. There were also horse races, baseball games and a novelty in the shape of a riding match between horses and auto. Horse parades, cattle parades and band concerts. The privileges included merry-go-rounds, striking machines, industrial exhibit and transformation show, Hoopla, cane rack, jacks, button pictures, souvenirs, whine.

The best fair in every particular, in the report from the annual fair of the Van Wert County Agricultural Society, held at Van Wert, Ohio, September 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, and this in spite of the fact that it rained all day on the second day of the fair and threatened on the first day. The attendance was 3,000 on the first day, 4,400 on the second day, 15,000 on the third day, 30,000 on the fourth day and 20,000 on the fifth day. The free attractions were Strada's Aeroplane, Kirk's General Electric auto show, with over 100 entrants, motor race, live mule auto-race against automobile, and gentlemen's novelty race. The amusement privileges consisted of eight N. Y. State shows and were well patronized. Horse games or games of chance were also given.

Rain was all that prevented the 1911 event of the Ohio Agricultural Association at Ohion, N. Y., from eclipsing all previous records. Good industrial conditions prevailed and the exhibits were complete in every department. Prior to this were the harness, motorcycle and tennis races, baseball games, athletic sports, and concerts with some big free acts headed by James J. Ward, who made a number of splendid flights in a Curtiss biplane. Val Curtis' Trailed Leopards, Clark Herblins and W. Vocal Orchestra. The privileges were generous and included Ferris wheel, merry-go-round, roller way, Joy Mill, Shadow of the past, shooting gallery, animal show, cane and top, fortune telling, novelty and refreshment stands. Attendance on the first day was 3,000; second day, 5,000; third day, 7,000; fourth day, 10,000 in the morning, 4,410 in the afternoon. The Salem Fair Association had the most successful fair in their history at Salem, Ind., September 5, 6, 7 and 8. The weather was fine with the exception of the first day, and the attendance unparalleled. The first day was a rainy day; second day, 3,000 were on the grounds; third day, 15,000, and fourth day, 2,500. The fair was open at night, and Wednesday night drew 2,500, and Thursday night 5,000 people. The Rozards, comedy acrobats and wire performers; O. K. Bryant, humorist, cakewalkers, baseball games, band concerts and fireworks made up the free acts, while 62 privileges were on the grounds, the largest number ever here. The races were the best ever held there, being well contested by high-class horses; the track record was lowered to 2:14 1/4. Dreyer's Military Band of Jeffersonville furnished the music. "Our fair was entirely satisfactory from every point of view" is what the secretary of the Marshall County Fair Association says in regard to their annual event held at Lewisburg, Tenn., August 30, 31 and September 1. Good industrial conditions were responsible for a complete line of exhibits, and the amusement attractions were at any fair on the circuit and all made money, one of them reporting a net profit of $270. The concessionaires were united in declaring this to be the best fair and town in Middle Tennessee. The association is making arrangements to improve grounds and buildings and to make next year "the largest and best ever."

Good industrial conditions and fine weather contributed to the success of the New London County Agricultural Society Fair at Norwich, Conn., Sept. 4, 5 and 6. The attendance on the first day was 10,000; second day, 8,000; third day, 2,000. The exhibits were well filled and there was a fine cattle and poultry show. The free attractions were Chas. Bigelow, high diver, acrobats, and La Rex and La Rex, Spanish ring act. The privileges included merry-go-round, fortune teller, Hoopla, African Dancer, games, photographs, refreshment stands, etc. The midway was somewhat short of shows, but the management will see that there is no such defect next year. New stables will be built for the next fair, the purposes will also be increased and everything possible done to keep the fair up-to-date.

The annual fair of the Wellsboro Fair Association was held at Wellsboro, N. Y., August 22, 23, 24 and 25. Rain spoiled what promised to be a most successful fair. Industrial conditions were very good and there was a fine line of agricultural and stock exhibits, the best amusement attractions that could be obtained, including aeroplane flights by Thomas Bros., bicycling, Polton Troupe, horse races, motorcycle races with a big midway, full of stands, games, throws, Ferris wheel, merry-go-round, etc. It rained every day of the fair, necessitating the declaring off of the fourth day. Attendance the first day was 1,200; second day, 2,700; third day, 5,500. The weather and fine crowds made the Edgar County Agricultural and Mercantile Association Fair at Paris, Ill., August 28 to September 1, a success. The attendance on the first day was 10,000; second day, 10,000; third day, 7,000; fourth day, 16,000; fifth day, 8,000. The agricultural, live stock and mercantile exhibits were complete in every respect, as were the amusement attractions and privileges.

The annual exhibition of the Vancouver Exhibition Association, held at Vancouver, B. C., August 28 to September 4, was a success in every way. Rain kept down the attendance on the first, fifth and sixth days, but in spite of this there were 100,500 admissions for the seven days. Parker No. 1 Carnival Company handled the amusement attractions, with the Star Tower, Geraldas, Stahl, high dive, Zou Poles and Steamer Traction. The free acts and other amusement features included horse races, with purses aggregating $32,700; motorcycle races, automobile races, horse show, band concerts and B. C. Championship athletic sports. All records, with the exception of a tent which was broken in this year's event of the Cedar County Fair Association at Tipton, Iowa, September 5, 6, 7 and 8, and this would also have gone by the board had the weather been all at good. First day was entry day, no admission charged; second day, 5,000 people braved the threatening rain; third day, rain, no fair; fourth day, threatening rain all day, attendance 2,000. The exhibits and amusement attractions were the largest and best in the history of the association. The amusements included the McKonkey Acker Racing Combing Run in nine different acts; baseball games, horse show and excellent horse races. The merry-go-round, stands and privileges of that kind did well, but the fair was short on shows.

George County Fair Association held its 1911 event September 5, 6, 7 and 8 at Linx, Md. Rain all four days kept down the attendance and varied what promised to be a very successful fair. As industrial conditions were good and the exhibits complete and of a high class. The fair, as usual, was short on concession stands. The attendance on the first day was 900; second day, 2,000; third day, 2,500; and fourth day, 1,200.

September 5, 6, 7 and 8 were this year's fair dates for the annual event of the Jackson County Fair Association, held at Vanover, N. C. Murphyshora III. The prospects were the best the association had ever had, and had the weather been good all former records would have been broken, as industrial conditions were good and there were complete lines of agricultural and live stock exhibits, fine amusement attractions, etc. The free acts were held from 8:00 to 10:00 p. m. and included a Wagon Show. The privileges were the usual list of stands, shows, etc. With average weather this fair is a sure winner for all classes of privileges and they make money even when it rains. The purses in the speed ring aggregated $2,800 and attracted splendid fields of horses. All races were pulled off with the exception of two harness events on the 7th, when the track was heavy. The attendance on the first day, with rain and cloudy weather, was 2,500; second day, cloudy, 7,500; third day, rain until 10 a. m., 18,000; fourth day, clear until 3 p. m., and then a storm, 11,000. This association boasts one of the best-equipped air grounds in the state, comprising 44 acres, with new grandstand, fences, barns, etc., and the best regulated half mile track in Illinois. For 1912 extensive improvements will be made and the racing feature especially exploited.

The 1911 event of the Lee County Fair Association at Bonnellson, Iowa, did not get beyond the first day preparatory stage. The dates were September 6, 7 and 8, and the fair opened on the 6th with good weather and favorable prospects, but it rained so hard on the second and third days that the management were forced to declare the fair off. It was impossible to hold races of any kind. Some fine amusement attractions had been provided, with Black Bros. contortionists and acrobats; George Oden, chair balancing act, races, baseball games, etc., as free attractions. A complete list of privileges were also on the grounds.

Everything pointed to the McCook County Fair Association having a successful event at Salem, S. D., Sept. 6, 7 and 8, but on account of heavy rains the management were forced to call off the entire fair.

The Knox County Fair and Racing Association were fortunate in having exceptionally fine weather for their fair at Galesburg, Ill., August 21, 30, 31 and September 1. The attendance on the first day was 2,000; second day, 4,000; third day, 12,000, and fourth day, 6,000. The exhibits and amusement attractions were of a high class, and although there was a fairly large list of privileges, there were not enough to accommodate the crowds. The last two fairs have been record breakers, and the association will attempt to do still better next year. New buildings will be built and the grounds made more attractive.

Secretary Paul V. Moore of the Spartanburg Fair Association has accepted the week between the North Carolina and South Carolina Fairs (October 21, 23, 26) as the date for the Spartanburg County Fair. This year's event promises to be a most successful one. Shows of the highest moral character only will be allowed on the grounds. The Madison County Fair, Norfolk, Neb., has just completed the most successful session in the history of that organization. Record-breaking attendance was the rule.

Letter from E. M. Moor to Julian T. Fitzgerald Discloses a Number of Facts of General Interest to Skaters and Rink Managers—Harley Davidson has Yearning for Stage

E. M. MOOR OF KANSAS CITY, WRITES INTERESTING LETTER.

To Secretary Fitzgerald:—I have read with much interest your several articles with reference to forming a circuit of rinks for racing purposes. I also agree with you and Mr. Flath that this would be a great help in keeping the game alive, but I think a better plan would be to form an association of managers, and the object of same to be the general uplifting of the game and to discuss various attractions. Several years ago there was an aggregation of racers touring the country, and while they were speedy on the wheels, they were also a little speedy in other ways, and did not do much to uplift the standard of the rinks in which they appeared. I notice you refer to Mr. Sol Waterman as one who would take an interest in your project. I was associated with Mr. Waterman last summer and winter as manager of two rinks controlled by him, and I wish to state that if many of the owners of rinks tried as hard as he did to keep up the high standard of roller rinks there would be less scandal connected with the roller game. Knowing Mr. Waterman as I do, and the results of his playing the above-mentioned racers at his Coliseum Rink in Kansas City, I doubt if he could be induced to have anything to do with the racing game, if it was to be anything like it was a few years ago. If a circuit is formed and men sent around the same, they must be managed with a firm hand, and conduct themselves as gentlemen when on and off the floor. Another thing that must be looked to in order to get the money, is to see that the circuit chasers are not allowed to hog all the races and resort to foul tactics to get them. In reference to forming an association for managers, I suggest such men as Fred Nall, John Bell and others get together and get the small rink owners interested by doing this. Ideas could be compared and various attractions discussed. Many small rinks have died because they did not know how and what kind of attractions to put on. I have run small town rinks and have found that the more local attractions and schemes you put up the better your business. Last winter I took an abandoned rink in a Missouri town; failure was predicted before the doors were opened, but I proceeded just the same, and am happy to say that I received the game to a greater point than it originally opened with. I put on something two and three nights each week, advertised in various novel ways, and got good results. I also made Saturday afternoon a paying proposition, making it a special inducement for school children only to come by giving souvenirs, such as pencils, writing tablets, individual drinking cups, and other useful articles. Now many will say: "I don't see any money in that." Well there was, and the result was that those children looked forward to those presents on Saturday, and when they got them they went home and showed them to their parents, with the result that when we put on our night attractions the whole family turned out. I also put on two or three races every Saturday for the kids, giving them a ticket for the next Saturday as a prize. I was located in a town that had a branch factory of one of the largest shoe manufacturing concerns in the country, and where the employees were mostly girls. Now these girls could not afford to attend every night, but I got them there just the same, not by giving a ladies free night, but by judicious distribution of tickets to different ones every night and favoring none, my theory being: get the girls and the boys will follow. I could go on at length and give you a great deal more information, but as your article indicates that you are in touch with the skating world, I will not at this time take up any more of your valuable time.

HARLEY DAVIDSON STAGE STRUCK.

It is the custom nowadays for star athletes to become the victims of the theatrical "bug." Quite often it is announced that some well-known baseball player or a man famous in some other branch of sport has deserted his game to become a "regular" actor. In other words, it is the style nowadays to go on the stage, and Harley Davidson, world's champion roller skater, is the latest to get "establish." Harley, who is well known throughout the country, especially to those around St. Paul, his birthplace, and not for

LOUIS RUBENSTEIN.

Mr. Rubenstein, Canadian Champion, 1878-1880, and World's Champion in 1890, has skated in all parts of the world where ice is to be found. In all his many years of competition he never met defeat, which is a record good enough for any skater to retire on.

Mr. Rubenstein resides at Montreal, Canada, and is the head of a large manufacturing concern; also secretary and treasurer of the Amateur Skating Association of Canada, of which he was one of the founders. He still retains his enthusiasm for skating, notwithstanding he has grown rather stout of late. He is called upon to officiate as judge at nearly all championship events. In 1909 he was elected president of the International Skating Union of America, the governing body of skating interests in the United States and Canada.

getting dear old London town, is not yet a really and truly actor man, but he has had a taste of stage life and he likes it. Having created a taste he will not be satisfied until he has a signed contract with some big vaudeville circuit, and there is a likelihood that he will realize his ambition in the near future. Davidson was given a tryout at the Empress Theatre in St. Paul a short time ago and made a great hit, and his prospects now are good for a good, long circuit when he gets ready to start. For over twenty years the name of Davidson has been a byword in the sporting world, especially in the bicycle and skating game. The family is a famous one, nearly every member having gained distinction either on a bicycle or on rollers or steel blades. Harley's name is recorded upon all three. Years ago there were many speedy ice skaters who envied the St. Paul lad for his whirlwind ability, and then he switched to rollers and again made them all sit up and take notice. He annexed the world's speed title in a famous race at London, England, at which time he hauled in a big fat purse and carried home one of the most valuable medals ever offered for any athletic competition. There is nothing that has ever been done on the little wheels that Harley can't do, and there are a few things that he does that others have never done. He is as much at home on rollers as he used to be on the steel blades, and pulls off many difficult and classy whirls and turns that seem almost impossible. Among his feats are the spread eagle, cutting the figure eight, and a dizzy whirl, but the most remarkable of all is the daring leap backward over six chairs. This feature concludes his act and certainly is a thriller. After arranging his chairs in a row across the stage, Davidson dashes into the wings, mounting an incline, reappears sliding down the incline backwards and leaps over the chairs, landing as gracefully as a circus bareback rider on a well-trained horse. Davidson's act is

W. A. Davis Wins Suit of Long Standing—Cosmopolitan Shows No. 1 Dodging Floods in Kansas—Miscellaneous Amusement Notes from Representative Carnival Companies

W. A. DAVIS WINS SUIT.

Caro, Ill., Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—Suit to recover fifty acres of valuable land in the northern part of this city was won by W. A. Davis, to whose father it belonged in 1867. During the war, the elder Davis' brother, through a forged deed, set claim to the property. The case started in the courts in 1868, but a judicial three times delayed the settlement for ten years. During that period Davis died, also his brother who claimed the property. Mrs. Davis, mother of W. A. Davis, resumed the fight and was waiting for papers and witnesses until 1905, when she died. W. A. Davis, the oldest son, then took the matter in hand, but experienced difficulty in getting matters straightened out. He finally won, however, in the Supreme Court, and the property valued at $150,000 will be divided between he and his two sisters.

Mr. Davis is well-known in the carnival business. He is now located at London, O.

BAUSCHER GOING ABROAD.

A. J. Bauscher, proprietor of the Bauscher Carnival Company, together with his wife and only daughter, will soon sail for London, England and make an extended tour abroad. The object of Mr. Bauscher's visit to London is to see his son, who is studying music.

COSMOPOLITAN NO. 1 DODGING FLOODS.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 21 (Special to The Billboard).—The Cosmopolitan Carnival Company closed here September 18-23. When they arrived they found the grounds they had intended to use covered in feet of water, caused by an 8 1/2 inch rain that fell here. They soon were located in new quarters but last Monday night's business account of the delay. All the shows were closed and drew the large patronage they had.

PARKER SHOW NOTES.

Lawrence, Kan., Sept. 22 (Special to The Billboard).—The record week for the Parker Show No. 1 was at Vancouver, B. C., Canada, through great business was encountered throughout their Canadian tour.

Magnum Indahl and Cy Cranford, who were out with the band on the No. 2 Show this season, are now in Vanderbille.

Jesse M. Shost, an old trouper, was a visitor last week at the Parker factory.

The most distinguished guest at the Parker headquarters for some time was Col. Cody, who was entertained by Mr. Parker on September 13, the date of the show's engagement here. September 13, the date of the Two Bills' Show in this city, will long be remembered by Lucas, the thirteen-year-old daughter of C. W. Parker, as the time when she was entertained by Buffalo Bill. This being her thirtieth birthday, she was invited to the show as their guest and treated to many surprises, among them being a ride in the old deadwood stage, immediately after Col. Cody made the usual announcement she stepped into the arena and danced with him with a handsome bouquet and he kissed her upon the cheek and kissed her upon the forehead the applause of the many thousands.

The engagement date of the Parker Show No. 2 has been set for some time next month will be in his winter quarters.

WINSLOW SHOW NOTES.

The Patrons Winslow Show are now in their first week of county fairs on the B. & O. Fair circuit.

At Olney, Ill., Day and Night Fair, weather conditions were ideal and on Thursday, over five thousand people were on the grounds. Working Labor Day in Salem, Ill., the Winslow Show managed to have everything in the bag. Tuesday morning at which time a big rain and rain storm totally destroyed the big tent of the Starnes Dramatic Company at Olney. Manager Starnes however managed to turn the show into an all-around, and continued to show. Meetings were exchanged between the two shows.

At Altamont, Ill., September 11th week the weather was excellent. The Shelbyville Homecoming Committee paid the show a visit and through the news that they had engaged "Bud" Mace to make flights there.

Manager Winslow made a flying trip to Shelbyville from Altamont to arrange locations for the various attractions with the local committee.

Two new shows and a bunch of concessions joined the company at Hroese, Ill.

At Mitchell, advertising agent, had the misfortune while in St. Louis to lose his summer's wages out of his pocket.

LEONARD AMUSEMENT CO.

The Leonard Amusement Company played at Nebraska date on Saturday, September 16th after fourteen consecutive weeks in that business in Nebraska was good during the tour, far surpassing expectations in business. Shows and concessions alike "closed" at the Southern tour starts next week at the Arkansas Fair at Berryville, Ark.

Booker of the Electric Theatre played the last show of the season September 16 at Rock, Mo., where the holding company theatre was the only limit to the size of the show.

Leonard has been offered return dates for next season at every fair, reunion or picnic in Nebraska this summer, which is well for the general character of his shows and concessions.

Bob Willette is now managing the big Sta and is playing to well pleased crowds every night.

CARNIVAL NOTES.

While playing the beautiful little city of Alton, N. C., week of September 4, four members of Wolcott's Model Shows joined Alton Lodge No. 112, K. of P. It was through the efforts of George Slater that the lodge added these members to its roster: Harry Englander, Dave Cantor, Robert Hughey and W. H. Garner. This brings the number of K. of P.'s with the show up to ten. The following members of the Wolcott Show assisted the members of the lodge in impressing the lessons of the three ranks of Knighthood: F. S. Wolcott, William Davidson, Dave Carr, W. H. Brown, George Slater and A. E. Lange. After the initiatory work an adjournment was made to the private car of Mr. Wolcott, where an elaborate and delightful banquet was served in honor of the event.

The third annual Horse Show and Business Men's Carnival at Roseland, Ind., was held September 13, 14, 15 and 16. The first two days of the show were marred by rain, but the large attendance of the last two days more than made it up. The exhibit of horses was very fine. The Carnival Shows that were hired to augment the Horse Show were a failure, but the free attractions, consisting of two diving horses and an aerial performance, were good, and made up to some extent for the poor paid attractions.

"Blackey," boss canvasman with the Lucas Show, passed through Norfolk, Neb., this week and reports excellent business for that show. Dr. Lucas has an exceptionally strong company and certainly made good in Norfolk during the race meet. Mrs. Helen Lucas proved a big drawing card in her extraordinary aerial acts. The Clements were also prime favorites during the week.

The Walter Savigdo Amusement Company is now operating in Northern Nebraska and meeting with splendid success. Five thousand Indians from the Roseland Agency came over in a body to pay the show a visit last week at Valentine, Neb., and all concessions enjoyed "a heap big time" that week.

T. O. Moss, manager of Moss Bros' Greater Shows, has purchased the Crazy House of the Great Empire Shows. E. E. Barnhill, with his plantation, snake, tom and gunness shows, consisting of three big shows, is again with the show.

Paris, Tenn., will hold a street fair week of October 16-21. Attractions will be furnished by the C. J. Kessler Show Co. L. F. Fielder is secretary of the event.

After a successful season at the fairs, Guthrie & Dunsford will close their big five-in-one show and open a jungle show at Williamsburg, Va.

FILM SYNOPSIS

Brief Outlines of Stories Told in the Latest Productions of the Patents and Sales Companies—Release Dates and Lengths of Subjects Are Given

PATENTS COMPANY.

EDISON.

EPGENE WRAYBURN (Drama; release Oct. 3; length 1,000 feet).—(From Charles Dickens' famous novel, "Our Mutual Friend.")—Lizzie Hexam is in love with Wrayburn, who has only a passing fancy for the girl. Bradley Headstone, a suitor for the girl, is jealous of Wrayburn. Lizzie attempts to hide from Wrayburn, but he finds her, and is followed by Headstone. Headstone attacks Wrayburn, and then the lock-keeper, who has witnessed the crime, Headstone and the lock-keeper engage in a terrible struggle, and eventually, locked in each other's embrace, plunge in together. Lizzie rescues the unconscious Wrayburn from the river, where he has been thrown by Headstone. Wrayburn awakens to the fact that he really loves the girl, and there is a happy ending.

THE SUMMER GIRL (Comedy; released October 4; length 1,000 feet).—Jack Stout is the favorite admirer of the summer girl until the arrival of his friend, Brown, who by a wonderful display of "cheek" cuts Jack out almost entirely. Brown makes an engagement to take the girl driving at 3 p. m. and then goes swimming with a friend. Jack sees an opportunity to get even, and securing some female attire he dons same and follows Brown and his friend to the lake. He awaits until they are in the water and then sits on the bank beside their chairs, opens a parasol, and becomes engrossed in a book. After a time Brown and his friend are ready to emerge, but can not on account of the stout lady sitting so near their clothes. Brown is anxious to keep his appointment, and yells frantically at the lady on the bank, but she is apparently deaf. Jack finally leaves, and discarding the female attire, meets the girl, who complains bitterly of Brown, and vows she will never speak to him again, so Jack is the happy winner.

FOUL PLAY (Drama; released Oct. 6, Part One. Length, 1,000 feet).—Young Arthur Wardlaw is supposed to be a model young man, but is with a wild set at college and heavily in debt. His tutor, Rev. Robert Penfold, asks him for a loan of seven hundred pounds. Arthur does not dare to ask his father for money, so forces his name to a check for two thousand pounds, which he gives to Penfold to cash, telling him to keep the seven hundred pounds and turn the balance over to him, hoping in this way to secure money to pay his debts. Penfold does so but the check is discovered to be a forgery and Penfold is arrested. Arthur is in love with Helen Rolleston, who has promised to marry him. Meantime, Penfold appeals to Arthur to testify and save him, but Arthur becomes ill and is unable to testify, and Penfold is condemned to five years exile and penal servitude for forgery.

FOUL PLAY (Drama; released Oct. 6, Part Two. Length, 1,000 feet).—Penfold, unjustly convicted of forgery, is released on parole in care of General Rolleston, Helen's father, in Sidney Australia, and is known as James Seaton. Seaton is employed as gardener and falls in love with Helen. Arthur Wardlaw who has heavily invested his firm by speculating, arrives in Sidney ostensibly to make arrangements for his wedding with Helen, but really to make arrangements for securing his ship, the Prosperine, for insurance. Arthur goes back to London, but when it came time for Helen to sail also, the Prosperine was not ready, so she sailed on the Prosperine. Seaton sails on the same ship disguised as a clergyman, John Hazel, and becomes acquainted with Helen. The mate scuttles the ship, and the crew take to the boats. Helen and Robert finally land on an uninhabited island, and build a rude hut. Meantime the mate and his crew were picked up and taken to London, where he reports the sinking of the Prosperine and receives his reward from Arthur Wardlaw. General Rolleston follows Helen to the Shannon, and Arthur, dnmfounded learns that she sailed in the Prosperine, and that he was her executioner.

FOUL PLAY (Drama; released Oct. 6, Part Three. Length, 1,000 feet).—The months drag by for Helen and Robert on their island, and they have given up hope of being rescued. Robert tenderly cares for her and she has grown to love him. General Rolleston hopes that his daughter is still alive and has started in a vessel in search of her. The ship finally comes in sight of the island, but Helen prevents Robert from signaling, saying that she loves him and does not want to be rescued. The next morning, however, the general lands and finds his daughter, and also recognizes his convict gardener, Seaton. Robert convinces Helen of his innocence, and Helen swears to clear his name and come back for him. Robert, all alone, decides to leave and is fortunately picked up and landed in England. Helen, true to her promise, obtains evidence and clears Robert, proving her former lover guilty of the forgery. A great wrong is righted, and Robert Penfold comes into his own.

THE MISSION WAIF (Drama; released Sept. 28; length 1,000 feet).—Mary has been adopted by the Mission Fathers when the Indians had massacred her parents. Some years later, Captain Cortesey, a bandit, sought refuge at the Mission. He hid his identity and became a favorite, especially with Mary, the one-time waif. It was her first love. Mary, while walking one day, read a sign offering a reward for the person of Captain Cortesey, distinguished by a crescent-shaped scar on his forehead. She took no notice at the time, but later, when the Captain declared his love for her, she soon the scar, and ordered him from the room. Cortesey had not proceeded far when he discovered that the Indians had arisen, and hurried to the Mission to warn Mary and the Fathers, who escaped into an underground passage, while Cortesey defended the Mission. Mary succeeded in reaching a cowboys' camp and called them to action. The Indians were put to flight, but Cortesey had been killed defending the woman he loved.

THE BLACKFOOT HALF-BREED (Drama; released Sept. 29; length — feet).—Col. Baker, commander of Fort Nelson, marries Gofersocks, a full-blooded Blackfoot Indian. The fruit of their union, a beautiful daughter, Maude, is sent East to be educated. On Maude's return to the Fort, her Blackfoot mother begs her to visit the Indians. Big Chief, the chief of the tribe, covets the handsome half-breed. Maude finds Indian life unattractive and returns to her father. Captain Tinley, next in command to Col. Baker, is an admirer of Maude's, and their engagement is finally announced. The Blackfoot Chief is angered at Maude's return to the Fort, and to prevent hostilities, she returns to the tribe. Her mother plans to marry her to Big Chief, but Fawn, an Indian girl friend of Maude, goes to the Fort for aid, and Capt. Tinley, at the head of a party of soldiers, effects a rescue and Maude renounces her tribe.

THE PHONEY STRIKE-BREAKERS (Comedy; release Oct. 2; length — feet).—Hugh, the ranch foreman, is in love with Molly, his employers' daughter, who reciprocates, but is inclined to put him off. Hugh, thinking he must resort to something desperate to gain her consent to marry him, conceives the idea of a fake strike on the ranch. His employers, Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard, help him along, but Molly overhears the plan and decides on a counter-plot. She collects a party of girls from the neighborhood, and equipped as cowboys, they start for the Blanchard ranch. Then when the cowboys start their phoney strike, Molly and her strike-breakers ride on the range and do the strikers work. Hugh and his friends are surprised, and riding after the supposed strike-breaking cowboys, find that they have been bunched and the strike-breakers are girls.

THE SAVING SIGN (Drama; release Oct. 4; length — feet).—Brown, a prospector, discovers his Indian guide going through a sacred rite and asks the meaning of it. The Indian explains it is the sign of the Great Spirit and brings good fortune. Brown discovers gold, and the Indian attributes it to the "sign." Brown tells his wife and daughter of his discovery, and shows the daughter, Ruth, the "sign." The Indians become hostile, and the settlers move into a stockade, where Ruth objects to the discipline and runs away. She is captured by the Indians, who prepare to hang her by the thumbs. Ruth looks upward and makes the "sign." The Indians are amazed. The settlers have followed Ruth's trail, and arrive just as the Indians are thrown into consternation by Ruth's "sign." The Chief delivers her to the white men, and buries a tomahawk as a sign of peace.

THE CALIFORNIA REVOLUTION OF 1846 (Drama; release Oct. 6; length — feet).—Commander Vallejo picks Senor Juarez as a husband for his daughter, Felicia, but she is in love with Harry Cutler, a young American. Juarez waylays Cutler and leaves him for dead. The American is found, however, and nursed back to health. Cutler plans to outwit Juarez by raising the Bear Flag capturing Sonoma and proclaiming the California Republic. Felicia and Juarez's wedding day is set. Cutler writes Felicia to delay it as long as possible. The Americans make their raid, capture the town, and instead of Juarez, Cutler marries to the altar with the beautiful Spanish Sonorita Felicia. The Bear Flag, the official ensign of California was first raised by a band of American settlers in 1846, when they seized the Pueblo of Sonoma, commanded by Gen. M. G. Vallejo, and there proclaimed the "California Republic."

IMPS HIT THE BULLSEYE TWICE EVERY WEEK!

Think! How many film manufacturers in this wide world have brought out two REALLY GOOD films every week for the past fifty weeks? You can count them all on the thumb of one hand. And that thumb represents the "Imp." What's the use of gambling with uncertain brands of film when you can get a sure thing at no greater cost? Why not get two Imps every week? If you can't get them by fighting for them, why not try paying a little more?

one of the party, loves her, but his affection is not returned. Jack Baldwin, an aviator, is experimenting with a dirigible near the camp. He meets Flo, and they are mutually attracted. Flo's father discovers gold and stakes out a claim. Ned and a partner conceive the idea of putting the old prospector out of the way and filling on the claim. Ned shoots the old man and steals the papers. Flo witnesses the act, and after making her father comfortable, rides to frustrate the scoundrels. She meets the young aviator and tells him the story. Meantime, Ned has ridden to a settlement and secured a motor car and is speeding in the direction of the recorder's office. Jack Baldwin lends his aid, and with a duplicate description of the mine, mans his airship, and in an interesting race beats Ned to the office and files on the claim in the name of Flo, and wins the girl and the thanks of the old prospector. MUTT AND JEFF AS REPORTERS (Comedy; released Sept. 30; length — feet).—Mutt and Jeff decide that being a reporter is an easy job, and manage to connect with the Itally Star. Jeff is assigned to do the society and theatrical stunt, while Mutt, the brave, is to unearth the foul dealings of the underworld. Jeff is a success, makes a hit, is scooped, engaged at enormous salary, and goes automobiling with one of the sweetest members of the gentry. Mutt, as usual, fails, all he gets is a "tra-la-lin," and is kicked off the staff of the Star into the street, just in time to see Jeff and his bee-you-tee full lady friend in the auto. On the same reel is Getting Even.

GETTING EVEN (Comedy; length — feet).—Betty Thorne and Tom Wiley torment Betty's father to consent to their marriage, and finally Major Thorne took his cane to the young man, but Tom got away and the blow fell on the head of Parson Goodman, who was entering at that moment. Tom attempts to fool the Major by putting on a policeman's coat and hat, but the Major sees through the disguise, and Tom again makes a get-away. The Major and his gardener mistake the real policeman for Tom, and throw him through the window, with the result that the Major and the gardener are on their way to jail, while Betty and Tom were urging Parson Goodman to hurry with the marriage ceremony.

THOSE JERSEY COWPUNCHERS (Release Oct. 4; length — feet).—The Billiken Moving Picture concern go West to take pictures of Western subjects, but upon arriving there are unable to engage cowboys or Indians, as all have gone to join the moving pictures. The directors send East for their "Jersey Cowpunchers," who, to the amusement of the people are soon transformed into dare-devil cowboys and blood-thirsty Indians. Then followed the rehearsal of the picture, with its many amusing, trying and exciting incidents. The actors entered thoroughly into the spirit of the story, and when the actual scenes were taken they were heartily applauded by the bystanders. They had been initiated into the making of a Western picture, and had found it both entertaining and instructive.

YOUNG LOCHINVAR (Drama; released Sept. 26; length — feet).—(From Sir Walter Scott's famous poem, "Lochinvar.") — The "fair Ellen" was forced by her parents to consent to marry a man to whom she objected, one who was described as "a dastard in love" and "a laggard in war." When Young Lochinvar heard the news, he rode alone to the home of Ellen, arriving just as the wedding was about to be celebrated. The kinsmen of the bride were disposed to be aggressive, but he told them that he had come "to dance but one measure, drink one cup of wine." During the dance he told her his plans, and reaching the door, they leaped on his horse and were off before the Netherby clan had realized what had happened. And they never saw the "fair Ellen" again, for she became the happy bride of Lochinvar.

LOVE'S SACRIFICE (Drama; released Sept. 20; length — feet).—A middle-aged scientist marries a young girl. The girl is happy in her new home, but lonely. Her husband loves her, but is wrapped up in his profession, and she feels that she is neglected. A young man, the son of an old friend of her husband, falls in love with her. Her husband, looking out of the window, sees the young man embrace his wife, and turned from the window with a groan. Had he waited he would have seen the young woman rebuke the man, and order him from the place. The husband considers what to do and holding his wife's happiness above all else, decides to eliminate himself in a manner that would seem that he died a natural death. He tells his wife that he is going abroad on business and goes to a part of the tropics that is practically death to a white man. The young wife later learns the destination of her husband, and posting after him, finds him sick and apparently dying, but she convinces him that he is the only man she ever loved, and nurses him back to health.

Leo Dornan, Musician with Ringling Bros.' Circus, Instantly Killed Last Week While Attempting to Board Moving Band Wagon—Miscellaneous White Top News

LEO DORNAN KILLED.

Stockton, Cal., Sept. 20 (Special to The Billboard).—Leo Dornan, a cornet player with Sweet's Concert Band with the Ringling Bros.' Circus, was instantly killed here during the parade of the show last Wednesday.

Dornan was late for the parade, but secured his instrument and uniform and ran after the band wagon. Without calling to the driver to stop, he attempted to climb on the moving vehicle, but lost his hold and fell, the front wheel passing over his body. The wagon was brought to a stop before the rear wheel touched him, and he was carried into a nearby house and medical aid summoned, but life was extinct. An inquest was held and later the body was shipped to Hot Springs, S. D., where interment took place. Many floral offerings were sent by the various employees with the show.

Dornan was twenty-five years old and the only son of James Dornan, chief of police of Hot Springs, S. D. He is survived by his father and mother. He has been with the Della Pringle Stock Company, the Alhambra Stock Company, Dr. Rucker's Company, Reed's Band of Sioux City, Ia.; H. Henry's Minstrel and other organizations as well as the Ringling Show. He was also a newspaper man of considerable experience, having worked on several papers in Omaha and other Western cities, and was recently connected with the Oklahoma City News and later with the Deadwood Telegram, Deadwood, S. D.

glad of an opportunity to rest. Our business here was fine at both performances, which was quite a surprise.

Saturday, Falla City, Neb., a little town that from time to time gets all the real shows. They gave us an excellent afternoon house and a fair house at night.

In Atchison the show was compelled to pay $250 for damages to a street caused by heavy wagons hauling to the lot. Evidently the city fathers are looking forward to a social session.

At last the weather has cooled somewhat, and we all hope that it is a permanent change, and now that my fat friend, Harry Piel, has come upon the scene to annoy me, I'll close.

AMONG THE WHITE TOPS.

Maple Cliff Farm, Fayetteville, Ark., Sept. 19.

Editor The Billboard:

Yesterday, with my family, I had the pleasure of visiting the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows at Fayetteville, my home town. "Uncle Ben" surely knows how to welcome the profession. Last February I had the misfortune to break my leg and I have been slow in recovering. This is the first show I have seen this summer, and I wish I might be able to describe the various emotions that chased themselves up one side and down the other of my physical and sentimental being as well, but there are no words coined that will express it. An old-timer, out of the game for some time, knows how it

THE TWO BILLS' SHOW.

By F. AL. PEARCE.

The week just past has been without event, a very quiet and peaceable week indeed. Sunday, Sept. 10, was spent in Iowa, Kan., and in a very sedate manner. Had some rain in the afternoon and at night, but as the natives were all indoors, in fact, had been all the time, they did not mind the storm, and as the rain served to give us some relief from the extreme heat that we had endured for so long, we, too, were satisfied.

Monday dawned clear and warm, how warm it is impossible to describe, but it seems as though each day is trying to outdo its predecessor. Our business at Iowa, at both performances, was satisfactory. We were loaded and away early, making the run to Ottawa in good time, where we were located on the Fair Grounds, which are but a very short distance from the center of the town, and to good business.

Wednesday, Leavenworth; weather still whooping things up in the heat line, and I believe that the extreme heat has had some effect on our afternoon business through this section, though we did a very satisfactory business here. C. W. Parker, the well-known carnival man, was an interested visitor here, and entertained Col. Cady, Major Little and a number of the executives at his factory, which has but recently been completed.

Thursday, St. Joe, Mo. Three shows to appear here within seven days, we being the first. The warmest day of the season we experienced here, but at that had a good afternoon house. At night it commenced to rain just early enough to frighten away some that would otherwise have attended. However, the night house was far better than one would expect under the circumstances, especially so in consideration of the fact that the Barnum Show came in the next day. I have since learned that they had a day of rain, which, no doubt, interfered with their business.

Friday, Atchison. A long hard haul through mud that reached the wagon hubs and uphill all the way. It was nearly noon before the entire show was on the lot with horses and men all feels to get back among the white tops, but I never saw one yet that could tell it. I think I can truthfully say I never enjoyed a circus more in my life, and I've seen all of the big ones over and over for forty-four years past. It was almost as good as the first one I ever saw, way up in Michigan, when I was only ten years old.

Anyone that says that all shows are about alike, and "they have seen them over and over; guess they won't go to this one," have a few more guesses coming. I would advise them all to revise their "ancient history," and be a boy again when the circus comes to town. The acts were good from start to finish, and many new ones that I had never seen before. They came on with a snap that kept one's attention riveted throughout, and the grouping was perfect.

Although the show lot was two and one-fourth miles from the city (new grounds, broken in for the first time, with no street car service, and the hacks charging a half dollar to haul people out), the afternoon house was a good one, despite the difficulty in reaching the show grounds. The parade had to be abandoned on account of the breaking down of several bridges with the heavy wagons on the roads leading to the grounds.

I hope you may find space to print this letter, for it was written, not "with an axe to grind" in any direction, but more to express the feelings of an old-timer, wandering for a single day among the white tops after a lengthy period of retirement to the "simple life."

C. W. RIGGS.

VIRGIL L. BARNETT WEDS.

Virgil L. Barnett and Ressie Worley, both connected with the 101 Ranch Wild West, were united in wedlock recently. Barnett and his wife will leave the 101 Ranch Show and join a circus. In 1912 they will frame up an ideal circus act.

George R. Wells, Smileless Man, is with the Young Buffalo Wild West, doing a genteel rube stunt on the streets.

THE DESTRUCTION OF MADAME EMMA LAKE'S CIRCUS AT LURAY.

A few weeks since the newspapers chronicled the death of Madame Emma Lake down New York City from the consequence of a fire. The writer read the brief notice with attention because he witnessed a performance of Emma Lake's Circus in the summer of 1897 at Luray, Mo. In her day she was a unique and famous character in the circus ring. Bill pronounced her the cleverest lady rider in the world. The little wagon show arrived at Luray, overland from Alexandria, on Sunday morning. The circus posters had been displayed for a week or more, and the entire population of the little isolated village was out to witness the arrival. Performances were given Monday afternoon and Monday evening. The wagon was crowded at both times. Luray had never seen a circus since the visit of Van Amblerg in 1850. The swiftest ring left by Emma Lake's Circus remained a part of the landscape for many years thereafter. Probably it was the last circus that ever visited Luray, as the town is too small to attract the big aggregations of the present time. After the close of the evening entertainment the show people were given those puerile concerts which have delighted several generations to induce the purchase of new phrases in profanity from those who are induced to buy their money to witness the silly songs, etc. The concert aroused the anger of the young men of the town and village, and they burned for revenge. Many of them were recently home from the war and had nothing. Nothing but blood could wash out the stigma occasioned by the concert. There was a tremendous free fight in the square surrounding the tent following the close of the concert. It is said that the fiercest combats originated primarily over a woman. That all wars are brought on by fighting women. That all railroad accidents are traced to the state of mind to which the railroad operative has been reduced by the woman. So it is reasonable to assume that the night which destroyed Emma Lake's Circus in 1897 at Luray, Mo., may after all have been over a woman. The fight lasted until long after the daylight hours. The following day, and when it was over, Emma Lake's Circus had been put out of business. Before the circus outfit succeeded in packing up and leaving the grounds and making a start for Missouri there had been a number of personal encounters where rings were formed around the contestants, who slugged one another to the best of their ability until one went down and was "knocked out." At this crisis the top contestant was pulled off by the boots by applauding spectators, usually bringing up handfuls of money and hair with him. As daylight approached the circus caravan made a start for Missouri, but was overtaken by the enemy in the vicinity of the Wyandotte, where another desperate conflict took place. The attacking party brought axes with them, and running along the moving wagons chopped the spokes out of the wheels. As these wagons were abandoned by the fleeing circus company the discarded articles were taken on the bridge and thrown into the Wyandotte which happened to be bank full at the time. Miles below they floated out on the lowlands, where they remained for twenty-five years or more, objects of curiosity. Further along the attacking party discovered the last remnant of the circus and burned the wares out from under it, the circus starting to throw away harness and equipment and escaping on horseback. Madame Lake, who was a lady of resources, was far in advance in her carriage, drawn by four white horses. There was nothing in the way of business around Luray speedy enough to overtake her although a few years later D. E. Weston bought racing stock there that lowered the time made by Ten Broeck and Mollie Quarters in the great race at Lexington, when the white state of Kentucky went broke. While driving along the Luray and Memphis road two years ago we noted an old wagon wheel and hub hidden in the weeds in a fence corner near the old John Walton farm. It was the last surviving relic of Madame Emma Lake's Circus—a mute witness of wild life in Missouri before the days of railroad and automobile. A famous border character, "Wild Bill," was an ardent lover of Madame Emma Lake and had left the circus only at Alexandria, going on a boat to St. Louis. Less than a year afterward Wild Bill killed the entire McCandless gang of ten desperadoes in a hand-to-hand fight at a stage station in Western Kansas. Bill would rather fight than eat. Whenever he was in doubt whether to fight or not, like Lord Nelson, he always fought. Often when thought reverts to the incident we have wondered what would have happened if Bill had been at Luray that night.

101 CLOSES OCTOBER 21.

New York, Sept. 23 (Special to The Billboard).—Miller Brothers & Arlington's 101 Ranch Wild West Show closes its season at El Reno, Okla., October 21. The stock will be shipped to Bliss, Okla. Where the equipment is to be wintered remains to be decided by the show's owners. There is a probability that Oklahoma will be selected in favor of New Jersey, where the show wintered last season.

CIRCUS GOSSIP.

Reports from W. A. Dickey's Circle D Ranch Wild West Show indicate that that show was the stellar attraction at the Toronto Exhibition. A roster of the outfit follows: W. A. Dickey, manager; Johnnie Mullens, chief of cowboys, rope and top bronc scratcher; Pat Long, steer wrestler; Chuck Hass, trick and fancy rope juggler; Cliff Markham, Bob Bickel, high-pockets Campbell, Fred Cox, Dutch Wagner, Rusty Rutherford and Oliver Herron, bronc scratchers; Rattle Snake Charley, Mexican Ben, Joe Davis and Jim Rainey, steer riders; Dolly Mullens, chief of cowgirls, trick and fancy rider; Lilla Long, Myrtle Cox, Edie Frazier, riders and ropers; sixteen Sioux Indians, under Chief Keeps the Mountain; a twelve-piece cowboy band, under the leadership of Frank Wallace.

At Knoxville, Ia., September 15, three baby tigers made their appearance with Gollmar Bros.' Shows. The usual precautions were taken. The den was darkened and removed to a quiet part of the menagerie. A little before noon a strange noise was heard coming from the cage. Emory Styles, boss animal man, and several assistants hurried to the scene. When the cage was opened, it was found that the unnatural mother had devoured two of her offspring and was about to eat the third. One paw rested on the body of the remaining tiger, while with the other she fought the iron rods which the men quickly shoved through the bars to prevent the enraged beast from carrying out her intentions. During the excitement the tigress released her hold on the young one and the latter was drawn from the cage by means of an iron scraper. Its back was broken and it lived only a few minutes. This same female tiger has given birth to several cubs before but has never harmed them until this time.

Local No. 42, I. A. B. P. & B., of Dallas, Tex., won the second prize of $30 in gold in the Labor Day parade this year. They had a handsomely decorated Packard automobile truck with two eight-sheet boards and two three-sheet boards, posting bills for the different theatres along the line of march. Those in line included Claude R. Hamilton, R. F. Hayes, Leonard Jones, S. G. Block, Gus Cohen, J. Stovall, Tom Henderson, Gene Verschoyle, Hartheir many friends and neighbors, while the show folks enjoyed the hospitality of the townspeople.

The Barteno Wild Animal Show was struck by a cyclone at Cadillac, Mich., on the night of September 11, tripping every piece of canvas from every rope on the big top. A side wall pole struck and killed a big baboon. The damage is estimated at $150. A new top has been ordered, and in the meantime the performance will take place under the side wall.

Julie Pearce left the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows at Evansville, Ind., Wednesday August 23, going from there direct to his home in Denver, and after spending three weeks at home, left for Chicago, where he takes the management of the Western Isle of Spice Company, opening in Chicago, Sunday, September 24.

Wm. Miller, who has managed the Downie & Wheeler sideshow all summer, severed his connection with the show at Easton, Md. He will put his own show on the road, a vaudeville company under canvas. Wm. Griner succeeds Miller as manager of the annex.

Miss Ada Somnerville, with the California Frank Show, who was injured when her horse fell on her a few days ago, is back in the ring again with a badly bruised arm, which makes it very hard to handle her dancing horse, DeArlo.

MARY CONNERS.

The above is a good likeness of Miss Connors as she appears upon her favorite riding horse. Though young in years, she has already gained considerable prominence as a principal and jockey rider, and will doubtless soon be reckoned among the most prominent of the feminine stars of the equestrian world. Unusually beautiful, active and graceful, as well as a tasty dresser, the riding numbers of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows are fortunate in having her as one of the principal equestriennes. Mr. George Connors, her husband, is at present the equestrian director of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows, and both have been re-engaged for next season.

ry Black, W. B. Dicker, Roy Gronsky, Gene Verschoyle left as agent the Anslet & Matthews Show, under canvas; Cliff Guy and Harry Paige have the plant wagon; Leonard Jones is agent for the Majestic, a vaudeville house; and R. F. Hayes has the Orpheum, a stock theatre. Tom Henderson has the Opera House.

Following the evening performance of the Forepaugh-Sells Bros.' Circus at Mankato, Minn., September 6, Messrs. Stone and Sizemore of the Unique Theatre entertained twelve of the performers, among whom was Billy Flatiron, the producing clown, with the other clowns and comedians. During the party each one gave a short specialty as well as songs and dances, and it was an evening that will always be remembered. Those present were Raymond Worth, Ed Fitzpatrick, Chas. Bray, Phil Keeler, O. E. Ogden, Earl Crawford, Walter Scott, Sam K. Otto, Frank Pike, Lou Herman, Ed Sully, Harry Bayfield, Arthur L. Sizemore, pianist; I. L. Stone, manager Wonderland Theatre; Ira Mantzke, manager Unique Theatre.

At Bellingham, Wash., September 9, while transferring a lion cage belonging to Backman's Animal Show from the lot to the train, the team became frightened and ran away. The cage was overturned and Leo, a fine specimen of the African lion, escaped, attacking and killing a horse being driven along the road. Mr. Backman, with his principal trainer, Paul Johannig, and assistants, were soon upon the scene. The beast was captured and brought back to the show lot in a shifting den and there transferred to another cage.

The No. 1 brigade of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows includes: R. D. Leister, mgr., with following assistants, O. Abrams, H. Leslie, R. H. Lindsay, Wm. H. Smith, Jack Broad, John Wingo, Spokane Smith, Fred Jackson and L. Girard. The brigade is doing fine work in the Lone Star State. A few records of country routes follow: R. H. Lindsay, 58 miles, 950 sheets; O. Abraham, 56 miles, 1130 sheets; Spokane Smith, 94 miles (two days), 1861 sheets; Wm. Smith, 35 miles, 1012 sheets.

The return engagement of the Downie & Wheeler Shows to Oxford, Pa., winter-quarters of the show, proved highly successful, showing to packed houses both afternoon and evening. Oxford is the home of Mr. Wheeler and family and they were kept busy shaking hands with Johnny McCracken and Tom Henderson are the steer throwers with the Frank Show; Walter Robins, Tom Henderson, Charlie Mulhall, Hee-Lo-Gray, Jose Gonzalis and Yosemite Jack, are some of the broncho riders.

W. H. Murphy, the old time showman, was a Billboard caller September 12, en route to Nashville, Tenn., where he joined William Dwire, formerly of the Ringling Show, who now has a show of his own.

Earl Burgess is legal adjuster, Lee Williams, secretary and treasurer, Chas. McCurren superintendent, James Orr twenty-four-hour man, James Orr Jr. assistant treasurer, with California Frank's Wild West.

Mystya, of the circus and vaudeville team, Archie Royer and Mystya, is now leading lady in Capt. Geo. Street's Wild West Dramatic Company, playing theatres in London, England, and the provinces.

In making the run from Bellingham, Wash., to Salem, Ore., a fatcat belonging to Backman's Animal Show, carrying canvas, pole and seat wagon, was wrecked, but fortunately no one was injured.

The California Frank Shows played to big business all last week at the New York State Fair. This show expects to close at Augusta, Ga., and will winter at the same place.

Mexican Jose Gonzalis, with the California Frank Show, is still wearing his arm in a cast, which injury he received in the bucking horse act while showing Philadelphia.

Col. C. F. Hanley (California Frank) got his leg caught between an automobile and a brick wall, painfully bruising same. He is still under the doctor's care.

Grayson, the comedy sensation and principal clown, late of the Famous Robinson Shows, joined the M. L. Clark & Sons' Show at Farmington, Mo.

Charlie Mulhall, who recently had a badly sprained ankle, is riding the pony express with the California Frank Show again, although still limping.

Buster Brown, who shot one finger partially off, is still on the hospital list of the California Frank Show, not being able to use his hand. D. P. White, special agent for the Frank A. Robbins' Shows, was the guest of the Downie & Wheeler Shows at Chestertown, Md.

Sam Cross, ammunition man of the Frank Show, is the happy father of a baby boy six weeks old. Wife and child are in Augusta, Ga.

Mamie Frauels is doing a record breaking shooting act and seldom misses a shot. She is with California Frank's Wild West.

M. L. Clark & Sons' Shows have added a new dining tent, also a new dressing top. The show will stay out until Christmas.

Chas. LaComa of the LaComa Trio of acrobats with M. L. Clark & Sons' Show, was married at New Madrid, Mo.

At New Madrid, Mo., M. L. Clark & Sons' Show was visited by "Pop" Reese, at one time a famous acrobat.

Walter Sidley, the sideshow manager with the California Frank Show, purchased a new automobile.

W. P. English has been re-engaged as bandmaster of the Sells-Floto Circus for the season of 1912.

Copeland and Wetzel, aerial comedy bar act, joined the Downie & Wheeler Shows at Oxford, Pa.

Will Rogers, the roper, visited the California Frank Show in Syracuse, N. Y., last week.

Mexican Jose is chief of the cowboys and well liked by all.

I. A. B. P. & B. OF A. NOTES.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 20 (Special to The Billboard).—Fay Hardwell, foreman of the show, was the real busy man Fair Week, with all the boards billed, and Fay was crowded for space. Our business agent Harley White, has returned after a five days' visit to his childhood playground, in the wilds of Wisconsin.

Word reaches billposter's headquarters that Ed L. Jones, Foley's best advertising agent, will not come West this winter, but will be in New York State for at least one year. Eddie missed the camp this summer, but he says he'll be the first on the grounds next summer.

Lillie Clark, advertising agent for the Palace Theatre, now has two lithographers, Joe Schafer and Frank Holmes, and by the looks of things, the town is well billed.

Word comes from Nick Pettit that he intends to winter in Minneapolis, and we are glad to have him, as it will be remembered Pettit was the first president of Local 10.

Bob Edwood reached home after an unsatisfactory season with the Fourpaw Sella Show, and is now on the center wagon. Bob can be seen on a First Avenue South car every other evening, as the future Mrs. Bob lives out that way.

Andy Daff, helper on the midway route, intends to quit the billposting business and start a sign shop of his own. Daff is learning to letter and after lettering eighteen boards, says, "Time for a sign shop."

Fred Riley, now working on Carr's wagon has bought a lot near Fay's place, and we expect to see some building going on around Fay's corner.

Charles Duffy has left Minneapolis, and is doing the sniping at the St. Paul shops. Duffy was always considered the best sniper in the Twin Cities.

Bill Lounsbarger and Carl Munson are expected in at any time now.

ZACH LUCKENS, Treasurer, Care Schubert Theatre.

While Wheeling Park at Wheeling, W. Va., will be operated as long as the weather will permit, the vaudeville shows were discontinued September 16.

$1500.00 MADE IN ONE MONTH WITH A 'LONG' POPCORN CRISPETTE MACHINE

You might just as well make as much J. A. M. Maryland took in $250.00 in one day. Every nickel brought almost 4 cents profit. Best season just at hand. You can make lots of money this Fall at County and Street Fairs, Parks, Amusement Halls, Circuses, etc. Or, stay in your own town—rent a small store—a window—where the people will pass—set up your machine—sell Crispettes—make big money. Crispettes are fine—different in shape, taste and quality. Everybody young and old—craves them. Sell for 5c a package—popular price—easy to get money. Think of fortunes made in two cent propositions—5c and the stores—moving picture—street cars—easy money—pouring into the dollars—then figure what you can do. Write me today. Get particulars—reports from others. Act upon the prompting you have—now—address

MOVING PICTURE PARADISE

Here, held captive, are the imaginations of master minds—here are the life reproductions of historians, the stories that will still enthral during years to come—the tales of Knight and Lady, of blunt business men, and of the quaint characters of travel and adventure. They amuse, delight, interest and instruct you.

The privilege to roam the fields of history, biography, religion and fiction in whatever direction individual bent suggests, satisfying the taste of the most exacting.

The Moving Picture Manufacturers have, through the aid of the Sales Company and the co-operation with one another, established a sale that is greater in its proportions, more far-reaching in its economical benefits, more remarkable in scope, in value and in importance than has ever been attempted since Moving Picture films have been made and sold.

The utmost care is used by our various Manufacturers in selecting scenarios and plots. Thousands are carefully examined by the film producers in their efforts to cull only the best.

Write us now if you wish to exhibit in your theatre a program that will please and interest and be appreciated by both old and young, and we will refer you to the nearest buying exchange in your vicinity.

GREAT NORTHERNS.

CAPTIVE IN HIS OWN NET (Drama, released Sept. 23; length 1,000 feet).—A farmer's daughter has two admirers, one a farm laborer employed by her father and the other a young neighbor farmer of good financial standing.

father consents, but the girl swoons for the rejected, preferring the love of the laborer. The rejected suitor, attempting revenge, accidentally sets fire to the farmer's barn, and then tries to throw suspicion on the farmer, but two tramps have seen him enter the structure, and point him out as the real culprit.

POWERS.

LOST IN A HOTEL (Comedy, released Sept. 23; length 1,000 feet).—A stage-struck young man has joined a theatrical company. In his kitchen she visits the room of one of the other show girls, and after that night, starts back to her with her.

her way. She gets in her room every night, but the hotel except her care, and her maid brings her the furniture she needs. She decides that the "road" is no place for her, and goes to her home and mother. On the same night is Victor Nightmare.

AN OLD NIGHTMARE (Comedy, length 1,000 feet).—A group of boys are led by a girl, Tommy and his chum steal a pig from one of the other boys, and run away. The owners are worried after their run, and find asleep. The pig causes Tommy to dream that he robbed a bird's nest. Walking through a field, Tommy is confronted by a sparrow. His own size, accused of robbery, arrested and locked in a wire cage. He is tried by the birds of the forest and sentenced to die. Just as the axe is about to descend, Tommy wakes up. His chum wakes too, and proposes that they rob a bird's nest, but not for Tommy.

RED STAR'S HONOR (Drama; released Sept. 23; length 1,000 feet).—Red Star, an Indian boy, and Jim Johnston, a cow puncher, are fast friends. A half-breed kills his employer from ambush and Red Star is accused of the crime. Johnston believes Red Star is innocent, and intercedes for him. He pleads with his companions to allow the redskin an hour's leave to go and bid his squaw good-bye. The cowboy agrees with the understanding that if he does not return, Johnston shall expiate the crime with his own life. On the way to his tepee, Red Star is waylaid by the half-breed, who wants to hold the Indian until the cowboy is hanged. An Indian boy who witnessed the murder frustrates him by informing Red Star's squaw of things. They release Red Star and proceed to the scene of the intended hanging, where the boy tells of witnessing the crime. Red Star is exonerated, and all hands join in a search for the guilty one, who is made to dance at the end of a rope.

CHAMPION.

BARBARA FLETCHER (Drama; released Sept. 23; length 1,000 feet).—George Mason, whose mother was a Fletchere, was an ardent Unionist, but his brother William was strong for secession. Virginia's people loved George, but her secessionists were opposed to his. This gave William a feeling with her that he strove to impart to Wood

...the General Jackson was marching North, with at the head of his army. In the town of Frederick, Md., there was no protest against the moderate invasion, but stay, there was one, a sorry flag floating from a modest brick building. A score of muskets held forth, and the stars and stripes hang by a cord from the shattered flag pole. The window is raised, showing an aged, wrinkled face, and a pair of faded hands grasp the flag. Then the well-remembered words: "Should you mind, this old gray head, but spare your country's flag!" And Jackson's words as the muskets leap to the shoulders of the gray coats: "Attention! Who touches a hair of you gray head, dies the death of a dog!" And Barbara Fletcher belonged to history. This glorious act desecrated Virginia as to her course, and her fair head found a resting place on the bosom of George Mason. AS THINGS USED TO BE (Drama; released Oct. 4; length 950 feet).—Harry Martin loves the sister of Tom Hanson, a drunken Western gambler, and tries to reform him. Tom hates Harry, and partly succeeds in poisoning his sister's mind against him by throwing suspicion on him as a thief. In spite of this Harry saves Tom's life, and in remorse Tom confesses the trick he had played on Harry. The gambler sees the goodness of men in Harry, and changes his life for the better, to the satisfaction of the old folks, and Harry and his sweetheart find true bliss once more.

NOTICE! I herewith announce the installation of a Free Employment Bureau in the Laemmle Film Service offices. No charge will be made for the employment of Managers, Operators, Pianists, Singers, Ticket-takers, etc. The very highest references are required and the benefit of the entire Laemmle organization is now at your command, either in getting help or work. Write or call, tell what you want and let us do the rest, with our compliments.

NOTICE! If you desire to sell, let, purchase, or lease a theatre or site in any part of the United States or Canada, get in touch with any of the Laemmle Film Service offices at once. We shall be glad to be of assistance and will make no charge for services.

NOTICE! If you are not satisfied with independent films, it is because you are not getting the right sort of service. Why not hook up with the biggest and best film renter in the world? It doesn't cost you any more and it brings you the kind of program you ought to have. This very day is the best day to take your step toward prosperity.

From the Patrons View Point What Causes People to continually patronize one Picture Theatre in preference to another? Of course, location, appearances, films, etc. have a great deal to do with it, but quality of the picture is what builds up a steady patronage that makes the business profitable. This depends largely on your light and if you are using any other device than a FORT WAYNE COMPENSARC to step down your current you are not getting best results. With our machine you can produce a clear, white, steady light that won't worry your "house" by continuous flickering and will surprise you with the difference it makes with the films. It is the only device that can be changed instantly to any of the three intensities without breaking the circuit between adjustments. But this is not all. We will guarantee that our Compensarc Will Cut 65% from Your Light Bill and we'll send you one on 30 days' free trial to prove it. We have a little 22 page booklet that explains all the reasons why. If you want a better light at 1/3 your present cost, send for it today. It's free. FT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS Of General Electric Company, 1401 Broadway, Ft. Wayne, Ind.

THE GRAIN OF DUST.

title, after leaving her husband inevitably, returns to him inexplicably, so depriving the play of a theme which would seem to be a reason for existence. As is surmised by Mr. E. M. Holland, the genial ransomer of the piece, she left him because she loved him, and by the same course of explanation, returned to him because she loved him not.

Amy Leslie in The News—"Mr. Hackett seems to be a typical actor for the Blackstone, and his debut there last night in The Grain of Dust was attended by the likeliest dutter illustrated at that beautiful theatre since its opening.

"Mr. Hackett is, moreover, equipped with a play which has singular appeal and the most brilliant opportunity for Mr. Hackett's happy manner since he decorated the Hope explosion. It would have been, perhaps, a soothing potion to that notable romancer, David Graham Phillips, to know what an interesting play has been made of his novel, and in Louis Evan Shipman's dramatization of the gentlest pruning knife, the most generous classification has been bestowed upon the Phillips invention. Indeed, Mr. Shipman's play, though eloquently commercial, carries the auditor where the novel reader could not go with Mr. Phillips. For by adroit and concise dialogue, close-knit situations, cautious and exact balance of emotional emotions, much atmosphere and character guidance and obscure in the novel, but upon the surface and penetrate the depths of the story."

Ashton Stevens in the Examiner—"Louis Evan Shipman's dramatization of David Graham Phillips' novel, A Grain of Dust, is in the true sense of the phrase a big popular success, such an one as the players must have felt and foretold. It is a straightaway dramatic play, and it gives to the actor the stuff he loves to put between his teeth (as Mr. Pinero would say, and has said).

"I predict for The Grain of Dust as profitable a success as that of Mr. Klein's The Gamblers—even though The Grain of Dust is the better play."

O. L. Hall in the Journal—"The play is not a momentous document, nor is it offered as such, but it tells its story, and its characters, with one striking exception, are rather definitely set forth. The only time within memory when Hackett has acted so well was when he brought out Suro's John Gladys's Honour. He is looking very well, thank you, and the reception his play had last night was equal to a prediction that he will be able this season to give his attention mostly to the more popular centers."

James O'Donnell Bennett in the Record-Herald—"James K. Hackett as the infatuated young lawyer gave an impersonation earnest and large in scope, and one that was not only manly in execution. The merit of his acting was vigor; the fault was an oppressive pomposity.

"Those honored veterans, E. M. Holland and Frank Barbeck—or honored experts, if they prefer that way of putting it—gave frequent lessons in comedy and drama that were not on most of their associates. Mr. Holland as a whimsical lawyer in middle life, who deprecates the throat-choking tactics of his brethren of the law, was extremely deft, natural and humorous. He looked under 50, and so complete was the illusion that the spectators did not know him at his first entrance.

"Vaughan Trevor was another artist whose principal mission was to indicate that the art of acting still lives as an art, while the efforts of Miss Moran and Miss Neff indicated that it is more or less in its infancy."

Eric Delamarier in Inter Ocean—"As novels of these mysterious 'manner powers' and impressive denizens of 'society' sell into the dozen headline called 'editions,' so is it probable that this new piece will endure like the Charles Dana Gibson illustrations which it resembles. It has language—large, luscious language, with a roll and a ponderous if puzzling significance—and its situations resound with fervor.

"Mr. Hackett has a splendid company in his support. Following closely the lines indicated in the novel, he visualizes the hero as a mighty personality. He is gloriously tender with the girl, polite but stern with his enemies, and altogether demigodlike at all times, a bedfellow and who knows how to wear dress clothes and converse with a butler."

THE LADIES' LION.

past. The fussy lieutenant causes the excitement through his excessive fondness for she-society, comes to grief himself, and accidentally sets everything right in the last chapter."

"The star, Percy Hammond of the Tribune remarks: "One is reminded, however, that the player is the thing, and Mr. De Angelis produced, if laughter is good evidence, the equivalent of the $2 tariff for each orchestra chair. He wrote the play, and, as is customary in such cases, he was kind to himself, leaving only the crumbs for the hungry Lazaruses of his cast. In The Ladies' Lion he is an amorous seaman, full of vanity over his romantic conquests, and with a habit, occasionally nasty, of kissing and talking and singing about kissing. He dances frequently with his funny legs and he has topical songs which discuss in frivolous rhyme all the usual subjects from triplets to trusts. The duello—that never-falling source of merriment in comedy with music—is employed industriously by Mr. De Angelis twice in the course of the play. Once, after he has committed some grave misdemeanor or other against the sentimental part of the piece, he is most comely when called to account by the disturbed lover. For five funny minutes he is unable to draw his sword from its scabbard, and, as his opponents fall and strike at him, he employs his facility of facial expression rather amusingly. At least, those present regarded it so, and the incident served to bring down the curtain on quite a demonstration.

Amy Leslie in the News is in the main commendatory. "Its old-time atmosphere is not especially in the look or the melodies, but in the style adopted both by the star and the management in its presentation. "Nothing novel, nothing surprising, nothing either taken or invented, enters in contact of The Ladies' Lion, and the result is rather agreeable, even if reminiscent. Several of the ensembles show the composer, W. T. Francis, in a pleasantly pretentious attitude of progressiveness, but the same old ring around a new management of the ensembles leaves the impression of ordinary quality. Nothing could squelch the hatting solemnity of De Angells' splendid fun. It was a treat to enjoy his energy and watch his polish and technical strokes. He has never been more amusing and his venture will be a hit before it leaves the Illinois. It needs little pruning and only a complete rubbing up and greasing the pieces."

Frederic Hatton of the Evening Post says of the score: "The score provided by Mr. Francis is discreet and pleasing, recalling those of some of the insular musical comedies which are brought from London for our improvement by Charles Frohman. It has solos, duets, trios and counter-part ensembles in the fashion of our comic opera friends of the Gilbert and Sullivan period. And until its later act The Ladies' Lion recalls some of those worthy pieces. Then the spirit of the piece is that which Mr. Lederer has familiarized to us as French vaudeville."

Of the support Ashton Stevens of the Examiner remarks: "Miss Martin was somewhat of a miniature Maxine Elliott in appearance—which should not offend any lady on the stage, not even Miss Elliott herself, and Miss Martin sings sweetly a song about 'I'm an Married' which is as far from the When We Are Married in The Belle of New York as The Ladies' Lion is from Pinaflore, and she sang a letter one whose title sounds as though it might be Ding Dong."

"Miss Whitford is thinner by several ounces than when last the footlights came between us; she looks not unlike a Ziegfeld edition of Miss Elliot Barrymore, and in her speaking voice are tones not unlike that distinguished artist's. Even a reminder of Miss Barrymore is something for which to be grateful. But just now Miss Whitford will serve her show self better by forgetting Miss Barrymore and every other body and remembering her lines.

"Hubert Wilke is in the cast, principally to round us off our youth."

Jack Lait of the American adds his tribute to the cast, as follows: "There is not a comic opera chorus. A dozen handsome women of the showgirl type serve as a chorus and as incidental players. They are distinguished more for their clothes and the grace with which they wear them than for their voices."

"Frank Rushworth as the romantic hero greases the part and Miss Florence Martin lips opposite him in fetching manner. Her love scenes are as colorless as those of an Ingoume might be in real life. Miss Annabelle Whitford reveals a voice that even her friends never before gave her credit for, and when she learns her lines will fit comfortably into her part."

PRIEUR OPTIMISTIC.

there is a cry for American films in England, while American comedy and American drama seem too deep for the English mind, so that the exhibitor in selecting his "American films," which he feels so necessary to his program, is left none but the cowboy to choose from. Then, with the superabundance of productions of this type and the simple, open plot connected with nearly every one of these, the English exhibitor selects many of them both by the process of elimination and because of his knowledge of the English mind, and he is particularly about hidden meanings or slightly covered ones.

Thus, says Mr. Prieur, the European manufacturer must meet this varied lot of demands and still sell his film. Few firms can afford to manufacture different films for different countries and few can afford to follow so many different lines of production as demanded by the several tastes. The Lum film has attempted several plans to create an international film. One plan has been to produce special films from time to time, each aimed at the taste of some special country. The policy of "a good film once in a while" is an old one in the show business, and while attended with disadvantages it is not lacking in advantages. It is, in fact, it seems a better plan than to produce each time a film which will at once please all the peoples to whom it must be shown. This latter plan, will never do while there are so many films on the market and the exhibitor has his choice of so many. With so many films especially suited to the individual tastes, "the film for all nations" will be cast aside as mediocre.

The American manufacturer entering Europe must thus gauge his product to thus meet these sundry demands. We must also meet the somewhat ostentatious opposition to American goods which the European is raising. The European manufacturer finds it hard to understand the closed condition of the American market, so giving up the puzzle, and only considering that it is closed, he does not look with much favor upon the growing demand for American goods within the portals of his own country and in most of the countries surrounding him and in his continent.

That there are present being made and will in the future be made many changes is perfectly evident to Mr. Prieur. He thinks the more advanced of European manufacturers are studying the problems confronting them and he believes an early solution of some important ones will be the only thing to check the steadily increasing flow of films from America to Europe. The American, he says, will not study anything. Should he by chance see an opportunity, he will act a thousand times more quickly than the European, and he attributes the large sale of American films to progressive business methods and luck rather than to any carefully planned campaign to suit the European taste or tastes.

Mr. Prieur has little faith in the long film. He agrees it will attract a few but he sees its repellent powers. A long film must be either of a worthy theme and then necessarily a serious one or else it must be a series of light and disconnected and lack of variety from which freedom is now suffering so seriously. The thousand-foot subject, in his opinion, will be the rule for some years to come, and while the adventurous manufacturer will continue from time to time to take advantage of the extraordinary offering with a drawing card, the business man as a whole will be permit of much of the long reel stuff if it will maintain its popularity as a light and wholesome amusement.

"PERFECTO" THE IMPROVED OUTFIT

PRODUCES THE MOST POWERFUL LIGHT FOR LESS MONEY.

"The Perfecto"

On account of a special generating process, gives you a greater gas pressure, thereby producing the most powerful light at a cost less than that necessitated by other light outfits. Because of its simplicity in operating and weighing only 15 pounds it should appeal to every exhibitor. The "Perfecto" stands 30 inches high, and being non-explosive, can at all times be handled easily and with perfect safety.

PRICE, Complete with Burner, $25. Bear in mind that with the "Perfecto" you produce the most powerful light at the least possible cost.

Write for further particulars, or we will ship C. O. D. upon receipt of deposit. CAPITAL MERCHANDISE CO., 440 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

TWO NOTABLE FILMS.

self, and can, if necessary, be exhibited as a complete story. The first is David Copperfield's younger life; the second the story of Steerforth, and the third, The Loves of David Copperfield. The three films will be released on three consecutive Tuesdays, so that any exhibitor using but one Thanhouser film per week will be sure to get the entire production without interruption.

David Copperfield is, of course, played by three different people, but each actor carries the part well. David is not the central figure, however, as the book is not so much concerned with what David did as what he saw. The director has noticed this and has laid much emphasis upon the characters surrounding David, thus Mowber, while a humorous character is one of the most interesting in the cast. Little Emily attracts more attention perhaps than any other single player for her size and manner provoke sympathy throughout the play both when played by the Thanhouser Kid in the first scenes and by an older actress later.

Next to Emily and Mowber, Ullah Hoop is perhaps the most interesting personage both for his make up and splendid acting. Murdstone, David's foster father, has created himself a convincing part, and despite the disagreeable scene in which he encounters Aunt Betsy and her brood, he gains the sympathy of the audience. While we did not see Aunt Betsy drive the donkeys off the lawn, we saw the lawn and Aunt Betsy in it. Her adoption of David, while seeming only a very few feet of film, is a graceful accomplishment. Her surprise is excellently expressed when David appears ragged and tattered before her eyes, while her indignation at Murdstone's attempt to take David away is nicely handled. She succeeds in creating good humor in this scene without spoiling the dramatic effect which has been created shortly previous.

Don might have been improved, for she seems to be an almost sensible girl instead of the little doll Dickens has created her. She is pretty, however, and one can find no fault with David when he becomes infatuated with her. Perhaps her part only lacks naturalness in the light of the splendid character of the other parts, and surely she has a hard part to play. In the hands of the director of the company the splendid play is made to live over again, each person alive before the eyes and yet of that seemingly unchangeable character as Dickens has created each. The film is the prize of the winter season so far as the season has progressed, and sets a pace which will be hard to follow by large productions coming later.

the Kalem Company has, while the story has not, presented the real and original scenes where the events were supposed to have occurred and probably did occur.

Tommy Mann's cottage has been reproduced in a splendid artistic fashion from photographs and measurements of the original cottage as it stands today. The furniture in this and many other scenes is the identical stuff supposed to have been used by the participants in the real tale and borrowed from the owners to be used in the picture. Anne Chute's castle is likewise reproduced in structure and the furniture and contents taken from the real castle and moved to the studio for the purpose of staging the scenes occurring in one of the rooms. The Colleen Bawn rock and Myles na Coppaleen's still are two of the scenes in the picture staged in the real rock and still as they are preserved today.

Some very splendid character work is done by many of the actors, Sidney Olcott as Danny Mann, Henry Gardner as The Colleen Bawn, and Jack Clark as Myles, deserve special mention, for truly their work could not have been done better. Of the others much in general might be said, but to say that they take their places well and strongly back up the principals describes their work briefly and gives them just credit.

Like a good book, the film reads well. It has given a glimpse into Irish life, which no book could have given, and aside from any interest attached to the thread of plot the production is interesting. This realistic view is necessary to the success of the story, and it is a feature by itself. With the actual scenes of the legend to work with and with enough film to properly carry out the minor details of the plot, this glimpse of Irish life is given excellent opportunity to present itself.

THE DIAMOND DRYER.

Chicago, September 23 (Special to The Billboard). That the International Metal & Ferrotype Co. of Chicago have put something on the market in their Diamond Dryer and Polisher that is a boon to the minute photo men, is evidenced by the many congratulatory letters they are receiving daily.

The many wonders that this little device works towards making a picture clearer and more substantial are almost unbelievable. It is so constructed that it can be instantly attached to any camera and makes the drying of the plates a matter of a few moments. Its metal cost is but a trifle and its cost of maintenance is a matter not to be counted when one sees the wonderful results which are obtained by its use. The International people claim a glossy finish can be obtained on any grade of plate and that after being put through their "diamond process" the plate will neither stick nor fade.

CHICAGO FILM NOTES.

four of this state has made him familiar with the ground which he has to work, making it evident that his efforts will be fruitful of the best results.

Mr. Phil Lewis, who for the past few years has been associated with the Omaha office of the Chicago Film Exchange, is now in Chicago, and is again associated with the Chicago branch of this concern. Mr. Harry Lewis, his father, also returned with him. Mr. Harry Lewis while in the West brought to a close the deal which transferred the Co-operative Film Service to the William H. Swanson interests.

Mr. W. R. Rothacker, general manager of the Industrial Moving Picture Company, departed for the East on last Saturday to close several large advertising deals. Mr. Rothacker's progress in the industrial film business has been marvelous and it is due to his efforts that this branch of the business is becoming recognized as the twentieth century method of advertising.

KALEM SHOWS FEATURE.

The Kalem Company has arranged to give a series of private exhibitions of The Colleen Bawn film for exhibitors only in the following cities: Buffalo, N. Y., at the Vendome Theatre, September 25, at 10:30 a. m.; Cleveland, O., at the Hippodrome Theatre, September 26, 10:30 a. m.; Chicago, Ill., at the Theatreum Theatre, September 27, 9 a. m.; Kansas City, Mo., Yale Theatre, September 28, at 10 a. m.; St. Louis, Mo., Grand Central Theatre, September 29, 10 a. m.; Pittsburg, Pa., Arcade Theatre, September 30, 10:30 a. m.; Boston, Mass., Savoy Theatre, October 3, 10:30 a. m.; Philadelphia, Pa., Palace Theatre, October 4, 9:30 a. m. These exhibits have been arranged in order to acquaint moving picture circles with the feature productions that the Kalem Co. has decided to make part of their policy from the present on.

MOTION PICTURE NOTES.

After a four months' stay in Europe, Carl Laemmle, president of the I. M. P. Company, writes from Berlin, Germany, that he will return to America about October 15. During Mr. Laemmle's stay abroad he has investigated the film business all over the continent and is very enthusiastic as to the future conditions. He has personally visited the Imp representatives and writes that Imp films are eagerly sought and are giving satisfaction to exchange men and exhibitors. Mr. Laemmle writes that he will return home bringing with him many new and novel ideas for the picture and expects to spring something of a surprise in moving picture-dom. He is very much improved in health, having spent some time at Carlsbad at the famous baths, and will return eager to enter the busy career of business which has brought him success in the manufacture of films. He is very enthusiastic as to the future for the Independent output.

During the absence of Bertram Adler from the Thanhouser Company from which place he was removed to the hospital two weeks hence, a victim of typhoid, Mr. H. Z. Levine has temporarily assumed his responsibilities. Leo J. Rubinstein was accomplishing temporarily the work of Mr. Adler until last week, when his other duties necessitated his departure from the Thanhouser forces.

Peter McCort, the theatrical agent of Denver, Colo., and handler of the K. & E. Bookings, who will in all probabilities control the new theatre now being erected, put pictures in the Tabor Opera House last summer has expressed himself so pleased at the profitable result that he is thinking quite seriously of installing moving pictures at this same house at various intervals throughout the coming season.

Charles Simpson, publicity man for the Nestor Company, is making his home at Bayonne, N. J., in order to be near the new Nestor office.

A motion picture house will soon be opened at Fulton, W. Va., a suburb of Wheeling, W. Va., by Joseph Thomas.

Ben P. Simberg of the Evening Mail and Film Reports is now with the Rex Company.

VAUDEVILLE CHATTER.

Impress Theatre, which has not been doing a wonderful business, had big houses last week when one of the best shows that has been presented for the Sullivan-Conditine Circuit appeared there. On Wednesday night of last week the house was sold out at both shows.

S. Hatch, manager of the Linden, has arranged the lease of a property directly across the street and will build a theatre with 2,200 seating capacity and will play pictures at the Linden.

Alan Bornstein, professional manager of the Henry Von Tilzer Music Pub. Co., returned to Chicago last week after five months in New York. He put over about a dozen big hits and claims that he will do the same thing this season.

Charles Colby of the J. C. Matthews Co. dropped into the Parkway one night last week as Fred Sahara of the Sabaran, was walking through the auditorium picking out objects for Mrs. Sahara to identify. Sahara reached over and touched Colby and asked: "Where did you last play on the bill with this gentleman?" "At the Tivoli, in London ten years ago," came the reply, which Mr. Colby vows is correct.

Sara Brin recently appeared at the Lawndale with a degree of success which has brought her in for many compliments on the part of the theatrical colony. Miss Brin is an employee of the Hopkins Lyric Circuit and fills club engagements at night.

Charles A. Naylor of Joplin, Mo., a nephew of Charles E. Hopkins, spent several days in Chicago last week.

LONDON LETTER.

For Barker, while the music throughout is appropriately sensuous and passion inspiring. At the first performance the prologue was spoken by Julia Neilson with her usual effectiveness. Unfortunately, somewhat of a gloom was cast by the serious illness of Fred Terry, who was to have played Mercutio and who has devoted months of hard work in preparing for the production in which he wanted to see his daughter's triumph. But he, no doubt, finds comfort in this disappointment from the fact that the production has caught the imagination of the public, and although we may criticize the playing of Miss Terry in many ways, the public is charmed by it and the play looks like going on for a long while to come.

To come down from the heights of Shakepeare to that of modern comedy we have had Charles Hawtrey appear in a part that not only suits him but commends itself to the on-lookers. It must be a long time since he appeared in the role of anything but an irresponsible liar or a reprehensible philanthropist—or both. In The Great Name, which he has adapted from the German—the first time he has done anything of the kind since he adapted The Private Secretary a quarter of a century ago—he is a very human and very lovable person, a successful composer of musical comedies, who at the crisis of another man's life does the latter a generous turn and has no reason to regret it.

John Harcourt is a successful composer of jangling melodies and the poet of the public, making fortunes with his golden, if trivial, notes, while Robert Brand, a musician who in talent and depth could "eat the head off Harcourt," can not get a hearing for his work. But there comes a time when Brand has a sympathy for which he can get a performance if only a great name is attached to it. Harcourt lends that name and under circumstances which make for magnanimity. Of course the sympathy is a success, the poor man is rendered famous and happy and everything ends happily with the marriage of almost everyone engaged in the production. The plot is a mere nothing, but the piece gives occasion for many individual clever character studies. The best of all is that of Isaac Maubard, the music publisher, played by Arthur Playfair. This is one of the funniest things seen on the stage here, for quite a number of years, James Hearn as Brand also has a fine part and holds the sympathies of the house while the neglected and hard-up genius tells what the opportunity means for him. Hawtrey in his new part of the good fellow does very well, and altogether the piece is one of those light comedies which keep the audience on good terms with itself throughout and provide it with a real after-dinner amusement.

The latest recruit to actor-managership is Robert Loraine, who lately has done more flying than acting. He has taken a lease of the Criterion Theatre and will open with a revival of Men and Women, himself playing in his old part of John Tanner. He also promises a revival of The Stooges to Cooper and intends to produce Orango de Bergerac. Although he has never before attempted it here and he says that if he repeats his American success he will be content. He ought to be well, for he is not only one of our most brilliant actors but he is also exceedingly popular personally.

The concert opened well here, although some of the newspapers stated it for all they were worth. A good company is playing it and they get all the fun out of it, putting any amount of vim and enthusiasm into their work. Henry Ainley the finest lover on the English stage today has a lot more opportunity for clever character work as Gabor Arany than he has had for some long time, and his immersion in the musical, grown-up child who plays the chief part in the farce is as near perfection as could be. The producers made equally good choices, too, when they picked Irene Vanbrugh for the despatch Miss Arany and Charles Bryan for the actor, and these three, well supported in the rest, make the piece rip from beginning to end.

One for Maunierstein! He has made the excellent discovery that aspiring composers and performers get little chance of seeing finished works on account of the prohibitive prices charged here for opera and has therefore arranged his intention of deriving his program material from the ranks of the music schools here. If they like to undertake this work they can see the show for nothing. The idea is undoubtedly a good one and seems to be catching on immensely.

Notes of the Ideal Amusement Co., under contract as follows: Ron Hasselman, manager; Henry Morgan, treasurer; Bert Miller, agent; Hal Cook, leader of band; Ed Dunham, canvasser; G. Zerber, property man; Tillie Clark, maid Miller, Kate Willson, Blanch Prescott, Paul Prescott, Henry Jones, Billie Wells, J. L. Band, performers.

ABORNS SIGN MISS LE BARON.

Milton and Sargent Aborn have re-engaged Louisa Le Baron as prima donna contralto with the Aborn English Grand Opera Company, which opens its annual tour at Albany September 21. Miss Le Baron filled the same position with the organization last season and her re-engagement now completes the cast of the Aborn Company for the coming season.

The list of principal artists is as follows: Edith Helena, Jane Abercrombie and Elsa Silverling, sopranos; Leonid Samoloff, Domenico Russo and Arthur Green, tenors; Louise Le Baron, Hattie Belle Ladd and Zoe Fulton, contraltos; Louis Krollier and Ernesto Torti, baritones; William Schuster, basso; Philip Fein, buffo; Carl Nivola, first conductor; Emanuel Cannon, assistant conductor, and others.

Mesara, Aborn had contemplated the starring Miss Le Baron this season, but did not succeed in securing a suitable opera for her, so she will continue with the Aborn English Grand Opera Company for another year, becoming a star under the Aborn banner in a new opera comique the following season.

CHANGE NAME OF THEATRE.

Frank McKee and William Harris announce with the beginning of their lease of the Majestic Theatre, at Fifty-ninth Street and Broadway, on October 1, it will be re-named the Park Theatre. This is due to their desire to disassociate this playhouse from the class of attractions seen there during the past season, and also to apply an historic name to a New York theatre.

The New Park Theatre will open under the management of Mr. McKee, October 23, when Henry B. Harris will present the latest London musical success, The Quaker Girl, now in its second year at George Edwardes' Adelphi Theatre, London. Clifton Crawford will be featured, and other prominent people in the cast will be Lucy Weston, Pope Stammer, Percival Knight, Maudie Gay, Daphne Glenn and Nellie McHenry.

Thurston, the magician, opened his fifth annual tour at the Franklin Square Theatre, Worcester, Mass., Labor Day, to a capacity audience, matinee and evening. Mr. Thurston presented many new and startling illusions, among them being The Phantom Piano, The Spirit Paintings, and the much-talked-of Indian Rope Trick. The entire performance went without a hitch, and is pronounced by the Worcester press to be the best exhibition of magic ever presented in the city. The Lambert Brothers, late of the New York Hippodrome, have been engaged by Mr. Thurston as an extra added attraction this season.

Frederick Stanhope, stage manager and assistant producer of the New Theatre Company, has been engaged by Lieder & Co. to fill a similar position with The Blue Bird Company when that play is revised at the Century Theatre about the middle of next month. Mr. Stanhope's familiarity with the original production should be of great value to Hugh Ford, the Lieder & Co. stage director, in producing the revival.

Charles Dickson has completed the cast for his new comedy, The Golden Rule, Ltd., which he will produce under his own management, the season opening in New London, Conn., on September 23. Louis Merrill and Madge Tyrone will portray the leading roles, Eugene Powers and the author will assume the comedy parts. Others in the cast are Jennie Dickerson, Charlotte Townsend, Sylvia Norris, Mirzan Chesler, Patricia Fisher, Philip Sheffield, Erville Alderson and Martin J. Dowly. Rehearsals will commence on Labor Day under the author's direction.

The Irish Players from the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, who have come over to America to show what an "institution" really means, have divided their entertainments into what they call "First Program," "Second Program," "Third Program," and "Fourth Program." The first will consist of "A Few Words," by Mr. Yeats; the Shadow of the Glen, a comedy in one act, by J. M. Synge, followed by Birthright, a tragedy in two acts, by T. C. Murray, and concluding with Hyacinth Halvey, a comedy in one act by Lady Gregory. The Second Program will have The Well of the Saints, a play in three acts, by J. M. Synge, and Spreading the News, a comedy in one act, by Lady Gregory. The Third will offer Kathleen in Houlahan, a tragedy in one act, by W. B. Yeats, and The Playboy of the Western World, by J. M. Synge. The Fourth Program will produce The Eloquent Dempsey, a comedy in three acts, by Wm. Boyle, and Riders to the Sea, a one-act tragedy, by J. M. Synge.

The roster of the company supporting Mr. Sanford Dodge in "The Right of Way," season 1911-12, is as follows: Sanford Dodge, Thos. Eastman, Edward Robson, David Dale, Walter Robinson, Andrew Castle, Harry Bernard, Forrest Cornish, Edward Williams, William Moore, Clarence Taylor, Frank Risdale, Fred Lewis, Adelle Nickerson, Louise Clark, Harriet Gay, Clara Wilson. The executive staff consists of: R. A. Johnson, manager; A. C. Coffrey, business manager; Walter Robinson, stage manager; Edward Robson, master of properties; Roster of Jack Hoskin's A Millionaire Tramp Co. (Eastern): J. W. Harpstrite, business manager; Franklin McNally, Frank King, Bessie Cole, Josephine Harris, Virginia Rogers, and Francis Rogers in the title role.

It is rumored that Jackson, Mich., capitalists will soon construct a $100,000 theatre at that place.

THE FRIARS' TOUR.

rest, R. H. Burnside, Charles Gebest and Jean Schwartz.

Already a publicity department has been started in each one of the cities to be visited, and the purpose of the tour and the character of the entertainment to be given will be thoroughly made known in each city during the winter months.

This will be the first time in the history of theatricals that such a tour has ever been arranged, but the committee have studied the matter thoroughly and feel certain that it can be made with little inconvenience to the members of the organization, and that a substantial profit can be realized and placed to the credit of the building fund of the club.

WHAT THE DOCTOR ORDERED.

Things may always be counted on for skillful playing, though he is not comedian enough to fill in the outlines of such a part as he had here with matter to make it thoroughly amusing.

The best figure in the play was provided by Allan Pollock, as a particularly supercilious and lackadaisical 'silly-ass' type, and there was good work by William McVay, Kate Meek and Mabel Bert. The last two, however, were occasionally too slow for the general action of the piece, and their scenes were apt to drag.

"For one thing, at least, the jarring couple should have rejoiced. They possessed in the person of Katherine Bayard Bell a particularly agreeable and soft-voiced maid, whose speech and action were always very soothing after the hubbub created by the members of the family."

ASTOR THEATRE.—What the Doctor Ordered, a comedy in three acts, by A. E. Thomas.

night house and had it not been for a dangerous-looking storm coming up when it was time to open the doors, there would have been a great turnout, but, as it was, there was a magnificent audience present.

At Ft. Smith the officials of the Frisco were very kind and allowed the show to unload on the main line right at the lot and the officials of the Iron Mountain also did the same with the loading. However, on account of the heavy rain which did strike after the night show, the show again had trouble loading because of the peculiar situation at the rous and the lot and did not get out of town until after daybreak the next morning, and then the show ran to Russellville, passing up Clarksville, and again being on time.

Whoever reported to The Billboard about the show business at Ft. Smith proved to be not only a poor prophet, but an excellent purveyor of distorted statements.

The facts are these concerning the Ft. Smith circus battle. The 101 Ranch did show first, but it arrived late on account of a long run from Neosho where it had sacrificed the evening before in order to reach Ft. Smith. They were on a small lot and did not put up all of their seating capacity. They made the parade at 1 o'clock, opened the doors at 2:30, and played to less than half a house in the afternoon and possibly two-thirds of a house at night. The 101 reporter stated that the attendance at the Hagenbeck Wallace Show indicated that the people were waiting for the third show. Now, as a matter of fact, the Hagenbeck Wallace Show had not yet exhibited at Ft. Smith when the 101 Ranch report was written.—H. and Prince Nelson, in a loop-the-loop act, make up a list of attractions that far surpasses any ever seen in this vicinity.

This part of the exhibition has received its share of attention from the managers and neither time nor money has been spared to set a high standard of amusements.

K. G. Barkoot is in full charge of the midway, and this is a sufficient guarantee that the midway will compare favorably with those of any similar exhibition. There is not a single offensive act on the street, all of the shows being clean and up-to-date. Each and every one of the shows are doing fine business, and the midway, both from an amusement and financial standpoint, is a big success. The singing of Miss Lillian La Blanche, accompanied by the Midway Band, is calling forth more than favorable comment.

H. T. Lucas of Nashville is at the head of the admission department and is handling the crowds in fine style.

Business at the Knoxville theatres has been very heavy since the start of the exposition and one and all are offering true bills.

THE VEILED PROPHET CELEBRATION.

The subjects of the floats as arranged are: No. 1, The Veiled Prophet; 2, The Temple; 3, Reception of Washington; 4, Franklin at Court; 5, Coronation of George III; 6, Lewis at Tallahassee; 7, Louis XV. at Versailles; 8, Frederick the Great; 9, Ferdinand VI, King of Spain; 10, Joseph I of Austria; 11, Maria Theresa of Hungary; 12, Joseph of Portugal; 13, Peter the Great; 14, Stanislaus II of Poland; 15, Christian VI of Denmark; 16, Gustave III of Sweden; 17, Mahmud II, Sultan of Turkey; 18, Mikado of Japan; 19, Spanish Rite in Mexico; 20, Kien Lung of China; 21, Prince of India; 22, Nadir Shah of Persia.

After the parade the annual ball will take place in the Coliseum, which is a most exclusive society affair. The balance of the week will be given over to aeroplane flights with various kinds of machines. These will all occur in the afternoon and admission will be free. At night the theatres will furnish the only attractions. The Buffalo Bill-vaudeville Bill West Shows will also be an attraction during this week. WILL J. FARLEY.

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY.

George D. Baker's dramatization of Harold MacGrath's novel, The Goose Girl, has proven an instantaneous hit and Baker and Castle claim a worthy successor to Graustark in this charming play. Another company is being organized to open October 12. This will not be in any sense a number two company. Absolutely the same scenic equipment will be carried. The cast will be as carefully chosen as the one which created the play.

Er Lawhe Jr., nine years old, who, under the stage name of Emmett Hampton, plays the role of Unborn Tyl, in The Blue Bird, was out of the cast at the New Theatre part of last week as the result of a painful accident that narrowly missed a fatal ending. He was riding his bicycle at Broadway and Ninety-eighth Street when, in turning a corner he crashed into a heavy furniture truck. He was hurled under the vehicle and saved only by the quick halt of the driver. He escaped fatal injury, however, and was soon released from the hospital.

Harry Ridings left Monday afternoon, September 18, for Hot Springs, N. C., to spend two weeks living out in the open air. While it isn't definitely settled, the impression prevails that he will return to his position as leading agent for Henry W. Savage at the end of that time.

Harry R. Trudson, formerly of California Frank's All-Star Wild West Show, has joined the Lulu Glasser Company in Miss Dudd-back, playing the part of Mr. McLean.

Charles Bird, general representative for the Shuberts, is recovering his health, which was seriously impaired by an attack of pneumonia about ten days ago. His recovery is now assured and as soon as he is able to leave the hospital, will recuperate completely in the country before resuming his office duties.

Lila Rhodes, cousin of George M. Cohan and at present a member of his company, The Little Millionaire, which enjoyed its metropolitan premiere at the Geo. M. Cohan Theatre Monday night, September 25, announces her engagement to Chas. King of the team of Brice and King. The two became friends while playing opposite the leading roles of The Yankee Prince after George M. Cohan and his sister Josephine had deserted the production. The marriage is expected to take place in February.

Word came by cable to Charles Frohman Tuesday, September 19, that Miss Pauline Chase played Ann, the leading feminine role in Man and Superman, with Robert Loraine in the opposite part, at the Criterion Theatre, London, beginning September 26. Miss Chase will continue in the part up to the time of the annual engagement of Peter Pan at the Duke of York's on Christmas night.

Forbes-Robertson and his company, to appear for the third consecutive season in The Passing of the Third Floor Back, will sail from England aboard the steamship Campania on October 14. Mr. Forbes-Robertson's niece, Maud Buchanan, will this year play the role of Stacia, the slavey, instead of Mollie Pearson.

The date for the opening of the new entertainment in which Gaby Deslys appears in Les Debutts de Chichine, as well as the new Revue of Revue, has been definitely set for Wednesday evening, September 27.

The Banker's Daughter, written by the late Bronson Howard, produced for the first time at the Union Square Theatre on September 30, 1878, is being revived by the regular stock company at the Academy of Music this week only, at the Lyceum Theatre. The company to support Mrs. Fisk includes Joseph Kilgour, Shelby Hill, Douglas Paterson, T. Tamamoto, J. T. Chalife, John T. Burke, Gladys Hanson, Hattie Russell, Elizabeth Fagan, Helena von Brugh, Gilda Varese, Edwalya O'Connell and Anne Bradley.

When Over the River is produced on Broadway, Charles Bingham and F. Ziegfeld Jr. expect to spring a sensation in the person of one of the three Methven Sisters.

Fred G. Latham, who enjoys a reputation as one of the best known stage producers of light opera in America, has taken charge of the rehearsals of The Enchantress, by Victor Herbert, in which Kitty Gordon will be seen on Broadway next month, at the New York Theatre.

THE POCKET UMBRELLA

The evolution of the umbrella into the Pocket Umbrella is the only one which gives the proper service to the traveling people. Just drop it in your toilet bag and you find it there when caught in rain. If no rain you can not lose it. The average person spends many times in a year for umbrellas and soiled clothing than our Pocket Umbrella costs, and still never have one when needed most. Our Pocket Umbrella is always with you, and will last a lifetime, as same is absolutely rust proof.

This is the only proper umbrella for a lady. Put in a leather case, as a handsome music roll. As one lady remarked when buying one, "A woman's heart could not stand the temptation of seeing one but she must buy it."

There are no parts to be taken off or put on but simply telescope it to about one-third its length. Any child can open it in five seconds and close it in twenty.

When wanted as a cane, it can be used as such, and it only telescopes when purposely done so. There is no difference in its appearance from any high grade umbrella.

Fill out the blank and mail today, and we will by return mail send you our booklet, which illustrates and describes the umbrella, and also our guarantee for same.

CINCINNATI, O.

The theatres did only a fair business last week, the ideal weather outdoors seeming to be more of an attraction than theatrical indoors.

George Evans and His Honey Boy Minstrels were the attraction at the Grand, and considering the fact the Dockstater's Minstrels had played the Lyric the week before, did very well.

The Family was seen for the first time in Cincinnati at the Lyric and created a very favorable impression as a purely American drama.

The famous old melodrama, The White Slave, was the offering at the Walnut, and did as good a business as any show in town.

Keith's Columbia presented an excellent bill, with Minnie Seligman, William Bramwell and Company, in a sketch, The Drums of Doom, carrying off the honors, closely pressed by Montgomery and Moore, who are just naturally "funny."

Heuck's had a thriller, A Fugitive From Justice, which also contained some good comedy, particularly the love-making between George Sinclair as the Irish Corporal, and Edith Grey as the French Maid.

John Lawrence Players are doing exceptionally well at the New Lyceum. Last week's bill was How Womon Sin and was well handled.

The Empress presented a well-balanced vaudeville bill. Dean and Trice please in the opener, A Student's Apartment. The sketch, Edith's Isle, was noticeable because of the exceptionally fine singing of some popular Irish melodies.

The Columbia Burlesquers at the Standard were up to the high standard set by this house since the season opened. White as People's, the Lady Buccaneers and John C. Hanson, a German comedian, kept the audience in roars of laughter.

The Auditorium, offering vaudeville, is enjoying good patronage.

The Robinson Opera House opened the latter part of September with vaudeville. The Caslon Amusement Co. of Detroit, the owners, will do all the booking. Tom McEwen will be manager and George E. Harris, musical director.

Central Labor Council has written a letter to the City Council stating that in some of the moving picture shows in Cincinnati the machines are operated by inexperienced boys and men who at any moment may be instrumental in causing a large loss of life.

Messrs. Helf and Moran, former Newport, Ky., boys, and now successful New York song writers, were guests of Lew Dockstater in Cincinnati during his week at the Lyric.

The Dramatic Art Academy opened for enrollment in its new and attractive location in Old Fellows Temple. A large and interesting amount of material has been gathered to be used in recitals and plays this season.

A Billboard visitor was Charles McClintock, who during the summer months is the general agent of the 101 Ranch Wild West Shows.

Percy H. Levin the well-known manager, was also a Billboard caller this week. Mr. Levin, owing to a protracted illness, has released Isabel C. Jackson, whom he managed for five seasons.

Jam's Hutton, former Cincinnati newspaper man, now with the Savage forces, was in Cincinnati in the interest of the English production of The Girl of the Golden West, the new Puchini opera that Savage will stage this fall.

Last, but not least, The Billboard had a caller in the person of Indian Joe Gregg of Indianapolis, who had in tow a dainty little black girl named George Bell. Bell is just seven feet, seven inches tall, and only weighs 220 pounds.

DENVER, COLO.

The County and State Fairs are on in full blast around Denver. The Jefferson County Fair being held out at Arvada, and the display of agricultural products was the greatest ever.

The State Fair at Pueblo was held last week and the entries greater than ever before. Colorado Day was observed in fitting fashion.

The Thirtieth Annual Territorial Fair will be held October 9 to 14 at Albuquerque and from the list of attractions we believe will be the greatest territorial fair ever held.

We are advised the Union Pacific Railroad will run a special train from Denver to Cheyenne to greet young Fowler on his San Francisco to New York flight. Fowler has agreed to descend at Cheyenne for a short rest and to replenish his supply of gasoline.

Miss Ruby Burkhardt, society girl of Denver, will leave for New York in a short time to study for grand opera.

The city of Colorado Springs had a great carnival this year; now they want to make it a permanent affair and asked the city to make appropriation of $1,000 for same.

All theatres in Denver carried a military aspect on Saturday night and Sunday night, when 1,000 soldiers from the Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, came to Denver in special trains to see the sights here.

Mrs. Edie A. Schmidt, a Denver woman who has made good on the stage, left last week for New York, where she goes to rehearse The Motor Girl.

Zuzanne La Homa, the Indian girl from Muskogee, Okla., was in Denver last week. She had Mr. Charles Wakefield Cadman give her his own interpretation of the little Indian songs of his composition, which she has embraced in her repertoire.

They say Denver can have the next annual international balloon race if she will only go after it. All Denver has to do, so says H. E. Moneywell, the Kansas City balloon enthusiast, is to show some enthusiasm over the sport, and that is exactly what Denver is going to do, and make a strong fight for the next meeting.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The staff for the new Metropolitan Theatre, which will be opened October 2, will be as follows: George J. McKenzie, manager; William Raymond, press representative; C. J. Riley, treasurer; R. F. French, assistant treasurer; J. R. Burns, stage carpenter; Wm. Black, electrician; Herr Charles Lombard, director orchestra.

J. Willis Sayer, dean of Seattle's theatrical writers, has been re-engaged by the Times, and took charge of the dramatic columns of that paper September 10.

Miss Dallas Chandler, appearing at Pantages Theatre week September 11, is a Seattle girl, who has made a big success on the stage.

Miss Sullivan and Conside have given up the venture of the Coliseum Theatre as a picture house. This house may be opened either with stock musical comedy or as the home of 10, 20 and 30c melodrama.

The Alhambra Theatre will open September 16 with an exceptionally good stock company, headed by the well-known actor, Lee Willard.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Bilon Theatre, which is under the management of O. A. Neal, has a splendid list of attractions booked for the coming season of 1911-12.

The Orpheum, the home of high-class vaudeville, where all the big headlines are seen from week to week, is now under the management of George Heckman, formerly manager of the Bilon.

Every picture house in Nashville, including Manager Williams' $10,000 one, the Elric, is reaping a rich harvest in spite of the very hot days we are having.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

A C. Mayer is the new manager of the Lyceum, Empire theatre, for many years under the management of Eugene Kernan, who retires on account of old age.

The exhibition management is already making new plans for next year's big fair.

The Princess had a magnificent spectacle in Thais and business opened fine.

The regular season at the Columbia opened on September 18, with Balley and Austin, in The Top of the World, supported by an exceptionally strong company.

The Riggs estate early in the summer began razing the old-time and popular Riggs House, with adjacent buildings, and are now completing the foundations for a structure to consist of an eight-story building and theatre.

Enthusiasm in aviation at College Park is as strong at present as at any time since interest in that form of amusement started there many months ago.

Ellery's Royal Italian Band headed by Ciriaco Ellery and his famous leader Taddeo Girolamo played an engagement of two weeks at Natatorium Park, commencing September 12.

The racing season will last six weeks. The race meet, it brings many strangers to Spokane and the theatres, and moving picture houses report a vast increase in attendance.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

H. A. Dorsey of Montreal, Can., president of the Park Construction Co., owning and operating the Twin-City Wonderland Park, arrived in the Mill City, Friday, September 15, to arrange for the sale or wrecking of the park here.

At the close of the park season this year, employees of the park presented Manager Fred H. Camp with a handsome diamond ring as a token of their appreciation of his kindness and courtesy to them in the face of this discouraging season of loss.

Minneapolis and St. Paul detectives searched the house of Daniel LaBar, proprietor of the Crystal Theatre of this city, Thursday, September 14, in an endeavor to capture LaBar, who is wanted, suspected in connection with the robbery last January of the box office safe of the St. Paul Shubert Theatre.

The Orpheum, home of refined vaudeville, opened its season Labor Day with a fine bill. Every bill so far has been great.

The Majestic, home of legitimate, has been very successful in securing good attractions for its many patrons.

The Princess had a magnificent spectacle in Thais and business opened fine.

The exhibition management is already making new plans for next year's big fair.

its phases are making commendable progress along every line. This week Captain Paul Mack of the army, is giving a series of exhibition flights at Harrisburg, Pa.

RICHMOND, VA.

The Winter Carnival Palace is the latest addition to Richmond's permanent amusement enterprises.

Another important amusement project to be launched next month is the Empire Theatre, West Broad Street, recently leased by the Dominion Amusement Company, of which Jake Wells is the head.

It is practically settled that the Empire will be the home of E. H. O. vaudeville, which means that Richmond will again have a first-class vaudeville theatre.

Probably no factor in the American theatrical field has done half so much as Mr. Wells for the amusement-seeking public in the Southern country.

The fact that Mr. Wells, who is a big man in ideas as well as in physical build, is standing sponsor for the first-class vaudeville theatre to open this fall is ample assurance that it will be a big success.

It is understood that the scale of prices will range from 25 to 75 cents for the night performances.

FITZGERALD'S LETTER.

A good one and he is bound to make a hit wherever he may appear, for his name and fame will precede him over the entire world wherever lovers of sport may be found. One of the leading professional roller skaters in the state of New Jersey is John Kirkbride of Irvington. Kirkbride has been racing for about five years, and has met and defeated some of the best men in the country at this sport. Prior to turning professional three years ago, Kirkbride defeated every amateur of note and won fifteen consecutive races at the Olympic Park rink, Irvington. This record was made while he was a contestant for the silver loving cup offered by the park management to the skater winning the greatest number of races during the season. Since joining the professional ranks, Kirkbride has met and defeated such men as "Lucky" Mason, Barker, Robertson, Brewer, Gogger, McCormack, "Goldie" Blackburn, on the Olympic Park rink. In his first year as a name-chaser Kirkbride took part in two marathon races, finishing fourth in one and fifth in the other. Kirkbride is one of the first Eastern skaters to take up the professional circuit scheme, and stated that if such a circuit was formed, he would be "Johnny on the Spot."

JULIAN T. FITZGERALD.

SKATING NOTES.

Robert McLean, who through the absence of Champion Lamy from the amateur ranks this winter, will try and wear Lamy's shoes, has spent a good part of his summer vacation in the Pittsburg Athletic Club. Mac went there to accept a light position during his school vacation, and has done quite a bit of swimming to keep in shape, and from all reports will have little difficulty in rounding into shape for his hardest season in the skating game.

Manager H. C. West of the Majestic rink, Manchester, Ohio, is making extensive repairs and redecoration in his rink and will open about October 1. The rink has had three successful seasons, but Mgr. West expects 1911-12 to exceed any previous years, as good acts of all kinds will be booked.

Fred Martin, the California champion, is still showing the Chicago professionals how to skate. Sunday, September 10, he showed his heels to a fast bunch of skaters in a one-mile professional race defeating Al Krueger, who finished second, and Henry Becker, third, in the fast time of 2:37.

In the race skated at Riverview rink, Chicago on Labor Day, Fred Martin claims to have skated the mile on the banked track in 2 minutes and 32 seconds. This mark equals the world's record made by Albie Moore in 1908 at the same rink, if the time was correct.

Allie Moore has at last been heard from. He is reported as being an Englishman now and in the future will make his home in Liverpool. It is also rumored that Mr. Moore will soon have a partner, but not a skating partner, one that he will have to team with for life.

In the professional race held at Riverview rink, Chicago, Sunday night, September 10, a free for all fight between skaters was an added attraction. After the mix-up was quelled it was found that Ben Driscoll suffered a deep scalp wound. No arrests were made.

Skaters from the states of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut are all anxious for a professional racing circuit to start, and are waiting for some of the rink managers to make a move.

John Davidson, a brother of Harley and another member of the great family of skaters and athletes, is at present in Russia. John says the skating game is good over in Europe.

Madison Gardens, Chicago, is ready for the opening night, September 18. The skating fans will have a new maple floor to skate on, and all new and beautiful decorations to gaze upon.

Boduey Peters, the St. Louis, Mo., boy, and Charles L. Franks and his daughter Lillian, are performing in France.

THE KISS WALTZ ENRAPTURES.

of Brown, Bigelow and Eva Davenport to the disparagement of Flora Zaballe and Robert Warwick. In fact, he does all he can to differ with the other metropolitan critics. Where they praise the score as pretty, luring and dream-inspiring, he condemns the pervading melody as "not intoxicating"; to the remainder of the score he shows no great animosity. Evidence needs no hesitation to include the plot for a knock and proclaim the work of Edgar Smith "quite ineffectual." The waltz he typifies as disappointing. But to offset the venom of his spite we have the preponderance and unanimity of his brother critics who saw the selfsame performance and returned their verdicts in decided favor of the new Schubert production. The following excerpts from the dailies which accorded the most detailed criticisms inform us of their approval.

The Times—"The Kiss Waltz, produced last evening at the Casino is a musical cocktail. In other words, it is a mixed drink—a combination of Viennese operetta and American musical comedy, with a little French sauce thrown in for flavor and color. Last night's audience, which was a notable one, received the play rapturously, and there is no reason to believe that the final verdict will be a favorable one, for there is much to amuse and entertain about the play and little to bore.

"The book was never stupid and some of the lines, notably those allotted to Miss Eva Davenport, were very funny. 'The Knight of the Bath in the household of Kathi Fubringer,' we are told, 'is Saturday.'

"But, after all, it is the company, which in every respect is good—the dances, the costumes and the movement of the piece, which brings it up to the level of a big success, which it assuredly should be. Almost from the beginning a speed is struck in these matters which is not allowed to flag, except for the purpose of contrast now and then.

"Flora Zaballe played what in the original piece must have been the most important part, as it was the only one of the women who had much to do with the plot.

"To Miss Zaballe and Robert Warwick fell the Kiss Waltz, and they did it extremely well, with a sensuousness and grace which caught the house. Later Miss Zaballe sang a French waltz very prettily.

Eva Davenport found a part more suited to her style of comedy than she has had a chance to disport herself in for years. She was very funny. Charles Bigelow played his part well, but had less opportunity. Count Arthur Wildenberg had one song of which he made the most.

The World—"The Casino curtain fell at 11:30 last night on a Casino triumph of the old, undoubted brand, but with modern improvements. So much fetching new music, so many pretty girls in the chorus, so much brilliancy of scenery and costumes had not been seen for a long time in the favorite old playhouse. And with all else was an amazing diversity and novelty of stage dancing and turning of stage-tricks.

"If it is gathered from so much declaration that The Kiss Waltz scored a mighty hit at its first New York production, why, that's all, and that's the way of it. There are Vienna and Composer Zeilerer to thank for a brilliant addition to the list of concerta treats previously awaiting the Merry Widow, Madame Shorty and The Pink Lady. And there will be those to swear that the last comer is the best of all.

"The waltz? Oh, yes, it is there! The orchestra plays it in the overture, it is danced in the first act and re-danced in both acts, and valiantly, so New York will be singing the music to the accompaniment of all the restaurant orchestras. Like its predecessors from Vienna it is that kind.

"The plot? As usual in such cases, it does not matter. It involves a composer worshipped by the fair ladies of Vienna society, a tired husband not too jealous to flirt a little on his own account, a hapless wife, a society on being loved truly, and a lot of other people.

"There are specialties galore in the two acts of the operetta. A whimsical dancing trio by Mr. Brown, Miss Ilyan and Miss Howland near the end of the first act—must be mentioned particularly, since the first-night witnesses seemed to want it never to stop."

ARLISS TRIUMPHANT.

is that Mr. Arliss created on the lines laid down by Mr. Parker an ideal faithful to the famous English statesman in his larger aspect, and then with the aid of splendid imagination, proceeded to make it a living, breathing figure.

"It cannot be gratified that the drama, in which Disraeli stood always in the foreground, was comparable with the character itself. Mr. Parker took liberties with history, but such incidents as he distorted to serve for the motive and action of the play were not always handled with skill. The deftness of Pomander Walk was not to be found in the fabric, and sometimes the machinery creaked with an ominous sound.

"The incidents appropriated were the ones which were the crowning achievement of Lord Beaconsfield's political career. At the moment when Russia was casting hungry eyes toward India, and England was in a state of political isolation, Disraeli conceived the purchase of the Suez Canal from the bankrupt Khedive of Egypt, and the creation of a British empire in the East."

The story is not without its romantic appeal. This is sustained by a thread involving Disraeli as a watchmaker and hair-dresser of broken hearts in the union he contrived between young Charles Viscount Desford and Lady Clarissa Peversey.

The Times opines as follows: "Mr. Arliss is an artist who can do all of those things and make them very telling. When the time for the bare-up comes, he knows how to make it effective through a sense of authority conveyed, not in noisy declamation, but in a direct, cutting, feverish, accumulative staccato speech, which suggests power in the man and the brain that gives the power.

"Mr. Arliss's makeup is again a veritable triumph, and it would seem that, as far as any one could do it, he conveys the pictorial suggestion needed to complete the illusion."

The conservative Tribune concludes with the following pertinent to its comment on the drama:—"The dramatist adheres to history about as closely as the exigencies of the theatre will permit. He is frank enough to erase indulgence for the liberties he has taken and to acknowledge that his aim has been to present the portrait of a great statesman, together with a picture of the times he moved in and the prejudices conquered. In this purpose he succeeds. And Mr. Arliss succeeds.

"The former's play is unique in its interest. The latter's performance is of a high order. Play and performance, author and star, were received and rewarded with great heartiness. The spirit of the occasion was not unlike that of a first night in the memorable times of Wallace Disraeli will have a long run."

COUP DE THEATRE.

mate form, Edgar Selwyn's new play, The Arab, that had its first performance at the Lyceum Theatre last night, will most likely prove an attractive offering. There is no gainsaying the beauty of the settings, or the realism of the crowded bazaar scenes, the mission grounds and house. Syria seems transported to West Forty-Fifth Street—with the usual reservation that theatrical transplanting must always have.

"As for the play, it is melodrama, of the favor of Stroutheart, but with a more hopeful ending and more picturesqueness—due to the locale—and more thrills.

"The play's author, Mr. Selwyn, played the role of the dragon-like sheik, and found much favor with the audience by a remarkably clever delineation of a somewhat complex role. He never lost his characterization, and his simulation of the passing of the beautiful guide into the Christian convert and then to the powerful sheik was excellent. Edna Baker appeared in the role of the mission-governor; Edward H. Mason played the Turkish governor; Walter Wilson as an American searcher for antiquities; James Seely, the missionary, and Ethel Waldron, who proved unusually adept at pantomime, had the part of Myrza, a Syrian girl."

The Sun affords the following appreciation of Selwyn's work.

"What else there may be of good in The Arab, produced last night at the Lyceum Theatre, there is one role in it so delightfully written and so charmingly played that the rest of the play might be very poor indeed—which it is not—and still be well worth seeing. Mr. Edgar Selwyn, actor, should be a very grateful man to Mr. Edgar Selwyn, author, for having written an entirely satisfactory interpretation made of his work.

"The part of the Arab is so well drawn and is played with such perfect sympathy and understanding by Mr. Selwyn that the faults of the rest of the company seem insignificant as Janit Abdullah Azam, the son of a Bedouin sheik, but by circumstances a dragoon. Mr. Selwyn seemed truly a child of the desert. He had all the Oriental's guile and the guileless."

NEW PLAY A PERFECT GEM.

as William Shakespeare is to literary perfection. The public went prepared to see the mastery of his touch—and they saw it; the play was Belasco's in its consummation of stage craft and unimpairedly superlative in its presentation. The vehicle was strong but the conductor, the intemperate, in which its producer coupled it has made it impracticable. The critics were forced to bow their heads in resignation and humbleness. Their taunts and flares, the most graphic of their diatribe, were powerless against the latest instance of Belascoism.

Alan Dale must be quoted in this connection. His praise is genuine, prompted only by the excellence of what he and what his critical colleagues saw. "A Representative from Illinois, a Representative from New York, another from Kansas, a fourth from Pennsylvania got together and talked about the overcapitalization of railroads, the Mullins Bill, graft and other political delinquencies. All this went on while the audience were snugly ensconced in their seats. Then— presto! Prestissimo!"

"Like lightning the question shot into the fray, 'swearing the politics with its own particular light.' And from that moment on to the close of the play, the interest was keen, absorbing, gripping, enthralling and long before the evening was over The Woman had stamped itself as the first real success of the season.

"All the world loved a woman mystery. Who was the woman in M. DeMille's play who had once upon a time been involved sexually in the immaculate life of the ambitious Insurgent Standish?

"Here was campaign material. Here was a story to work his downfall (since publish the only discovery, and in it to Standish. But who was the woman? You know, of course. You knew that she was the wife of one man opposing Standish and the daughter of another. You knew all that. They didn't. So you can see where the tensely of the play comes in, with these men moving heaven and earth to discover the identity of a woman who was nearest and dearest to them.

"About those logic and psychology, one did get a thrill or two; one did savor the extreme

TELEPHONES for the STAGE Made identical like the New Phones, to use by all Theatres, Actors and Actresses. Send for catalogue. R. ROSEN, 12 Union Sq., Dept. A, New York City.

Key of suspense; one did sit with bated breath watching developments.

"And structurally The Woman is splendid. There is not a word too much in it. It just forces ahead to its conclusion. Even politics later on takes on a dramatic glamor. The cynicism of the woman's father was perfectly respectable. Graft—that favorite topic of the humorists' eyes—was beaten into a new form. We were told that a reformer is a grafted out of a job, that graft is a national institution, that graft was not a man's failing but his religion. It sounds easy to utter all these graft epigrams in The Woman, but it isn't. They elude. They had the glamor of spontaneity, and there were not too many of them, but just enough.

"A telephone girl at a switchboard supplied delightful comedy. Nor was this rung in for mere vulgar sport. The girl was a built character, as a telephone girl might be, and also mightn't be, and she was placed in the position of wishing to save the woman in the play by withholding her telephone number. This was so neatly, deftly and cleverly manipulated that it was one of the features of the play.

"The grating of this girl at the close of the second act, interrupted by the slow descent of the curtain, was something new in playdom, and it tickled the audience hugely. I've never seen anything more telling and more artistic. But the piece was full of artistic touches. Its staging was Belasco at his best. The scene in the 'amen corner' of a Washington hotel was almost too real. It seemed to be life, not stage. The constant entrance of the boys, the waiters, the telephone girls, the footboys that behaved like the real things—appeared to be too true to be theatrical.

"It was a wonder of sage management—a perfect level of thought, precision and care. And it all told enormously. Of course it naturally would. There has never been a play produced at this theatre in which the details had been so laboriously considered and sketched out.

"The cast contained no stellar women and it was none the worse for that. A fit for them! Miss Mary Nash, as the telephone girl, was exquisite throughout. Jane Peyton as the woman, lacked charm and distinction, and her selection was not happy. Of the men John W. Hope as her father was perfectly admirable in his dry and caustic humor that never failed. Cuyler Hastings, as the man, was funeral and a bit heavy. Edwin Holt, Stephen Fitzpatrick and William Holden were all competent. The Woman is reasonable. I had begun to think that every good play had been produced years ago. It hasn't. Last night gave us a corker."

ACTS NEW TO NEW YORK.

MRS. GENE HUGHES AND COMPANY, in comedy playlet, Youth, Fifth Avenue; 30 minutes; full stage.

Edith Allen Woolf is the author of the playlet Youth. Woolf is responsible for many successful playlets, etc., that have been so favorably received. Her latest effort is a playlet in his ability to grind out a comedy playlet, for Youth is pleasing. Despite the fact that the piece runs a trifle over the hour, the comedy does not lag.

The theme is this: After an absence of fifteen years from her home, out of which she was driven by her over-zealous spouse, Mrs. Gene Hughes, or Cora the first, returns to her daughter, Cora the second. When she announces to Cora the second that she is to receive a visit from her mother, Cora No. 2 immediately gathers together the old grandmother's chair, the old slippers and other comforts in order to make pleasant the visit of Cora the first.

Cora the first enters amid these preparations. Her appearance is a surprise and shock to her son and daughter and grand daughter. She is at once in the height of fashion, while daughter and grand daughter make the appearance of old maids. It develops that Cora the first after leaving her home, had come to a far-away country and become an actress. From Chicago she is transferred to a star. The appearance of her daughter and grand daughter afford her much amusement, and immediately she plans to change the state of affairs. A dinner at her house is proposed.

Billy Weeks, an artist, living in the same house with the daughter and grand daughter, meets Cora the first, and at once is fascinated by the grandmother's charms. When the dinner is proposed, Billy suggests that he act as the grandmother's escort. His suggestion puts a damper on the ambitions of the grand daughter, who is in love with Billy, but whom Billy totally disregards because of her appearance in the medieval gown. Grand daughter confides her sorrow to grandmother, who, doubting the cause, brings from her trunk a beautiful gown for grand daughter. When she is dressed she becomes a picture of beauty. Her prettiness wins the affections of Billy from grand daughter to that of the grand daughter. But grandmother still has daughter, or Cora the second to contend with. The Puritanical ways of Cora the second have driven her husband from her. The husband, unbeknown to his wife had gone to the far-away country with his mother-in-law, and watched over her as she climbed the ladder of success in theatricals. When Cora the first explains the situation to her on the second, the latter throws aside her scrupulous attitude and consents to go to Billy's for the feast, to which the husband had also been invited. She leaves the room and a few moments later returns dressed in the same fashion as mother and daughter. Grandmother has brought together the disrupted family and brought youth to those in whose lives only pessimistic and old-age views existed.

Mrs. Hughes' company includes Isabel Vernon as Cora the second, Margaret Volmer as Cora the first, Betty Swartz as the maid, and Lawrence C. Knapp as Billy Weeks.

ED WYNN, assisted by Edmund Russon, in comedy skit, Joy and Gloom, Fifth Avenue, 13 minutes; in one.

Ed Wynn delineates Joy and Edmund Russon characterizes Gloom. Wynn typifying a big, boisterous youth, with a self appreciation of his own wit, insists upon telling jokes to his companion. Gloom possesses exasperatingly dull powers of perception. There fore Joy must explain his jokes time and time again. Then he proceeds with another joke, and another. By this time Wynn has finally discovered the point of the first joke and has his own little laugh. Wynn's style of delivering the comedy, his answers to his companion's nonsensical queries, are a source of much laughter. Whenever Wynn and Russon appear the audience will have thirteen minutes of continual merriment.

THE KEMPS, Entertainers, Colonial Theatre; 12 minutes; in one.

Bobo Kemp, of The Kemps, until a few weeks ago was the featured assistant in Alda Overton Walker in her vaudeville number. Kemp's act is practically nothing but singing in his own voice. His numbers include Love Dear, My Own Adopted Child and What Makes Me Love You the Way You Do, all rendered in splendid voice. His partner is an excellent aid. The act was on No. 2 spot at the Colonial where it received the stamp of approval.

SIMONE DE BERYL, Posing, Colonial Theatre, 20 minutes; full stage.

The word posing is not entirely appropriate to describe the work of Miss Delory. Statuesque, Miss De Beryl stands upon a pedestal upstage, while upon her and the white drop in the background is flooded color designs and pictures from slides inserted in a machine which rises at the orchestra leader's stand. The effect is remarkably beautiful. At the Colonial exhibition of pleasurable surprise greeted every picture thrown upon the screen. The act provided by Simone de Beryl is explicitly delightful.

EDGAR ATCHISON-ELY AND COMPANY, in comedy playlet, Billy's Tombstones, Colonial Theatre, 32 minutes; special act.

Billy's Tombstones is a condensed version of the playlet Billy. Kenneth Lee is the author. The play shows the deck of the steamer Florida, en route to Havana. Billy Hargreaves, a fool, has a tooth which is missing four teeth lost in a fight with a gator, but which molar he has supposed with a false set, is in love with the girl, Beatrice, who is also a passenger on the steamer. Billy proposes. He is willing to tell everything of his past life excepting one line. Beatrice becomes suspicious. As one of Billy's sister and Billy's rival for Beatrice's hand knows he has false teeth, and he is determined to tell his secret to Beatrice, Betty, the revelation of his predicament will prevent her to reject his proposal. He makes a list of his explanations and Beatrice leaves in a huff without learning the nature of the lie. As Billy is quarreling over his misfortune a party opens the swing doors and conversants with Billy who loses his set of false teeth. Billy makes a futile search to recover them. The party, passing a few moments later, finds the set in his pocket and leaves Billy returns to continue his search. Around his mouth he has woven a handkerchief in order that no one may learn the cause of all his trouble. When he removes the handkerchief and attempts to talk the syllables will not flow smoothly and Billy's enunciation sounds like a foreign language. Billy is desperate. He and his sister try several ways to recover the set of teeth but are unsuccessful. During their search they are startled to hear a voice announcing that a set of teeth that had been found was to be auctioned. There is a lively bidding for the possession of the "tombstones." Billy's antagonist in boosting the price being his rival for the hand of Beatrice. Alice, Billy's sister, who, not until the price has reached one thousand dollars, hears the auctioneer announce that he is the possessor of the false teeth. Beatrice, who in the meantime has learned the cause of all the excitement, comes to Billy, and begs his forgiveness for her attitude which, of course, is readily granted, and Billy is happy.

Billy's Tombstones is amusing all the way through. Mr. Ely's company is a good one, being composed of, besides Mr. Ely, Miss Ruth Allen, Miss Helen Hummel, Pierre Lemay and Charles Chubston.

ACTS NEW TO CHICAGO.

JAMES F. DOLAN AND IDA LENHARR, Majestic, Chicago, Fifth in nine-act show; full stage. Time, 25 minutes. Number of women, one; number of men, two.

The stage setting for this act depicts the apartment of Mme. De Shans, a mild reader. Her manager (very well played by Hubb Mack) is doing the usual boosting stunt, announcing the wonderful cleverness of the madame and introducing Mr. Hyson Carrington Knocker of Kokomo, Ind., (played by Mr. Dolan). Mr. Knocker doubts the genuineness of Mme. De Shans's ability and is there to be shown. He is introduced to the madame and recognizes in her a mind reader who had traveled with him in a circus several years ago. However, he does not let the madame know that he recognizes her. At this point the burlesque situations are introduced. Her manager holds up a program and asks her what it is. Of course, she is blind-folded and can not see. He taps it—she calls the turn. He next places a piece of crayon on the figure 2 on a blackboard. When the actress hesitates the manager coughs twice and she names the number. There are a great many of these comedy situations introduced and all rewarded with hearty applause. Mr. Knocker then goes in the audience in company with the manager and selects articles submitted by the patrons. Mr. Knocker and the manager return to the stage and Mr. Knocker makes himself known to the madame. Her manager is fired and his place taken by Mr. Knocker. The act proved the laugh hit of the bill.

SAGER, MIDGLEY & COMPANY, Majestic, Chicago, Third in nine-act show. Time, 13 minutes; in full stage. Number of women, one; number of men, two.

An excellent laughing act is submitted by Mr. Midgley but as formerly stated the idea is not original. The setting depicts the apartment of the Colonel. The maid and the valet are discovered after the valet has broken a large mirror. The Colonel proves to be one of those gentlemen who loves to quench his thirst with the "curse of the universe." The time is the "morning after." The valet finding one of the Colonel's wigs, puts it on for the amusement of the maid. The Colonel calls and enters. It is too late for the valet to remove the disguise. He conceals himself behind the screen and as the Colonel steps in front of the mirror frame the valet steps behind it. Some good comedy business is here introduced, but it is not nearly so well worked by this duo as by the Hanlon brothers, as their movements do not always correspond. The Colonel is still a trifle tipsy and stumbling on some of the broken glass falls through the frame. The broken glass on the floor convinces the Colonel that he has broken the mirror himself and the result is complete acquittal for the guilty valet. The young lady appearing in the sketch is decidedly amateurish and could be left out of the act with no detrimental results, as she has very little to do or say. The act was a big hit and took several bows.

Ruth St. Denis appeared next in her classic dances and did not go as well as might have been expected. Her offering is reviewed under New Acts.

Edward Ryan and Tierney present a rathskeller act, using a glass working in one. They open singing on the Boulevard, a production number. Both the boys appeared in this number as Frenchmen. They do the characters very well and the song was well received. Their rendition of Oceana Roll was a big hit and Ted Snyder's new number, Mysterious Rag, worked in the spotlight, sent the boys away very big.

The Six Bricks, one of the late importations from Europe, closed the show in an acrobatic and athletic offering. These six gentlemen are all very clever, and from indications will make a big success of their American tour.

WILSON AVE. BILL.

colored and the girls are to be congratulated on a very pretty and clever little act which is worthy of a spot on some of the best bills.

Deer Lewis and Sam Green have a good comedy offering which is reviewed under New Acts. The Rathskeller Trio, Messrs. Mitchell, Wells and Lewis were headlined all week at the Wilson and drew capacity houses at almost every show. The boys have appeared at the Wilson before and established an enviable reputation for themselves. Mr. Mitchell's renditions at the piano go big, and the singing of the other two boys is instrumental in making the act one of this theatre's record hits. The trio received such enthusiastic support on behalf of the audience that it was necessary to omit the pictures at the close of the show.

CHICAGO BURLESQUE NEWS.

James E. and Lucia Cooper put on a comedy patter skit in one, Mr. Cooper in the character of a fresh mail carrier and Miss Cooper working straight. The dialogue is new and funny and the medley of popular strains at the close of their act sent them away big.

The second part is called Winning a Miss. The characters are as follows: Meyer Schilitzholz, Charley Howard; Joe Hundly, a walking delegate, James E. Cooper; Col. Mayberry, a Southerner, Jim C. Dixon; Billy Calder, a Yankee Kid, Robert Algier; Sandy McTavish, an old rebel soldier, Johnny Walker; Marcus Philpot, an old rebel soldier, William Alexis; Uncle Eph, the colonel's old servant, Marty Reagan; Harry Gutman, N. B. Hunter; Joe Fisk, J. L. Scribner; Tom Appleton, M. F. Hunter; Jack Drexel, B. H. Gallaher; Alameda Calder, Billy's sister, Lucia Cooper; Fay Wesley, her chum, Della Shall; Tavia Mayberry, the colonel's daughter, Faunie St. Clair; Eva Brighton Earle, suffragette leader, by Gloria Martinez. The numbers put on in this part are: Hello! Motor Girl, by the entire company; Over the Garden Wall, by Fannie St. Clair, Robert Algier and company; and a great specialty by the Symphony Quartette. These four boys worked straight and tender in harmony popular numbers. They were easily the hit of the show in specialty or musical numbers and stopped the performance entirely. Their voices are not extraordinary, but their style of rendition is very good. They make a very pleasing appearance in their gray business suits.

Lucia Cooper and company put on Remick's new song, That Navajo Rag, and were compelled to repeat the chorus four times. Charley Howard and Dorothy Hayden put on a song and dance which come near repeating what the Symphony Quartet did. Gloria Martinez and company puts on a very good number called called Suffragettes and score heavily.

There's an old and true saying that "History repeats itself," and here is the proof. Last week the Bowman Bros., a headline vaudeville act, appeared at the Star & Garter heading Vanity Fair. This week Morton and Moore, another big vaudeville team, heads the Merry Whirl at the Columbia. Jas. C. Morton and Frank F. Moore are responsible for the success of one of the biggest and best shows on the wheel. They have already established a following in Chicago through their appearance here in variety. They were featured at the American Music Hall last season and their names on the billing for the Merry Whirl undoubtedly mean an increase in the financial department of the Columbia for the current week.

This production is put on by Gordon & North and is one of the best seen in Chicago this season. The costumes and settings have been provided without thought of expense and the result is one of the prettiest productions imaginable. Don Roth is responsible for the book, Ed Hay for the lyrics and Leo Edwards for the music.

The first part is called the Magic Ring and shows a plot the equal of which is rarely seen in burlesque. There is an abundance of clean, snappy comedy throughout and musical numbers rendered in a very commendable manner.

The plot for the second part is laid in Paris and while the idea of this part of the show has been carried out by several other burlesque shows, the Merry Whirl Company have introduced a few new ideas into the piece which are put over very well.

The principals with the Merry Whirl Company this season are as follows: James C. Morton, Frank F. Moore, Harry B. Vokes, Billy Meehan, Edwin Jerome, Roger Hurst, Marguerite Chabaut, Mina Schall, Genevieve Newman, Gladys LeRoy, Norine Fitzgerald and Olive Tremayne.

The musical numbers are about evenly divided between specialty and popular songs. The numbers to score heaviest were Alexander's Ragtime Band, by Morton and Moore, and I Want a Girl, by Morgan and Rogers.
