Mr. William Young's new evening daily,
Evry Aftersoon, made its appearance years.

d.y. punctually according to autonucement. It is a large, handsome sheet, of eight pages, troofy printed, and on better paper than we are accustomed to see in any but weakly papers.

The original reading matter contained in it is junearity written, and the selections are chosen with that good taste which marked Mr. Young's inauangement of the Albion. Ecchewing politic, and making no special attempt to merely incoming the contained in the proport fact, the new journal forms an agreeable freeded or traveling companion for people of citivation, and, as such, will doubless successfully fill an mooccapied place in the newspaper world.—N Y Sas.
