The attack near the Regina trench was as fierce as any made during the last four months, which is saying a good deal, although in the present instance the fire was confined to a comparatively narrow length. It was cruel work to advance afterwards, not so much on account of the resistance encountered, but because of the state of the ground, which had been churned into chaos by the heavy shells, to say nothing of the effect of the heavy rains, which had been almost incessant in the past few weeks. The artillery, however, had accomplished much.

The Canadian troops reached their objective with comparatively few losses, and found the Germans lying in what remained of the frenches. There were some Prussian Guards and some a Saxons among those taken. More than a hundred captures were made in the first counter of the state of of the

He is also a close kinsman of the South African hunting dog whom Sir Rider Haggard in one of his books raises to the rank of "wolf." This is a highly interesting animal to all lovers of Kipling at his best, being a local variant of those "red dogs of the Dekkan" who gave Mowgli his most thrilling adventure in the "Jungle Book." Mr. Numano, who has held appointments in the diplomatic and in the consular service, the sharp line of separation not being set up in Japan as prevails in other parts of the world between the two services, has 13 years experience for his new post, having been stationed in the principal cities of Europe and America. Farmers in the North Saanich district have been complaining recently of losing large numbers of sheep and that as many Native Sons as possible will send in their names to the committee to take part in the outing.

of concerts was that which attended the Royal Victoria theatre last evening. The programmes are increasingly popular, and the duets by Miss Watson and Mr. Swain were very well received, both singers being possessed of good voices which will undoubtedly make them very popular as duettists. Their numbers were "The Sallor Sighs," by Balfe and "The Battle Eve," both of which were much liked. The favorite numbers by the band were "Semiramide" (Rossini), which was very heartily applauded; the sacred air, Eventide (Rimmer); and the Hunting Scene by Bucalossi, all of which had enthusiastic applause. The conspicuous feature of the evening was the monster bass solo, "Asleep in the Deep," played by Gunner Haggard, who acquitted himself in fine style and was very heartily encored. Miss A. Murisett acted as accompanist to the singers, performing her part faultless by and artistically.

An attraction unique in the annals of the Canadian stage, will be F. Stuart Whyte's production of the famous pantomine; "Aiaddin and His Wonderful Lamp," which comes to the Princess for one week starting to nights. As most everyone knows, an English pantomine is closely allied with the American musical revue, or extravaganza; in fact such productions as are staged at the New York Winter Garden and similar places of amusement, are based entirely upon the old-time pantomines.

Mr. Whyte has built a production and assembled a cast for his "Aladdin" that would be hard to excell, even in the Old Country.

All of the leading artists have had previous experience in this line of entertainment, and the scenic investure, was designed and painted by Edgar MacKie, formerly master artist of the Drury Lane theatre, London, which as every one knows is the home of the pantomime. The costumes are by Madame Celestine, the book and lyrics by F. Stuart Whyte and the songs and musical score is the collaboration of Pierre Bayard, Clive Hamilton and Sydney Blythe, the three composers responsible for more English musical successes than any other trio of song writers in the world.

A recent review of the production is bringing to finterest and presents a story of intrigue, romance, adventure and mystery, together with a comedy factory entertainment. These stars are supported by a strong cast.

In this production Miss Bayne has one of the best parts she has had since she came to motion pictures, about five years ago. She is seen in scores of big dramatic situations, and then there are lighter scenes where she is given an

In the cast are several performers who are known to local theatre goers, and it is very pleasing to see that they are improving each limit they come over the circuit. Zara Chinton makes a most fetching Aladdin, and in the talgard the follows.

Plays Part of Doctor in Drama, Will Be Presented for First "The Beggar of Cawnpore"

"The Beggar of Cawnpore," to be shown at the Columbia for the first three days of this week, will prove to be a very strong play, a play of stirring action, replete with the drama of india and mindful of the Arabian nights.

It is the story of a British doctor, a member of the army medical corps, who, striving with all his might and maid, and with all his science and skill at the bedside of a friend, nevertheless loses his patient to the Great Reaper. With the passing of the friend the natives flee in every direction. They leave the lone white man to his fate. They fear the dread cholera. Dr. Lowndes has only a brave Brahmin sergeant, Mulhar Rao, to stand by him; and the doctor needs a messenger and must send him away. The Brahmin goes to Delhi, but it is days and weeks before he returns. And meantime, in that blazing heat of an Indian summer, the doctor loves a girl. He confesses to her his dread habit and at her pleas he abandons it. He is persuaded into temptation by a rival of the girl's affections, falls from grace, is cast out and drifts through the wilderness. Then comes the great mutiny, and the doctor, degraded and disgraced though he was, shows his true British spirit and, in the face of death, and horrible death at that, he goes to the rescue of the girl's affections, falls from grace, is cast out and drifts through the wilderness. Then comes the great mutiny, and the doctor, degraded and disgraced though he was, shows his true British spirit and, in the face of death, and horrible death at that, he goes to the rescue of the girl whom he still loves. What follows constitutes thrilling sequence of scenes and a decided histrionic triumph for H. B. Warner, who enacts the role of the doctor in "The Beggar of Cawnpore."

After Winther and Lemke came safely out of this shipwreck, they joined different vessels, and the present voyage of the linea for the first time has brought them again together as officers of the same vessel. Captain Winther has led the customary eventful life of the mariner since the wreck of the Endeavor. The Hawaii reached Delagoa Bay September 15 after a long and boisterous passage of 130 days. The captain says: "We made a fair start, but a bad finish. We crossed the equator in 22 days and hove-to off Pitcairn Island, the natives of which are descendants from the mutineers who landed from the ship Bounty in 1789, exactly 36 days out from Victoria. The natives came aboard and from them we obtained a quantity of fruit, fowls and some curios. We passed Cape Horn July 11, 64 days out, and two weeks later our troubles commenced and remained with us until port was reached.

"After rounding Cape Horn we ran into large icebergs and were locked in solid ice for four days. The ship was a mass of ice and we suffered considerable for the solid ice and we suffered the solid ice and the s erably from cold. It took days to work our way out field.

"On nearing the Cape of Good Loge we encountered some very heavy gales which made things pretty lively, smashing up lifeboats and filling up cabins and storerooms with water." Capt. Wjkander expects to return to Science class passengers from Shanghat via Kobe for San Francisco. The St. Helens was soid to Norwegian interests and the original crew paid off and given transportation back to this coast. Civilians Finish Fast and De-Sailors Score Three Goals in Sailors Not Heavy Enough for feat the Garrison at Beacon Hill

The Wests defeated the Garrison in a fast, close game at Beacon Hill on Saturday afternoon, scoring two goals in the dying moments of the contest, making the score read 5 to 4. The game, which was easily the best of the season, started fast, the West forwards rushing the ball down to the soldiers goal and almost scoring before play had been under way many seconds. The ball remained in the Garrison territory for the greater part of the time in the first 2 minutes of play. After several shots had missed their mark or been intercepted by the goal tender, Archie Muir drove a high, fast one in that it was impossible to touch. This counter came after a brilliant piece of combination play in front of the net. The Wests scored again before the game was much older and the soldiers bulged the net once before the half was up.

In the second period, the Garrison started off fast and scored two goals shortly after the resumption of play. With the score 3 to 2 against them, the Wests bucked up and began to show the form that they were displaying in the first ten, minutes of play, About half way through the half Muir and Youson scored one apiece.

With but a few minutes left to play the Wests put forth their best efforts and secured another goal shortly before the final whistle blew. The Wests' regular goal tender did not show up, and Manager Youson had to pick up a man from among the spec-tators. The stars of the winners were Whyte, Shakespeare, Hornsby, Muir, Youson, Wilkie and Sherrett, while for the Garrison, Wells, Frankish and Vinthe Garrison, Wells, Frankish and Vin-cent played good soccer. HEROES OF SEASON of the Year Harvard's new backfield star, Eddie Casey, weighs only about 165 pounds. But he stands out as one of the best half backs in the game, He can't punt or dropkick tike a Mahan or Brinkley, and he can't stush a line like they 3id. But neither Crimson star could circle an end or sprint back with a punt with any greater skill than Casey has done so far this season.

Of course the acid test of the Yals and princeton games has not yet been applied to the "fighting Irishman." But those who have seen Casey perform declare that he will show up as brilliantly against Harvard's arch-enemies as he has against all the other Crimson foes.

The Case The Case Troubles are the can't punt or the can't punt or the case of the best half but he can't punt with any greater skill. To Prove It declare that he will show up as brilliantly against Harvard's arch-enemies as he has against all the other Crimson foes.

Casey has a peculiar twisting motion that baffies tacklers. Some Cornellians are of the belief that he has a double-jointed frame: since that Saturday him to their bosoms. And Casey is fast-amazingly so.

The 'Child' isn't, a finished product yet. But another season under the tutoring of Percival Haughton and he will be ranked A-i in the Bradstreet of football.

Solves Mystery.

H. G. Salsinger, sporting editor of the Detroit News. Tribune, has solved the Johnny Maulbetsch mystery. In 1914 threw him back, often for losses in 1915. Why the form reversal?

Welly here is 'Salsinger's clear-cut logical explanation—and Salsinger knows whereof he speaks.

Maulbetsch this year is probably just as good last year, and did nothing. And the whole reason is in her history; last year and did nothing. And the whole reason is in her history; last year and did nothing. And the whole reason is in her history; last year and the season as her world and surgeons in the U. S. Arman New You have been a sense to head of the best inner in her history; last year and the set of the service of the second of the loss of the province o

Jimmle Dime, manager of George Chip, who was recently defeated in nine rounds in Australia by Les Darcy, the crack middleweight of the Antipodes, in a letter written to a New York friend, touches upon the argument as follows:

"It was a great fight. Darcy showed much better against George than he did against Clabby. He put George away, all right, and had the better of the argument from the start. Les was too fast and too strong for George who, by the way, did not show anything near his true form. He tired very fast and did not recuperate as quickly as he usually does.

"Snowy' Baker and many others, said Les never showed to better advantage. Chip fought him all the way, but he was very tired after the third round. Chip went down from a right hand chop, which landed squarely on the point. I'll try to have Chip in better condition for the next meeting with Darcy.

"Maulbetsch ins year he played Harvard. He was probably as good last year, and ald nothing. And the whole reason is this:

"In 1914 Michigan had one of the best ines in her history; last year and this year two of the weakest. Just as a great fielding basebail team can make a pitcher, a good line makes a backfield star. Maulbetsch is not an object die tunner, but a line bucker. To successfully buck a line a player the opposing linemen from bucking him. "Maulbetsch has been bucked to a standstill by the fellows on the other vide of the scrimmage line who break hough his own first defence, through which is ine did not open holes last year, and did nothing. And the was probably as good last year, and did nothing. And the was probably as good last year, and did nothing. And the was probably as good last year, and did nothing. And the was probably as good last year, and did nothing. The was probable as a great fielding basebail team can make a pitcher, a good line makes a backfield star. Maulbetsch is not an open field runner, but a line bucker. To successfully buck a line a player two of the weakest. Just as a great fielding basebail team can make a pitcher, you can go right out and to win."

ANCIENT FORESTERS ANNUAL BANQUET

Large and Enthusiastic Gathering and Interesting Speeches

all of which were most attractive.

A. G. Manson, sub-chief ranger, also replied and in a witty speech thanked all who had helped them, and especially the toastmaster, W. C. Kerr.
Vocal numbers were contributed by Messrs, H. H. Hollins, S. Laity, A. Palmer, J. M. Thomas, Miss L. Burns, Mrs. D. B. McLargn, Mrs. H. Whittaker, and Mrs. Horrocks, a bagpipe selection by D. Cameron, recitation by Mrs. Jones, and conjuring by 1. M. Diggon. The gathering broke up with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," "Keep the Home Fires Burning," and the National Anthem.

ing. It was a double event, in that it celebrated the thirteenth anniversary of the founding of the court and the formation of a new ladies' court, which was instituted last Thursday. "Court Triumph" starts with 45 lady members, all of whom were guests at the banquet on Saturday night.

W. C. Kerr was toastmaster and with him at the cross table were seited the executive officers of Columbia district. District Chief Ranger E. M. Whyte, District Sub-Chief Ranger Wm. Gibson, Past District Chief Ranger Richard Wilson, District Secretary Lamont Ross, of Nanalmo, and District Treasurer Arthur Manson.

The banquet was one of the most the National Anthem. Chronic Skin Disorders

The banquet was one of the most successful ever held by the Foresters. Not only was there a large attendance but everyone was in a happy mood and half-past eleven came all too soon. The toast to the king was drunk in the usual way with the singing of the National Anthem. In proposing the toast to absent members, W. J. Edwards stated that over fifty were absent, and as was fit and proper, over forty of these were fighting in the corner Arthur and as was fit and proper, over forty of these were fighting in the corner to the court of the courts to state the singing of "They are jolly good fellows."

In proposing "Columbia District," W. McKay told how the district had grown from four or five courts to Wonderful results follow the use of Dr. Hamiltons: Pills which provide the blood with the elements it needs to become rich and red.

In responding, E. M. Whyte, who was down from Alberni especially for the mother lodge. It was the one he had joined eight years ago. When the had joined eight years ago, it had three courts and now these had increased to 21 adult and 7 juvenile. There had at one time been a tendency to break up the district, a few of the courts thinking that they could run a district cheaper than was being done. The district was, however, more prosperous than ever before. Three hundred of the members in the district were serving the empire at the front, and the financial position was improving steadily.

Lamont Ross, the district secretary.

Mr. Orville Wright's gift to the Berlitsh nation of his aeroplane patents suggests how rapidly flying history has been made. In 1903 the first successful flight, lasting barely a minute, was made, and two years later a distance of 24½ miles was covered in half an hour; but it was not until 1908 that the first notable flights were made by Mr. Orville Wright's gift to the Berlitsh nation of his aeroplane patents suggests how rapidly flying history has been made. Lamont Ross, the district secretary said he remembered three years ago fighting for the retention of Columbia district. The order to which they be-longed was world-wide and British. Nonerever British people were, there they would find Foresters. No similar society could boast 150,000 members fighting the battles for liberty of the world. They had in all close on 1,000,000 members and $55,000,000 in funds. The female members surphered 28,000.

Diggon, in replying, said he appreciated the gusto with which this toast had been received. Friend-ship, love and truth ran through all the fraternal societies. They were volun-tary associations for mutual aid.

Mrs. Wilson, of Vancouver, proposed the health of the newly-formed "Court Triumph." She asked all to rise and Triumph." She asked all to rise and drink success to the new court. Mrs. Whatman and Mrs. Yarwood replied, each making neat speeches in which they dwelt on the advantages of Forestry from the ladies' point of view.

"The Juvenile Courts" were proposed by B. Cooper, who said that the boys' and girls' lodges were the pride of Victoria. Many of the members had grown up and been admitted to the adult courts. Replies were made by Stanley Lichfield, chief ranger, and A. In the cycling the High school presented a programme of physical drill and gymnasium exercises, about four hundred people being present to witness the entertainment. Burnside and Sir James marked after each of the numbers. Of special interest was the performance of Reggie Wood, a youthful ventriloquist. The Moss Street school bazaar was entirely in charge of the children, under the supervision of Principal E. Campbell and the teachers of the various rooms. Among the most interesting features were the curios collected by the children and assembled in one of the rooms in charge of R. S. Baker, who was assisted in the work of explaining the history and origin of the hundreds of interesting relics by some of the older boys. War souvenirs were a fascinating part of this collection.

The products of the girls' cooking classes were sold at good prices, and in the tea-room visitors were served with dainty sandwiches and cakes made by the youthful cooks who, under the direction of Miss George, their instructor, did the serving.
