ON what strange chances great results depend! If Rymer's father had not been hanged, the world would never have possessed Rymer's 'Fœdera.' Utilitarians would perhaps say that we should be glad of what was suffered by the father at the gallows, in proportion with what the son collected and transcribed in the old Chapter-House at Westminster. We are sorry for the sire; but our sympathy is a little diminished by the fact that the son seems to have borne his father's hanging with that philosophy with which Rochefoucauld says every man bears the calamities which fall on his friends and neighbours.

Rymer and his 'Fœdera' are known—or rather Rymer's 'Fœdera' is known—all over the civilized world. There is not an historical writer in Europe and America who has not to go often and drink deeply at that fountain-head of history. There is not an historical student in any part of the globe who is not, in some way or other, interested in this collection of documents. When the 'Fœdera' appeared, the Muse of History shook off her drowsiness, tightened her sandals, drew her girdle closer, and started on a new path. Since that period, the goodly tomes in which the collection is printed have been the treasures of all libraries; but little or nothing has been known of the author. So far, general readers whose languid eyes fall on the words "Rymer: Fœd.," at the tail of a note, know nothing more of author or book than they saw in those words themselves.

Now, Sir Thomas Duffus Hardy has come forward to do what he has so often done before,—to instruct and interest the public. On this occasion, the subject is Rymer and the 'Fœdera.' Sir Thomas has just published the first volume of a 'Syllabus' (in English) of the Documents relating to England and other Kingdoms contained in the Collection known as "Rymer's Fœdera." That is to say, that every document in the original ponderous collection is here described, as to its contents, in a few clear and concise phrases. The gratitude which the world owed to Rymer, or to Halifax and Somers, with whom the idea of making such a collection seems to have originated, will, in perhaps greater measure, be paid to the Deputy-Keeper of the Public Records. We say in greater measure, because, when complete, the 'Syllabus' will give to every man the concentrated essence of the original mass, and because Sir Thomas has added an account of the author which, for the first time, places him bodily, and full of quaint old life, in presence of the reader.

We have said that Thomas Rymer's father, Ralph, was hanged. Ralph was a Yorkshire gentleman of some substance, and of such hot Republican principles that confiscated Royalist estates fell to him by way of encouragement. The Restoration deprived him of what he had thus earned, and also of nearly all that he had inherited; and this sent Ralph Rymer and his eldest son Ralph, with the swords and pistols that were left to them, into the "Presbyterian rising" of 1663. It was all crushed in one night, and among the many prisoners sentenced to be hanged, drawn and quartered, Ralph Rymer was one. "Exequandus apud Leeds," or elsewhere, was the euthuism then for putting a man through that direful process. The eldest son, accomplice of the father, was liberated from prison only when death threatened to be his emancipator.

Thomas Rymer, the Federalist, if we may so call him, happened to have for schoolmaster one Smelt, at Daxby Wisk, who was what Sir Thomas Hardy calls a "Loyalist," but what Parliamentarians would have called a "Royalist." In the hottest time of the Commonwealth he contrived to teach his boys "Royal" doctrine, and after the fashion of his time, he was sent to the Bastille with the Empress Louis Napoleon and his daughter Eugénie. His mind, remarked how very superior Pilate's wife was to Pilate!

Dealing in the above way with rebels and regicides, Smelt's precepts seem to have had more influence on Thomas Rymer's mind than his father's principles and practice. He passed to Cambridge, thence to Gray's Inn, and subsequently into the world as a poor, ill-fed, and worse paid author. He is best remembered for his rhymed tragedy, licensed in 1677, 'Edgar; or, the English Monarch.' It was avowedly written in support of a system, for attempting to overthrow which the author's father had been hanged, drawn and quartered, and his family all but beggared. The play pleased nobody; but Rymer was convinced that the public lacked judgment. He failed even more as a critic than as a writer. He could not even happily imitate the ancients whom he praised. He abused Fletcher, assailed Shakspeare as something between a beast and a barbarian, and referred to Milton as the author of a thing which some people were pleased to call a poem! Macanlay says Rymer was "the worst critic that ever lived." What he was as a dramatic author may be described in the words of a piece which, not long before Rymer wrote his 'Edgar,' had been played and damned,—Arrowsmith's 'Reformation.' "Does he ever write himself?" asks one of the characters. "Yes, yes," is the reply; "but, as all your professed critics do, damnably ill."

Nevertheless, the beggared Yorkshireman continued to ply his pen, eulogizing crowned pates and pelting the poets. He had touched everything and had not adorned much, when, in 1692, L. succeeded Shadwell as Historiographer Royal. Half-a-dozen years or so before, Rymer had criticized even this official, asserting that he never wrote truth except by chance, and that the whole herd of royal historiographers were, in fact, little better than asses, both ignorant and malicious. Eight months later, Rymer was appointed to collect and edit unpublished records, the collection which grew into the shape and form in which we now have it by the help of other editors. The publication served many a purpose; among others, it buoyed difficult straits for the safe passage of fresh navigators on historical seas; and it illumined the waste of waters over which old navigators of that sort had tossed and tumbled, and had then scrambled shoreward with small salvage of the precious freight of truth.

Rymer was the new pilot and explorer. Fancy the savage delight of the amiable creatures who envied him his appointment, when they discovered that the apparently most important document with which he started was a forgery! If he had detected and exposed it, the same men would probably have tried to lessen the credit of the detection: perhaps they would have faintly suggested the genuineness of the paper itself.

Be this as it may, the 'Fœdera' became the work, delight and torture of Rymer's life. Hitherto, with rare exceptions, Government had discouraged the publication of any political or State records. Now, a certain class of them were given up to Rymer to print and spread abroad in ponderous volumes. It turned the eyes of the historic world on him and his labours. Scholars at home and abroad became his friends and correspondents. His slip at starting did not ruin him, as such a man's good-natured friends would take care it should do now. Rymer's love for his work grew with its progress. He lived with his transcribers amid actual book-worms; and shook them out with the dust in which they lived and housed, from records which had not been read since the clerks drew, and high-contracting parties signed them. The explorer was ill paid, grudgingly paid, sometimes not paid at all for his work. Out of his small salary as Historiographer he furnished the wages of his clerks and the cost of his materials. He trusted to the honour of the Government to reimburse him; but that honour seems to have been of a very easy nature, sometimes doling, at others denying. The whole history of Rymer amid the records is a new and delightful chapter in 'The Curiosities of Literature.' When this Herculean editor had put forth fifteen volumes, and had collected materials for a sixteenth, he died one day in 1713, in Arundel Street, Strand, London. He was buried in the church of St. Clement Danes. His work was continued by Saunderson. All readers who are curious in the matter have now only to consult the 'Syllabus,' with its at once masterly and amusing Preface, by Sir Thomas Duffus Hardy. They will there learn all that can now be known about Rymer and his 'Fœdera.'

P R E F A C E.

THIS Syllabus of "Rymer's Fœdera" has been undertaken by the direction of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, at the recommendation of Lord Romilly, Master of the Rolls.

Before explaining the nature of the work, it will be expedient to lay before the reader a brief relation of the causes which led to the publication of the "Fœdera" itself.¹

Anterior to the Restoration of Charles the Second, the transactions between England and Foreign Princes were deemed to be of too secret a nature to be revealed to the public. Though "they ought to be of record and enrolled in the Chancery, to the end the subject may know, who be in amity with the King and who be not; who be enemies and can have no action here, and who in league and may have actions personal here;² but letters and writings concerning matters of State, which were not fit to be made vulgar, were enrolled in the Wardrobe and not in the Chancery, as leagues were and ought to be;"³ the mysteries of State were nevertheless strictly preserved and guarded with watchful jealousy. Even the offices in which they were deposited were viewed with some degree of awe, and the imposing name of "Treasuries" was conferred upon them, as if the documents themselves were a portion of the national wealth, which it would have been impolitic to exhibit to the eyes of the world. To have committed the secrets of government to the press without royal authority would have entailed severe punishment upon the offending person.¹ Information relating to such transactions could only be communicated to the people by the special authority of the Crown.² Hence partly arose the restrictions formerly placed upon consulting the public muniments.

The first treaty printed in England by authority.

The practice of publishing treaties by authority seems to have been introduced by James the First. The treaty with Spain, bearing date the 18th of August 1604, is perhaps the earliest that was committed to the Press.³ It was followed by the commercial treaty with France dated 24th of February 1605-6;⁴ but the innovation thus begun does not appear to have been fully carried out, as the old system of proclamation was also occasionally continued,⁵ and such reasons we find assigned for the publication of treaties, as indicate that they were printed only as a special favour.⁶

Alteration in the feelings of people on this subject, consequent on the Civil War.

During the Civil War a great alteration occurred in the feelings of the people with respect to this subject. The two parties into which the nation was divided treated with each other like independent states, and by printed declarations, answers, proposals, and addresses, appealed by turns to the people as the judges and arbiters of their disputes. Thus the people were taught to take part in political questions of the highest moment, and the exclusive character

² Before the invention of printing, whenever the Crown had occasion to notify a fact to the public, it was proclaimed vivâ voce in the several counties by the sheriffs or others of the King's officers, who had written authority for their guidance. The proclamation was made according to the form determined upon by the Privy Council, and annexed to the Royal Commission.—Fœd. II. 537. O.E. The right of ordering proclamation was one of the flores coronæ, which no private individual could invade with impunity. Even as late as the reign of Henry VIII., a gentleman of Northumberland was punished for announcing by proclamation that he was the executor of a person deceased, and was ready to pay his debts.—Archæolog. XXV. 381.

Although the introduction of printing promoted the communication of information, yet it did not confer the right of publishing "State transactions." The "new art" was taken under the care of the Government, and frequently used as a substitute for the ancient commission, but nothing short of royal authority could set the press in motion to proclaim matters of State.—Mod. Reports, I. 256.

⁶ In a preface to the treaty of the 5th of November 1630, between England and Spain, it is stated that because the benefit of the reconciliation with Spain would consist in the renewal of commerce, therefore his Majesty had thought it expedient, "for the better encouragement and direction of merchants, that the articles of the treaty should be published."—Lond. 1630. 4to. p. 7f.

of matters of State was of necessity destroyed: in addition to which the Government was then too much occupied with domestic affairs to trouble itself with giving to the world its transactions with foreign powers.

Between the Restoration and the Revolution of 1688 all the public treaties to which Great Britain was a party were published by authority, both separately and in small collections; but no attempt was made towards the publication of any general collection, unless, indeed, something of the kind was contemplated when Joseph Williamson was empowered, by a Royal Warrant,¹ in 1669, to peruse and copy all treaties, leagues, or public acts which he should deem fit for the King's service. By virtue of this authority, Williamson formed a collection of such documents from the reign of Henry VIII. to that of Charles II.; but there is no evidence to show what was the immediate purpose of his work; probably nothing more was intended by it than a repertory of precedents. By the direction of Lord Burleigh,² an earlier compilation had been made by Arthur Agarde in the sixteenth century, and Sir Julius Cæsar, when he was Chancellor of the Exchequer, ordered a treaty-book to be drawn up for his own use.³ It would therefore seem that these collections were formed solely for official purposes.⁴

The four treaties of Breda⁵ were printed by order of Charles II. in 1667, and proclamations were also made for publishing the peace on the same occasion. A collection, comprehending seventeen treat-

ties, beginning with the commercial treaty with Spain in 1667 and ending with the Algerine treaty in 1685, was printed by direction of Secretary Lord Sunderland in March 1685.

Publication of diplomatic instruments on the Continent. Goldast's collections.

Although England had not as yet published any general collection of treaties, works of that nature were springing up on the Continent. The indefatigable Melchior Goldast has the credit of having led the way in the publication of ancient diplomatic instruments for Germany. His multifarious compilations, printed principally at Frankfort, between the years 1607 and 1614, contain many State documents, mixed up with ecclesiastical constitutions and other papers of a more miscellaneous nature.

Chifflet's collection.

In 1644, a small collection of diplomatic documents, confined exclusively to treaties between France and Spain, was compiled primarily for the use of the Spanish Plenipotentiaries at Munster, by Jean Jacques Chifflet, physician to Philip IV. of Spain, under the direction of the Spanish Governor of the Low Countries.¹

A French collection.

Another small collection, extending to treaties of all kinds to which France had been a party, was published at Amsterdam in 1650, and again in 1672.

Leonard's Recueil.

A more important work, however, was in preparation. Frederic Leonard, whose name is creditably remembered as the printer of the Delphin Classics, was employed by the French Government, as "premier Imprimeur du Roi," to print the Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle in 1668, and afterwards that of Nimeguen in 1678. Leonard, in consequence, formed the notion of publishing all the treaties made by France during that century. They appeared at different times as separate pamphlets in various types, and were sold singly or in a collected form, as his customers required. In this way he brought together as many treaties as sufficed to fill four quarto volumes, which were published at Paris in 1683. As his collections increased, Leonard became more alive to their practical importance, and, observing in what manner one treaty depended upon another, he determined to carry back his researches to the Treaty of Arras in 1435; and to publish all the treaties between that year and the nean treaty. Copies of the third edition are found with the treaty of Aix la Chapelle of the 12th of May 1668, added at the end. This little work is entitled to the honorable distinction of being the first direct collection of treaties; the precursor of a long series of useful, and some of them very magnificent volumes.

seventeenth century, to which his four volumes, already compiled, were confined. In ten years he had collected nearly three hundred treaties concluded between France and various European governments during the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. These were added to his previous collections, which now amounted to nearly six hundred documents. The whole was published in six quarto volumes at Paris in 1693, and a seventh was added in 1697.¹ A dissertation, upon the uses of the collection, drawn up by Amelot de la Houssaie, was prefixed to the work.

Contemporaneous with Leonard's "Recueil," another work of the same character was published in two volumes quarto at Nuremberg in the year 1685, under the title of "Theatrum Pacis." The seventy treaties, ranging between 1647 and 1660, of which this collection is composed, are translated into German. A second edition appeared in 1702.

The "Theatrum Pacis."

The spirit diffused by these publications extended itself into other countries. M. de Nessel, librarian to the Emperor Leopold at Vienna, meditated the idea of publishing the treaties of all nations from A.D. 1400 to A.D. 1685. Failing, however, to attain that completeness at which he aimed, he published at Vienna in 1690 a catalogue of the documents intended to be included in his work, inviting the attention and aid of the literary world. It contains the titles of more than fifty treaties between England and various foreign states.

Nessel's Catalogue of Treaties.

The diplomatic collection which immediately preceded "Rymer's Fœdera," and may almost be said to be its prototype, was the "Codex Juris Gentium Diplomaticus," of Godefrid William Leibnitz.² It was published at Hanover in March 1693, only

Leibnitz's "Codex Juris Gentium Diplomaticus" and his "Mantissa."

² In his letter dated 1 March 1693, prefixed to his preface of the "Codex Juris Gentium Diplomaticus," he writes, "Cæterum Codex iste non Germanicis tantum aut alterius populi rebus astringitur, sed pleraque Europæa attingit: nec tan-

tum pacificationum tabulas et fœdera, aliave, quæ vulgo Tractatum nomine censentur; sed et contractus matrimoniales Principum, testamenta, adoptiones, varias obligationes, pacta, conventa et alienationes; uniones territoriorum, limitum designationes; commerciorum, navigationum, et in eam rem initarum societatum articulos; recessus conventuum publicorum, edicta rem publicam afficientia ac leges fundamentales; atque etiam nonnulla Conciliorum generalium acta singularia, concordata nationum, aliæque ad rem publicam Christianarum gentium pertinentia; tum arbitraria vel lauda, et res judicatas; belli denunciations vel diffidationes, protestationes, a few months before the "Fœdera" was projected. The influence it exercised over the English editor will be noticed hereafter. The compilation of Leibnitz, taken in conjunction with the "Mantissa,"¹ which he subsequently published, comprehends treaties and other "Acta publica," from the end of the eleventh to the end of the fifteenth century. Leibnitz, like De Nessel, regarded his collections as a contribution to that literature from which the science of the diplomatist and the law of nations were to be gathered, rather than as furnishing materials for history. He has, however, in his preface to the "Mantissa,"² dwelt upon the use of diplomatic instruments, for the latter purpose, in a manner which proves that he was fully alive to the subject, never forgetting, however, that its prime use was as a "Codex Juris Gentium," for the statesman and practical lawyer.

Moetjens' Dutch collection.

Simultaneously with the appearance of the "Codex Juris Gentium," if not before its actual publication, Adrian Moetjens, a bookseller at the Hague, in conjunction with other publishers, projected a Dutch Collection of Treaties, in which he designed to incorporate such diplomatic documents as had ever been published in any part of Europe.³

² In his preface to the "Mantissa," Leibnitz gives the following account of the success of the "Codex Juris Gentium Diplomaticus:"—"Anni sunt septem, quod specimen edidi majoris operis, quo Acta publica juris Gentium selecta, et ut verbo dicam, Diplomata majora colligentur; unde Codicem Juris Gentium, eumque Diplomaticum appellavi. ³ We learn, from the very interesting preface to this work, that the community of booksellers derived considerable assistance, and procured copies of scarce diplomatic instruments, from various persons engaged in what appears to have been at that time a favourite occupation—collecting and indexing treaties. The "Recueil" of Leonard, the "Codex" of Leibnitz, and upwards of fifty other publications, were examined, and after many years of preparation the booksellers obtained the materials for their comprehensive work. It was published at Amsterdam and the Hague in 1700, in four folio volumes. The arrangement of the articles, the titles, and the preface, were the work of Jaques Bernard, a French Protestant exile, who had edited several works connected with diplomatic literature. He afterwards held a professorship at Leyden, and was for a time editor of the "Nouvelles de la republique des Lettres."

The great avidity with which collections of this kind were sought for at the close of the seventeenth century, and the popularity of such publications, undoubtedly had a share in the production of the English "Fœdera." In one year Leonard published his Recueil at Paris, Leibnitz his Codex at Hanover, Moetjens had issued his prospectus, and De Nessel was forming his collections at Vienna. Such being the condition of diplomatic literature upon the Continent in 1693, it was scarcely possible for England, with her vast stores of muniments, to have remained uninfluenced by such examples. She did not continue long passive, but took steps to place herself on a par at least with the other kingdoms of Europe.

Before I inquire what were the measures adopted by England to place herself in this position by the publication of the "Fœdera," it is essential to notice an error on the subject into which Dr. Adam Clarke, the principal editor of the latest edition of the "Fœdera," has been led by Sir Joseph Ayloffé.¹

According to Ayloffé's statement, attributed by Dr. Clarke to Thomas Astle, keeper of the Tower Records,² it appears "that Mr. Harley, afterwards Earl of Oxford, soon after the accession of

The materials, however, of this new "Recueil," were collected solely by the booksellers, and Bernard's name did not appear upon it. The work professes to range from the Nativity to the period of publication, but no treaty occurs earlier than A.D. 536. The first volume contains documents between that period and A.D. 1500. The second, to which is prefixed the introduction written by Amelot de la Houssaie for Leonard's "Recueil," extends from A.D. 1500 to 1600. The third volume comes down to A.D. 1660; and the fourth to A.D. 1700. This work, which unquestionably excels its predecessors, as well in completeness as in style and manner of its execution, sold rapidly, and within a few years became so scarce that copies of it which occurred at auctions produced as much as 150 florins. The booksellers, consequently, soon began to prepare for a new edition. They procured the editorial assistance of M. Dumont, the Imperial Historiographer, who was enabled to incorporate many new documents from the Imperial Archives, the Royal Library at Berlin, and his own collections during fifteen years. He also took advantage of the various diplomatic works which had appeared since the publication of the Dutch "Recueil," and "sertout des

"actes de Remyer." Thus was laid the foundation of the "Corps Universel Diplomatique du droit des gens," published at Amsterdam and the Hague in 14 volumes folio, afterwards increased by six supplementary volumes edited by Barbeyrac, and continued by the "Recueil" of Rousset in 21 volumes 8vo. These works were all published subsequently to the appearance of the Fœdera, but they had their origin in undertakings conceived, if not commenced, about the same period as our own collection.

² Although Astle has the credit of having written the Introduction to the Calendars of the Ancient Charters, published anonymously in 1772, and afterwards under the name of Sir Joseph Ayloffé in 1774, yet in Astle's letter to a select committee of the House of Lords, dated 1st December 1788, he makes no allusion to the statement about Harley. He writes thus, "My Lords, your Lordships having been pleased on the 12th inst. to ask my opinion concerning the accuracy of the Fœdera by Remyer and Sanderson,

The diplomatic collections on the continent led to the publication of the Fœdera.

Origin of the Fœdera erroneously attributed to Harley by Ayloffé.

“ King William and Queen Mary to the throne, formed a plan for printing, at the public expense, all the leagues, treaties, alliances, capitulations, and confederacies which had at any time been made between the Crown of England and other kingdoms, princes, and states, intermixed with such instruments and papers of State as either more immediately related to them, or were curious and useful in illustrating the English History. He communicated this design to the Earl of Halifax,¹ who laid the same before the Queen (the King being then with his army in Flanders), who was pleased to approve of it, and to appoint Mr. Rymer, Historiographer Royal, to carry the design into execution.” Mr. Harley’s interference in this matter may be questioned, for no evidence of it exists, except Ayloffie’s allegation, made nearly a century after the publication of the “Fœdera” was first projected.

But there is other evidence for supposing that Ayloffie was mistaken.

Halifax and Somers the originators of the Fœdera.

Madox, the author of the “History of the Exchequer,” in his Epistolary Dissertation, written in the year 1708, and prefixed to the “Ancient Dialogue on the Exchequer,” enumerated among the reasons which induced him to dedicate his work to Lord Halifax

“ and conceiving it to be my duty to pay attention to any question coming from your Lordships, I desire permission to lay before the committee what has since occurred to me, and what I have been able to collect concerning the reputation of the editors of this work, as well as the work itself. I find that in the year 1692 Mr. Rymer was appointed Historiographer to King William; his first warrant, empowering him to search the Public Records for the materials which compose the Fœdera, is dated 26 August 1693. His authorities were renewed by warrant from Queen Anne, dated May 3rd, 1707, when Mr. Sanderson was joined with him in the undertaking. Mr. Rymer died Dec. 14th, 1713. He was esteemed a man of considerable learning, and is generally allowed to have been an excellent antiquary and historian. After his death, Mr. Sanderson continued to add to the collection, &c.

“ I beg leave to acquaint your Lordships that for a course of twenty-five years and upwards I have had frequent occasion to consult the Fœdera, which I have considered as a work of authority.”

There is not, it will be observed, the slightest reference here to “Harley’s Plan,” nor any allusion to the want of correctness of the Fœdera, both of which points are brought prominently forward in the Introduction to the “Calendars of the Ancient Charters” ascribed to Astle.

¹ Astle has here committed a slight anachronism, Charles Montague was not created Baron Halifax until 13th Dec. 1700, and Earl of Halifax on the 19th of Oct. 1714.

Charles Montague, born on the 16th of April 1661, was the son of the Honorable George Montague. He was educated at Westminster, and chosen King’s scholar in 1677. At school he contracted a more than ordinary degree of friendship with Mr. George Stepney, whose name is connected with Rymer and Leibnitz. The two friends went to Trinity College, Cambridge, together, where they encouraged each other in their love of poetry. Montague was a fellow of Trinity in 1684, and his verses on the death of Charles the Second attracted the attention of the Earl of Dorset, who invited him to London. George Stepney, who had also written on the same subject, was also invited, but declined the invitation out of the part taken by his Lordship in promoting the publication of the "Fœdera."¹

This statement of Madox is confirmed by Dr. White Kennet, afterwards Bishop of Peterborough.²

A third witness to the origin of the work is Dr. Edmund Calamy, author of the "Lives of the Nonconformists," and who, mixing a great deal with the literary men of the period, had ample opportunities of knowing the truth.³

love of a retired life. In 1688 Montague signed the invitation to the Prince of Orange to come over to England. He purchased the place of one of the clerks of the Council, and not long afterwards the Earl of Dorset, who had been made Lord Chamberlain, introduced him to the King, with whom he soon became a favorite. In 1688-9 he was made one of the commissioners of the Treasury, and during his Majesty's absence from the Kingdom in 1698, being then first commissioner, he was appointed one of the Lords Justices of England. He was created a Peer on the 13th of December 1700, by the title of Baron of Halifax, and Earl of Halifax on the accession of George the First. He died on the 15th of May 1715. There is a portrait of Montague in the Combination Room of Trinity College, Cambridge.

² In his second letter to Nicolson, Bishop of Carlisle, on the subject of Bishop Merks (Svo. Lond. 1716), he there notices a charge brought against Rymer of having suppressed certain documents to suit party purposes. He says—"My blood was a little quick at this paragraph. Surely thought I, if the writer could not spare the Times, nor the adverse party, yet he might have spared

³ In his historical account of his own

But the testimony of Leibnitz, whose connexion with the House of Hanover and with many Englishmen gave him means of accurate information on such a subject as this, puts the question beyond dispute. He was a literary friend and correspondent of Rymer, was personally acquainted with Lord Halifax, was intimate with his most familiar friend Stepney,¹ and took, as will hereafter appear, great interest in Rymer's work. Among some of his memoranda upon literary subjects we find the following: "Promovit quidem editionem actorum publicorum Anglicanorum Rymeri Halifax, primus Gazophylacii commissarius; sumtus autem ex aerario publico facti sunt."²

In another place Leibnitz writes to the effect that Lord Halifax, first Commissioner of the Treasury, certainly forwarded Rymer's "Acta Publica Anglicana," but the cost was defrayed by the public.³

The testimony of these writers may be thought to go no farther than that Lord Somers⁴ and Lord Halifax were great promoters of life he writes, "At this troublesome time was a foundation laid for the noble collection of Rymer's Fœdera, a work so useful to the English History, containing a collection of all the leagues, treaties, alliances, capitulations, and confederacies at any time made between the Crown of England and any other kingdoms, princes, and states, &c. For the perfecting which Queen Mary signed an order, bearing date August 26th, 1693, which gave him free access to search the Records in the Tower, the Rolls, the Augmentation Office, the Exchequer, the Journals of Parliament, and the Paper Office, and to transcribe what was for his purpose, without paying any fees, &c. Of this noble work, as well as that of digesting the Records and Archives of the Kingdom, that would otherwise have lain in dust and oblivion, into a proper order, the first promoter was Charles Earl of Halifax. Upon that account, as well as several others, his name is to be mentioned with honour." Dr. Calamy's History of his Life and Times, i. 319.

¹ Speaking of those who had assisted him, Leibnitz thus mentions Rymer, who had been introduced to him by George Stepney. "Hoc autem præstitit inprimis conciliata mihi benevolentia V. Cl. Thomæ Rymeri in lucem proferendis Angliæ tabulis Regio jussu destinati, de quo mox plura dicam." Again, speaking of Rymer, he says that he had printed the title of his intended work: "Sed et Th. Rymerus supra laudatus Pandectis Anglicanarum Tabularum jam titulum in typos præire jussit."

⁴ John Somers was born at Worcester about the year 1651. The exact date cannot be ascertained, as no register of his birth has been discovered. He was the son of John Somers, a successful attorney in that city, and Catherine Ceavern, of a respectable family in Shropshire. He received the earlier part of his education under Dr. Bright at the college school at Worcester, and was matriculated and admitted at Trinity College, Oxford, on the 23rd March 1667-8, when he was only sixteen years of age. He left the University without taking a degree, and became clerk to his father. He continued in that capacity up to 24th May 1669, when he was entered as a student of the Middle Temple, and became a pupil of Sir Francis Winnington. Feeling dissatisfied with his defective education, he returned to Oxford in the year 1674, being then in the 24th year of his age, but still keeping his

the work, leaving untouched the question of its having originated with them or with any other person. The next statement bears directly upon that point. It proceeds from Le Clerc, a man thoroughly conversant with the European literature of his time.

Le Clerc received from Lord Halifax copies of the volumes of the Fœdera as they were published;¹ and by a series of articles in his "Bibliothèques" made known the value of the work. The first of these articles, written by himself, and published at Amsterdam in the 16th volume of the "Bibliothèque Choisie," contains information of importance to the present purpose. After praising highly the enlarged views of the Government which had carried out an undertaking of such magnitude, under the pressure of an expensive war, he acknowledges his obligations to Lord Halifax, "dont le mérite est connu de tout le monde, non seulement en Angleterre, mais encore deçà la mer." Then, cursorily commenting on the contents of the first volume, he finds himself, at the close of his remarks, on the verge of a metaphysical discussion, and suddenly breaks off thus: "Je ne veux pas m'engager dans ce sujet, qui est de plus grande étendue que bien des gens ne pensent, en finissant cet extrait. Il vaut mieux avertir le public, qu'il a l'obligation du premier dessein de ce Recueil à my lord Halifax et à my lord Sommers, qui l'ont aussi soutenu depuis."² terms at the Middle Temple. On the 5th of May 1676 he was called to the bar. Having mastered the common law under Winnington, he devoted himself to the civil law and the study of modern languages. In the beginning of May 1689 he was made Solicitor General; and on the 2nd of May 1692 Attorney General. On the 23rd March following he became Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, and on the 22nd April 1697 was created Lord Chancellor, and called to the Peerage by the title of Lord Somers, Baron of Evesham. That he omitted no opportunity of continuing and improving his acquaintance with constitutional studies may be inferred from his expending the large sum of 700*l.* in procuring records and precedents upon which to found his judgment in the celebrated Bankers case. In this judgment he stated "that he had caused the 'Liberate' Rolls and the bundles of petitions at the Tower to be searched from the beginning of King John's time as low as the records there go, and had some extracts made from them." The whole judgment shows a most intimate acquaintance with Records.

His private papers, which would probably have thrown light upon the origin of the Fœdera as well as upon many other important transactions, were unfortunately lost to the world in the year 1752, having been destroyed in the fire which consumed the Chambers of the Honorable Charles Yorke, No. 10, New Square, Lincoln's Inn, and out of sixty volumes quarto a few mutilated fragments only being saved. Lord Somers was removed from the Chancellorship in April 1700, impeached by the House of Commons in 1701, and acquitted by the Lords. He died on the 26th of April 1716, and was buried in the parish church of North Myms. Lord Campbell does not seem to have been aware of the active interest taken by Lord Somers in the Fœdera.

² Bibl. Choisie, xvi. p. 60, Edit. 1726.

To these testimonies may be added that of a writer whose means of information were not less accurate than those of the persons already mentioned, Peter des Maizeaux, the friend and correspondent of Bayle, who was in London during the whole period of the publication of the "Fœdera," and entertained a design of compiling an Historical Dictionary after the manner of Bayle. Among his collections, now in the British Museum, is an unfinished life of Rymer, in which the following passage is found in allusion to the "Fœdera"; "Ce Recueil, qui fait tant d'honneur à l'Angleterre, avoit été projeté par deux des plus grands hommes de nostre siècle, my Lord Somers et my Lord Halifax. Le Public leur en est redevable."¹

Thus, with some few discrepancies, Madox, Kennet, Le Clerc, and Des Maizeaux concur in attributing the publication to Lord Somers and Lord Halifax jointly; and the words of Calamy and Leibnitz by no means exclude the subsequent co-operation of Lord Somers. They merely seem to attribute the original notion to Lord Halifax.²

That these facts were unknown to Sir Joseph Ayloffé or Thomas Astle is not surprising, because much of the evidence that is now extant was not at that time to be obtained. The like excuse, however, cannot be extended to Dr. Adam Clark. He was especially directed to inquire into the origin of the "Fœdera," and he wrote two or three elaborate reports on the subject; in each of which he gives the whole credit of the design to Robert Harley, by whom, he states, it was communicated to Lord Halifax. It is difficult to account for Harley's supposed connexion with the work; but the proof is ample that he is not entitled to this honour.³ We have the direct assertion of Madox in the year 1708,—while Harley

² Another testimony, though not quite contemporaneous, yet earlier than the allegation which occurs in Sir Joseph Ayloffé's Preface, may be added to the foregoing. It is that of Tindal, the translator of Rapin's History of England, in 1743. In his preface he says, "However, when he came to the reign of Henry II., he was on the point of relinquishing his work, of which the beginning gave him no

"encouragement, when an unexpected assistance not only induced him to continue it, but also to form the project of a much larger history than what he at first intended. This assistance was Rymer's Fœdera, communicated to our author by the famous Le Clerc, to whom, being then publishing at the Government charge, the volumes were sent by the Lord Halifax, a great promoter of that noble work."

was Speaker of the House of Commons, and at the same time one of the Principal Secretaries of State, and when Rymer was in the plenitude of his reputation, having published six volumes of his work,—that Halifax and Somers were the authors of the scheme for collecting and publishing the national Acts of this Realm. If Harley, then, had had any connexion with the first suggestion of the publication or of projecting the plan, surely Madox would have made some allusion to him; Rymer too, who was intimately acquainted with Madox, would not have remained silent.

Other circumstances tend to show that Harley was not in any way a party to this publication.

(I.) At the time the “Fœdera” was first undertaken he was a member of the House of Commons, in direct opposition to the Government, of which Somers and Montague were members: Somers being then Attorney-General and Montague one of the Commissioners of the Treasury.

(II.) No contemporary writer, so far as it is at present known, ever asserted that Harley had a share in the origin of that work, nor is it claimed for him in any published biography, or in the one written by Dr. Zachary Gray which remains in manuscript;¹ nor has anything been found respecting it among the Harleian MSS. in the British Museum.

(III.) In the Biography of Montague, printed in the year 1715, it is positively stated that he was the first promoter of “Rymer’s Fœdera,”² and, as far as Somers is more immediately concerned, a personal dislike appears to have existed between him and Harley.³

Under all these circumstances, it is clear that the assertion of Ayloffé, made eighty years after the event, is not sufficient to outweigh the previous statement of contemporary persons.

Whether or not Rymer suggested the “Fœdera” to Somers

² The Works and Life of the Right Honourable Charles late Earl of Halifax, including the History of his Lordship’s Times. London, 1715.

In the dedication to George Earl of Halifax, the author says of Earl Charles:—

“His singular goodwill to posterity, in being the first promoter of Rymer’s Fœdera, and of digesting the records and

“archives of the kingdom, that would otherwise have lain in dust and oblivion, into a proper order.”

³ In the Life of Somers, 8^{vo.}, 1716, p. 119, is mentioned the very rough answer which is reported to have been given by Lord Somers to a person who advised him to be upon friendly terms with Harley. In the additional MSS. in the British Museum (No. 4244, p. 84), in a paper containing various characters founded upon original letters of Somers and others, it is stated that Harley was the restless and avowed enemy of Somers.

and Montague there is no evidence to prove; but there is no reason to suppose that the work was designed by Rymer. Neither his social position nor his reputation as an author would have given any weight to a proposition of such magnitude and importance coming from him. The character of the "Fœdera" very much increases the probability of its having originated with some one of great power and influence. An extensive publication of the national records for purposes principally historical, the open promulgation of many thousands of documents previously kept under close and jealous guardianship, was a project so directly opposed to what had been the practice of the Government of England, as to be extremely unlikely to be contemplated by any one whose official or personal authority could not be brought to bear upon the difficulties with which it was surrounded. In every point of view in which the work can be regarded, whether in its origin or the royal manner in which it was published and circulated, it seems to have been entirely an undertaking of the Government, brought about by persons of great influence at Court, and possessing a thorough knowledge of history and love of literature; in both of which essentials Somers and Montague were conspicuous.

The new work entrusted to Rymer, then Historiographer Royal.

The first step taken, after the work was determined upon, was to select an editor. The office of Historiographer Royal, which had been filled successively by James Howell, Sir William Davenant, John Dryden, and Thomas Shadwell, was then held by Thomas Rymer. The duties of that office have never been very clearly defined; but when a work of the character of the Fœdera was to be undertaken at the public expense, the materials for which were to be obtained from among those documents which constitute the most important part of historical literature, the Historiographer Royal seemed to possess something like an official right to have its execution confided to him. This was doubtless the reason for the selection of Rymer, and we do not find that he hesitated to undertake the work. It may be interesting to my readers to learn what were the motives that first directed Rymer's attention to a subject so diametrically opposite to that which had engaged his thoughts in the earlier part of his career. His contemporaries suffered him to pass away without any biographical memorial.¹ Neither Sanderson, who continued his work, nor Holmes, who edited the second edition of the Fœdera, threw any light upon his character or history, and later writers of English Biography, prejudiced against him for his daring dramatic criticisms, have made no attempts to repair this neglect.

Thomas Rymer was a younger son of Mr. Ralph Rymer,¹ a man of considerable substance and of some notoriety in his day. Lord Clarendon² describes him "as possessed of a good estate," and "of the quality of the better sort of grand jury men; he was esteemed a wise man, and was known to be trusted by the greatest men who had been in rebellion." He was lord of the manor of Brafferton in Yorkshire, and possessor of other property in the same county. Being a Roundhead of inflexible pertinacity, he enjoyed the confidence of the ruling powers of the Commonwealth, by whom he was appointed treasurer of the district in which he resided. Before the commencement of the royal troubles, he held an estate in Yafforth and Wickmore in Yorkshire of Sir Edward Osborne, Bart., at an annual rent of 200*l*. Sir Edward, being a determined royalist, had his estates sequestrated, and Ralph Rymer became proprietor of the lands which he had previously occupied as tenant.

Some account of Rymer and his family.

At the Restoration he was compelled to give up, not only this property, but also a great deal more, which it was alleged he wrongfully enjoyed.

Sir Thomas Osborne, son of Sir Edward, petitioned the King on the 21st April 1663 to have his lands restored, which had been sequestrated and were in the possession of Ralph Rymer.³ The petition was referred to the Lord High Treasurer, who thereupon reported to the King "that the petitioner and his father had been eminently loyal in the service of the Crown, and that Mr. Rymer deserves a very contrary character." Thus compelled to make restoration, Rymer entered into a conspiracy, and joined the "Presbyterian Rising" in the autumn of 1663.

The professed object of the conspiracy was to get rid of the payment of subsidies and excise; to re-establish a gospel magistracy and ministry; to restore the Long Parliament; and to curb the gentry, lawyers, and clergy. The night of the 12th of October witnessed the commencement and termination of this ill-devised plot. The insurgents were vigorously attacked and completely routed and the ringleaders captured.

On the 7th of January 1664 a commission¹ was issued to try the conspirators for high treason, and twenty-two² were condemned to be drawn, hanged, and quartered at York.

Ralph Rymer,³ senior, was among the number⁴ and ended his life on the scaffold. Many others were kept in prison. One of these was Ralph Rymer, his eldest son, who, on the 25th of July following, was sentenced to imprisonment for his life in York Castle, with forfeiture of all his goods and lands. By a long and close duration he was reduced to such a weak condition that he excited the compassion of the high sheriff and deputy lieutenants of the county, who forwarded his petition to the King that he might be liberated on bail. On the 15th of May 1666, after nearly three years of ignominious confinement, the high sheriff and three of the deputy lieutenants of Yorkshire certify to the King "that Ralph Rymer, now a prisoner in the castle of York, is weak in body, being both hydropical and consumptive, and that they cannot apprehend him to be a man able to continue long in that air and duration."⁵

His Majesty compassionated the prisoner, and allowed him to go at large upon bond on the 16th of July following,⁶ Sir Robert Strickland, Sir Thomas Strickland, Sir Jordan Crosland, and Sir Richard Graham, being his sureties.

² Mr. Secretary Bennet, in a letter to the Duke of Ormond, dated 20th of January 1664, writes, "Our letters from York tell us the judges have found fifteen guilty, and this, by the proof of two witnesses against each of them, as well as their own confessions, so that by the next, I suppose, we shall send your Grace the sentence and execution of at least so many." The Rev. James Ruine of York has, however, discovered and printed in Vol. 10 of the Surtees Society, a very educated at a private school kept by Thomas Smelt, at Danby Wisk. One of his schoolfellows was the celebrated Dr. George Hickea, who states that Rymer was "a great favorite of his master," and, at the time when he wrote, was very learned and ingenious, "and well known for his great critical skill in human learning, especially in poetry and history." Thomas Burnet, Master of the Charter House, and Dr. Radcliffe, the celebrated physician, also were pupils of Mr. Smelt.

Smelt was a loyalist; and although he endeavoured during the civil war and the usurpation to conceal his principles, there were occasions upon which they would discover themselves even in the school. "North Allerton," remarks Dr. Hickea, "is a noted thoroughfare on the northern road, through which part of the army of those times, both horse and foot, did often march; and we observed that as soon as he heard the sound of drum or trumpet his countenance did always fall, and it usually was a good while before he could recollect himself and reform his disordered looks. The officers of the army would sometimes come to beg play-days, but he would never grant it; and once, one of Cromwell's great commanders, whose name I have forgot, lying in the town, he sent one of his officers in his name to beg a play-day, but as I remember he would not grant it, and this coming to the knowledge of the boys who went to petition the major-general to make that request unto him, he chastised them in a most severe manner, and had like to have turned them out of the school. I remember when we read Justin's History he made many reflections upon Agathocles, which he intended we should understand of the Protector, inasmuch that, being a young scholar at Oxford when the life of Agathocles came out, without the author's name, I could not but think it had been written by some that had been his scholar before my time. When we came to read Homer, he would take occasion

(in which parish Appleton-upon-Wisk is situate) until 1650. The date of 1638, however, must be incorrect, inasmuch as the entry in the Sidney College book shows that Thomas Rymer was 17 years old in 1658, and therefore must have been born early in 1641. I am informed, through the medium of Mr. W. T. Jefferson, of Northalerton, that, "the first Thomas Rymer that

" occurs in the book of baptisms of Appleton Wisk was baptized in 1679, and was the youngest son of John Rymer. After that date there are several Thomas Rymers." I think it therefore quite clear that the Rymers of Appleton Wisk are only collaterally connected with Thomas Rymer the historiographer.

 those which he himself advocated upon his first entrance into the world, leads to the inference that he, as well as Hickes, had felt the influence of Mr. Smelt’s lectures against rebels and regicides.
 Under his tuition Rymer remained eight years.

I am inclined to think that this Thomas Rymer belonged to the family of the Rymers at Appleton-upon-Wisk, and only collaterally connected with the Historiographer. I may here mention that I have received a great deal of information relating to the Rymers of Appleton from Mr. W. T. Jefferson, High Bailiff of Northallerton, and I avail myself of this opportunity to record my obligations to that gentleman for his very kind assistance, as also to Mr. J. Horner, Head Master of the Northallerton Grammar School, for his polite attention to my requests.

troubles and those of his family cast a dark shadow over the life of Rymer, and reduced him to great extremities. He struggled hard against misfortune, but though he lived to a venerable age yet he never obtained independence, or was able to surmount the "res angusta domi."

On the 2nd of May 1666,¹ he became a member of the Honourable Society of Gray's Inn, but was not called to the bar until the 16th of June 1673.²

Becomes a Member of Gray's Inn.

As early as 1668 he made his first appearance as an author, and became a candidate for public fame by publishing a translation of a Latin Treatise that had been compiled for Prince Henry, entitled "Cicero's Prince. The reasons and counsels for settlement and "good government of a kingdom, collected out of Cicero's works." This work he dedicated to the Duke of Monmouth. He did not appear again as an author until September 1677. This time he produced a tragedy called "Edgar, or the English Monarch,"³ dedicated to the King. It is written in rhyme, and evidently alludes throughout to the recent political struggles of England. "This," he says, "I call an Heroic Tragedy, having in it chiefly "sought occasions to extoll the English Monarchy; and having "writ it in that verse which, with Cowley, Denham, and Waller, "I take to be the most proper for epic poetry." Rymer, however, was not discouraged; immediately afterwards, he issued, in a letter to Fleetwood Shephard, Esq.,³ “The Tragedies of the last Age considered and examined by the practice of the ancients and by the common sense of all ages.” In this work he was unmerciful on three of Fletcher’s plays, and

² The reader interested about the criticisms and dramatic powers of Rymer will peruse with pleasure “An Essay on the Drama” by Sir Walter Scott, first published in the “Encyclopedia Britannica,” and afterwards in his Collected Prose works, vol. 6, p. 366, and will come to the conclusion “that it was possible for a Drama to be extremely regular, and, at the same time, intolerably dull.” The fate of Rymer’s Tragedy has been illustrated by the inimitable humour of Addison in No. 692 of “The Spectator.” Describing different theatrical properties, he says—“They are provided with above

“a dozen showers of snow, which, as I am informed, are the plays of many unsuccessful poets artificially cut and shredded for that use. Mr. Rymer’s Edgar is to fall in snow at the next acting of King Lear, in order to heighten, or rather alleviate, the distress of that unfortunate prince, or to serve by way of decoration to a piece which that great critic has written against.”

³ Fleetwood Shephard or Sheppard was a great friend of Matthew Prior, the poet, and to whom Prior addressed the celebrated epistle, asking for a place at Court, and for an introduction to the Earl of Dorset.

exhibited himself as a strenuous advocate for the Aristotelian principles in the drama, and laid down those canons of dramatic criticism which have exposed him to so much censure, and which he afterwards so unhappily applied to some of the noblest works of Shakespeare.¹

Whatever may have been Rymer's learning, he certainly had few qualifications for a critic. Lord Macaulay, speaking of him, remarks, "Rymer we take to have been the worst critic that ever lived." The liberties he took with Shakespeare exposed him to the wrath of that poet's admirers, who naturally contrasted the dramatic talents of the critic with those of the person whose writings he has with so much rigour attacked. His failure in this walk of literature perhaps induced him to turn his thoughts to graver subjects, and in which his talents were better adapted to shine, and his profession to illustrate.

In 1683, Rymer translated "The Life of Nicias by Plutarch," included in the general collection of the Lives by Plutarch, Englished by Dryden and other scholars of the time.

¹ Dryden, having received from Rymer a copy of his work, wrote those remarkable observations on it on the blank leaves of the volume which Dr. Johnson has preserved in his Life of Dryden (pp. 128-135).

On the whole Dryden thought well of it, though he dissents from many of Rymer's conclusions and prejudices, and sums up the evidence against him in the following words: "My judgment on the piece is this; that it is extremely learned, but that the author of it is better read in the Greek than in the English poets; that all writers ought to study this critique, as the best account I have ever seen of the ancients; that the model of tragedy he has here given is excellent and extremely correct, but that is not the only model of all tragedy, because it is too much circumscribed in plot, characters, &c.; and lastly, that we may be taught here justly to admire and imitate the ancients without giving them the preference with this author in prejudice to our country."

Dr. Johnson, in comparing the criticisms of Rymer with those of Dryden, says; "The different manner and effect with which critical knowledge may be conveyed was perhaps never more clearly exemplified than in the performances of

"Rymer and Dryden. It was said of a dispute between two mathematicians 'malim cum Sealigero errare, quam cum Clavio recte sapere;' that it was more eligible to go wrong with one than right with the other. A tendency of the same kind every mind must feel at the perusal of Dryden's prefaces and Rymer's discourses. With Dryden we are wandering in quest of truth, whom we find, if we find her at all, drest in the graces of elegance; and if we miss her, the labour of the pursuit rewards itself; we are led only through fragrance and flowers. Rymer, without taking a nearer, takes a rougher way; every step is to be made through thorns and brambles; and truth, if we meet her, appears repulsive by her mien, and ungraceful by her habit. Dryden's criticism has the majesty of a queen; Rymer's has the ferocity of a tyrant."

Disraeli, in his "Amenities of Literature" (vol. 2, p. 187, Ed. 1859), states that Rymer translated the "Reflections on Aristotle's Treatise of Poetry" by Père Rapin, to which he prefixed an ingenious critical preface on comparative poetry. Disraeli's very pertinent and interesting remarks on Rymer and his Shakesperian criticisms are well worthy of the reader's attention.

In 1684 he published a tract "Of the Antiquity, Power, and Decay of Parliaments, being a general view of Government and Civil Policy in Europe; with other Historical and Political observations relating therunto." It is in the form of a letter to a person of eminence,¹ and, like all Rymer's publications, shows extensive reading; but is rather to be regarded as a party pamphlet than as a philosophical investigation. He commences thus: "Sir,—See the effect of your commands. The want of time, of books, and assistance, in this my retirement, make me very incapable of the undertaking. But my obedience and performance with a kid will, I hope, be accepted, when I cannot sacrifice an hundred bulls."

It is amusing to find him at this time reflecting in the following style upon the worth of that office, to which he was afterwards nominated: "You are not to expect truth from an historiographer royal; it may drop from their pen by chance, but the general herd understand not their business; they fill us with story, accidental, incoherent, without end or side, and never know the government or policy where they write. Even the Records themselves are not always accurately worded."

In 1688 he is said by Des Maizeaux and Aubrey² to have written the Preface to the "Historia Ecclesiastica carmine Elegiaco concinnata; authore Thoma Hobbes Malmesburiensi. Opus posthumum." This may have given rise to the report that Rymer wrote the Life of Hobbes, but as to which there seems to be some question; there can, however, be but little doubt that Richard Blackbourne, M.A., of Trinity College, Cambridge, contributed the Preface, which Rymer would scarcely have permitted had he written the Life. The editor states that the Life was written "a docto quodam, summo ejus amico," and came to him through J. A., initials which are understood to mean "John Aubrey." The Life is attributed to Rymer by Des Maizeaux in the incomplete French Life of Rymer already referred to, and also by the writer of the Life of Hobbes in the "Biographia Britannica" (iv. 2,615).

In the same year (1688), Rymer wrote three pieces in the collection of "Poems to the Memory of Edmund Waller;" one strictly afterwards became one of Rymer's patrons. This tract was reprinted in 1689, and again in 1714.

other poetical productions of Rymer.

In 1689 he published a poem on the arrival of Queen Mary February 12th, 1688-9. It appeared three days after that event.

In 1692 appeared his translation of the sixth Elegy of the Third Book of Ovid's "Tristia." This is included among the "Miscellany Poems" published by Dryden, 2nd edition, 1692, p. 148.

On the death of Thomas Shadwell in 1692, either Rymer's necessities, or the gratitude of his party, procured for him the office of Historiographer Royal. Shadwell had held this post in conjunction with the Laureateship, as Dryden had done before him, but on his death the offices were divided. Tate was appointed Poet Laureate, and Rymer Historiographer Royal,² on the same day, at a salary of 200*l.* per annum.

Rymer appointed Historiographer Royal.

Immediately after his appointment he published, under the following title, "A Short View of Tragedy; its original Excellency and Corruption. With some reflections on Shakespeare and other practitioners for the stage, by Mr. Rymer, servant to their Majesties." This work he dedicated to the Earl of Dorset,³ Lord Chamberlain, to whom, in all probability, he was indebted for his office. It is clear that Rymer had been known to this nobleman

² Dryden, perhaps nettled at one of Rymer's criticisms upon him, hints at the difference the public was likely to experience between the present Royal Historiographer and him whose place he occupied, and wrote these humorous lines to Tate given by Scott in his Life of Dryden, section vii.

³ Charles Sackville, Earl of Dorset and Middlesex, was born on the 24th of January 1637-8. He sat, as Lord Buckhurst, as member for East Grinstead. He went with the Duke of York as a volunteer during the Dutch war in 1665, and the night before the battle of Solebay is said to have composed the song beginning, "To all you ladies now at land we men at sea indite," which is generally esteemed the happiest of his poetical productions. Upon the death of his uncle, James Cranfield, Earl of Middlesex, the estates devolved upon him, and he obtained the title in 1675. He succeeded his father as Earl of Dorset in August 1677. He openly espoused the interest of the Prince of Orange, and was selected to convey the Princess Anne, afterwards Queen, out of the reach of danger from her father's displeasure. King William the Third appointed him Lord Chamberlain of the Household, and made him a Privy Councillor. The Garter was conferred upon him in February 1691; and he attended the King to the congress at the Hague in the year following. He retired on account of delicate health from active political life about the year 1698, and died on the 19th of January 1705-6.

for some time, for he professes that his countenance had supported him against the public indignation excited by his former work upon the drama, or, as he expresses it, "supported a righteous cause " against the prejudice and corruption then reigning."

At the conclusion of his previous work upon tragedy he had promised that upon some future occasion he would resume the subject, with an examination of the Othello and Julius Cæsar of Shakespeare, and the Catiline of Ben Jonson. At the same time he had stated that he should append "some reflections on that Paradise Lost of Milton's, which some are pleased to call a poem;" but either public indignation, or his engagement upon the "Fœdera," prevented him from executing his design.

Bitter feeling against him.

As a specimen of the bitter feeling exhibited against Rymer, the reader will find in the note below a scurrilous satire which appeared under the title of "Garreteer Poet," in a print representing Rymer and his distressed family in a miserable attic.¹

His qualifications as editor of the Fœdera.

It may be thought, upon a cursory glance at the literary labours of Rymer at the time of his appointment as "Historiographer Royal," that they afford but little indication of fitness for the important work that was about to be entrusted to him. We might conclude that it was unfortunate that the office of Historiographer Royal, by virtue of which he obtained the appointment of editor of the Fœdera, was not at that time filled by Tyrrell, Brady, or Madox,

¹ "In one corner of this poetical apartment stood a flock bed, and underneath it a green jordan presented itself to the eye, which had collected the nocturnal urine of the whole family, consisting of Mr. Rymer, his wife, and two daughters; three rotten chairs and a half seemed to stand like traps in various parts of the room, threatening downfall to unwary strangers; and one solitary table in the middle of this aerial apartment served to hold the different treasures of the whole family: there was now lying upon it, the first act of a comedy, a pair of yellow stays, two political pamphlets, a plate of bread and butter, three dirty night caps, and a volume of miscellaneous poems. The lady of the house was drowning a neck of mutton in meagre soup, and their two daughters sat in the windows mending their father's brown stockings with blue worsted. Such was the mansion of Mr. Rymer,

"the poet; and to complete his misfortunes, instead of an expected reward for his works from a nobleman, he brought home as a present little Pompey. This so exasperated his wife, that with savage hands she seized his works on the table, and was going to commit them to the flames, but her husband's voice interrupted her, crying out,—'See! see! see! my dear, the pot boils over, and 'the broth is all running into the fire.' This, luckily, put an end to their debate; they sat down to dinner without a table-cloth, envying one another every morsel that escaped their own mouths."—See Caulfield's Portraits, Memoirs and Characters of Remarkable Persons, &c., 1819, Vol. I., p. 50. Rymer appears with a cocked hat and long flapped coat and breeches; no sword, but under his arm a King Charles spaniel, evidently the Pompey alluded to in the description.

or some other person avowedly acquainted with the historical if not with the record literature of the country. A political play, party pamphlets, and absurd dramatic criticisms, do not seem to be a very fitting preparation for so important a task. If, however, we examine Rymer's publications more closely, we shall find reason to moderate our opinion. That he was a man of sound learning is indisputable. The references scattered throughout his books give evidence of reading far removed from that of an ordinary student, and in his researches into the history of poetry and the drama he exhibits an acquaintance with the English monastic chronicles and antiquarian writers, and some knowledge also of the Cottonian and Bodleian libraries, which in his time was not common. His deficiency in the knowledge of the actual forms and characters of records, was perhaps more than counterbalanced by a greater competency to judge of their general value.

Within eight months after his appointment as Historiographer Royal, fresh honours awaited Rymer. He was directed to carry out the great national work which Montague and Somers had recommended. It was probably the friendship of George Stepney¹ that procured him the honourable distinction which has placed his name on the roll of fame, and rendered it familiar to all scholars from one end of Europe to the other.

Appointed editor of the Fœdera.

Of Rymer's personal character and the circumstances of his life at the time of his appointment to this important post, we know comparatively nothing. That he lived in an honourable intimacy with Hobbes and Waller there is no doubt, and that he addressed Bishop Nicolson as his "old acquaintance" is equally clear. Familiar allusions to various members of several noble families are scattered throughout his writings, and John Dunton styles him the "orthodox and modest Rymer." Dr. Smith thought well of him, and George Stepney numbered him amongst his friends. In Thoresby's Diary he is alluded to, some years later, as "good old Mr. Rymer;" and Bishop Kennett, writing after his death, mentions him with respect. Until this period of his life he

¹ George Stepney, descended from the ancient family of Prendergast, was born in Westminster in 1663, and educated at the public school there. Having been chosen King's scholar in 1676, he went to Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1682. He was appointed a Commissioner of Trade in 1697, and was constantly employed in foreign

appears to have spent his time in the country, probably in Essex, as might be inferred from various allusions in his poetical works. He certainly wrote his treatise on Parliaments "in retirement," for in his letter to Fleetwood Shephard he mentions that he had several times come to London to see that gentleman at St. James's. What were his pecuniary means at this period is equally unknown. He could not have inherited any property from his father, as all his possessions, goods, and chattels had been forfeited to the Crown on his attainder. Previously to his conviction he had assigned to his son a mortgage from a Mr. Wood of certain lands in Kirkby Wisk. Probably this mortgage was all that Rymer had for his support, except the small precarious income he may have derived from his publications, for literary labour at that time was so badly paid, that authors even of reputation and undoubted merit probably could not derive more than a pittance from the exercise of their pens. If the genius of Dryden was so ill requited, we may easily infer that the press was no fertile source of emolument to Rymer, who had little genius and no popularity. The salary attached to his office of 200*l.* per annum, equal to about 333*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* of our present money, must have been a great boon to a man who, if the scurrilous attacks upon him may be trusted, was then living in abject penury and distress.

History of the Fœdera.

The history of the rise and progress of the "Fœdera" is of so much interest in a literary point of view, that I feel no hesitation in entering fully upon the subject, especially as I have obtained, through the kindness of many friends, ample materials for the purpose. I may be forgiven, in tracing the history of a great national work, the first and in some respects the most important of the kind ever undertaken at the public expense, if I lay before my readers the materials I have been able to collect with no little assiduity. Probably such details do not exist for the history of any other literary work of a similar nature.

Rymer received his appointment on the 26th of August 1693, under the Sign Manual of Queen Mary, who possibly may not have forgotten his complimentary poem on her arrival in England a few years before. The order directs him "to transcribe and publish" all the leagues, treaties, alliances, capitulations, and confederacies, "which have at any time been made between the Crown of England and any other kingdoms, princes, and states, as a work highly conducing to our service and the honour of this our realm." The better to enable him to carry out the work "he is empowered

“ to have free liberty and access from time to time to search “ into the records in our Tower of London, in the Rolls, in “ the Augmentation Office, our Exchequer, the Journals of both “ Houses of Parliament, or any other places where records are kept,¹ “ for such records as we have or shall direct, and the same to tran-“ scribe: And that he also have access from time to time to our “ library at St. James’s, and our Paper Office, upon such matters “ as we have or shall appoint for our service, without paying any “ fees; whereof the respective officers and all other persons whom “ it may concern are to take notice and yield due obedience to our “ pleasure herein declared.”

Unfortunately Rymer has not left behind him any papers or memoranda from which it can be gleaned what assistance he received in the way of digests, tables, or calendars, to facilitate his researches. There, however, can be no doubt that he took the “Codex Juris Gentium Diplomaticus” of Leibnitz as his model; at least, this is, I think, the natural interpretation to be put on the words of Leibnitz himself, when speaking on the subject. “Professus est nostro

He adopts the

 as his model.

¹ Several warrants and orders of Council for access to the public records, differing in form according to the several purposes for which they were granted, are in existence. One, granted to Joseph Williamson, has been already noticed. Another, granted to Sir Edward Dering, for his encouragement in the study of antiquities, has been printed among Hearne’s additions to Leland’s Collectanea, I. 633, in the Archæologia, VIII. 439, and in Cooper on the Public Records, II. 426. Similar favours were conceded to Ferdinando Pulton, editor of the Collection of Statutes published in 1618 (vide Authentic Edition, Introd. I. xxiii. xxvii); to Dr. Plot, who had very extensive powers of research. Gilbert Burnet received permission “to search the Paper Office, in order to finishing the History of the Reformation of this Church.” His holograph letter on the subject, dated 24th July [1679], and directed to Sir Joseph Williamson, is still extant in the Public Record Office.

There is also a letter from Prince Rupert to Williamson, stating, “Mr. Roger Le Strange is about writing a History of of the Civill Wares of England whoe desires to serch in the Paper Office to find out there some passages which may be very convenient for that purpose. I “ have already spoken to his Ma^e whoe

 “ desire to you therefore is that you admitt
 “ the said Mr. Le Strange to looke into “ those papers in the said office accord“ ingly, and for so doeing you will oblige

 24th of June 1700 Vernon informs Sir
 Joseph Williamson that “Mr. John Strype
 “ having humbly represented to his Ma^e
 “ that he intends to publish a History of “ the Ecclesiastical State of the Kingdome
 “ in the last Age and prayed he might have “ matters as he shall judge usefull to his “ purpose. His Ma^e commands me to “ signifie his pleasure to you that the said “ Mr. John Strype have admittance to the “ said office according to his desire.” On the 7th June 1768, David Hume, having applied for permission to inspect papers and books in the Paper Office and elsewhere,

 Lord Shelburne desired Sir Joseph Ayloffe,
 Dr. Ducarel, and Mr. Astle to allow Mr.
 David Hume to inspect any of the papers in their several offices.

“ se exemplo excitatum, eosdemque sibi limites præscripsit, à quibus
 “ Tomus noster primus cœpit, annum æræ Christianæ 1101.”
 Moreover, in a letter to Leibnitz, Rymer says, “ I am most obliged “ in many ways to you, who have shone with such great praise as “ my guide and predecessor in this province. I feel the greatest pos“ sible gratitude to you on that account. Your kindness touches “ me still more keenly respecting the treaty you intend to send me
 “ as a present, although I already possess it, and indeed almost “ everything relating to us which has a place in your ‘Codex “ Diplomaticus.’” In another letter, undated, Rymer writes to Leibnitz, “ ut videas qualiter labores quos, te hortante, te laudante, “ te præcunte, susceperam.” Besides having Leibnitz’s Collection as the prototype of his work, he had the benefit of Agarde’s Collection of Treaties for his guidance; a fact that cannot be disputed, for in the first receipt given by him to the Chamberlains of the Exchequer for documents entrusted to him to copy, he acknowledges having received, “ A Book of Abbreviations of Leagues by Arthur Agarde.”¹
 It is therefore clear that Rymer had determined to follow the plan² adopted by Leibnitz, and availed himself of such tables, digests, and calendars, as came within his reach; this, indeed, was his duty, and he could not have had a better guide than Agarde’s collection.
 It is also clear that he made his researches personally. He appears to have commenced his labours within the first month after his appointment; for I find him working at the Chapter House, Westminster, and giving a receipt to the Auditor and Under-Chamberlains of the Exchequer for certain documents entrusted to his care as early as the 18th of September 1693.

Neither in his dedications to Queen Anne, nor in his General
 Preface to the reader, has Rymer pointed out the plan he followed in forming his collection. I have therefore endeavoured to discover what were the leading principles he laid down for his own guidance.

 (i. 444), thus describes these abbreviations: “ A collection of all leagues, and “ treaties of peace, entercourses and “ marriages with foreign nations; which “ book was three years’ labour and was “ very carefully preserved for the King’s “ service. The writer and collector there-
 “ of took order that it should be preserved
 “ in his Majesty’s Court of Receipt, under “ the charge and custody of the officers
 “ there, and to be delivered to them by “ inventory, because it is very necessary

 “ for the King’s use, good of the subject,
 “ and readiness and light to the officers.”

² Leibnitz intimates that he had seen two title-pages by Rymer for the Fœdera, the larger one of which he prints, at least so I understand his words: “ Sed “ Rymneriani operis editam inscriptionem, “ posteriorem scilicet, eamque priore am“ pliorem, (nemo enim intelligens hic pro-“ lixitatem tituli culpabit) qualis autoris
 “ m’ssu ad nos pervenit.”

His object appears to have been two-fold; first, to publish all records of alliances or other transactions in which England was concerned with foreign powers from the year 1101 down to his own times;¹ secondly, to limit his collection to the originals preserved in the Royal Archives, adding thereto such documents from the Cottonian, Lambeth, and the Universities' Libraries as might serve to supply the links required in the chain of evidence.

Either through jealousy, or perhaps necessary strictness, Rymer seems to have experienced some little difficulty at the Exchequer in obtaining the documents required for his work, although the Queen's warrant had given him free access to all the public muniments of the kingdom. At all events, he was compelled to apply to the King in Council for relief. On the 12th of April 1694, the Lord Keeper of the Great Seal was directed by an order in Council to issue a writ to the Lords Commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury and to the Chamberlains of the Exchequer, "authorising and " desiring them to deliver to Thomas Rymer, from time to time, all Difficulties in carrying on his work.

¹ This was in one respect a more extensive plan than that of Leibnitz, inasmuch as Rymer intended to bring down his collections two centuries later than that of the "Codex Diplomaticus." In another point it was more limited, as he confined himself to the transactions of England with other states, whereas Leibnitz had extended his to the affairs of Europe generally. On the subject of the difference between the plans of Leibnitz and Rymer the following letter from Dr. Thomas Smith to Humphrey Wanley will be interesting to the reader:—

"Mr. Rymer's designe (about which he is now employed, and for the carrying on which hee has the encouragement of the Government, with an ample pension, under the title and qualification of Historiographer Regius), tho' highly and truly laudable, does not fully come up to what I propose and wish were done; for hee only will take in the Diplomata of our Kings and Princes, their contemporaries and allies, with the bulls of Popes, for those four or five hundred yeares last past, being such a worke as the 'Codex Juris Gentium Diplomaticus' published by my excellently learned friend Monsieur Leibnitz, chiefly out of the archives of the famous Library of Wolfenbuttel about four yeares since, and the six volumes of Publick Acts and

Charters relating to the kingdom of France not long since printed at Paris

"London, 3 July 1697.

"For Mr. Humphrey Wanley, at University College in Oxford.

"MS. Harl. 3782, p. 251."

H. Wanley's answer, dated 5 July 1697, is printed in the Letters from the Bodleian Library, vol. i., pp. 83-87.

When Rymer commenced, he does not appear to have meditated the introduction into the Fœdera of any documents preserved in foreign Archives; but he seems to have extended his plan in a few instances. In his second volume, pp. 226-230 and pp. 230-234, he published two documents concerning the duel proposed between the Kings of Arragon and Sicily in 1282, with these references: "Ex Archivo Reg. Palensi" and "Ex Archivo Episcopi Albicensis." There is in his first volume a convention between Henry III. and Louis IX., dated 1259; the French text of which is accompanied with a Latin translation, in parallel columns, thus headed:— "Ex quodam transcripto Archiepiscopi Burdegal. inter alia, hanc conventionem " habemus Latine redditam, hisce verbis;" but it does not appear whether the transcript was procured from Bordeaux, or how Rymer obtained it.

“ Leagues, Treaties, Alliances, Capitulations, and Confederacies, with “ all other records relating thereunto, remaining in the several Treasuries of the Exchequer which he shall have occasion of and desire,
 “ to be delivered back by him unto the said Treasurer.” Accordingly, on the 6th of June following, a writ was sent to the Commissioners of the Treasury and to the Chamberlains of the Exchequer, directing them to permit Rymer to have any and what leagues, treaties, &c. he might require, on an undertaking by indenture to be given by him that he would safely return the same into the Treasury. Afterwards, on the 11th of July, he was informed by one of the Deputy Chamberlains, that the Lords of the Treasury had directed that the writ should be executed with the restrictions and limitations following, viz.: that the Deputy Chamberlains should not suffer Mr. Rymer to carry any records out of the Treasury, but that a place should be separated in one Treasury, by boards, doors, and locks, from the other part of the Treasury; in which separated place no records should be left; and that they were to deliver to Mr. Rymer so many records only and no more at a time (and that by indenture) that he could get copied out in that separated place in a week’s time, and to deliver him no more till those were returned, and that he should not carry any away to any other place. To this message Mr. Rymer agreed, and also that the place should be at the entrance and going into the Chapter House in the Abbey before coming into the round building. I have been particular in mentioning these facts, because it has been reported and commonly believed that Rymer had unlimited access to the documents in the Chapter House, with power to remove them to his own house,¹ and that several very important instruments were never returned. It is, however, true that many documents which can be proved to have passed through Rymer’s hands are not now forthcoming, but there is no ground for charging him with their loss, as the receipts of the officers of the Exchequer for nearly all that he used at the Chapter House are still extant.

His receipts for the documents
 he used.

Of Rymer’s method of proceeding we know but little. Many of the receipts that he gave to the officers of the Chapter House for the records which passed through his hands are still extant in the Public Record Office, but it would be impossible to divine from them his plan of operations. In Appendix IX. will be found a copy of the first receipt given by him, dated 18th September 1693; by which it appears that all the documents he then received belonged to the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. His next receipt, dated the 1st of August 1694, is for documents of a very miscellaneous character of the reigns of Henry III., Edward I., Edward III., Richard II., Henry IV., Henry V., Henry VI., and Edward IV. His third receipt is dated 11th August 1694, and refers only to documents of the same period, except one styled "a deed in Henry " the 1st time of Flanders," and which in all probability is the instrument with which the "Fœdera" commences.

We catch some interesting glimpses of Rymer at work through Thoresby in his "Diary and Correspondence."¹ He states "that he "walked with Mr. Churchill to Westminster, and there visited the "industrious antiquary and ingenious poet, Mr. Rymer, whom we "found amongst the musty records, supervising his amanuensis "transcribing." These facts and other evidences which exist on the same subject prove that Rymer gave his personal attention to the searches, selections, and transcription of the various instruments for the "Fœdera."

About this time, that is, in 1694, Rymer commenced his acquaintance with Leibnitz, and was materially influenced by him in the plan and formation of the "Fœdera." A correspondence between the two scholars was brought about by George Stepney, the poet. As both were engaged in the publication of diplomatic collections, they were naturally drawn together, and a friendly interchange of letters continued between them for many years.

His first acquaintance with Leibnitz.

On the 5-15 October 1694, Leibnitz wrote as follows to George Stepney; "Dr. Smith, a very learned man, and author of several "excellent books, has very obligingly written to me, and informed "me that Mr. Rymer, a learned man, who has hitherto devoted "himself to poetry and 'belles lettres,' is now working at a collection of monuments of English history, and has obtained permis-

Correspondence between Rymer and Leibnitz.

¹ (Vol. i. p. 296.) "On the 18th of January 1709 visited the ingenious Mr. Madox (son of my late dear friend Mr. Madox), the author of Formulare Anglicanum, and who is now upon a noble design, the History of the Exchequer. I afterwards visited our countryman, good old Mr. Rymer, her Majesty's Historiographer, who was born at Yafforth Hall near Northampton, who has published seven or eight volumes, in folio, of the public Leagues and Treaties of Foreign States, &c." (Vol. II., p. 24.) "On the 22nd of January 1709, in returning" (from Soho Square), "called at Mr. Rymer's, who presented me with his three letters to the Bishop of Carlisle." (Ibid., p. 27.) I have been able to find only two of the letters to which Thoresby alludes. "On the 13th of August 1712 visited the learned Mr. Anstis, and in the same court our countryman, Mr. Rymer, the Historiographer Royal, who would needs engage me to visit him again to show me more curiosities." (Ibid., p. 156.)

“ sion to examine the archives ; as the History of Brunswick (with “ which I sometimes occupy myself) has a great connexion with “ that of England, at certain periods, especially during the 12th
 “ and 13th centuries, I hope Mr. Rymer will be able to favour us “ with many things, and we should not be ungrateful. If we could “ have, by his means, catalogues of documents and manuscripts, we “ should be much obliged, for then a selection might be made from “ them. One of my friends has a Latin history of the church of “ Ely, very old, which might throw light on the history of England,
 “ and I could furnish many other documents of that nature. As to “ Dr. Smith, I will write direct to him, but not having the honour “ of Mr. Rymer’s acquaintance I hope that your interposition may be “ useful to me.”¹

There can be no doubt that the formal introduction of Rymer to Leibnitz was effected by Stepney, for Leibnitz writes as follows:
 “ Ex Anglia misit aliqua Gilbertus Burnetus, reverendissimus “ Sarisberiensium episcopus ; in quo pro meritis provehendo res “ publica literariaque certavere, et qui tot aliis doctrinis laudibusque “ etiam actorum publicorum perquisitionem conjunxit. Præterea “ Stepneius, Ablegatus Regius, non minus gerendis principum “ negotiis, quam eorum gestis prosa versaue eloquentia ornandis “ aptus, obtinuit nobis insignia ex publicis tabulariis monumenta, “ quæ cum pleraque historiam Brunsvicensem aliquando illustrare “ possint, nonnulla tamen etiam hinc præsentì operi convenire sunt “ visa. Hoc autem præstitit inprimis conciliata mihi benevolentia
 “ V. Cl. Thomæ Rymeri in lucem proferendis Angliæ tabulis Regio “ jussu destinati, de quo mox plura dicam.” Shortly afterwards he states that Rymer had printed the title of his intended work:
 “ Sed et Th. Rymerus supra laudatus pandectis Anglicarum tabu“ larum jam titulum in typos præire jussit.”

A rough draft of one of Rymer’s letters in Latin to Leibnitz² is still in existence ; it bears no date, but it must have been written shortly after Stepney had made the two scholars acquainted with each other ; probably in 1695. He writes, “ When I first heard,
 “ from the most learned Dr. Smith, that you were engaged upon
 “ the antiquities of Brunswick, I immediately arranged for copying “ whatever came in my way, and afterwards for sending them to you “ through our friend Stepney. If they are at all useful to you, I “ shall rejoice, and desire nothing further, as I know how greatly

" I am obliged in many ways to you, who have shone with such " great praise, as my guide and predecessor in this province. I " feel the greatest possible gratitude to you on that account. Your " kindness touches me more keenly respecting the treaty you " intend to send me as a present, although I possess it already, and " indeed almost everything relating to us, which has a place in " your 'Codex Diplomaticus.' I am eagerly expecting a second
 " volume from you, and, if I hear that you are desirous of anything
 " in particular, I promise most willingly, as far as lies in my power,
 " to send it to you. For your second volume I have selected a " treaty embellished with a golden seal, which has been copied for a " long time. It is the treaty between Henry VIII. and Francis I.
 " King of France, of which Spelman, in his Glossary, under the " word 'Bulla,' and Du Cange also under the word 'Bulla,' say " that a duplicate (that is the other part of the ratification) is " preserved in the French Archives. With it I send an impression " of the gold seal. My letters to you have been delayed, because " I have been waiting for a visit from Mr. Berry, by whom, as I am " informed, your letters to me were brought over. But it is not easy
 " to find him, as he is always employed in the affairs of princes
 " and upon business, while I am kept at hard work in the Royal
 " Archives, hidden from the eyes of men, and where I grub and dig
 " daily among decaying parchments covered with dirt and mildew.
 " Here the autographs of princes, which have long time lain in dark" ness and decay, may even buried, at length arise and see the light,
 " by the favour of King William, under whose auspices we hope
 " for light and liberty. Much remains to be done, but in a short " time I shall make a truce, and prepare my first volume for the " press. I will send you the first pages. Be gracious to my at" tempts, and may God preserve you."

We have here a faithful view of Rymer at work in the wooden partition in the Chapter House, Westminster, where Thoresby visited him several times, amid dirt and mildew, to which he more than once touchingly alludes in his memorials to the Treasury.

A letter in Latin addressed to him by Leibnitz, dated 16-26 July 1695, runs thus:¹ "I have already shown my appreciation of " your gifts by my many expressions of thanks. There are some
 " among them which have enlightened me, especially the charter of
 " Otto, which he granted to the people of Oleron. I did not know

“ that our countryman Otto bore the title of Duke of Aquitain. If “ anything else occurs, do not forget us. Your friend Stepney, an “ excellent man, and deserving not less of the whole community than
 “ of your King, sent me an advertisement of yours in the London “ Newspaper,¹ inviting the assistance of those who can contribute “ to your project of collecting the documents of the kingdom. I “ consider it the same as if you had sent it to me. That there are “ some documents in my hands you will judge from what I have “ inserted in my ‘Codex Diplomaticus;’ I did not use all of them,
 “ as I announced that I should content myself with the more select.
 “ I confess that I have not now all I once had; but I hope to be “ able to recover them when I hear that they will be of service “ to you, although I should think that you wanted but little—the “ Archives of the kingdom being at your disposal. I send you now
 “ a specimen of my good will. I found among my documents a “ treaty between Philip King of France and Edward King of “ England, confirming the treaty, edited by me, between their “ fathers St. Louis and Henry the Third. As to the rest, let me “ know more fully about your magnificent plans. I see that Thomas “ Gale, a most famous man, in the preface to the Authors of your “ Country, edited by him, wished for some one to illustrate the “ history of your country in such a way that he would seem to “ have foretold you. Farewell. Hanover, 16/26 July 1695.”

On the 13–23 of January 1696, Leibnitz wrote again to Rymer.² He says, “While expressing to my friend the accus“ tomed good wishes for the new year, I also wish to pray that “ everything may be fortunate and happy for you, that you may “ duly complete what has been so gloriously begun for the good “ of the community. I have obtained the most profitable fruit
 “ of my labours on the Codex Diplomaticus, as I hear that my “ attempts have instigated you to a useful examination of the “ records of the kingdom. The treaty between Henry VIII. and “ Francis I. King of France, with the impression of the gold seal “ appended, is most acceptable. I should wish to obtain the will “ of Henry VIII., unless you think it is one of those things which “ cannot be easily communicated. Coke, unless I am mistaken, “ asserted in the action against Garnet, that the Pope of Rome “ promised his sanction of the English Liturgy and other such things

 “ for the purpose of enticing Queen Elizabeth. It would be worth “ while to have these letters of the Pope, as well as the aliena“ tion of the goods of the church, confirmed in the reign of Mary
 “ by the authority of Cardinal Pole, that the nobility might not “ suspect a change. Moreover, the suppression of the monasteries
 “ by Wolsey, under the authority of the Bishop of Rome, while “ Henry was still attached to that party, is also worthy of remem“ brance, and it would be well to have the Papal Bull concerning it.
 “ I would not dare to ask all these of you; but if any of them
 “ can be conveniently granted, I will add it to the number of your “ kindnesses. You have caused me great joy by informing me of “ your plan for hastening the publication of the first fruits of your “ great work, about which I hope to learn more as soon as possible.
 “ Thomas Gale, your countryman, a most learned man, in his pre“ face to the “Scriptores Britannici xv.,” says that Magna Charta,
 “ the mother of your laws, is not now extant in its original form;
 “ but I suppose that search had not then been made, and that you “ may have seen it. Some persons, it is said, are intending to “ build up the whole body of your history. They will be wonder“ fully assisted by your work, though I doubt not that the rest of “ Europe will owe very much to you from the connexion of Euro“ pean history with that of England. Farewell. Hanover, 13-23 “ January 1696.”

Several other letters passed between these two friends on the subject of their similar pursuits, but unfortunately they are not to be found. Two or three others, which, I believe, have never been printed, appear in the Appendix, but the one the most to be desired has not occurred. It relates to the second title-
 and printed in his “Mantissa Codicis Juris Gentium Diplo-matici,” to which I have already alluded. After acknowledging there his obligations to his English correspondents, Bishop Burnet, George Stepney, Dr. Thomas Smith, and Rymer, Leibnitz says, “We are now looking forward to the appearance of the “ great and important work of Thomas Rymer, who will deserve

 “ the gratitude of the political and literary world for bringing to “ light out of the obscure recesses of the Archives, to which they “ have until now been condemned, so many of the ancient monu“ ments of England. Engravings will also appear of the seals and “ signatures appended or subjoined to the ancient charters. Moved
 “ as he himself confesses by our example, he has also prescribed to “ himself the same limit of date as that with which our first volume “ begins, sc. the year 1101 of the Christian era. But he has enjoyed “ one most important advantage denied to us; that of access to “ original documents. And thus, while we are generally compelled “ to content ourselves with transcripts, and have frequently been “ left in utter doubt, he has been able to pronounce with perfect “ certainty on the true readings of the documents with which he “ has dealt. We trust other nations will be excited by the “ example of England to publish their manuscript treasures for “ the use of history and international law. Thus innumerable “ facts will become known, some illustrating the chronology and “ causation of events, the origin and vicissitudes of families, which “ are now erroneously narrated; others again geography; and in “ fact every kind of literature at present utterly unknown. But “ we will here present the published title of Rymer’s work, in the “ later and fuller form (and no intelligent person will find fault
 “ with its fulness), which by the kindness of the author has reached
 “ our hands.”

It is unfortunate that the letter conveying this title-page cannot be found, as it would probably have contained other information relating to the Fœdera not generally known. A thorough search has been made at the British Museum and elsewhere for a copy of the title-page, but without success. I am, therefore, compelled to give an English translation of the Latin version of Leibnitz.¹ It shows Rymer’s intention respecting the plan of the Fœdera, and how far he had departed from it, when he began to print his work. It runs thus:—

“ Pandects of leagues, conventions, alliances, letters, appoint-

The reputation of Leibnitz was thus made available in spreading throughout Europe a knowledge of the contents of the forthcoming work, and in keeping alive the interest which had already been excited respecting it in England and on the continent. Still, however, the work itself did not appear. Rymer was busy in his collections, and continued to amass materials.¹ That fact was universally known; why then was the work so long delayed? However necessary it may have been at that time to hide the cause of the procrastination, the reason for concealment no longer exists, and the truth may now be told without disguise. Want of funds to carry it on was the undoubted cause of the delay. In the Appendix XXVI. will be found an extraordinary document, which shows the state of insolvency of the Royal Treasury at that time. There was scarcely a public functionary whose salary was not in arrear, some for nearly three years; but when work was to be paid for out of funds arising from contingencies, the difficulty was greatly increased. The payment for the publication of the “Fœdera” was in this predicament. When the work was undertaken, no funds were specially appropriated to its cost; hence arose, not only delay in printing the work, but also injury and wrong to the unfortunate editor, who frequently had not only to find money for the payment of his assistants, but was himself allowed to remain unpaid for more than a year; in addition to which, during the whole time before he commenced printing, nearly eleven years, he never received one farthing for himself by way of remuneration.

His mistake in engraving a forged charter.

During the period that Rymer was collecting his materials, and before he commenced printing, his course was disturbed by an incident which threw some doubt upon his qualification for conducting so great a work as that which had been placed in his hands. He stumbled, in fact, at the very threshold of his record career.

It is well known to those who are conversant either with Scottish history or with the muniments in the Public Record Office, that there is a document formerly belonging to the Chapter House collection, which purports to be Letters Patent by which Malcolm Canmore, King of Scotland and of all the circum-

jaacent islands, and his eldest son, Edward Earl of Carrick and Rothesay, acknowledge that they hold the whole kingdom of Scotland and the adjacent islands of Edward the Confessor by liege homage and fealty, as their predecessors had done, and as appeared by ancient records of the Scottish crown; and therefore, says the document "we become your men, O liege Lord, most serene Edward, son of Ethelred, King of England, our Lord of the kingdom of Scotland and of all the circumjacent islands, during our lives, with you and against all men to live and die, as your liege and faithful subjects, and liege fealty will we bear to you and your heirs. In witness whereof we have caused our seal to be affixed to these presents for ourself and our son, at York, the fifth day of June in the ninth year of our reign, in the Parliament of our said Lord superior there held: by the consent and advice of Margaret our consort, the daughter of Edward the son of Edmund Ironside and of Edgar Atheling, the brother of our said consort, and of many other magnates of our said kingdom." A fragment of a seal is pendant; it is in brown wax, and impressed on one side with the lion within the double tressure, the modern arms of Scotland; on the reverse there is no impression. No one now entertains the slightest doubts that this is an ancient forgery; but Rymer happened to discover this document; he unwisely, perhaps unwittingly, gave it an importance to which it was by no means entitled, by causing it to be engraved in fac-simile. The Scottish antiquaries, alarmed at this attack upon their national independence, at the time when the question of the Union was under discussion, took instant advantage of Rymer's indiscretion. A Latin treatise by Sir Thomas Craig upon the independence of the Scottish crown, which had hitherto remained in manuscript, was translated by Mr. George Ridpath, and published under the title of "Scotland's Sovereignty Asserted."¹ In a preface to this work the claims of the pretended charter were entirely demolished, and Rymer was convicted of having ignorantly engraved as the precursor of his collections an undoubted and palpable forgery.²

² Hickes, Rymer's old schoolfellow, thus speaks of this charter, and of Rymer's acquaintance with Anglo-Saxon literature, "Denique agmen claudat ingenio excellens et humaniorum literarum, præsertim dramaticæ poësis, scientia clarus Thomas

Rymer, qui literaturæ Saxonicæ prorsus ignarus, commentitium instrumentum ante ducentos circiter annos fictum, sigilloque Malcolmæ R. Scotorum munitum esse simulatum, quo rex ille S. Eadwardo II. Anglorum regi, tanquam Scotiæ superiori domino, homagium,

The subject was further alluded to in the following manner by Bishop Nicolson, in his "Scottish Historical Library," published in 1702. After mentioning Sir Thomas Craig's disquisition, he adds, that "Mr. Rymer lately occasioned its being translated into English." He then proceeds, "Our English historiographer had unluckily printed a pretended form of homage said to have been done by King Malcolm the Third to our Edward the Confessor; and to take off all objections that might be started about the intent of the publication, 'twas alleged that this was only a fore-runner of some volumes of public treaties which would shortly be sent abroad. 'Twas an unlucky stumble on the threshold to begin the work with such a counterfeit monument as this; which Mr. Ridpath (the translator of Mr. Craig's book) has deservedly exposed, and convicted of several notorious and undeniable marks of forgery."¹

His explanation. —

Some other subjects, which had been commented upon in the "Scottish Historical Library," induced Rymer shortly after this time to address several letters to Bishop Nicolson. He took advantage of the opportunity thus afforded him of departing from the discreet silence he had hitherto maintained, and referring to the charter of King Malcolm, he notices his own indiscretion in the following words: "Give me leave to warn you of a misrepresentation your Lordship has somewhere met withall, touching my publishing a charter of homage by King Malcolm. My Lord, the fact is I never did publish it, nor ever saw it in print, save in a book by Mr. Ridpath. True it is I found such a thing in the archives, and had it engraved, but had no design to publish it, unless it should be in company with that famous league betwixt Charlemagne and King Archaicus, the seals of them both being exactly the same."²

His three letters to Bishop Nicolson.

While on the subject of Rymer's letter to Bishop Nicolson, it may be as well to allude to others connected with this subject. The first two were published about the same time, if not together,

"ligium & fidelitatem spondidisse et professus esse dicitur, calatura splendide expressum, quasi ad pompam, edidit. Quod tamen, non dicam si linguam, antiquitates et solennia verba, sed si vel literas manusque Saxonicas typorumque scutariorum originem cognovisset, adeo tanquam genuinum et verum edere noluisse, ut id plane uti and are usually found under one cover. Their titles are in the following words:—

“Letters to the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of Carlisle, occasioned by some passages in his late book of the Scotch Library. Wherein Robert the Third is beyond all dispute freed from the imputation of bastardy. A particular account is given of King David’s ransom, and of the hostages for the payment of the same. With several original papers relating to the Scotch affairs and a grant of the liberties of Scotland. Letter I. “To the Right Reverend the Ld. Bishop of Carlisle, containing a Vindication of Edward the Third. Letter III.”

This last letter is not easily found; no copy of it is known to exist in England, but the fact of its publication is indisputable.¹ Thoresby states in 1709 that Rymer presented him with his “three letters to the Bishop of Carlisle.”² Leibnitz³ mentions having received a copy of it from Rymer, and describes it as in the footnote. Des Maizeaux⁴ details the subject of the letter more fully, but substantially in the same manner as Leibnitz, adding that the point of Rymer’s argument was “que ce Seaton n’étoit pas Gouverneur de la place, mais le Chevalier Guillaume Keith,” and he proved this fact “par les Archives.”⁵

On pretend que cette histoire est fausse.”

In the catalogue of the library of Thomas Madox, p. 21, are “Rymer’s three letters to Bishop Nicolson, and Du Fresnoy’s New Method of Studying History, ii. 473. Edit. 1723.

It was about this time that Rymer published "An Essay concerning critical and curious learning; in which are contained some short reflexions on the Controversie betwixt Sir William Temple and Mr. Wotton and that betwixt Dr. Bentley and Mr. Boyle. By T. R., Esq."

Some very interesting matter, connected with the remuneration Rymer received for his labours, has lately been brought to light. It was anything but encouraging: but I leave Rymer to tell his own story, or rather, the public documents which are still extant to tell it for him.

The first payment for the work.

It will be observed that in Queen Mary's warrant¹ no reference is made to the payment Rymer was to receive for his labours. Having commenced his work without any agreement with the Government as to his remuneration, he was now constantly compelled to petition the Crown for money to carry it on.

As early as the 23rd of April 1694 (eight months after his appointment) he was obliged to apply to the King for money. His letter on the subject is still extant. It is curious, as showing how straitened the Government then was, and to what shifts the Treasury was driven in order to satisfy his just demands. Here was a scholar, assiduously devoting nine months to a great national work, and obliged to point out to his Sovereign the mode by which he might be remunerated for his labour. His petition to the King is thus curtly expressed: "To the King's most Excellent Majesty, the petition of Thomas Rymer humbly sheweth that about 3 or 4 years ago, upon the conviction of Gervas Cartwright, a Romish priest, at Leicester, there was seized in money 200*l.* for your Majesty's use by Mr. Will. Bentley, then mayor of Leicester, in whose hands it still remains. And whereas your Majesty has been graciously pleased to order that your petitioner transcribe and publish the ancient leagues and treaties betwixt the Crown of England and other nations, which will be a work of great charge, it is therefore humbly prayed that your Majesty towards the defraying of that charge may be pleased to grant the above mentioned 200*l.* to your petitioner."

Rymer's petition was solemnly read before the King in his Court at Whitehall, and "his Majesty being graciously disposed to gratify the petitioner in his request, is pleased to refer this petition to the Right Honorable the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, to consider thereof and report their opinion what his Majesty may

“ fitly do therein, whereupon his Majesty will declare his farther “ pleasure.” The facts, as stated in Rymer’s petition, were duly reported to the Treasury on the 25th of May following, and the first payment to the editor of the “ Fœdera,” towards his expenses, amounting to 100*l.* (for he only obtained half of what he applied for), was ordered to be made out of the estate of the ill-fated Gervas Cartwright of Belgrave in the county of Leicester, who was indicted, convicted, and attainted of the crime of being a Romish Priest.¹

It will thus be seen that the first payment to carry on the “ Fœdera ” was derived from the forfeiture of a Romish priest. In the same year the Lords of the Treasury added another hundred pounds, making in all 200*l.*; no part of which, however, was appropriated to Rymer himself, as appears by the accounts which he rendered to the Treasury.²

Rymer’s difficulties in obtaining money to carry on the Fœdera.

In the next year, having expended 250*l.* for the Government and received nothing, not even the balance of 133*l.* due to him for money out of pocket, he was again compelled to petition, and to point out a mode by which he might be paid. His petition runs thus:—“ To their Excellencies the Lords Justices. The “ humble petition of Thomas Rymer, sheweth, That it is now (this “ present month of August) three years since your petitioner was “ employed to see transcribed and published the ancient Leagues “ and public acts between the Crown of England and Foreign ¹ The following letter from Aaron Smith, Solicitor to the Treasury for Law Affairs, relative to the forfeiture of Gervas Cartwright in connexion with the payment to Rymer, will not be out of place. It will be seen that although the Treasury had ordered the money to be paid, yet there was still a chance of its not finding its way to Rymer.

 to pay the same, but Rymer was not benefitted by their recommendation. He, moreover, had now (1696) expended another 250*l.*, making a total of 633*l.* This item in his account sent into the Treasury tells a lamentable tale. “ For the year 1696.

 “ ordinary attendance, of w^{ch} came not clear to my share more

On the 30th of June 1697, the Lords of the Treasury directed that he should be paid 200*l.* by tally on malt to carry on his work ; but he seems to have been again disappointed, for we find him complaining to the Lords Justices in October 1697. This is evident from their letter of the 4th of October 1697 to the Lords of the Treasury, enclosing a petition from Rymer,¹ which the Lords Justices think very fit to be considered, and that he should be encouraged to proceed in so laborious and useful a work, as he is engaged on, by his Majesty's special command, and since he hath been disappointed in what was formerly proposed, their Excellencies hope he may be gratified out of the forfeiture² he now petitions for, and accordingly they refer and recommend it to their lordships' consideration.

There is still extant a debtor and creditor account, showing the different sums expended and received by Rymer on account of the estate.

"Fœdera," by which it appears that he had spent the sum of 1,253*l.* during the years 1694, 1695, 1696, 1697, and 1698, and had received only 500*l.* The accounts of his receipts are curious, and reveal a sad story of the way in which literary men employed by the government were paid in those days. In 1697 he spent 210*l.* for the government, and received from the Lords of the Treasury "200*l.* in lottery tickets, of which I made about 160*l.*"

In the year 1698 he expended for the government 210*l.*, and received nothing. He again states that up to August 1698 he had expended 1,253*l.*¹ and had received only 500*l.*, so that there remained due to him 753*l.* He also states that "here are now two volumes ready for the press, as now set forth in a memorial² to the Lords of the Treasury about two months since." The Lords of the Treasury thereupon order, on the 19th of August 1698, a sum of 200*l.* in part payment of his expenses.

It does not appear whether Rymer received the 200*l.* which the Lords of the Treasury had ordered in part payment of the 753*l.* due to him, but in all probability he was once more doomed to disappointment, for he was compelled to memorialize His Majesty on the 9th of January in the following terms:—"Something of a Memorial being required of me, I crave leave to repeat that I was employed by the King in Council to see transcribed the old Leagues and Treaties, that no provision being made to defray the charges, it lay upon me to provide the money, and I gave account from time to time to the Lords of the Treasury in order to be reimbursed, and from them had several sums, but in such proportion, that by an account I stated this last Midsummer there appeared to be laid out by me more than received 563*l.*; upon a representation then of my very great necessities, an order for 150*l.* was granted me, which no way answering my necessities and the charge still growing upon me, I humbly beg a further consideration may be had of me, the rather in that I ask no reward for my time, and seven years continual application and attendance in this service."

Parsimony of the government.

Notwithstanding that he was labouring gratuitously, Rymer could not obtain money from the Treasury to replace the sums he had disbursed out of his own resources, and he was again compelled to

¹ His friend Charles Montague had, however, procured warrants for him to the amount of 1,150*l.*, but these, like many other warrants for the payment of money at that period, were disregarded, on account of the impecuniosity of the Treasury.

petition for money. The Lords of the Treasury, on the 15th of November 1700, summoned him to appear before them, and after hearing his grievances, "order him a warrant for 250*l.* towards his charges, " but do determine this expense shall end at Midsummer next." He does not, however, appear to have received the money assigned him, for on the 10th of January following "a warrant for 250*l.* " was to be issued to Mr. Rymer on his order;" and on the 18th of June 1701 a further sum of 200*l.* was awarded to him, " in part of 383*l.* due to him to discharge his clerks," and he is again reminded that this charge for clerks, &c. is to cease from Midsummer 1701. On the 6th of March 1702, Rymer was again compelled to write to the Treasury a letter, which cannot be read without deep emotion by every literary man:—"No allowance " from the Treasury on account of the old Leagues and Treaties " hath been made me since Midsummer 1701, yet from that time " and still the same charge in Clerks and Lodgings continues upon " me ; because to part with them would be to put it out of my " power to print and publish as the Order of Council had directed. " By this means a debt is brought and grows upon me, which " of necessity I must sink under (unless relieved by the Treasury), " which I may the rather expect in regard that hitherto no " manner of consideration hath been had of my almost ten years " constant attendance in that service. Let me also remind you " that old age comes so fast upon me, that I cannot expect to be " much longer in a condition to do anything. I beg your favour " in representing this to my Lord Treasurer." This letter was laid before Queen Anne, but it does not appear to have received any attention from Her Majesty.

On the 17th of June 1702, Rymer addressed Queen Anne in the following words:—"To the Queen's most Excellent Majesty. The " petition of Thomas Rymer, humbly sheweth that your petitioner " in the fourth year of the reign of King William and Queen " Mary was constituted Historiographer Royal, and was then also " employed to see transcribed and published the ancient Leagues, " Treaties, and Public Acts of State from the Originals, then in a " great measure rotten and defaced, which service your petitioner " from that time constantly has attended ; but hitherto has not " published any part of the premisses. May it please your Majesty " to grant the like patent of Historiographer to your petitioner " during your Majesty's most gracious pleasure ; and in order to " the publishing of the above-mentioned Leagues, Treaties, and “ Public Acts of State, to direct your Majesty's Lord High Treasurer “ of England to allow the like encouragement as heretofore has “ been granted by your Majesty's most noble progenitors and “ predecessors Kings of England, on the like occasion. And your “ petitioner,” &c.

On the 18th of June 1702, it appears by a Treasury Minute
 “ that Mr. Rymer prays to renew his Patent of Historiographer “ Royal, and to have such encouragement for transcribing and “ publishing ancient Leagues, Treaties, and Public Acts of State as “ heretofore hath been made.” This encouragement was at the rate of 200*l.* per annum for copying clerks; but no order seems to have been made. By an abstract of papers laid before the Queen it was recommended that his salary as Historiographer should in future be only 160*l.* per annum; by another minute it was further proposed to reduce it to 100*l.* per annum; but neither recommendation was carried out, and his former salary of 200*l.* per annum was continued up to the day of his death.

Such continual petitions and disappointments were sufficient to have overwhelmed the strongest and most hopeful man, and it is a matter of surprise that Rymer did not sink under them; few could have borne up so manfully, and laboured so indefatigably and zealously amidst a life of such trials and misfortunes. Probably no other man would have had the energy and perseverance to have carried the Fœdera to its conclusion, but he struggled bravely through all discouragements to the end of his most laborious and arduous task. Light was now beginning to dawn upon him. His patron, Montague, had been raised to the peerage at the recommendation of the House of Commons, with the title of Baron Halifax, and had acquired additional favour at Court. He induced the Queen to take an active interest in the Fœdera, and to promise to be at the charge of printing it.¹

His continual disappointments.

Her Majesty kept her word, and on the 19th of May 1703 ordered under sign manual the sum of 500*l.* to be paid to “ Peter “ Hume, Esq., without account, the same being intended to be by “ him paid over unto our trusty and well-beloved Thomas Rymer, “ our Historiographer, and Awnsham Churchill, bookseller, at such “ times and in such proportions as are mentioned in certain articles
 “ of agreement made the 16th of April last between the said Peter “ Hume for and on our behalf of the first part, the said Thomas

 “ of the third part, for transcribing a volume of Leagues and “ Treaties extracted from ancient records by the said Thomas “ Rymer, and printing 250 volumes thereof, to be disposed of as “ in the said Articles are also contained.” Thus the publication of this great national work was ordered after Rymer had been engaged upon it upwards of ten years, and without having received any remuneration whatever. Before the printing of the first volume of the work was finished, Rymer was again compelled to apply for money; he thus addressed the Lord High Treasurer:—
 “ The case of Tho. Rymer, humbly presented. May it please your “ Lordship, that there is due to him, on his usuall allowance of “ 210*l.* per ann. for Clerks (without whome He could never print)
 “ and other necessary charges relating to his Collections, 2 yeares
 “ from Midsum^r 1701 to ye time He began to print his first volume.
 “ Which arreare has run him into so great a debt that He is not “ able to disengage himselfe unlesse your Lordship of your great “ Goodnesse will be pleased to order payement thereof.”

It was not, however, until the volume was finished at press, that the Treasury entertained Rymer's petition. On the 6th of June 1704 he was paid “ £200 in full of all services of himselfe & his “ clerks till Lady-day 1703, from wch time [he] has allowance for “ printing his books.” He was thus mulcted of 400*l.* of his just demand.

The printing of the first volume was finished at the end of February 1704,¹ and it was published on the 20th of November 1704.² It commences with a turgid and eulogistic dedication to Queen Anne, in Latin, which is so perfectly characteristic of its author that I give an English translation of it.

“ To the Queen.—To relieve the wretched and feed the poor
 “ by bestowing gold and silver on those even who do not ask it, what “ you are doing daily and continually. And now you give out “ of the more sacred vaults of your archives a treasure to be used

 “ Henry, most skilled in civil prudence and warlike valour, lan“ guished in his great grandson King John, and almost expired in “ his great great grandson Henry the third; but conquered Wales
 “ and captive Kings showed him resuscitated in Edward the First,
 “ and born again in Edward the Third.

“ In like manner, they who through the courses of so many “ years have disappeared, who for so many ages have lain hid,
 “ Margaret the Holy, Matilda the Good, Matilda the Empress,
 “ your noble ancestresses, who does not see, acknowledge, and “ venerate resuscitated in you, most holy, most good, and most “ august Queen? in you reborn, in you revived refulgent with “ new rays of virtues, and new endowments of divine favour.
 “ What immaculate purity of life! What unwearied anxiety for
 “ the reformation of morals! What goodness, what holiness!
 “ When I speak of these, I speak of private things; however “ great the praises of your noble ancestors may be they never “ adequately rise to your height, not even if British Helena herself, a “ name celebrated through so many nations, your kinswoman in “ blood and holiness, be borne in mind.

“ For you, most Christian Queen, for you greater things remain ;
 “ through what climes (unheard of in former ages) and lands and “ countries, does your name resound with joy, is your sacred “ command obeyed, and your august person venerated !

“ You, beloved of God, and the especial daughter of Divine “ Providence, are destined for the safeguard of the human race, “ against the wicked and invaders, you are the only bulwark and “ public security, you, the ornament and defence of Europe.

“ There was a Queen who governed the realms of England and “ Ireland firmly and happily ; but you are the first to whom it has “ been given to rule the whole of Britain—England and Scotland,
 “ with Ireland—as one empire.

“ Henry the son of the Empress Matilda, your progenitor, was “ esteemed in his time by far the most powerful of Kings, because “ he extended his dominion from the borders of Scotland to the “ Pyrenees. But truly, most potent Queen, neither the confines “ of Scotland hem you in, nor does your labour stop short at the “ Pyrenees. Unhappy Europe ! if the eye of your providence did “ not look beyond the Pyrenees, yea, if the arm of your power
 “ did not thunder beyond the Alps : may I not refer the victorious “ fleet of your ships to the traversed ocean, and to the subjugated “ pillars of Hercules ; a fleet with which you there impose laws on “ Africa, while here by threatened war, you hold the minds of Italians “ captive and given over to the pleasure of your will. It is the set “ task of your prowess everywhere to repulse the oppressors and the “ wicked. You take up arms for justice, for the right of nations :
 “ for liberty, for public faith. You who care for the things of God “ are God’s care ; the God of Hosts wages your wars, shines every“ where on your banners, animates and thunders over your “ squadrons. Hence it is, most invincible Queen, that a nation “ never goes to war more successfully than when under your “ auspices ; but not victory, not spoils, not triumphal cars are dear
 “ to your heart, to you peace only, the most lovely of things, peace “ is dear.

“ If you look to the Danube, if you survey the Rhine, or tread
 “ the Ligurian shores, peace you seek, peace you ask, peace you “ command. That a joyful peace may soon shine on mortals is “ (with God’s help) your work ; if there be any tranquility, any “ safety, any happiness of the age, it is of your making ; which “ peace and happiness, it might be hoped, would be lasting and “ perpetual, if you, pitying the travail of your people, in an “ earthly throne, and in the glory of good works, would, with “ God’s favour, deign to reign on earth for ever.

“ There was a custom among the ancients, a votive song of accla“ mation for a good Prince ‘May Jupiter encrease your years out
 “ ‘of ours.’ You, oh most blessed Queen! who are the life of all
 “ and the public health, what may not we vow for your dearest “ life? What may we not ask of God for your most precious “ health? That which your most sacred Majesty’s most devoted “ servant does with a grateful mind and most ready heart.”

Rymer’s Address to the Reader, which especially relates to the first volume, will be found in Appendix XXIV. It contains little or no reference to the general plan of the “Fœdera.” After stating that the work is drawn for the most part from authentic sources, and contains matter which may be searched for in vain among historians and contemporary writers, he hastens to a description of some of the principal documents to be found in the volume. In one place he speaks in slightly apologetic terms of his collection. If some matters, he says, are inserted which appear of minor importance and unworthy of being printed, before you rashly conclude that they should have been rejected, think of Æsop’s fable “The Cock.” In another place, he says that it is not his intention to waste many words, in proving what valuable information genealogists may gather from his book. Again, The observant reader may see, wherever he searches, very many germs budding forth; but how many more of the same sort which ought to be brought under notice we must defer to some other time.

The earliest document is a convention between King Henry the First and Robert Earl of Flanders, dated the 17th of May 1101 (¹),

General contents of the first volume.

¹ Rymer has been condemned by Dr. Clarke for commencing his work in 1101, on the ground “that neither that year, nor the accession of Henry I., constitute any remarkable era in our annals or history; he should,” continues Dr. Clarke, “at least have gone back as far as the Norman Conquest in 1066. This is a remarkable era; none, indeed, more so, previously to the Revolution; it brought about changes, the influence of which has been felt through every period of our history, from that time to the present day.” Dr. Clarke says a great deal more on this subject, which it is unnece-

sary to repeat; but, without justifying Rymer, it may be remarked that Rymer commenced his work with the earliest political document found in this country, Doomsday Book of course excepted; and yet Dr. Clarke states that “Mr. Rymer greatly departed from the principle laid down by Mr. Harley, in beginning the work with the accession of Henry I. A.D. 1101, when he might have carried it much farther back; and leaving behind many important instruments in the same sources from which he had derived others.” If we examine what was done by Dr. Clarke to supply these omissions of upon which the editor makes some especial remarks in his preface—I am now speaking of Rymer's own work, and not of the additions to it by Dr. Clarke in the Record Commission Edition, to which I shall presently allude,—and the volume ends with two bulls from the Pope, ordering the prosecution of Guy de Montfort, dated on the Calends and Nones of March 1273. It contains 900 pages, embracing a period of one hundred and seventy-two years, from A.D. 1101 to A.D. 1273.

Opinions on the work.

Of the great value of the volume there cannot be a doubt. Rapin the historian, who minutely analysed its contents, speaks of it in unqualified terms of approbation, and he is only able to discover one fault in its execution, viz., that Rymer has not inserted any of the Acts relating to the re-establishment of the laws, and in particular of “Magna Charta.” Immediately on its publication the “Fœdera” attracted the attention of the whole of the literary world, as well in England (!) as on the Continent. The work was regarded as the most important contribution which had yet been made to the history of this or any other nation. The learned Bréquigny commends it in the following terms: “Un peuple dont les annales se confondent “souvent avec les nôtres, et que nous aimons à imiter par estime “et par rivalité, nous donna le modèle de l'exécution et la preuve
 “de l'utilité d'un pareil ouvrage. L'histoire d'Angleterre étoit “demeurée dans le même état d'imperfection où semble encore “languir la nôtre, lorsque le fameux ‘Recueil de tous les Actes’ “relatifs à cette histoire fut publié au commencement de ce siècle, “par les ordres de la reine Anne, et par les soins du savant Rymer “dont une si grande entreprise a rendu le nom immortel. La “vaste collection de ces Actes important ranima le courage de “Rapin Thoyras. Aidé de ce nouveau secours, en peu d'années il fut “en état de publier son histoire d'Angleterre, qu'il avoit été sur le “point d'abandonner, et dont le mérite non seulement effaça toutes “celles qui avoient précédé, mais se soutint encore, malgré les

Rymer, it will be found that for the reign of William I. he prints fourteen articles, only one of which comes within the proper scope of the Fœdera, and that is derived from a doubtful source, viz., a transcript made by Archbishop Parker from an old “Passionale” formerly belonging to Canterbury Cathedral, and in private hands. For the Reign of William II. he prints only four documents, none of which ought to have been inserted. Thus he was not able to supply a single treaty or convention earlier than given by Rymer.

¹ Bishop Nicolson, speaking of it, said, “this great work we have from Thomas Rymer, Historiographer Royal, commanded and supported by Her Majesty; and it may justly be reckoned one of the many glories of her reign.”

Opinions of the Court

“talens et les recherches des écrivains qui ont glané depuis dans les champs où Rymer avoit moissonné.”

I have already stated that only two hundred and fifty copies were ordered to be printed; nearly all these were disposed of as presents among the nobility and chief persons about the court; a list of whom will be found in Appendix XXV. A correspondent of the “Nouvelles de la République des Lettres,” who there is every reason to believe was Des Maizeaux, writing to that journal in 1705, states, “Il (the ‘Fœdera’) est imprimé aux dépens de la Reine, et ne se trouve point chez les Libraires. On en a fait présent aux pairs du royaume, aux barons de l’Echiquier, et aux avocats que servent la cour.” The “Journal des Savans” confirms these statements. There are several announcements relative to the “Fœdera” in that work, but no review until 1709. (1709. Supplement, p. 245.) In the volume for that year, the editor states, “Comme ce livre s’imprime aux dépens de la Reine Anne, il ne s’en vend aucun exemplaire; ils sont tous destinés pour des presens.” In a subsequent part of the same volume, after having given a highly flattering review of the volumes then published, the writer adds, “Il y a long temps que nous aurions dû rendre compte de cet ouvrage, mais il n’a pas été possible d’en faire venir plutôt un exemplaire.” The difficulty of purchasing copies, and the exclusive character of the distribution of the work, may be inferred from the circumstance that no copy of it is found in the libraries of Madox, Thomas Rawlinson, or any other of the celebrated collectors of that day, whose catalogues have been examined.

Number of copies printed, and how disposed of.

In the distribution of the volumes as they appeared we again trace Lord Halifax’s connexion with the “Fœdera.” He had thirteen copies presented to him. The fact is important upon this account: Mr. Harley had now become Speaker of the House of Commons and one of the Secretaries of State, and it may therefore be presumed that, if the “Fœdera” had originally been projected by him, he would have vindicated his claim to the work by an active interference in it; of the earlier volumes no copies were presented to Harley, and it was not until he became Chancellor of the Exchequer in 1710 that any copies were assigned to him, and then only two; while the Earl of Halifax was still receiving thirteen. The following passages from contemporary writers also show that Lord Halifax had the management of the distribution. Nicolson, Bishop of Carlisle, writing to the Archbishop of Canterbury, May 19th, 1709, says, “I ought at our last meeting to have acquainted you

“ that Lord Halifax was under some difficulty to procure for your Lordship the fifth volume of “ Rymer’s Fœdera,” the two following: “ and even the eighth, which his Lordship kindly sent to me the day before I left town, being at your service. He can hardly be persuaded but that you as well as his other customers must already have had that volume. If not, it will be retrieved.” (M.S. Addit. No. 6116, p. 17). Again, March 23rd, 1709–10, “ Mr. Rymer by this time may perhaps have published a ninth (if not a tenth) volume of his ‘Fœdera.’ If your behaviour has demanded it, I doubt not but my Lord Halifax will continue his benefaction to us both; and I beg your making suit for your poor brother, together with yourself. I shall direct my brother to wait on you for tidings of this matter.”—(Ibid. p. 35.) Menckenius, the editor of the “Acta Eruditorum,” acknowledges that he had received a copy of the work through the liberality of Lord Halifax, “ non est facenda nobis perillustris viri Caroli Halifaxii munificentia, cui librum in publicis officinis nequaquam prostantem debemus.” (Acta Eruditorum, anno 1709, p. 529). Le Clerc also, as before remarked, had a copy from Lord Halifax. He lent it to Rapin, who was at that time on the point of relinquishing his History of England, after he had proceeded as far as the reign of Henry II. No one perhaps ever studied the “Fœdera” more deeply, and no one ever found it more valuable. By its assistance he was enabled not merely to continue his history but to enlarge it far beyond his original plan. Rapin’s work may indeed be considered as the firstfruits of that abundant harvest which historians have since reaped from Rymer’s labours.

When the publication was once begun it proceeded with great rapidity. Fifteen volumes were published by Rymer in nine years.

The second volume was published in 1705 (?). It begins with the public acts which were completed before King Edward’s return from the Holy Land, and it embraces all the acts of this King’s reign from 1272 to 1307. The principal matters contained in it are the Welsh wars, which ended with the conquest of that country by Edward the First, the differences between the royal families of ¹ On the 24th of May 1704, Rymer’s petition was read before the Queen at her Court of St. James’. He prays Her Majesty to order him some money to enable him to proceed to the printing of the second volume of ancient Leagues and Treaties.

He was ordered to proceed in his work, and to be allowed as last year. (Treasury Minute Book, XII. 259.) The second volume cost 650*l.* printing, exclusive of transcripts.

Arragon and Anjou, of which King Edward was chosen the mediator, the war in Scotland, the disputes of Edward with the King of France, affairs which immediately concern England, Edward's controversies with the Pope, acts relating to King Edward in particular, and matters of a miscellaneous nature. This brief description will suffice to show of what use the "Fœdera" must be to all who are engaged in writing English History. In his dedication in English, to Queen Anne he says, "This second volume gives a view of what passed worthy of memory during the reign of your most noble progenitor, King Edward the First, a prince, the most renowned for arms in that age; and that was an age of much war and action and of many famous captains; Albert the Great, Duke of Brunswick; William the Great, Marquess of Montferrat; Amadeus the Great, Count of Savoy; three of King Edward's nearest kindred, and his familiars; each of whom by their signal conduct and bravery had the title of Great added for their surname.

"These were great captains in that age; but many ages, many achievements, toils, and traverses of war pass, many new stars rise and disappear, many comets blaze and vanish, and a long course of years is run, before the world behold anything so transcendent as, most dread Sovereign, is reserved for the glory of your auspicious reign; I mean so important a battle, so signal a victory, and so distinguished a captain.

"Germany, one may reckon, has twice been saved by the English.

"To that nation, about a thousand years ago, from your county of Devon, on a spiritual expedition, marched St. Winifrid (whom they call the Apostle of Germany) and from their idolatry converted them to the Christian faith.

"And now your most excellent Majesty (the same divine grace assisting) has rescued them from the French, and brought them to their allegiance. He instructed them to fear God, and you have taught them to obey Cæsar.

"Thus you provide for the peace and felicity of your people, and of your neighbour princes; for the present time and for futurity.

"But your noble unbounded piety looks back also upon ages by-past; your archives are the magazine from whence you give out arms to rescue from oblivion the acts and monuments of your royal ancestors, and secure them from the injury and enterprises of time.

“ Some, whose memory was doubtful, some desperate, and “ eclipsed totally, you bring again to light, and adorn with a new “ lustre.

“ One of these here, under your conduct, makes his entry into “ the world. You show him in his public acts of state, and “ attended, as becomes a king, with his lords spiritual and tem“ poral, his bishops and his barons.

“ Yet this crowned head, dropt as it were, and lost in the dark,
 “ not known in history, was son-in-law to King Alexander the “ Third, and father to a sovereign Queen of Scotland.

“ A queen whose life was the most precious, and who was “ designed for a band of union betwixt your two kingdoms, “ England and Scotland; but this, most gracious sovereign, is a “ blessing also reserved to be accomplished in your most glorious “ reign, which God long continue.”

The third volume.

The third volume was commenced on the 4th of July 1705, and appeared in August 1706, being ushered in by the following English dedication to Queen Anne:—“ May it please your Majesty.
 “ In this volume you present the world with the acts of state in “ the reign of King Edward the Second, in a very nice juncture
 “ a time of great struggling and difficulty, of great trouble and “ disorder all Europe over. Your three kingdoms had each their “ share, and drank deep of the bitter cup.

“ Who look so far back into ages by-past, must be sensible of the “ great felicity we now enjoy under a most gracious sovereign, “ ruling with a gentle rein, a willing people; and may compare
 “ the hardships, heretofore undergone, to the passage of the “ Israelites through the Red Sea and the Wilderness, in their “ way to the Land of Promise, especially your clergy, delivered from “ the bondage, from the vexations, exactions, and oppressions “ (which they laboured under) by a foreign, tyrannical supremacy,
 “ may now in full ease and security, sitting under their own “ vines, bless God, who has set over them a pious Queen, your “ most sacred Majesty, their head and governor.

“ In this, the darkest period of time, from your royal archives,
 “ you set up, as it were, a pillar of fire for the direction of “ travellers in their way to truth; and with an unparalleled bounty “ give out, and make such provision, that in this uncultivated,
 “ in this so barren tract, in this very desert, the curious want
 “ not for the entertainment, not to say their quails and their “ manna.

" Amongst the negotiations, in the book published, may be " noted, that during the most unprosperous and disastrous admi" nistration, amidst the greatest confusion and dismal jumble of " affairs (so it pleased Almighty Providence) that, with William
 " the Third, surnamed the Good, Count of Holland, was contracted
 " an alliance, whereby those measures were concerted which, in " the next succeeding reign, carried the English arms into France,
 " to Cressy and to Poitiers; and thence brought the French King
 " from the field of battle into this your kingdom captive.

" These were noble exploits of former days; but the business
 " of war may be reckoned, as it were, then in its infancy, the " achievements of those times manly essays, and a prelude of the " English valour, then a training-up, to be exerted in its perfect
 " and consummate vigour in the most important war, and in this
 " your Majesty's most glorious reign, which that God long con" tinue," &c.

The volume embraces the period from 1307 to 1323, and relates to the domestic troubles of England brought on through the Spensers and Gaveston, the affairs of Scotland, in continuation of those in the second volume, ecclesiastical matters, disputes with Rome, and the affairs of the Knights Templars, whose Order was abolished in this reign. Rapin, speaking of this volume, says, " Before I had duly considered this advantage " (giving the dates of place as well as time of the several
 " documents, whereby one is enabled to trace the prince from " one place to another throughout his reign), I believed that
 " Mr. Rymer was a little to blame, and wondered at his swelling
 " his collection with a great number of things which at first sight
 " appear of little consequence, if not altogether unnecessary; but " after maturer reflection I am convinced that there is not one " piece in the 'Fœdera' but what may be of use, especially to those " who would write a history of England. The history of France
 " is capable likewise of receiving great lights from it, by reason
 " of its connexion with the history of England, on account of the " affairs that have been frequently transacted between these two " kingdoms in particular. For my own part, I have discovered " that the best histories of France may be often improved by the " help of this collection." Again he writes, " We need not look " back to the first and second volumes of this collection to be " convinced how the history of Sicily may be illustrated with a " great number of particulars there mentioned, of which one does “ not see the least trace in the historians of Sicily or Naples. The “ histories of Castille, Arragon, and Portugal may also be furnished “ from this collection with certain facts that were not known to “ their best historians, or else were never explained.

 “ ’Tis plain, therefore, that this collection is of vast use to those “ who affect the study of history, and particularly that of England, “ for which reason such can’ never sufficiently extol the bounty
 “ of that august queen who made them so royal a present, or the “ generosity of those noblemen who procured it. If all other “ nations would follow this example, one might have a history “ of the several states of Europe, at least as to what relates to the “ last seven centuries, as perfect as could be wished.”

Sanderson appointed as
 assistant.

For some reason which does not appear, a fresh warrant, dated 3rd May 1707, was granted for access to the Record Offices, in which the name of Robert Sanderson was joined with that of Thomas Rymer. It will be seen, however, that Sanderson is not nominated a co-editor of the work. The privilege of consulting the records is conceded to him no otherwise than as Rymer’s assistant.

The fourth
 volume.

The fourth volume was commenced on the 10th of April 1706 ; it was finished on the 23rd of November following, and published in 1707. It extends from 1323 to 1338. The chief transactions of the fourth volume (which embraces the last four years of the reign of Edward II. and the first eleven years of that of Edward III.) may be reduced to four principal heads ; 1. domestic affairs ; 2. affairs common to England and Scotland ; 3. the King’s quarrel with France ; 4. ecclesiastical affairs generally. In his dedication to Queen Anne, the editor gives the following account of this volume, comparing the times to which it relates with those in which he was writing. “ This book, may it please your Majesty, “ gives a prospect into the reign of your most noble progenitor, “ King Edward the Third, a time of great war, and great successes.

“ Some years from the beginning of his reign, he wrote himself “ King of France, and before the end of his reign he saw his “ younger son (that was born at Gaunt) saluted King of Spain.

“ His confederates, the Counts of Holland and Zealand, the “ Marquesses of Cleves and Juliers, the Dukes of Brabant and “ Gelder, of the Nassau family, the then Emperor, and other “ German Princes, names (till now, from your archives revived and “ raised to light) long buried in oblivion ; these his confederates, “ seem much-what of the same mould with your Majesty’s allies.

“ But, most redoubted sovereign, how much faster run your “ chariot wheels? How much swifter your course of glory? In “ half the time that he consumed in labouring and twisting “ alliances, you bring your allies into the field, fight battles, and “ sing Te Deum for your victories.

“ In the 20th year of his reign was the battle of Cressy.

“ In the 30th was the battle of Poitiers.

“ In the one and 40th year of his reign was that total rout
 “ given to the united forces of France and Spain whereby King “ Pedro was set upon the throne, his rival forced to quit the “ kingdom, and flee into France for shelter.

“ When we reflect on what has been achieved, and the wonderful “ progress of your Majesty’s arms this first five years, what may “ your people expect by the 20th year of your reign?

“ What will Almighty Providence bring about for the good of “ human kind by the 30th year of your Majesty’s reign?

“ And what can remain for the 40th year unless that happy
 “ state of the thousand years which some great divines have “ promised before the end of the world?

“ But what may He not do in five years, who made the world “ in six days?

“ It is not from the strong outstretched arm; it is most gracious “ sovereign, it is from your uplifted devotions, and to your “ sincere and singular piety, that we owe this unparalleled pro“ sperity of your arms.

“ When a war is not to be avoided, when a war is necessary,
 “ and that there must be fighting, you resort to the Lord of Hosts,
 “ you sue to Him for victory, and your prayers are heard.

“ It is from that retirement, it is from your closet that He “ presents you in public in your triumphant proceeding to St. Paul’s,
 “ where in a grateful return, with hymns and hallelujahs, you “ give Him the praise who had given you the glory, whilst your “ people all rejoice, and say amen,” &c.

The fifth volume was commenced on the 3rd of November 1706, was finished on the 27th of October 1707, and published in 1708; it serves as a continuation to the reign of Edward the Third, and extends from the year 1338 to 1357 inclusive. In his dedication to Queen Anne, Rymer does not forget to compare Crecy with Blenheim and Poitiers with Ramillies. He writes, “This Volume is a continuation of the public acts and treaties in the most active and prosperous reign of King Edward the Third.”

The fifth
 volume.

“ In course of time it brings to that memorable day, the battle “ of Poitiers, where Edward of Woodstock (otherwise called the “ Black Prince) took the French king prisoner.

“ The battle of Cressy, in the 20th, and this of Poitiers in the “ 30th year of his reign, were two of the most famous actions (of “ any ages by-past) that have the honour to live in story.

“ But, most tremendous sovereign, the God of Battles goes along “ with your armies, and the beginning of your reign is crowned “ with the most exalted, the most dazzling rays of military “ glory.

“ The fight of Cressy brought into English hands the fair town “ of Calais.

“ How many towns, territories, and countries rescued from the “ enemy were the consequence of your victory at Blenheim ?

“ From Poitiers, besides the French king, were brought over “ into England (what prisoners, what hostages) the Duke of “ Orleans, the Duke of Anjou, the Duke of Berry, the Duke of “ Vendôme, the Duke of Bourbon, and James of Bourbon, pro“ genitor of your Majesty’s now adversary of France.

“ Those were times of triumph ! those were shining days !

“ Yet add 20 great names more, and throw in the obligations of “ three millions for the French king’s ransom, all together will “ not tantamount, will not weigh against the town of Bruges, the “ town of Gaunt, the town of Brussels, Louvain, Antwerp, and the “ many good towns more, which followed your victory at Ramil-“ lies, and were the fruit of that glorious labour.

“ To this success in war, may I add how, to complete the felicity
“ of your people, Almighty Providence hath distinguished your “ Majesty, above all your most noble predecessors, by this especial “ prerogative favour, The Union of your Two Kingdoms.

“ From these marvellous beginnings, what may not your people “ hope, for theirs, and for the good of human kind, in the perpetual “ successive futurity of your reign ?”

The sixth volume¹ was commenced on the 17th of October 1707, was finished the 31st May 1708, and published in 1708. It contains

The sixth
volume.

¹ This volume cost 605*l.* for printing, but of this sum Rymer received 42*l.*, “ the same “ being in satisfaction of his trouble and “ charges in correcting and transcribing “ forty-two supernumerary sheets (over “ and above his contracts) which were “ added to the fourth and fifth volumes of “ Leagues and Treaties extracted from “ ancient Records, and 63*l.* to Awnsham

“ numerary sheets.” (Treasury Chambers Accounts, Vol. 16, p. 279.)

16 years of the reign of Edward the Third, beginning with 1357 and ending with 1373. In his dedication to Queen Anne, Rymer says, "After the many leagues and alliances in former volumes, in the last (that was presented to your Majesty) appeared the operations of war, and a wonderful success in battles.

"In this book two captive kings (which God had given into the hands of your most noble progenitor Edward the Third) are ransomed, and set at liberty.

"Thereupon ensued (that commonly called) The Great Peace; a treaty the most solemn and the most memorable that ever had been formed between two contending nations.

"This furthermore contains, besides the peace with France, one exploit of war on the other side of the Pyreneans, one decisive blow at Nazara.

"In short, your Majesty, with this volume, gives to the world a partition of France and the conquest of Spain.

"This shining period of time, most redoubted sovereign, brings our thoughts home, and makes us reflect as if it did, in some measure, shadow and give a semblance of these our days, under your Majesty's most auspicious government.

"In course of time that of Azencourt (Agincourt) will be the next great battle that comes in our way.

"And now the rumours and ostentation of princes unusual, so many glittering names, fleurs de lises, and powdered coats, drawing to the field, seem to make a sort of portending blaze, as if your Majesty's arms were now not many days march off from another Azencourt.

"Edward the Third, unless in conjunction with Henry the Fifth, will not be sufficient to represent your much more important victories.

"Oppressed nations cry aloud to Heaven, and the Almighty, knowing your pious heart, hath trusted the sword in your hand, to make you their deliverer, and distinguish you in the most especial manner, beyond all your predecessors and ancestors, of immortal memory, for the instrument of His glory.

"Your already so early successes shew that His blessing goes along with your armies;" &c.

The seventh volume¹ was commenced in June 1708, and finished on the 5th of November following, but it was not published till 1709; it extends over a period of 25 years, viz., from 1373 to 1397. In the dedication of this volume to Queen Anne, Rymer proceeds in the usual eulogistic strain,—"This volume shews the transactions and state of affairs in these and the neighbouring kingdoms, such as it was, during the course of twenty-four years; which tract of time affords but little matter that may shine in history, and has very little resemblance to these our days, when the British sceptre is swayed by your most excellent Majesty.

"This long train of twenty-four years cannot boast of any one great and distinguished captain, any one memorable battle, nor one important siege; no proceeding to St. Paul's, no Te Deum for victory.

"Beyond the Pyreneans, John Duke of Lancaster, without fighting, made a composition with his adversary, and took an equivalent for the crown of Spain.

"Beyond the Alps, Sir John Hawkwood gave law to the Italian princes, and taught them the mystery of commanding armies.

"But on this side the mountains continued a wavering, hazy, undetermined face of things, neither peace nor war.

"Prorogations of truces, abstinences, sufferances, patiences, tolerances were the language and the amusement of the times; and all the while were kept on foot treaties for a perpetual peace:

"Treaties hitherto fruitless, illusory, and unpracticable.

"Who knows (most gracious sovereign) what blessing God, from His unsearchable magazines, hath ordained, in regard to your singular piety and zeal for His service? what untrodden path for your chariots and yet undiscovered way to glory.

"Something more bright than victory, more magnificent than triumph.

"Who knows (most redoubted sovereign) what may be the result of His blessing upon your pious arms, which that He continue is the prayer of your servant." &c.¹

¹ Rapin, in commenting on the Seventh volume of the "Fœdera," makes the following flattering and pertinent remarks upon the work generally:—"Avant que le finir cet extrait, je crois devoir avertir, que bien que je n'aye considéré ce Recueil que par rapport à l'Histoire, parce que c'est apparemment le but principal de ceux qui ont pris soin de le donner au Public; on peut pourtant en tirer

"divers autres usages. Par exemple, pour les Traités de Paix ou de Trêve, qui s'y trouvent en fort grand nombre, les Ministres publics peuvent en tirer quelque utilité, tant par rapport à la forme de ces Traités, qu'au choix des termes, aux précautions qu'on a prises pour les bien expliquer, et à diverses autres choses de cette nature. Si quel qu'on faisoit des recherches sur les progrès de la Langue

The eighth volume was commenced on the 5th of November 1708, and finished on the 22nd of March following, and was also published in 1709; it is devoted to the reign of Henry the Fourth, with the exception of the last two years of that of Richard the Second.

The eighth
volume.

Rymer, in a very characteristic dedication of it to Queen Anne, makes several very pointed and what may be considered illiberal allusions to the Pretender, who was at that time publicly supported. He thus expresses himself: "This, the eighth volume which you
" give the world, contains within a small compass of time a " wonderful variety and vicissitude of affairs. The beginning gives " some glimpses of a change to ensue in England, and towards the " end it discovers the likely prospect of a revolution in France.

"That people, whose humour it has always been to be trouble-
" some to their neighbours, now that Henry the Fourth, your " Majesty's most noble progenitor, is upon the throne, make their " usual efforts to annoy and give disturbance in all parts of his " dominions.

"And, to perform some feats of an extraordinary figure, they hit
" upon a new device, of forging kings and making counterfeit " princes.

"In North Britain is idolized that phantom of a king, Thomas
" of Trumpyngton.

"And Owen Glendourdy, that impostor of a prince, is set up to " play the mimic in Wales.

"And so it was that this Pretender had the honour to enter into " a league offensive and defensive with the then French king, a " league transacted with all the solemnity and equipage of their " reciprocal ambassadors and credentials.

"And, undoubtedly, the French were not wanting on occasion
" to support this their new confederate, their trusty ally Owen " Glendourdy.

"But so far from success were those machinations of the enemy,
" that, not long after, we see the most eminent amongst them sue
" to this very King Henry the Fourth for his protection.

"Of which number are the Duke of Berry, the Duke of Orleans,

" Française, il pourroit trouver ici quelque " espece qu'il ne faut pas douter que des
" secours, dans une infinité de Pièces écrites " gens habiles n'en puissent tirer du fruit,
" en cette Langue, depuis le Regne de " selon les diverses vues dans lesquelles ils
" Henry I. Enfin, il y a dans ce Recueil " voudront les examiner."

“ and the Duke of Bourbon; they own this Henry the Fourth for “ their lord and sovereign, do him homage, and become his vassals.

“ And now it is, most redoubted sovereign, now it is that the “ English troops pell mell enter France; and but one battle remains “ betwixt them and Paris.

“ For now indeed were the dispositions made and operations “ concerted which afterwards are accomplished, and have effect “ under Henry the Fifth, in the eighth year of his reign.

“ Besides the traverses of war, which are very extraordinary, “ Treaties of marriage, may it please your most excellent “ Majesty, make the most shining part of this volume.

“ Philippe of Lancaster is married to Ericus, King of Denmark, “ Sweden, and Norway, and Duke of Pomerania; and this is done
 “ more than ten years before that this King Ericus is discovered “ or brought to appear in history.

“ Here also is negotiated, by the Emperor Rupert, that Palatine “ match betwixt his son Lewis and Blanch our king's daughter,
 “ with a noble train of German princes attending the ceremony.

“ From which marriage are descended the Palatine families, to “ this day so much the support and ornament of the German “ nation.

“ God's providence, hitherto so manifest in your preservation, “ hath still the same eye on your piety and zeal for His service;
 “ who shall say what yet farther blessings are in store, ordained
 “ for your Majesty's glory, the good of your people, and the “ common benefit of human kind?” &c.

The ninth volume¹ was commenced on the 9th of April 1709, and finished the 15th of September; it also appeared in 1709. It commences with the acts of King Henry the Fifth on the 21st of March 1413, the day of his father's death, the narrative being brought down to the peace of Troyes, signed on the 21st of May 1420. The last document in the volume is dated 7th of July of that year. It contains 923 pages. Rapin, who had studied the contents of the Fœdera more carefully than most persons, and laid its pages under contribution for his History of England, commenting on this ninth volume, writes,—“ Parmi ceux dont on a déjà vu les “ extraits, il n'y en a point de si abondant que celui-ci en pieces “ importantes, secrètes et utiles pour l'éclaircissement des Histoires

The ninth
 volume.

 dated 28th September 1709, that Rymer | were reprinted by his direction.

“ de France et d’Angleterre. J’ose même dire qu’il s’y en trouve
 “ de si nécessaires, que, pour les avoir ignorées, les Historiens “ François et Anglois n’ont donné qu’une connoissance très im-“ parfaite de ce temps là.”

In dedicating the ninth volume to Queen Anne, Rymer writes:—
 “ With this volume, in order of time, you raise to life, and set “ forth the acts and achievements of that most victorious prince,
 “ your royal progenitor, King Henry the Fifth.

“ From whence the world may observe how well you trace,
 “ how justly you parallel, how far you surpass, the most surprising “ actions of former ages.

“ Armies, and battles, and victories, and glory, are become “ familiar, and an every-day entertainment, in the proceeding of “ your Majesty’s most auspicious reign.

“ For some hundreds of years a long train of quarrels, enter“ prises, and hostilities; yet no memorable battle ensued, till the “ time of Edward the Third.

“ His long (more than fifty years) reign was famous for Cressy
 “ and Poitiers.

“ And now, in the time of King Henry the Fifth, for ever “ renowned is the Field of Agincourt.

“ And to blazon it the more, after the mode of the times, an “ herald is created by the name of Agincourt.

“ Would your Majesty, after so noble a precedent, go into that “ fashion, and create a Blenheim herald, a Ramillies herald, an “ Audenard herald, a Blaregnies herald, where might you stop?
 “ but go on to Paris, and there erect a new college for your “ heralds, in the Place of Victoire.

“ Thus, most redoubted sovereign, thus you set out, thus you “ begin your reign; these are the dawn, the morning glimpses,
 “ and first tokens of your rising sun; what must the world expect “ from your meridian splendour?

“ Yet fortune has no share in your successes; God Almighty “ is manifest in all you undertake, in all you do.

“ And what may we not promise from the superior steady “ conduct of your general, and the determined bravery of your “ troops, supported by your Majesty’s uplifted heart, your firm “ devotion, and pious zeal for God’s service?

“ After various adventures, treaties of peace, and operations of “ war, this volume ends with a peace and a marriage.

“ In the eighth year of King Henry the Fifth, the French are “ brought to an agreement with him on his own terms.

“ In this the eighth year of his reign the great peace, as they called it, and a royal marriage, are concluded and solemnized.

“ Whatsoever yet remains, which may add to the felicity and glory of your Majesty, that God grant,” &c.

The principal subjects to which the ninth volume relates are the pretensions of Henry the Fifth to the crown of France; the negotiations for that purpose; the war which was consequently renewed; and the peace which terminated the war; domestic affairs, and ecclesiastical matters.¹

volume.

The tenth volume was commenced on the 15th of September 1709, and finished on the 18th of March following. It was published in 1710, and contains the acts relating to the last two years of the reign of Henry the Fifth, and to the first nineteen years of Henry the Sixth's reign, that is from the 1st of September 1422 to the last day of October 1441. In the dedication to Queen Anne, Rymer is still highly eulogistic, and takes an opportunity of paying various compliments to Her Majesty at the expense of posterity; the different topics illustrated by the volume being made subservient to enhancing the glories of his royal patron:—“ This is the tenth volume of your royal bounty in this kind to the world.

“ It contains what passed most memorable within the compass of one and twenty years, from 1420 to 1441, a period of great variety in the turn of affairs, and of great curiosity.

“ A time wherein lived no writer of note to describe or transmit the transactions to posterity.

“ It begins when all the talk and all the business in Europe was the great peace concluded betwixt England and France.

“ The emperor and princes of any figure at that time in Europe send their ambassadors to give their laud and approbation of this peace, and to be comprehended in it.

“ The French king, with his lords spiritual and temporal, citizens and burgesses, representing the three estates of France in Parliament, assembled at Paris in the palace of St. Paul, make this peace a public law, and enact that every subject swear to observe and maintain it, and take an oath of allegiance to King Henry, regent and heir of the kingdom of France.

“ Pursuant thereunto we see King Henry, by virtue of his

¹ It is somewhat remarkable that Rymer has not inserted in the ninth volume, which is devoted to the time of John Huss and Jerome of Prague, any piece which makes mention of their affair.

“ regency, according to emergencies, settling both Church and State.

“ Bishops, abbots, deans, and priors, with the subaltern dignitaries, all strive who the foremost to take the oaths.

“ And what a dust make the parsons, with all the flock their parishioners at their heels, showing their zeal and forwardness in this point of swearing?

“ No abbey, convent, or religious house is easy till King Henry does confirm their charters; nor is any corporation pleased till they see their franchises under the broad seal of King Henry.

“ This, the invincible, your most noble progenitor, King Henry the Fifth, a Bois le Vincennes, on a day well known in those parts by the name of St. Fiacres¹ (not of a disease called St. Fiacres, as histories have reported) yielded to death, leaving his son King Henry the Sixth, not then nine months old, to succeed him.

“ Which Henry the Sixth, in the eighth year of his reign, was crowned at St. Peter’s, Westminster, and soon after embarked for France, where he in Notre Dame at Paris, with the like ceremonies and solemnity, was crowned King of France.

“ But why do I commemorate the successes of former ages? Your reign, most redoubted sovereign, your reign is all along a reign of wonders; and now the eyes of Europe are all fixed upon you, all big with expectation what shining superlative blessing your God, who is the God of wonders, reserves for you in this critical juncture, in this the ninth year of your glorious reign; with assurance that He will thereby complete their deliverance from the impending yoke, and from the oppression under which they labour,” &c.

The eleventh volume², also made its appearance in 1710. It embraces the period from November 1441 to 27th of February 1475. As no description of mine can convey to the reader so good an idea of the contents of this volume as Rymer’s dedication to Queen Anne, I make no scruple to transcribe it here.

The eleventh volume.

¹ The disease of St. Fiacre is a flux accompanied with hemorrhoids. He died on the 31st of August 1422, and not on the 28th of that month, as it is sometimes alleged.

² The indenture for this volume is dated 30th March 1710, and John Anstis certifies to the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, on the 16th September 1710, that the eleventh volume was printed.

The eleventh volume contains 52 pages beyond the contract for 300 sheets, besides three sheets and a half for the dedication and chronological table of contents. Two sheets were cancelled and reprinted.

“ In this eleventh volume you give the transactions from 1440
“ to 1474.

“ Besides, what in common you give to other nations, your allies “ in the north receive a great light, and, in a more especial manner,
“ your ancient kingdom, by this your royal bounty, is pulled out “ of the dark, and brought to a new life and lustre ; you give them
“ their share in the public treaties, even their language you “ authenticate and give it a currency.

“ Whether peace, war, marriages or commerce is to be negotiated,
“ who make a more goodly appearance, who shew a more numerous “ train and equipage, than the ambassadors of Scotland ?

“ Within this compass of time, negotiations were always upon
“ the carpet : England and France were much what about the “ same distance as they are at this day ; no wind could blow, no “ ship pass without some plenipotentiary.

“ The burthen of the song was peace, a final peace, a perpetual “ peace.

“ In those days also rose up great plenty of philosophers ; no “ lord chancellor or keeper of the great seal but did pass some “ patent out of the King’s special grace, granting a licence to “ exercise their skill, to make elixir of life, or to transubstantiate “ metals, to turn copper and iron into gold and silver, any act, “ law, or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

“ But (most invincible sovereign) there was shewn no miracles
“ in those days ; splendid embassies, negotiations, communication^s “ and appunctuations without end ; but no solid peace, nor yet any “ memorable achievement of war.

“ No Blenheim, no Ramillies, no Audenarde, no Blaregnies, “ battles and victories ; by the Divine Providence appropriated to “ crown with glory the beginning of your so happy and auspicious “ reign.

“ This book ends with the fourteenth year of your most noble “ progenitor, King Edward the Fourth, when,

“ He, tired with tedious and fruitless treaties, carries a royal “ army into France against Lewis, Lewis the XI., who being a “ very wise prince and philosopher above the common sort, imme“ diately capitulates, and without much of preliminaries ’tis agreed “ that King Lewis pay costs and defray the charges of the “ expedition ; King Edward is to abstain from war and to carry “ back into England his army and his navy.

“ And, as for his hereditary right to the crown of France, King

“ Lewis offers an equivalent in gold, and gives security to pay the “ sum agreed upon in London yearly during the lives of the two “ kings and the longest liver of them, and to his successors kings “ of England for an hundred years after.

“ Whatever God hath ordained, most gracious sovereign, what“ ever is in reserve, your people, sensible of the blessing they enjoy,
 “ and in zeal for their country, will continually pray for your “ length of days, and count it an happiness that, when they die,
 “ you live, and such is the prayer of your sacred Majesty’s servant,
 “ &c.”

The twelfth volume¹ was commenced on the 2nd of October 1710, and finished on the 3rd of July 1711, being published in that year. It relates to the last Acts of Edward the Fourth, and also takes in those of Richard the Third and Henry the Seventh as far as the year 1502. In his dedication to Queen Anne, Rymer addresses her Majesty in a more sober strain than usual, and condescends to a more prosaic analysis of the valuable results of his useful labours: “ Most excellent sovereign.

The twelfth
 volume.

“ This book affords not much variety in the business and adventures of war; the language is changed, and peace now is become the word in fashion.

“ Our neighbour, for so many generations called our adversary of France, now in this your twelfth volume is our most dear cousin of France, or Lewis of France our most dear cousin.

“ Twice indeed armies are raised, and we find on the muster roll archers on horseback, archers on foot, bills, halberds, demi-lances, spears, and men of arms with their custrells.

¹ There are four pages in this volume beyond the 200 sheets contracted for, besides three sheets and a half for the dedication and index. One sheet was cancelled and reprinted.

There were only 250 copies printed of all the previous volumes; but this, and all the succeeding ones, were augmented by nine additional copies, pursuant to the Act of Parliament, 8 Anne, c. xxi. § v., which directs “ That Nine Copies of each Book or Books upon the best Paper that from and after the said Tenth Day of April One thousand seven hundred and ten shall be printed and published as aforesaid, or reprinted and published with Additions, shall, by the Printer and Printers thereof, be delivered to the “ Warehouse-Keeper of the Company of Stationers for the Time being at the Hall of the said Company before such Publication made, for the Use of the Royal Library, the Libraries of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, the Libraries of the Four Universities in Scotland, the Library of Sion College in London, and the Library commonly called the Library belonging to the Faculty of Advocates at Edinburgh, respectively.”

It appears by the letter of Anstis to the Lord High Treasurer (26 June 1711) that the binding of the nine additional copies, printed in pursuance of the above-mentioned Act of Parliament, cost forty-five shillings.

“ These are carried into France, but no fighting.

“ They bring home French gold ; so many hundred thousand “ scutes, which was money in those days, decide the controversy,
“ and make an end of the quarrel.

“ Lewis the Eleventh, that wise prince, struck the bargain with “ our King Edward IV. And the bargain was renewed, the “ payments continued, and the arrearages accounted for by him
“ during life, by his son Charles the Eighth, and by their successors, “ with our King Henry VII. your Majesty’s most noble progenitor.

“ But this reign, beside the old trade of war, was more especially “ distinguished on account of adventures of quite another nature ;
“ now it is that new schemes of navigation are devised, new “ searches made, new land, new seas, another world, another Indies “ are found out, till then not known nor before discovered to “ mankind that inhabit on this side the globe.

“ Thus traffic and commerce had a new countenance, and the “ Northern America successfully cultivated by our merchants and “ planters ever since, down to our times ; but the Mar del Zur
“ was not yet rendered English ; the South Sea navigation, “ discoveries and trade, seem as a particular blessing by the “ Divine Providence reserved for your Majesty’s most auspicious “ reign, that with the benefits of civil life our true religion might “ be communicated and carried to the extremities of the earth ;
“ and the light of the Holy Gospel shine forth in the most remote
“ and darkest region.

“ This book, most gracious sovereign, ends with a treaty, of all “ treaties the most memorable and most important ; the effects
“ of which make the ornament and security, the joy and felicity
“ of these our times ; for the which, your kingdoms and even all “ Europe at this day have cause to bless God : I mean the “ marriage treaty of your most noble progenitors, Margaret of “ England with James the Fourth of Scotland, from which your “ most sacred person is descended to the imperial seat, and so “ happily fills the throne of Great Britain at this day.

“ Whereon that God long continue your most glorious reign,
“ is the prayer of all good people, and your Majesty’s most devoted “ servant.”

The year 1712 saw the publication of the thirteenth¹ and fourteenth volumes of the Fœdera. The first of these embraces the period of one and twenty years, from 1502 to 1523. It was commenced on the 10th of July 1711, and finished on the 19th of January following. Rymer's dedication to Queen Anne runs as follows :

“ This volume, most excellent sovereign, contains, in course of time
 “ the period of one and twenty years, seven years the last in the “ reign of your most noble progenitor King Henry the Seventh,
 “ and twice seven which next follow in the beginning of that most “ victorious reign of his son and successor King Henry the Eighth.

“ We see the annuities and the stipulated payments duly made
 “ and accounted for, and when Christendom is invaded by the “ infidels, confederacies are made with the Emperor, and with the “ King of Hungary and Bohemia, for the defence of Christendom.
 “ The enemy being in remote and so far distant countries, King
 “ Henry the Seventh would not harras his English armies with so “ long a march ; but that wise prince did freely contribute his “ quota in money ; he sends his nobles, his angles, and the “ sovereigns of gold for his auxiliary troops against the Turk and “ Mahometans.

“ No sooner did your most redoubted predecessor King Henry
 “ the Eighth ascend the throne but he is solicited for aid against “ the Moors, and his first operations of war are on that side, in “ conjunction with King Ferdinand the Catholic. Soon after this, “ enemies nearer home gave umbrage to the Church, and now it “ is that our civil negotiations and our warlike preparations are “ all in order to defend the Church. Commissions issue out for “ admirals and vice-admirals, generals and lieutenant-generals, for “ the defence of the Church, and the proclamations tells us that “ the King hath now, by God's grace, decreed and fully deter“ mined, in his own most noble person to pass over the sea with “ his armies royal, against his ancient enemy Lewis, the French “ King, and his adherents.

“ Our next news is that famous action, the memorable day, “ ever since called La Journé d'Esperons, the Battle of Spurs.

“ Then followed the besieging and taking of towns, Theroan, “ Tournay, and other places in that territory, which make some “ part of your Majesty's late conquests.

“ Thence forward this reign proceeded in great prosperity and “ magnificence, and by reason of his more particular care and “ readiness to protect the Church, it is now in most solemn “ manner decreed that in testimony of their gratitude and ac“ knowledge the title Defender of the Faith should be a title

 “ for King Henry VIII. and his successors.

“ Which title, how well it suits with the so eminent zeal, the “ so distinguished piety, in your Majesty’s most sacred person, and “ your Majesty’s invincible armies abundantly demonstrate, so “ that the title might be taken for a prophetic designation to be “ accomplished and fulfilled in these our days, in this your Majesty’s “ most triumphant reign.

“ Hence it is that all who profess our holy faith bless God, and
 “ for a life so precious continually pray,” &c.

This thirteenth volume contains most important documents, illustrative not only of the history of England and Scotland, but of France, Spain, and Italy.

The fourteenth
 volume.

The fourteenth volume¹ was published, as already stated, in 1712. It was commenced on the 14th of January 1711–12, and finished on the 2nd of August 1712. It contains instruments for a period of twenty years between July 1523 and July 1543. I will again content myself with describing this volume in Rymer’s own words, as they appear in his Dedication to Queen Anne. “ Most excellent “ sovereign, in this volume you give the world a view of what was “ transacted within the compass of twenty years, from the fifteenth
 “ to the five and thirtieth of Henry the Eighth, your Majesty’s “ predecessor of most noble memory.

“ Nothing of public affairs in Europe, ecclesiastical or civil,
 “ were transacted without his countenance or direction. His title Defender of the Faith is repeated and confirmed to him with “ the highest applause and in a most solemn manner. And now “ it is that he casts a particular eye on his two universities, “ Cambridge and Oxford. Schools and colleges are every where,
 “ for the advancement of learning, founded and endowed; and “ with the utmost application they proceed to improve and cul“ tivate the liberal sciences and good literature.

“ Now it is that we hear of the Hebrew lectures, and the “ Linacre lectures; now is our holy Bible printed in English, as
 “ are also the grayle, the antiphoner, the hymptual, the portans,
 “ and the other books for divine service of the use of Sarum; and “ to set the church in a clearer light, instead of the ill-digested “ rude economy of former times, instead of White Friars, Black

¹ The fourteenth volume contains 16 | for, including the dedication and table of pages beyond the 200 sheets contracted | contents.

The first part of the book is devoted to a history of the reign of King Henry VIII and his successors.
 It is written in a style which is both interesting and instructive. The author has done his best to give a full and accurate account of the events of the reign, and to show the influence of the king's character on the course of the nation's history.
 The book is well illustrated with woodcuts and engravings, and is a valuable addition to the history of England.

 HISTORY

“ Friars, and Grey Friars, now have our clergy an uniform decent “ garb, wear a new face, grow refined, and act a more polite part “ in conversation.

“ And now for their greater dignity, lustre, and authority, new “ churches, cathedral churches, are appointed all over the realm,
 “ and we have so many bishop suffragans, together with their “ deans, archdeacons, prebendaries, and their other subalterns.

“ Now it is that we have a Bishop of Oxford, a Bishop of Bristol, “ Bishops of Peterborough, Taunton, Colchester, Ipswich, Glou“ cester, Shaftesbury, Hull, Bedford, Penrith, Thetford, Chester, “ suffragan bishops up from Berwick-upon-Tweed to the Bishop “ of Westminster.

“ Furthermore, if a deserving person came in the way when “ no cathedral vacant, there wanted not for him pluralities and “ incompatibilities that mount to an equivalent.

“ Nor was the building of churches his only glory ; he had his “ share in the secular occurrences of his time ; he held the balance “ of power in his hand, and the scale turned according to his “ direction. He was declared Protector of Leagues, and no con“ federacy was firm without him. His contemporaries, Francis,
 “ the French King, and Charles the Fifth, two ambitious, unquiet, “ enterprising princes, in their turns never failed to cut out work
 “ for him ; one while they court him for their ally, or make him “ umpire, and submit their quarrel to his arbitration.

“ To whichever party he joins, success and victory go along “ with them. If he sides with the French, the imperial armies are “ defeated ; when he sides with the emperor, King Francis in the “ field of battle is made prisoner. In other expeditions some good “ French towns and territory remain to the English.

“ Thus proceeded the reign of King Henry the Eighth, as appears “ in the course of this volume, which ends with the most joyful “ prospect of uniting your two kingdoms, England and Scotland,
 “ by the means of a marriage for the king's only son, Prince “ Edward, with the young Queen of Scotland. This marriage “ was negotiated, concerted, and concluded ; but this union was “ a blessing reserved for your Majesty to be accomplished in “ our time, in this your most auspicious and glorious reign, which “ that God, the author of all blessings, may long continue over “ us,” &c.

The fifteenth volume was commenced about the middle of Fe-

August 1713, about four months before the death of Rymer. One hundred and twenty sheets of it were destroyed in the fire which broke out in the house of William Bowyer, the printer, in White Friars, on the 30th of January 1712-13, immediately on the eve of the publication.¹ It commences in July 1543, and comes down to July 1586. In addressing Queen Anne he says: "Most " gracious sovereign, this is the fifteenth volume drawn forth from
 " your most sacred treasuries for a bounty to the world.

" It comprehends a period somewhat more than forty years, in " which so long space, achievements of war, battles, victories, and
 " triumph are not so much in vogue.

" 'Tis now matters of the Church, the operations of religion, the " reformation and application to cultivate true piety, and give our
 " holy faith a new light and lustre.

" As to civil affairs, it begins with a ratification of a treaty
 " concluded for her Majesty the Queen of Scotland, to marry
 " Prince Edward, apparent and undoubted heir of King Henry
 " the Eighth, your Majesty's predecessor of most glorious memory;
 " and it ends with an account of the States General,—Guelders,
 " Zutphen, Flanders, Holland, West Friesland, Zealand, and
 " Utrecht, and other the United Provinces of the Netherlands,—
 " who declare themselves discharged from all ties to the King
 " of Spain, and therefore resolved to provide themselves with " another master, capable to defend and protect them against the " tyranny of the aforesaid King of Spain, and against the Spanish
 " most barbarous Inquisition, introduced for no other end but the " extirpation of the true religion.

" Hereupon they sue to Queen Elizabeth to take them under " her care and protection, which readily she grants.

" And now it is that Escluse, the Brill, with Flushing, and the " Rammakins are delivered into the hands of English governors " and garrisons.

" This done; the queen despatches away her ambassadors to " Scotland for a closer friendship, and a league offensive and " defensive, in order to support the reformed religion against all
 " enemies and opposition, and for the king to be a partner with " her, and effectually to have his share in being a defender of the " faith; which seasonable confederacy cleared the way to a Pro“ testant succession in the person of King James, your Majesty’s progenitor, of ever blessed memory.

“ He was a peace-maker, and he was a king fifty-five years.

“ Long was the reign of his contemporary and confederate, Queen Elizabeth.

“ That, with the other so many superlative and distinguishing blessings, God grant your precious life and reign over us long “ may continue,” &c.

The dedication to the fifteenth volume is the last it was Rymer’s fate to compose. I have considered it but just to the man to allow him to describe his work in his own mode; but it must be, I think, apparent to the reader that these dedications are by no means calculated to exalt Rymer either as an historian or English scholar. They do not exhibit any critical skill, or show that he appreciated the value of the important materials upon which he was engaged. He seems to have had little or no other object beyond eulogizing his royal patron.

Reason for printing Rymer’s various dedications.

Though Rymer died shortly after the publication of the fifteenth volume of the Fœdera, yet he had prepared some materials for bringing down his collection to the end of the reign of James the First. These were placed in the hands of Robert Sanderson, who had been assisting him in his great work.¹

During the period of this rapid progress of his work, Rymer’s personal history is still involved in obscurity. Whenever the clouds clear away for a moment, the scene presented to us is indeed pitiable. I have already submitted to my readers his memorials to the Lords of the Treasury, complaining of his indigence and of their neglect. I have called particular attention to his petition of the 6th of March 1702, which cannot be perused by any sensible person without feelings of regret and shame. He there speaks of the neglect to which he had been exposed, of his unrequited labour of ten years, and his constant attendance in the service on which he was employed by the Government. “Let me also,” he says, “remind you that old age comes so fast upon me, that I cannot expect to be much longer in a condition to do anything.” These expressions occur before he commenced printing the Fœdera. We shall presently see what sums he received during the progress of the work through

Return to Rymer’s personal history.

¹ In Queen Anne’s warrant, dated 3rd May 1707, these words occur, which prove that Sanderson had been some years Rymer’s assistant, “Our will and pleasure

“ is, that the said Thomas Rymer and Robert Sanderson, who has hitherto been employed by him as his assistant, have free liberty of access, &c.”

His poverty.

the press, and what reason there was for his selling his collection of books. We know too little of Rymer's situation in life to judge accurately of the following letter, but certainly the state of things it exhibits is as lamentable as it is extraordinary. The man whose labours during a period of twenty years had produced the noblest collection of acts and monuments ever yet seen, a work, which to use the words of Bishop Nicolson, "may justly be reckoned one of "the many glories of perhaps the brightest period of English "history," had been forced in old age to sell his books for bread. The relief was but temporary; and we here find him, when incapacitated probably by illness from writing himself, employing a friendly hand to lay his distresses before the Earl of Oxford. He offers for sale his manuscript collections; and such, it is stated, is his pressing need, that, if they are not purchased for the royal library, he must dispose of them to the highest bidder. The causes of this destitution, during a period which is often represented as the golden age of literary patronage, are stated to be that no one had yet indented¹ with him for a new volume, and that his salary as a servant of the crown was then two years in arrear.

Le Neve's letter to the Earl of Oxford relative to Rymer's
destitution.

The letter to which I refer is here subjoined: "My Lord, I am "desired by Mr. Rymer, historiographer (who cant doe it himself) "to lay before your lordship the circumstances of his affairs. "He was foret some years since to part with all his choice printed "books to subsist himself by reason of his salary being so much "in arrear, and now he says he must be foret for subsistence to "sell all his manuscript collections to the best bidder, without "your Lordship will be pleased to buy them for the Queen's "library. The parcel are 50 (59?) volumes in folio of public affairs "which he hath collected and are not printed. The price he asks "is 500*l*. Whether they are of that value I cant say, having not "seen them. The reason of his being in such want of money, as "he tells me, is because nobody hath yet indented with him for "a new volume, and that he is two years or thereabout behind "in his salary.² I beg your Lordship would be pleased to consider ¹ The meaning of this expression is not very clear; but it seems to show that Rymer was obliged to find a publisher for each volume, although the Queen was at the charge of printing it.

² It is difficult to test the truth of this allegation, as the Treasury pay-book from Mich. 1709 to Mich. 1710 is missing, but there is evidence, derived from another source, which is almost conclusive, that the Treasury did not owe Rymer anything on the score of salary as Historiographer; moreover the first payment in the book from Mich. 1710 to Mich. 1711 makes no mention of money being in arrear, and all the other payments before 1709, and after Mich. 1710, were regularly made to him. Le Neve therefore must have been misinformed, so far as Rymer's salary of Historiographer is concerned. Nor was any money due to him at this time as editor of the Fadars.

“ his condition as to your great wisdom shall be thought fit. I “ am, my Lord, your Lordship’s most humble and obedient servant, “ Peter le Neve, Norroy, College of Arms, 13 February 1711.
 “ Addressed to the Right Honourable Robert Earl of Oxford
 “ and Earl Mortimer, Lord High Treasurer of Great Britain.”
 (Ms. Harl. 7525).

This letter seems to have been written in a very cautious manner, but it does not appear whether out of respect to the person to whom it is addressed, or out of any feeling of distrust of Rymer. Probably there was a great deal more respecting him than it was prudent to communicate to Lord Oxford; but no one can fail to pity and regret the misery it discloses. What ensued is not known, but it will be presently seen that the MSS. were not then sold.

Within twelve months after the date of this letter an event happened, to which I have already alluded, and which must have greatly increased the labours of poor Rymer, now in his 73rd year. The greater portion of the fifteenth volume of the “Fœdera” was destroyed in the fire which consumed the premises of Bowyer the printer.

Destruction by fire of a portion of the fifteenth volume.

Rymer died in Arundel Street, in the Strand, on the 14th of December 1713, and was interred in the church of St. Clement Danes, on the third day after his decease. It does not appear that any monument was erected to his memory. He made his will on the 10th of July 1713. It contains a general bequest of all his property to Mrs. Anne Parnell, of the parish of St. Clements Danes, spinster, with an appointment of the same person as his executrix. She proved the will in the Prerogative Court at Canterbury, on the very day of his death. The haste with which the probate was granted, would seem to imply that it was necessary to sell some of his effects in order to defray the expenses of the funeral. I have not been able to discover who Mrs. Anne Parnell, spinster, was, but in all probability she was his housekeeper. I find her attesting one of his indentures, together with Leatitia Wicksted. The name of the last person appears as a witness to four other indentures.

Death of Rymer.

Some pains have been taken to ascertain whether Rymer died a bachelor. The general belief is that he was never married; but the scurrilous print, to which allusion has been already made, mentions a Mistress Rymer and two daughters. A careful search for evidence on that point has been made in all available quarters, but without success. There is one point in favour of the statement that Rymer had been a married man: had he been living in a discreditable state of concubinage, the lampooner would probably have barbed his satire by declaring the fact.

Rymer's remuneration.

I have frequently mentioned Rymer's remuneration in these pages, as well as his poverty. It will only be just to the government whose servant he was, as well as to the memory of his friends, to take a retrospective glance at his pecuniary resources from the earliest trace we have of him; for the purpose of shewing that his means, had they been properly applied, were sufficient to have maintained him respectably, and that the state of indigence into which he had fallen must have arisen from unthriftiness rather than neglect.

It has been shewn that the father possessed sufficient wealth to give his son an University education, and previously to his conviction had assigned to him a mortgage from a Mr. Wood of certain lands in Kirkby Wisk; and that the son left the University without taking his degree, owing in all probability to the father's fate.

As there is no proof to the contrary, I think it may be assumed that the mortgage was sufficient to have supported him at Cambridge had he thought proper to remain there. I attribute his leaving the University without taking his degree, not so much to want of means as to the misfortunes which had overtaken his father and his family. This mortgage was his chief support through life, enabling him to enter himself as a student at Gray's Inn, and maintaining him there until he was called to the bar. At the bar he gained no distinction, so far as I am able to ascertain; had it procured him rank or emolument, it is not likely that he would have abandoned it for dramatic writing and criticism, at all times a meagre subsistence, except for the most favoured and successful.¹ Moreover, in his letter addressed to a friend on the subject of Parliament, he speaks of his retirement, his distance from books, &c., expressions wholly inconsistent with the occupations of a successful barrister practising in London. It was impossible that he could have derived any considerable profits from his publications, and as he had no other ostensible means of support, I am driven to the conclusion that up to the time of his appointment as Historiographer Royal this mortgage was the sole means of Rymer's subsistence. He seems to have received regularly the salary of his office up to the day of his death; at least, most of the orders for paying him are extant, and there is no complaint of his salary being in arrear, except the allusion made to the circumstance in Le Neve's letter to the Earl of Oxford.¹ His salary of 200*l.* a year, added to the produce of his mortgage, enabled him, not only to support himself, but to advance money to pay a staff of clerks and engravers engaged upon the "Fœdera"² when the government had not sufficient funds at their command. In some years he received nothing on account of the "Fœdera" from the government, although they were indebted to him in a large sum. It is, however, true that he constantly complains of being kept out of his money, and of his obligation to keep up a staff of clerks.

" books was so small that a man of the greatest name could hardly expect more than a pittance for the copyright of the best performance."

As his complaints cease about the year 1701, it is probable that the government had then paid up all arrears. Be this, however, as it may, it is clear that from the month of May 1703, when the printing of the "Fœdera" commenced, up to the time of his death, he had received of public money 400*l.* annually, viz., 200*l.* as Historiographer and 200*l.* as editor of the "Fœdera." In addition to which, he also had twenty-five copies of each volume of the work, which may be valued at about 83*l.* of the money of the period, making a total of 483*l.* a year, and equal to about 805*l.* of our present money. Besides this, he likewise received 1*l.* a sheet for correcting the press, when the sheets extended beyond what he had agreed for by indenture.

The various sums received by Rymer before he commenced printing, amounting to 2,263*l.*, appear to have been employed exclusively in the payment of his clerks and engravers,³ and the other expenses incurred for transcribing the instruments printed in the "Fœdera;" but I cannot find that he ever received any recompense for his labours as editor during the time he was collecting his materials; indeed, he more than once expressly states that he never was allowed any remuneration on that score.

He left behind him a large collection of papers, evidently intended to be used in a second edition; for he well knew the scarceness of the first impression, and the defects and errors inseparable from a work of such magnitude. Up to a short time before his death he was actively engaged in collecting materials. The result of his diligence amounted, when bound, to fifty-nine¹ volumes, embracing the period between 1115 and 1698. It is this collection which his friend Le Neve offered for sale to the Earl of Oxford, and for which the Treasury paid to his executrix 215*l*. The volumes were ordered to be placed among the manuscripts in the Cottonian collection, but somehow or other they fell into the hands of Awnsham Churchill, the publisher of the Fœdera; and the interference of the House of Lords was required before they could be rescued from Churchill's hands. It appears that the Lords Committee on the Public Records received information that several unprinted transcripts of records had been left by the late Mr. Rymer, and were in the hands of Awnsham Churchill, a bookseller. Upon this information Churchill was sent for and examined. He acknowledged that the transcripts were in his custody, but he had been accustomed to consider them as of no value, being only papers which Rymer had thrown aside as not fit to print. He added "that Rymer's executors had procured them to be bound, and they were paid for by the Treasury, and were to be applied for the public inspection." He further informed the committee that the transcripts were ready to be delivered in accordance with their directions. They were, in consequence, placed for the present under the custody of Mr. Incedon, their Lordships' housekeeper. Several orders upon the subject will be found in the Journals of the House of Lords. According to one of them, the transcripts, when delivered up by Churchill, were to be deposited in the Chapter House of Westminster, there to be digested and put in order.²

These brief and imperfect notices contain all that I have been able to discover concerning the life of a man who has been cursorily passed over by writers of English biography. It seemed due to his many of the transcripts are incorrectly copied, and abound with errors; nevertheless a very extensive use has been made of them; in one work alone no less than 171 documents have been printed.

memory to bring together as much as could be collected ; but after the lapse of more than a century of comparative forgetfulness, little can be gathered respecting the fate of a writer whose name has been rescued from oblivion solely from its connexion with a work which, though of great national importance, of necessity keeps the author's personal history altogether out of view. His name is imperishably bound up with the reputation of his country ; for "those fifteen volumes of public acts are the best monument of the past glories of a nation that ever yet appeared since the beginning of nations."¹

The death of Rymer occasioned no interruption in the progress of the "Fœdera."² Robert Sanderson, who has been mentioned before as Rymer's assistant, at once stepped into the vacant place of editor. Rymer, it will be borne in mind, had edited and published fifteen volumes. He had also very nearly completed the arrangements for the sixteenth. This fact has been misrepresented by Dr. Clarke in his Introduction to the new edition of the "Fœdera." At p. 1 he states, that "the first fourteen volumes were published in Rymer's lifetime ; the fifteenth and sixteenth, which he had prepared for the press, were published after his death by Robert Sanderson." The same mis-statement is repeated at p. 3 ; whereas the fifteenth volume not only bears Rymer's name on the title-page, but the dedication is signed by him. The sixteenth is the only volume stated to have been compiled from the papers of Rymer.

Sanderson's
qualifications
for the task.

The sixteenth volume contains the acts of 30 years, viz., from 2nd of November 1586 to the 4th of November 1616. It was published in 1715. In the title page the new editor thus acknowledges his obligation to his predecessor : "Ex schedis Thomæ Rymer potissimum edidit Robertus Sanderson."

A brief and meagre dedication to George I., contrasting strongly with the diffuse and ornate style of Rymer on such occasions, is all that the new editor deems necessary for ushering his new volume into the world. It is in the following words : "Serenissimo

² Shortly after Rymer's death, the following remark on his work was written in a letter by Thomas Hearne to his friend Azula, dated at Oxford, 11 July 1714. (Letters by Eminent Persons, London, 1813, i. 289.) "I should be glad to know whether Rymer's Fœdera will be continued. He intended to have published a separate volume of Critical Observations ; but how well he was qualified for that I know not. It is certain such a performance would be acceptable, and whoever does it will have thereby an opportunity of showing his learning and judgment, both as a critic and an antiquary."

The seventeenth volume was published in 1717, with a dedication to the same King, as terse as its predecessor. It extends from the 30th of March 1617 to the 21st of June 1625. This volume is much more miscellaneous in its character than any of those that preceded it. Several of the papers in it were collected by Rymer. The incapacity of Sanderson¹ and his want of judgment are very perceptible in the volumes entrusted to his care; they contain documents of a nature unfit for the “Fœdera” in the proportion of three to one. To the seventeenth volume Sanderson appended various indexes to the whole work, and also a catalogue or syllabus of the contents of Rymer’s 59 volumes of Manuscript Collections.² This syllabus was published at the time as a separate work, with the following title: “Syllabus, seu index actorum manuscriptorum quæ “ lix. voluminibus compacta (præter xvii. tomas typis vulgatas) “ collegit ac descripsit Thomas Rymer. Quæ in his voluminibus in “ monstrabit. Londini, per A. and J. Churchill, 1717.”³ For his labours on the seventeenth volume Sanderson was paid on the 7th of March 1714 the sum of 200*l*.

These seventeen volumes constitute what is generally understood to be the first London edition. The first sixteen volumes were ¹ Menckenius, under whose care the Leipzig edition of Du Fresnoy’s new method of studying History appeared, entertained a different opinion of Sanderson; he states that Sanderson’s character is much superior to his predecessor in the undertaking. (Du Fresnoy translated by Rawlinson, vol. ii., p. 464).

² See note at p. lxxx. Rymer’s Collectanea may be thus divided:—

Three volumes embrace the materials from 1115 to the end of the reign of Edward I. The reign of Edward II. occupies 4 volumes; those of Edward the Third, 11 volumes; Richard II., 5 volumes; Henry IV., 4 volumes; Henry V., 4 volumes; Henry IV., 9 volumes; Edward IV., 3 volumes; Edward V. and Richard III., 1 volume; Henry VII., 2 volumes; Henry VIII., 5 volumes; Edward VI. and Mary, 1 volume; Elizabeth, 3 volumes; Miscellaneous matter, 4 volumes.

³ Fol. pp. 129. A copy of the Syllabus as a separate publication occurs in Madox’s Catalogue, p. 28. The cost of this volume is thus recorded in the Treasury accounts: 300*l*. to Awnsham Churchill, bookseller, for paper and printing 250 volumes of the seventeenth volume of the book called Rymer’s Fœdera, and 74*l*. 15*s*. more for binding the said volumes, and for paper, printing, and binding of nine supernumerary books for the Universities, according to the Act of Parliament in that behalf; and the sum of 200*l*. more to be paid to Robert Sanderson, Esq., for collecting together the instruments which completed the said seventeenth volume, and for making the index of that and the preceding volumes, and 24*l*. 7*s*. 6*d*. to satisfy fees, charges, &c., making a total of 599*l*. 2*s*. 6*d*.

published by A. and J. Churchill, and the seventeenth by W. Churchill. The addition of indexes would lead to the inference that the work was then thought to be complete, and it has consequently been supposed that the 18th, 19th, and 20th volumes were undertaken at private expense, by the permission and not at the cost of the government. I am not inclined to think that this surmise is correct, though I have not been able to trace in the public accounts any indications of money having been furnished by the government for the compilation and printing of these three volumes. Their publication was conducted by Jacob Tonson, who was licensed to reprint and publish the first seventeen volumes. In his licence no mention is made of any intended continuation.

The first edition of the "Fœdera" (that is, Churchill's seventeen volumes,) was, as already stated, limited to two hundred and fifty copies (to which nine additional copies were added by Act of Parliament for the universities and other privileged places); twenty-five were presented to Rymer as part payment for his labour; one hundred and eighty-five were given away,¹ and the forty-five copies which remained were not allowed to be sold, but were kept in store for the use of the government. No wonder, then, that the value of a single copy rose as high as one hundred guineas, whenever one was submitted to sale. The cost price of a single copy to the government, when one was required for a special purpose, was eighty pounds. The charge for printing the seventeen volumes (exclusive of the sums paid for editing and transcripts) amounted to 10,255*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*, to which must be added 115*l.* for 17 sheets printed in the 15th, 16th, and 17th volumes beyond the number of sheets contracted for; 95*l.* for composing the several tables in the 17th volume, consisting of 95 sheets; 50*l.* for making the Index Nominum to the several volumes, and arranging them in one Index, and 100*l.* for making and composing the Index Locorum et Rerum added to the 17 volumes, making in all a total of 10,615*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*

In taking an unprejudiced view of the contents of the first fifteen volumes, it must not be supposed that no blame attaches to Rymer for their miscellaneous character; the original rules which seem to have guided him in making his selection having been widely departed from as he proceeded with his work. From the commencement of the "Fœdera" down to the end of the reign of General observations on the Fœdera. Its merits and defects.

¹ A list of the names of the persons to whom copies were presented will be found in the Appendix XXV.

Richard I. (about ninety-eight years) he has only printed eighty-six documents.¹ Of these, sixty-one are either conventions, letters of state, or other documents of intercourse between English princes and those of foreign countries. Sixteen relating to England refer to Papal privileges of a private or local character, and nine do not fall within the scope of the original design of the work. With the reign of John the enrolments of the Chancery commence, and as the Chancellor at that time was the Chief Secretary of State both for Home and Foreign Affairs, all documents, both domestic and public, were enrolled in his office. Such a plethora of information would naturally puzzle a man in Rymer's position. There was scarcely a document which came before him from which he could not extract some fact useful either to the statesman or the lawyer, the churchman or topographer, the biographer or critic; hence he was induced gradually to introduce documents referring to domestic affairs much more liberally than he had done in the first instance, and altogether inconsistently with a strict adherence to the purposes of a work devoted to "Acta Publica" or "Fœdera," from the title of which the student will be lead to expect nothing but public acts. These additions were probably an afterthought, as Rymer makes no allusion to them in his title-page.

While mentioning this departure of the editor from the real purpose of his work, it is right also that I should correct an assertion, which has sometimes been made with greater positiveness than accuracy, that Rymer has omitted nothing from his collections which would properly fall within the description of his title-page. I notice this subject because it is stated in the Introduction to the "Acta Regia" that there is not one important act omitted by Rymer in any of the reigns over which the "Fœdera" extends: whereas, in reality, his omissions are numerous.

These remarks, however, must be applied to the collection as it appeared at the death of Rymer, and not to the additions for supplying its defects made by the Record Commissioners, which will presently be brought under notice.

There is no doubt that a considerable mass of materials exists to which Rymer had not access, but which, in all probability,

¹ Of these eighty-six documents the sources of only thirty have been alluded to by Rymer. The remaining 56 are without any reference as to the place of their deposit.

Indeed the larger number of the thirty are merely designated as "Ex. orig." or "Ex Autogr." without mentioning where they are kept.

He would have used had he been aware of them;¹ there are others, again, of which he certainly was aware, and yet he did not use. This is clear from the contents of the "Collectanea Rymeri," but the reasons for his omissions cannot be conjectured.

I must now allude to some of the anachronisms, merely as a warning to the reader. Rymer, for instance, has placed under the year 1174 a charter belonging to the year 1236, being 62 years out of date. Again, he has printed a Commission of James IV. of Scotland, dated 19th of July, in the 32nd year of his reign, under the year 1427 instead of 1509, a misplacement of no less than 82 years before its proper time. These wrong dates and several others have been corrected in the "Syllabus."

While exposing the shortcomings of Rymer,² I ought not to pass over the fact that he has, without acknowledgment, inserted docu-

¹ It has been already stated (p. v. note 1) that Leonard's Recueil, published in 1693, contains many documents relating to this country which are omitted in the Fœdera; for instance, between the years 1435 and 1644 Leonard has printed eighty-three instruments which concern Great Britain; of these Rymer has only given eighteen, thus leaving sixty-five unnoticed. It seems scarcely credible that Rymer was unacquainted with Leonard's Collection, the whole of which was published before the Fœdera was contemplated, or at any rate before Rymer was appointed its editor. I am at a loss for a reasonable excuse for this great omission, but I fear others equally great could be indicated. In the Appendix will be found a list of 65 omitted documents.

² The historian, Thomas Carte, has made a most unfounded charge against Rymer. In his letter to Swift, dated 11th August 1736, and printed in Nichol's Literary Anecdotes, vol. 2, p. 477, he states, "that Rymer's collection contains only such treaties as were enrolled in the Tower or in the Rolls of Chancery. He knew nothing of such as were enrolled in the Exchequer, and of the public treaties with foreign princes enrolled in the latter office. I have now a list of above four hundred by me. Rymer never made use of that vast collection of materials for an English History which is preserved in the Cotton Library, nor ever consulted any journal of our Privy Council; whenever he refers to any, still quoting Bishop Burnet for his author. He never read the Rolls of Parliament, nor any journal of either House, where the chief affairs within the nation are transacted; and did not so much as know there was such a place as the Paper Office, where all the letters of the English ambassadors abroad, and all the despatches of our secretaries of state at home, from the time of Edward the Fourth to the Revolution (since which the secretaries have generally carried away their papers), are kept in a good method and with great regularity; so that he wanted likewise the best materials for an account of our foreign affairs. These defects have made several of our nobility and gentry desire a new history to be wrote, in which the above-mentioned, and other materials as authentic as they, may be made use of."

When Carte published his general account of the necessary materials for the History of England, he repeated this charge in the following words: "Rymer has printed several volumes of records, enrolled in Chancery, but not one out of the Exchequer, where are many of much greater importance to the subject than most in his collection, and where likewise are abundance of treaties with foreign princes; that being the court in which most kings of Europe used anciently to enroll such treaties. Powel, in his 'Reper-tory of Records,' gives us a list of the contracting powers, dates, &c. of above 400 treaties of our kings with foreign ments in the "Fœdera" obtained from printed sources¹ instead of from manuscripts. This is the less excusable, as Leibnitz had pointed out the advantage that Rymer possessed over himself. He writes, "Sed hoc illi præ nobis eximium contigit, quod ad ipsa

 " authentica originalia admissus de veris lectionibus tuto pronun-
 " tiare potest, dum nos plerumque apographis contenti esse cogimur,
 " sæpeque in incerto versamur." In some instances, and with less pardonable grounds, he has positively taken matter from Leibnitz, and printed it as "ex originali" and "ex autograph." I do not here bring into the account against Rymer those pieces which he derived from ancient chronicles and histories that had been already printed, because he does not in those reprints profess to have derived them from manuscripts, but simply leaves his reader in ignorance as to their source or place of deposit.²

- It will not be necessary to make more than a passing allusion to the numerous errors which are to be found in the "Fœdera," as

"princes, which are not in Rymer. Another very considerable body of materials, very proper, if not necessary, must be sought in foreign parts. There is always a continual intercourse of friendly or hostile transactions between adjoining countries; for which reasons the records of all nations furnish abundance of materials for the history of their neighbours. This I have observed particularly in France, where, in my searches for some years together after records relating to England, I took notes or made abstracts of above a thousand instruments of treaties and transactions between the two kingdoms, scarce any of which appear in Rymer."

Nearly all of Carte's assertions are false, as may be tested by any one who will take the trouble to examine Rymer's Collection. References to treaties, and other materials deposited in the Treasury of the Exchequer, are constantly made. Moreover, there is still extant a book containing a list of all the documents belonging to the Exchequer which passed through Rymer's hands, each receipt signed by himself. That the Cottonian manuscripts were frequently used and quoted is beyond doubt, as may be seen by numberless marginal notations. Indeed the whole of Carte's accusation betrays both ignorance and malice. He was getting up a case for himself, to fill a subscription list for his History of England. Rymer, who edited the Fœdera, and Rapin, who popularized it, are both condemned as sciolists and ignoramuses, in order to exalt himself at their expense.

¹ From a passage in the preface of the General History of England by Tyrrell, who was contemporary with Rymer, it would seem that the fact of Rymer employing printed materials was well known at the time. He says, "I am very well informed that the learned and ingenious Mr. Rymer, his Majesty's Historiographer, designs to give the world a large collection of leagues, treaties, and articles of peace between the Kings of England and other foreign princes, collected not only from printed authors but also from that hidden treasure of originals and records at this day deposited in the old Chapter House of the Abbey of Westminster."

As this is a grave charge it ought to be fully proved. The convention in 1193 between Philip II. King of France and John Count of Mortain is taken by Rymer from the Codex Diplomaticus, with all the errors of that copy. The original, from whence Leibnitz printed, is in the public archives of France. Rymer derived four other documents from the same Codex Diplomaticus without acknowledgment.

² See Appendix XXVII.

Rymer seems to have been fully aware of them, and makes some apology for, or rather allusion to, them. In his note on the "Errata," at the end of his preface, he says, "In ipsis autographis aliquando deficiunt, aliquando redundant nonnulla vocabula, et etiam aliquando, vel ipsæ Grammaticorum conculcantur leges, sed hæc quovis modo tangere, prophanum duximus. Si quando leges preminere, iminere, consumare, in pontificum Litteris; vel orribile, ortus, erba, ylariter, anelare, ubi desit littera aut aspiratio; vel quando legas hodium, hirasci, cohoperante, ubi respiratio additur; hæc pro more fiunt, et minime typographo imputanda."

That Rymer's work created some disappointment on its first appearance must not be concealed. At least Ayloffe states¹ that the public had formed high ideas of this proposed collection of records, long before its publication; but their expectations were greatly disappointed. They could not, he says, without injustice to Rymer, neglect to applaud his labours, but at the same time they regretted his want of correctness, and that he had not more maturely considered the merits as well of several of those instruments which he printed as of many others which he rejected. This opinion of Ayloffe has been urged several times by Dr. Clarke in condemnation of Rymer; and yet he has felt himself compelled to admit that "perhaps there are few (if any) men in his day who could have executed a design with so much accuracy and success, at once as difficult and complex as it was important and useful."

Contemporary criticism.

For myself, I am inclined to think that Ayloffe has magnified the number as well as the importance of the censures to which he refers. He has mistaken the voice of a few like himself, who may have read the "Fœdera" with attention and compared it on some occasions with the originals, for the voice of the public, who neither could nor would do the one or the other. Considering the extent of his task, the difficulties and the intricacies against which Rymer had to contend single-handed, his work is by no means amenable to the censures that were thus insinuated by Ayloffe. Many of his supposed errors are nothing more than typographical inaccuracies; some are the obvious misreadings of his scribes—palpable enough, and pardonable in transcribing from faded parchments, often closely generally obscurely, written; and from the enormous size of the documents themselves, and their involved and perplexed Latinity, wearisome in the extreme.

Sanderson's
continuation.

But to return to the 18th, 19th, and 20th volumes, which were wholly entrusted to the editorship of Sanderson.¹ These volumes are quite different in their nature from those that preceded them. Sanderson either mistook his instructions, or wilfully perverted them. Instead of a "Fœdera" he has rather produced a new work in the shape of materials for our domestic history, in which foreign affairs are slightly intermingled. The reader's attention to this fact is particularly desired, as Rymer has been frequently undeservedly blamed for the miscellaneous character of these volumes, in which he had no hand whatever. It is true that in the 15 volumes edited by himself he frequently enlarged his plan, but Sanderson entirely changed it. It was his object to spare himself labour. He seems to have contented himself with making selections from those muniments which came easily to hand; and he seldom prosecuted his researches beyond the precincts of the Rolls Chapel, of which he was one of the chief clerks. It was less trouble to print the Patent Rolls entire than to make researches at the Chapter House.

The eighteenth volume of the "Fœdera" made its first appearance in 1726, but it was recalled for the reason which will be presently given, and did not finally appear until 1731. It embraces the period from 28th March 1625 to 10th of October 1628. It bears upon it every appearance of a continuation issued under the same authority as the preceding seventeen volumes, and accompanied by the same immediate sanction of the crown. The descriptive portion of the title-page agrees verbatim with the previous volumes; the royal warrant, dated the 17th February 1718, is prefixed as a frontispiece. The volume is dedicated to the king, and is stated to be "in lucem missa de mandato regio," an assertion which it is difficult to suppose any one would have hazarded who was merely acting with the royal permission and not by royal command. In all these particulars there appear to be positive indications that the "Fœdera" still preserved its original distinction as a publication issued by the government and not as private speculation. In his dedication to King George the First, Sanderson follows in the steps of Rymer; but is less florid, and his compliments are less laboured. He says, "I must esteem it as a very particular felicity in having had the honour

In this volume Sanderson was guilty of a great indiscretion and committed a grave breach of the privilege of Parliament, by printing the Journals of the first Parliament of Charles I., contrary to the standing orders of both houses. the volume; he cancelled 230 printed folio pages, with the following advertisement:¹ “The reader will be pleased to observe that the “ pages between 334 and 566, which were transcripts of the “ Journals of both Houses of Parliament, and, through ignorance, “ printed contrary to the standing orders of both houses, were “ therefore (in all dutiful obedience to the same) laid aside after “ they were printed, and are now supplied at the end of this “ volume, with proper collections from the records, which follow in “ due course of chronology, by Mr. Robert Sanderson. N.B.—The “ 19th and 20th volumes of the Fœdera are compiled, and will be “ published in due time by J Tonson.”

The amended volume received its full complement of 1060 pages, but did not make its appearance until the year 1731.

The nineteenth volume was published in 1732, and was dedicated to King George the Second. It embraces the period of 1628–1636. Speaking of this volume in his dedication to the King, Sanderson says, “I take this first opportunity of laying “ myself at your Majesty’s royal feet, together with an offering “ that best becomes me to make, and is the fittest for your Majesty “ to receive, it is the nineteenth tome of the Fœdera, &c., a “ collection containing so vast and rich a fund of useful and “ instructive learning, in all transactions, whether foreign or “ domestic, as I will adventure to say no other nation ever did “ nor indeed is able to produce the like. The collection is drawn “ from the pure and unadulterate fountain of your Majesty’s “ sacra scrinia, which give the firmest sanction to the veracity “ and the surest proof to the authority. This inestimable treasure the learned world owes to three of your royal predecessors “ and to your own beneficence. I might, on this occasion, say “ a thousand things which duty and affection to your sacred Majesty do very naturally inspire, but that profound awe and “ reverence which I shall always profess for your royal person do “ command a dutiful silence; concluding with my sincerest wishes “ that all your Majesty’s subjects may by their stedfast duty and

¹ It ought, however, to be stated, in justification of Sanderson, that in the warrant of George I., dated 17th Feb. 1717–8, he was permitted to have access to the Journals of both Houses of Parliament. Probably the houses considered that only access was intended, and not the privilege of printing. It does not appear that the subject was ever noticed in Parliament, as Sanderson recalled his work immediately he became aware of his indiscretion. Several copies of it, however, must have been circulated. One I have myself consulted, and another fell into the hands of Rapin, who made an abridgment of it in the xxxiv. number of the Acta Regia, and which may be seen in the folio edition of that work.

“ fidelity make it appear to all the world that they are not “ altogether unworthy of the favour and protection of so good
 “ and gracious a prince.”

The twentieth volume made its appearance in 1735, and is also dedicated to George the Second. It extends from 28th of March 1636 to 29th of April 1654.

The dedication to King George the Second, which is dated 21st August 1735, is conceived in the same spirit, and written in the same tone, as those that preceded it: “ May it please “ your Majesty, this is the twentieth volume of the Fœdera,
 “ &c., which I humbly presume to lay now at your Majesty’s “ feet. It contains the last twelve years of the reign of King “ Charles the First, and the first six years of King Charles the “ Second, your royal progenitors; a very small number of years “ indeed, but filled with innumerable instances of rage, distraction, “ madness, confusion, unreasonable dissensions, and unchristian “ quarrels, under the pretence of supporting religion (which very “ few practised), and of asserting regal power (which fewer valued).
 “ This was the melancholy face of affairs in those unhappy days.
 “ It would ill become my duty to interrupt your Majesty with “ a tedious relation of the various turns and changes in both “ church and state, but a serious reflection upon them naturally “ leads me to express my joy for falling into times under your “ sacred Majesty’s auspicious reign, wherein we are sufficiently “ guarded from all fears and apprehensions of such dreadful vicis“ situdes. May your Majesty live long to preserve to us those “ blessings which by your consummate wisdom and unwearied “ pains and labour you have procured for us. May the true “ sense of such inestimable blessings inspire every honest heart
 “ with an active becoming zeal for the sole service and interests “ of the excellent author of them, for it is to you (great king)
 “ we truly owe the full enjoyment of them. May just Heaven “ (whose care you are) ever protect and guard your Majesty, your “ royal consort, and all your royal family, for the glory and support “ of all your subjects in particular, and for the general good and “ benefit of mankind, &c.”

These three volumes edited by Sanderson were published by Jacob Tonson. This circumstance, added to the fact that Tonson was the real and responsible publisher of the second edition, has probably given occasion to the supposition that the volumes were published at Tonson’s risk.

Sanderson does not appear to have satisfied either the government or the public in his capacity of editor of the Fœdera, as he was not employed to continue it. He died on the 25th of December 1741. The little that is known of his personal history appears in the note below.¹ It would be unjust to his memory not to state that the text of his three volumes, which he had taken from the records with which he was most conversant, is generally printed with care; but certain letters which he had borrowed from the papers of Secretary Thurloe are disfigured with gross inaccuracies. This statement is made on the authority of Birch, the editor of the Thurloe Papers, who says, "the reader will be convinced of the necessity of reprinting them in this collection, when he is assured that the whole are most incorrectly transcribed, the dates often mistaken, and the names of persons and places generally disguised in such a manner as to be quite unintelligible."

labours.

The large sum of money at which the seventeen volumes of Rymer's "Fœdera" were valued, one hundred guineas being paid for a single copy, the very great estimation in which it was held abroad, the high encomiums passed upon it by Bishop Nicol-

¹ The following facts of his personal history will, it is hoped, be of some interest to the reader. Robert Sanderson, a younger son of Christopher Sanderson, a justice of the peace for Durham, who suffered for his attachment to the royal cause, was born at Eceleston Hall in Durham, on the 27th of July 1660. He was entered as a student of St. John's College, Cambridge, under Dr. Baker, on the 7th of July 1683, and continued several years at the University, being contemporary there with Matthew Prior. From the year 1696 to 1707 he was employed by Rymer. In 1704 he published a translation of original letters from William to Charles the Second. He wrote also a History of Henry the Fifth, part of which is lost and part remains in manuscript. On the 3d of May 1707 he was named in the Royal Warrant as Rymer's assistant. On the death of Rymer he applied for the place of Historiographer Royal, and was offered assistance by Prior, but was defeated by the change of ministry on the Queen's death in 1714. In 1715 he edited the 16th volume of the Fœdera ex schedis Thomæ Rymer. On the 15th February 1717 he was appointed by Royal Warrant editor in Rymer's place. On the 28th of November 1726 he was made usher of the Court of Chancery by Sir Joseph Jekyll, Master of the Rolls, and afterwards clerk or keeper of the Records in the Rolls Chapel. The dates of the publication of the later volumes of the Fœdera have already been given. In 1727 he succeeded to considerable property in Cumberland, the North Riding of Yorkshire, and Durham, on the death of an elder brother, and he afterwards occasionally resided at his seat, Armathwaite Castle, on the banks of the Eden, 10 miles from Carlisle, but his chief residence was in London. He died at his town residence in Chancery Lane, and was buried in Red Lion Fields. Sanderson was married four times; the last time in his 70th year to Elizabeth Hicckes of London. He was considered as a learned man, and was acquainted with many languages. He had a choice collection of books and manuscripts, and is said to have kept a journal, in which he noted down the minutest actions. On the death of his wife, in 1753, his estates descended to the family of his eldest sister, Margaret, the wife of Henry Milburne, of Newcastle.

1670, M. Rapin, and M. le Clerc,¹ and, above all, its scarcity, naturally attracted the attention of English publishers, and the celebrated Jacob Tonson determined to produce a second edition, or rather a reprint of the seventeen volumes, by subscription.² He obtained a royal licence for the exclusive publication of the work for a period of fourteen years from the 24th of May 1723. In the licence the work is treated as complete in 17 volumes folio, and Tonson is authorized to publish those volumes, without any mention of an intended continuation. With so little care was it at first conducted that many of the errors rectified by Rymer at the end of his preface were repeated without correction. George Holmes,³ then deputy keeper of the records in the Tower of London, and a man of considerable merit as an antiquary, was employed as editor. The work, however, had proceeded as far as p. 113 before Holmes's services were secured, at least from that

Of Tonson's edition, volumes I. to VIII., and also volumes X., XI., XII., XIII., XVI., and XVII., appear from their title-pages to have been published in 1727. Volumes XIV. and XV. bear date 1728; and volume IX., which was strangely delayed, completed the series of reprints in 1729. These dates upon the title-pages are in some degree at variance with a paper preserved in Nichols' Literary Anecdotes, i. 386,² which is evidently genuine, and details the particulars respecting the mode of Tonson's publication.

Only the first twelve volumes, which contained the records derived from the Tower, were edited by Holmes; the name of the editor of the others does not appear. His corrections exhibit the nature of the errors which had escaped Rymer. They are more numerous in the earlier volumes.

Tonson published in 1730 the result of George Holmes' collation in a thin volume, with the title of "The emendations in the new edition of Mr. Rymer's Fœdera are all printed in these sheets, for the use of those gentlemen who are possessed of the former edition, the pages of which are exactly referred to in such a manner that the reader may easily mark those alterations with his pen which are made in the new edition.

The two editions of the "Fœdera" having become scarce and expensive, a third edition, embodying Holmes' collation and Sanderson's additional volumes, was commenced at the Hague in the year 1737, and completed in 1745. It is in smaller type than the other two editions, and is compressed into ten volumes. The work appears to have been undertaken by the Dutch booksellers as a private speculation; we are not informed of the name the editor they selected, though there is some reason to suppose that it was John Neaulme, the publisher.

"emendatur." Accordingly, in the index it is placed, together with a correlative document, among the Omissa, not under 1237, but at 1247, to follow page 442; yet in the new edition they are both absurdly separated, so as to follow Rymer's erroneous marginal date—p. 456 ad calcem. in marg pro ex Autogr., leg. Pat. 34 H. 3.—p. 512, col. 2, l. 29, pro 14 Martii leg. pridie nonas Martii.

² See Appendix XXII.

This new edition was published at the Hague "Hagæ comitis, apud Joannem Neaulme." It is somewhat inaccurately described in the title-page, as "Editio Tertia, ad originales Chartas in Turri Londinensi denuo summa fide collata et emendata, studio Georgii Holmes."

Volume I., which includes the whole of volumes I. and II. of the London editions, and 312 pages of volume III., bears date 1739.

Volume II. contains the remainder of volume III., the whole of volume IV., and 535 pages of volume V., and is also dated 1739.

Volume III. finishes at the 187th page of volume VIII., and bears date 1740.

Volume IV., also dated in 1740, brings the reprint down to the 565th page of volume X.

Volume V. ends with the 247th page of volume XIII., and was published in 1741.

Volume VI., dated in the same year, comes down to the end of volume XV. of the London editions.

Volume VII. concludes volume XVII. of the London editions, and is dated 1742.

Volume VIII. was published in 1743, and ends with the 658th page of volume XIX. of Sanderson's edition.

Volume IX., published in 1744, includes the remainder of Sanderson's portion; also 107 letters attributed to Queen Mary I. of England, a translation into French of an English treatise "de l'Etat et Gouvernement du royaume d'Angleterre," said to have been written by Sir Thomas Smith, and the Syllabus to Rymer's manuscript collections.

Volume X. contains an "Abrege Historique" of the documents contained in the "Fœdera," and an Index rerum præcipuarum to the nine preceding volumes. It was published in 1745.

Prefixed to the tenth volume is sometimes found an advertisement from John Neaulme, the publisher, in which he states the account between himself and the subscribers according to the terms contained in his proposals. The whole cost to the subscribers was 134 florins and 3 sols for each copy. Neaulme also submits to his subscribers an account of various unanticipated expenses which he had necessarily incurred with a view of rendering the edition more complete, the result of which is that in his opinion each subscriber ought to pay him 13 florins and 3 sols beyond the stipulated price. He makes no demand for the amount, but states the circumstances, and adds "ceux que voudront me les payer me feront plaisir, et me rendront justice."

It may be inferred from the statements in this advertisement that John Neaulme was himself the editor as well as the publisher of the Hague edition.

Comparison of the various editions of the Fœdera.

A few words on the comparative advantages of the three editions of the "Fœdera" will not be out of place here.

There is very little difference in the appearance of the editions printed by Churchill and by Tonson; perhaps the latter has a slight advantage; but if either be compared with the Dutch edition it will at once be seen how superior is either of the former to the foreign reprint in clearness of type, in the texture of the paper, and the disposition of the printed matter. In the English editions, consisting of twenty handsome volumes, the printer has done everything in his power to assist the reader. In the Dutch edition, on the other hand, the documents are crowded together, with an evident view to abridge space; the type is less clear, and the paper less firm; indeed the work throughout has something of a niggardly and stinted look. So far, therefore, as regards appearance, the English editions are certainly to be preferred.

Putting aside appearance, and limiting the comparison to accuracy, Tonson's edition is undoubtedly superior to Churchill's, inasmuch as it contains George Holmes' corrections, the exact nature of which will be presently explained. To equalize the editions as far as possible in respect to accuracy, Tonson issued, as already stated, a thin volume, entitled "The Emendations in the new edition of Mr. Rymer's Fœdera, . . . published for the use of those gentlemen who are possessed of the former edition, &c. London, 1730." These emendations are sometimes bound up with copies of the first edition, but cannot be thought to supply adequately the place of the corrections themselves. In other respects Tonson's edition is a mere reprint page by page of Churchill's. Even the documents which Rymer inserted at the end of the first and second volumes under the title of "Omissa" are retained in the same places in Tonson's edition, although they ought to have been inserted in their proper places according to the order of their dates.

The Dutch edition has many peculiarities and some improvements. Among the former, certainly no advantage, is the awkward division of the volumes into four parts; each separately paged; which not only needlessly burthens the memory in using the Index, but produces great inconvenience, as there are four pages with the same number in each volume. Among the improvements may be reckoned, the diminished size of the work and its general index,¹ but which, however, is very defective, and can never be depended upon. The marginal references to the paging of the English editions, beginning at p. 26 of the first volume, and carried on from thence to the end of the work, are also of considerable use. In typographical accuracy the Dutch edition is far superior to either of the preceding.²

The Dutch edition also contains additional matter of three kinds: (I.) Original documents; (II.) A translation from the English; and (III.) a French abridgment, or synopsis of the work.

The original documents consist of one hundred and seven letters of Queen Mary I., “desumptæ ex manuscripto originali in Bibliotheca Ducis Kantiaë.” Some of these are merely complimentary letters, containing few allusions to public affairs; but others, as, for instance, those to the King of Denmark in reply to his applications on behalf of Miles Coverdale, are interesting and valuable. All of them were worthy of publication. Dr. Clarke, in his General Introduction to the “Fœdera,” p. vi., has remarked that these letters were probably written by Roger Ascham; and this is not unlikely, as Ascham was Latin Secretary during the period in which these letters were written (Fœd. xv. 388). The Duke of Kent, from whose library the original manuscript was derived, was Henry Grey de Ruthyn, who enjoyed that title from the 28th of April 1710 until his death in 1740.

The translation from the English is of a little treatise of great merit in its day, and even yet worthy of notice, ascribed to Sir Thomas Smith, and entitled “De republica Anglorum.” In this work, after a general view of the several kinds of government, the author explains the peculiarities of the institutions of England, and briefly describes the different classes of the people and the various natures of the Courts of Justice. It was first published in London in 1583, and has been many times reprinted both in Latin and in English in various sizes. The author is well known, not only as a statesman of some celebrity, but as the learned coadjutor of Sir John Cheke in the revival of classical learning in the sixteenth century. The nature of the work, and the hands through which it came to the editor of the Dutch edition of the "Fœdera," are explained by him in the following title prefixed to the treatise, "De l'estat et Gouvernement du Royaume d'Angleterre, avec une nouvelle addition des principales Cours du dit Royaume et des officiers d'icelles Cours. Faict a la Main le 28 Mars l'an de Salut 1565 pendant le Reyne de la Serenissime et Excellentissime princesse la Reine Elizabeth, par un Gentilhomme, Ambassadeur en France pour sa Majesté a pres le Roy Charles IX. de ce nom. N.B.—Le Manuscrit a été donne par feu Monseigneur le Prince de Condé à M. la Comte de Bethune."

² In the Avertissement prefixed to the first volume the editor says:—“Je ne m'entendrai point sur ce qui la rend préférable aux deux premières, par rapport à l'exactitude: j'avoue même qu'on auroit pu pousser les corrections beaucoup plus loin encore qu'on n'a fait, s'il avoit été permis de donner quelque chose à la conjecture, dans des piéces ou tout est sacré.”

The Abrégé Historique, perhaps the most remarkable feature in this edition, occupies nearly six hundred pages of the tenth volume. This Abrégé is so intimately connected with the "Fœdera," and indeed has so nearly become a component part of it, that its history deserves some attention.

At the time when Le Clerc received the volumes of the "Fœdera" through the medium of Lord Halifax, he was the editor of a literary review, entitled "Bibliothèque Choisie," published at Amsterdam in 12mo. Desirous of doing honour to Lord Halifax for his valuable gift, and, at the same time of giving his review all the superiority over its competitors which could be derived from the possession of these important volumes, he proposed to insert in the "Bibliothèque Choisie" a series of articles which should illustrate and explain the contents of the "Fœdera." The first of these articles appeared in the 16th volume of the "Bibliothèque Choisie," and, besides a brief account of the history of the work, contained an abstract of the contents of the first volume.

Le Clerc's numerous occupations prevented him from fulfilling his intention of continuing these articles, and for several years after the publication of the first of them the design was dropped. In the meantime the subject was taken up in another quarter. Le Clerc, as before mentioned, lent the volumes of the "Fœdera" to Rapin, who was then employed upon his English History. Upon returning the second volume, Rapin acknowledged his obligation for the loan, accompanying it with an abstract or abridgment of its contents, written in French, and arranged under the heads of the principal historical transactions to which the documents contained in the volume related. This was exactly what Le Clerc wanted, and it was probably written with more knowledge of the subject than was possessed by Le Clerc himself. Rapin's abstract of the second volume was immediately published in the "Bibliothèque Choisie," and he was invited by Le Clerc to write a series of similar articles upon the remaining volumes. He did so, and the papers which he thus contributed were from time to time inserted in the "Bibliothèque Choisie," and, after its relinquishment, in the "Bibliothèque Ancienne et Moderne," another review of the same kind established by Le Clerc as a successor to the Bibliothèque Choisie. This long series of articles comprised abstracts made by Rapin of the whole seventeen volumes of the "Fœdera," and were highly and justly esteemed as a useful abridgment of an extremely scarce and exclusive work. Rapin's papers were considered to be of such value that, by the direction of Pensionary Fagel, the States printer at the Hague was employed to reprint them in one volume, with the addition of an article upon the first volume written by Rapin, in conformity with the plan upon which he had composed the rest. Only thirty copies of this work were printed, one of which found its way into the library of Martin Folkes, Esquire, President of the Royal Society.

Abridgments of the remaining volumes edited by Sanderson were shortly afterwards made by some other person, but whether they were included in the Pensionary Fagel's reprint I have not been able to discover; they are, however, to be found in the last volume of the Hague edition.

A work relating principally to English history, and which had attracted so much attention upon the continent, was soon thought worthy of publication in England. Mr. Stephen Whatley, a person employed by the London booksellers in making translations from the French, was encouraged to undertake a translation of it by William Benson, to whom the nation is indebted for the monument to Milton in Westminster Abbey, and Martin Folkes lent Whatley his copy of Pensionary Fagel's reprint. The translation was first published in the years 1726 and 1727 in twenty-five numbers, which form four volumes 8vo, and besides the article by Le Clerc upon the first volume, and Rapin's articles upon the volumes from II to XVII, it also contains Rapin's supplementary article upon volume I. The full title of Whatley's book will be seen in the foot note.¹

An edition of Whatley's translation was published in 42 numbers, in folio in 1732, and in 1733 the translator prefixed a dedication to William Prince of Orange, although his old patron, Benson, to whom the octavo edition was dedicated, was still alive. The folio edition does not comprise Le Clerc's article upon vol. I., but, on the other hand, it contains a translation of the abridgments of volumes XVIII.² and XIX., which were not included in the octavo edition. In neither of them is there any abridgment of volume XX.³

The publication of the "Acta Regia" seems to have been an infringement of Tonson's licence of the 24th of May 1723, but probably evaded its literal meaning.

In the Dutch edition of the "Fœdera" we find the abstract of vol. I. by Le Clerc, all Rapin's papers, and also a continuation,⁴ which embraces the documents in volumes XVIII., XIX., and XX.

¹ "Acta Regia; or an Account of the "Treaties, Letters, and Instruments between the Monarchs of England and Foreign Powers, published in Rymer's Fœdera, which are the basis of the English History, and contain those authorities which rectify the mistakes that most of our writers have committed for want of such a collection of Records. Translated from the French of M. Rapin, as published by M. Le Clerc. To be published monthly."

² A large portion of the 18th volume was cancelled, but the Folio Edition of the "Acta Regia" contains an analysis of the cancelled printed sheets; a circumstance which adds greatly to the value of that edition.

⁴ This continuation is epitomized in an alphabetical order, and has been condeu-

med by Dr. Clarke as "destitute of lucid arrangement and distinguishing leading principles." (See Dr. Clarke's Second Report in the General Reports of the Commissioners of Public Records, 1819, i., p. 127; also the General Introduction to the Fœdera, p. vii.) Rapin, however, differed essentially from Dr. Clarke on this subject. He states:—"Puisque nous voici parvenus à la fin de cette année, qui doit faire aussi la conclusion du XVIII. Tome des Actes Publics d'Angleterre, je vais donner l'Extrait que j'ai promis des piéces qu'il contient, et qui ne se rapportent par seulement à l'Histoire des années précédentes, mais encore à plusieurs autres matieres qui intéressent des personnes de tous les rangs and de toutes les conditions. J'ai pris soin de ranger ces Extraits par ordre alphabétique; comptant que le Lecteur aimera mieux trouver chaque sujet traité à part et sous son propre chef, sur tout les dates ayant été très fidelement marquées, que de voir une multitude d'articles, qui n'ont aucun rapport entre eux, assemblés pêle-mêle, sans autre avantage que de garder l'ordre chronologique. D'ailleurs, ce Tome XVIII. contient si peu de piéces propres à être incorporées dans le tissu de l'Histoire, que le Lecteur sentira bien la nécessité qu'il y avoit de ne pas suivre la methode qu'on a observée dans les Extraits des Tomes précédens."

All these papers are classed together under the general title "Abregé Historique des Actes Publics d'Angleterre recueilles par Thomas Rymer."

On the score of greater convenience, more portable size, a better index and increased comprehensiveness, the third or Hague edition of the "Fœdera" is preferable to the others.

The Hague edition, like its two predecessors, soon became difficult to obtain, and was much in demand. These facts and other circumstances determined the late Commissioners on Public Records to undertake a new edition, and on a more extensive and magnificent scale. Their resolution arose out of the following circumstance. A Select Committee of the House of Commons was appointed in the year 1800 to inquire into the state of the public records of the realm, and, among other things, it reported to the house that the state papers published together in "Rymer's Fœdera" formed a most valuable collection. As the work did not come down lower in date than the first six years of Charles the Second during the usurpation, they recommended a supplementary selection of such other important papers as had been omitted by the original compiler, and they deemed it advisable to have it continued to the Revolution, or even to the accession of the House of Hanover.

Latest edition under the superintendence of the Record Commission.

The Record Commissioners, who were appointed by George the Third to carry out the measures recommended by the House of Commons, gave their early attention to the "Fœdera;" but, unfortunately, they possessed little acquaintance with the literature of records and ancient diplomacy. They had not sufficiently weighed the difficulties they would have to encounter in following out the suggestion of the Committee of the House of Commons. However, they directed their secretary, Mr. Topham, to write to the several keepers of the records in the Tower of London, the Rolls Chapel, the Chapter House, Westminster, the State Paper Office, the Privy Council Office, and to the Clerks of the Signet, to consider and submit to the Board a proper selection of records, instruments, and state papers in their custody, for the purpose of forming a supplement to Rymer's Fœdera during the period of time comprehended in that work, and also with a view to its continuation to the accession of George the Second.

Steps taken by the Record Commissioners.

No time was lost in replying to the Commissioners by the several gentlemen having the custody of the public records. Mr. Astle reported to the Board on the 24th of March 1802, that he had caused selections to be made from the records in his charge at the Tower from the reign of John to that of Edward the Fourth, both included.

Mr. Kipling stated that he had prepared selections from the muni-ments at the Rolls Chapel down to the time of George the Second, and Mr. Planta was requested to examine the collection of Rymer's manuscripts in the British Museum, to compare them with the printed work, and to report how far the same had been already included in it.

The next step taken by the Record Commissioners was that which they ought to have taken in the first instance, namely, to secure the services of a person duly qualified to undertake the examination and arrangement of the returns made from the State Paper Office, the Tower, Chapter House, and British Museum. Mr. Kipling was ordered to revise his selections from the Rolls Chapel, and the Master of the Rolls was requested to inspect the catalogue proposed by Mr. Kipling, and to note such as he judged unfit to be included in the supplement to and continuation of Rymer's work. Mr. Kipling was further ordered to prepare his work for press, and submit his manuscript to the Record Commissioners.

Mr. Samuel Lysons (who had succeeded Mr. Astle as keeper of the Tower records) was requested to report on the documents which had been selected at the Tower under the superintendence of his predecessor; that conscientious and erudite scholar, however, finding such a work incompatible with his official duties, respectfully declined the task. After he had commenced an examination of the extracts from the calendars to the patent and close rolls, with a view to a report on a proper selection of the Tower records for the continuation and supplement of the Fœdera, Mr. Lysons remarks, "As a general report on a proper selection from the records in my office, which appears to be desired by his Majesty's Commissioners, it would have given me much pleasure to have been able to comply with this request, but what I consider as the positive duties of my office occupying so much of my time at present, that I could not undertake a work of such magnitude and nicety, even if I were confident in the sufficiency of my judgment for it."

The office of chief editor was then offered to Mr. Lysons, but he felt it his duty to decline it.

The Commissioners were greatly embarrassed to find a fit person to undertake the editorship of the new "Fœdera," and they had the mortification of recording their failure on three¹ other occasions.

Their difficulty in finding an editor.

¹ Record Minutes, 16 December 1805, 23 March 1806, 21 July 1806, 16 December 1807.

Chance at last threw in their way a gentleman who was distinguished for his biblical learning and oriental scholarship, though quite unskilled in diplomacy and paleography, and without any profound acquaintance with English historical and antiquarian literature.

On the 25th March the secretary reported to the Board that Dr. Adam Clarke, LL.D., who had been recommended as a fit person to undertake the editorship of the Fœdera, on account of his extensive learning and indefatigable industry, having been desired to prepare "an essay on the best mode of carrying into effect a compilation to form a supplement and continuation of Rymer's Fœdera," had complied with the request. Dr. Clarke's essay was read at the Board, and the Commissioners having signified their approbation of the method suggested by Dr. Clarke for executing the work, it was ordered that the synopsis¹ subjoined to his essay should be returned to him, to be filled up as he had proposed, for the purpose of completing the specimen from the Conquest to the end of the reign of John. The secretary was also directed to obtain admission for him to the several public offices and libraries which it might be necessary for him to consult. He was further ordered to prepare a scheme for the first volume of a supplement, and the first volume of a continuation, specifying, in the same manner as sketched out in his synopsis, all the articles or instruments he proposed to insert, and to lay the same before the Board with all convenient despatch.

The essay referred to bears date the 18th of March, and is published in the General Reports of the Commissioners on Public Records. It is not necessary here to do more than remark, that it is evidently the production of a person unskilled in records, and who wrote from the information of others rather than from his own experience. About fourteen months after Dr. Clarke had issued this essay, he appears to have entirely changed the opinions he then expressed, and recommended the Record Board to alter the supplement and continuation which had been suggested by the House of Commons into a new edition of the whole work, with a

Dr. Adam Clarke appointed to complete the "Fœdera."

He recommends a new edition of the "Fœdera."

¹ "A Synopsis of the Contents and Deficiencies of the first 100 years of Rymer's Fœdera." Dr. Clarke designed it as an appendix to his essay. It will be found in a MS. volume of "Orders, Reports, &c. on the Fœdera, from 1808 to 1811," now preserved in the Public Record Office. It consists of a table divided into spaces for all the years from 1066 to 1202; those spaces only being filled when a document occurs in Rymer. All the rest are left blank.

more scientific and methodical arrangement. Some of the reasons pressed by Dr. Clarke for this total change of purpose, if not convincing were at least specious, and were calculated to mislead a body of gentlemen little acquainted with matters of this nature. He pointed out the importance of the Fœdera as a great national work, the scarcity and value of copies of it, the fact that many of the originals had been either lost or rendered useless by an injurious application of a solution of galls. He pressed upon the Commissioners the necessity of having the whole body of its contents corrected, methodized, and arranged, in conjunction with the new materials which had been discovered since Rymer first formed his collection. In direct opposition to the House of Commons, he condemned "supplements," as being of comparatively little use, and in support of his censure he brought forward the fact that when George Holmes was employed to examine and collate the articles in Rymer with the originals in the Tower, the fruit of his labour was a volume of corrections and emendations, which were printed separately, and yet this was not judged sufficient; consequently, a new edition of the work had been recommended and executed, in which the corrections and emendations were inserted in their proper places. Either for the purpose of undervaluing the services of Holmes, or for some other object not apparent on the face of his censure, Dr. Clarke asserted that he had sufficient proof that Holmes did not collate the papers at the Tower with any tolerable degree of care, and that many omissions had been discovered on recollection, not of single words only, but of whole sentences.

Dr. Clarke's censure ordered to be examined.

For the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of Dr. Clarke's accusation, I was employed in the year 1834 by the Commissioners on Public Records to make a careful examination into this subject. From my report to the Commissioners, as it has never been printed, I have no hesitation in selecting the following extracts here. I observed that "it is only necessary to consider the emendations really effected by Holmes in his edition, and to oppose them to the variations from the original records to be found, as well in the new as in the old edition of Rymer, to make it evident that so severe a censure upon Holmes had better have been spared; for, notwithstanding this charge of errors ascribed to the neglect of the latter, I have not been fortunate enough to discover any instance of the correction of such errors in the new edition. In justice to the memory of Holmes, it is but fair to state that he certainly did collate most of the articles in the 1st

" edition with their corresponding documents in the Tower, dis" covering and correcting many errors, and that those he allowed
 " to remain in the 2nd edition are but few in number, of very
 " trifling importance, and scarcely, if at all, affecting the sense of " the passages to which they belong. It is likewise clear that of " the instruments in which such errors are to be found he had not
 " compared a single one with its original, probably owing to his
 " being unable to lay his hand upon such original at the time.
 " What were his reasons for not collating any of the documents
 " prior to the reign of King John, it would perhaps be difficult
 " at this time to say; but that he began no earlier is fairly to be " concluded from his emendations commencing with the first
 " instrument in that reign."

" To return to the new edition. "I felt it my duty to state, that
 " my researches had not enabled me to find therein any emendation
 " of importance beyond those actually made by Holmes. This con" clusion, founded upon the examination of only a very limited " number of the instruments, is, however, by no means intended to " convey an impression that no corrections have been made in the " new edition. Possibly there may be many, and very valuable
 " emendations may have been effected with regard to those instru" ments, which it has not occurred to me to compare with the " originals; but in those which I have collated, the alterations
 " appear to be merely such as would readily suggest themselves to " any person possessing a competent knowledge of the Latin " language when collating the original record. The only example
 " of gross inaccuracy amended in the new edition seems to me to " be merely the particular one selected for notice in the preface to " the same; and even in this instance it is observable, that the " correction occurs in a portion of the work relative to a period
 " long preceding that at which Holmes appears to have commenced
 " his labours, that is, before the first year of the reign of John,
 " which was probably owing to the fact that the regular series of
 " the Chancery rolls in the Tower does not begin at an earlier period.

Clarke's injustice to Holmes.

" It is somewhat remarkable that Holmes should have been " accused, in such unqualified terms, of a general want of care,
 " since it is admitted in the General Introduction to the new " edition (page 10) that 'as the work had been printed from the " ' 2nd edition, collated by Holmes with the originals in the " ' Tower, it was not thought necessary to recollate all the papers
 " ' in that repository.' That the new editor should thus follow in " the steps of a man whom he charged with having so unsteadily

“ trod the path of duty was assuredly not to have been expected “ in a work where accuracy was a desideratum of great if not of “ the very first importance; more especially as it had been pre“ viously stated that ‘the papers from the Tower were in a more “ ‘ incorrect state than those taken from any other office;’ and that “ ‘ many had been copied with a most reprehensible neglect.’ It “ is also difficult to conceive for what reason the recollection of “ documents in the new edition began no sooner than the reign “ of Edward I.; and still more incomprehensible that, after the “ beneficial results of such recollection had become strikingly ap“ parent, this most important part of the editor’s duty was “ totally abandoned.

Remarks on the advantages and disadvantages of Dr. Clarke’s edition.

“ It would lead me into a discussion of too great length to enter “ here into a detail of the particulars in which the new edition of “ the Fœdera may be considered as an improvement upon its pre“ decessors, or to enumerate the many points in regard to which “ the just expectation of those who have had occasion to consult
 “ it have been disappointed. Many have complained of negligence
 “ and inconsistency in its orthography and punctuation; others, of “ great inaccuracy as to dates, and in the arrangement of its instru“ ments; and, on the other side, some few have been found to “ speak of it in terms of unqualified approbation. Opposite “ opinions of its faults and its advantages may doubtless continue “ to be entertained. For myself, I am wholly unconscious of any “ disposition to view the new edition of the Fœdera through a “ medium of hypercriticism; but, called upon for a statement of “ facts, it has imperatively become my duty to make you no other “ than a faithful return to your inquiries regarding its accuracy;
 “ and though some of the errors noticed in Appendix A.¹ may be “ considered but of a trifling nature, and others may be found to “ have in no way acted as impediments to a complete or sufficient “ understanding of the instruments to which they respectively “ belong, yet it cannot be denied that, insignificant or not, they “ could scarcely have been overlooked in the course of a careful “ collation with the original records, had such been the practice “ adopted and strictly adhered to.”

The Record Board did not at first accede to the advice given by Dr. Clarke; but he was not to be defeated. At the end of twelve months he again brought forward his project, and endeavoured to show that a new edition was the only course likely to meet the wishes or demands of the public. In an evil hour the counsels of ¹ Appendix to the Report.

Dr. Clarke prevailed, and the Commissioners gave way, in hope that the work would thus be made more complete and more useful. We must lament the step thus taken by the Commissioners. The determination to reprint 20 folio volumes, in an extravagant and unwieldy form, whilst whole classes of important records remained unpublished, was, to say the least of it, a proceeding of lavish impropriety, and of which no persons who had to employ their own means and substance would have been guilty. The determination was opposed to the recommendation of the House of Commons; but what was to be expected from an irresponsible Board, the several members of which had probably never consulted the Fœdera, and only knew its nature from the reports of Dr. Clarke? Be this, however, as it may, Dr. Clarke was on the 24th of March 1810 authorized to undertake a new edition of the Fœdera. That the Fœdera is a most important national publication is conceded by everyone whose opinion is worth regarding, but its scarceness was very much exaggerated by Dr. Clarke, and his allegation that many of the original documents had been lost, and many destroyed by galls, was most illogical and absurd. Had such been the case, how could they have been of any use in a new edition? Documents lost or destroyed were no longer available for examination or collation, whereas the press had already perpetuated them, and given them all the publicity and permanency within its power. The only valid argument, brought forward by Dr. Clarke in favour of the new edition, was the convenience of having the supplementary documents inserted in chronological order with those previously printed, an advantage that no one will deny, but which it was possible to purchase too dearly.

I propose in my preface to the next volume of this Syllabus to examine critically the materials added to the work by Dr. Clarke, and which he has condemned Rymer for omitting.

It now only remains for me to explain the object and plan of the present work. Its object is to give, in English, a condensed notice of each instrument, printed in the several editions of the "Fœdera," arranged in chronological order, as a sort of precursor of the Calendars of State Papers now in progress, under the direction of the Master of the Rolls, and thus supply the student, who may not have the means of procuring the ponderous and expensive volumes of the "Fœdera," with a synopsis of state papers anterior to the time of the Tudors when the Calendars commence. It is not intended to supersede the "Fœdera," but to bring it more under the notice of the statesman and historical scholar than it has lately occupied. It is true that the "Fœdera" does not exhaust the subject to which it is devoted, as I shall presently show; but it is, nevertheless, a vast magazine of state papers, protocols, and memorials, which ought to be gravely studied, not only for the history of England, but for that of Europe generally.

The Syllabus explained.
Its object.

Its plan.

It has already been stated that Le Clerc and Rapin both published abstracts or abridgments of the Fœdera; the former confining his task to the first volume, the latter extending his to the seventeen volumes which had appeared during his time; a third (unknown person) abridged the 18th, 19th, and 20th volumes. The present Syllabus does not resemble either of its three predecessors.

Le Clerc's object.

Le Clerc's object was to give a comprehensive idea of the use that might be made of the "Fœdera;" first, by general remarks on the importance of its materials, and secondly, by making selections from it in illustration of his comment. This plan was certainly justified in explaining to foreigners the speciality of a work, so unlike anything that had hitherto been published on the continent. His selections, however, were few in comparison with the instruments with which he had to deal.

Rapin's.

Rapin's intention was to show the relation which the acts in the Fœdera stand to the events which occurred, and to illustrate the one by the other. To use his own words, he considered the "Fœdera" as a body without a soul, which required the thread of history to illustrate and support it. He therefore undertook to show the relation of the acts in the Fœdera to the History of England, and their importance in illustrating the public and private transactions of each reign; but as he proceeded, his materials became too diversified for his project, and he found it impossible to reduce his plan to general heads, and consequently was under the necessity of varying the course of his design, and was compelled, as it were, to cut up the History of England into strips and classify his subjects under different heads; for instance, he divides the events of the reign of Edward the First into eight sections, bringing under each the various instruments especially pertaining to each topic from the beginning to the end of the reign; thus, all the acts relative to Scotland are brought together; as are all ecclesiastical affairs relating as well to England alone as to the King's controversies with Rome; the disputes between England and France; the war in Wales; the affairs concerning England in particular; the differences between the two families of Aragon and Anjou, of which Edward I. was the mediator;

special acts relating to the King and his family; and, lastly, distinct acts which could not be arranged under either of the other sections. It should also be stated that Rapin did not include in his abridgment all the documents printed in the Fœdera; he omitted those which were not important for the object he had in view. This mode of proceeding might have been well enough for Rapin's purpose, but it is surely not the way to study history as a science.

The Syllabus aims at none of these distinctions; its object, as I have already stated, is simply to give a synopsis of the whole of the Fœdera in the fewest words possible and in strictly chronological sequence, pointing out the pages where each act occurs in the several editions; and with this view it has been found necessary to depart from the order in which several of the acts have been placed by Rymer and the editors who followed him, either through carelessness or ignorance; for instance, under the year 1101 Rymer has printed three documents—one of which belongs to the year 1249, another to 1177, and a third to 1174. Under the year 1162 he has given a papal bull belonging to the year 1257; under the year 1200 another bull is found appertaining to 1245. Under 1174 he has placed a charter of the year 1236, and under 1427 a document belonging to 1509. But it is needless to continue this subject, inasmuch as a list of all the transpositions will appear in the Appendix to the next volume. The Syllabus.

That the Syllabus might have been given in greater detail there can be no doubt, but a fuller abstract would have greatly increased the size of the work without effecting any positive advantage, and in fact would have deprived it of its chief recommendation, as affording a compact and lucid outline of the leading wants of our national history. If it had been an analysis of unpublished materials, which could not be readily consulted, then a more ample abridgment would have been required; but in a synopsis of a printed work, usually found in every public library and in many private collections, it would seem to be a superfluous task to do more than call attention to each piece in as brief a manner as is compatible with clearness. Each article has been condensed into the fewest words, and it is hoped that the arrangement will satisfy the requirements of those for whose service it has been compiled.

The Syllabus may also be used as a general index to the several editions, chronologically arranged, and if read continuously it will afford the student a skeleton of English History, and give him a much more faithful picture of the events of any particular period than can be gathered from the pages of the writers of the age to which those events relate. For instance, secrets of state quite unknown to contemporary annalists are brought to light; chasms in history are filled up from undoubted sources; the causes and consequences of things are made clear by tracing their beginning, their progress, and their end; for it must be remembered that every event in history arose from some preceding transaction, and became in its turn the parent of others. A contemptible squabble between the masters of two trading vessels has more than once brought two friendly nations into a collision which has only been repaired after years of sanguinary conflict and ruinous expense.

A general index of the names of persons and places which occur in the Syllabus will be found at the end of the second volume.

A third volume will be wholly devoted to a general index of the names of persons and places, including also matters which appear in all the editions of the Fœdera, and so arranged as to suit each edition.

It is, however, necessary to state that, except under special circumstances, the orthography of the proper names, as they occur in the Fœdera, though not always correct, has been adopted both in the Syllabus and the indexes. To have altered the spelling from what it appears in the printed volumes would have been productive of much inconvenience to those consulting the work.

I have already intimated that, although the Fœdera supplies a vast amount of historical information in the character of State Papers and diplomatic instruments anterior to the reign of Henry VIII., when the Calendars to those documents commence, yet it does not, by any means, exhaust those subjects: much more remain unpublished than have already appeared. Any work, therefore, which should indicate these inedited materials would be of the highest importance to the student; and no one can doubt that the nation ought to possess some uniform work of the kind, in which all articles of real importance should be noticed, necessary for the illustration of English history from the earliest period down to the Revolution of 1688. I do not now allude to topographical or local history, but to a public or political history in the widest sense of the term. In such a work should be found (those printed in the Fœdera, of course, always excepted) all conventions and treaties between foreign princes and the sovereigns of England; letters and other documents illustrative of such treaties; conventions and treaties between foreign princes and powers having reference to English interests, or illustrative of English history; conventions between foreign princes and potentates and the subjects of Kings of England; public and private acts of foreign princes illustrative of English history; papal bulls, briefs, and other ecclesiastical documents manifesting the exercise of papal authority over the subjects or institutions of this kingdom; correspondence of the Kings of England with their own subjects, illustrative of general history; correspondence of Kings of England with foreign communities, noblemen, merchants, and others; correspondence between foreign potentates and British subjects; acknowledgments of allegiance and service of rights belonging to the Kings of England from foreign princes and their subjects; letters of safe conduct, credence, and protection, and letters, though neither royal, nor proceeding from any constituted authorities, yet illustrative of English history. Specimens of the whole of these here enumerated may be seen in the Fœdera. Such a work as I have suggested should be a Supplement to the Fœdera, and should contain a brief but complete Calendar of all authentic documents to be found amongst English Records, necessary for the verification and illustration of the political, ecclesiastical, civil, and military history of Great Britain.

In the Appendix to the Second Volume of the Syllabus will be found a specimen of the work to which I have called the reader's attention.

I cannot close these pages without referring to the assistance I have received in collecting the materials which form the basis of this preface. I should indeed be ungrateful did I not acknowledge, with very many thanks, the valuable and ready aid I have received from several members of the Public Record Office who have helped me in every way in their power; to mention their names would look like a parade of friendship; there is one of them, however, to whom I would tender my especial thanks—I mean my valued friend, Mr. John Bruce, who, having travelled over the same ground as myself in a Memoir of Rymer, placed the whole of his materials in my hand. Although I found much that I already possessed, yet Mr. Bruce's papers gave me information that had escaped my research.

Unconnected with the Public Record Office, I gladly record my obligations to the Rev. H. R. Luard, of Cambridge, the President of Queens' College, Cambridge, the Master of Sydney College, Cambridge, the Rev. James Raine, of York, Mr. N. E. S. A. Hamilton, of the British Museum, Mr. W. T. Jefferson, of Northallerton, and to Mr. J. Horner, of the same town.

Sir,—By my last you knew that the French had received our ratification under the signett, and putt it collationed into the mediatour's hands : so that I thought the difficulty over : but on Saturday, when they understood that the Instrument under the great seal was come from England, they informed my Lords Ambassadors by the mediat^r that they excepted ag^t the stile of rex Francia, and after some arguing upon that point they came to this, that they would be satisfied provided we would declare that we would change it if it were found otherwise in the ratification of the treaty of Breda, and of other treaties made since. It would be long to tell you the expedients w^{ch} have been proposed and the messages w^{ch} have been sent and returned upon this subject. Their Excell^{ces} stick to the treaty of Breda for their precedent, but do not think it proper to stick to such loose terms as, and the treaties made since, or and all other treaties, for they do not know but that the style of rex Franciæ may have been omitted in those negligent times, when France had but too much influence upon our negociations : their Excell^{ces} will have a conference with the French Ambass^{rs} too-morrow on this subject, of which in my next I shall send you the result. I do not question but that the thing will go as we desire it, the ratification having already been effectually exchanged. It is not proper that our Jacobites have the least air of it, for they turn everything to an ill use, tho' I think the French themselves mean no more in it then to be assured that this is the usual stile, and to have made a little shuffle in yielding : this is my present thought of this matter. I have yours of the 28th past and 1st of this month, with the old records of Mr. Rymer. There will be no difficulty about the language then to know if the part of the Instrument which the French took away with them were in Latin or (as they pretend) in French : and as to this point of rex Franciæ, tho' surely that stile was never omitted in any act of ratification that passed the great seal, yett their Excell^{ces} would not be ensnared (at the latter end of a negociation) by either their tout les traites faits depuis celuy de Breda or tous les traites en general, if Mr. Rymer would give us an acct of the ratifications that have been made these 30 years (with reference to this point) he would oblige us.—I am, Sir, your most ob^dt and most humble ser^t,—M. PRIOR.

The original of the American treaty w^{ch} you have in yo^r keeping does not determine the question as to the language, for that is our part of the treaty, in which you will find (I suppose) that we signed first, but the other part in which vice versâ they signed first, and which Barillon took to France, would clear the doubt ; the Latin instrument would tell us if rex Franciæ be expressed : of which a word . . .

To the King's most Excellent Majesty.

The humble petition of Sir Thomas Osborne, Baronet.

Sheweth,

That Ralph Rymer, gentleman, at the beginning of the late troubles was tenant unto Sir Edward Osborne, your petitioner's late father, deceased, of certain lands in Yafford and Wickmore, in the county of York, under the yearly rent of 200*l*. And your petitioner's father being engaged in the serving of your Majesty's late royal father during the war, and sequestered for his pretended delinquencies, the said Ralph Rymer received the profits of the said lands, and also seized upon several of his goods, all which he converted to his own use, without giving any account for the same till your petitioner commenced suit against him.

That, now being questioned for the said rent and goods, the said Rymer, being a treasurer under the late usurped authority, hath charged himself in his account given in before an auditor with the sum of 346*l*. received out of the said lands and for the said goods not accounted for, which, according to the late Act [12 Car. II. (1660) c. 11. § 10. (Stat. of Realm, vol. 5. p. 228-9)] is due unto your Majesty.

He therefore humbly prays that your Majesty would be graciously pleased to grant unto him the said sum appearing to be due for the profits of his said father's lands and for his goods, which were sequestered and seized only for his loyalty.

And your petitioner shall ever pray, &c.

At the Court at Whitehall, April the 21st 1663.

His Majesty being sensible of the petitioner's good affection and loyalty, is graciously inclined to grant to the petitioner's suit, and refers it to the Right Honourable the Lord High Treasurer of England to examine the truth of what is alleged in the petition, and that appearing, to certify his opinion thereupon to his Majesty; who will then declare his further pleasure.

May it please your Majesty,

This petitioner and his father having been eminently loyal in the service of the crown, one Mr. Rymer (who deserves a very contrary character), and who being tenant to Sir Edward Osborne and sequestrator of all your Majesty's good subjects in those parts, discharges his own rent (being now sued for it) upon that receipt, I cannot (who find your Majesty inclined otherwise) think fit to divert the grant of your Majesty's interest to what was received of Sir Edward Osborne's, which I find by the petition amounts to three hundred forty-six pounds. And therefore humbly submit it to your Majesty.

A Special Commission issued on the 15th of September 1664, stating that Ralph Rymer, late of Brafferton, in the county of York, having been attainted of high treason at the gaol delivery held in York Castle on Thursday, the 7th of January in the 15th year of the reign of King Charles II., was hanged, and an inquisition was thereupon directed to be made of his landed and personal property. By the inquisition it appears (inter alia) that the said Ralph Rymer before his conviction disposed of a mortgage from one Mr. Wood of certain lands in Kirkby Wisk unto Thomas Rymer, his son, but it was not known what sum there was yet due upon the said mortgage.

V.

To the King's most excellent Majesty.

The humble petition of Ralph Rymer, prisoner in the castle of York :

Sheweth,

That whereas your petitioner, by his long and close durance, is reduced into such a weak condition that he cannot expect to continue for any time, as is well known to the high sheriff and several of your Majesty's Deputy Lieutenants, as may appear by this certificate hereto annexed :

Doth therefore pray your most sacred Majesty that, in your great compassion and clemency, you would be pleased to grant your warrant to authorize the high sheriff of the county of York to take sufficient bail of your petitioner for his return to the castle of York upon summons.

And your petitioner will ever pray for the long life and prosperous reign of your most sacred Majesty.

These are to certify that Mr. Ralph Rymer, now a prisoner in the castle of York, as we are informed by persons worthy of credit, is weak in body, being both hydropical and consumptive : And that we cannot apprehend him a man able to continue long in that air and durance.

One of the Deputy Lieutenants who signed the certificate was Sir Jordan Crosland, of Haramhaugh, in Yorkshire, Bart., to whom the King, on the 8th of February 1664-5, under his sign manual, granted the manor of Brufferton and the estate of Helperby, which Ralph Rymer, senior, attainted of high treason, and Ralph Rymer, junior, attainted of misprision of treason, held under a lease for 99 years of the Archbishop of York.

The following letter from the Bishop of Carlisle to the Rev. G. Ridley, dated March 14, 1756, bears upon this point. It is in the handwriting of Dr. Thomas Birch, and is in the British Museum (MSS. Birch 4297, f. 69):—

“Old Burlington Street,

March 14, 1756.

“Rev^d. Sir,

“A continual hurry of business & a good deal of illness, for these five weeks past, prevented my visiting the Chapter-house at Westminster till lately, agreeable to my promise, when I had the pleasure of seeing you in Burlington Street, else you had sooner heard from me. I got a sight of the Cromwell Collection of Letters, but found it impossible, without spending more time than I could afford, to make myself sufficiently acquainted with their contents so far to form a proper judgement how far they might be usefull to you or Dr. Neve in your intended answer to Phillips. Mr. Farley, who is the chief clerk under Mr. Morley, Keeper of the Records here, told me he did not doubt of your having free access to these papers on a proper application to Mr. Morley, and you might transcribe whatever you chose out of them, as the office is open certain hours every day. I doubt indeed a daily attendance here would not well suit either with you or Dr. Neve's situation. I would, therefore, advise you to engage Dr. Birch, who grudges no trouble where he can serve the public in a literary way, to spend some mornings in looking over the collection, and if he finds much to your purpose, it may be worth while to apply to the Crown, or perhaps to Mr. Grenville only, for permission to borrow them out of the office, as Rymer was allowed to do with respect to the Records; and then you or Dr. Neve might make such extracts as you judg'd proper, intirely at your leisure. You may freely command my services on this occasion, being with great truth, Sir,

“CHA. CARLISLE.”

Monsieur, en vous quittant avec bien du regret à cause du peu de temps que j'ay pu jouir de vostre presence, je suis retourne à Mad. Elcetrice, que j'ay trouvée toute remplie d'estime pour vous, et comme je l'ay fait ressouvenir de la lettre qu'elle vouloit ecrire a la Reine, elle luy a écrit aujourdhuy; avec des expressions à vostre egard, dont vous ne serés point faché. Monsieur le Docteur Smith, tres sçavant homme et auteur de plusieurs excellens livres, m'a écrit tres obligeamment et me maude que Mons. Rymer sçavant homme, qui sestoit plù autresfois à la poesie et aux belles lettres, travaille maintenant à ramasser des monumens de l'Historie Anglicane et qu'on luy a donne entrée aux Archives. Et comme l'Historie de Brunsvic (ou je m'occupe quelques fois) a des grandes liaisons avec celle d'Angleterre en certains temps, particulierement dans le 12^{me} et 13^{me} siecle, j'espere que Mons. Rymer nous pourra favoriser en bien des choses et nous ne serions pas ingrats. Si on pouvoit avoir par son meyen des catalogues des diplomes et manuscrits on luy en seroit obligé, car on en pourroit choisir.

Un de mes amis a une Historie Latine manuscrite assez ancienne de l'Eglise d'Ely en Angleterre qui pourroit éclairer l'histoire d'Angleterre, et je pourrois encor fournir d'autres munimens de cette nature.

Quant à Mons. Smith, je luy écriray par la droiture, mais n'ayant pas l'honneur de la connoissance de Mons. Rymer, j'espere que vostre entremise nous pourra estre utile.

J'espere aussi d'avoir encor de vos nouvelles avant que vous passies la mer.

Vous venons de recevoir presentement la grande nouvelle de la retraite des Tuers qu'on dit avoir perdu leur bagage, et on adjoute meme, leur vaisseaux; ce qui ne me paroist pas si aise a creire.

Je croy que le mauvais temps a este la cause de la retraite; les Asiatiques trouvant le froid des nuits dans une saison si avancée et si mauvaise et tout à fait insupportable. On croit que l'armée de l'Empereur souffrira aussi et sera bien diminuée.

J'ay vu dans une lettre de Vienne ce qui suit :—“Ho visto lettera venute jeri della corte di Polonia, colle quali s'aurisa¹ che ici si continuasse a vivere nella speranza, che davesse² ancora sequire il congresso a Stry per la pace co' Turchi attendendosi tempre³ con impatienza avviso dell'juviato⁴ di nuovo spedito per sapere la risoluzione della porta.”

Cum primum intellexeram a viro doctissimo domino doctore Smith, de Antiquitatibus Brunswicensibus nonnulla meditantem, statim quæcumque mihi occurrerant exscribenda et tandem per Stepneyum nostrum tibi mittenda curavi; quæ si aliquo modo tibi grata sint, gaudeo quidem nec ultra peto, quippeam qui multis modis tibi devinctissimum me scio, scilicet qui mihi dux et præcursor in hac provincia tanta cum laude præluxisti. Et certe tibi grates quam possum maximas vel propter hoc rependo.

Pro secundo tuo volumine, jam a multo tempore excriptum, tractatum quendam sigillo fulgentem aureo selexi, illum scilicet inter II. 8. nostrum et Franci-cum I. regem Franciæ, de quo Spelmannus in Glossario, voce Bulla, et Du Cange, item in voce Bulla, ait consimilem (viz., alteram ejusdem ratificationis partem) in Archivis Franciæ servatum. Una etiam mitto istius sigilli aurei extypum. Tardius ad te veniunt meæ litteræ, quia dudum vellem convenisse Dominum Berry, per quem tuas ad me perlatas fuisse audio. Ast hoc non adeo facile, eum quippe semper res principum et negotia occupant, me vero ab hominum oculis semotum, in Archivis regiis continuo tenet labor improbus; ubi eruo, erudero, effodio, et inter patridas pelles pulvere situque obvolutus toto quotidie sordeo.

Multum superest, utcumque infra paucos dies treugas facio et ad primum volumen edendum me accingo. Primas paginas tibi mittam. Ceptis mei faveas oro, et ut bene valeas faxit Deus.

Quanti munera tua faciam jam tum multa gratiarum actione significare memini. Sunt in iis quæ aliquam mihi lucem accendunt, et præsertim Ottonianum diploma placuit, Oleronis incolis datum, neque enim Ottonem nostratem, Aquitaniæ ducis nomen gessisse sciebamus. Si qua porro offerant sese, rogo ut nostri meminisse velis. Stepncius vester, vir plane eximius, et de Republica omni non minus quam Rege vestro præclare merens, misit ad me programma quoddam tuum, novellis publicis Londinensibus insertum, quo invitatur qui habent quod instituto tuo prodesse possit, colligendorum regni monumentorum. Ego id perinde habeo ac si mihi nominatim scriptum esset. Nam aliqua mihi fuisse in manibus, judicabis ex his quæ Codice meo Diplomatico sunt inserta, neque omnia dedi quod tum selectioribus contentum me futurum essem professus. Fateor non omnia nunc ad manus esse, quæ tunc habebam. Sperem tamen recuperare aliquando ubi intellexero posse me tibi vicem reddere, quamquam putem tibi regni Archiva in potestate habenti, pauca deesse. Mitto tamen nunc specimen voluntatis meæ. Reperi enim inter Schedas tractatum inter Philippum Regem Galliæ et Eduardum Regem Angliæ, quo declarant ac prosequuntur quæ inter genitores ipsorum, Ludovicum Sanctum et Henricum III. Reges tractatu a me edito erant constituta. Quod superest fac quæso ut de præclaris consiliis tuis edoccar paulo uberius. Video Th. XV.

In addition to the information afforded by Rymer's receipts for documents which passed through his hands at the Chapter House, and the knowledge we possess of his visits to the Tower of London, to search and copy the records there, there are extant several letters which prove that he diligently sought for information in the public libraries of our Universities. The following letters from the Tanner MSS., which have never been printed, will be interesting to the reader, as they show how diligent Rymer was in his researches:—

Tanner MSS., vol. xxiv., 43.

“ In your letter some while ago to Mr. Churchill, you were pleas'd to impart some notes, w^{ch} did very much oblige me, And I shall not be unmindful of your kindness, the [1] I had formerly noted in your Catalogues, when I was once at Oxford, And had it copyed out the last sum'er, but the title (as they sent it) was:—Pacta conventa inter H. 1 Angl regem et Lu-dovicum le gross Gallia regem. And upon reading it I saw amongst the actes Hen. regis, Hen. filii, &c., w^{ch} showd it to be of H. 2. his reign, &
 I reckoned it for the counterpart to that in Hoveden, fol. 388 b. Lond.

 me is 17 Apilis wth some other differences from Hoveden.

“ The [4] is entered in a book wth me from the Archives w^{ch} is also printed Acherii Spicilegio tom. 12. p. 58 b.

“ The 5 & 6 I desire Mr. Churchill to get transcrib'd, but in the first place we are to be inform'd from what sort of Codex our copy is taken, what marks of its antiquity or reputation. I have not yet searched for what is more modern but I keep your papers in view that I may profit thereby ion. That memorial concerning W. the Conqueror (in your second letter) pleased me extremely, but we want to know how authentick or of what credit the book may be whence it is taken, no doubt but the Conqueror was principally assisted by his bro.-in-law, the Count of Flanders, the Count of Britanae and the other princes along the sea coasts.

“Honor'd S^r,

“Mr. Rymer, who has already publisht two volumes of the English Leagues and now is drawing near the reign of Edward the third, has been inform'd that Dr. Hudson has a Manuscript in his hands containing many memorable Transactions of the reign. Some days since, he desir'd me to ask the favour of Dr. Hudson, to lend him the Manuscript to London, for the completing of his 3rd Volume, w^{ch} he is now upon ; imagining that I had more interest in the Doctor, than any man who belongs to Lambeth, is to reckon upon, after the War declar'd in his Preface to Dionysius. However being very desirous to serve Mr. Rymer, and to see his Collection as complete as it can be made; I would beg the favour of you, to ask Dr Hudson whether he have such a manuscript, and whether he will be pleas'd to favour the publick by communicating it to Mr. Rymer, for the Design I have mention'd. I doubt not Dr. Hudson's readiness to help forward soe good a work, but am afraid that he may have made it a part of the Bodleian Library, so far as to bring it under the Statute. If he have not, Mr. Rymer will think it a great obligation to have the favour of perusing it in London, and having serv'd the design he has in hand, will faithfully return it.

"We are told that Dr Hudson is upon a new Catalogue of the printed books in the publick Library. I was going to make references to the Libraries of Lambeth and St. Martin in the Catalogue already publisht; but if we may expect Dr. Hudson's in any reasonable time, I will hold my hand.

"Dr Wake is sure of the Bishoprick of Lincoln; but I believe it is still a moot point between Dr Atterbury and Dr Younger which shall succeed him at Exeter; the first making a powerful applicⁿ by Mr. Harley (who, everybody says and believes, is to be Lord Keeper) and the second pleading the merit of above 20 years attendance, enforc'd by his disappointm^t of the Deanery of Canterbury.

"I made my application formerly for my Lord Clarendons History in the Royal Paper; and now the work is finisht, should be extremely thankful, if by your interest I might be furnisht with it in the best paper; tho' it must be own'd, the common is very good. I believe it has been seldom known, that a whole Impression was printed in such a splended and honorable way, as that and Dr. Hickes's.

"It was a great pleasure to me, to receive from my kinsman of Queens College, the other day, an undeniable Evidence that Dr. Potter was not Actual Fellow when he was chosen Provost; because I wisht well to my Tutors titles and alway reckon'd the Statute upon w^{ch} it has been controverted, extremely prejudicial to the College, in any other sense.

William Bowyer maketh oath, That on or about May 1703 Mr. Awunsham Churchill agreed with him the said W. Bowyer for the printing of Two hundred and fifty and no more of a book to be set forth by Mr. Rymer which was entituled Conventiones Literæ et ejuſcunq̄e generis Acta Publica, inter Reges Angliæ, et alios quosvis Imperatores, Reges, Pontifices, Principes vel Communitates ab ineunte Sæculo duodecimo viz. Anno 1101 ad noſtra uſque tempora habita aut tractata, &c. Which book the said W. Bowyer did accordingly print and finiſh ready for delivery by the end of February following, that is to ſay, Two hundred and fifty copies of each ſheet thereof, only allowing about a dozen ſheets upon every ſheet for casualties in the time of printing as is uſual, it being impoſſible to print to a preciſe number, or without waſting and ſpoiling many ſheets. But to prevent a greater number being elandestiſtely printed or fraudulently diſperſed under pretence of copies which by cuſtom the journeymen of the trade of printing claim a title to, he the said W. Bowyer did agree for and pay to every of his journeymen a weekly ſtipend in money in lieu of the said copies. And farther, that he the said W. Bowyer is now printing a ſecond volume of the ſame work, of the ſame number, and in every reſpect under the ſame conditions as the former.

XVII.

I venture to give here a document, the earliest I have found relative to the printing of the Fœdera, and Rymer's remuneration:—

“Articles of Agreement indented Tripartite, between Peter Hume on behalf of Her Majesty of the first part, Thomas Rymer of the second part, and Awunsham Churchill of the third part.

“Whereas Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to grant 500*l.* for printing a third volume of Leagues and Treaties, &c., extracted from ancient records by Tho. Rymer, Esq., Historiographer to Her Majesty.

“ Imprimis it is agreed between Peter Hume and Awnsham Churchilli, bookseller of London, that he the said Awnsham Churchill shall and will undertake the printing of the third volume aforesaid.

“ 2ndly. It is agreed that the said Awnsham Churchill shall print or cause to be printed 250 volumes of the said third book only, each consisting of about 200 sheets more or less, and that the said Awnsham Churchill, nor any person employed by or under him, shall not presume to print any more than the said 250 volumes, for any person, or on any pretence whatsoever: But that the right of copy shall be reserved to Her Majesty, entry whereof shall be made in the Register of the Company of Booksellers London.

“ 3rdly. It is agreed, that the said Awnsham Churchill shall print off the said 250 volumes, on good demy paper, and in such a fair and clear letter as shall be conformable to the specimen hereunto annexed.

“ 4thly. It is agreed that for printing the said 250 volumes in manner aforesaid the said Peter Hume will pay or cause to be paid unto the said Awnsham Churchill the sum of three hundred pounds (usual fees deducted), that is to say 200*l.*, part of the said sum, within one month after signing and sealing these articles (or sooner if it may be) and the remaining 100*l.* upon delivery of 200 of the said volumes in sheets, to the said Peter Hume, for the use of Her Majesty, and also on delivery of 25 of the said volumes in sheets to Tho. Rymer, (the other 25 being to remain to himself the said Awnsham Churchill) fairly printed, without any other demand for paper, plates, printing, engraving, correcting, or any other charges whatsoever.

“ 5thly. It is agreed that the said Awnsham Churchill will print off the said 250 volumes within the space of 12 months next ensuing the date hereof, provided the said Tho. Rymer do and shall from time to time deliver sufficient copy fairly written of the same, so that the press, for want thereof, may not be hindered or delayed.

“ Lastly it is agreed between Peter Hume and Thomas Rymer aforesaid, that he the said Tho Rymer shall and will transcribe, or cause fairly to be transcribed, the said copy intended to be printed, with such constant care and in such due time, that the press may not be delayed for want thereof, and the said Peter Hume doth promise to pay unto the said Tho. Rymer one hundred pounds (usual fees deducted) within one month's time as aforesaid, as also the sum of one hundred pounds more, as soon as he the said Tho. Rymer shall have delivered to Awnsham Churchill aforesaid, well and fairly transcribed, which with 25 volumes fairly printed off, and delivered to him the said Thomas Rymer by the said Awnsham Churchill, shall and is to be in full recompense and satisfaction of all his charges, pains, and care in transcribing, examining, and correcting thereof.

“ In witness whereof, the parties above-named to these present Articles have mutually set their hands and seals this 14th day of June in the fourth year of the reign of our Sovereign Lady Queen Anne, Anno Domini, 1705. [Peter Hume.]

“ Signed and sealed in the presence of Fran. Aston. Jo. Hutton.”

The printing of this volume cost only 500*l.* The following paper will be interesting to the reader:—

The following letter from John Anstis, with an inclosure, is valuable as a connecting link in the history of the Fœdera :—

A long account of this fire will be found in Nichols’s “Literary Anecdotes of the Eighteenth Century,” i. pp. 50–68. The following documents add to the literary history of the Fœdera :—

“ William Bowyer maketh oath that on the 30th of January last past, when a fire happened in his printing office in Whitefriars, he was then printing by Mr. Churchill’s order the fifteenth volume or Tome of a book set forth by Mr. Rymer, entitled Conventiones Literæ, &c., and that he had then proceeded in the printing about one hundred and twenty sheets thereof as he verily believes, all which said sheets were burnt and destroyed by the said fire, together with all the copy he had received from Mr. Rymer towards the finishing of the same, and also a great quantity of paper he received from Mr. Churchill for the printing the said work, and likewise all his goods and printing materials with his books of accounts and workmen’s bills, &c., which is the reason he cannot be punctual as to the number of sheets printed, but is very certain he is herein within three or four sheets at most under or over of the sheets of Mr. Rymer’s book so destroyed by the said fire.

“ To the most Honourable Robert Earl of Oxford, &c., Lord High Treasurer of Great Britain, the humble memorial of Tho. Rymer, Esq., and Awnsham and John Churchill, whereas there was 120 sheets of Mr. Rymer’s 15th volume burnt in the house of Mr. Bowyer, the printer in Whitefriars, being six tenths of the impression, which amounts to 300*l*.

“ Also the manuscript copy to finish the said volume and a great quantity of paper for carrying on the said work.

“ Thomas Rymer, A. and John Churchill, humbly pray that the said 300*l*. may be allowed them : 100*l*. of which to be paid Mr. Rymer toward making good the copy.

“ 100*l*. to Wm. Bowyer, the printer, whose house was burnt ”

“ To the most Honourable the Earl of Oxford and Mortimer, Lord High Treasurer of Great Britain.—In obedience to your Lordship’s commands, I have considered the within petition, and for my better information as to the facts therein alleged, required that the same should be ascertained in the best manner that could be ; whereupon Mr. Churchill produced the annexed affidavit of Mr. Bowyer, the printer, and I am humbly of opinion it may be reasonable (if her Majesty shall be so graciously pleased) to make to the Petitioners the allowance prayed by them for their respective losses, paper and expenses mentioned in their said petition, since the bare printing of 120 sheets is the six tenths of the impression, and amounts to 300*l*.

“ All which is most humbly submitted to your Lordship’s great wisdom.

XXI.

The impropriety of inserting instruments only found in printed books in such a work as the Fœdera, professing to contain only original instruments preserved in the royal archives, cannot be wholly defended. Though Rymer has printed no less than 118 of such instruments, and very seldom mentions the source from which he had derived them, some plea may be advanced in his vindication, so far as monastic chronicles are concerned. It must be remembered that in ancient times, when the king travelled, he was always accompanied by his chancellor, and generally held his court at those monasteries which were of royal foundation. At these places public instruments of every description were executed with the same solemnity as in the royal palace, and the archives of such religious houses were used for the temporary repository of these royal evidences. This is evident from the fact that on the 23rd of March, in the 19th year of his reign, Edward I. issued his writs under the Privy Seal to various religious houses, commanding them "to cause their chronicles and other secrets to be diligently searched under the direction of the king's messenger, and to transcribe and certify in open letters, sealed with their common seal, whatever they should find relating to the kingdom, kings or presidents of Scotland." Various certificates were consequently sent to the king, from which an abstract was drawn up, and inserted in the public instrument known as the Great Roll of Scotland, by John Erturi of Caen, and entitled, "Hæc sunt quæ in antiquis eronicis, de quibus supra in principio fit mentio, in diversis Angliæ et Scotiæ monasteriis, inter alia fuerunt inventa; per quæ evidenter apparet, quod Reges Angliæ, ab antiquo, habuerunt subjectionem, homagium, et fidelitatem, ac superius et directum dominium regni Scotiæ, sicut plenus infra patet." The historians named in this instrument are Marianus Scotus (i.e. Florence of Worcester), Roger of Hoveden, William of Malmesbury, Henry of Huntingdon, Ralph de Diceto, the "Cronica Sancti Albani," and a book of the Life and Miracles of St. John of Beverley. As bearing strongly on the question under consideration, it is necessary to cite a passage extracted from Hoveden's Annals, under the year 1175, containing a complete copy of the convention between William King of Scotland and Henry II., executed at St. Peter's Church at York, when the Scottish monarch and his subjects swore allegiance to the King of England. It is introduced thus: "Anno Domini millesimo centesimo septuagesimo quinto, decimo quinto Kal. Martii, Willelmus Rex Scotorum liber abire permissus est: postea vero, apud Eboracum, eodem anno, tertiâ die post Assumptionem beatæ Mariæ, scilicet decimo septimo Kalendas Septembris, facta fuit conventio et finis inter prædictum Henricum Regem Angliæ, et præfatum Willelmum regem Scotiæ. Cujus tenor talis est."

* * * * *

"Hiis itaque recitatis, in ecclesia Sancti Petri Eboracensis, coram prædictis regibus Angliæ et coram Rege Scotiæ et David fratre suo, et universo populo, episcopi, comites, barones, et milites de terrâ Regis Scotiæ, juraverunt domino regi Angliæ et Henrico filio suo, et hæredibus eorum, fidelitatem contra omnem hominem, sicut ligiis dominis suis."

It is a curious fact that Hoveden's recital of this important public instrument,—the proof of England's sovereignty in deciding the claims of the competitors for the Scottish crown,—was used as evidence in a matter of the most critical moment, in preference to the public record of the homage recorded in the black book of the Exchequer, and which is fuller and apparently more trustworthy than Hoveden's text.

In addition to these facts, it may be mentioned that Edward I. issued his writs, dated 26th September 1300, to forty-six abbeys, priories, and cathedrals, requiring them diligently to search all the chronicles, archives, and secrets of their houses, and to transmit whatsoever they could find touching the right and dominion of the Kings of England (the sovereignty of which had been claimed by the Pope) by the most trusty and skilful of their societies respectively, to the King at his Parliament, appointed to meet at Lincoln.

The reader's attention must also be directed to the fact that in 1207 the letters testimonial of Adelheid, Countess of Holland, certifying to the King the marriage of her daughter with Louis Count of Los, and the letters of Thomas Bishop of Utrecht, and Coun. Odo, were placed in the custody of the Abbot of Reading, "Quæ omnes litteræ patentés missæ sunt abbati de Rading ad custodiendum." There is further proof that instruments of great national importance, such as Magna Charta, the Charta de Forestis, &c., were sent to the principal monastic houses, to be recorded in their archives.

The foregoing instances are sufficient to exculpate Rymer from the charge which has been brought against him of printing instruments from monastic chronicles in preference to the originals in the public archives. In those cases where the instrument is clearly within the scope of the Fœdera, and about the authenticity of which there can be no doubt, and which cannot be found among the public muniments, it seems permissible to supply them from contemporary chronicles; but where there is any doubt of the verity of the documents, such, for instance, as the letter of the Old Man of the Mountain, this licence must be withheld. Great blame, however, rests upon Rymer for concealing the sources whence he obtained his documents. His omission naturally awakens doubts as to his candour, and has the appearance of a desire to conceal a proceeding which he could not justify.

XXII.

Jacob Tonson's proposals appeared on the 28th January 1728-9; they were "for completing the subscription to a new edition of Rymer's Fœdera in 17 volumes folio, of which 15 volumes are already printed, and the remaining 2 volumes will be finished before the 25th day of March next: I. The number printed are only 200 copies, of which 150 are already subscribed for. II. This work is printed with the utmost care; and to make it as exact as the nature of it requires and the importance of it deserves, it hath been collated anew with the records in the Tower by Mr. Holmes; by which means many paragraphs and lines omitted in the former edition are with due care supplied and corrected in this, which is printed page for page with the first. III. The price to the subscribers of the remaining 50 sets is 50 guineas for each set in sheets, 10 guineas of which is to be paid at the time of subscribing, and the remaining 40 guineas upon delivery of the 17 volumes in sheets. The subscriptions are taken in by J. Tonson in the Strand; and will be closed the 10th day of March next at farthest, or sooner if completed before."

Tonson thus announced his new edition in the "Daily Post Boy," October 6, 1730: "Now published, the new edition of seventeen volumes in folio, of 'Fœdera, Conventiones, Literæ, et cujuscunque generis Acta Publica, inter Reges Angliæ, et alios quosvis Imperatores, Reges, Pontifices, Principes, vel Communitates, ab inuente Sæculo Duodecimo, viz. ab anno 1101, ad nostra usque Tempora, habita aut tractata; ex Autographis infra secretiores archivorum Regionum Thesaurarais, per multa secula reconditis, fideliter exscripta. In lucem missa de mandato nuperæ Regiæ. Accurante Thomâ Rymer, ejusdem serenissimæ Regiæ Historiographo. Editio Secunda, ad originales chartas in Turri Londinensi denu summâ fide collata et emendata, studio Georgii Holmes, Londini, Impensis Jacob Tonson." The second, or Tonson's Edition, first appeared in 1725, and was finished in 1730. It also contains the three volumes which were added by Robert Sanderson, 1726-1735, bringing the collection down to the year 16 .

XXIV.

TO THE READER.

In this collection there is before you, and for the most part from authentic sources, much information, which you would expect to learn, but will search for in vain in the pages of our historians. You will here find abundantly unfolded to your view those ancient memorials which were concealed from the knowledge of the writers of contemporary history.

Eadmer, writing of the arrival of the Earl of Flanders at Dover, says in express words, that as regards the negotiation of the matter of his visit, it is known that nothing was done “ nihil fuisse agnitum est.” Here, however, you will see the very conventions themselves, made and written at Dover, transcribed from the autographs; from them we learn, and posterity will also know, what was the object of his coming over, p. 6, 7.

Now we ought not to be surprised at the ignorance of the monk Eadmer, who cannot be supposed to have taken much interest in secular matters, but what must we think of our own Matthew Paris, in whom you would not expect such an imperfect knowledge of events; for he is regarded as a man of most careful observation, and is believed to have known everything that could be ascertained. Yet Matthew Paris himself frequently declares that he knew nothing of the mission on which messengers (afterwards called ambassadors) either came or were despatched.

Thus he writes under the year 1255: “The elect of Toledo came into England, but for what cause it was not known.” Now here we have

(pp. 325, 328, 331, 340) not only notices of his coming, but the cause of his coming.

Under the year 1256 he writes: "The Lord Abbot of Westminster and Master Rustan, and the elect of Sarum, at the desire of the King, went abroad on the King's affairs, but nobody knows what was the secret business they went on; and we must trust that it may be good!" Here (pp. 350, 351, 355) you may fully learn from autograph bulls, what was the King's business, and the secret causes which made our monk so anxious and doubtful. Thus the mystery will no longer be concealed from the eyes of the curious.

The Archbishop of Messina was sent from the Lord the Pope, but nobody knows why, says Matthew Paris, under the year 1257. Now the matters the Archbishop came to treat upon, and the letters of credence from Pope Alexander, together with the King's letter to Alexander, are fully set out at p. 350, 351, 355.

But let us return to our old friends and the Flemish conventions, and while we ourselves are in darkness, let us see whether the historians of that country possessed greater light.

A.D. 1066. It is certain that a sum of money for some ages was annually paid to the Counts of Flanders by the Kings of England. It is thus the historians of Flanders relate the matter. The Count of Flanders promised his co-operation and his aid to his son-in-law, William the First, on the condition that he and all the Kings of England after him should pay annually to the Counts of Flanders 300 marks of silver for ever.

A.D. 1093. Robert [Friso] died: he had resolved to wage war on England, to enforce the payment of 300 marks of silver, as we have mentioned above, but being prevented by death he was unable to accomplish this.

A.D. 1111. It is alleged by the Flemings) the annalist is speaking of Henry and Robert, between whom the present convention was made), that upon the tribute being demanded, Henry made answer, "It is not consistent with the dignity of England that the realm should pay a subsidy to Flanders." It happened not long afterwards, during a war with England, that Robert being in the retinue of the King of France, fell from his wounded horse, was crushed, and the third day afterwards died.

A.D. 1119. Baldwin, Count of Flanders, was incited against the English, by the memory of his father slain in the English war, and the denial to himself of the above-mentioned tribute.

The like statements Mezery, and I know not how many other minor historians, inculcate and repeat again and again. They were probably led into this error by our William of Malmesbury, who thus mentions the subject from the beginning:

Baldwin had powerfully assisted William when going to England, by the wisdom of his counsels and by a supply of soldiers. William had frequently made splendid returns for this, giving every year, as they report, three hundred marks of silver to his father-in-law on account of his fidelity and affinity. This munificence was not diminished towards his son Baldwin, but it was suspended in the case of Robert Friso. This Robert, the son of Friso, easily obtained the omitted largess from William the Second. But Henry, examining the business more deeply, as a man who never desired to obtain money improperly, nor ever wantonly exhausted it when acquired, gave the following reply to Robert on his return from Jerusalem, when imperiously making a demand, as it were, of three hundred marks of silver. He said that the Kings of England were not accustomed to pay tribute to the men of Flanders.

In this way little stories are made up from vulgar rumours and conjectures, which are supported by no authentic memorials. But how different do the facts appear! If any one will consult the chirographs of those acts he will find that no tribute or subsidy was ever paid to Flanders at all, but that an annual fee was granted to the Count of Flanders by his friend and superior lord the King of England, for homage done, fealty sworn, and service to be rendered. These facts we learn from the first convention, and from those which follow for some ages afterwards:

(Of the first chirograph.) 1. We gather from the words, “salva fidelitate Lodovici regis Francorum,” that the Counts of Flanders from ancient times were vassals and men of the Kings of France.

Pierre Dupuy, treating of this matter in his book, Des Droits du Roy, cites the first instance from Pierre d’Oudegreest under the year 1192, when Baldwin VII. did homage to Philip Augustus, but the authority given by us here is undoubtedly a noble and unimpeachable testimony almost a century earlier, and is derived from Robert of Jerusalem.¹

(2.) Ecclesiastical writers may see what these five words, “salva fidelitate Lodovici regis Francorum,” make for the authority of the church and the power of the Pope; for it must be known that when these things were being done, Philip, the father of Louis, was still alive, but being excommunicated by the Papal authority, was put aside, and all fealty, with the title of King, was transferred to his son Louis.

David Blondel, in his large work, De Formula, Regnante Christo, denies that Philip was in reality injured by this anathema, or in any way affected by the Papal thunderbolt. He says: “The royal title was never conferred upon Louis, during the lifetime of his father Philip;—in the charters, which conclude with these words, ‘facta an. ab incarnatione Domini 1100, Lodovico rege Francorum regnante;’” and he asserts that the year 1100 is falsely written for 1108, and he wrongly condemns our Hoveden for writing that “Louis King of the French was present, in 1101, at the court of “King Henry, in London, on Christmas Day.” But why more on the subject? In our chirograph the name of King Louis occurs so often that it speaks volumes against the contrary hypothesis, and serves to show how vain is Blondel, and futile his labours.

The date of this convention I gather thus: A.D. 1099, July 14, Jerusalem is taken. A.D. 1100, Robert, the brother of the King of England, Robert count of Flanders, and Eustace Count of Boulogne, return home. On his way, Robert, the King’s brother, stops at Apulia to celebrate his nuptials with Sibylla, daughter of the Count of Conversana. Aug. 2 (in the same year), William II., King of England, died. Aug. 5, on Sunday, Henry I. was crowned. And in the year following (May 7, 1101), which was the first year of the reign of Henry I., this convention was made. In the month of August following, Robert, the King's brother, with Sibylla his wife, returned to Normandy, prepared arms, and having got together his forces invaded England, to vindicate his right to that kingdom as the eldest son of William I. Robert de Belesme deserted Henry and gave in his adhesion to Robert. This is the same Robert de Belesme who was at Dover in the month of May to execute, on the part of King Henry, the chirograph between the King and the Count of Flanders.

It appears, from the incision and a sort of label at the foot of the parchment, that the count's seal, which has been destroyed by age, was attached to it, in the Norman fashion, although that custom had not at the period obtained in Flanders.

This first specimen shows the style of writing employed at the time, and also what was anciently understood by the term chirograph, and what by the expression "Charter divided after the manner of a chirograph."

Mabillon (lib. v., De Re Diplomatica) gives the date 1167 to a chirograph of this sort engraven on copper from an autograph of Louis VII., King of the French, and could discover no earlier document of the kind amongst the royal muniments. But the chirograph given by us is more than half a century earlier, and may be seen also engraven on copper.

We have another chirograph of the same character in the reign of Henry II., A.D. 1163; and a chirograph indented under Richard I., A.D. 1197. From such instruments without the majuscule letters, simple and letterless indentures, similar to those now in use, took their origin.

The last-named specimen exhibits the very elegant and beautiful diploma of Alfonso, corroborated with a golden seal, to which Matthew Paris refers,¹ when he says: "The ambassadors aforesaid brought back both favour and friendship, together with a certain noble charter, the golden bull of which weighed one mark of silver." From which we infer that our Matthew Paris had both seen and handled it.

This instrument is one of those called Privilleios Radados, from the "Rueda del Signo," the wheel or cipher of the royal signature, called by us the "sign manual" or "royal signature;" the form of which is described in the laws of Alfonso, written in a wheel: In the centre are a cross and the royal arms; in the next circle the name of the King from whom the privilege emanates; and in the larger circle the confirmation of the Alferiz and majordomo. In this one of ours the "Alferizia" is not given.

Many persons who happen to have seen only bullaria and short apographs have no means of knowing what is the signature of the Pope, and what is a monogram; and some persons can scarcely distinguish between the Pope's monogram, his signature, and his seal. Papebroch is of opinion that the custom of dating bulls and pontifical rescripts from the incarnation of our Lord was introduced by Eugenius IV.; and that the bulls anterior to that period bearing the year of the incarnation are either false or corrupt. This Mabillon fully refutes; that no one in our days may fall unawares into similar errors, we have given three specimens of the more remarkable of such Papal bulls.

(Of the second chirograph.) The capital letters at the top of this parchment, cut in two, shew that this instrument of convention is also a chirograph; the lower part of the membrane has suffered from decay, so that no remains of the sealing are to be seen.

Eadmer seems to point out the date when this treaty was made in the following passage:—"In the year of our Lord's incarnation, 1102, in the fourth year of the Popedom of Paschal, the Supreme Pontiff, the third of the reign of Henry, the glorious king of the English, he himself consenting, a council is celebrated at the Church of St. Peter, in the west part, near London. . . . The king about Mid-lent went to Canterbury to treat with the Count of Flanders, at Dover, on certain matters (so people said) respecting the kingdom."

This same council (says Florence of Worcester) was celebrated on the Feast of St. Michael, in the year 1102, Indiction x., & 3 of Pope Paschal.

Now Mid-lent in the year 1103 fell on the 8th of March, and this convention was made on the 10th of March, i.e. on the second day after Mid-lent. And the William who, at the beginning of this diploma on the 10th of March, is called "William Giffard, the chancellor," went the very next month, that is, April 27, to Rome under the name of "William elect of Winchester" in the train of Abp. Anselm, to oppose King Henry on the subject of investitures. This convention is nearly of the same tenour as the previous one, having been amended only in some few points.

In the first we read "salva fidelitate Lodovici regis;" in the second "salva fidelitate Philippi regis." The fealties and the name of the King, which the Papal thunderbolt had shattered in the year 1100, were now in the year 1103 restored to Philip, peace having been made with the Pope.

Baronius and his epitomisers—Spondanus, Zovius, &c.—make out that Philip was liberated from the bonds of his anathema in the year 1104; but this charter of convention, more favourable to Philip King of the French, indicates that he was absolved at least a year sooner. But it is not necessary to dwell any longer on these matters.

I had prepared many other prefatory remarks and some matters to be added in appendices (which, though not "public acts," yet conduce materially to our knowledge of the genius and customs of the times), which must be deferred to some other opportunity.

In the meantime you may compare the documents here with coeval historians, or (which comes to the same thing) you may examine Matthew Paris, and see what documents in this collection add to, illustrate, or correct that author.

For example, you may see what writers upon Sicilian and Italian affairs, or, indeed, other historians, say concerning the transactions in Sicily between 1250 and 1265, and you will find what very little information you can gather from them which they have not borrowed from our Matthew Paris.

You may read here² about the grants made to Bertold Marquis of Hoemburg or Hohemburg, probably the same person who, in the bull of Alexander IV., recited by Matthew Paris, is called "Bertold Marchio de Cambrigia."

 Ed. Franf.

Here, too, you may read of a Marquis of Herebrok (as the name is spelt in our instruments), of whom King Henry says to the cardinals :—
 “ A terrible rumour has spread abroad of the hurt and losses incurred by “ the Roman church from the treason of the Marquises of Herebrok, falsely “ calling themselves the faithful and devoted sons of the Church, in con“ sequence of which the Sicilian business is damnably marred.”
 Would you know the nature of this treason ? Our Paris thus relates the affair :—

“ About the same time Pope Alexander, by following the footsteps of “ Innocent, his predecessor, in the Sicilian and Apulian business, appointed “ Cardinal Octavian, with an army of 60,000 men, to destroy the city of “ Nocera, with all its inhabitants, and Manfred, who lay concealed there.

“ The Emperor Frederick had mustered in the city more than 60,000 “ Saracens, and to these infidels, exposed as they were to all the hazards of “ war, had given permission to take up their abode there, and the city then “ opened its bosom of refuge to Manfred and the other partisans of the “ emperor.

“ When Octavian had arrayed his troops for battle, with the aid and “ counsel of Marchio, a skilful and puissant warrior (on whose advice and “ help the Papal army fully relied), he felt sure of success, and that the “ army of the Pope was invincible ; but when he had advanced to within a “ few miles of the city a panic seized both the invaders and the invaded, “ insomuch that the former durst by no means advance further to attack the “ city, and the citizens were equally afraid to make a sortie against the “ army ; so both parties remained inactive for several days, and the time “ was lost in useless delay.

“ The Papal army was, however, very numerous and formidable, receiving “ large daily stipends from the coffers of the King of England, and being “ under expectation of more from the Papal promises ; for Pope Innocent, “ lately deceased, had promised them. It was with him that the present “ war originated, but the continuation thereof was by the cardinals.

“ When both sides had continued in this inert state for some considerable “ time, Marchio, the traitor, who had in the army a large number of par“ tisans, came to Octavian and said, ‘ My lord, why stand we here so long “ in idleness ? We are consuming large sums of money ; let a third of the “ army return home. As for Manfred and his men, they dare not issue “ from the town in which they are shut up and beleaguered ; a very small “ number of men will suffice to terrify and repress them.’

“ The citizens, still declining to come forth, Marchio again reduced the “ Papal army, so that scarcely ten or twelve thousand remained with them.

“ Having accomplished this part of his project, the traitor, one night, “ rode post-haste on one of his swiftest horses to the city of Nocera, and “ said to Manfred, ‘ O ! my dearest friend, you have been induced to believe “ that I have injured you, and am prepared to do so again. I wonder that “ you listen to or put faith in such reports. You know how faithfully
 “ I served your father, the Emperor Frederick, in his wavering fortunes ;
 “ and how could I persecute the son of so beloved a lord and so revered a “ father ? Now may you make trial of my devotion and fidelity towards “ you. The Papal army has, by my advice, been so much reduced that “ scarcely 10,000 men, of whom the greater part are my partisans, remain “ with Octavian. Away, then, with delay ! Let all your vassals in the “ city arm and follow where I will lead, and you shall take Octavian and “ all his men captive.”

“ So Manfred sallied forth, and all the citizens with him, and all his “ vassals and retainers, armed to the very teeth, and rushed like a whirl“ wind upon the Papal army; but when, as they thought, they had entrapped “ them all like birds in a net, Octavian, warned by some friend, made his “ escape. The rest, however, except indeed the retainers of Marchio, were “ either slain, routed, or made prisoners.”¹

Thus was the Italian cardinal circumvented, deceived, and cajoled by a German.

A charter, granted by Frederick II. to the Dukes of Styria, is cited by Wolfgang Lazius (A.D. 1243), to which the witnesses are Henry King of Sicily (that is, the son of Isabel of England), Manfred the marquis, and Berthold, a count from Hohenberg, and many others of the family of Hohenberg.

But in Sicilian or Italian authors I do not recollect to have found a word about these marquises. They say, indeed, that Octavian was recalled because he had mismanaged the expedition; but they never even touch upon the particulars of the failure. Even Sigonius, who occasionally is very glad to borrow from Matthew Paris, and who, on his authority, has made famous a certain Duke Stollius,² has nevertheless chosen to compress very briefly this very important narrative.

But what I think worse is that neither Sigonius, nor any of the host of historians, mention one word about the nuptials of the emperor with Isabel, or of Isabel's son, whom Matthew thus eulogises: “ Henry the “ hope and glory of the English, the delight of men, a youth of marvellous “ beauty ” (Matt. Par., 1254). And that Matthew Paris may not stand alone, I quote the words of three others who bear testimony to our Henry:—

“ He left the kingdom of Sicily to Henry, who was a child, but of “ supreme attraction and beauty ” (Tarchagnota).

“ He was a most excellent and prepossessing young man, and of greater “ promise than any other of the children of Frederick ” (Collenutio).

“ This was the handsomest and most talented of all the children of “ Frederick ” (Summonte).

These testimonies, reader, I produce because you may feel surprised that the kingdom of Sicily, the patrimony of this Henry, was in his lifetime offered by the Supreme Pontiff to Richard Earl of Cornwall, or Henry King of England. Earl Richard refused it “ because it would seem dishonourable in him to supplant his own nephew.” And King Henry did not accept it because, in the words of Pope Innocent, “ there was still “ surviving in the same kingdom your only nephew; and lest you might “ seem to thirst for your own blood, and covet the spoils of your own “ nearest relatives, you have hitherto deferred to accept this great honour

words are, “In prima fronte, quibus primicerius præerat stollius, pyrataram peritissimus.” Whereas “Stollius” is simply a Latin form of the Italian word stuolo, meaning a fleet of ships.

³ Matt. Paris under 1252.

“and advantage.” These were the words of Pope Innocent IV. to Henry III., King of England, in the bull notifying the death of this often-mentioned Henry, and continuing, and he being dead, the Pope goes on immediately to propose a successor for the kingdom of Sicily (p. 302).

In the month of May (according to Matthew Paris) this Henry died; the bull is dated “The Ides of May;” from which and numberless other documents the reader may see how just and strictly true is the judgment of Cardinal Baronius on the historical credit of our Matthew Paris: “You might term it a golden commentary, as whatever can be found in public muniments is there admirably woven and joined together in just so many words.”

But before we finally leave the kingdom of Sicily you must be reminded, reader, that this renunciation of the kingdom of Sicily is not to be ascribed to King Henry, nor yet to his son Edmund, but to Simon de Montfort, who had usurped the name and seal of the King, at that time his prisoner. Simon de Montfort did it to gratify the Count of Anjou, and please the Pope; but we have been careful to distinguish, both in the text of the Fœdera and also in the chronological tables, all the acts of Simon, because by not observing this precaution the greatest confusion and disputes amongst scholars have arisen.

A.D. 1265, 29 Hen. III. In reference to what is called “The summons to parliament,” what disputes have arisen, and even yet to this day continue among the most learned men, under a dreamy impression that some new sort of parliament was devised by King Henry to curb his turbulent barons, and suppress their daily increasing and encroaching power; whereas, you see only the abbots with certain accomplices and partisans who were convoked by Simon de Montfort for his own aggrandisement and the deposition of the king.

Through how many volumes is not this mooted by William Prynne; and is it not still a vexed question? But here I hope to have given sufficient to prevent the republic of letters from being hereafter torn to pieces on this subject.

If some matters are here inserted which appear of minor importance and unworthy of print, before you rashly reject them remember the cock of Esop. Take, for example, the safeconduct of Henry Duke of Limburg. I consider that worthy of mention, because he was the last of the Dukes of Limburg, and although Limburg at present be of no great moment, yet Pontus Heuter informs us that “before the names of Brabant, Holland, Zeeland, Flanders, and Namur were known Limburg was illustrious and noted.” Elsewhere we read that Limburg was impregnable to Charlemagne.

Perhaps, again, the oft-named Louis Count of Loss, liegeman of John King of England, may not impress you more; but stay awhile, reader; you must have heard, if you have heard of anything, of Holger the Dane, the paladin so famous in song, who they say was the first invested by Charlemagne with the county of Loss. Well, this Louis Count of Loss was his successor by hereditary right. This we learn from the testimony of Louis Guiceardini, Pontanus, Desselius, Bartholinus, Seriverius, and a host of other historians, topographers, and genealogists.

You may consider as trifles those documents which we have brought together respecting the marriage of Isabel and Margaret, sisters of Alexander King of the Scots (p. 178); but read what Buchanan says in his Berum Scoticarum, libro vii.: "Before the same Pandulph, the King [Henry III.] solemnly swore that he would provide for the two sisters of Alexander in dignity according to their rank, as Henry's father had previously promised. He purveyed only for one, and sent the other home unmarried." Buchanan casts the stigma of perjury on two Kings of England, but here they are exonerated and cleared of every stain.

So again, by similar small documents, it is demonstrated that Robert III. King of Scotland was not the son of a concubine, but was born in lawful wedlock; but you must wait for this in our second volume.

It is not my intention to point out what valuable information genealogists may gather from this book.

Albert Duke of Brunswick, who merited for his deeds the name of "Great," the great-grandson of Henry II. of England, married Alexia (some say Alexina), daughter of Aldrovandin Marquis d'Este. So say Bertius, Ritterhusius, Reusner, Buzelinus, Baptista Pigna, Albizius, and Morerus; but Meibomius and Winckelman (as I learn from Imhoff) assert that the wife of Albert the Great was Adelheid, daughter of Otho Marquis of Monferrat. You stand, reader, in this cross road, undetermined whether to take your direction from the more or fewer authorities. Our own monarch King Henry shall serve you for a Mercury, from whom you may, with the few, learn the real truth.

The words of King Henry are: "The illustrious man Albert Duke of Brunswick, our beloved kinsman, married by our advice Alaisia de Montferrat, niece of our consort Queen Aleanor" (p. 470). From this alliance you see the most serene princes of Brunswick, Luneburg, and Hanover, who are now living, derive their origin.

Here, too, you have the great Italian names of Baglioni, Visconte, Ubaldino, Valori, Brancaleone, which the stemmatologists may see, and prepare to trace out.

Here, too, may you see deacons who have become cardinals, and chaplains who have risen to the papacy, fulminating their decrees from the Pontifical pinnacle. From what a little spark bursts forth suddenly a mighty blaze!

Here you may often note some Hercules mewling in his cradle; some root or first germ of most important events.

How often in this work are repeated the names of Balliol, Bruce, Stuart and Tudor, destined to the sceptre, and to be immortalized in the Book of Kings?

Nor can I be silent concerning the Lords of Lebreton, always the most faithful of the vassals of the Kings of England, from whose blood we have seen that the Kings of Navarre and subsequently of France were elevated.

The observant reader may see, wherever he searches, many germs budding forth; but very many more of the same sort, which ought to be brought under notice, we must defer to some other time.

CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE

OF THE

REGNAL YEARS of the KINGS of ENGLAND from the NORMAN CONQUEST to the END of the REIGN of EDWARD THE THIRD, corresponding with the Dominical Years, both Historical and Legal.

THE written acts of the Sovereigns of Europe generally bear the date of the Regnal year of the potentate to which they severally belong; but as such dates would have been very inconvenient for reference, and no useful purpose would have been effected by retaining them in the Syllabus, they have all been reduced to the Dominical Era, as being the more useful and common computation. To assist the Historical student, for whose especial benefit the Syllabus has been compiled, the following table is offered to show at once the correspondence between the Regnal year of each King of England and the Dominical year, whether it be historical or legal, civil or ecclesiastical. It has not been deemed necessary to construct tables of the Regnal years of Foreign Sovereigns, as not more than one-sixth of the documents in the Fœdera originated out of this country, and such tables would have required five times the space now filled. A Table of Contemporary Sovereigns will, however, be useful, and is given immediately after the Regnal years of the Kings of England. Each date has been reckoned according to the historical or common era commencing on the 1st of January, and not according to the Civil, Ecclesiastical, and Legal Era commencing on the 25th of March. By this latter computation all dates between the 1st of January and 25th of March are one year earlier than the historical or common year; for instance, the period between the 1st of January and the 24th of March 1371 in the Legal year is in the year 1372 of the historical era. Again, King Edward the Third came to the throne on the 25th of January 1326 of the Legal, Civil, and Ecclesiastical Era, while according to the historical or common era it was the 25th of January 1327. Queen Elizabeth died on the 24th of March 1602 of the Legal, Civil, and Ecclesiastical year, but according to the historical or common era on the 24th of March 1603.

WILLIAM I.

His reign is reckoned from his Coronation.

CALENDARS OF STATE PAPERS, &c.

[IMPERIAL Svo., cloth. Price 15s. each Volume or Part.]

As far back as the year 1800, a Committee of the House of Commons recommended that Indexes and Calendars should be made to the Public Records, and thirty-six years afterwards another Committee of the House of Commons reiterated that recommendation in more forcible words; but it was not until the incorporation of the State Paper Office with the Public Record Office that the present Master of the Rolls found himself in a position to take the necessary steps for carrying out the wishes of the House of Commons.

On 7 December 1855, he stated to the Lords of the Treasury that although "the Records, State Papers, and Documents in his charge constitute the most complete and perfect series of their kind in the civilized world," and although "they are of the greatest value in a historical and constitutional point of view, yet they are comparatively useless to the public, from the want of proper Calendars and Indexes."

Acting upon the recommendations of the Committees of the House of Commons above referred to, he suggested to the Lords of the Treasury that to effect the object he had in view it would be necessary for him to employ a few persons fully qualified to perform the work which he contemplated.

Their Lordships assented to the necessity of having Calendars prepared and printed, and empowered the Master of the Rolls to take such steps as might be necessary for this purpose.

The following Works have been already published under the direction of the Master of the Rolls :—

The two preceding volumes exhibit the negotiations of the English ambassadors with the courts of the Emperor Charles V. of Germany, of Henry II. of France, and of Philip II. of Spain. The domestic affairs of England are of course passed over in these volumes, which treat only of its relations with foreign powers.

These documents are of the greatest value as exhibiting the position of England at one of the most interesting periods of history, in regard to its relations with France, Scotland, Spain, and Germany. They are of especial importance as illustrating not only the external but also the domestic affairs of France during the period which immediately preceded the outbreak of the first great war of religion under the Prince of Condé and the Duke of Guise.

THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

[ROYAL 8vo., half-bound. Price 10s. each Volume or Part.]

On 25 July 1822, the House of Commons presented an address to the Crown, stating that the editions of the works of our ancient historians were inconvenient and defective; that many of their writings still remained in manuscript, and, in some cases, in a single copy only. They added, "that an uniform and convenient edition of the whole, published under His Majesty's royal sanction, would be an undertaking honourable to His Majesty's reign, and conducive to the advancement of historical and constitutional knowledge; that the House therefore humbly besought His Majesty, that He would be graciously pleased to give such directions as His Majesty, in His wisdom, might think fit, for the publication of a complete edition of the ancient historians of this realm, and assured His Majesty that whatever expense might be necessary for this purpose would be made good."

The Master of the Rolls, being very desirous that effect should be given to the resolution of the House of Commons, submitted to Her Majesty's Treasury in 1857 a plan for the publication of the ancient chronicles and memorials of the United Kingdom, and it was adopted accordingly. In selecting these works, it was considered right, in the first instance, to give preference to those of which the manuscripts were unique, or the materials of which would help to fill up blanks in English history for which no satisfactory and authentic information hitherto existed in any accessible form. One great object the Master of the Rolls had in view was to form a corpus historicum within reasonable limits, and which should be as complete as possible. In a subject of so vast a range, it was important that the historical student should be able to select such volumes as conformed with his own peculiar tastes and studies, and not be put to the expense of purchasing the whole collection; an inconvenience inseparable from any other plan than that which has been in this instance adopted.

Of the Chronicles and Memorials, the following volumes have been published. They embrace the period from the earliest time of British history down to the end of the reign of Henry VII.

1. THE CHRONICLE OF ENGLAND, by JOHN CAPGRAVE. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

Capgrave was prior of Lynn, in Norfolk, and provincial of the order of the Friars Hermits of England shortly before the year 1464. His Chronicle extends from the creation of the world to the year 1417. As a record of the language spoken in Norfolk (being written in English), it is of considerable value.

2. CHRONICON MONASTERII DE ABINGDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1858.

This Chronicle traces the history of the great Benedictine monastery of Abingdon in Berkshire, from its foundation by King Ina of Wessex, to the reign of Richard I., shortly after which period the present narrative was drawn up by an inmate of the establishment. The author had access to the title-deeds of the house; and incorporates into his history various charters of the Saxon kings, of great importance as illustrating not only the history of the locality but that of the kingdom. The work is printed for the first time.

3. LIVES OF EDWARD THE CONFESSOR. I.—La Estoire de Seint Aedward le Rei. II.—Vita Beati Edvardi Regis et Confessoris. III.—Vita Ædunardi Regis qui apud Westmonasterium requiescit. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1858.

The first is a poem in Norman French, containing 4,686 lines, addressed to Alianor, Queen of Henry III., and probably written in the year 1245, on the occasion of the restoration of the church of Westminster. Nothing is known of the author. The second is an anonymous poem, containing 536 lines, written between the years 1440 and 1450, by command of Henry VI., to whom it is dedicated. It does not throw any new light on the reign of Edward the Confessor, but is valuable as a specimen of the Latin poetry of the time. The third, also by an anonymous author, was apparently written for Queen Edith, between the years 1066 and 1074, during the pressure of the suffering brought on the Saxons by the Norman conquest. It notices many facts not found in other writers, and some which differ considerably from the usual accounts.

4. MONUMENTA FRANCISCANA; scilicet, I.—Thomas de Eccleston de Adventu Fratrum Minorum in Angliam. II.—Adæ de Marisco Epistola. III.—Registrum Fratrum Minorum Londonia. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1858.

This volume contains original materials for the history of the settlement of the order of Saint Francis in England, the letters of Adam de Marisco, and other papers connected with the foundation and diffusion of this great body. It has been the aim of the editor to collect whatever historical information could be found in this country, towards illustrating a period of the national history for which only scanty materials exist. None of these have been before printed.

5. FASCICULI ZIZANIORUM MAGISTRI JOHANNIS WYCLIF CUM TRITICO. Ascribed to THOMAS NETTER, of WALDEN, Provincial of the Carmelite Order in England, and Confessor to King Henry the Fifth. Edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, M.A., Tutor and late Fellow of Wadham College, Oxford. 1858.

This work derives its principal value from being the only contemporaneous account of the rise of the Lollards. When written, the disputes of the school-men had been extended to the field of theology, and they appear both in the writings of Wycliff and in those of his adversaries. Wycliff's little bundles of tares are not less metaphysical than theological, and the conflict between Nominalists and Realists rages side by side with the conflict between the different interpreters of Scripture. The work gives a good idea of the controversies at the end of the 14th and the beginning of the 15th centuries.

6. THE BUIK OF THE CRONICLIS OF SCOTLAND ; OR, A METRICAL VERSION OF THE HISTORY OF HECTOR BOECE ; by WILLIAM STEWART. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law. 1858.

This is a metrical translation of a Latin Prose Chronicle, and was written in the first half of the 16th century. The narrative begins with the earliest legends, and ends with the death of James I. of Scotland, and the "evil ending of the traitors that slew him." Strict accuracy of statement is not to be looked for in such a work as this ; but the stories of the colonization of Spain, Ireland, and Scotland are interesting if not true ; and the chronicle is valuable as a reflection of the manners, sentiments, and character of the age in which it was composed. The peculiarities of the Scottish dialect are well illustrated in this metrical version, and the student of language will find ample materials for comparison with the English dialects of the same period, and with modern lowland Scotch.

7. JOHANNIS CAPGRAVE LIBER DE ILLUSTRIBUS HENRICIS. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

This work is dedicated to Henry VI. of England, who appears to have been, in the author's estimation, the greatest of all the Henries. It is divided into three distinct parts, each having its own separate dedication. The first part relates only to the history of the Empire, and extends from the election of Henry I., the Fowler, to the end of the reign of the Emperor Henry VI. The second part is devoted to English history, and extends from the accession of Henry I. in the year 1100, to the year 1446, which was the twenty-fourth year of the reign of King Henry VI. The third part contains the lives of illustrious men who have borne the name of Henry in various parts of the world.

Capgrave was born in 1393, in the reign of Richard II., and lived during the Wars of the Roses, for the history of which period his work is of some value.

8. HISTORIA MONASTERII S. AUGUSTINI CANTUARIENSIS, by THOMAS OF ELMHAM, formerly Monk and Treasurer of that Foundation. Edited by CHARLES HARDWICK, M.A., Fellow of St. Catharine's Hall, and Christian Advocate in the University of Cambridge. 1858.

This history extends from the arrival of St. Augustine in Kent until 1191. Prefixed is a chronology as far as 1418, which shows in outline what was to have been the character of the work when completed. The only copy known is in the possession of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. The author was connected with Norfolk, and most probably with Elmham, whence he derived his name.

9. EULOGIUM (HISTORIARUM SIVE TEMPORIS) : Chronicon ab Orbe condito usque ad Annum Domini 1366 ; a Monacho quodam Malmesbiriensi exaratum. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by F. S. HAYDON, Esq., B.A. 1858-1863.

This is a Latin Chronicle extending from the Creation to the latter part of the reign of Edward III., and written by a monk of the Abbey of Malmesbury, in Wiltshire, about the year 1367. A continuation, carrying the history of England down to the year 1413, was added in the former half of the fifteenth century by an author whose name is not known. The original Chronicle is divided into five books, and contains a history of the world generally, but more especially of England to the year 1366. The continuation extends the history down to the coronation of Henry V. The Eulogium itself is chiefly valuable as containing a history, by a contemporary, of the period between 1356 and 1366. The notices of events appear to have been written very soon after their occurrence. Among other interesting matter, the Chronicle contains a diary of the Poitiers campaign, evidently furnished by some person who accompanied the army of the Black Prince. The continuation of the Chronicle is also the work of a contemporary, and gives a very interesting account of the reigns of Richard II. and Henry IV. It is believed to be the earliest authority for the statement that the latter monarch died in the Jerusalem Chamber at Westminster.

10. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE SEVENTH: Bernardi Andreae Tholosatis Vita Regis Henrici Septimi; necnon alia quædam ad eundem Regem spectantia. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1858.

The contents of these volumes are—(1) a life of Henry VII., by his poet laureate and historiographer, Bernard André, of Toulouse, with some compositions in verse, of which he is supposed to have been the author; (2) the journals of Roger Machado during certain embassies on which he was sent by Henry VII. to Spain and Brittany, the first of which had reference to the marriage of the King's son, Arthur, with Catharine of Arragon; (3) two curious reports by envoys sent to Spain in the year 1505 touching the succession to the Crown of Castile, and a project of marriage between Henry VII. and the Queen of Naples; and (4) an account of Philip of Castile's reception in England in 1506. Other documents of interest in connexion with the period are given in an appendix.

11. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE FIFTH. I.—Vita Henrici Quinti, Roberto Redmanno auctore. II.—Versus Rhythmici in laudem Regis Henrici Quinti. III.—Elmhani Liber Metricus de Henrico V. Edited by CHARLES A. COLE, Esq. 1858.

This volume contains three treatises which more or less illustrate the history of the reign of Henry V., viz.: A Life by Robert Redman; a Metrical Chronicle by Thomas Elmham, prior of Lenton, a contemporary author; Versus Rhythmici, written apparently by a monk of Westminster Abbey, who was also a contemporary of Henry V. These works are printed for the first time.

12. MUNIMENTA GILDHALLÆ LONDONIENSIS; Liber Albus, Liber Custumarum, et Liber Horn, in archivis Gildhallæ asservati. Vol. I., Liber Albus. Vol. II. (in Two Parts), Liber Custumarum. Vol. III., Translation of the Anglo-Norman Passages in Liber Albus, Glossaries, Appendices, and Index. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 1859-1862.

The manuscript of the Liber Albus, compiled by John Carpenter, Common Clerk of the City of London in the year 1419, a large folio volume, is preserved in the Record Room of the City of London. It gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of that City in the twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, and early part of the fifteenth centuries.

The Liber Custumarum was compiled probably by various hands in the early part of the fourteenth century during the reign of Edward II. The manuscript, a folio volume, is also preserved in the Record Room of the City of London, though some portion in its original state, borrowed from the City in the reign of Queen Elizabeth and never returned, forms part of the Cottonian MS. Claudius D. II. in the British Museum. It also gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of the City of London in the twelfth, thirteenth, and early part of the fourteenth centuries.

13. CHRONICA JOHANNIS DE OXENEDES. Edited by Sir HENRY ELLIS, K.H. 1859.

Although this Chronicle tells of the arrival of Hengist and Horsa in England in the year 449, yet it substantially begins with the reign of King Alfred, and comes down to the year 1292, where it ends abruptly. The history is particularly valuable for notices of events in the eastern portions of the kingdom, which are not to be elsewhere obtained, and some curious facts are mentioned relative to the floods in that part of England, which are confirmed in the Friesland Chronicle of Anthony Heinrich, pastor of the Island of Mohr.

14. A COLLECTION OF POLITICAL POEMS AND SONGS RELATING TO ENGLISH HISTORY, FROM THE ACCESSION OF EDWARD III. TO THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1859-1861.

These Poems are perhaps the most interesting of all the historical writings of the period, though they cannot be relied on for accuracy of statement. They are various in character; some are upon religious subjects, some may be called satires, and some give no more than a court scandal; but as a whole they present a very fair picture of society, and of the relations of the different classes to one another. The period comprised is in itself interesting, and brings us, through the decline of the feudal system, to the beginning of our modern history. The songs in old English are of considerable value to the philologist.

15. The "OPUS TERTIUM," "OPUS MINUS," &c., of ROGER BACON. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1859.

This is the celebrated treatise—never before printed—so frequently referred to by the great philosopher in his works. It contains the fullest details we possess of the life and labours of Roger Bacon: also a fragment by the same author, supposed to be unique, the "Compendium Studii Theologiae."

16. BARTHOLOMÆI DE COTTON, MONACHI NORWICENSIS, HISTORIA ANGLICANA; 449-1298: necnon ejusdem Liber de Archiepiscopis et Episcopis Angliæ. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1859.

The author, a monk of Norwich, has here given us a Chronicle of England from the arrival of the Saxons in 449 to the year 1298, in or about which year it appears that he died. The latter portion of this history (the whole of the reign of Edward I. more especially) is of great value, as the writer was contemporary with the events which he records. An Appendix contains several illustrative documents connected with the previous narrative.

17. BRUT Y TYWYSOGION; or, The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHIEL, M.A. 1860.

This work, also known as "The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales," has been attributed to Caradoc of Llancarvan, who flourished about the middle of the twelfth century. It is written in the ancient Welsh language, begins with the abdication and death of Caedwala at Rome, in the year 681, and continues the history down to the subjugation of Wales by Edward I., about the year 1282.

18. A COLLECTION OF ROYAL AND HISTORICAL LETTERS DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY IV. 1399-1404. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1860.

This volume, like all the others in the series containing a miscellaneous selection of letters, is valuable on account of the light it throws upon biographical history, and the familiar view it presents of characters, manners, and events. The period requires much elucidation; to which it will materially contribute.

19. THE REPRESSOR OF OVER MUCH BLAMING OF THE CLERGY. By REGINALD PECOCK, sometime Bishop of Chichester. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1860.

The "Repressor" may be considered the earliest piece of good theological disquisition of which our English prose literature can boast. The author was born about the end of the fourteenth century, consecrated Bishop of St. Asaph in the year 1444, and translated to the see of Chichester in 1450. While Bishop of St. Asaph, he zealously defended his brother prelates from the attacks of those who censured the bishops for their neglect of duty. He maintained that it was no part of a bishop's functions to appear in the pulpit, and that his time might be more profitably spent, and his dignity better maintained, in the performance of works of a higher character. Among those who thought differently were the Lollards, and against their general doctrines the "Repressor" is directed. Pecock took up a position midway between that of the Roman Church and that of the modern Anglican Church; but his work is interesting chiefly because it gives a full account of the views of the Lollards and of the arguments by which they were supported, and because it assists us to ascertain the state of feeling which ultimately led to the Reformation. Apart from religious matters, the light thrown upon contemporaneous history is very small, but the "Repressor" has great value for the philologist, as it tells us what were the characteristics of the language in use among the cultivated Englishmen of the fifteenth century. Pecock, though an opponent of the Lollards, showed a certain spirit of toleration, for which he received, towards the end of his life, the usual mediæval reward—persecution.

20. ANNALES CAMBRIÆ. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

These annals, which are in Latin, commence in the year 447, and come down to the year 1288. The earlier portion appears to be taken from an Irish Chronicle, which was also used by Tigernach, and by the compiler of the Annals of Ulster. During its first century it contains scarcely anything relating to Britain, the earliest direct concurrence with English history is relative to the mission of Augustine. Its notices throughout though brief, are valuable. The annals were probably written at St. David's, by Blegewryd, Archdeacon of Llandaf, the most learned man in his day in all Cymru.

21. THE WORKS OF GIRALDUS CAMBRENSIS. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vols. V. and VI. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Baruburgh, Yorkshire. 1861-1868.

The first three volumes contain the historical works of Gerald du Barry, who lived in the reigns of Henry II., Richard I., and John, and attempted to re-establish the independence of Wales by restoring the see of St. David's to its ancient primacy. His works are of a very miscellaneous nature, both in prose and verse, and are remarkable chiefly for the racy and original anecdotes which they contain relating to contemporaries. He is the only Welsh writer of any importance who has contributed so much to the mediæval literature of this country, or assumed, in consequence of his nationality, so free and independent a tone. His frequent travels in Italy, in France, in Ireland, and in Wales, gave him opportunities for observation which did not generally fall to the lot of mediæval writers in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, and of these observations Giraldus has made due use. Only extracts from these treatises have been printed before, and almost all of them are taken from unique manuscripts.

The Topographia Hibernica (in Vol. V.) is the result of Giraldus' two visits to Ireland. The first in the year 1183, the second in 1185-6, when he accompanied Prince John into that country. Curious as this treatise is, Mr. Dimock is of opinion that it ought not to be accepted as sober truthful history, for Giraldus himself states that truth was not his main object, and that he compiled the work for the purpose of sounding the praises of Henry the Second. Elsewhere, however, he declares that he had stated nothing in the Topographia of the truth of which he was not well assured, either by his own eyesight or by the testimony, with all diligence elicited, of the most trustworthy and authentic men in the country; that though he did not put just the same full faith in their reports as in what he had himself seen, yet, as they only related what they had themselves seen, he could not but believe such credible witnesses. A very interesting portion of this treatise is devoted to the animals of Ireland. It shows that he was a very accurate and acute observer, and his descriptions are given in a way that a scientific naturalist of the present day could hardly improve upon. The Expugnatio Hibernica was written about the year 1188, and may be regarded rather as a great epic than a sober relation of acts occurring in his own days. No one can peruse it without coming to the conclusion that it is rather a poetical fiction than a pro-se truthful history.

Vol. VI. contains the Itinerarium Kambrie et Descriptio Kambrie.

22. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE WARS OF THE ENGLISH IN FRANCE DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY THE SIXTH, KING OF ENGLAND. Vol. I., and Vol. II. (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1861-1864.

The letters and papers contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from originals or contemporary copies extant in the Bibliothèque Impériale, and the Dépôt des Archives, in Paris. They illustrate the line of policy adopted by John Duke of Bedford and his successors during their government of Normandy, and such other provinces of France as had been acquired by Henry V. We may here trace, step by step, the gradual declension of the English power, until we are prepared to read of its final overthrow.

23. THE ANGLO-SAXON CHRONICLE, ACCORDING TO THE SEVERAL ORIGINAL AUTHORITIES. Vol. I., Original Texts. Vol. II., Translation. Edited and translated by BENJAMIN THORPE, Esq., Member of the Royal Academy of Sciences at Munich, and of the Society of Netherlandish Literature at Leyden. 1861.

This Chronicle, extending from the earliest history of Britain to the year 1154, is justly the boast of England; for no other nation can produce any history, written in its own vernacular, at all approaching it, either in antiquity, truthfulness, or extent, the historical books of the Bible alone excepted. There are at present six independent manuscripts of the Saxon Chronicle, ending in different years, and written in different parts of the country. In the present edition, the text of each manuscript is printed in columns on the same page, so that the student may see at a glance the various changes which occur in orthography, whether arising from locality or age.

24. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGNS OF RICHARD III. AND HENRY VII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1861-1863.

The Papers are derived from MSS. in the Public Record Office, the British Museum, and other repositories. The period to which they refer is unusually destitute of chronicles and other sources of historical information, so that the light obtained from these documents is of special importance. The principal contents of the volumes are some diplomatic Papers of Richard III.; correspondence between Henry VII. and Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain; documents relating to Edmund de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk; and a portion of the correspondence of James IV. of Scotland.

25. LETTERS OF BISHOP GROSSETESTE, illustrative of the Social Condition of his Time. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1861.

The Letters of Robert Grosseteste (131 in number) are here collected from various sources, and a large portion of them is printed for the first time. They range in date from about 1210 to 1253, and relate to various matters connected not only with the political history of England during the reign of Henry III., but with its ecclesiastical condition. They refer especially to the diocese of Lincoln, of which Grosseteste was bishop.

26. DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF MANUSCRIPTS RELATING TO THE HISTORY OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND. Vol. I. (in Two Parts); Anterior to the Norman Invasion. Vol. II.; 1066-1200. By THOMAS DUFFES HARDY, Esq., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1862-1865.

The object of this work is to publish notices of all known sources of British history, both printed and unprinted, in one continued sequence. The materials, when historical (as distinguished from biographical), are arranged under the year in which the latest event is recorded in the chronicle or history, and not under the period in which its author, real or supposed, flourished. Biographies are enumerated under the year in which the person commemorated died, and not under the year in which the life was written. This arrangement has two advantages; the materials for any given period may be seen at a glance; and if the reader knows the time when an author wrote, and the number of years that had elapsed between the date of the events and the time the writer flourished, he will generally be enabled to form a fair estimate of the comparative value of the narrative itself. A brief analysis of each work has been added when deserving it, in which the original portions are distinguished from those which are mere compilations. When possible, the sources are indicated, from which such compilations have been derived. A biographical sketch of the author of each piece has been added, and a brief notice has also been given of such British authors as have written on historical subjects.

27. ROYAL AND OTHER HISTORICAL LETTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGN OF HENRY III. From the Originals in the Public Record Office. Vol. I., 1216-1235. Vol. II., 1236-1272. Selected and edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, D.D., Regius Professor in Ecclesiastical History, and Canon of Christ Church, Oxford. 1862-1866.

The letters contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from the ancient correspondence formerly in the Tower of London, and now in the Public Record Office. They illustrate the political history of England during the growth of its liberties, and throw considerable light upon the personal history of Simon de Montfort. The affairs of France form the subject of many of them, especially in regard to the province of Gascony. The entire collection consists of nearly 700 documents, the greater portion of which is printed for the first time.

28. CHRONICA MONASTERII S. ALBANI.—1. THOMÆ WALSHINGHAM HISTORIA ANGLICANA; Vol. I., 1272-1331; Vol. II., 1331-1422. 2. WILLELMI RISHANGER CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1307. 3. JOHANNIS DE TROKELowe ET HENRICI DE BLANEFORDE CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1296; 1307-1324; 1392-1406. 4. GESTA ABBATUM MONASTERII S. ALBANI, A THOMÆ WALSHINGHAM, REGNANTE RICARDO SECUNDO, EJUSDEM ECCLESIE PRECENTORE, COMPILATA; Vol. I., 793-1290; Vol. II., 1290-1349; Vol. III., 1349-1411. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; and of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1869.

In the first two volumes is a history of England, from the death of Henry III. to the death of Henry V., written by Thomas Walsingham, precentor of St. Albans and prior of the cell of Wymundham, belonging to that abbey. Walsingham's work is printed from MS. VII. in the Arundel Collection in the College of Arms, London, a manuscript of the fifteenth century, collated with MS. 13 E. IX. in the King's Library in the British Museum, and MS. VII. in the Parker Collection of Manuscripts at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

In the third volume is a Chronicle of English History, from 1259 to 1306, attributed to William Rishanger, monk of Saint Albans, who lived in the reign of Edward I., printed from the Cottonian Manuscript, Faustina B. IX. (of the fourteenth century) in the British Museum, collated with MS. 14 C. VII. (fols. 219-231) in the King's Library, British Museum, and the Cottonian Manuscript Claudius E. III., fols. 306-331: Also an account of transactions attending the award of the kingdom of Scotland to John Balliol by King Edward I., 1291-1292, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., attributed to William Rishanger above mentioned, but on no sufficient ground: A short Chronicle of English History, from 1292 to 1306, by an unknown hand, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: A short Chronicle from 1297 to 1307, Willelmi Rishanger Gesta Edwardi Primi Regis Angliæ, from MS. 14 C. I. in the Royal Library, and MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., with an addition of Annales Regum Angliæ, probably by the same hand: A fragment of a Chronicle of English History, 1299, 1300, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: A fragment of a Chronicle of English History, 1295 to 1300, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI. : and a fragment of a Chronicle of English History, 1285 to 1307, from MS. 14 C. I. in the Royal Library.

In the fourth volume is a Chronicle of English History, by an anonymous writer, 1259 to 1296, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI. : Annals of King Edward II., 1307 to 1323, by John de Trokelowe, a monk of St. Albans, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI. : A continuation of Trokelowe's Annals, 1323, 1324, by Henricus de Blaneforde, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI. : A full Chronicle of English History, by an anonymous writer of St. Albans, 1392 to 1406, from MS. VII. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge : and an account of the benefactors of St. Albans, written in the early part of the fifteenth century, from MS. VI. in the same Library.

The fifth, sixth, and seventh volumes (which form an entirely separate work), contain a history of the Abbots of St. Albans, and of the fortunes and vicissitudes of the house, from 793 to 1411, mainly compiled by Thomas Walsingham, Præcentor of the Abbey in the reign of Richard II., and transcribed from MS. Cotton. Claudius E. IV., in the British Museum ; with a brief Continuation of the History, extracted from the closing pages of the Parker MS. No. VII., in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

29. CHRONICON ABBATIE EVESHAMENSIS, AUCTORIBUS DOMINICO PRIORE EVESHAMÆ ET THOMA DE MARLEBERGE ABBATE, A FUNDATIONE AD ANNUM 1213, UNA CUM CONTINUATIONE AD ANNUM 1418. Edited by the Rev. W. D. MACRAY, M.A., Bodleian Library, Oxford. 1863.

The Chronicle of Evesham illustrates the history of that important monastery from its foundation by Egwin, about 690, to the year 1418. Its chief feature is an autobiography, which makes us acquainted with the inner daily life of a great abbey, such as but rarely has been recorded. Interspersed are many notices of general, personal, and local history which will be read with much interest. This work exists in a single MS., and is for the first time printed.

30. RICARDI DE CIRENCESTRIA SPECULUM HISTORIALE DE GESTIS REGUM ANGLIÆ. Vol. I., 447-871. Vol. II., 872-1066. Edited by JOHN E. B. MAYOR, M.A., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1863-1869.

The compiler, Richard of Cirencester, was a monk of Westminster, 1355-1400. In 1391 he obtained a licence to make a pilgrimage to Rome. His history, in four books, extends from 447 to 1066. He announces his intention of continuing it, but there is no evidence that he completed any more. This chronicle gives many charters in favour of Westminster Abbey, and a very full account of the lives and miracles of the saints, especially of Edward the Confessor, whose reign occupies the fourth book. A treatise on the Coronation, by William of Sudbury, a monk of Westminster, fills book iii. c. 3. It was on this author that C. J. Bertram fathered his forgery, De Situ Britannia, in 1747.

31. YEAR BOOKS OF THE REIGN OF EDWARD THE FIRST. Years 20-21, 30-31, and 32-33. Edited and translated by ALFRED JOHN HORWOOD, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1866.

The volumes known as the "Year Books" contain reports in Norman-French of cases argued and decided in the Courts of Common Law. They may be considered to a great extent as the "lex non scripta" of England, and have been held in the highest veneration by the ancient sages of the law, and were received by them as the repositories of the first recorded judgments and dicta of the great legal luminaries of past ages. They are also worthy of the attention of the general reader on account of the historical information and the notices of public and private persons which they contain, as well as the light which they throw on ancient manners and customs.

in the Imperial Library at Paris, by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham. 1863.

This volume contains the narrative of an eye-witness who details with considerable power and minuteness the circumstances which attended the final expulsion of the English from Normandy in the year 1450. The history commences with the infringement of the truce by the capture of Fougères, and ends with the battle of Formigny and the embarkation of the Duke of Somerset. The whole period embraced is less than two years.

33. HISTORIA ET CARTULARIUM MONASTERII S. PETRI GLOUCESTRIE. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. H. HART, Esq., F.S.A., Membre correspondant de la Société des Antiquaires de Normandie. 1863-1867.

This work consists of two parts, the History and the Cartulary of the Monastery of St. Peter, Gloucester. The history furnishes an account of the monastery from its foundation, in the year 681, to the early part of the reign of Richard II., together with a calendar of donations and benefactions. It treats principally of the affairs of the monastery, but occasionally matters of general history are introduced. Its authorship has generally been assigned to Walter Froucester, the twentieth abbot, but without any foundation.

34. ALEXANDRI NECKAM DE NATURIS RERUM LIBRI DUO; with NECKAM'S POEM, DE LAUDIBUS DIVINE SAPIENTIE. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1863.

Neckam was a man who devoted himself to science, such as it was in the twelfth century. In the "De Naturis Rerum" are to be found what may be called the rudiments of many sciences mixed up with much error and ignorance. Neckam was not thought infallible, even by his contemporaries, for Roger Bacon remarks of him, "this Alexander in many things wrote what was true and useful; but he neither can nor ought by just title to be reckoned among authorities." Neckam, however, had sufficient independence of thought to differ from some of the schoolmen who in his time considered themselves the only judges of literature. He had his own views in morals, and in giving us a glimpse of them, as well as of his other opinions, he throws much light upon the manners, customs, and general tone of thought prevalent in the twelfth century. The poem entitled "De Laudibus Divinæ Sapientiæ" appears to be a metrical paraphrase or abridgment of the "De Naturis Rerum." It is written in the elegiac metre; and though there are many lines which violate classical rules, it is, as a whole, above the ordinary standard of mediæval Latin.

35. LEECHDOMS, WORTCUNNING, AND STARCRAFT OF EARLY ENGLAND; being a Collection of Documents illustrating the History of Science in this Country before the Norman Conquest. Vols. I., II., and III. Collected and edited by the Rev. T. OSWALD COCKAYNE, M.A., of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1864-1866.

This work illustrates not only the history of science, but the history of superstition. In addition to the information bearing directly upon the medical skill and medical faith of the times, there are many passages which incidentally throw light upon the general mode of life and ordinary diet. The volumes are interesting not only in their scientific, but also in their social aspect. The manuscripts from which they have been printed are valuable to the Anglo-Saxon scholar for the illustrations they afford of Anglo-Saxon orthography.

36. ANNALES MONASTICI. Vol. I.:—Annales de Margan, 1066-1232; Annales de Theokesberia, 1066-1263; Annales de Burton, 1004-1263. Vol. II.:—Annales Monasterii de Wintonia, 519-1277; Annales Monasterii de Waverleia, 1-1291. Vol. III.:—Annales Prioratus de Dunstaplia, 1-1297; Annales Monasterii de Bermundescia, 1042-1432. Vol. IV.:—Annales Monasterii de Oseneia, 1016-1347; Chronicon vulgo dictum Chronicon Thomæ Wykes, 1066-1289; Annales Prioratus de

Wigornia, 1-1377. Vol. V. :—Index and Glossary. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, and Registry of the University, Cambridge. 1864-1869.

The present collection of Monastic Annals embraces all the more important chronicles compiled in religious houses in England during the thirteenth century. These distinct works are ten in number. The extreme period which they embrace ranges from the year 1 to 1432, although they refer more especially to the reigns of John, Henry III., and Edward I. Some of these narratives have already appeared in print, but others are printed for the first time.

37. MAGNA VITA S. HUGONIS EPISCOPI LINCOLNIENSIS. From Manuscripts in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, and the Imperial Library, Paris. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1864.

This work contains a number of very curious and interesting incidents, and, being the work of a contemporary, is very valuable, not only as a truthful biography of a celebrated ecclesiastic, but as the work of a man, who, from personal knowledge, gives notices of passing events, as well as of individuals who were then taking active part in public affairs. The author, in all probability, was Adam Abbot of Evesham. He was domestic chaplain and private confessor of Bishop Hugh, and in these capacities he was admitted to the closest intimacy. Bishop Hugh was Prior of Witham for 11 years before he became Bishop of Lincoln. His consecration took place on the 21st September 1186; he died on the 16th of November 1200; and was canonized in 1220.

38. CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD THE FIRST. Vol. I. :—ITINERARIUM PEREGRINORUM ET GESTA REGIS RICARDI. Vol. II. :—EPISTOLÆ CANTUARIENSES; the Letters of the Prior and Convent of Christ Church, Canterbury; 1187 to 1199. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Vicar of Navestock, Essex, and Lambeth Librarian. 1864-1865.

The authorship of the Chronicle in Vol. I., hitherto ascribed to Geoffrey Vinesauf, is now more correctly ascribed to Richard, Canon of the Holy Trinity of London. The narrative extends from 1187 to 1199; but its chief interest consists in the minute and authentic narrative which it furnishes of the exploits of Richard I., from his departure from England in December 1189 to his death in 1199. The author states in his prologue that he was an eye-witness of much that he records; and various incidental circumstances which occur in the course of the narrative confirm this assertion.

The letters in Vol. II., written between 1187 and 1199, are of value as furnishing authentic materials for the history of the ecclesiastical condition of England during the reign of Richard I. They had their origin in a dispute which arose from the attempts of Baldwin and Hubert, archbishops of Canterbury, to found a college of secular canons, a project which gave great umbrage to the monks of Canterbury, who saw in it a design to supplant them in their function of metropolitan chapter. These letters are printed, for the first time, from a MS. belonging to the archiepiscopal library at Lambeth.

39. RECUEIL DES CHRONIQUES ET ANCIENNES HISTOIRES DE LA GRANT BRETAGNE A PRESENT NOMME ENGLETERRE, par JEHAN DE WAURIN. Vol. I. Albina to 688. Vol. II., 1309-1422. Edited by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864-1868.
40. A COLLECTION OF THE CHRONICLES AND ANCIENT HISTORIES OF GREAT BRITAIN, NOW CALLED ENGLAND, by JOHN DE WAURIN. Albina to 688. (Translation of the preceding Vol. I.) Edited and translated by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864.

This curious chronicle extends from the fabulous period of history down to the return of Edward IV. to England in the year 1471, after the second deposition of Henry VI. The manuscript from which the text of the work is taken is preserved in the Imperial Library at Paris, and is believed to be the only complete and nearly contemporary copy in existence. The work, as originally bound, was comprised in six volumes, since rebound in morocco in 12 volumes, folio maximo, vellum, and is illustrated with exquisite miniatures, vignettes, and initial letters. It was written towards the end of the fifteenth century, having been expressly executed for Louis de Bruges, Seigneur de la Gruthuise and Earl of Winchester, from whose cabinet it passed into the library of Louis XII. at Blois.

41. POLYCHRONICON RANULPHI HIGDEN, with Trevisa's Translation. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Senior Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1865-1869.

This is one of the many mediæval chronicles which assume the character of a history of the world. It begins with the creation, and is brought down to the author's own time, the reign of Edward III. Prefixed to the historical portion, is a chapter devoted to geography, in which is given a description of every known land. To say that the Polychronicon was written in the fourteenth century is to say that it is not free from inaccuracies. It has, however, a value apart from its intrinsic merits. It enables us to form a very fair estimate of the knowledge of history and geography which well-informed readers of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries possessed, for it was then the standard work on general history.

The two English translations, which are printed with the original Latin, afford interesting illustrations of the gradual change of our language, for one was made in the fourteenth century, the other in the fifteenth. The differences between Trevisa's version and that of the unknown writer are often considerable.

42. LE LIVRE DE REIS DE BRITTANIE E LE LIVRE DE REIS DE ENGLETERE. Edited by JOHN GLOVER, M.A., Vicar of Brading, Isle of Wight, formerly Librarian of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1865.

These two treatises, though they cannot rank as independent narratives, are nevertheless valuable as careful abstracts of previous historians, especially "Le Livre de Reis de Engleterre." Some various readings are given which are interesting to the philologist as instances of semi-Saxonized French.

It is supposed that Peter of Ickham must have been the author, but no certain conclusion on that point has been arrived at.

43. CHRONICA MONASTERII DE MELSA, AB ANNO 1150 USQUE AD ANNUM 1406. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by EDWARD AUGUSTUS BOND, Esq., Assistant Keeper of the Manuscripts, and Egerton Librarian, British Museum. 1866-1868.

The Abbey of Meaux was a Cistercian house, and the work of its abbot is both curious and valuable. It is a faithful and often minute record of the establishment of a religious community, of its progress in forming an ample revenue, of its struggles to maintain its acquisitions, and of its relations to the governing institutions of the country. In addition to the private affairs of the monastery, some light is thrown upon the public events of the time, which are however kept distinct, and appear at the end of the history of each abbot's administration. The text has been printed from what is said to be the autograph of the original compiler, Thomas de Burton, the nineteenth abbot.

44. MATTHEI PARISIENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM, SIVE, UT VULGO DICITUR, HISTORIA MINOR. Vols. I., II., and III. 1067-1245. Edited by Sir FREDERIC MADDEN, K.H., Keeper of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1866-1869.

The exact date at which this work was written is, according to the chronicler, 1250. The history is of considerable value as an illustration of the period during which the author lived, and contains a good summary of the events which followed the Conquest. This minor chronicle is, however, based on another work (also written by Matthew Paris) giving fuller details, which has been called the 'Historia Major.' The chronicle here published, nevertheless, gives some information not to be found in the greater history.

45. LIBER MONASTERII DE HYDA: A CHRONICLE AND CHARTULARY OF HYDE ABBEY, WINCHESTER, 455-1023. Edited, from a Manuscript in the Library of the Earl of Macclesfield, by EDWARD EDWARDS, Esq. 1866.

The "Book of Hyde" is a compilation from much earlier sources, which are usually indicated with considerable care and precision. In many cases, however, the Hyde chronicler appears to correct, to qualify, or to amplify—either from tradition or from sources of information not now discoverable—the statements which, in substance, he adopts. He also mentions, and frequently quotes from, writers whose works are either entirely lost or at present known only by fragments.

There is to be found, in the "Book of Hyde," much information relating to the reign of King Alfred which is not known to exist elsewhere. The volume contains some curious specimens of Anglo-Saxon and Mediæval English.

46. CHRONICON SCOTORUM: A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO 1135; WITH A SUPPLEMENT, CONTAINING THE EVENTS FROM 1141 TO 1150. Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1866.

There is, in this volume, a legendary account of the peopling of Ireland and of the adventures which befell the various heroes who are said to have been connected with Irish history. The details are, however, very meagre both for this period and for the time when history becomes more authentic. The plan adopted in the chronicle gives the appearance of an accuracy to which the earlier portions of the work cannot have any claim. The succession of events is marked, year by year, from A.M. 1599 to A.D. 1150. The principal events narrated in the later portion of the work are the invasions of foreigners and the wars of the Irish among themselves. The text has been printed from a MS. preserved in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, written partly in Latin, partly in Irish.

47. THE CHRONICLE OF PIERRE DE LANGTOFT, IN FRENCH VERSE, FROM THE EARLIEST PERIOD TO THE DEATH OF EDWARD I. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1866-1868.

It is probable that Pierre de Langtoft was a canon of Bridlington, in Yorkshire, and that he lived in the reign of Edward I., and during a portion of the reign of Edward II. This chronicle is divided into three parts; in the first is an abridgment of Geoffrey of Monmouth's "Historia Britonum," in the second, a history of the Anglo-Saxon and Norman kings, down to the death of Henry III., and in the third a history of the reign of Edward I. The principal object of the work was apparently to show the justice of Edward's Scottish wars. The language is singularly corrupt, and a curious specimen of the French of Yorkshire.

48. THE WAR OF THE GAEDHIL WITH THE GAILL, OR, THE INVASIONS OF IRELAND BY THE DANES AND OTHER NORSEMEN. Edited, with a Translation, by JAMES HENTHORN TODD, D.D., Senior Fellow of Trinity College, and Regius Professor of Hebrew in the University, Dublin. 1867.

The work in its present form, in the editor's opinion, is a comparatively modern version of an undoubtedly ancient original. That it was compiled from contemporary materials has been proved by curious incidental evidence. It is stated in the account given of the battle of Clontarf that the full tide in Dublin Bay on the day of the battle (23 April 1014) coincided with sunrise; and that the returning tide in the evening aided considerably in the defeat of the Danes. The fact has been verified by astronomical calculations, and the inference is that the author of the chronicle, if not himself an eye-witness, must have derived his information from those who were eye-witnesses. The contents of the work are sufficiently described in its title. The story is told after the manner of the Scandinavian Sagas, with poems and fragments of poems introduced into the prose narrative.

49. GESTA REGIS HENRICI SECUNDI BENEDICTI ABBATIS. THE CHRONICLE OF THE REIGNS OF HENRY II. AND RICHARD I., 1169-1192; known under the name of BENEDICT OF PETERBOROUGH. Vols. I. and II. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, Oxford, and Lambeth Librarian. 1867.

This chronicle of the reigns of Henry II. and Richard I., known commonly under the name of Benedict of Peterborough, is one of the best existing specimens of a class of historical compositions of the first importance to the student.

50. MUNIMENTA ACADEMICA, OR, DOCUMENTS ILLUSTRATIVE OF ACADEMICAL LIFE AND STUDIES AT OXFORD (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. HENRY ANSTLEY, M.A., Vicar of St. Wendron, Cornwall, and lately Vice-Principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. 1868.

This work will supply materials for a History of Academical Life and Studies in the University of Oxford during the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries.

51. CHRONICA MAGISTRI ROGERI DE HOVEDENE. Vols. I. and II. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1868-1869.

This work has long been justly celebrated, but not thoroughly understood until Mr. Stubbs' edition. The earlier portion, extending from 792 to 1148, appears to be a copy of a compilation made in Northumbria about 1161, to which Hoveden added little. From 1148 to 1169—a very valuable portion of this work—the matter is derived from another source, to which Hoveden appears to have supplied little, and not always judiciously. From 1170 to 1192 is the portion which corresponds with the Chronicle known under the name of Benedict of Peterborough (see No. 49); but it is not a copy, being sometimes an abridgment, at others a paraphrase; occasionally the two works entirely agree, showing that both writers had access to the same materials, but dealt with them differently. From 1192 to 1201 may be said to be wholly Hoveden's work; it is extremely valuable, and an authority of the first importance.

WORKS PUBLISHED IN PHOTOZINCOGRAPHY.

DOMESDAY BOOK, or the GREAT SURVEY OF ENGLAND OF WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, 1086; fac-simile of the part relating to each county, separately (with a few exceptions of double counties). Photozincographed, by Her Majesty's Command, at the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton, Colonel SIR HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S., &c., Director. 35 parts, imperial quarto and demy quarto (1861-1863) boards. Price 4s. 6d. to 17. 1s. each part, according to size; or, bound in 2 vols., 187.

This important and unique survey of the greater portion of England* is the oldest and most valuable record in the national archives. It was commenced about the year 1084 and finished in 1086. Its compilation was determined upon at Gloucester by William the Conqueror, in council, in order that he might know what was due to him, in the way of tax, from his subjects, and that each at the same time might know what he had to pay. It was compiled as much for their protection as for the benefit of the sovereign. The nobility and people had been grievously distressed at the time by the king bringing over large numbers of French and Bretons, and quartering them on his subjects, "each according to the measure of his land," for the purpose of resisting the invasion of Cnut, King of Denmark, which was apprehended. The commissioners appointed to make the survey were to inquire the name of each place; who held it in the time of King Edward the Confessor; the present possessor; how many hides were in the manor; how many ploughs were in demesne; how many homagers; how many villeins; how many cottars; how many serving men; how many free tenants; how many tenants in soccage; how much wood, meadow, and pasture; the number of mills and fish-ponds; what had been added or taken away from the place; what was the gross value in the time of Edward the Confessor; the present value; and how much each free man or soc-man had, and whether any advance could be made in the value. Thus could be ascertained who held the estate in the time of King Edward; who then held it; its value in the time of the late king; and its value as it stood at the formation of the survey. So minute was the survey, that the writer of the contemporary portion of the Saxon Chronicle records, with some asperity—"So very narrowly he caused it to be traced out, that there was not a single hide, nor one virgate of land, nor even, "it is shame to tell, though it seemed to him no shame to do, an ox, nor a cow, nor a swine was left, that was not set down."

Domesday Survey is in two parts or volumes. The first, in folio, contains the counties of Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Cambridge, Chester and Lancaster, Cornwall, Derby, Devon, Dorset, Gloucester, Hants, Hereford, Herts, Huntingdon, Kent, Leicester and Rutland, Lincoln, Middlesex, Northampton, Nottingham, Oxford, Salop, Somerset, Stafford, Surrey, Sussex, Warwick, Wilts, Worcester, and York. The second volume, in quarto, contains the counties of Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk.

Domesday Book was printed verbatim et literatim during the last century, in consequence of an address of the House of Lords to King George III. in 1767. It was not, however, commenced until 1773, and was completed early in 1783. In 1860, Her Majesty's Government, with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, determined to apply the art of photozincography to the production of a fac-simile of Domesday Book, under the superintendence of Colonel Sir Henry James, R.E., director of the Ordnance Survey, Southampton. The fac-simile was completed in 1863.

*For some reason left unexplained, many parts were left unsurveyed; Northumberland, Cumberland, Westmoreland, and Durham, are not described in the survey; nor does Lancashire appear under its proper name; but Furness, and the north-ern part of Lancashire, as well as the south of Westmoreland, with a part of Cumberland, are included within the West Riding of Yorkshire. That part of Lancashire which lies between the Ribbles and Mersey, and which at the time of the survey comprehended 688 manors, is joined to Cheshire. Part of Rutland is described in the counties of Northampton and Lincoln.

Part I., with translations and notes (William the Conqueror to Henry VII.), 1865.

Part II. (Henry VIII. and Edward VI.), 1866.

Part III. (Mary and Elizabeth), 1867.

Part IV. (James I. to Anne), 1868.

The first Part extends from William the Conqueror to Henry VII., and contains autographs of the kings of England, as well as of many other illustrious personages famous in history, and some interesting charters, letters patent, and state papers. The second Part, for the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI., consists principally of holograph letters and autographs of kings, princes, statesmen, and other persons of great historical interest, who lived during those reigns. The third Part contains similar documents for the reigns of Mary and Elizabeth, including a signed bill of Lady Jane Grey. The fourth Part concludes the series, and comprises a number of documents taken from the originals belonging to the Constable of the Tower of London; also several records illustrative of the Gunpowder Plot, and a woodcut containing portraits of Mary Queen of Scots and James VI., circulated by their adherents in England, 1580-3.

SIR T. DUFFUS HARDY, P.C.C.

The public will learn with regret that Sir Thomas Duffus Hardy, the Deputy Keeper of the Rolls, and the greatest archævistic scholar of the day, has passed away after a short illness. Sir Thomas Hardy died at his house in Portland-road on Saturday evening, and has left a blank in literary circles and an office vacant in a great public department which cannot readily be filled up. Born in 1804, at Port Royal, Jamaica, where his father, Major Hardy, of the Royal Artillery, was then stationed, Sir Thomas Hardy was still in his sixteenth year when he entered the public service as a clerk in the Record-office in the Tower of London; his admission to the office at so early an age being due to the influence of his uncle, Mr. Samuel Lyons, F.R.S., the eminent antiquary, who, in conjunction with his father, the Rev. Daniel Lysors, rector of Rodmarton, in Gloucestershire, produced the "Magna Britannia." But it was to the famous master of manuscripts, Mr. Henry Petrie, who succeeded Samuel Lyons as Keeper of the Tower Records, that Sir Thomas Hardy attributed his scholarly renown, and more particularly his eminence in archævistic research. Hardy's gratitude to his early teacher remained to the last one of his strongest sentiments. A wall of his bed-room was adorned with the good man's portrait; and only a few days since he rose painfully from his couch and crossed his chamber with feeble steps in order that he might take a nearer view of the likeness of the benefactor whom he never ceased to regard with an almost idolatrous affection. On Mr. Petrie's death his protégé was appointed by the Government to compile the "Monumenta Historica Britannica" and write the general introduction to the work, and ere he had completed his 30th year the worthy pupil of the celebrated master had completed his noble transcript of the Close Rolls A.D. 1204 to 1227. The masterly execution of this arduous work placed Hardy in the foremost rank of the scholars who were engaged in deciphering our ancient records, and from the date of its appearance to the other day, when his latest contribution to record literature was offered to the public, his industry in an equally useful and difficult department of literary toil never abated. It would be beside our purpose to direct attention to the distinguishing merits of each of his numerous reproductions of mediæval literature. Indeed, the bare mention of their titles would fill a column of this journal. It will be enough for us to glance at two or three of the more notable points of his official career, in which he had the good fortune to win the friendship of the two eminent lawyers who will be remembered for their services to historical science when their judicial decisions will be forgotten. Lord Langdale had so high an opinion of Hardy's parts and conspicuous fitness for the highest official employment that he deigned to make him the First Deputy Keeper of the Records under the Public Records Act. Indeed, the Master of the Rolls even went so far as to propose him the appointment, when the late Lord Ministerial general refused him to be obliged to liberate him from an obligation which he could not fulfil without serious inconvenience to himself. To such a representation Hardy, of course, could make only one reply, and it is course, could make only one reply, and it is equally a matter of course that the reply was made in the right manner. The cordiality with which Henry Bickersteth ever afterwards treated his future biographer showed that he highly appreciated the courtesy which caused Hardy to refrain from urging his claim to the post, and even to entreat that it should be given to a literary rival. But though he was quick to liberate his friend from a painful embarrassment, Hardy was less prompt in reconciling himself to the annoyance of having to serve the public under a chief who regarded him with no friendly feelings. So long as Sir Francis Palgrave lived Hardy's position at the Record-office was peculiarly trying to his proud and sensitive nature. And as Sir Francis survived Lord Langdale, Sir Thomas Hardy's official career might have afforded him further disappointment had Sir John (afterwards Lord) Romilly been deficient in justice and friendship to him. Fortunately Lord Langdale's successor was wanting in neither quality, the consequence being that Sir Thomas Hardy acquired the office which by his death falls to Sir George Jessell's patronage and other distinctions that would scarcely have been bestowed on him had he failed to become Lord Romilly's deputy-keeper. Of the efficiency with which Sir Thomas Hardy discharged the duties of this important office there is only one opinion in official circles. The same praise may also be given to his action as one of her Majesty's Commissioners on Historical Manuscripts. In estimating his singular devotion to public interests society should be aware that, though he might have retired many years since with an undiminished salary, he persisted in official labour from an opinion that the servants of the Crown should not avail themselves of the public liberality and rest on their pensions so long as they were capable of doing the State good service. By acting on this disinterested and chivalric conception of his official obligations Sir Thomas Hardy saved the country some £10,000 or £12,000. In other respects he was an example to men clothed with official authority. Abounding in benevolence, he was singularly fortunate in possessing an air and address that accorded with his disposition. A gentler and loftier nature than his was never given to any man. A fervid Tory, he lived in affectionate intimacy with his political adversaries. A passionate abhorrence of injustice in any form, particularly of religious persecution, caused him repeatedly to fly to the protection of men suffering for their honest maintenance of opinions which he regarded with disapproval. Towards the poor his munificence exceeded his slender resources. His stores of learning were at the service of any scholar who came to him for aid; and he always preferred the secret satisfaction of strengthening another man's reputation to the honour of being publicly acknowledged its founder or promoter. To some extent this unselfishness and carelessness for his own renown resulted from a generous confidence that his survivors would be jealous for his fame and thoughtful for those who were nearest to his heart. Certain it is that he honoured and believed in human nature; and we have no doubt that, having returned the compliment by believing in him during his life, a man's name will continue to honour him now that he is dead. Sir Thomas Hardy leaves two children—a married daughter, the daughter of his first marriage; and a young son, who, like her mother, Lady Duffus Hardy, is known for her literary achievements.

DEATH OF SIR THOMAS HARDY.—We regret to have to announce the death of Sir Thomas Duffus Hardy, which occurred at his residence, 129, Port-lawn-road, Maida-vale, on Saturday evening. Sir Thomas had for many years suffered from weakness and enlargement of the heart, and his last illness, which commenced about a fortnight ago, was due chiefly to the aggravation of the old maladies of that organ. The immediate cause of death was exhaustion. The son of Major T. B. P. Hardy, Royal Artillery, Sir Thomas was born at Port Royal, Jamaica, in 1804, and at the early age of 15 became a junior clerk in Her Majesty's Record Office. In the course of the next 35 years he edited many ancient MSS. and records, such as "Rotuli Literarum Clausurarum in Turri Londinensi asservati, from 1294 to 1327," "Rotuli Literarum Patentium in Turri, from 1291 to 1296," "Rotuli Normannie, from 1260 to 1269," "Rotuli de Oblatis et Fimibus et Modis tenendi Parliamentum." Another of the works of his early life was the general introduction to the "Monumenta Historia Britannica." The post of Deputy Keeper of the Public Records is in the gift of the Master of the Rolls, and in 1881, on the death of Sir Francis Palgrave, Mr. Hardy was appointed to it by Sir John Romilly. Eight years afterwards Mr. Hardy was knighted, and in 1870 was made a D.C.L. of Oxford. His later works were a biography of Lord Langdale; a "Descriptive Catalogue of Materials relating to the history of Great Britain and Ireland to the end of the reign of Henry VII.," "the Athanasian Creed in connexion with the Utrecht Psalter (a report to the Master of the Rolls on a manuscript in the University of Utrecht)," "A further report on the Utrecht Psalter (in answer to the eight reports made to the Trustees of the British Museum)," and "Registrum Palatinum Dunelmense; the Register of Richard de Keilawe, Lord Palatine and Bishop of Durham, 1311 to 1316."

FUNERAL OF THE LATE SIR T. DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L.—The funeral of the late Sir Thomas Duffus Hardy, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Records, and one of Her Majesty's Commissioners on Ancient Manuscripts took place yesterday at Paddington Cemetery, Willesden-lane, Kilburn. It was very numerously attended, and amongst those present were—Lord E. Fitzmaurice, M.P., General Lowe, C.B., Sir W. Mackay, Bart., Mr. Hapworth Dixon, Colonel Hayward, Dr. Westland Marston, Mr. Joseph Knight, Mr. Henry Dunphy, Mr. John Corry Jessel, Mr. Gough, Mr. Parnell, and many private friends, including several ladies. On the coffin some beautiful floral wreaths were deposited, and many loving hands strewed flowers upon the grave. The chief mourners were the brother, two nephews, and the grand-daughter of the deceased gentleman. The grave is on the right of the principal avenue of the cemetery, and close to the tomb (surmounted by a marble cross) of Sarah D'Israeli, the only sister of the Earl of Beaconsfield, and daughter of Isaac D'Israeli, the author of "The Curiosities of Literature." She died on the 19th of December, 1853, in her 61st year. The Master of the Rolls assembled the staff of the Record-office on Thursday and addressed them in feeling terms upon the loss which the department had sustained by the death of his erudite and valued friend, the late deputy-keeper. His lordship said that he had no power to order the office to be closed on the day of the funeral, but he expressed a hope that every gentleman who could be spared would assist in paying the last tribute of respect to one whom they all revered and honoured as a friend. He also directed that the department should use mourning stationery for a period of six weeks, a compliment which has not, we believe, been paid to the memory of any public official since the death of the Prince Consort.

THE LATE SIR THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY.—The remains of Sir Thomas Duffus Hardy were interred yesterday morning, at 11 o'clock, at Willesden-lane Cemetery. In compliance with the wish of the deceased gentleman, the ceremony was strictly private. Nearly 100 gentlemen assembled at the chapel, and accompanied the procession to the grave. Amongst those who were present in addition to the brother and nephews of Sir Thomas were Mr. Hapworth Dixon, Mr. Corry Jessel, Dr. Westland Marston, Dr. Hardwicke, Major-General Lowe, Mr. Justin McCarthy, the Rev. Dr. Brewer, Mr. Cavendish Bence, M.P., Mr. Jasper Moore, Mr. Gerald Dixon, Mr. Henry Dumyke, Major Haywood, Mr. J. S. Knowles, Mr. Joachim Miller, Mr. Batten, Q.C., Mr. T. Parnell, and Mr. Joseph Knight. Sir George Jessel, the Master of the Rolls, was unable to make arrangements that would permit the entire staff of the Record Office to attend the ceremony, but many of these gentlemen found means to be present. By order of the Master of the Rolls, the office has been put into mourning.

Messrs. Sampson Low & Co. London, by Edmondo de A. London. The book, written in a somewhat hysterical Italian is that of a newspaper rather than of a cultivated writer. Poorly done.

We have received a little Arriero, published by Baudry Paris. Anglomanie dans le France. Anglais utiles en France. The calculated to be more useful in England, and it is the converse of "French Gibberish," published some time ago, which was more useful here. The author's present pamphlet is crumbly and often incorrect in French. The chief drawback is that its author is "rather too much" in the distinctions which he draws, and he often runs into error, as for instance when he asserts that the French "sécurités" are "presumably" more useful than the English "securities," the fact being that the words are equally useful, and only rarely not so. Our translators of "the Times" by "les Français" may be correct, but in which case our compatriots to follow him.

The course of the convulsions which that power slowly sank into feeble mining operations during the curious apparent cheapness of the comparative disappearance of silver and every other commodity at the time of the discovery of the gold mines, the gradual cessation of the sources, the marvellous increase derived from Australia and California, and these events and their consequences, which industry and commerce have rendered possible. Nor has Prof. Walker done less than to show that he has rendered the chapters on the paper money of France, England under the reign of George III., and other countries.
