Geography of Antarctica

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

The geography of Antarctica is dominated by its south polar location and, thus, by ice. The Antarctic continent, located in the Earth's southern hemisphere, is centered asymmetrically around the South Pole and largely south of the Antarctic Circle. It is washed by the Southern (or Antarctic) Ocean or, depending on definition, the southern Pacific, Atlantic, and Indian Oceans. It has an area of more than 14 million km².

Some 98% of Antarctica is covered by the Antarctic ice sheet, the world's largest ice sheet and also its largest reservoir of fresh water. Averaging at least 1.6 km thick, the ice is so massive that it has depressed the continental bedrock in some areas more than 2.5 km below sea level; subglacial lakes of liquid water also occur (e.g., Lake Vostok). Ice shelves and rises populate the ice sheet on the periphery.

In September 2018, researchers at the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency released a high resolution terrain map (detail down to the size of a car, and less in some areas) of Antarctica, named the "Reference Elevation Model of Antarctica" (REMA).<sup>[1]</sup>

Youth activism

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Youth activism is the participation in community organizing for social change by persons between the ages of 15–24.<sup>[1]</sup> Youth activism has led to a shift in political participation and activism. A notable shift within youth activism is the rise of "Alter-Activism" resulting in an emphasis on lived experiences and connectivity amongst young activists.<sup>[2]</sup> The young activists have taken lead roles in public protest and advocacy around many issues like climate change, abortion rights and gun violence.<sup>[3]</sup> Different from past protest or advocacy, technology has become the backbone to many of these modern youth movements.<sup>[4]</sup> It has been shown in multiple studies that internet use along with seeking information online is shown to have positive impacts on political engagement.<sup>[5]</sup> Popular applications like Twitter, Instagram and YouTube have become the newest tools for young activist in the 21st century. Technology and the use of digital media has changed the way youth participate in activism globally, and youth are more active in media than older generations.<sup>[6]</sup>
