NEW-ORLEANS:
FRIDAY MORNING JULY 26, 1844.

The crooked policy of the locofoco party was never more clearly demonstrated than in the course pursued by the various sections of the party in regard to the Tariff. Here, and in the South generally, Mr. POLK's partizans are mostly advocates of absolute Free Trade, taking for their text, the letter of their candidate addressed to the people of Tennessee in May, 1843, in which he utterly repudiates and rejects the protective principle. In Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts and many portions of the west, locofocoism adopts as its creed Mr. POLK's recent artful epistle to Mr. KANE, in which he strives desperately to uphold the necessity of incidental protection. Here Mr. POLK is considered a genuine Free Trader, the very antipodes of Mr. CLAY, while the party breathe nothing but anathemas against the Tariff, and their presses put forth proxy homilies on its monstrosity and wickedness. There, the democracy claim to be Tariff men par excellence, maintain that they are the only real friends of protection; that Mr. POLK and Mr. CLAY stand upon equal ground in support of the Tariff, and that the assertion that the locofoco candidate is a champion of Free Trade, is a vile wing fabrication and slander.

Now, we ask the people, the moderate and reflecting portion of the community, to tell us what mean this double act of opinions, this manufacture of political cards to suit diverse latitudes, this Janus-faced, conflicting and bottomless policy? What can it mean, save that locofocoism has no fixed opinions, that its sole object is success—success by any means no matter how inconsistent and dishonorable soever. What can be expected from a party which mounts the lobby of protection in the North, and brandishes the sorry jade Free Trade in the South; which disparages here in favor of protection the peculiar speech of the National Legislature, there and behind his party every where, in every State, county and village of the land bandies together in defence of the same principles. With us the Tariff is no sectional question. The whigs of the extreme South, like their brethren in the North, believe that to vest in the powers of the Government to impose duties for revenue, and that in selecting the objects for these duties, it should discriminate so as to afford efficient protection to the growing industry of the country and guard it against the ruinous competition of the pauper labor of Europe. Those is the opinion of the whigs of Georgia, as much as of those of Pennsylvania. It is a cardinal article in the whig faith, an organic and fundamental principle, no more to be hemmed in by the lines of sectional division and more local interest, than the air we breathe, or the light we enjoy.

In consequence of this stability of principle on the part of the whigs and instability of sentiment or that of the locofocos is, that when the former are in power a fixed and permanent system of policy is pursued, under which the country slowly but surely progresses—a system by which the resources are developed, its industry called into healthful and general activity and employment. When the locofocos secure the helm of State, destructive policy is attempted, old and time honored institutions are overthrown, experiments, hair-brain and full of peril, are made, public confidence is destroyed, banks and subterranean alliances with municipal republic; free trade and protection & cancel each other, fleeting prosperity is followed by sudden and general depression; until the masses are roused to a sense of gulling deception and the party so doomed short lived themselves from the shackles of their unholy tyranny—an umbrella and faith are given to the winds. Thus was it in 1840, and so the others by the death of one and the treason and weakness of two, have about completed the term of their existence, and are about to consummate the destruction of themselves.

☞ A bale of new cotton from the plantation of A. Doherty, West Feliciana, was sold yesterday by J. B. Coyne & Co. at 11 1-2 cents per lb. The quality was fully fair.

Another bale from the plantation of Gen. M. Nutt, in Mississippi, has been sold at 11 cents per lb.

THAT MEETING.

The Philadelphia Mercury, a Tyler paper mourned that the meeting of locofocos who renominated Polk and Dallas, said to have been held at Washington, did not really take place. The Mercury adds that the account of the meeting was published on the evidence of the Editor's own sight and sound. We copied the story from the Mercury.

☞ Several planters living on the coast have called on us to request the captains of steamboats going up or coming down, not to approach too near the shore, as the water is so high and the Levee so soft, that the motion of the boats overdo the banks and breaks in the ground.

The Locofocos about Louisville have got so desperate that they maltreat and insult the whigs wherever they can find them alone. To throw stones at whig ladies, and break the windows of Clay Clubs and then run away, are common achievements of these valorous gentlemen.

MURDER.—Some years ago a man named Peters had an affray at Natchez with another named Baker, and was so badly wounded as to become a cripple for life. Peters cherished thoughts of revenge, and meeting Baker in Louisville a few days ago, shot him dead with a pistol, and gave himself up, saying he had lived for revenge and had no wish to live longer.

CHARLESTON CLAY CLUB.—We perceive by the published proceedings of this association that RANDELL HUNT, Esq., of N. O. was elected by acclamation an honorary member of the Club. The announcement of the gentleman's name, says the Courier, was received with great applause, evincing the pride and pleasure felt by the whigs of Charleston, in the distinction and honors won by her talented son.

CINCINNATI DISTRICT.—The whigs of Hamilton county, Ohio, had a tremendous gathering on the 13th, at Carthage. More than 5000 persons were present.—Gov. Corwin and Hon. W. W. Southgate addressed the immense assemblage with great eloquence and power. George N. Torrence, Esq., was nominated for Congress, and though the district is locofoco, the whigs have strong hopes of electing him.

BRAGG.—The N. Y. Evening Post publishes a list of 23 persons in R. Island, who are said to have abandoned whiggery; but forgets to add that the whole of them from Weeden down, have been Dorr leaders since 1841, and foremost in the attempts to disorganize Rhode Island. There is a whig majority of [illegible] in the State without them.

MADISON COUNTY, N. Y., which last year gave 1600 locofoco majority has recently been the theatre of a Whig Convention of eight thousand souls. The county papers say that "old Tips rising" in 1840, was small by beside it. Messrs. Seward, Collier, Dawson and Spencer addressed the people.

MR. McMAHON.

Some time ago the Courier mentioned the name of J. V. L. McMahon, of Baltimore, as a convert to locofocoism. We denied it, stating that Mr. McMahon had contradicted the rumor in the Baltimore Republican—the paper in which it originated. The Courier thereupon retracted. Now mark the sequel. The Courier now states that the Republican shows that Mr. McMahon never published a denial of the statement that he had abandoned CLAY. The Bee never asserted that Mr. McMahon had published such denial, and we challenge the Courier for the proof. We stated that he had deserted in the Republican, having become a convert to locofocoism, and this the Republican itself unwittingly published an extract from Mr. McMahon's letter, proving what we stated, that he was no convert to locofocoism. Let the Courier put on its spectacles, read he extract, and it will cease to accuse the Bee of want of accuracy or candor.

Whatever evidence of opinion may have since arisen between myself, and most of those with whom I stood on that occasion, they cannot make me forget that I did so together. If by what I have believed, whether correspondent or not with the opinions of others, I have forfeited the confidence of my fellow citizens, I am willing to forego the honors which they have conferred upon me. I have not changed my principles or my conduct, but I have changed my position. I have ceased to be a party leader, and have become a party follower. I have ceased to lead, and have begun to follow. I have ceased to be the head of a party, and have become a member of it. I have ceased to be the master of my own opinions, and have become the servant of those of others. I have ceased to be the judge of my own conduct, and have become the subject of the judgment of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own time, and have become the servant of the time of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own actions, and have become the servant of the actions of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own will, and have become the servant of the will of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own mind, and have become the servant of the mind of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own conscience, and have become the servant of the conscience of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own soul, and have become the servant of the soul of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own heart, and have become the servant of the heart of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own life, and have become the servant of the life of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own destiny, and have become the servant of the destiny of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own fate, and have become the servant of the fate of others.

☞ Several planters living on the coast have called on us to request the captains of steamboats going up or coming down, not to approach too near the shore, as the water is so high and the Levee so soft, that the motion of the boats overdo the banks and breaks in the ground.

THE LOCOFOCOS about Louisville have got so desperate that they maltreat and insult the whigs wherever they can find them alone. To throw stones at whig ladies, and break the windows of Clay Clubs and then run away, are common achievements of these valorous gentlemen.

MURDER.—Some years ago a man named Peters had an affray at Natchez with another named Baker, and was so badly wounded as to become a cripple for life. Peters cherished thoughts of revenge, and meeting Baker in Louisville a few days ago, shot him dead with a pistol, and gave himself up, saying he had lived for revenge and had no wish to live longer.

CHARLESTON CLAY CLUB.—We perceive by the published proceedings of this association that RANDELL HUNT, Esq., of N. O. was elected by acclamation an honorary member of the Club. The announcement of the gentleman's name, says the Courier, was received with great applause, evincing the pride and pleasure felt by the whigs of Charleston, in the distinction and honors won by her talented son.

CINCINNATI DISTRICT.—The whigs of Hamilton county, Ohio, had a tremendous gathering on the 13th, at Carthage. More than 5000 persons were present.—Gov. Corwin and Hon. W. W. Southgate addressed the immense assemblage with great eloquence and power. George N. Torrence, Esq., was nominated for Congress, and though the district is locofoco, the whigs have strong hopes of electing him.

BRAGG.—The N. Y. Evening Post publishes a list of 23 persons in R. Island, who are said to have abandoned whiggery; but forgets to add that the whole of them from Weeden down, have been Dorr leaders since 1841, and foremost in the attempts to disorganize Rhode Island. There is a whig majority of [illegible] in the State without them.

MADISON COUNTY, N. Y., which last year gave 1600 locofoco majority has recently been the theatre of a Whig Convention of eight thousand souls. The county papers say that "old Tips rising" in 1840, was small by beside it. Messrs. Seward, Collier, Dawson and Spencer addressed the people.

MR. McMAHON.

Some time ago the Courier mentioned the name of J. V. L. McMahon, of Baltimore, as a convert to locofocoism. We denied it, stating that Mr. McMahon had contradicted the rumor in the Baltimore Republican—the paper in which it originated. The Courier thereupon retracted. Now mark the sequel. The Courier now states that the Republican shows that Mr. McMahon never published a denial of the statement that he had abandoned CLAY. The Bee never asserted that Mr. McMahon had published such denial, and we challenge the Courier for the proof. We stated that he had deserted in the Republican, having become a convert to locofocoism, and this the Republican itself unwittingly published an extract from Mr. McMahon's letter, proving what we stated, that he was no convert to locofocoism. Let the Courier put on its spectacles, read the extract, and it will cease to accuse the Bee of want of accuracy or candor.

Whatever evidence of opinion may have since arisen between myself, and most of those with whom I stood on that occasion, they cannot make me forget that I did so together. If by what I have believed, whether correspondent or not with the opinions of others, I have forfeited the confidence of my fellow citizens, I am willing to forego the honors which they have conferred upon me. I have not changed my principles or my conduct, but I have changed my position. I have ceased to be a party leader, and have become a party follower. I have ceased to lead, and have begun to follow. I have ceased to be the head of a party, and have become a member of it. I have ceased to be the master of my own opinions, and have become the servant of those of others. I have ceased to be the judge of my own conduct, and have become the subject of the judgment of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own time, and have become the servant of the time of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own actions, and have become the servant of the actions of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own will, and have become the servant of the will of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own mind, and have become the servant of the mind of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own conscience, and have become the servant of the conscience of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own soul, and have become the servant of the soul of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own heart, and have become the servant of the heart of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own life, and have become the servant of the life of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own destiny, and have become the servant of the destiny of others. I have ceased to be the master of my own fate, and have become the servant of the fate of others.

CITY INTELLIGENCE

☞ Very little excitement was produced yesterday amongst those of our citizens having business to transact in the Customhouse, upon their presenting themselves at the door of the office, by being notified by one of the body guard of the new functionary, that it was the imperative orders of the Collector that no one should be permitted to enter the portals with their hats on—We observed several of our acquaintances who had refused to bow down to this Regal decree, leaving the office in disgust. Not having had the opportunity of meeting with any one who had prostrated as far as the presence of Royalty, we are unable to state what other ceremonies were indispensable to be gone through with.

We suppose it will now be the order of the day—with such high authority as a precedent—for all of our banking institutions, insurance companies and merchants, to station a sentry at their doors to carry out the latest imported fashion, to the very letter.

FOR ST. LOUIS.—The "Flag Boat" of the western waters, the beautiful and unrivalled steamer J. M. White, capt. Conrey, leaves to morrow afternoon for the "Mound City" precisely as the clock strikes 4.—To all those, who either for business or pleasure are in haste to "sniff the mountain breez;" we need only remind them, that the J. M. White has made the trip up from port to port, in three days and twenty three hours; the quickest trip, by several hours on record.

CRIMINAL COURT.—Caleb Powell charged with assault and battery was yesterday put upon trial and found guilty.

The Grand Jury returned true bills of indictment against a number of persons now before the court, under criminal charges.

The argument on the motion for a new trial in the case of D. J. Adams, convicted of manslaughter will be heard this morning.

☞ Etienne Fortier, f. m. c., charged with cruelly maltreating three of his slaves was yesterday brought before acting Recorder Caldwell. On motion of the counsel for the accused the examination of the case was postponed until this morning.

RECORDER GEROUX COURT.—Jean Segassier, charged with gaming—being off the ear of a gentleman, a few days since, was yesterday examined before him Hebert and ordered to find bail in the sum of $1,000, for his appearance before the Criminal Court, to answer to the charge.

Vivian Mantlet, arrested by Captain Youmans, as a fugitive from justice from the State of Alabama, gave bail for his appearance this morning, when the charge will be investigated.

Christine, a slave of Mrs. Casterline, arrested on a charge of stealing a quantity of silver plate, the property of Mr. Warren, was remanded for further examination.

D. Bergallo, arrested for abstracting money from the till of his employer, Mr. Nicholas Cusumano—examination postponed until this morning.

Wilson, slave of Coulon Jumonville, charged with stabbing with intent to kill Charles Cramer, f. m. c., at the corner of Dumaine and Burgundy streets, was remanded to prison until the nature of the wound inflicted, could be ascertained.

THE NEW COLLECTOR.—Mr. THOMAS BARRETT, yesterday signalized his entry upon the duties of his office, by the removal of about thirty employés of the Customhouse, many of them whigs and a majority old and faithful servants, who for years past have performed their duties, to the satisfaction of the public and the credit of those in office. Amongst the appointees we notice that two corps exist—Tylerite and Democratic—of course—how many for each we cannot say—the names and salaries, no less than five of three cents for each, the "impost," for the fleeting days of public functionaries; they are, C. W. Duffey, of the Age, L. A. Benedict, of the Courier, R. Rost, of the Southern Traveller, R. Avis, of the Republican and George W. Reeder, late of the Herald.

The following list comprises the officers who were sworn in on Monday. Later entered upon the discharge of their respective duties under the new administration—All those marked with an asterisk (*) are locofocos appointed. There are several others on the list which we are unable to designate.

1st Hucks, 1st Deputy Collector,
J W Breese, 21 do
Ellen (Colored), 1st Impost Clerk,
