Big Gasoline Explosion At Signal Hill

OIL DISTRICT IN PANIC AS FIRE RIVER THREATENS

Estimate $300,000 Damage As Flames Flare in Midst of Tanks

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—Starting with a roar that could be heard for miles, a 500-gallon gasoline tank of the Long Beach Refining Company blew up in the heart of the Signal Hill oil district early today causing a fire that started a conflagration which threatened destruction to the oil district and did damage estimated at $300,000.

The explosion took place shortly after midnight, and, though every available fire fighting resource was used, the flames were not extinguished until shortly before 8 a. m., after causing a period of excitement that at times plunged the fire fighters and adjoining property owners and residents into a wild panic.

The fire fighters were constantly endangered by a second explosion on account of the proximity of 800,000 gallons of high gravity gasoline on the property of the Southwest Gasoline Company.

River of Fire In addition to the virtual destruction of the plant of the Long Beach Refining Company the tool house of the Rodgers Edward Drill Company was damaged to the extent of $25,000 by the force of the explosion.

Some of the burning gasoline flowed down the hill on which the Long Beach Refining Company stood and for a time threatened the residential section at the base.

Six other tanks of gasoline were located within a close distance of the tank which exploded, but did not ignite.

EGYPTIAN PRINCE KILLED BY WIFE

Row in London Hotel Ends Fatally When Woman Shoots Nobleman

LONDON, July 10.—Prince Alykamel Fahmy Rey, Egyptian noble, was shot and killed early today in his luxurious suite in the Hotel Savoy. The prince was shot through the head.

Police arrested a beautiful French woman who is supposed to be the prince's wife. She was richly gowned and jeweled.

Man Who Saved Two Girls From Drowning To Receive $1 Per Day Rest Of Life

ONE dollar a day for the rest of his life is the financial remuneration to be received by George Jacques of 126 North Louise street, Glendale, for his heroism in saving Marguerite and Helen Jennings off Alamitos Bay, Sunday, July 1, 1923.

The Jennings family, who resided in Whitley Heights, Hollywood, left yesterday morning for Pittsburgh with the body of their son, Wilbur, aged 25, who was drowned when the rudder in the speed boat Marguerite snapped and threw Jacques and the girls overboard.

The Jennings family, who resided in Whitley Heights, Hollywood, left yesterday morning for Pittsburgh with the body of their son, Wilbur, aged 25, who was drowned when the rudder in the speed boat Marguerite snapped and threw Jacques and the girls overboard.

Mrs. Kellogg, an aunt of the deceased youth, also left for home in Seattle, Wash., according to Mr. Jacques who until last evening refused to divulge the address of the family.

As an interior decorator Mr. Jacques was employed to work in the home occupied by W. Lucas Jennings, wealthy steel magnate, Wilbur, the son desired some polychrome work done and enlisted the assistance of Mr. Jacques who spent several evenings at their home doing the extra work.

This acquaintanceship led to his being an invited guest on the speed boat trip, he states. Efforts are being made by Mr. Jacques to have the Carnegie medal for bravery awarded Mr. Jacques who has rescued five persons from drowning, besides having been returned from the "dead" by the use of adrenalin.

His unusual story was published exclusively by The Glendale Evening News on July 3, followed by the only personal interview with the "living dead" in the newspaper annals of Southern California. Later the account of this unusual occurrence gained nationwide attention.

SOUL SEARCHER SURE TO EXTRACT TRUTH, IS CLAIM

Criminology Professor at Summer School of State University, Finds Way to Break Down Concealment, Report

BERKELEY, July 10.—The scientific cops have a new device for extracting truth from persons in whom this virtue is alleged not to exist. It is the "soul searcher" and is the product of the brain of Dr. Albert Schneider, professor of criminology at the summer session of the University of California.

By capillary attraction it draws the truth from the finger tips of the unwilling and does it without their knowledge. The new machine is said to have the "lie detector" and "truth compelling serum" backed off the map.

Just by suggestion The new soul searcher is an adaptation of the D'Arsonval meter method, to which Dr. Schneider has attached a tube containing mercury. The fluctuations of this mercury as induced by electric current are measured.

JUNEAU GREET'S HARDING

PRESIDENT IN CONFERENCE ON POLICY

Executive Hears Committee On Alaskan Problems; Governor's Guest

By GEO. R. HOLMES For International News Service

ADDERSON WITH PRESIDENT HARDING IN ALASKA, July 10.—Via Naval Radio.—President Harding reached Juneau today, receiving a tumultuous welcome from the population.

The transport passed through Taku inlet, those on board viewing the glorious Taku glacier during the early morning and making Juneau by mid-forenoon. Scores of boats in the harbor loosed their sirens to toot a hearty welcome.

The official reception committee was headed by Mayor Goldstein. After landing, President Harding and his party were escorted by Legionnaires and regulars from Chilkoot barracks to the governor's mansion. Children dressed in white and stationed at street intersections sang their welcome and threw flowers at President and Mrs. Harding.

Guest of Governor President Harding will remain at Juneau as the guest of Governor Bone overnight, leaving early Wednesday morning for Seward, where Saturday he will start a week's trip over the government railroad to Fairbanks and Valdez.

This afternoon the president was scheduled to view the Mendenhall glacier, after which he was to go to city hall, where the president and his cabinet are due to confer with a committee of citizens over pending Alaskan matters.

General Reception Masons, Elks, Pioneers and other fraternal workers were to participate in another welcome, presenting gifts, and at 4 p. m. the president was to visit the Alaska-Juneau mine and at 7 p. m. he is to dine at the governor's mansion. From 9 to 11 p. m. the (Continued on page 8)

SEEKING MAN WITH 'STRONG HANDS' FOR MURDER OF YOUTH

Jealousy Over Girl May Have Been Motive Back of Mysterious Killing

JOLIET, Ill., July 10.—Search for a man whose hands were strong enough to twist strands of quarter-inch wire about the body of Frank Muren was well under way here today by Sheriff Walker, following the discovery of the young man's corpse in a hay-stack on the farm of Stephen Lukas, near the village of Rockdale.

Combined with this search was a quest for a suit of clothes which had belonged to the youth, and a thorough investigation into the love affairs of Margaret Hagerman.

Jealousy over attentions to Miss Hagerman, the 18-year-old belle of the village, is believed by the sheriff to have supplied the motive for the crime. Working on this theory, two men already are in jail, but no charges have been placed against them.

They are Carl Bisland, 30, a farmer, and his nephew, Charles Wright, 19. They visited the Hagermans about an hour before the body was found, and the sheriff, said, have not satisfactorily explained their movements.

When last seen alive, young Muren had just left the home of Miss Hagerman. Persons claim to have seen him as he walked through the village toward his home. He was obliged to pass the farm, which is in an isolated spot, to reach his own residence.

STREET WIDENING AND LIGHTS, PLAN

Property Owners on West Broadway Meet to Start On Improvements

Participating in the prevalent progress in Glendale, property owners on West Broadway met last night at the O. M. Newby real estate office at 107 South Central avenue and organized the West Broadway Improvement association for the serious purpose of considering the widening and lighting of West Broadway from Central avenue to San Fernando road.

O. M. Newby, who was chosen as chairman of the new organization, presided over the meeting, and Mrs. Stella M. Sherman served as secretary.

The discussion was a live one, and was engaged in by Mattison B. Jones, A. H. Lapham, E. F. Sanders, J. H. Sherman and others.

The several score of property owners present stood unanimously in favor of improving West Broadway from Central avenue to San Fernando road. A committee was appointed to investigate the lighting of the street. O. M. Newby, Mattison B. Jones, A. H. Lapham and J. H. Sherman compose that committee.

In the discussion of the widening, while all were in favor of it, those owning property between Pacific avenue and San Fernando road, who had borne expense of a year ago for street improvement and curbing did not feel equal to bearing another expense for widening. However, they joined heartily in a plan of asking the City Council to establish a setback line of ten feet, which would prevent business buildings from being any nearer than ten feet to the present sidewalk.

The general sentiment of property owners is to be ascertained by petition, and it may be possible that the street will be widened from Central to Pacific avenues.

The lighting committee is to thoroughly investigate types of lighting standards and costs and report at the next meeting, to be called by Chairman Newby.

Pays Fine Of 1 Cent For Calling Man 'Billy Goat'

CHICAGO, July 10.—Attorneys for Wilbur Glenn Voliva, Zion City overseer, today deposited with the clerk of the criminal court a package, which when unwrapped disclosed a bright penny. The penny was the fine assessed against Voliva when he was found guilty of criminally libelling Rev. Thomas Nelson of Zion City by calling his a "billy goat," a "tom cat" and other things.

DR. ARTHUR DUNCAN DIES IN SUDDEN HEART ATTACK

Pioneer Physician Here Passes Away at the Home Of Relatives; Funeral Services Await Arrival Of Daughters

A HEART attack at some time during the night caused the death last night, Monday, July 9, 1923, of Dr. Arthur McDowell Duncan, and his lifeless body was found by relatives this morning in his bed at the home of his nieces, Misses Ida and Harriet Myers at 1203 South Central avenue. Dr. Duncan's home was at 1607 South San Fernando road, but during the last few weeks he had been sleeping at the Myers home to rest from professional calls at night on the telephone.

During the past months he had suffered heart attacks, but reports are that he was in his customary good health upon retiring last night.

Dr. Duncan was born January 18, 1850, in Ohio, and came to California twenty years ago, a widower, with three daughters. He and his daughter lived for nine years in Los Angeles, and eleven years ago came to Glendale and built the family home on South San Fernando road.

Dr. Duncan was a graduate of Rush Medical school. Surviving him are his three daughters, Miss Carol Duncan of Glendale; Mrs. Lois Cate of Glendale, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hillman of Tulare; a brother, H. W. Duncan and family of 316 West Lomita avenue; and two nieces, Misses Ida and Harriet Myers.

NATIONS WILL BE INVITED TO FIX ON GERMANY'S PAYMENT

Not Yet Decided Whether United States Will Be Represented

By DAVID M. CHURCH LONDON, July 10.—It was semi-officially stated this afternoon that Premier Stanley Baldwin's announcement of the British Ruhr and reparations policy in the House of Commons on Thursday would embrace acceptance of Secretary Hughes' plan of settlement.

Secretary Hughes' plan for settlement of the reparations problem, announced in his New Haven speech, contemplates an international committee to assess Germany's capacity to pay and to fix terms of payment so agreed upon.

Great Britain, in accepting this plan, will invite all interested nations to participate in the conference.

While there was no definite statement on the subject, it is assumed the United States will also be invited to have a representative at the conference.

There is no certainty felt, however, that the United States will be willing to participate even though the plan was suggested by Secretary Hughes.

Plan Plea to France LONDON, July 10.—Premier Stanley Baldwin's expected statement on reparations Thursday will make a final appeal to France. It was learned today that the British plan will be incorporated in a note to be sent to all the allied nations, it is understood.

While not the slightest official hint as to the nature of the plans has been allowed to leak out, there is a general feeling that it contemplates an international conference to study Germany's condition to pay and to formulate new terms of payment.

Cabinet Meeting The cabinet met again today and is scheduled to meet tomorrow when it is expected the British action will be completed.

Meantime the labor-members of the House of Commons, headed by Ramsay MacDonald, have opened a pacifist campaign and are attempting to get pledges from the government that no step be taken that may lead to war, even if the final break with France must come.

SCHOOL BOARD TO PURCHASE SITE

Location in Northwest to Be Secured for Sum of $34,184

Negotiations regarding the purchase of a school site for $34,184 in the northwest section of Glendale, as authorized in the recent $500,000 bond issue, have been completed and will be officially concluded tonight by the Board of Education.

The reason for the delay in this purchase, according to Superintendent Richardson D. White, has been due to the necessity of purchasing property from two different owners in order to get a site which would not be irregular in shape. Most of the property is a part of the Pellancioni estate and cost $31,434 although a corner of it was bought from Edwards and Wilder, for $2,750 and was formerly a part of the Hahn ranch.

Consists of Ten Acres The site selection consists of almost exactly ten acres. Its north side has a frontage of 531 feet on Glenwood road. The length of its southern boundary is 406 feet. The length of its western boundary is 796 feet. Its east side is bounded by Concord street which is to be cut through, taking twenty feet off the property.

Kenilworth road and Stocker street come to an apex at Concord street about the middle of the east side of the property. The amount being spent is $4,184 more than the $30,000 estimated in the budget. After the transaction has been approved, according to school law, by the county superintendent of schools, the deal will be placed in escrow.

VISITING IN PARIS Word received from Mrs. J. B. McNary today reports a most enjoyable visit in Paris, France, while on a world tour. She resides at 206 West Elk avenue.

Blame Bank Failure On Dempsey-Gibbons Contest

GREAT FALLS, Mont., July 10.—The financial failure of the Dempsey-Gibbons world's championship fight at Shelby, Mont., on the fourth of July, was said to be the direct cause of the closing yesterday of the Stanton Bank & Trust Company of this city, although efforts to connect up the two failures were fruitless.

George H. Stanton, president of the institution, was said to have advanced $50,000 on June 16 to make up the second $100,000 payment due Dempsey on his bout with Gibbons, putting up the money at the instance of Mayor James Johnson, of Shelby, who gave personal property as security.

The Stanton bank, with $500,000 capital and deposits of $600,000, opened its doors voluntarily last week, but closed its doors yesterday, but closed its doors voluntarily at 11 o'clock. It was said the bank was unable to take up its morning's clearings.

FIND 'OTHER WOMAN'

FULLERTON, Cal., July 10.—The identity of the "other woman" in the triangle which resulted in the murder of Charles L. Thompson, local contractor, by his wife at their home here last Friday and the suicide Sunday of Mrs. Ida Thompson, was established today when Helen Galvin, pretty Los Angeles girl, admitted to authorities that she had written the note to Thompson over which he and his wife struggled.

KIRKWOOD SETS NEW RECORD FOR COURSE

INWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, FAR ROCKAWAY, N. Y., July 10.—Joe Kirkwood, New York, formerly of Australia, held a new course record for Inwood today when he made his morning round in the national open golf championship in 70, leading the field. Jim Barnes, two years ago, played a 68 on the old Inwood course, which was 600 yards shorter than the present playing field. Kirkwood made 6632 yards in his 70 score play today. Par for the course is 72. Jess Sweetzer, national amateur champion, seemed certain of qualifying, returning a total of 78 for the morning round. After his disappointing 42 for the first nine, he came in with a splendid 36 for a total of 78. He played each of the last nine holes in four.

Mrs. J. L. Bolen and son Jack of 317 North Orange street, and Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Walker and daughters, Evelyn and Doris, of 423 Pioneer drive, arrived home last night from a motor trip to Lake Arrowhead, where they spent the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Browning of Miami, Oklahoma, who are enjoying an extended visit in California, are spending several days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Freed of 123 West Park avenue. Mr. Browning and Mr. Freed were schoolmates in Kansas a number of years ago.

Mrs. William Campbell and baby daughter, Frances, arrived recently from their home in Tucson, Ariz., and are guests of her mother, Mrs. A. B. Grossetta of 307 1/2 South Central avenue. Mrs. Campbell will summer on the coast, dividing her time between Glendale and the beach resorts.

Prof. Alfred Cookman, instructor of biology in the Los Angeles Polytechnic High school, who is the son of Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Cookman, 638 North Louise street, is engaged in teaching English composition and rhetoric at the Polytechnic Vocational school during the regular summer session.

Home From North
Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Ferguson and daughter Eleanor arrived at their home 525 North Jackson street last night from a three weeks' visit in the north. Mrs. Ferguson and little daughter visited Santa Barbara, while Mr. Ferguson attended the educational convention in San Francisco. He joined them about a week ago and for the trip home.

The Ferguson's are looking forward to entertaining Mr. Ferguson's brother H. J. Ferguson and wife of Tama, Iowa, who are to arrive in Glendale the latter part of this week. Mr. Ferguson is an attorney in the Iowa city.

Give Card Party
Miss Ethel D. Land, of 605 North Maryland avenue, was informed by a hundred party. Arrangements of blue and pink hydrangea blossoms decorated the Land home for the affair.

At the end of the card game prizes were awarded to Mrs. E. I. Stauffacher and Mrs. Hazel Williams.

Guests were Mesdames Ethel Carpenter, Helen Hatten, Hazel Williams, E. I. Stauffacher and Misses Alice McCoy, Leota Snider and Muriel Wilson.

Quiet Wedding
The home of Harry W. Chase, just out of the peace, at 1470 East Wilson avenue, was the scene last night, Monday, July 9, 1923, of the marriage of Miss Lo Rean, Schneider to Alvin W. Haslav. The only witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. William Schneider, parents of the bride.

Both of the young people were former residents of Utah, and the Schneiders came recently to reside near Verdugo Woodlands.

BIRTHS
A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Corrigan of 344 North Maryland avenue yesterday afternoon, Monday, July 9, 1923, at the Glendale Research Hospital.

Meet Tomorrow
The local organization of War Mothers of America will hold its first meeting of the summer tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, in the Odd Fellows hall, Broadway and Orange. All members are urged to be present, as reports will be made by delegates to the recent convention at Santa Cruz.

PROMPT PAYMENT ON FIRE LOSSES
H. L. Miller Company Is Continuing Record of Quick Settlements

The value of fire protection to the home owner has recently been demonstrated in a fire loss by J. E. Shane at his new home under construction at 1352 East Harvard street, and the prompt payment of fire insurance through the H. L. Miller Company at 109 South Brand boulevard.

On June 22 Mr. Shane's new home was damaged by fire to the extent of $1685. The owner held insurance in one of the reliable insurance companies represented by the H. L. Miller Company. At once the necessary proofs and papers were filled out and a draft for the insurance turned over to Mr. Shane.

This is just one of the convincing evidences of the benefit of insurance. Those contemplating the securing of fire insurance will do well, it is pointed out, to consider placing the business with a representative who has a record of prompt settlement of losses.

Deny Bonds Issue To Meet Fight Loss
GREAT FALLS, Mont., July 10.—A report from Shelby on Saturday published extensively in newspapers throughout the east to the effect that Shelby was attempting to float a $200,000 bond issue to care for a deficit resulting from the recent Fourth of July championship bout between Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons, was branded here as being absolutely untrue, by Mayor James Johnson.

Mayor Johnson said that a probable foundation for the rumor lies in the fact that last April a contract was let to a Great Falls contractor to build sidewalks and lay sewage and water pipes at an approximate cost of $175,000 and bonds were issued in payment for this work. Long before the fight was ever thought of, according to Mr. Johnson, these bonds were sold by the contractor to finance the work and has no bearing on the recent celebration whatsoever.

Boy Is Treated for Laceration of Leg

BRITISH SAVANT REPORT CARLOAD OF IMMIGRANTS

Measles and Scarlet Fever May Be Stamped Out by New Discovery

By CHARLES A. SMITH
For International News Service
LONDON, July 10.—Discovery of two new germs which are possibly the cause of measles and scarlet fever is reported by Dr. D. Thompson, eminent British scientist and research specialist.

Dr. Thompson, in the report of his discovery, admits, however, that though he is practically certain that he has found the germs that scientists have been searching for for years, further tests will be necessary before it is proved that the germs are allied to measles and scarlet fever.

"I found one of these germs in the throats of measles patients," said Dr. Thompson in an interview, "and the other in throats of scarlet fever patients. I have furthermore, examined the throats of patients not suffering from either of these diseases in order to ascertain if these germs were present in the throats of individuals."

"The germs were somewhat similar in color, but there was a difference. They are very minute diplococci of the gram-negative variety, measuring about one-third of the diameter of the usual diplococci found in the throat. They are exceedingly difficult to cultivate artificially and will only grow in a special culture media."

Not Known Before
"Whether these germs are the actual cause of measles and scarlet fever or not, of one thing I am quite certain—namely, that they have not previously been isolated, and, furthermore, I have little doubt that they will eventually prove to be the origin or predisposing causes of certain throat troubles, or they may prove to be the very important catch-producing germs."

"But before all this conjecture can be definitely established it will be necessary to carry out inoculation experiments with animals and watch closely the effects of inoculation with pure cultures of these germs. Then the world will know for sure whether these prevalent diseases have been conquered for all time."

Jews Reported Slain In Clash With Turks
ATHENS, July 10.—Several Jews have been killed in eastern Thrace, in clashes with Turks, it was reported here today. The disorders are thought to have arisen over Turkish regulations against certain foreigners entering and leaving the country. Some Jews have demanded authority to leave the country.

will be necessary to carry out inoculation experiments with animals and watch closely the effects of inoculation with pure cultures of these germs. Then the world will know for sure whether these prevalent diseases have been conquered for all time."

THE THEATRES

Something of an idea of the bigness and general scope of Douglas Fairbanks' latest photoplay, "Robin Hood," now showing at the Glendale Theatre, may be had from the summary of facts given below:
Twenty-two experts were required for the research necessary to produce the accurate designing of the colossal sets; libraries were ransacked for facts relative to the historical truth of the romance of Robin Hood and his Merry Men in Sherwood Forest; hundreds of workmen labored three months to build the sets; one million feet, or approximately thirty-five carloads, of lumber were used in their construction; a whole carload of nails was consumed in building the castle set, which is 310 feet in height and covers two and one-half acres, 178,000 square feet of wall-board, plasterboard and button-lath were used; the royal banquet room is the largest room in the world, being even larger than the main concourse of the Pennsylvania terminal, New York; 20,000 yards of heavy velvet and rich cloth material were used in making the 2500 costumes worn by principals, players and extras; more than 1000 wigs, made of human hair, were worn by members of the cast; and an army of 10,000 men adds the final touch of immensity to this stupendous photoplay.

Robb Lightning Rods Of Platinum Points

PARIS, July 10.—Louis Albert Corbet is under arrest here charged with one of the most curious series of thefts ever recorded in French court history. Corbet admits having stolen the platinum points from the lightning rods of the Notre Dame Cathedral and the Tower Saint Jacques.

"Platinum points from lightning rods on such an edifice as Notre Dame are worth almost 15,000 francs," Corbet explained to the judge who questioned him after his arrest. "I planned to develop such thefts into a profitable line of business."

Corbet admitted that at the time of his arrest he was planning to steal the tips from the lightning rods on Eiffel Tower.

TUJUNGA FIRE THREATENS BUSINESS BLOCK

Heroic Work of Fire Fighters Saves Adjacent Stores And Residences

Early Sunday morning a fire broke out in the Tujunga restaurant at Marshall street and Michigan avenue and completely destroyed the building and contents, and for a time threatened to lay waste the entire block of business houses and residences. The blaze was discovered shortly after midnight and only the most strenuous efforts on the part of the volunteers who answered the alarm saved adjacent property. Men in automobiles rushed about town, giving the alarm, and a call was sent in for help from the Glendale fire department.

The fire menaced several residences and business houses. On one side is a grocery and delicatessen, and a small grocery and fruit and soft drink place is on the other. A few doors west is the Tujunga garage, electric shop and a gasoline service station, with dwellings close to each at the rear. If the fire had gained any of these buildings it would have been next to impossible to subdue it with the fire-fighting equipment available.

The loss is estimated at between $2000 and $3000. The same building was damaged to the extent of about $400 by a mysterious fire on the morning of Saturday, March 24, which was discovered at 9:30. At that time E. B. Duncan, one of the proprietors, stated that the fire started between the ceiling and the roof and burned down the shaft of a cooling apartment. It was his opinion that the fire started from defective wiring, as the restaurant uses an electric range for cooking, and there was no fire in the building.

Increase Is Shown

Building in Tujunga continues on a gratifying scale, according to figures of the James Canyon Water company on the installation of water meters.

Last year at this time the rate of installations averaged about one meter per day. The figures for the last three months show that thirty-seven were installed in April, forty and forty-one in June. This averages about three meters for every two working days. This would tend to indicate that property is not purchased with the intention of speculation or investment alone, but that Tujunga is still the community of homes that was the dream of the colonists who founded it. The total number of active meters number 1343 of a total installed of 1450.

The Tujunga Woman's Club has set a conspicuous example in property "cleaning up" that should be a strong reminder to other property owners that "clean up week" is not far off and that several dangerous fires resulted last week from the ignition of brush on vacant lots. The club has cleared their lot on San Ysidro street north of El Centro of brush and debris and can sit back with a clear conscience during clean up week, which starts July 22 and includes July 29.

Teachers Study

Miss Stella Wieman, school nurse, and Mrs. E. A. Miller, who taught in the Tujunga school last year, and who goes to Sunland next term, are taking a summer course at the University of California, Southern branch.

In addition to her duties at Tujunga, Miss Wieman expects to be school nurse at La Crescenta and La Canada the coming year. She is a graduate nurse and served in the army in France during the war. The summer includes economics.

Her sister, Miss Lois Wieman, has been enjoying a motor trip to San Diego in the family car in company with Mr. and Mrs. Elton Wieman of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Wallace M. Morgan and daughter, Miss Frances Morgan and daughter, Miss Frances Morgan spent several days at Laguna Beach.

Mrs. W. W. Peterson of San Pedro has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Wilson.

Dr. E. T. Theobald, president of the Tujunga Valley Realty Board is still confined to the house with the broken ankle he sustained several weeks ago.

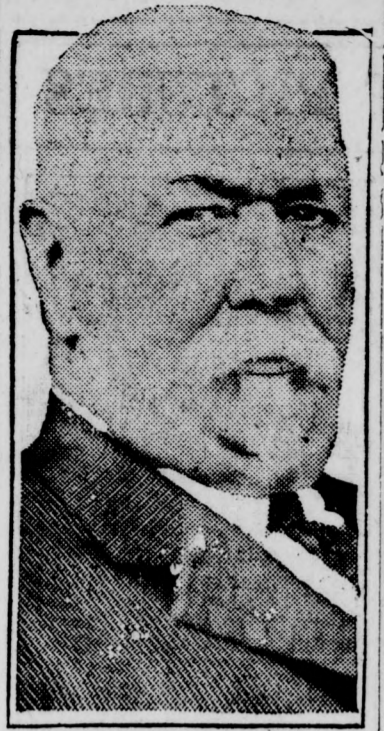

Dr. W. T. Uhl has purchased the Effenger property at 421 North Sunset Boulevard and is making improvements.

Leases Fountain

The sod fountain and refreshment rights at the Garden of the Moon have been leased to A. C. Stover of the Tujunga Drug Company by the new owner, W. W. Wilcox. Mr. Stover has taken charge of the fountain and expects a prosperous season.

The new directories of Tujunga showing street numbers and occupations of residents have been issued and may be obtained at the Tujunga Drug store, the post office or Brunner's jewelry store on Sunset Boulevard in the Bank building.

Maj. General Bell Leaves U. S. Army

Maj. Gen. George A. Bell After forty-six years as a soldier, Maj. Gen. George A. Bell has retired from the U. S. Army to accept the presidency of the Hill State Bank of Chicago. Bell commanded the Thirty-third Division in the World War.

ALARM SYSTEM BIG NEED HERE

Efficient Fire Call Would Further Protect City, It Is Pointed Out

Los Angeles is spending a half-million dollars for additional fire-fighting equipment, it is currently reported. The city of Sacramento recently voted bonds for additional apparatus and the latest fire alarm system. This after both cities had suffered serious losses. Flames in the last few days have done irreparable damage to a number of communities, and are sufficient to call attention of Glendale people to the limitations placed upon the department here. First, this is a city of 40,000 population without a fire alarm! And, secondly, it has territory five minutes' distance from the nearest fire house.

Chief A. H. Lankford has submitted plans to the City Council for a fire-alarm system which would furnish 150 boxes and a circuit at the cost of $70,000. This figure was staggering, no doubt, but no more than other communities pay for such protection.

Amount Not Enough

The council has authorized the expenditure of $1000 for a new fire house, to be located in Verdugo canyon, but that small amount of money will hardly build a modest structure, much less buy a lot. Perhaps it will be necessary for an appeal to property owners for a donation of a site. This was done with good effect in the case of the Grand View station. The Glendale Evening News printing the appeal, which was immediately answered.

Several offers of sites are now being considered, but Chief Lankford is looking for something centrally located near the Glendale-Verdugo park. A station in that vicinity would cut the longest run to three minutes, he believes.

The necessity for the fire-alarm system becomes more apparent, but it will probably take a big conflagration, followed by a bond issue, to prove that the present mode of reporting fires is insufficient.

LINEN STORE IS BARGAIN CENTER

July Values Lure Shoppers As Prices Are Slashed To Move Stocks

As announced to Glendaleans the Irish Linen store at 117 North Brand boulevard is proving a shop of greater values during these July days.

At the North Brand store Glendale shoppers are finding extensive savings, specially in new linens as well as bargains in mid-season stocks at clearance prices. Among the showings are many new linens, pattern cloths, napkins and sets all purchased through the combined earnest cooperation of the store's buying connection. This enables the store to present linens and other desirable merchandise at most attractive prices.

MIDGET AIRPLANE DRIVEN BY HAND

War Aviator Predicts New Ship Will Be Common As Bicycle Soon

By HARRY R. FLORY For International News Service PARIS, July 10.—Hand propelled airplanes shaped like birds and only slightly larger than a man will be as common, as serviceable and as cheap as bicycles within a few years, in the opinion of J. C. Roch, a French war aviator who is now testing out such an invention.

Roch believes the trend of airplane style is away from the enormous planes with heavy motors, to lighter and smaller types. He points out that planes with seven and ten horse power motors already have proven successful. Utilizing the gliding principle and the principle of the flapping wings of a bird, Roch has fashioned a plane which will be hand propelled—what he believes will be the airplane of the future.

Roch's present model has the appearance of a big hat with outspread wings made of aluminum and a framework of light wood.

Pilot Horizontal

The pilot is strapped in a horizontal position under the wings, corresponding to the body of the bat. The wings, which are hinged and flap in a birdlike fashion, are operated by the arms. The feet control the rudder which regulates the elevation of flight while a similar steering apparatus attached to the head of the pilot regulates direction of flight.

"I have tried as far as possible to imitate the flight of birds," Roch explained. "Hitherto man really never has flown because he hasn't been able to perfect the flapping wings. I believe I have solved that difficulty."

In order to avoid unnecessary danger in testing out the bicycle plane Roch has fixed up a long track, from which the plane is suspended. Trial flights under this arrangement have proven successful, Roch says, and after he has made a few more corrections of balance and control in the plane Roch plans to test it thoroughly in open flying.

Won't Be Tiresome

"To fly like that will not be any more fatiguing than to swim," Roch explained. "Remember, the wings will not have to be flapped continuously, but only enough to maintain altitude and combat adverse winds."

Roch's present model also is equipped with a three-horse power motor which operates a propeller. This he plans to use only for the take off and to obtain initial altitude. Eventually he hopes even to do away with this motor.

Roch constructed twenty models before he finally was successful. The last cost him less than $100. When perfected and made in large quantities the planes undoubtedly could be sold for less than half that amount.

A new variety of peach called the "Wilma," is claimed to be of better quality and to ripen a week later than the "Alberta."

Chile imported ninety motor cars from the United States, one from Belgium and one from Germany in January and February.

GOLFERS START ON SECOND DAY

Gene Sarazen Leads First Day's Quota; Favorites Are Making Good

By ROBERT E. HARLOW
For International News Service
INWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, FAR ROCKAWAY, N. Y., July 10.—With a stiff breeze blowing in from the ocean—a hazard which will require all the skill of perfect driving to overcome—ninety players were ready to tee off today in second day's play in the national open golf championship.

Only the first eighteen—together with the ties within this group—will qualify for the finals which start Friday.

There was little of the spectacular in the play so far. Favorites came through without exception.
Gene Sarazen, champion, led the first day's quota with a 73 morning and a 75 afternoon—not par golf. Abe Espinosa, San Francisco player, who finished second, came nearest upsetting the early predictions with his 151 for the two trips over the course.

Remain in Play

Others remaining in the play after the first qualifying round are: Emil Loeffler, Pittsburg; 152; Francis Gallert, Port Washington, 153; Jack Hutchison,
Chicago, 152; William Cressney, Kansas City, 154; William Mel-horn, St. Louis, 154; Leo Diegel, Washington, 155; Jack Burke
St. Paul, 156; Fred Baroni, Pittsburg, 156; Edward Williams, Peoria, Ill., 157; "Chick" Evans, Chicago, 158; Bob MacDonald, Chicago, 158; Ben Parola, Sannyfield, N. J., 159; Fred Canausa, West Point, 159; James Writ, Rockaway Hunts, N. Y., 160; C.
L. Booth, Putnam, Conn., 160;
and Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. J., 160.

Evans is the only amateur in the group.

Play opened at 8 o'clock this morning. The last players were to take off at 3:40 this afternoon.

Leading pairs scheduled to start today. Jess S. Sweetzer of Ardley and Joe Kirkwood, New York. Francis Ouimet, of Brookline, Mass., and John L. Black of Wichita, Kan.; Emmett E.
French, Youngstown, Ohio, and Rudolph E. Knepper, Sioux City, Iowa.

SEAT SALES FOR BOUT ARE HEAVY

Spanish-Americans Form a Big Percentage of Buyers of Fight Tickets

NEW YORK, July 10.—Seventy-five thousand persons may witness the Jess Willard-Luis Firpo fight in Jersey City Thursday night, it was indicated by advance sales of tickets today. The box office where seats are being disposed of are swamped. "Never saw such a demand for seats," said Tex Rickard, promoter.

Fully 25 per cent of those after pasteboards, Rickard said, are South Americans or of Spanish descent. The affair is taking on an "international aspect," Rickard said he would not be surprised if he outdraws the Dempsey-Carpentier fight which was attended by 75,382 fans.

Willard and Firpo, wound up active training today. Both fighters asserted they are in the best of condition. Willard is said to weigh about 239 pounds, nine less than the day he knocked out Floyd Johnson. Firpo tipped the beam at 212, but is expected to enter the ring at 215 pounds.

TAGGING ALL BASES

McGraw changed his batting order for the first time in over a year, 16 hits resulted, and the Giants won from Cincinnati 13 to 6.

Dazzy Vance dazzled the Cardinals and the Cubs' evened the four game series with a sixth inning rally 5 to 3.

The lowly Phillies, led by Bohan, trampled the Pirates 4 to 2.

The Braves couldn't get to Osborne and the Cubs' fifteen hits brought home the bacon 4 to 1,
the third straight.

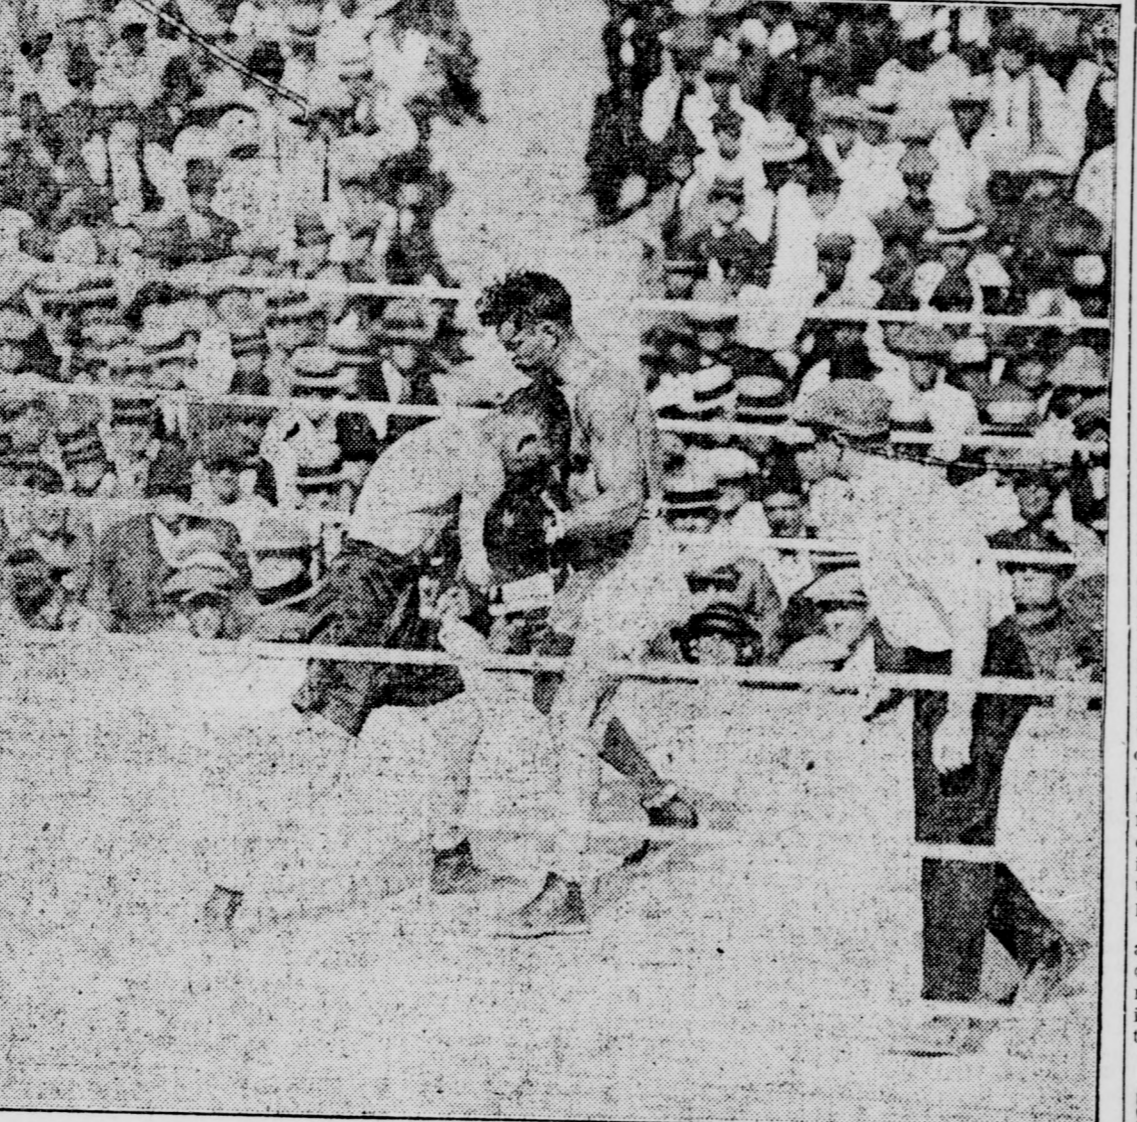

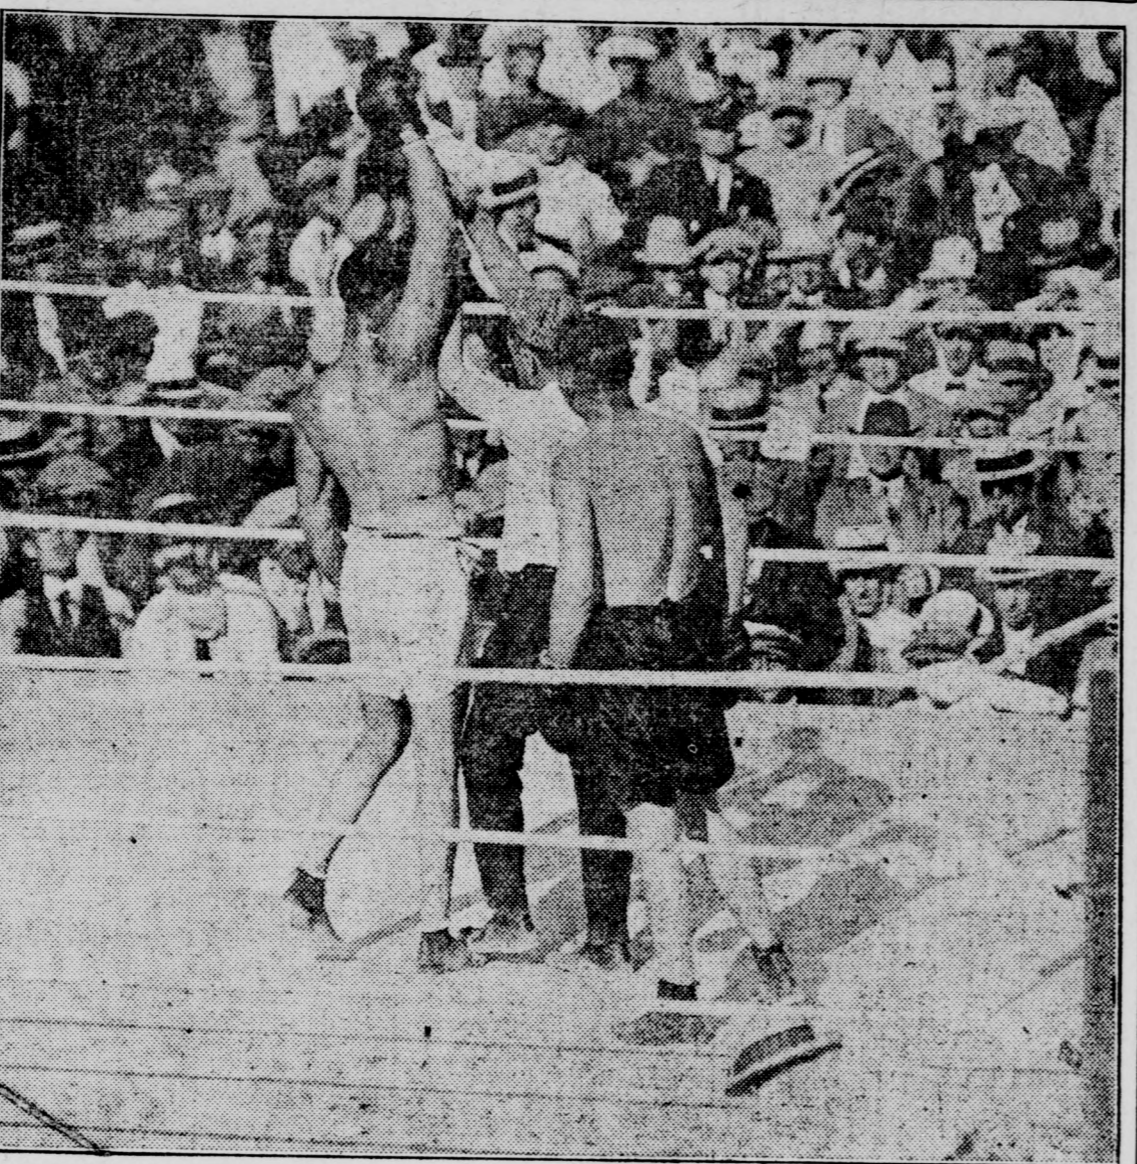

The crippled Yanks trimmed St.
Louis 9 to 3, Babe Ruth knocking out his 19th homer.

Sewell fluked one and thereby hangs the tale of Sherrod Smith's first defeat of the year. Red Sox 4, Indians 1.

Trolley Dodgers Win Game From Cardinals

BROOKLYN, July 10.—Vance of the Dodgers and Sherdell and North of the Cardinals engaged in a pitchers' duel here yesterday, and Vance had the best of the argument, the Dodgers winning 5 to 3. Vance allowed eight hits.
The Dodgers connected for ten safeties, one of which was a homer smashed out by Fournier in the second inning, his eleventh of the year.

Red Slabmen's Slant Hammered by Giants

NEW YORK, July 10.—The Giants walloped the efforts of three of the Red's slabmen to all corners of the field here yesterday and won 13 to 6. Two of the Giants' hurlers were driven to the showers. The Giants connected safely sixteen times. Frisch pounded out eleven hits. Frisch and Kelly of the Giants smashed homers.

The WORLD OVER

By FRANKLIN B. MORSE
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

When such palpably unequal matches are made in the heavyweight division as that between Carpentier and Dempsey and still draws a big crowd it seems obvious that the big men are the ones that the public likes to see perform and a mediocre match between heavies will draw a far greater crowd than a first class bout between the smaller fellows.

The big fellows always hit the popular fancy for the reason that here one sees physical development at its greatest height. Great strength always makes a cogent appeal for it is symbolic of power and invincibility. On the other hand, there are some who prefer the lightweight division because they are more likely to see the finished product in boxing along with fast action. To these the grinding, bruising nature of a struggle between two strong men has something of horror.

The question then naturally arises, why is it that for some weight division has not been more popular. Here is a combination of strength and speed which lies between the heavyweights and the lightweights. Why should not this mean satisfy everybody?
Probably this can be answered by the statement that, for some reason, the middleweight division, except at rare and infrequent intervals, has lacked first class performers. There are many men today who will tell you that there has not been a first class middle

SPORTS CHATTER

By BILL UNMACK
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

While there has been a lot said in the last few months about a match between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills the negro heavyweight, the fact remains, if one thinks back a bit, that it is more than three years ago since a match between these two boxers was suggested.

Wills seems simply to be out of luck. It was Bert Williams the great negro comedian, who stated that his whole life was a disappointment, notwithstanding the fact that he was a popular favorite and was making big money.
The fact that he was a negro precluded him, in this country, of doing the serious work that was his ambition.

Equally Wills' color seems to be the real stumblingblock in his luck. The sporting public has not forgotten the antics and the actions of the once heavyweight champion Jack Johnson, the negro.
When he was cutting up his didoes the public took a silent oath that no other negro would have the opportunity to flaunt himself if it possibly could be helped, and thus far the public has kept its pact with itself.

So great was the feeling against Johnson that he was in danger several times of being manhandled. At the same time it is a bit unfair to Wills to apply the Johnsonian standards to him.

They are of a very different type of personality. Johnson was vaunting, vain, self-satisfied, a seeker after notoriety and absolutely defiant of all the conventions.

Wills is not a self-seeker. He is quiet and unobtrusive, and "knows his place," something that was entirely foreign to Johnson, who, had he been invited to Buckingham palace, would have thought it no less than was coming to him as the champion heavyweight boxer of the world.

However, it is not likely that even the decent personality of Wills will be able to overcome the prejudices against his race that was engendered by Johnson, and it would seem that Wills will have to be reckoned as one of the hard-luck fraternity who never had a chance at the highest honors of the boxing game to which his capabilities certainly entitled him.

With Firpo in the offing there is still less likelihood that Wills will have a look-in, and as long as there is any excuse for bringing out a white contestant, the negro will be relegated to the background. The chances are that nothing short of an absolute death of a white man capable of putting up his hands would give Wills the chance he has been craving throughout his entire ring career as a fighter.

SPORTS NEWS SHORTS

There is nothing in the world more difficult to detach than a nickname or a first impression.

When Ivan Olson of Brooklyn, once an erratic infielder, but now a conscientious and reasonably steady player, first brought the wrath of the bleachers on him he little realized the tenacious curse of the fumble.

From the orthodox sobriquet
"Ivy" the rabid rooster soon conceived the humiliating "Ivory" and "Ivan the Terrible." They hurt him at him today, although Olson is playing good ball. It is an injustice, of course, but the roots of the nickname grow deeper with the years.

Take the case of the Pittsburg Nationals. Do you know why they are called the "Pirates" today?

In 1891 "war" was declared between the then existing American association and the National league. The cause of the conflict was the signing of one Louis Bierbauer by the Pittsburgs.
Bierbauer had "umped" the Athletics for Brooklyn in the National league. When peace was made all the American association "jumpers" were ordered back to their respective clubs.
Although the Athletics had disbanded, the association rightfully laid claim to Bierbauer as one of their own, although the association had unwittingly neglected to reserve him.

When Pittsburg went after the player the association raised a howl. The matter was submitted to a board of arbitration. This board upheld the action of Pittsburg. The association withdrew from the national agreement and the strife was on.

The American association then conferred the current nickname on the Pittsburg club. It termed this club's signing of Bierbauer as "piratical." Since that day—thirty-three years ago—Pittsburg has never been able to shake the sinister appellation "Pirates."

Lightweight Champion Benny
Leonard will defend his title

THE FANNING HIVE

By NORMAN E. BROWN
THE TEA BUSINESS

It is running smooth again
And as a result we have rumors of another forthcoming challenge from Sir Thomas Lipton for another race for the America Cup, which has lured Mr. Lipton on for twenty-four years.

The rumors come as a result of Sir Thomas's action in notifying his American representative, W.
U. Taylor, to reconduct the twenty-three-meter Shamrock, now in Robert Jacob's shipyard, New York. It was this boat which was used as trial horse for the Shamrock IV, which Lipton used in his last effort to return the cup to England.

After the series of 1920, which the American sloop Resolute won, Sir Thomas said he would challenge for another series in 1922.
Conditions prevented this, however. This adds strength to the belief that he will soon file a challenge for a race next year. The challenge must be filed ten months before the time of the race.

The American boat Columbia defeated Shamrock I in Sir Thomas's first quest of the cup in 1899. Two years later the Columbia defeated the challenging boat in three straight races. In 1903
Sir Thomas pitted Shamrock III against the Reliance and the Reliance successfully defended the cup.

Sir Thomas had built Shamrock IV to seek the cup in 1914 when the war interrupted plans for the races. This meeting was staged three years ago and the Resolute defeated the British craft after Sir Thomas's boat had taken two races. The Resolute took the next three.

"My kingdom for a southpaw."
Is the continuous cry of the big league manager. And every time the cry is heard forty ivory hunters wear their green glasses and redouble their efforts to locate another specimen of the rare species.

One of these rare birds has just been signed for a tryout with the Cleveland Indians. He is Robert Knode, first basing star of the University of Michigan team early this season.

Knode got a tryout in the Blue Ridge league last season and hit over 300 while fielding well.

When the university folk got hell with this little trout this spring they suggested another first baseman be chosen for the college nine.

Knode bats as well as throws left handed. He is twenty-two years of age and hails from Baltimore.

From hockey to baseball.
But Cecil Dye, shining in the outfield for the Buffalo International leaguers this season, made the leap in a hurry.

Dye had earned the rep of being one of the greatest ice stars in Canada when he got the bug to be a baseball player. He got his diamond start with Toronto in 1920.
He soon found the road wasn't a rosy one, however, for the Int league farmed him to the Mint league.

Last year he returned to the International with Buffalo. In 134 games he hit .311 and in 146 hits he collected thirty-eight more extra base wallops. That he has the same speed in baseball he showed on the ice in indicated by the fact that he stole eighteen bases.

Dye is only twenty-two. While he specialized in hockey he starred in tennis, soccer and lacrosse also before taking to baseball.

Man Boasts, Woman Shoots

CHICAGO, July 10.—Is a husband signing his legal death warrant when he comes home to his wife and boasts of his infidelity? That question will be decided in court here when Mrs. Theresa Contursi goes on trial for the slaying of her husband, Dominic.

MAN BOASTS, WOMAN SHOTS CASTLE DIVORCE SUIT UNCERTAIN

Stories Make Her Frantic, Woman's Defense Fair Dancer May or May Not Sever Marital Links With Ithacan

Mrs. Theresa Contursi

NEW YORK, July 10.—The bluebird has flown from the marital cage of Irene Castle Treman and Capt. Robert E. Treman. And the ogre of divorce now threatens to take its place in the Treman family.

Reports from Paris have it that the fair Irene, Broadway's most dashing figure, originator of innumerable dance steps and, incidentally, the bobbed hair fad, has started divorce proceedings in the French capital.

She has been appearing there recently in a dancing act. With the late Vernon Castle, her marital first choice, Irene jumped into fame almost overnight and they were credited with introducing scores of ballroom steps in Europe and America.

For a time Irene was in the movies—on location at Ithaca, N. Y. Then came reports that she and Castle were estranged. Castle joined the British flying corps and died in the service.

Soon came her marriage to Captain Treman, the exact date which is more or less clouded. One report has it that the wedding took place three months after Castle's death. Another that it occurred fifteen months later.

Now comes the report that Mrs. Treman has not found complete happiness in her several years as the wife of the Ithacan.

Objections to the continuation of her stage career on the part of her husband's parents is said to have been one of the causes of the rift in their affairs.

Dudley Field Malone, Mrs. Treman's attorney, and the Treman's in Ithaca refuse to comment on the report.

Mrs. Treman herself was "out" when newspapermen called at her Paris apartment.

And then came cables from Paris that the couple had made up—there would be no divorce. Later these reports were denied and the statement was made that the divorce proceedings would be pressed—and there you are!

FISHY FEATURES FOUND IN FOLKS

Scientist's Theory Jolt for Bryan; Says Man Comes From Animals

By ROLAND KREBS For International News Service CHICAGO, July 9.—It probably will not make William Jennings Bryan feel one bit better to know that Dr. Leslie B. Arey, nationally known student of microscopic anatomy, has made discoveries here which make it look mighty much to him as if Darwin were right.

Dr. Arey professes to see in human organs at various stages of their development a similarity to those of fish so marked that he told International News Service: "If the evolutionary principle is accepted at all there can be no other conception but that man is derived from lower animals."

If the doctor continues his studies doubtless in time it will be not uncommon for blue-blooded persons who heretofore have traced their ancestry back to the first earl of Kindling, Plumduff, Sussex, England, to go back farther and claim kinship with mackerel, herring and haddock that once frisked on the banks of Newfoundland. Dr. Arey even finds things that tie us up definitely with pollywogs and such.

"Comparative anatomy," he said, "shows that such parts as the fin of a fish, the wing of a bird, the leg of a domestic mammal and the arm of a man are all modifications of a primitive appendage which is anatomically comparable.

Legacy From Past "There is a group of 100 and more rudimentary organs in the human body, such as the muscles of our ears and our appendix, which eloquently testify to a miscellaneous legacy from the past."

At different stages in the development of the embryonic, unborn baby, Dr. Arey has found gill slits such as fish have, and a prominent tail, such as is affixed to a pollywog before it becomes a frog.

The child's heart in embryonic growth, he said, at one time is fish-like. Then it resembles a frog's and later a reptile's. Three types of kidneys he noted. First were the fish type, then the frog kind and finally the permanent sort, such as is found in higher animals.

These temporary structures, Dr. Arey pointed out, in time vanish and leave behind no indication of their presence.

Doubtless alluding to Mr. Bryan, the embryologist concluded: "Thus it would appear to the scientific student of evolution that the so-called argument used by the famous Americans whose definition to fundamentals, as they term them, have brought forward the single catch phrase that man is descended from a monkey and used to hang by his tail, is wholly unfair. Neither Darwin nor any other supporter of evolution ever said this, and it is purely an invention, I take it, for the purpose of exciting prejudice."

Indiana Expert Heads Education

Frank L. Crone

Frank L. Crone, Indiana University graduate and former director of education in the Philippine Islands, has been appointed director-general of education of the Republic of Peru. Crone was one of the first of the American teachers who went to the Philippines after the Spanish-American war. He was a member of an American educational commission in Peru in 1920.

FOOD IMPORTANT AID TO STUDENT

Regularity in Eating Helps Pupils in Class Work, Educator Claims

By JACK CEJNAR For International News Service CHICAGO, July 10.—Girls! Northwestern university girls' house director has just discovered the secret of winning Phi Beta Kappa keys!

It's not in the burning of midnight oil, not super-studiousness, asserts Miss Bernice Gordon, who is director of Willard hall at Northwestern, but a matter of eating breakfasts on schedule!

From a survey of 150 girls living at Willard hall, Miss Gordon has discovered that the Phi Beta Kappa girls, and the girls with high averages are those who never fail to eat breakfast on schedule. Those who are lax in table attendance invariably rank low in class work. Miss Gordon decries.

Wholesome food, therefore, and regularity in eating count more in the race for scholarship honors than the burning of midnight oil and super-devotion to studies, in the opinion of Miss Gordon.

Miss Gordon admits that much of her time is consumed in preparing charts of food values estimated in calories and vitamins. The average college girl needs approximately 2,500 calories per day, Miss Gordon asserts. Of course, she explains, some who are athletically inclined need more, and others can thrive on less.

Lots of Vegetables. Fresh vegetables have prominent place on the tables at Willard Hall. Head lettuce, with Thousand Island dressing, is the favorite salad with the girls. Their favorite dessert is steamed chocolate pudding, with hard sauce.

The girls, however, has no kick in it, but is made from a combination of butter, sugar and whipped cream. Baked ham—not necessarily Virginia ham—with raisin sauce, is the choice cut of meat, although Miss Gordon asserts that very few are able to recognize beef, pork or mutton by taste.

All pastries especially liked by the girls are prepared and baked by the Willard Hall chef.

Sixty Dozen Eggs The chef uses sixty dozen eggs a week in omelets and other dainties which bedeck the Willard Hall dining-room tables. More than a hundred pounds of butter are used weekly for table consumption, and much more is needed for cooking purposes.

The milkman leaves from 80 to 100 bottles of milk on the back porch of Willard Hall every morning. The milk used for cooking purposes is delivered in bulk.

Miss Gordon believes in the good effects of merriment at the dining table. To encourage this she changes the seating arrangements every four weeks. Thus each girl is required to make new acquaintances periodically and necessarily attempts to make herself agreeable to others.

What holds good for the girls can also be applied to the boys, in the opinion of Miss Gordon, and those youths looking forward to carving their names in the scholarship niches of the hall of fame should first of all observe regularity in eating and practice selection of simple, wholesome food.

Washington Elm Is Dying of Old Age

BOSTON, July 10.—The historic old Washington Elm, under which the commander-in-chief of the first armies of the United States took charge of the Continental troops, is dying of old age and is causing the city fathers of Cambridge much worry.

Despite the constant care which it has received during the last thirty years from Professor Chas. S. Sargeant, of the Arnold Arboretum, the world-famous elm is beginning to wither and die, Sargeant informed John F. Donnelly, superintendent of the Cambridge parks.

DIES FROM BURNS

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., July 10.—Patrick Hardigan, 50, conductor on a logging road, died early this morning from serious burns received when he fell into a hot spring on the outskirts of town.

Doctor Visits Camp On Catalina Island

Dr. "Jack" Anderson of 102 West California avenue spent the week-end at the Y. M. C. A. camp on Catalina Island. He reported this morning that the boys were having a fine time and all reluctant to break camp. He made a talk to them on the subject "What a Boy Ought to Know."

SCOUTS RESCUE

LONE FISHERMAN

Glendale Boys Discover Man Wandering Exhausted In Thick Woods

With the return of some fifty odd Glendale Boy Scouts and Scout Leaders to the city yesterday afternoon from the Scout camp near Lake Arrowhead comes a thrilling story of a man hunt and rescue of a lost sportsman.

It seems that two men went fishing on Deep Creek Sunday, B. M. Torrens and C. J. Bacon, of Redondo. Mr. Torrens tired of fishing and went back to the automobile and waited for Mr. Bacon, who did not show up at the appointed time. Mr. Torrens got worried and went back and looked for Mr. Bacon, but could not find him. At 10:30 p. m. Sunday night Mr. Torrens came to the Scouts' camp and told Mr. Wescott, who was in charge at the time, of the disappearance of his friend and asked if the Scouts would turn out and help search for him at day-break. Accordingly at 5:30 a. m. Monday the scouts turned out and were organized into search parties of five each. They carried sandwiches and took first aid kits and water. They feared that Mr. Bacon had slipped on the treacherous rocks and had been knocked unconscious. A set of signals was arranged with shrill whistles and in one minute after Mr. Bacon was found all of the search parties knew the good news. The hospitality of Camp Royl-Kent was extended to the men and they stayed for breakfast.

Wife Was Frantic

"The boys volunteered their services eagerly and acted like little thoroughbreds," declared Frank C. Ayars, chairman of the camping committee, when relating the experience. "The man was without a coat and had no matches. He had walked all night and was fagged out when found. His wife was frantic during the search and it was all we could do to quiet her," Mr. Ayars said.

According to reports from the scouts and their leaders the camp was the best they had ever attended. Everyone is seen, enjoyed themselves immensely and there was hardly a boy in the crowd that didn't wish he could stay another ten days.

The third ten day period of Camp Royl-Kent began today when scouts from the four Burbank troops arrive to take exclusive possession of it. They left Burbank by automobile early this morning and will arrive at camp about noon with a big dinner all in readiness for them. Ovie Ledbetter, J. N. Clark and Scout Executive Harold Benner accompanied them. Scouts in the party were: Walter Hutchinson, Troop No. 1; Vincent Weber, Frank Clark, and Kermit Ehrman, Troop No. 2; Harold Owen, Russell Reid, Walter Fischer, James Hare, Maurice French, Charles Walker, and John Conzoneri of Troop No. 3.

K. P. Protoges

Troop No. 1 is fostered by the local lodge of the Knights of Pythias. Attorney A. H. Davis of 610 East Broadway, chairman of the Boy Scout committee, brought the boys home. They left the camp about 10 a. m. in an auto truck.

"The camp is a great success," reported Mr. Davis this morning. "The boys were all pleased with the outing and very grateful to the people who furnished the funds to send them up there."

W. M. Parker Is Rushed to Redlands Hospital as Face Is Burned

A dispatch from Redlands reports that W. M. Parker of Glendale is in the Redlands hospital, terribly burned about the face and head as the result of the explosion of a camping stove. The accident happened in Mill Creek canyon and Parker was brought to Redlands by a motorist who passed his camp soon after the explosion.

It is stated that, while the burns are deep, he will recover. The flaming oil from the exploding distillate stove was thrown over his face and head as he bent over the stove. It was at first feared that he had inhaled the fire.

Mr. Parker's residence could not be located in Glendale, either by the city directory or telephone directory.

Lots of Fishing But Few Fish, Is Report

Mrs. George M. Lindsey of 234 North Harvey drive and two sons, Chandler and Robert, are spending six weeks at Lake Arrowhead. Architect Lindsey, who spends week-ends there reports that there is lots of fishing there—but few fish. He adds that most of the "minnows" are small and inoffensive.

Sea water and salt deposits contain iodine.

SEEK TO SUSPEND NEW MEX. JURIST

Chief Counsel for Editor in Contempt Suit Is Cited In Court

LAS VEGAS, N. M., July 10.—Early this morning officials of the San Miguel county court woke up Judge Richard H. Hanna, chief counsel for Carl C. Magee, Albuquerque editor, who goes on trial today for alleged contempt of court, and presented him with a second citation to show cause why he should not be suspended from practice.

He was ordered to make a return by 1:30 o'clock today submitting his answering brief and preparing himself for trial immediately. If the court finds him guilty of this citation, which accused him of being present at mass meetings and speaking in defense of Magee and in criticism of Judge Leahy's court, Magee will lose the backbone of his defense and be forced to go through his own trial without defense.

Fred Wilson, assistant counsel, said it was useless to go through with the trial without the assistance of Judge Hanna.

STICK TO FIRST DATE FOR PICNIC

Glendale Merchants' Assn. Lays Plans for Frolic on Wednesday Aug. 15

Discussion of a proposal that the date of the Glendale Merchants' Association picnic be changed from the original date, Wednesday, August 15, to Friday, August 3, at the regular weekly meeting of the association in the Citizens' building yesterday led to a decision of the members to adhere to the original date, as it was felt that, with the presence of the thousands of visitors to Glendale on the date of the president's visit, the opportunity to do business was one that should not be missed.

The members of the association are taking the keenest interest in the picnic and are planning to make it as important and successful an event as it was last year, and with the appointment of the various committees within the next few days, the actual work of preparing for the affair will be well under way.

R. W. Parker, 836 South Glendale avenue, and Dr. J. J. Otey, 702 East Broadway, were admitted to membership in the organization.

The regular routine business formed an important part of the meeting.

Steel Company Cuts Down Unfilled Orders

NEW YORK, July 10.—The United States Steel corporation today reported unfilled tonnage on its books as of June 30 last of 6,386,261 tons, compared with 6,981,351 on May 31 last, a decrease of 595,090 tons.

Harding and Obregon WASHINGTON, July 10.—Presidents Harding and Obregon will meet in the near future on the Mexican-American boundary line to pledge themselves to work for lasting friendship between the two nations.

The meeting will take place between Nogales, Sonora and Nogales, Arizona. The date has not been fixed, but probably will be a day soon after President Harding's arrival at Los Angeles on his return trip from Alaska and before his departure for Porto Rico via the Panama Canal.

Arrangements for the event are being made through Senator Ralph R. Cameron, the first Republican elected to the United States Senate from that State.

President Harding is thoroughly in sympathy with the project, it was stated at Senator Cameron's office today, and has given assurances to the latter that he will view with approval any measures taken to bring about the meeting.

MARKETS

New York, July 10.—The stock market closed heavy today. Trading conditions were little changed, dealings continuing on a small scale and at times were almost at a standstill. Price changes in the main, while lower, were not important.

Baldwin went down one point to 117 1/2 and Studebaker yielded a point to 101 1/2. The sugars displayed a little activity, Cuban Cane preferred and Punta Allegra each falling 2 points. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady.

Stock sales today totaled 366,600 shares; bonds $9,309,000.

Ceremonies in Los Angeles Lodges Conducted by Local Officers

Glendale Rebekahs have been busily engaged this past week participating in installation ceremonies at Los Angeles lodges. Last night they took part in the installation at East Gate lodge. Last night they conducted the installation at Fraternity lodge, and on Friday night they will preside at the installation at Edelweis lodge.

Mrs. Rozella Strother, district deputy president, and Mrs. Loretta Schwitter, district deputy grand marshal, head the Glendale installation corps, which is justly deserving of the many compliments received on their work.

BOUTS TO RAISE MONEY FOR BAND

Sale of Tickets for Elks Boxing Card Insure Show's Success

The success of Thursday night's boxing program to be given by the Elks' lodge is already assured from the advance sale of tickets, according to Harry McCartney, who is one of the promoters of the affair and a member of the Jinks committee that is staging these entertainments to raise funds to send the Elks' band to the annual convention to be held in Eureka in September and also to outfit the band with new instruments, music and other incidentals that are necessary.

The response of the lodge members has been enthusiastic, for those who witnessed the last boxing card that was presented by Harry McCartney and Ray L. Galvin a month ago remember that the bouts kept the fans on their toes all the time the scrappers were in the ring and the Thursday night card will, it is claimed, be an even better offering all the way through than the last.

While the entertainment is largely for the amusement of the Elks, a number of guests will be admitted with the lodge members, and the attendant smoker and feed that are to form part of the evening's entertainment will also draw a crowd of sports to the clubhouse on East Colorado on Thursday night.

McCartney, who has been keeping close tabs on the boxers since the plans were made, states that there will not be any substitutions and every bout will be pulled off as scheduled, with every round full of action and every boy in there doing his best to win. The class of the boxers who have been signed up for the occasion guarantees that the fans will get full value for their money in every bout, and the realization of this fact is keeping a steady stream of admissions pouring into the Elks' treasury in anticipation of the event.

German Envoy Victim Of Belgian Veterans

PARIS, July 10.—The German charge d'affaires at Brussels was attacked by two war veterans, according to a Brussels dispatch to the newspaper L'Intransigent, today.

The attack was for the purpose of administering a "lesson to the German official," the dispatch added, because he had defied Belgians who were staging a demonstration against Germans in the Ruhr.

In the Groden valley in the Dolomites, nearly every man, woman and child is a wood-carver.

SEES DECLINE IN DESIRE TO LEARN

More Muscles, Less Brains Modern Trend, Claims Scotch Professor

By LUTHER A. HUSTON For International News Service

LONDON, July 9.—The world's output of dumb-bells is increasing. Folks are getting more muscle and less brains all the time.

These are the lugubrious conclusions of Prof. John Burnett of St. Andrews, Scotland, one of the best known Caledonian educators. He expressed his views in a recent lecture here.

The world itself is growing wiser, Professor Burnett asserted from the standpoint that there is a greater accumulation of potential knowledge. In other words there are more things to be learned than there ever were, but the trouble is that there are fewer folks who care to learn them.

Professor Burnett asserted that the standard of human intelligence, individually speaking, has been on the downgrade for the last forty years. The capacity to learn has not declined, but the curiosity that sends men seeking after information has decreased.

"I have no doubt," said Professor Burnett, "that the young men of the present day are, on the whole, healthier in body and mind and more intelligent than those of the previous generation. On the other hand, I am certain that the young men of today are relatively more ignorant than those of forty years ago, and, what is worse, they have less curiosity and intellectual independence."

"This is true, at any rate, in Scotland. Every university professor knows that we have had to lower the standard of teaching and examination progressively for the last thirty years in every department except the physical and natural sciences."

The decline in pure intellectual culture, Professor Burnett believes, is due in part to the increasing emphasis placed upon physical development, such as competitive athletics. The intrusion into the college curriculum of courses in physical training has not, in Professor Burnett's opinion, raised the intellectual standards of the modern youth.

Denies Changes in Commission's Report

COLUMBUS, O., July 10.—Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty was brief today in commenting on the charge of George H. Cushing that the report of the United States coal commission had been doctored.

"As to my alleged action in connection with this report, I will say that I do not, know who George Cushing is," the attorney general said. "I have never discussed the report of the coal commission with anybody. I have never seen a copy of the report. In fact I do not know that a report in any form has been prepared and issued by the coal commission."

Says Germans Damaged Huge Liner Leviathan

LONDON, July 10.—While the Leviathan was probably the least damaged of any of the German ships taken over by the United States at the beginning of the world war, certain specific instances of sabotage did occur on the big steamship, it was declared here by Capt. E. P. Jessop, U. S. N., retired, who inspected the vessel in April, 1917.

Captain Jessop took issue with Representative Martin J. Madden of Illinois, who denied the charges that the German crew had sought to make it impossible for the Leviathan to be operated by Americans.

Dry Officers Insist Upon Investigation

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Prohibition Director Samuel Rutter was delving deeply today into the charges that C. H. Wheeler, head of the prohibition forces in Northern California, and A. R. Shortless, in charge of liquor seizures, were involved in the disappearance of several hundred cases of liquor seized some time ago in a raid at Monterey. At their own request, according to Rutter, the two accused officials have been suspended in order to permit Rutter to make a complete probe.

he does not feel ignorant. We do not speak of a dog as ignorant of Greek mathematics. Dogs know all they need to know and all they can know. In that sense man is more ignorant than any other animal, and it is just because he is so that he stands higher in the scale of being."

One interpretation of this doctrine might be that the more a man thinks he knows the less he actually does know, because he won't take the trouble to find out. Nevertheless, so long as he thinks he knows it all he gets along fairly well and is able to dominate his surroundings.

I believe in San Fernando Boulevard.

I have invested money in San Fernando Boulevard and have studied it. Take your map and study San Fernando Boulevard from Broadway to Los Feliz—Southern California's Greatest Highway—

SAN FERNANDO BLVD.

I believed when I told an investor to whom I sold a lot on San Fernando Boulevard between Magnolia and Palmer that this lot would double within a year. He purchased this for $2000.00. It sold last week—eight months later—for $5000.00.

The northeast corner of San Fernando and Windsor sold three years ago for $1400.00. It sold last week for $20000.00. The new owner's price is $30000.00. This had improvements put on it amounting to $7500.00 which are of no value to the lot and will have to be moved off.

The southeast corner of San Fernando Boulevard and Wilson Avenue sold in May, 1922, for $3750.00. In June, 1923, for $11880.00.

Now is the time to invest in Business and Industrial Frontage.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

Mrs. H. L. Finlay Falls Into Water at Catalina But Is Soon Rescued

The narrow escape from drowning of Mrs. H. L. Finlay of 500 Pioneer drive, Friday night, has just become known to her Glendale friends.

Accompanied by her son, Lee, Mrs. Finlay Thursday made the trip to Catalina island. Friday afternoon they went with other visitors to the Y. M. C. A. camp at White's landing. Here Mrs. Finlay's oldest son, "Bob," is enjoying his vacation at Camp Leon V. Shaw.

Darkness had fallen before the launch returned to the pier at Avalon. Mrs. Finlay stepped off the boat and then by mischance in the darkness stepped backward—and made a backward dive into the water.

Being unable to swim, she immediately sank to the bottom, thirty-five feet below. Fortunately, she arose again at once and was prevented from going down again by a man who had dived into the water to rescue her.

Meanwhile, she had dropped the handbag which she carried. This contained a diamond ring, some paper money and her return trip tickets.

Uninjured, but somewhat upset by her experience, Mrs. Finlay was taken to the tent which she had engaged for the week-end.

Recovers Property
H. L. Finlay, who is engaged in the real estate business at 131 South Brand boulevard, did not learn of his wife's experience until he arrived at Catalina Saturday afternoon upon the Avalon.

He hired a diver, who found the missing pocketbook upon the bottom of the bay not far from the pier.

Owing to the propensity of objects to drift in similar circumstances or to become embedded deeply in the sand, the recovery of this purse is regarded by harbor officials as most remarkable.

Starts Fire Without Permit; Fined $25

Harry W. Chase, justice of the peace for Burbank township, fined William Quehl yesterday $25 for starting a fire at Montrose without a license. Mr. Quehl owns property at Montrose and undertook to burn off the brush without a license.

FAIL TO PARLEY OVER DOG LAWS

City Councilman Unable to Be Present at Session Yesterday Afternoon

The Glendale Dog Protective Association was represented in the council chamber at the city hall between 2 and 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon by a committee consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Kulp of 1234 Viola street, William Rogan of 304 Lorraine street and Harry A. McPherson of 607 North Central avenue. It was prepared to discuss legislation affecting dumb animals.

The City Council, which was the party of the second part, failed to show up. Councilman C. E. Kimlin appeared and reported that it would be impossible for him to remain. Other members of the council could not be reached. After an interval of about an hour, City Manager W. H. Reeves informed those present that there would be no meeting.

Others Present
Col. J. D. Fraser, chief of police, Alex Mitchell of 1525 Ben Lomond drive and C. L. Brinkman of 1524 South San Fernando road were others present. Mr. Brinkman was accompanied by his son, Roy, who was bitten by a dog and obliged to take the pasteur treatment.

At a recent meeting of the City Council it was agreed between Mayor Spencer Robinson and Mr. Kulp that the meeting be held yesterday afternoon to discuss tentative ordinances prepared by the Glendale Dog Protective Association. The association is urging the council to form a humane society to handle the dog "situation," and it was proposed to discuss the legislation yesterday.

Widening of Burchett Street Will Be Topic

The proposed widening of Burchett street will be discussed tonight at the meeting of the West Glendale Improvement Association at the Columbus avenue school at 8 o'clock. Other subjects of civic importance will be considered. It is the regular monthly meeting of the association and R. Stret, president, is urging a large attendance.

An open forum is always held at the meeting for civic questions, and taxpayers are cordially invited to express their views. Announcement is made that the second yearly membership subscriptions are now due.

GIRLS TRAIN IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

Trio From High School Take Course of Work Under Librarian

Opportunity offered at the Glendale Public Library for library training work is being realized this summer by Misses Josephine Garland, Frances Goldsborough and Charlotte Cavell, Glendale high school girls.

They are taking regular library training work under the able guidance of Mrs. Alma J. Danford, librarian. The girls receive training in turn for their services, and they are anticipating continuing in library work in Glendale or some neighboring city.

The Glendale library provides an ideal place for training with its wide range of books and its librarian, Mrs. Danford, who is recognized as one of the best informed and most capable librarians in California.

Asks for More Cars To Transport Veterans

Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward, chairman of the Tuesday Afternoon Club women planning to entertain ex-service men Friday at the club house, announces that more automobiles are desired for transporting soldiers from the Sawtelle home to Glendale.

She states that the automobiles will meet at the clubhouse at North Central avenue and Lexington drive at 12 o'clock Friday and leave immediately for Sawtelle to bring a company of World War veterans to Glendale for the program. Other guests will be ex-service men living in Glendale. A program will be given and a nominal admission charge for all but ex-service men.

Glendaleans wishing to donate the use of their cars are asked to call Mrs. Barton at Glendale 2958.

Suit Filed to Test Richardson Budget

SACRAMENTO, July 10.—The first suit to test Governor Richardson's budget procedure has been filed by Will C. Wood, state superintendent of public instruction, and will be transmitted to the Supreme court in San Francisco for hearing. The date will probably be fixed at about July 9.

Questioning the governor's right to delete the teachers' college administration fund from the budget, the suit was filed by Devin & Devlin, local attorneys, with the clerk of the Supreme court here last night. At least four additional suits will be brought to determine the legality of the budget departures within the next three days, according to Controller Ray L. Riley.

Veteran Newspaper Man Visits Glendale

William W. Heacock, for twenty-three years an employe of The Brooklyn (N. Y.) Eagle composing room force, is a visitor at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Alice H. Seidel, of 1233 Viola street. He is known by many coast newspapermen as secretary of the Brooklyn Press club.

Mr. Heacock states the Brooklyn Eagle is the leading newspaper in Greater New York, carrying more advertising than any other of the metropolitan sheets excepting The World. He was glad to see that The Glendale Evening News has all of the improved machinery of a modern printing plant.

Over five and a half million electric horsepower will be available in the far west by 1930, it is estimated, at the present rate of growth.

STUDENTS LEAVE FOR EASTERN JOB

Will Enter General Electric Co. Plant for Course of Technical Work

Robert Rowley of 334 West Vine street and Robert Cockfield of Los Angeles left this morning on a roundabout automobile tour to Schenectady, New York, expecting to arrive at their destination within the next few weeks. Stopovers will be made at a number of the principal cities, some of them being San Francisco, Portland, Tacoma, Denver, Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Washington and New York.

Both of the young men are graduates of the University of Southern California, where they were selected from a large number of engineering students to take a fifteen months' course in practical electrical engineering at the plant of the General Electric Company, which is the largest in the world. They will report at Schenectady on August 14.

MONTROSE THEME OF POET'S VERSE

J. Melvin Hopkins Tells of Charms and Beauties of Mountain Town

J. Melvin Hopkins, local realty dealer, has composed the following poem setting forth some of the beauties and advantages of Montrose:

Should you like a home
Between the purple hue
Of the Sierra Andros
And the ocean blue

Where the prettiest sight
You have ever seen
Is the morning sun
On the Verdugo's green.

Where contentment reigns
In a valley fair,
Health and the breath of wild flowers Fills the air.

Where the children laugh
While at their play,
And the mocking birds sing
At the close of day.

Where sorrows wane,
Health and peace abide,
Where troubles and cares
Are cast aside.

Where the sun shines bright
The whole day through;
Where the shadowing oaks
Are beckoning you.

Then come to the valley
Of sweet repose,
And build you a home
IN FAIR MONTROSE.

Exchange Club Will Hear Famous Singer

Henry Cantor of 431 East Acaia street has promised to sing tomorrow noon in the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse at the weekly luncheon of the Glendale Exchange club. Mr. Cantor is a local artist whose tenor voice has been much complimented. He has done considerable professional and operatic work and is now planning a ten months' tour through the Orient. His departure will depend upon the apparent stability of China this fall.

He is booked for concerts in Hawaii, Japan, Australia and the Philippines, also.

Harry Neilson of 727 South Central avenue, Eagle Rock, will be the accompanist. He has an enviable reputation as a pianist. Plans will be discussed for the ovation to President Warren G. Harding who is an Exchangeite.

Northern Guests Impressed By Growth of City And Southland

Assemblyman Jake Croter of Oakland, one of the most popular members of the legislature, was a guest of the former's son, James, motored across the continent from Franklin, Pa. The trip consumed about two months. They were accompanied by Mrs. Stewart's mother, Mrs. J. R. Hannum.

All spoken words are thoughts expressed. While silent thoughts are words suppressed.

Goes to Oakland for Funeral of Mother

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. MacDonald, of 105 1/2 Mountain street, left yesterday for Oakland to attend the funeral services of the former's mother, Mrs. L. MacDonald, whose death was reported in the news dispatches concerning an automobile-train smash at Eugene, Ore. Mrs. MacDonald was riding in the ill-fated motor bus, which carried several people to their death. She was making a tour of the coast, which was to have included a visit to Glendale.

Suppose Your Neighbor's House Catches Fire—Just What Would You Do, Eh?

By GIL A. COWAN

FIRE! With this cry the fun begins, if one can call the catastrophe of flames destroying property any fun whatever. However, there is a humorous and human side of life to be found around the fire station where fires are a matter of daily occurrence. It is particularly so in Glendale where conflagrations usually are not overly serious, in that few fatalities occur.

Talk with the firemen some afternoon if you want to learn how people act under the stress of excitement attendant upon even a grass fire in the neighbor's vacant lot. Someone grabs a telephone and, forgetting that the fire department's number is Glendale 31, they cry "Fire" at the top of their voice. The operator makes the connection as quickly as possible and when they get firehouse No. 1 where a private exchange is maintained they again shout "Fire!"

"Where is it?" asks the fireman. "Next door," is the reply, or sometimes "Across the street" and one dear lady informed them it was "in the attic." All of which is very enlightening.

Finally the address is obtained, but few people remember whether they live east or west, north or south. Which makes things more interesting for the firefighters as they chase out their red wagons in the quest for flames to subdue.

One of the most interesting replies to the query as to where a certain fire was in the Grand View district was something like this: "Why, it's across the street and I get my mail at Box XX on R. F. D. XX, Burbank, the numbers being purposely omitted. Suffice to say, the firemen on duty at the Grand View station already had seen the blaze and were on their way to the scene."

One house was destroyed in eastern Glendale recently when the people who first saw the blaze, not being possessed of a telephone, started to the station in a Ford. By the time the trucks arrived on the scene the flimsy structure was a mass of flames.

Hears Someone Calling
Another humorous incident clearly indicates that Glendale has not grown entirely from the small town class, or at least some of its inhabitants still remember the day when Ed Fairfield was both marshal and fireman for the municipality of Tropico. Now he is the captain in charge of station No. 2 in the southern section of the city. It was a woman calling:

"Give me station No. 2," she said. Connected with the captain there, she continued, "Say, Ed Fairfield, our house is on fire. Come right over." And thereupon she hung up the receiver, expecting "Ed" to recognize her voice, which he didn't. By the time the place was discovered there was little need for the firemen.

"People usually give us their own address when reporting a fire in the vicinity," says Chief A. H. Lankford. "This sometimes means a minute delay in those connections when it would be simple for a person to tell us the approximate location of the fire."

"For instance, if they live at 1818 North Apple street and the fire is across the street they could say with assurance that it was 1819 North Apple. Or if it is a block away on North Berry way it would be possible for them to say in the 1800 block on North

Minor Injuries to Cars Are Only Results of Three Collisions Reported

Three collisions occurred yesterday afternoon according to the records of the Glendale police department.

A. Schwemer of 232 North Grand View avenue, Eagle Rock, was motoring west on Colorado street about 3 o'clock. Mrs. P. J. Ostrander of 1032 South Brand boulevard was driving north on Brand boulevard. "Her brakes did not hold," explained Mr. Schwemer. "She hit my car in the rear and tore my bumper off and bent my rear left fender badly."

Cars driven by Mrs. Elsie M. Smith of 2933 Revere street, Los Angeles, and E. E. Franklin of 734 West Doran street collided about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon near San Fernando road. They were going in opposite directions on Los Feliz road. The running board of Mrs. Smith's machine was damaged. Mr. Franklin's machine received a dent in its left front fender.

Dodged Speeding Car
Central and Wilson avenue was the scene of a collision about 4:45 yesterday afternoon between automobiles driven by H. H. Brookings of 468 Salem street and Mrs. F. H. Rittenhouse of 1245 South Mariposa street.

"I was crossing Wilson avenue going south on Central," remarked Mr. Brookings. "I observed a big touring car driven by Mexicans coming west on Wilson. They were coming at a high rate of speed. To avoid their hitting my car, I speeded a little and, at the same moment, Mrs. Rittenhouse came driving rapidly north on Wilson and my car hit her car."

Glendale and Pasadena Will Travel in Special to Eureka Convention

Negotiations are now under way between the Glendale and Pasadena Elks lodges to have a big Glendale-Pasadena special train to the state convention at Eureka, September 18 to 21. Tentative plans were discussed last night at the regular meeting of the Glendale lodge.

A special feature of the joint delegation will be the Glendale Elks' band and finances for their trip are being raised by a series of athletic benefits, the second of which is to be given Thursday night at the clubhouse on East Colorado street.

A special feature of the meeting last night was the reading by Secretary William M. Kimball of a telegram from Past Exalted Ruler Arthur H. Dibbern, who is attending the national convention at Atlanta, Ga. The telegram, dated Sunday night, was addressed to the lodge secretary, other officers and members, and read, "Arrived O. K.; wonderful trip; weather fine, plenty of rain; great reception everywhere; looks like Boston for 1924; regards to all the boys."

Kiefer & Eyerick Purchase Sedan and Hearse for Funeral Purposes

Kiefer & Eyerick of 305 East Broadway, funeral directors, have added two new automobiles to their equipment. One of them is a seven-passenger suburban $4,200 Cadillac sedan, purchased from the Court Motor Car Company, at 235 South Brand boulevard. The upholstery is mouse colored velour. The body is dark Brewster green while the fenders are of black.

The other car is a new seventy-two horse-power $4,720 Riddle hearse, with aluminum disc wheels. The body is of hardwood with steel gray exterior. The interior is finished in mahogany. The floor is especially arranged to accommodate caskets of various sizes. A flower rack extending the length of the interior is suspended from the ceiling. The engine is a Continental Red Seal motor.

Other automotive equipment consists of a first-call auto, a Hudson touring car and a Lorraine ambulance with special built limousine body.

Emil O. Kiefer and J. M. Eyerick have won many friends in this vicinity because of their attentive service to families in time of bereavement.

Lucinda and the Muse

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY Ad Schuster

It might have been the fault of Miss Pepper, teacher of English literature in the Minden high school, or it might have been an inheritance from Great-Grandmother Witterby. Lucinda Larkin did not question the source. Instead she gazed star-eyed at a world and wondered how long it would take to discover she was a poet.

Lucinda was eighteen. Until Miss Pepper had shown her the wonders that may be found in letters her dreams had been vague and futile. Now they were metrical and definite. She would be a great poet, and if she could not write poems she would live them.

"I sometimes think," Lucinda told herself after some hours vainly spent in trying to set in measure the host of fancies which just eluded her pen. "I sometimes think many poets are unable to write down the poems they feel."

The thought gave Lucinda comfort and satisfaction. When B. Watts Fluno came to Minden Lucinda was thrilled. B. Watts had white hands and wore his hair long. Moreover, he looked soulfully upon the impressed visage through a pair of enormous horn-rimmed spectacles.

"Don't tell me," said Lucinda when he was presented to her. "Don't tell me you are a poet. I know it!" And she fixed upon him an expression calculated to let him know she, also, was one of the elect.

B. Watts Fluno and Lucinda Larkin became warm friends. To this young man from the city the girl told of her dreams of writing great poems, dreams she had kept from the youth of Minden who would not understand.

"I feel in my heart," she said, "that some day I will write something that will attract a wide attention. Do you think if I keep my soul centered on the idea I will—I will succeed?"

B. Watts regarded her with sympathy. "Sure," he said. "Get the idea, that's the thing. Then, if you're lucky, you'll make a hit. Now me, I'm at work on the best I ever turned out."

"But Mr. Fluno, you have never shown me any of the poems you have written. Couldn't you do it, just for me?"

"I never show my stuff until I land it. There are some fellows who go about spouting everything they write, then when it turns out a flivver they wish they hadn't. That's not my style. I have sent off my masterpiece, sent it to the fellow I'm working for, and expect an answer any day now. Let me tell you, sister, it is just about the finest thing this country will see in a long time."

Lucinda puzzled over the words and the poet. It must be, she decided, city poets were a queer lot. Bohemians likely. Fluno probably talked carelessly of his brain children—Lucinda liked "brain children"—to hide the noble emotions which possessed him. Poets were like that—deep, very deep.

"It will be wonderful," she sighed, "when he reads me the masterpiece which he is going to have published."

The next day Lucinda found her poet in dejection. He held an envelope in his hand and welcomed the chance to unload the weight of his woe.

"There is no appreciation left. Merit counts for nothing in a money-grabbing world," Lucinda could understand this kind of talk. She smiled sweetly, comforting, she thought. She would show him she could sympathize. B. Watts handed her the letter.

"Just read what he says," "Better come back," it said. "The change in scenery isn't doing you any good. Any fool knows that 'mammy' has been rhymed with 'Alabammy' in half the songs put out this season. If you turn in another song one-half so rotten as your last you are fired."

"It is terrible hard," said the owl Mr. Fluno, "trying to be a real poet in this day and age."

"Isn't it?" agreed Lucinda in a thin little voice. "I think I'll go in now, it's getting cold."

After that Lucinda Larkin recognized the merits in the youth of her own town and the poetic period of her life closed. They say she makes the best pies in Minden.

Prepared Especially for The Glendale Evening News

DELIGHTFULLY SIMPLE FROCK

One of the voiles with fillet block pattern may be used to develop this simple dress, or it may be made of plain voile with inserts of lace. It has short kimono sleeves which may be lengthened with slashed sections gathered into narrow cuffs. The front and back of the dress are laid in plaits, lapped over inserted side sections to form an inverted box-pleat effect. Medium size requires 4 yards 36-inch material.

Pictorial Review Dress No. 1555. Sizes, 14 to 20 years. Price 35 cents.

EMPHASIZING THE EGYPTIAN NOTE

Plain crepe combined with self-material figured in Egyptian design could be successfully employed to develop this straight line dress. The closing is on the shoulders and the neck may be in oval or V-shaped outline. The front of the dress is slashed in the arm-hole edges gathered. Self-material or silk ribbon could be used for the girdle. Medium size requires 1 1/2 yard 36-inch plain and 1 1/2 yard 36-inch figured material.

Pictorial Review Dress No. 1653. Sizes, 16 to 20 years and 34 to 48 inches bust. Price 35 cents.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

IMAGINE LIFE WITHOUT THEM!

A book lies on my desk. When I shall have finished digging in the garden and putting away the clean clothes and getting the old magazines ready to go to the Salvation Army, I may go in and sit down with that book for half an hour before lunch.

And even as I dig and sort and pack, I may think about it. It is a very interesting novel—not a swift moving sensational tale, but one of those books which make you feel so well acquainted with the people that the book becomes interesting and absorbing as if news about your friends, and as interesting and absorbing as if news about the people across the street or the new family that have come to church.

Did You Ever Feel This Way?

I love such books. Except for one terrible thing, I hate to draw near the finish. When there are only a few pages left I sometimes put off finishing them. When I close the book I feel bleak and lonesome as if some family I loved had moved away and I should never see them again or hear from them.

I felt that way about Thackeray's Newcombes and about some of George Elliot's and all of Jane Austen's books, and about a few modern books. I know no higher recommendation.

An Interested Reader—"How can I wash a sweater without shrinking it?"

Answer—"The safest way is to clean it by rinsing it out in gasoline. This does not shrink it, but will clean it perfectly. Do the work out of doors, and let the sweater air several days till the odor is gone."

Mrs. F. S.—"How can I remove machine oil from a carpet?"

Answer—"Rub lard on the spot and let stand several hours, then wash the spot by rubbing it hard with a cloth wrung out of cold, soapy water. After a moment, raise the cloth in warm clear water and rub the carpet again. A few drops of ammonia in the water may be necessary."

Though I am eager to get at that book, it is not an emergency that makes me unhappy. Instead, it seems to give savor to my work—and my work gives savor to my precious moments of leisure. Really to enjoy reading you must have to make an effort to get the time for it.

We always think we are going to do a great deal of reading on our vacations. Yet we seldom do so, for we do other things, because we have too much leisure.

As I think about that book and the good time I am going to have with it, I realize anew what a wonderful and mysterious spell is this power of a novel to interest us and make us forget our own lives and live the lives of others. How strange it is that when we know these people never lived and these things never happened, yet we are as absorbed and concerned over the outcome as if we had some personal stake!

An Empty World

Suppose there were all the other luxuries that we know about, but not a book in the world. An impossible supposition when you stop to think of the part books play as the carriers of human knowledge from one generation to another, but just suppose it. What an empty world this would be! Years ago a little New England poetess named Emily Dickinson said some of the finest things about books that were ever said. Here is one of her verses:

"He ate and drank the precious words,
His spirit grew robust,
He knew no more that he was poor,
Nor that his frame was dust.
He danced along the dingy ways
And this book, 'What liberty
A loosened spirit brings!'"

BEAUTY CHATS

ANSWERED LETTERS

Ethel—Your weight seems to be all right. Use the cream if the skin is too dry after washing, but use a milder soap, a good castile for instance.

Rosalie T.—Ammonia will not kill the hairs on the face. Fresh peroxide of hydrogen will bleach the hair so it is not so noticeable, and it will not encourage its growth. Wear round-toed low-heeled shoes to correct the ankle trouble.

Frank H.—When there is persistent acne trouble it is well to have a blood test. There may be something lacking in your system which may easily be supplied through a special diet or a blood tonic.

Sarah N.—Try ice massage for the flabby skin around the mouth and cheeks. This is an astringent and tightens up the weakening muscles. Cold cream massage will help also if all motions are upwards—that is, to lift the facial muscles.

Michel—Excessive oiliness of the hair is generally a warning signal, especially when it is accompanied with dandruff, as it indicates an unhealthy condition of the scalp that will lead to greater trouble if not checked. Send me a letter with self-addressed stamped envelope enclosed, for an excellent hair tonic formula.

Anna May—Wear brown as much as possible and grays touched with color; once in a while, pale yellow. Never wear white blouses, but, instead, flesh or cream (white will accentuate the pallor of the skin, but these other shades will tone it down, and give a softer effect. Blues, of course, and beige will suit you.

B. B.—There are medicines for reduction, but they are not advisable. Swimming and all exercises will reduce excess fat. Be careful of your diet and avoid too much starch or sweet foods.

Merrilee—Your wants are too numerous to answer in this space. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and state your needs again.

Eighteen—You can purchase a little safety shaving outfit for removing the hair under the arms. They are handled without any difficulty or harm.

Reader—Practically any good tonic will build you up. Eat three hearty meals a day, drink plenty of milk or other nourishing liquid foods, and be out of doors as much as possible.

Ella B. G.—Use a good stiff brush when scrubbing the hands and nails. You can clean under them with an orange stick dipped in peroxide. You may need arch supports. I would advise you to go to a chiropodist.

Tomorrow—Eyelash Treatment

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope may be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Cereal Grains.

Which is a day old, largely because it is soft and is not so thoroughly masticated and so is apt to cause fermentation.

For this reason fresh bread is never advisable for children. Toasting bread makes it more easily digested because in toasting the starch is converted to dextrin, which is the same thing that happens in the first stage of digestion, so the toasted bread is in a way predigested.

This of course applies only to the part that is toasted. Bread which is only toasted on the outside and left soft on the inside has little value over untoasted bread. To be thoroughly dextrinized, bread should be oven-toasted—that is, slowly dried and toasted throughout in the oven. In this way it is very wholesome, not only because it is easily digested, but because it has to be thoroughly masticated in order to be swallowed, and this gives the needed exercise for the teeth and jaws. That is the reason we advise this type of bread for our children.

A slice of bread toasted has the same caloric value as it had before it was toasted. So often my overweight followers tell me they can't understand why they are fat—they never eat bread, only toast!

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married woman and have a little girl seven years old. My husband is very good to me, I suppose, and gives me everything I really need.

Probably I could have a good deal more than I do if I asked for it. He is also very good to our little girl and seems to think so much of both of us. I know he is true to me, but there is more I want than that.

I cannot understand why it is that my husband never seems to like what I like and he is unwilling to give in about anything. When it comes to furnishing our home he is the one who decides what furniture we will buy. Also, he likes to dictate about my clothes. Very often his choice is more expensive than the thing I like, but he pays no attention to price.

If I like a certain book, that is reason enough for him not to read it. But if he likes a book, he does not let me rest as soon as you do it, too. Perhaps I would be more sympathetic with his tastes if he did not force things on me. As it is, the very fact that he likes a thing is enough to make me dislike it. It seems to me I can't be myself and express myself in any way. This, of course, is very hard and makes me unhappy.

What can I do to make my husband change toward me?

DISCONTENTED.

Life is not perfection, and along with our blessings it is necessary for us to make the best of unpleasant things. It seems to me you are decidedly blessed in having a husband who is indulgent and faithful to you and your child. My advice is to adjust yourself to the inevitable. As soon as you accept your husband's choice in matters, and let him have his own way without opposition because it pleases him, the happier you will be. To rebel only keeps you in a discontented mental state and it does not help matters in the least. I believe, though, that if you cooperate with your husband, agreeing with him whenever you find it possible, he will be less emphatic in his tastes and more willing to please you. It is a strange thing that with most husbands better results are attained by giving in than by opposing.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been engaged to a young man for three years and for some time I have realized that he no longer loved me as he did. The other night I told him what I thought and he confessed that I was right. Of course, the only thing to do was to break our engagement. He was perfectly willing, but when I wanted to give back my diamond engagement ring he begged me to keep it, because he said he had no use for it and he always thought I looked so pretty that I was his. He wanted me to keep it and he would feel I wasn't bitter toward him if I would only keep the engagement ring as a gift from a friend.

I do not feel bitter toward him, because I know his love has merely died. He has tried the best he could to keep on loving me, but in spite of himself he has only been able to think of me as a friend.

I suppose it is absolutely necessary for me to give back the ring. In this case, however, I would much prefer to disregard convention and keep his offering to show I am not bitter. I still love him in a way, too, but I am convinced that marriage would be out of the question even for me because my former sweetheart seems only like a friend.

What would you advise me to do?

IN DOUBT.

Do as your heart dictates. Conventions are all right in the majority of cases, but there are times when the individual desire and need should be considered. To him it is not enough that his love has died and it is impossible for him to take back a thing which he wanted you to have so much. Neither of you is to blame for the result of your engagement. Time has taken a hand and settled matters for you by changing your love into a state of friendship.

Billy Walker

Sure enough, as the new goat warned Stubby, in a second the victor came around a corner and passed them.
"There are the same two goats we passed a while ago upon the side of the mountain," said the coachman to the footman.
"Yes, we passed them just before Senora Romero cried out that the little dog was gone."
When the victor was out of sight, Stubby came from under a green wooden door, under which he had crawled to hide, and the three trotted on toward the palace.
They were soon there, as the old goat knew the city well, and took them by a short cut, and they arrived just as the gates closed on the victor.
"We will have to run around to the back to get in, as those gates may be open. If not, I know where there is a little door in the wall that we can get through, if it is not locked."
"We will get through whether it is locked or not," said Billy. "I will cut it down, if necessary."
"And arouse the household, who will come out with brooms, mops and sticks to beat you! And there will be many more of them than at the hotel, for the beautiful lady, as you call her, has many servants. By the way, her name is Senora Margarita Romero," said the old goat.
"What a pretty, soft sounding name!" said Stubby.
When they got back of the palace, they found the big gates of the wall locked, as the old goat had surmised they would be, but there was a space under them large enough for Stubby to travel through, where the water ran out when the court was scrubbed or it rained hard. There was also a very large keyhole, and on discovering it Billy walked up and pecked through.
"What an enchanting place!" he exclaimed. "But I don't like such an abbreviated view."
"Such a what?" asked the old goat.
"Excuse me! I forgot you do not understand English very well. An abbreviated means small. I wish to see a lot of the courtyard, not the little speck I can see through this keyhole. Can't you show me the door you spoke of?"
"I can, but I don't want you to butt it in. It will make such a racket."
"Perhaps it is open," said Billy. "Let's go and see."

Just then Stubby came crawling back under the doors.
"I have seen Button! And where do you suppose I found him? Sitting on the window ledge of the upper veranda teasing the parrot! He is looking at the parrot as if he was trying to charm the bird, and it is screaming with fright. Can't you hear it?"
"Yes," replied Billy and the old goat.
(Tomorrow you'll hear more of Button's adventure.)

When Mrs. Wallace Reid was in Washington lecturing on the drug evil at the anti-drug convention an old lady in the audience was so impressed with the dangers of taking dope she came to Mrs. Reid and asked if she thought there was any danger of her becoming an addict.
"No," said Mrs. Reid, "if you avoid all opiates and dangerous drugs."
"Well," answered the old lady, "I don't take no drugs, but I do eat rolls with poppy seeds every morning for my breakfast. But I'll stop it if you think it might give me the drug habit."—New York Telegraph.

The orchestra was practicing the composer's very long and tedious piece when he arrived, says Der Brummer, Berlin.
"What's this?" he demanded from the doorway. "I can hear only the violins, not the wind instruments."
"It's too hard a job for the wind instruments," replied the orchestra leader. "They can't blow and yawn at the same time!"

INFERIOR REPLACEMENT PARTS
Replacement Parts Other Than Genuine Ones Require Close Scrutiny
Replacements for many of the parts of a car can either be obtained from the manufacturers of the apparatus to which they belong or from independent concerns who make a business of duplicating the parts made by the original makers. Some of these independently made replacements are doubtless all right, but some unfortunately are inferior in materials and workmanship and do not embody the technical refinements which are essential to good results. Independently made replacements are usually sold at attractive low prices, but it is well known that some of them are not worth buying. An example of this

CARBON-REMOVING COMPOUNDS

C. B. V. writes: Please give me formulas and directions for using carbon-removing compounds. Is the use of these compounds in any way injurious to an engine, for instance, in removing the oil film from the cylinder walls?
Answer: We have no formula for carbon-removing liquid, but we should care to recommend other than the well-tried mixture of three parts of kerosene and one part alcohol, shaking together before being applied. About a tablespoonful of this mixture is put into each cylinder while the engine is warm, and allowed to stand overnight, when the engine is started and the car driven briskly for a while in the hope that carbon deposits will be carried out with the exhaust gases. There are plenty of proprietary carbon-removing compounds, which probably contain such materials as benzol, acetone and perhaps others, in addition to kerosene, alcohol and some other liquids. We feel confident that these preparations are safe to use so far as injury to the metal of the engine is concerned. Directions for applying them are to be found on packages containing these liquids. There is a tendency for liquid-carbon removers temporarily to destroy the cylinder oil film, but so little of the liquid is used that the lubricating system soon redistributes oil on all the wearing surfaces.

Answer: The trouble may be due to several causes, but the most likely cause is that gasoline does not vaporize very well in the intake passages of your engine, and that while the engine is slowed down there is a collection of liquid gasoline in these passages which, when the throttle is opened, is at once drawn into the cylinders, where it makes a mixture too rich to be fired. As soon as the raw gasoline has been all expelled firing is resumed. Another cause of this hesitation is the failure of the carburetor to deliver a rich enough mixture to fire when the throttle is opened, the reason for this usually being that the carburetor adjustment, while correct for idling and for small throttle openings, is not rich enough for large throttle openings operated with low speed. You may need to have your carburetor readjusted, or it may be that you need to resort to some further means for heating your engine's intake, or keeping its water hot in order to secure better vaporization.

Timely Views of World Topics

CUT IN TAX ON UNEARNED INCOMES IS URGED
The two big problems the next congress will be called upon to solve are those relating to immigration and the equalization of the income tax burdens of the man who derives his income by work and the man who derives his income from investments. This is the opinion of Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania.
"We have to meet these two problems," said Senator Reed recently, "and I am hoping congress will be able to reach a solution that will be just to all concerned."
They are questions in the settlement of which partisan politics should have no part, and I believe that will be the spirit in which the congress will act.
"The present system of taxing the earned income is a discrimination in favor of the person whose income is unearned. The man who works for a living can be taxed 58 per cent, whereas the man who invests all his capital enjoys exemptions behind which he can take refuge, and that man can get by with a tax of only 12 1/2 per cent. Colonel Roosevelt was right when he said that the difference in earned and unearned incomes should be taken into consideration in the making of our tax laws."

Great Britain, he observed, takes this difference into consideration.
"Yet we continue to discriminate against the man who works, the professional man or woman, the doctor, the lawyer, the artist, the man who works for a salary or a wage," Senator Reed added. "It isn't just or fair; and the result may be the creation of what I might describe as an aristocracy of wealth."
"Take the case of Caruso. He paid $500 a day in income taxes to the government. In other words, he had to sing $500 worth for the government every day before he could sing a cent's worth for himself. Again there is the case of a famous American woman writer, who pays $200 a day to the government before she can call a word she writes her own. It is interesting to point out that Caruso, if he had been possessed of a million dollars, could have invested that million in such a way that the tax on it would have been only $5,000."

"CAP" STUBBS—Mom's Not So Slow

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

BY HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FIRECRACKERS
Once upon a time, soon after the Long Vacation from school had begun, Uncle Wiggily was hopping through the woods, and he saw several of the animal boys sitting near an old stump.
"My goodness! I have they aren't trying to catch the Fuzzy Fox or the Skilley Scallery Alligator," whispered the bunny rabbit gentleman to himself. "If they they that they may get hurt."
Quickly Mr. Longears hopped over to where the animal boys and girls were gathered about the stump. One look at their faces told him something had happened.
"What is the matter, children?" asked Uncle Wiggily.
"Oh, we can't have any Fourth of July," grumbled Billy Wagtail, the goat.
"And it comes tomorrow, but we can't shoot off any firecrackers, or cannon, or skyrockets, or anything like that!" growled Neddie Stubbail, the boy bear.
"We can't even have torpedoes," complained Lulu Wibblewooble, the girl duck.
"It'll fix you!" shouted Sammie Littletail, the rabbit. "Fourth of July at all!" chattered Johnnie Bushytail the squirrel.
"What is it all about?" asked Uncle Wiggily in surprise.
"Oh, our fathers and mothers think it's dangerous for us to have any fireworks for the Fourth," grunted Sammie Littletail, the rabbit. "They say we must have a safe and sane Fourth, whatever that is. But I say it isn't any fun!"
"That's right! No fun at all!" shouted the others.
Uncle Wiggily twinkled his pink nose upside down, as he always did when he was thinking hard. Then he spoke.
"Look here, children," he said, "why do you want fireworks, anyhow. What good are they?"
"They're jolly good fun!" some answered. "They make dandy big noises!" shouted the boys. "And they look pretty at night," said Jennie Chipmunk.
"The boys seem to think the noise is the best part," laughed Uncle Wiggily.
"Yes, the noise is dandy!" cried the boys, and most of the girls said the same thing.
"Then, if noise is all you want, I can get that for you, and with no danger," said the bunny gentleman. "You know that is why your fathers and mothers don't want you to have firecrackers—it's because they fear you will be burned or hurt. Now my firecrackers will harm no one, but they will still make plenty of noise."
"What kind of firecrackers are they?" asked Billie Wagtail.
"Blown up paper bags from the store!" laughed the bunny. "Come, I'll get them for you." So he bought a pile of paper bags, and the animal children blew them up with air, tying strings around the ends after the bags were blown up. Then, when the bags were struck with a paw, or banged down on a flat stump they went "Boom! Bang! Crack!"

"Why, they're just as good as fire crackers!" chattered Johnnie, the squirrel.
"And they don't burn your paws," said Jennie Chipmunk. The animal children had lots of fun that Fourth of July, with Uncle Wiggily's paper bag firecrackers, and toward evening, the Woozie Wolf came out of the woods, and tried to nibble the bunny gentleman's ears.
"I'll fix you!" shouted Sammie Littletail, and he banged a paper bag firecracker close to the bad chap's ears. "Bang!" burst the bag.
"Wow! I'm shot!" howled the Wolf, and away he ran. Then the Fox jumped out from behind a mulberry bush.
"I'll fix you!" quacked Jimmie Whibblewooble, the duck. He filled a paper bag with water from the brook, and dashed it in the face of the Fox.
"Squishy - squashy!" went the slimy bag. "Oh, I'm drowned!" howled the Fox.
"That was my water cracker," laughed Jimmie as the Fox ran away.
So the animal children had lots of fun that Fourth of July, and after dark the lightning bugs and fireflies danced about over the lawn and made wonderful fireworks, so everyone was happy, and they said Uncle Wiggily was very clever.
And if the clothes post doesn't try to grow tall like Jack's beanstalk, and tickle the Man in the Moon, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the hollow sticks.

Miss Marie Esch, daughter of ex-Congressman John J. Esch of school soon to be opened in the house of detention at Washington, D. C. Miss Esch has recently completed a normal course and is, besides, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. She is well fitted to take up so serious and helpful a work as that of guiding the unfortunates who are held at the house of detention. Education is the influence that is being used to help the ignorant and criminally inclined climb to a respectable and useful standing in the communities in which they live.
Congressman John J. Esch was for twenty-two years a representative of the state of Wisconsin at Washington. He is best remembered for his part in framing the Esch-Cummins transportation bill. Mrs. Esch was one of the most popular of the western congressmen's wives.
Mrs. Corbett Ashby of England was elected president of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance recently in Rome. The decision was practically unanimous. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, in retiring from the active presidency to assume the office of honorary president, delivered an address summing up the results thus far accomplished and giving suggestions for the work yet to be done by the suffragists "to serve the good of their nations and the world, for the final emancipation of our sex."

CHANGE NAME TO FIRST NATIONAL

Farmers & Merchants Bank Given Federal Charter By U.S. Authorities

Burbank has a new bank, or rather, a new name for an old one, the Farmers & Merchants bank, 123 East San Fernando boulevard having become the First National bank, with a charter granted by Washington allowing a capitalization of $50,000. The new institution will take over the commercial department of the old, while the savings department will continue under the name of the Farmers & Merchants bank.

It is planned to remodel and expand the present quarters, moving the savings department into the room adjoining the present building, giving the new institution the double front, together with a thirty-foot square addition being constructed at the rear of the new room.

It is announced that there will be a meeting of the stockholders on Wednesday, July 11, for the purpose of selecting officers. Approximately sixty days will be required to make the change from a state to a national bank.

The Farmers & Merchants bank, which is to become the First National bank, was organized in 1913 and has made great strides in the decade of its existence, holding on deposits over $500,000.

Apply for Charter
Burbank at one time had a First National bank, which was absorbed by the Security Trust & Savings bank system. Realizing the numerous advantages of holding a charter from the federal government, the stockholders of the Farmers & Merchants applied to Washington for one. That they have now received word it has been granted means, in the opinion of banking men, the beginning of a new era of growth and ex-

NEW PROMOTERS TO BOOK FIGHTS

Boxer and Resort Owner Will Stage Future Cards at Twin Pines

Louis Waite, proprietor of Twin Pines pavilion, Sunland, announces that he and Bob Kelly, the 135 lb. idol of local boxing fans, will promote the boxing shows there in future instead of Charlie Kimpfel, who inaugurated the shows several weeks ago. Kimpfel claims that he has been pulling a "Mayor of Shelby" every time he staged a card of bouts and has lost considerable money on the ventures. Each show has been the signal for loud lamentations from the ringside over the poor gate receipts, the attacks of "gate crushers" and other sundry misfortunes of a downtrodden fight promoter, in spite of the fact that the seats have been well sold out and on one or two occasions many bought standing room.

The next show will be on Friday, July 13, but the card is not yet complete and will be announced later. Kelly will no doubt furnish one of the attractions and this alone assures keen interest in the card. In a few weeks Kelly has made five starts at Twin Pines; winning four by the knock-out route and getting a draw in the other. The four were "push" over for Kelly and the fifth was fought with his left thumb in splints with McGraw of Glendale. This handicapped Kelly to such an extent that he had to shift his attack, using the right where his best bet is a mean left.

COMMENT

That's All
Rumblings in the Ruhr. Psychology of Fear. Fires Here and There. About Our Contemporaries.

By Gil A. Cowan

RUMBLINGS in the Ruhr are ominous. Ten million people are being made to believe the French are starving them. Too bad they are not hungry, but so far it is only fear from which they are suffering.

However, fear is greater than fact. Famine fear is one of the most terrible. Hoarding of what few foodstuffs there may be will commence. The poorest people will suffer first. Then there will be a miniature volcano of wrath ready to be turned loose.

Why the world has to have all this travel no one knows. It is like a question the writer heard asked the other evening, "What is the limit of space?" Both are beyond human conception, yet Mr. Harding wants us in a World Court. So did Mr. Wilson, except he called it something different.

There is no man-made court to cope with racial hate or national contempt of any country's ambition. Only the Golden Rule will serve and that law of the universe has long been lost in international affairs.

Instead of the Golden Rule a paraphrase has taken its place in high office, which reads: "Do unto others as you imagine they would do unto you." There is that element of fear again—fear the controlling power of most people.

The wealthy build fortunes in fear of the future. The poor join radical organizations in fear of the wrath or in fear of losing what little they have. Men carry guns because of fear. Fear drives people insane.

Fear is the cause of most accidents, it makes hypocrites pray and prayerful people hypocritical. Certainly neither are truly religious.

Fear sends prices soaring; it wrecks banks, makes millionaires, costs fortunes, changes courses of ships and makes the most weakly of us all the so-called "fearless hero."

What a wonderful psychological effect fear has on us all. It is as limitless as space and more real to nine-tenths of us. As a great business man has ably said, "Forget fear and you will succeed." Yet such a man is not amenable to our laws for they are designed to inculcate fear. And great authorities have oft-times used the term "wholesome fear." Wonder what it all means, anyway?

Our writing of comment was interrupted by the report of a $2,000,000 fire in Kansas City. Nice little blaze, that. One of the hazards of the business.

Wonderful how the ticking telegraph brings to our desk the very latest information from anywhere and everywhere. Also thoughts of the cities in which we have worked when we note the date lines.

Late one afternoon four years ago this month we were writing the headlines and editing copy on the Kansas City Post when a great grain elevator exploded and took several lives in the fire which followed the blast.

Another evening in Salt Lake City an oil fire lighted the office windows of The Morning Herald. It was an awe-inspiring sight, the burning of a refinery. Something about fire that intrigues all of us.

Goldfield, Nev., and Barstow, Calif., two desert towns, have fallen prey to flames only recently. Perhaps they never will be rebuilt. Mexico has burned so often recently that the new construction is all 'dobe.

San Fernando valley is blessed with some mighty fine weekly and semi-weekly newspapers. The Glendale Evening News, as the old-established medium, recognizes in the Burbank Review and Pathfinder, the San Fernando Democrat, the Lankershim Lancer and the Van Nuys News a "home town" enterprise that is worthy of support.

Each one of the sheets mentioned is far superior to the average country paper. Certainly they reflect the prosperity of their communities.

Rather interesting to note that when President Harding reached Wrangell island the natives of Alaska had an awful of trouble to tell him. Perhaps Wrangell is the right name for the place, after all.

The fact that he is the first president to step on Alaskan soil should mean much to these misunderstood people in the far-away frozen north. May members of his party devise ways for solving their problems insofar as the government is concerned.

Missionary to Speak At Church Tonight

Attendants at the Glendale Presbyterian church tonight are to hear an address by H. W. Brown of Sangli, India.

Mr. Brown spent a number of years in educational and evangelistic work in India and his work there won him wide recognition. He will tell of his work tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown are in the United States on furlough and are visiting Mr. Brown's father in Montrose.

The meeting tonight is one of the pre-communion gatherings at the church.

New York City will have, in 1933, a population equal to that now of all states west of the Mississippi river, says a Columbia university professor.

EAGLE ROCK

OFFER PREMIUM FOR NEW DAHLIA

Special Variety to Be Named After Eagle Rock Is Sought by Boosters

The advertising committee of the local Chamber of Commerce has recommended to the board of directors of this body that a prize of $25 be offered the Dahlia Show for a new variety of this bloom, to be known as the "Eagle Rock dahlia." And the Women's Twentieth Century Club has awarded prizes totaling $25 for the best dahlias exhibited at the show, which, taken together with other prizes and awards to be given, will make this show the biggest and most far-reaching in effect that the section has ever held.

Throughout the east Eagle Rock has become known as "The Dahlia City," points out Mrs. C. W. Young of 906 Rock Glen. What, then, more natural than that the section should develop a distinctive type of the flower, which would thereafter always bear the name, "Eagle Rock dahlia?"

The advertising committee thinks so much of the idea, from its point of view, that we are going to push the matter through," states George W. S. Reed of 127 Douglas avenue, secretary of the committee.

J. J. Bromall of Rosemont avenue, who has long fostered and developed the Dahlia idea in Eagle Rock, and is largely responsible for the way the community and the flower are associated in the east, believes that the creation of a distinctive type of local dahlia, and naming of it by the community name, would be one of the most valuable and lasting moves possible to make, and would cost but a fraction of what its intrinsic worth would be, measured by accepted standards.

Towns such as Santa Barbara and Montecito have become famous the world over by reason of their flowers, it is pointed out, Eagle Rock has an opportunity to become famous by reason of her dahlias, and leading bodies of men and women are determined to make the most of the opportunity.

California Yields Fourth Of Nation's Crude Oil

SACRAMENTO, July 10.—At the present rate of production California oil wells are yielding approximately 25 per cent of the total crude oil output of the United States, according to estimates announced today by State Mineralogist Lloyd E. Root. The daily production in the nation at large is about 1,500,000 barrels, Root said.

Russia's Industries Are Far From Normal

MOSCOW, July 10.—It will be several years before the Turkestan cotton fields are restored to international competition, according to Congressman Collins, of Mississippi, who has been visiting Russia.

"Reconstruction work in Russia is going forward," Collins said, "but it will be several years before it will restore some of the industries for competition."

When Need

For the service of a Mortician arises, then, of all times, there is reason for the advice and counsel of one who has the interest of his patron truly at heart.

His motives must be honest and sincere; his standards should be above question—he should be a man in whom absolute confidence and trust can be placed.

For years the L. G. Scovern company has been building a reputation for superior service in Glendale and surrounding territory, and the confidence of the public in this institution is proven by its steady and constant growth.

FAMOUS SALOON

SAVED FROM FIRE

'Last Chance,' Immortalized
By Jack London, Will Be Kept as Landmark

BERKELEY, Calif., July 10.—"Jack always said fire wasn't hot enough to hurt this place. Water could do it, says he, if there be enough in the world, but it seems there isn't."

So quoth old Johnny Heinhold today as he directed workmen in their task of rehabilitating the "Last Chance saloon." Johnny befriended Jack London, famous author, when he found shelter behind the bars of the Last Chance, a homeless lad of 14. It was in the Last Chance that Jack picked up from a dictionary the first rudiments of his writing ability, and in later years he immortalized Johnny, who made possible his education in many books.

Jack is gone but Johnny remains and as long as he lives the Last Chance is to stand as a London landmark. Last night fire razed an adjoining structure. Water flooded the Last Chance. Firemen begged Johnny to leave. But with a big umbrella, he held the fort, firm in the prophecy of
