A KING AND NO KING.

Enter Mardonius and Bessus, two Captaines.

Mar. B Bessus, the KING haz made a faire hand on't, he haz ended the wars at a blow, would my sword had a close basket hilt to hold wine, and the blade would make knives, for we shall haue nothing but eating and drinking.

Bes. We that are commanders shall doe well enough.

Mar. Faith Bessus such Comanders as thou may, I had as liue set thee Perdue for a pudding'yth darke, as Alexander the great

Bes. I loue these iests exceedingly.

Mar. I thinke thou wilt'em better then quarrelling Bessus, itt say so much in thy behalfe, and yet thou'rt valiant enough vpon a retreat, I thinke thou would'st kill any man, that kept thee if thou couldst.

Bes. But was not this a braue combate Mardonius?

Mar. Why, didst thou see't?

Bes. You stood w' me.

Mar. I did so, but me thought thou wink'st euery blow they strooke.

Bes. Well, I bel-eue there are better souldiers then I, that neuer saw two Princes fight in lists.

Mar. By my troth I thinke so too Bessus, many a thousand, but certainly all that are worse then thou haue seene as much.

Bes. Twas brauely done of our King.

Mar. Yes, if he had not ended the warres: I'me glad thou dar'st talke of such dangerous busineses.

Bes. To take a Prince prisoner in the heart of's owne Countrey in single combate.

Mar. See how thy blood curdles at this, I thinke thou couldst be contented to be beaten i'this passion.

Bes. Shall I tell you truely.

Mar. I.

Bes. I could willingly venter for't.

Mar. Vm, no venter neither Bessus.

Bes. Let mee nor liue, if I doe not thinke t'is a brauer peece of seruice then that I'me so fam'd for.

Mar. Why, art thou fam'd for any vallour?

Bes. Fam'd, I, I warrant you.

Mar. I'me eene heartily glad on't, I haue bene with thee ere since thou cam'st to'th Warres, and this the first word that euer I heard on't, prethee who fam's thee.

Bes. The Christian world.

Mar. 'Tis heathenishly done of'em, in my conscience thou deseru'st it not.

Bes. Yes I ha'done good seruice.

Mar. I doe not know how thou may'st waite of a man in's Chamber, or thy agility of shifing of a Trencher, but otherwise no seruice good Bessus.

Bes. You saw me doe the seruice your selfe.

Mar. Not so hasty sweet Bessus, where was it, is the place vanis'd.

Bes. At Bessus desp'rat redemption.

Mar. At Bessus desp'rat redemption, wher's that.

Bes. There where I redeem'd the day, the place beares my name.

Mar. Pray thee who Christ'ned it.

Bes. The Souldiers.

Mar. If I were not a very merily dispos'd man, what would become of thee: one that had but a graine of choller in the whole composition of his body, would send thee of an errand to the wormes, for putting thy name vpon that field:

did not I beate thee there i'th head, a'th troupes with a trunchion, because thou wouldst needs run away with thy company, when we should charge the enemy.

Bes. True, but I did not runne.

Mar. Right Bessus, I beat thee out on't.

Bes. But came I not vp when the day was gone, and redeem'd all.

Mar. Thou knowest, and so doe I, thou meant'st to flie, and thy feare making thee mistake, thou ran'st vpon the enemy, and a hot charge thou gau'st, as Ile doe thee right, thou art furious in running away, and I thinke, we owe thy feare for our victory; If I were the King, and were sure thou wouldst mistake alwayes, and runne away vpon th'enemy, thou shouldst be Generall by this light.

Bes. Youle neuer leaue this till I fall foule.

Mar. No more such wordes deare Bessus, for though I haue euer knowne thee a coward, and therefore durst neuer strike thee, yet if thou proceed'st, I will allow thee valiant, and beat thee.

Bes. Come, our King's a braue fellow.

Mar. He is so Bessus, I, wonder how thou cam'st to know it, But if thou wer't a man of vnderstanding, I would tell thee, hee is vaine, glorious, and humble, and angry, and patient, and merry, and dull, and ioyfull, and sorrowfull in extremity, in an houre: Doe not thinke me thy friend for this,
for if I ear'd who knew it, thou should'st not heare it Bessus,
Here he is with his prey in his foore.

Enter &c Seres Flourish.

Enter Arbaces and Tigranes two Kings and two Gentlemen.

Arb. Thy sadresse braue Tigranes takes away
From my full victory am I become
Of so small fame, that any man should grieue
When I'orecome him; They that plac'd me here,
Intended it an honour large enough,
For the most valiant living; but to dare

Oppose me single, though he lost the day,
 What should affli& you, you are free as I,
 To be my prisoner, is to be more free
 Then you were formerly, and neuer thinke
 The man I held worthy to combate me
 Shall be vs'd seruily : Thy ransome is
 To take my only Sister to thy wife,
 A heauy one Tigranes, for she is
 A Lady, that the neighbour Princes send Blancks to fetch home, I haue benee too vnkind
 To her Tigranes, Shee but nine yeare old
 I left her, and nere saw her since, your Warres
 Haue held me long and taught me, though a youth,
 The way to victory, Shee was a pretty child,
 Then, I was little better, but now fame
 Cryes loudly on her, and my messengers
 Make me belceue shee is a miracle ;
 Sheele make you shrink, as I did with a stroake,
 But of her eye Tigranes.

Tigr. Is't the course of Iberia to vse their prisoners, thus ?
 Had Fortune throwne my name about Arbaces,
 I should not thus haue talk'd fir, in Armenia,
 We hold it base, you should haue kept your temper
 Till you saw home againe, where'tis the fashion
 Perhaps to bragge.

Arb. Be you my witnesse earth, need I to bragge,
 Doth not this captiue Prince speake
 Me sufficiently, and all the Acts
 That I haue wrought vpon his suffering Land ;
 Should I then boalt / where lies that foot of ground
 Within his whole Realme, that I haue not past,
 Fighting and conquering ; Farre then from mee
 Be ostentation, I could tell the world
 How I haue layd his Kingdome desolate
 By this sole Arme propt by Diuinity,
 Stript him out of his glories, and haue sent
 The pride of all his youth to people graues,
 And made his Virgins languish for their Loues,

If I would brag, should I that haue the power
To teach the Neighbour world humility
Mixe with vaine-glory :

Mar. Indeed this is none.

Arb. Tygranes. Nay did I but take delight
To stretch my deeds as others do, on words,
I could amaze my hearers.

Mar. So you doe.

Arb. But he shall wrong his and my modesty,
That thinks me apt to boast after any Act
Fit for a good to doe vpon his foe,
A little glory in a souldiers mouth
Is well becoming be it farre from vaine.

Mar. Tis pittie that valour should be thus drunke.

Arb. I offer you my sister, and you answer
I doe insult, a Lady that no sute
Nor treasure, nor thy Crowne could purchase thee,
But that thou fought'st with me.

Tigr. Though this be worse
Then that you spake before, it strikes me not ;
But that you thinke to ouer-grace-me with,
The marriage of your sister, troubles me,
I would giue worlds for ransomes were they mine,
Rather then haue her.

Arb. See if I insult
That am the Conqueror, and for a ransome
Offer rich treasure to the Conquered,
Which he refuses, and I beare his scorne:
It cannot be selfe flattery to say,
The daughters of your Countrey set by her,
Would see their shame runne home and blush to death
At their owne foulness ; yet shee is not faire,
Nor beautifull, those words expresse her not,
They say her lookes haue something excellent,
That wants a name : yet were shee odious
Her birth deserues the Empire of the world,
Sister to such a Brother, that hath tane
Victory prisoner, and throughout the earth,

Carries her bound, and should he let her loose,
 Shee durst not leaue him; Nature did her wrong,
 To print continuall conquest on her cheeks,
 And make no man worthy for her to taste,
 But me that am too neere her, and as strangely
 Shee did for me, but you will thinke I bragge.

Mar. I doe Ile besworne. Thy valour and thy passions feuer'd, would haue made two excellent fellowes in their kindes: I know not whither I should be sorry thou art so valiant, or so passionate, would one of v<sup>m</sup> were away.

Tygr. Doe I refuse her that I doubt her worth,
 Were shee as vertuous as she would bee thought,
 So pure & that no one of her owne sex
 Could find a want, had she so tempting faire,
 That shee could wish it off for damning soules,
 I would pay any ransome, twenty liues
 Rather then meeete her married in my bed,
 Perhaps I haue a loue, where I haue fixt
 Mine eyes not to be mou'd, and she on me,
 I am not fickle.

Arb. Is that all the cause?
 Thinke you, you can so knit your selfe in loue
 To any other, that her searching sight
 Cannot dissolue it? So before you tri'd
 You thought your selfe a match for mee in fight,
 Trust me Tyr gnes, she can doe as much
 In peace, as I in Warre, Shee le conquere too,
 You shall see if you haue the power to stand
 The force of her swift lookes, if you dislike,
 Ile send you home with loue, and name your ransome
 Some other way, but if she be your choise,
 She frees you: To Iberia you must,

Tigr. Sir, I haue learn'd a prisoners sufferance,
 And will obey, but giue me leaue to talke
 In priuate with some friends before I goe.

Arb. Some to awaite him foorth, and see him safe,
 But let him freely send for whom he please,
 And none dare to disturbe his Conference,

I will not haue him know what bondege is. Exit Tigranes
 Till he be free from me, This Prince, Mardonius,
 Is full of wisdom, valour, all the graces
 Man can receiue.

Mar. And yet you Conquer'd him,

Arb. And yet I conquerd him, and could haue done't
 Had'st thou toynd with him, though thy name in Armes
 Be great; Must all men that are veriuous
 Thinke suddenly to match themselves with me,
 I conquerd him and brauely; did I not?

Bes. And please your Maiesty I was afraid at first,

Mar. When wert thou other?

Arb. Of what?

Bes. That you would not haue spy'd your best aduantages, for your Maiesty in my opinion lay too high, me thinks, vnder fauour, you should haue layne thus.

Mar. Like a Taylor at a Wake.

Bes. And then, if please your Maiesty to remember, at one time, by my troth, I wish't my selfe wth you.

Mar. By my troth thou wouldst ha stunke 'em both out o'th Lists

Arb. What to doe?

Bes. To put your Maiesty in mind of an occasion; you lay thus. and Tigranes satisfied a blow at your legge; which you by doing thus auoyded; but if you had whip'd vp your leggethus, and reach'd him on the eare, you had made the blood-Royall runne downe his head.

Mar. What Countrey Fence-schoole learn'st that at?

Arb. Pish, did not I take him nobly?

Mar. Why you did, and you haue talked enough on't.

Arb. Talke enough,

will you confine my words, by Heauen and Earth,
 I were much better be a King of Beasts
 Then such a people: if I had not patience
 Aboue a god, I should be cal'd a Tyrant
 Throughout the World. They will offend to death
 Each minute: Let me heare thee speake againe
 And thou art earth againe. why this is like

Tygranes speech that needs would say I brag'd,

Bessus he sayd I brag'd.

Bes. Haha ha.

Arb. Why do'st thou laugh?

By all the world, I'me growne ridiculous

To my owne Subiects: Tye me in a Chayre

And ieast at me, but I shall make a start,

And punish some, that other may take heed

How they are haughty; who will answere mee?

He sayd I boasted, speake Mardonius,

Did I? He will not answere, O my Temper!

I giue you thanks aboue, that taught my heart

Patience, I can endure his silence; what wil none

Vouchsafe to giue me answere? am I growne

To such a poore respect, or doe you meane

To breake my wind? Speake, speake, some one of you,

Or else by Heauen,

1. Gent. So please your.

Arb. Monstrous,

I cannot be heard out, they cut me off,

As if I were too sawcy, I will liue

In woods, and talke to trees, they will allow me

To end what I beginne. The meanest Subiect

Can find a freedome to discharge his soule,

And not I, now it is a time to speake,

I hearken.

1. Gent. May it please.

Arb. I meane not you,

Did not I stop you once? But I am growne

To balke, but I desie, let another speake.

2. Gent. I hope your Maiesty.

Arb. Thou draul'st thy words,

That I must waite an houre, where other men

Can heare in instants; throw your words away

Quicke, and to purpose, I haue told you this.

Bes. And please your Maiesty.

Arb. Wilt thou deuoure me? this is such a rudenesse

As you neuer shew'd me, and I want

Power to command too, else Mardonius
 Would speak at my request; were you my King,
 I would haue answered at your word Mardonius
 I pray you speake, and truly, did I boast?

Mar. Truth will offend you.

Arb. You take all great care what will offend me,
 When you dare to viter such things as these.

Mar. You told Tigranes, you had won his Land,
 With that sole Arme propt by Diuinity:
 Was not that bragging, and a wrong to vs
 That dayly venterd lines?

Arb. O that thy Name
 Were great as mine, would I had paid my wealth,
 It were as great, as I might combate thee,
 I would through all the Regions habitable
 Search thee, and hauing found thee, wi' my Sword
 Driue thee about the world, till I had met
 Some place that yet mans curiosity
 Hath mist of; there, there would I strike thee dead:
 Forgotten of Mankind, such funerall rites
 As beastes would giue thee, thou shouldst haue.

Bes. The King rages extremely, shall wee flinke away?
 Hee'le strike vs.

2. Gent. Content.

Arb. There I would make you know'twas this sole arme,
 I grant you were my instruments, and did
 As I commanded you, but'twas this Arme
 Mou'd you like wheelles, it mou'd you as it pleas'd:
 Whither slip you now? what are you too good
 To wait on me? (puffe,) I had need haue temper
 That rule such people; I haue nothing left
 At my owne choise, I would I might be priuate:
 Meane men enioy themselues, but'tis our curse,
 To haue a tumult that out of their loues
 Will vvaite on vs, whether vve will or no;
 Goe get you gone: Why here they stand like death,
 My words moues nothing.

1. Gent. Must we goe?

Bes. I know not.

Arb. I pray you leaue we Sirs, I'me proud of this,
That you will be intreated from my sight: Excuse all but Why now they leaue me all: Mardonius. Arb. and Mar.

Mar. Sir.

Arb. Will you leaue mee quite alone? me thinkes
Ciuitiy should teach you more then this,
If I were but your friend: Stay here and waite.

Mar. Sir, shall I speake?

Arb. Why you would now thinke much
To be denied, but I can scarce intreat
What I would haue: doe, speake.

Mar. But will you heare me out?

Arb. With me you article to talke thus: well,
I will heare you out.

Mar. Sir, that I haue euer lou'd you, my sword hath spoken for me, that I doe, if it be doubted, I dare call an oath, a great one to my witnesse, and were you not my King, from amongst men, I should haue chose you out to loue aboute the rest: nor can this challenge thanks: for my owne sake I should haue done, because I would haue lou'd the most de-seruing man, for so you are.

Arb. Alas Mardonius, rise you shall not kneele,
We all are souldiers, and all venter liues:
And where there is no difference in mens worths,
Titles are ieasts: who can out-valew thee?

Mardonius thou hast lou'd me, and hast wrong,
Thy loue is not rewarded, but beleue
It shall be better, more then friend in armes,
My Father, and my Tutor, good Mardonius.

Mar. Sir, you did promise you would heare me out.

Arb. And so I will; speake freely, for from thee
Nothing can come but worthy things and true.

Mar. Though you haue all this worth, you hold some qualities that doe Eclipse your vertues.

Arb. Eclipse my vertues.

Mar. Yes, your passions, which are so manifold, that they appeare euen in this: when I commend you, you hug mee for

for that truth : but when I speake your faults , you make a start, and fly the hearing : but.

Arb. When you commend me ? O that I should liue
To need such commendations : If my deeds
Blew not my prayse themselves about the earth,
I were most wretched : spare your idle praise :
If thou didst meane to flatter, and should'st vtter
Words in my prayse, that thou thought'st impudence,
My deeds should make 'em modest : when you prayse
I hugge you ? tis so false, that wert thou worthy
Thou should'st receiue a death, a glorious death
From mee : but thou shalt vnderstand thy lies,
For should'st thou prayse me into heauen, and there
Leaue me in thron'd, I would despise thee though
As much as now, which is as much as dust,
Because I see thy enuy.

Mar. How euer you will vse me after, yet for your owne promise sake, heare me the rest.

Arb. I will, and after call vnto the winds,
For they shall lend as large an eare as I
To what you vtter : speake.

Mar. Would you but leaue these hasty tempers, which I doe not say take from you all your worth, but darken 'em,
then you will shine indeed,

Arb. Well.

Mar. Yet I would haue you keepe some passions, lest men should take you for a god, your vertues are such.

Arb. Why now you flatter.

Mar. I neuer vnderstood the word, were you no King,
and free from these moods, should I choose a companion for wit and pleasure, it should be you ; or for honesty to en-terchange my bosome with, it should be you ; or wisdom to giue mee counsaile, I would picke out you : or valour to defend my reputation, still I should find you out ; for you are fit to fight for all the world ; if it could come in question : Now I haue spoke, consider to your selfe, find out a vse ;
if so, then what shall fall to me is not materiall.

Arb. Is not materiall : more then ten such liues,

As mine Mardonius : it was nobly sayd,
 Thou hast spoke trueth, and boldly such a trueth
 As might offend another, I haue beene
 Too passionate, and idle, thou shalt see
 A swift amendment ; but I want those parts
 You prayse me for : I fight for all the world ?
 Giue thee a sword, and thou wilt go as farre
 Beyond me, as thou art beyond in yeeres,
 I know thou dar'st and wilt ; it troubles me
 That I should vse so rough a phrase to thee,
 Impute it to my folly, what thou wilt,
 So thou wilt pardon me, that thou and I Should differ thus.

Mar. Why 'tis no matter Sir.

Arb. Faith but it is, but thou doest euer take
 All things I doe, thus patiently, for vvhich
 I neuer can requite thee, but vwith loue,
 And that thou shalt be sure of. Thou and I
 Haue not beene merry lately : pray thee tell mee
 Where hast thou that same ieuell 'thine care ?

Mar. Why at the taking of a towne.

Arb. A vvench vpon my life, a vvench Mar-
donius Gaue thee that Ieuell.

Mar. Wench, they respect not mee, I'me old and rough,
 and euery limbe about me, but that vvhich should grooves
 kiffer, I'chose busineses I may sweare I am truely honest :
 for I pay iustly for what I take, and would be glad to bee at a certainty.

Arb. Why doe the wenches inroach vpon thee ?

Mar. I by this light doe they.

Arb. Didst thou sit at an old rent with'em ?

Mar. Yes faith.

Arb. And doe they improve themselues ?

Mar. I, ten shillings to me, euery new yong fellow they come acquainted with.

Arb. How canst liue on't ?

Mar. Why I thinke I must petition to you.

Arb. Thou shalt take them vp at my price.

Enter two Gentlemen and Bassus.

Mar.

Mar. Your price?

Arb. I at the Kings price;

Mar. That may be more then I'me worth

2. Gent. Is he not merry now?

1. Gent. I thinke not.

Bes. He is, hee is, weele shew our selues.

Arb. Bessus, I thought you had bene in Iberia by this, I had you hast; Gobrias will want entertainement for mee.

Bes. And please your Maiesty I have a sute

Arb. Is't not lovvsie Bessus, what is't?

Bes. I am to carry a Lady with me.

Arb. Then thou hast two sutes.

Bes. And if I can preferre her to the Lady Panthea your Maiesties sister, to learne fashions, as her friends terme it, it will be worth something to me.

Arb. So many nights lodgings as'tis thither, wilt not?

Bes. I know not that Sir, but gold I shall be sure of.

Arb. Why thou shalt bid her enterraine her from me; so thou wilt resolue me one thing.

Bes. If I can.

Arb. Faith'tis a very disputable question, and yet I think thou canst decide it.

Bes. Your Maiestie haz a good opinion of my vnderstanding.

Arb. I have so good an opinion of it: 'tis whether thou be valiant.

Bes. Some body haz traduced mee to you: doe you see this sword Sir.

Arb. Yes.

Bes. If I doe not make my back-biters eate it to a knife within this week, say I am not valiant. Enter a Messenger.

Mes. Health to your Maiesty.

Arb. From Gobrias?

Mes. Yes Sir.

Arb. How does he, is he well.

Mes. In perfect health.

Arb. Take that for thy good newes.

A trustier seruant to his Prince there liues not,

Then is good Gobrias

1. Gent. The King starts backe.

Mar. His blood goes backe as fast.

2. Gent. And now it comes againe.

Mar. He alters strangely.

Arb. The hand of heauen is on me, be it far
From me to struggle, if my secret finnes
Hauē pul'd this curse vpon me, lend me teares
I now to wash me white, that I may feele
A child-like innocence within my breast;
Which once perform'd, O giue me leas to stand
As fix'd as constancy her selfe, my eyes
Set her vn mou'd, regardlesse of the World,
Though thousand miseries incompasse me.

Mar. This is strange, Sir, how doe you?

Arb. Mardonius, my mother.

Mar. Is she dead?

Arb. Alas shee's not so happy, thou dost know
How she hath labour'd since my Father died
To take by treason hence this loathed life,
That would but bee to serue her, I haue pardon'd,
And pardon'd, and by that haue made her fit
To practise new finnes, not repent the old:
She now had stir'd a slaue to come from thence,
And strike me here, whom Gobrias sitting our,
Tooke and condemn'd and executed there,
The careful'st seruant: Heauen let me but liue
To pay that man; Nature is poore to mee,
That will not let me haue as many deaths
As are the times that he hath sau'd my life,
That I might dye'em ouer all for him.

Mar. Sir, let her beare her sins on her owne head,
Vexe not your selfe.

Arb. What will the World
Conceiue of me? with what vnaturall finnes
Will they suppose me loden, when my life
Is sought by her that gaue it to the world?
But yet hee writes me comfort here, my Sister

He sayes is growne in beauty and in grace,
 In all the Innocent vertues that become
 A tender spotlesse maid : she staines her cheekes
 With mourning teares to purge her mothers ill,
 And mongst that sacred dew she mingles prayers,
 Her pure Oblations for my safe returne .
 If I haue lost the duty of a sonne,
 If any pompe or vanity of state
 Made me forget my naturall offices,
 Nay farther, if I haue not euery night
 Expostulated with my wandring thoughts,
 If ought vnto my Parent they haue er'd,
 And cal'd'em backe : doe you direct her arme
 Vnto this soule dissembling heart of mine :
 But if I haue beene iust to her, send out
 Your power to compasse mee, and hold me safe
 From searching treason, I will vse no meanes
 But prayer : for rather suffer me to see
 From mine owne veines issue a deadly flood,
 Then wash my danger off with Mothers blood.

Mar. I nere saw such sodaine extremities. Exeunt

Enter Tigranes and Spaconia.

Tigr. Why? wilt thou haue me die. Spaconia,
 What should I doe?

Spa. Nay let me stay alone,
 And when you see Armenia againe,
 You shall behold a Tombe more worth then I,
 Some friend that euer lou'd me of my cause,
 Will build me something to distinguish me
 From other women, many a weeping verse
 He will lay on, and much lament those Maides
 That place their loues vafortunately high
 As I haue done, where they can neuer reach :
 But why should you goe to Iberia?

Tigr. Alas, that thou wilt aske me, aske the man
 That rages in a feauer why he lies
 Distemper'd there, when all the other youths
 Are coursing ore the Meadows with their loues?

Can I resist it? am I not a slave
To him that conquer'd me!

Spa. That conquer'd thee, Tigranes he haz won but halfe
Of thee, thy body, but thy mind may be as free
As his, his will did neuer combate thine,
And take it prisoner,

Tigr. But if he by force,
Conuey my body hence, what helps it me
Or thee to be vnwilling.

Spa. O Tigranes,
I know you are to see a Lady there,
To see, and like I feare: perhaps the hope
Of her makes you forget me; ere we part
Be happier then you know to wish: farewell.

Tigr. Spaconia stay and heare me what I say,
In short, Destruction meeets me that I may
See it, and not auoid it when I leaue
To be thy faithfull Louer: part with me
Thou shalt not, there are none that know our loue,
And I haue giuen gold vnto a Captaine
That goes vnto Iberia from the King,
That he will place a Lady of our Land
With the Kings sister that is offered me;
Thither shall you, and being once got in Perswade her by what subtilc meanes you can
To be as backward in her loue as I.

Spa. Can you imagine that a longing maid
When she beholds you, can be pull'd away
With words from louing you?

Tigr. Dispraise my health,
My honesty, and tell her I am icalous.

Spa. Why, I had rather loose you: can my heart
Consent to let my tongue throw out such words,
And I that euer yet spoke what I thought,
Shall find it such a thing at first to lie?

Tigr. Yet doe thy best.

Enter Bessus.

Bes. What is your Maiestie ready?

Tigr. There is the Lady Captaine.

Bef. Sweet Lady by your leaue, I could wish my selfe more full of Courtship for your faire sake.

Spa. Sir, I shall feele no want of that.

Bef. Lady, you must haste, I haue receiued new letters from the King, that requires more hast then I expected, hee will follow me sodainly himselfe, and begins to call for your Maiestie already.

Tigr. He shall not doe so long.

Bef. Sweet Lady shall I call you my charge hereafter?

Spa. I will not take vpon me to gouerne your tongue Sir, you shall call me what you please.

The end of the first Act.

Actus Secundus.

Enter Gobrias, Bacurim, Arano, Panthea, and Mandane, waiting-women with Attendants.

Gob. MY Lord Bacurim, you must haue regard vnto the Queene, she is your prisoner, Tis at your perill if shee make escape.

Bac. My Lord I know't, she is my prisoner From you committed; yet she is a woman, And so I keepe her safe, you will not vrge mee To keepe her close, I shall not shame to say I sorrow for her.

Gob. So doe I my Lord; I sorrow for her that to little grace Doth gouerne her: that she should stretch her arme Against her King so little woman-hood And naturall goodnesse, as to thinke the death Of her owne Sonne.

Ara. Thou know'st the reason why, Dissembling as thou art, and wilt not speake.

Gob. There is a Lady takes not after you, Her Father is within her that good man Whose teares waide cowne his sins, marke how she weeps, How well it does become her, and if you

Can find no disposition in your selfe
 To sorrow, yet by gracefullnesse in her
 Find out the way, and by your reason weepe :
 All this shee does for you, and more shee needes
 When for your selfe you will not loose a teare,
 Thinke how this want of grieffe discredit you,
 And you will weepe, because you cannot weepe.

Ara. You talke to mee as hauing got a time
 Fit for your purpose, but you know I know
 You speake not what you thinke.

Pan. I would my heart
 Were stone, before my softnesse should be vrg'd
 Against my Mother, a more troubled thought
 No Virgin beares about; should I excuse
 My Mothers fault, I should set light a life
 In loosing which, a brother and a King
 Were taken from me, if I seeke to saue
 That life so lou'd, I loose another life
 That gaue me being, I shall loose a Mother,
 A word of such a sound in a childs eare
 That it strikes reuerence through it; may the wil
 Of Heauen be done, and if one needs must fall,
 Take a poore Virgins life to answere all.

Ara. But Gobrias let vs talke, you know this fault
 Is not in me as in another Mother.

Gob. I know it is not.

Ara. Yet you make it so.

Gob. Why is not all that's past, beyond your help?

Ara. I know it is.

Gob. Nay, should you publish it before the world, thinke you t'wood be beleeu'd?

Ara. I know it would not.

Gob. Nay should I ioyne with you,
 Should we not both be torne, and yet both dye Vncredited?

Ara. I thinke we should.

Gob. Why then

Take you such violent courses? as for me,

I doe but right in sauing of the King
From all your plots.

Ara. The King?

Gob. I bad you rest with patience, and a time
Would come for me
To reconcile all to your owne content
But by this way, you take away my power
And what was done vnknowne, was not by mee:
But you : your vrging being done
I must preferue my owne, but time may bring
All this to light, and happily for all.

Aran. Accursed be this ouercurious braine
That gaue that plot a birth, accurst this wombe
That after did conceiue to my disgrace.

Bac. My Lord Protector, they say there are diuers letters come from Armenia, that Bessus haz done good seruice, and brought againe a day, by his particular valour, receiu'd you any to that effect.

Gob. Yes, tis most certaine.

Bac. I'me sorry for't, not that the day was wonne, but that
'twas wonne by him : we held him here a coward, a did mee wrong once, at which I laughed, and so did all the world, for nor I, nor any other held him worth my sword.

Enter Bessus and Spaconia.

Bes. Health to my Lord Protector, from the King these letters : and to your Grace Madam, these.

Gob. How do s his Maiestie.

Bes. As well as conquest by his owne meanes and his valiant Commanders can make him : your letters will tell you all.

Pan I will not open mine till I doe know
My Brothers health, good Captaine is he well?

Bes. As the best of vs that fought are :

Pan. But how is that ? is he hurt ?

Bes. He is a strange Souldier that gets not a knocke,

Pan. I knowe because how strange that Souldier is
That gets not hurt, but whether he haue onc.

Bes. He is a Souldier,

Pan. And is he well againe?

Bes. Well againe an't please your grace, why I was runne twice through the body, and shot i'th head with a crosse arrow, and yet am well againe.

Pan. I doe not care howv thou do'st, is he vvell?

Bes. Not care howv I doe? let a man out of the mightinesse of his spirit, fructifie forreine countries vwith his blood for the good of his ovvne, and thus hee shall bee answered, Why I may liue to relieue vwith speare and shield, such a Lady as you distressed.

Pan. Why, I vwill care, I'me glad that thou art vvell, I pre'thee is hee so?

Gob. The King is vvell, and will be here to morrow.

Pan. My prayer is heard: now will I open mine.

Gob. Bacchus I must ease you of your charge: Madame the wonted mercy of the King, That ouertakes your faults, haz met with this, And strooke it out, he haz forgiven you freely, Your owne will is your law, be vvhere you please.

Arane. I thanke him.

Gob. You vwill be ready.

To vvaite vpon his Maiestie to morrov.

Arane. I vwill.

Exit Arane.

Bac. Madam be vvise hereafter:

I am glad I haue lost this office.

Gob. Good Captaine Bessus tell vs the discourse betvvixt Tigranes and our King, and howv vvee got the victory.

Pan. I pre'thee doe, and if my Brother vvere in any danger, let not thy tale make him abide there long before thou bring him off, for all that vvhile my heart vwill beat.

Bes. Madam, let vvhat vwill beat, I must tell the truth, and thus it vvas; they fought single in lists, but one to one, as for my owne part, I was dangerously hurt but three dayes before, else perhaps we had beene two to two, I cannot tell, some thought we had, and the occasion of my hurt was this, the enemy had made Trenches.

Gob. Captaine, without the manner of your hurt bee much much materiall to this busines, weele hear't some other time.

Pan. I prethee leaue it, and goe on with my Brother.

Bes. I will, but t'would bee worth your hearing: To the lists they came, and single sword and Gauntlet was their fight.

Pan. Alas.

Bes. Without the lists there stood some dozen Captaines of either side mingled, all which were sworne, and one of those was I; and t'was my chance to stand next a Captaine oth' enemies side, called Tiribasus; Valiant they sayd he was, whilst these two Kings were stretching themselves, this Tiribasus cast something a scornefull looke on me, and ask't mee whom I thought would ouercome: I smile and toid him, if he would fight with me, he should perceiue by the euent of that whose King would win: something he answered, and a scuffle was like to grow, when one Zipetus offered to helpe him, I-

Pan. All this is of thy selfe, I pray thee Bessus Tell something of my brother, did he nothing?

Bes. Why yes, Ile tell your Grace, they were not to fight till the word giuen, which for my owne part by my troth I confesse I was not to giue.

Pan. See for his owne part.

Bac. I feare yet this fellow's abus'd with a good report.

Bes. But I.

Pan. Still of himselfe.

Bes. Cri'd giue the word, when as some of them say, Tigranes was stooping, but the word was not giuen then, yet one Cosroes of the enemies part, held vp his finger to me, which is as much with vs Martialists, as I will fight with you: I sayd not a word, nor made signe during the combate but that once done,

Pan. He slips ore all the fight.

Bes. I call'd him to me, Cosroes sayd I:

Pan. I will heare no more.

Bes. No, no, I lie.

Bac. I dare be sworne thou dost.

Bes. Captaine sayd I, so t'was.

Pan. I tell thee I will heare no further.

Bef. No? your Grace will wish you had.

Pan. I will not wish it, what is this the Lady
My Brother writes to me to take?

Bef. And please your Grace this is shee: Charge will you come neere the Princeffe?

Pan. You'r welcome from your COUNTRY, and this Land Shall shew vnto you all the kindnesse
That I can make it; What's your name?

Spa. Thalestris.

Pan. Y'are very welcome, you haue got a letter
To put you to me, that haz power enough
To place mine enemy here; then much more you,
That are so farre from being so to me
That you ne're saw me.

Bef. Madame, I dare passe my word for her trueth;

Spa. My trueth?

Pan. Why Captaine, doe you thinke I am afraid shee steale?

Bef. I cannot tel, seruants are slippery, but I dare giue my word for her, and for honesty, she came along with mee, and many fauours she did me by the way, but by this light, none but what she might doe with modesty, to a man of my ranck.

Pan. Why Captaine, her's nobody thinks otherwise.

Bef. Nay, if you should, your Grace may thinke your pleasure; but I am sure I brought her from Armenia, and in all that way, if euer I touch'd any bare of her aboute her knee, I pray God I may sinke where I stand.

Spa. Aboute my knee?

Bef. No, you know I did not, and if any man will say I did, this sword shall answer; Nay, He defend the reputation of my Charge whilst I liue; your Grace shall vnderstand
I am secret in these businesse, and know how to defend a Ladies honour.

Spa. I hope your Grace knowes him so well already,
I shall not need to tell you hee's vaine and foolish.

Bef. I, you may call mee what you please, but He defend your good name against the world; and so I take my leaue of your Grace, and of you my Lord Protector; I am likewise glad to see your Lordship well.

Bac. O Captaine Bessus, I thanke you, I would speake with you anon.

Bes When you please, I wil attend your Lordship Exit Bac.

Bac. Madam, Ile take my leaue too.

Pan. Good Bacurium.

Gob. Madam, what writes his Maiestie to you?

Pan. O my Lord,

The kindest wordes, Ile keepe'em whilst I liue,
Here in my bosome, ther's no art in'em
They lie disordered in this paper, iust
As hearty nature speakes'em.

Gob. And to me

He writes what reares of ioy he shud to heare
How you were growne in euery vertues way,
And yeelds all thanks to me, for that deare care
Which I was bound to haue in trayning you
There is no Prince, she liuing that enioyes
A Brother of that worth.

Pan. My Lord, no maid longs more for any thing, and feels more heate and cold within her brest, then I doe now,
In hope to see him.

Gob. Yet I wonder much at this, he writes, he brings along with him, a husband for you, that same captiue Prince,
And if he loue you as he makes a shew,
He will allow you freedome in your choise.

Pan. And so he will my Lord, I warrant you,
He will but offer, and giue me the power
To take or leaue.

Gob. Trust me, were I a Lady, I could not like
That man were bargain'd with before I chase him

Pan. But I am not built on such wild humours,
If I find him worthy, he is not lesse
Because hee's offerd.

Spa. 'Tis true, hee is not, would he would seeme lesse.

Gob. I thinke ther's no Lady can affect Another Prince, your brother standing by;

He doeth eclipse mens vertues so with his.

Spa. I know a Lady may, and more I feare Another Lady will.

Pan. Would I might see him.

Gob: Why so you shall: my businessses are great,
I will attend you when it is his pleasure to see you.

Pan. I thanke you good my Lord.

Gob. You will be ready Madam. Exit Gob.

Pan. Yes.

Spa. I doe beseech you Madam send away
Your other women, and receiue from me
A few sad words, which set against your ioyes
May make'em shine the more.

Pan. Sirs leaue-me all.

Exeunt women.

Spa. I kneele a stranger here to beg a thing,
Vnfit for me to aske, and you to grant,
'Tis such another strange ill-layd-request,
As if a begger should intreat a King
To leaue his Scepter, and his throne to him
And take his rags to wander o're the world
Hungry and cold.

Pan. That were a strange request.

Spa. As ill is mine.

Pan. Then doe not vtter it.

Spa. Alas, 'tis of that nature, that it must Be vtter'd, I, and granted, or I die:
I am asham'd to speake it, but where life
Lies at the stake, I cannot thinke her woman
That will not take something vnreasonably
To hazzard sauing of it: I shall seeme
A strange petitioner, that wish all ill
To them I beg of, ere they giue me ought,
Yet so I must: I would you were not faire,
Nor wise, for in your ill consists my good:
If you were foolish, you would heare my prayer,
If foule, you had not power to hinder me:
He would not loue you.

Pan. What's the meaning of it?

Spa. Nay my request is more without the bounds
Of reason yet ; for 'tis not in the power
Of you to doe, what I would haue you grant.

Pan. Why then 'tis idle, pray thee speake it out.

Spa. Your brother brings a Prince into this land,
Of such a noble shape, so sweet a grace,
So full of worth withall, that euery maide
That lookes vpon him, giues away her selfe
To him for euer ; and for you to haue
He brings him : and so mad is my demaund,
That I desire you not to haue this man,
This excellent man, for whom you needs must die,
If you should misse him, I doe now expect
You should laugh at me.

Pan. Trust me, I could weepe
Rather, for I haue found in all thy words
A strange disioynted sorrow.

Spa. 'Tis by me,

His owne desire so, that you would not loue him,

Pan. His owne desire, why credit me Thales's
I am no common woer : If he shall woe me,
His worth may be such, that I dare not sweare
I will not loue him ; but if he will stay
To haue me woe him, I will promise thee
He may keepe all his graces to himselfe,
And feare no rauishing from me,

Spa. Tis yet

His owne desire, but when he sees your face,
I feare it will not be ; therefore I charge you
As you haue pittie, stop those tender cares
From his enchanting voice, close vp those eyes,
That you may neither catch a dart from him,
Nor he from you ; I charge you as you hope
To liue in quiet, for when I am dead
For certaine I will walke to visite him
If he breake promise with me : for as fast
As oath's without a formall ceremony

Can make me, I am to him.

Pan. Then be fearelesse,
For if he were a thing t'wixt God and man,
I could gaze on him; if I knew it sinne
To loue him without passion: Dry your eyes,
I sweare you shall enioy him still for me,
I will not hinder you; but I perceiue
You are not what you seeme: Rise, rise Thalestris,
If your right name, be, so.

Spa. Indeed it is not,
Spaconia is my name; but I desire
Not to be knowne to others.

Pan Why, by me you shall not,
I will neuer doe you wrong,
What good I can, I will, thinke not my birth
Or education such, that I should iniure
A stranger Virgin; you are welcome hither,
In company you wish to be commanded,
But when we are alone, I shalbe ready
To be your seruant.

Exeunt.

Enter three men and a woman.

- 1 Come, come, run, run, run.
- 2 We shall outgoe her.
- 3 One were better bee hang'd, then carry out women fidling to these shewes.

Wom. Is the King hard by?

1 You heard he with the bottles sayd, hee thought wee shou'd come too late: What abundance of people here is?

Wom. But what had he in those bottles:

3 I know not.

2 Why Inke goodman scole.

3 Inke, what to doe?

1 Why, the King looke you, will many times call for those bottels, and breake his minde to his friends.

Wom. Let's take our places, wee shall haue no roome else.

2 The man told vs hee would walke afoote through the people.

3 I marry did he.

1 Our shops are well look't-to now.

2 S'life, yonder's my master, I thinke,

1 No, 'tis not he.

Enter a man with two Citizens wines.

1 Cit. Lord, how fine the fields bee, what sweet living 'tis in the Country ?

2 Cit. I, poore soules, God helpe 'em; they liue as contentedly as one of vs.

1 Cit. My husbands coufen would haue had me gone into the Country last yeare, wert thou euer there ?

2 Cit. I, poore soules, I was amongst 'em once.

1 Cit. And what kind of creatures are they, for lone of God ?

2 Cit. Very good people God helpe 'em.

1 Cit. Wilt thou goe downe with me this summer, when I am brought to bed ?

2 Cit. Alas, it is no place for vs.

1 Cit. Why pray thee ?

1 Cit. Why can haue nothing there; ther's no body cryes broomes.

1 Cit. No ?

2 Cit. No truely, nor milke.

1 Cit. Nor milke, how doe they ?

2 Cit. They are faine to milke themselues i'the country.

1 Cit. Good Lord: but the people there I think will be very dutifull to one of vs.

1 Cit. I, God knows will they, and yet they do not greatly care for our husbands.

1 Cit. Doe they not, alas ? I'good faith I cannot blame them: for we doe not greatly care for them our selues.

Phillip I pray choose vs a place.

Phil. Ther's the best forsooth.

1 Cit. By your leaue good people a little

3 What's the matter ?

Phil. I pray you my friend doe not thrust my Mistris so, shee's with childe.

2 Let her looke to her selfe then, haz shee not had showing showing enough yet; if shee stay shouldring here, she may haps goe home with a cake in her belly.

3 How now Goodman Squitter-breech, why doe you leane on me?

Phil. Because I will.

3 Will you sir sauce-boxe:

1 Cit. Looke if one ha' not strooke Phillip, come hithee Phillip, why did he strike thee?

Phil. For leaning on him.

1 Cit. Why didst thou leane on him?

Phil. I did not thinke he vvould haue strooke me.

1 Cit. As God saue mee la, thou'rt as vvild as a Bucke, ther's no quarrell but thou'rt at one one end or other on't.

3 It's at the first end then, for hee'le nere stay the last.

1 Cit. Well slip string, I shall meete vvith you:

3 When you vvill.

1 Cit. He giue a crowne to meete vvith you.

3 At a Bavvdy house.

1 Cit. I, you're full of your roguery; but if I doe meete you, it shall cast me a fall.

Flourish, Enter one running.

4 The King, the King, the King, the King,
Novv, novv, novv, novv.

Flourish: Enter Arbace, Tigranes, the two Kings, & Mardonius

Al. God preferue your Maiestie.

Arb. I thanke you all, novv are my ioyes at full,
When I behold you safe, my louing Subiects;
By you I grow, 'tis your vnitied loue
That lifts me to this height:

All the account that I can render you
For al the loue you haue bestowed on me,
All your expences to maintaine my vvarre,
Is but a little vvord, you vvill imagine
'Tis slender payment, yet 'tis such a vvord
As is not to be bought, but vvith your bloods,
'Tis peace.

All God preferue your Maiestie.

Arb. Novv you may liue securely i' your townes.

Your children round about you ; you may sit
 Vnder your vines, and make the miseries
 Of other kingdomes, a discourse for you,
 And lend them sorrowes : For your selues, you may Safely forget there are such things as teares,
 And you may all, whose good thoughts I haue gain'd
 Hold me vnworthy, where I thinke my life
 A sacrifice too great to keepe you thus
 In such a calme estate.

All. God blesse your Maiestie.

Arb. See all good people, I haue brought the man,
 Whose very name you fear'd, a captiue home ;
 Behold him, 'tis Tigranes ; In your heart
 Sing songs of gladnesse, and deliuerance.

1. Cit. Out vpon him.

2. Cit. How he looks.

3. Wom. Hang him, hang him.

Mard. These are sweet people.

Tigr. Sir, you doe mee wrong,
 To render me a scorned spectacle
 To common people.

Arb. It was so farre from me
 To meane it so : if I haue ought deseru'd,
 My louing Subjects let me begge of you
 Not to reuile this Prince, in whom there dwells
 All worth of which the nature of a man
 Is capable, valour beyond compare,
 The terrour of his name haz stretcht it selfe
 Where euer there is sunne : and yet for you
 I fought with him single, and won him too ;
 I made his valleur stoope, and brought that name,
 Soar'd to so vn-belieu'd a height, to fall
 Beneath mine : This inspir'd with all your loues,
 I did performe, and well for your content
 Be euer ready for a greater word.

All. The Lord blesse your Maiestie.

Tigr. So he haz made me amends now, with a speech in commendation of himselfe: I would not be so vaine-glorious.

Ab. If there be any thing in which I may
 Doe good to any creature, here, speake out;
 For I must leaue you: and it troubles me,
 That my occasions for the good of you,
 Are such as call me from you; else, my ioy
 Would be to spend my dayes amongst you all,
 You shew your loues in these large multitudes
 That come to meete me, I will pray for you,
 Heauen prosper you, that you may know old yeares,
 And liue to see your Childrens Children
 Sit at your boards with plenty: when there is
 A want of any thing, let it be knowne
 To me, and I will be a father to you:
 God keepe you all.

Flourish,

Exeunt Kings and their traine.

All. God blesse your Maiesty, God blesse your Maiesty.

1 Come, shall we goe? all's done.

Wom. I for Gods sake, I haue not made a fire yet.

2 Away, away, all's done.

3 Content, farewell Phillip.

1 Cit. Away you halter-facke you.

2 Phillip wil not fight, hee's afraid on's face.

Phil I marry am I afraid of my face.

3 Thou would'st be Phillip, if thou saw'st it in a glasse; it lookes so like a visour.

Exeunt 2, 3, and women.

1 Cit. You'le be hang'd firra: Come Phillip walke afore vs homewards; did not his Maiesty say hee had brought vs home Pease for all our money?

2 Cit. Yes marry did he.

1 Cit. The'are the first I heard on this yeare by my troth,
 I long'd for some of em? did he not say we should haue some?

2 Cit. Yes, and so we shal anon I warrant you haue euery one a pecke brought home to our houses.

Actus.

Actus Tertius.

Euter Arbaces and Gobrias.

Arb. MY Sister take it ill?
Gob. Not very ill,

Something unkindly she does take it 'Sir,
To haue her husband chosen to her hands.

Arb. Why Gobrias let her, I must haue her know
My will, and not her owne, must gouerne her:
What will shee marry with some slave at home?

Gob. O shee is farre from any itabbornesse,
You much mistake her, and no doubt will like
Where you will haue her; but when you behold her
You will be loath to part with such a iewell?

Arb. To part with her, why Gobrias, art thou mad?
Shee is my sister.

Gob. Sir, I know shee is:
But it were pittie to make poore our Land
With such a beauty, to enrich another.

Arb. Pish, will she haue him?

Gob. I doe hope she will not, I thinke she will sir.

Arb. Were she my Father, and my Mother too,
And all the names for which we thinke folkes friends,
She should be forc't to haue him when I know
'Tis fit: I wil' not heare her say shee's loath.

Gob. Heauen bring my purpose luckily to passe
You know' is iust, shee will not need constraint
Shee loues you so.

Arb. How does she loue me, speake?

Gob. She lones you more then people loue their health,
That live by labour; more then I could loue
A man that died for mee, if he could live againe.

Arb. She is not like her Mother then.

Gob. O no, when you were in Armenia,
I durst not let her know when you were hurt:
For at the first on euery little scratch,

She kept her chamber, wept, and could not eate,
Till you were well, and many times the newes
Was so long comming, that before we heard
She was as neere her death, as your health.

Arb. Alas poore soule, but yet she must be rul'd;
I know not how I shall requite her well.
I long to see her: haue you sent for her,
To tell her I am ready?

Gob. Sir I haue.

Ent. I. Gent. and Tigranes

i. Gent. Sir, here is the Armenian King.

Arb. Hee's welcome.

i. Gent. And the Queene-Mother, and the Princesse
waite without.

Arb. Good Gobrias bring'em in.

Tigranes you will thinke you are ariu'd
In a strange Land, where Mothers cast to poyson
Their onely sonnes; thinke you you shall be safe?

Tigr. Too safe I am sir.

Enter Gobrias, Arane, Panthea, Spaconia, Bascurius, Mardonius
and Bessus, and two Gentlemen.

Arane. As low as this I bow to you, and would
As low as is my grave to shew a mind
Thankfull for all your mercies.

Arb. O stand vp,
And let me kneele, the light will be asham'd
To see obseruance doe to me by you.

Ara. You are my King.

Arb. You are my mother, rise;
As farr be all your faults from your owne soule,
As from my memorie; then you shall be
As white as innocences her selfe.

Ara. I came
Onely to shew my duty, and acknowledge
My Sorrowes for my sinnes; longer to stay
Were but to draw eyes more attentiuely
Vpon my shame: That power that kept you safe
From me, preserue you still.

Ara. Your owne desires shall be your guide. Exit Arane.

Pan. Now let me die,
 Since I haue seene my Lord the King return
 In safety, I haue seene all good that life
 Can shew me ; I haue nere another wish
 For heauen to grant, nor were it fit I should :
 For I am bound to spend my age to come
 In giuing thanks that this was granted me.

Gob. Why does not your Maiestie sp:ake ?

Arb. To whom ?

Gob. To the Princeesse.

Pan. Alas Sir, I am fearefull you doe looke
 On me, as it I were some loathed thing
 That you were finding out a way to shunne.

Gob. Sir, you should speake to her.

Arb. Ha ?

Pan. I know I am vnworthy, yet not ill
 Arm'd, with which innocence here I will kneele,
 Till I am one with earth, but I will gaine
 Some words and kindnesse from you.

Tigr. Will you speake Sir ;

Arb. Speake, am I vvhath I vvas ?

What art thou that doest creepe into my breast,
 And darst not see my face ? show foorth thy selfe
 I feele a payre of fiery wings displai'd
 Hither, from hence: you shall not carry there,
 Vp and be gone, if thou beest Loue, be gone.
 Or I will teare thee from my vvwounded breast,
 Pull thy lou'd downe away, and with thy quill
 By this right arme drawn from thy wanton wing
 Write to thy laughing Mother i'thy bloud,
 That you are Powers beli'd, and all your darts
 Are to be blowae away by men resola'd
 Like dust ; I know thou fear'st my words, away.

Tigr. O miserie, why should he be so slow,
 There can no falshood come of louing her,
 Though I haue giuen my faith ; shee is a thing
 Both to be leu'd and seru'd beyond my faith :
 I would he would present me to her quickly.

Pan. Will you not speake at all? are you so farre
From kind words? yet to saue my modesty
That must talke till you answere, do not stand
As you were dumbe, say something, though it be Poyson'd with anger that it may strike me dead.

Mar. Haue you no life at all? for manhood sake
Let her not kneele, and talke neglected thus;
A tree would find a tongue to answere her,
Did shee but giue it such a lou'd respect.

Arb. You meane this Lady: lither from the earth;
Why doe you let her kneele so long? alas,
Madame your beauty vses to command,
And not to beg; what is your sute to me?
It shall be granted, yet the time is short,
And my aff'ires are great: but what's my Sister?
I bad she should be brought.

Mar. What is he mad?

Arb. Gobrias, where is shee?

Gob. Sir.

Arb. Where is she man?

Gob. Who Sir?

Arb. Who hast thou forgot my Sister?

Gob. Your Sister sir?

Arb. Your Sister sir? some one that hath a wit, answere;
where is she.

Gob. Doe you not see her there?

Arb. Where?

Gob. There.

Arb. There, where?

Mar. S'light there, are you blind?

Arb. Which doe you meane, that little one?

Gob. No Sir.

Arb. No sir why doe you mocke me? I can see
No other here but that petitioning Lady.

Gob. That's she,

Arb. Away.

Gob. Sir, it is shee.

Arb. I istalle.

Gob. Is it?

Arb. As hell by heauen, as false as hell,
My sifter: is she dead? if it be so,
Speake boldly to me: for I am a man
And dare not quarrell with Diuinity;
And doe not thinke to conserne me with this:
I see you all are mute, and stand amaz'd,
Fearefull to answer me; it is too true,
A decreed instant cut's off eu'ry life,
For which to inourne, is to repine; She di'de
A Virgin, though more innocent then sheepe,
As cleare as her owne eyes, and blessednesse
Eternall waits vpon her where shee is:
I know she could not make a wish to change
Her state for new, and you shall see me beare
My crosses like a man; wee all must die,
And she hath taught vs how.

Gob. Doe not mistake,
And vexe your selfe for nothing; for her death
Is a long life off, I hope: 'Tis shee,
And if my speech deserue not faith, lay death
Vpon me, and my latest words shall force
A credit from you.

Arb. Which good Gobrias?
That Lady dost thou meane?

Gob. That Lady Sir,
She is your sifter, and she is your sifter
That loues you so, 'tis she for whom I weepe
To see you vse her thus.

Arb. It cannot be.

Tigr. Pish, 'tis istedious,
I can not hold, I must present my selfe;
And yet the sight of my Spaconia
Touchnes me, as a sudden thunder-clap
Does one that is about to sinne.

Arb. Away.

No more of this; here I pronounce him traitor,
The direct plotter of my death, that names

Or thinks her for my sister, 'tis a lie,
 The most malicious of the world, inuented
 To mad your King; he that vwill say so next,
 Let him drawv out his svord, and sheath it here,
 It is a sinne fully as pardonable:
 She is no kinne to me, nor shall she be;
 If she vv ere euer, I create her none:
 And vv hich of you can question this? My pover
 Is like the Sea, that is to be obey'd,
 And not disputed vv ith: I have decreed her
 As farre from hauing part of blood vv ith me,
 As the nak'd Indians: come, and ansv ere me,
 He that is boldest novv; is that my sister?

Mar. O this is fine.

Bes. No marry she is not an't please your Maiesty,
 I neuer thought shee vv as shee's nothing like you.

Arb. No, 'tis true, she is not.

Mar. Thou should'st be hang'd.

Par. Sir, I vv ill speake but once: by the same pover
 You make my blood a stranger vv nto yours;
 You may command me dead, and so much loue
 A stranger may importune, pray you doe;
 If this request appeare too much to grant,
 Adopt me of some other Familie,
 By your vnquestion'd vv ord; else I shall liue
 Like sinfull issues that are left in streers
 By their regardlesse Mothers, and no name
 Will be found for me.

Arb. I vv ill heare no more,
 Why should there be such musicke in a voyce,
 And sinne for me to heare it? All the vv orld
 May take delight in this, and 'tis damnation
 For me to doe so: You are faire and vv ise,
 And vertuous I thinke, and he is blest
 That is so neere you as my brother is:
 But you are naught to mee but a disease;
 Continuall torment vv ith out hope of ease;
 Such an vngodly sicknesse I haue got,

That he that vndertakes my cure, must first
 'Ore-throw Diuinity, all morall Lawes,
 And leaue mankind as vnconfi'd as beasts,
 Allowing'em to doe all actions
 As freely as they drinke when they desire.
 Let me not heare you speake againe ; yet see
 I shall but languish for the want of that
 The hauing which would kill me : No man here
 Offer to speake for her ; for I consider
 As much as you can say : I will not toyle
 My body and my mind too, rest thou there,
 Here's one within wil labour for you both.

Pan. I would I were past speaking.

G.b. Feare not Madam,

The King will alter, 'tis some sodaine rage,
 And you sha I see it end some other way.

Pan. Pray heauen it-doe.

Tigr. Though thee to whom I swore, be here, I cannot Stifle my passion longer if my father
 Should rise againe disquieted with this,
 And charge me to forbear, yet it would out,
 Madame, a stranger, and a prisoner begs
 To be bid welcome.

Pan. You are welcome Sir
 I thinke, but if you be not, 'tis past me
 To make you so : for I am here a stranger
 Greater then you : we know from whence you come,
 But I appeare a lost thing, and by whom
 Is yet vncertaine ; found here i'th Court,
 And onely suffer'd to walke vp and downe,
 As one not worth the owning.

Spa. O I feare

Tigranes will be caught, he lookes me thinkes,
 As he would change his eyes with her ; some helpe
 There is about for me I hope.

Tigr. Why doe you turne away and weepe so fast,
 And vtter things that mis-become your lookes,
 Can you want owning ?

Spa. O'tis certaine so.

Tigr. Acknowledge your selfe mine.

Arb. How now?

Tigr. And then see if you want an oovner.

Arb. They are talking.

Tigr. Nations shal owne you for their Queene.

Arb. Tigranes, art not thou my prisoner?

Tigr. I am.

Arb. And who is this?

Tigr. Shee is your sister.

Arb. She is so.

Mar. Is shee so againe? thats well.

Arb. And how then dare you offer to change wordes with her?

Tigr. Dare doe it, why? you brought me hither Sir To that intent.

Arb. Perhaps I told you so,

If I had sworne it, had you so much folly
To credit it? The least word that shee speakes
Is worth a life: rule your disordered tongue,
Or I will temper it.

Spa. Blest be the breath.

Tigr. Temper my tongue; such inciuilities
As these, no barbarous people euer knew:
You breake the laws of Nature, and of Nations,
You talke to me as if I were a prisoner
For theft: my tongue be temper'd? I must speake
If thunder checke me, and I will.

Arb. You will.

Spa. Alas my Fortune.

Tigr. Do not feare his frowne, deare Madam heare me.

Arb. Feare not my frowne? but that'twere bale in mee
To fight with one I know I can'ore-come,
Againe thou should'st be conquer'd by me.

Mar. Hee haz one ranfome with him already; me thinks
'twere good to fight double, or quit.

Arb. Away with him to prison: Now Sir see
If my frowne be regardlesse: why delay you?

Seize him Bacurius, you shall know my word
Sweepes like a wind, and all it grapes with,
Are as the chaffe before it.

Tigr. Touch me not.

Arb. Helpe there.

Tigr. Away

1 Gent. It is in vaine to struggele.

2 Gent. You must be forc't.

Bac. Sir you must pardon vs, vve must obey.

Arb. Why doe you daily there? dragge him away
By any thing.

Bac. Come Sir.

Tigr. Iustice, thou ought'st to giue me strength enough
To shake all these off; This is tyrannie,

Arbaces sutler then the burning Buls,

Or that fran'd Titans bed. Thou might'st as vwell

Search if the deepe of vwinter, through the Snowv

For halfe staru'd people, to bring home vwith thee

To shev'em fire, and send'em backe againe,

As vse me thus.

Arb. Let him be close Bacurius.

Exit Tigr. and Bac.

Spa. I nere reioyc'd at any ill to him,

But this imprisonment: vwhat shall become

Of me forsaken?

Gob. You vwill not let your Sister

Depart thus discontented from you Sir.

Arb. By no meanes Gobrias, I haue done her vvrong,

And made my selfe beleeuue much of my selfe,

That is not in me: You did kneele to me,

Whilst I stood stubborne and regardlesse by,

And like a god incensed, gaue no care

To all your prayers: behold, I kneele to you,

Shev a contempt as large as vvas my ovvne,

And I vwill suffer it, yet at the last forgiue me.

Pan. O you vvrong me more in this,

Then in your rage you did: you mocke me novv.

Arb. Neuer forgiue me then, vvhich is the vvorst can happen to me.

Pan. If you be in earnest,
Stand vp, and giue me but a gentle looke,
And two kind words, and I shall be in heauen.

Arb. Rise you then to heare; I acknowledge thee
My hope, the only ieuell of my life,
The best of sisters, dearer then my breath,
A happinesse as high as I could thinke;
And when my actions call thee otherwise;
Perdition light vpon me.

Pan. This is better
Then if you had not frown'd it comes to me
Like mercy at the blocke, and when I leaue
To serue you with my life, your curse be with mee.

Arb. Then thus I doe salute thee, and againe,
To make this knot the stronger, Paradise
Is there: It may be you are yet in doubt,
This third kisse blots it out, I wade in sine,
And foolishly intice my selfe along;
Take her away, see her a prisoner
In her owne chamber, closely Gobrias.

Pan. Alas Sir, why?

Arb. I must not stay the answer, doe it.

Gob. Good Sir.

Arb. No more, doe it I say.

Mar. This is better and better.

Pan. Yet heare me speake.

Arb. I will not heare you speake,
Away with her, let no man thinke to speake
For such a creature: for shee is a witch,
A poysoner, and a Traytor.

Gob. Madam this Office grieues me.

Pan. Nay, 'tis well the king is pleased with it.

Arb. Bessus, goe you along too with her; I will prooue
All this that I haue sayd, if I may liue
So long: but I am desperately sicke,
For shee haz giuen me poyson in a kisse;
She had't betwixt her lips, and with her eyes
She witches people; goe without a word.

Exeunt Gob, Pan, Bes, & Spa.

Why

Why should you that haue made me stand in warre
 Like fate it selfe, cutting what threds I pleas'd,
 Decree such an vnworthy end of me,
 And all my glories? What am I alas,
 That you oppose me? if my secret thoughts
 Haue euer harbour'd swellings against you,
 They could not hurt you, and it is in you
 To giue me sorrow, that will render me
 Apt to receiue your mercie; rather so,
 Let it be rather so, then punish me
 With such vnmanly sinnes: Incest is in me
 Dwelling already, and it must be holy
 That puls it thence, where ar't Mardonius?

Mar. Heere Sir.

Arb. I pray thee beare me, if thou canst,
 Am I not growne a strange weight?

Mar. As you were.

Arb. No heauier?

Mar. No Sir.

Arb. Why, my legs
 Refuse to beare my body; O Mardonius,
 Thou hast in field beheld me, when thou know'st
 I could haue gone, though I could neuer runne.

Mar. And so I shall againe.

Arb. O no, 'tis past,

Mar. Pray you goe rest your selfe.

Arb. Wilt thou hereafter when they talke of me,
 As thou shalt heare nothing but infamy,
 Remember some of those things?

Mar. Yes, I will.

Arb. I pray thee doe: for thou shalt neuer see me so againe.

Exeunt.

Enter Bessus alone.

Bes. They talke of fame, I haue gotten it in the warres, and will afford any man a reasonable penni-worth: some will say they could be content to haue it, but that it is to be atchieu'd with danger; but my opinion is otherwise; for if I might stand still in Cannon proesse, and haue fame fall vpon

mee, I would refuse it: my reputation came principally by thinking to runne away, which nobody knows but Mardonius and I think he conceales it to anger me. Before I went to the warres, I came to the towne a young fellow, without meanes, or parts to deserue friends; and my empty guts perswaded me to lie, and abuse people for my meate, which I did, and they beate me: then would I fast two dayes, till my hunger cry'd out of me, raile still, then mee thought I had a monstrous stomacke to abuse 'em againe, and did it. In this state I continu'd till they hung me vpb' the heeles, and beate me wihasse stickes, as if they would haue baked mee, and haue coulens'd some body wih mee for Venison: After this I ray'd, and ate quietly: for the whole Kingdome tooke notice of me for a baffel'd whipt fellow, and what I said, was remembred in mirth but neuer in anger, of which I was glad, I would it were at that pisse againe. After this, heauen cald an Aunt of mine that left two hundred pound in a coulens hand for me, who taking me to be a gallant young spirit, ray'd a company for me with the money, and sent me into Armenia wih 'em: Away I would haue runne from them, but that I could get no company, and alone I durst not ranne. I was neuer at battle but once, and there I was running, but Mardonius cudgel'd me; yet I got loose at last, but was so fraide, that I saw no more then my shoulders doe, but fled with my whole company amongst my enemies, and ouerthrew 'em: Now the report of my valour is come ouer before mee, and they say I was a raw young fellow, but now I am improv'd, A plague of their eloquence, 'twill cost mee many a beating: And Mardonius might helpe this too, if he would; for now they thinke to get honour on me, and all the men I haue abused call me freshly, worthily, as they call it, by the way of Challenge.

Enter a Gent.

3. Gent. Good morrow Captaine Bessus.

Bes. Good morrow sir,

2. Gent. I come to speake with you.

Bes. You're very welcome.

3. Gent. From one that holds himselfe wrong'd by you some three yeares since: your worth hee saies is fam'd, and he

he doth nothing doubt but you will doe him right, as be-seemes a souldier.

Bef. A pox on'em, so they cry all.

3 Gent. And a slight note I haue about me for you, for the deliery of which you must excuse me; it is an office that friendship cal's vpon me to doe, and no way offensive to you;
since I desire but right on both sides.

Bef. 'Tis a challenge Sir is it not?

3 Gent. 'Tis an iauiting to the field.

Bef. An iauiting? O cry you mercie, what a complement he deliuers it with? he might as agreable to my nature, present me poyson with such a speech: vnm vnm vnm reputation, vnm vnm vnm call you to account, vnm vnm vnm forc'd to this, vnm vnm vnm with my sword, vnm vnm vnm like a gentleman, vnm vnm vnm deare to me, vnm vnm vnm satisfaction: 'Tis very well Sir, I doe accept it, but he must awaite an answere
this thirteene weekes.

3 Gent. Why Sir, he would be glad to vvipe off his staine as soone as he could.

Bef. Sir, vpon my credit I am already ingag'd to two hundred and tweluz, all which must haue their staines vvipt off, if that be the word, before him.

3 Gent. Sir, if you bee truly ingag'd but to one, hee shall stay a competent time.

Bef. Vpon my faith Sir, to two hundred and twelue, and I haue a spent body, too much bruis'd in barte, so that I cannot fight, I must bee plaine, aboue three combats a day: All the kindnesse I can shew him, is to set him resolu'dly in my roule, the two hundreth and thirteenth man, which is something for I tell you, I thinke there will bee more after him then before him, I thinke so, pray you commend me to him, and tell him this.

3 Gent. I will Sir, good morrov to you. Exit 3 Gent.

Bef. Good morrow good Sir. Certainly my safest way were to print my selfe a coward, with a discouery how I came by my credit, and clap it vpon euery post: I haue re-ceiued aboue thirty challenges within this two houres, marry all but the first I put off with ingageiment, and by good fortune

fortune, the first is no madder of fighting then I, so that that's referd, the place where it must be ended, is foure dayes iourney off, and our arbitratours are these: Hee haz chosen a Gentleman in trauaile, and I haue a speciall friend with a quartaine ague, like to hold him this five yeare, for mine; and when his man comes home we are to expect my friends health: If they would find mee Challenges thus thicke, as long as I liu'd, I would haue no other liuing; I can make seauen shillings a day o'th paper to the Grocers: yet I learne nothing by all these but a little skill in comparing of stiles. I doe find evidently, that there is some one Scriuener in this Towne, that haz a great hand in writing of Challenges, for they are all of a cut, and fixe of 'em in a hand; and they all end my reputation is deare to mee, and I must require satisfaction: Who's there? more paper I hope, no, tis my Lord Bacchius, I feare all is not well betwixt vs. Enter Bac.

Bac. Now Captaine Bessus, I come about a friuolous matter, caus'd by as idle a report: you know you were a coward.

Bes. Very right.

Bac. And wronged me.

Bes. True my Lord.

Bac. But now people will call you valiant, desertlessly I thinke, yet for their satisfaction, I will haue you fight with me.

Bes. O my good Lord, my deepe engagements.

Bac. Tell not me of your iagagements, Captaine Bessus; it is not to be put off with an excuse: for my owne part, I am none of the multitude that beleeue your conuersion from coward.

Bes. My Lord, I seeke not quarrels, and this belongs not to me, I am not to maintaine it.

Bac. Who then pray?

Bes. Bessus the coward wrong'd you.

Bac. Right.

Bes. And shall Bessus the valiant, maintaine what Bessus the coward did?

Bac. I pray thee leaue these cheating trickes, I sweare thou shalt fight with mee, or thou shalt be beat extremely,

and kick'd

Bes. Since you prouoke me thus farre my Lord, I will fight with you, and by my Sword it shall cost me twenty pound, but I will haue my leg well a week sooner purposely.

Bac. Your legge? Why? what ayles your legge? I do a cure on you, stand vp.

Bes. My Lord, this is not noble in you.

Bac. What doest thou with such a phrase in thy mouth,
I will kicke thee out of all good wordes before I leaue thee.

Bes. My Lord, I take this as a punishment for the offence
I did when I was a coward.

Bac. When thou wert? confesse thy selfe a coward still,
or by this light ile beate thee into sponge.

Bes. Why I am one.

Bac. Are you so Sir? and why do your were a sword then?
Come vn buckle, quicke.

Bes. My Lord.

Bac. Vn buckle say, and giue it me, or as I liue thy head will ake extremely.

Bes. It is a pretty hilt, and if your Lord-ship take an affection to it, with all my heart I present it to you for a new-years gift.

Bac. I thanke you very heartily, sweet Captaine farewell.

Bes. One word more, I beseech your Lordship to render me my knife againe.

Bac. Marry by all meanes Captaine, cherish your selfe with it, and eate hard good Captaine; wee cannot tell whether we shall haue any more such: Adue deere Capraine.

Exit Bacchius.

Bes. I will make better vse of this then of my sword: A base spirit haz this vantage of a braue one; it leep, alwaies at a stay, nothing brings it downe, not beating. I remember
I promis'd the King in a great audience, that I would make my backbiters eate my sword to a knife, how to get another sword I know not, nor know any means left for me to maintaine my credit but impudence: Therefore I will out-swear hym and all his followers, that this is all that's left vneaten of my sword.

Exit Bessus.

Enter Mardonius.

Mar. He moue the King, he is most strangely alter'd; I guesse the cause I feare too right heauen haz some secret end in't. and 'tis a scourge no question iustly layd vpon him: He haz followed me through twenty roomes, and euer when I stay to wait his command, he bushes like a girle, and looks vpon me, as if modestly kept. in his busin'sse: so turns away from me, but if I goe on, he followes me againe. Ent Arba. See, heere he is, I doe not vse this, yet I know not how, I cannot chuse but weepe to see him: his very enemies I thinke, whose wounds haue bred his fame, if they shoul see him now, would find teares i'their eyes.

Arb. I cannot vtter it, why should I keepe
A breast to harbour thoughts? I dare not speake:
Darker esse is in my bosome, and there lyes
A thousand thoughts that cannot brooke the light:
How wilt thou vex me when this deed is done?
Conscience, that art afraid to let me name it.

Mar. How doe you sir?

Arb. Why very well Mardonius, how dost thou doe?

Mar. Better then you I feare:

Arb. I hope thou art; for to be plaine with thee,
Thou art in hell else, secret scorching flames
That farre transcend earthly materiall fires
Are crept into me, and there is no cure,
Is it not strange Mardonius, ther's no cure?

Mar. Sir, either I mistake, or there is something hid
That you would vtter to me.

Arb. So there is, but yet I cannot doe it.

Mar. Out with it Sir, if it be dangerous I will not shrink
To doe you seruice. I shall not esteeme my life a waightier matter then indeed it is, I know 'tis subiect to more chances then it haz houres, and I were better loose it in my Kings cause, then with an ague, or a fall, or sleeping to a thiefe; as all these are probable enough: let me but know what I shall doe for you.

Arb. It will not out: were you with Gobrias.

And

And bid him giue my sister all content
The place affords, and giue her leaue to send
And speake to whom she please?

Mar. Yes sir, I was.

Arb. And did you to Bacurius say as much About Tigranes?

Mar. Yes.

Arb. That's all my businesse.

Mar. O say not so,

You had an answer of this before;
Besides, I thinke this businesse might be vtter'd
More carelesly.

Arb. Come, thou shalt haue it out; I doe beseech thee
By all the loue thou hast profest to mee,
To see my sister from me.

Mar. Well, and what?

Arb. That's all.

Mar. That's strange, I shall say nothing to her?

Arb. Not a word;

But if thou louest me, find some subtrill way
To make her vnderstand by signes.

Mar. But what shall I make her vnderstand;

Arb. O Mardonius, for that I must be pardon'd,

Mar. You may, but I can only see her then.

Arb. 'Tis true;

Bear her this Ring then, and one more aduice
Thou shalt speake to her: tell her I doe loue
My kinred all; wilt thou?

Mar. Is there no more?

Arb. O yes, and her the best;

But then any brother loues his sister: That's all.

Mar. Me thinkes his

Need not haue bene deliuered with such a caution;
He doe it.

Arb. There is more yet,

Wilt thou be faithfull to me?

Mar. Sir, If I take vpon me to deliuer it, after I heare it,
He passe through fire to doe it.

Arb. I loue her better then a brother ought ;
Doest thou conceiue me ?

Mar. I hope you doe not Sir.

Arb. No, then art dull, kneele down before her,
And nere rise againe, till she will loue me.

Mar. Why, I thinke shee does.

Arb. But better then shee does, another way ;
As wines loue husbands.

Mar. Why, I thinke there are few wiues that loue their Husbands, better then shee does you,

Arb. Thou wilt not vnderstand me : is it fit
This should be vttered plainly ; take it then
Naked as it is : I would desire her loue
Lasciuiously, lewdly, incestuously,
To doe a sinne, that needs must damne vs both ;
And thee too : Dost thou vnderstand me now ?

Mar. Yes, ther's your Ring againe ; What haue I done
Dishonestly in my whole life, name it
That you should put so base a businesse to me ?

Arb. Didst thou not tell me thou would'st doe it ?

Mar. Yes, if I vndertooke it, but if all
My haire were liues, I would not be engag'd
In such a case to saue my last life.

Arb. O guilt, how poore, and weake a thing art thou ?
This man that is my seruant, whom my breath
Might blow about the world, might beate me here
Hauing this cause, whilst I prest downe with sinne
Could not resist him, heare Mardonius
It was a motion mis-beseeming man,
And I am sorry for it.

Mar. Heauen grant you may be so: you must vnderstand, nothing that you can vter, can remoue my loue and seruice from my Prince. But otherwise, I thinke I shall not loue you more. For you are sinful, and if you doe this crime, you ought to haue no lawes. For after this, it will be great iniu-stice in you to punish any offender for any crime: For my selfe I find my heart too big: I feele I haue not patience to looke on whilst you runne these forbidden courses: Meanes

I haue none but your Favour, and I am rather glad that I shall loose 'em both together, then keepe'em with such conditions, I shall find a dwelling amongst some people, where though our garments perhaps be courter, we shall be richer farre within, and harbour no such vices in'em: the Gods preserue you, and mend.

Ab. Mardonius, stay Mardonius, For though
 My present state requires nothing but knaues,
 To bee about me, such as are prepar'd
 For every wicked act yet who does know
 But that my loathed Fate may turne about,
 And I haue vsf for honest men againe:
 I hope I may, I prethee leaue me not.

Enter Bessus.

Bes. Where is the King?

Mar. There.

Bes. An't please your Maiesty, ther's the knife.

Arb. What knife?

Bes. The sword is eaten.

Mar. Away you Foole, the King is serious,
 And cannot now admit your vanities.

Bes. Vanities, I'me no honest man if my enemies haue not brought it to this, what doe you thinke I lie?

Arb. No, no, 'tis well Bessus, 'tis very well, I'me glad on't.

Mar. If your enemies brought it to this, your enemies are Cutlers, come, leaue the King.

Bes. Why, may not valour approach him?

Mar. Yes, but he haz affaires, depart, or I shall be something vnmanly vwith you.

Arb. No let him stay Mardonius, let him stay,
 I haue occasion vwith him very vweighty,
 And I can spare you now.

Mar. Sir.

Arb. Why I can spare you now.

Bes. Mardonius giue vway to the state affaires.

Mar. indeed you are fitter for his present purpose.

Exit Mar.

Arb. Bessus, I should employ thee, vwith thou do't.

Bef. Do't for you, by this ayre I will do any thing w out exception, be it a good, bad, or indifferent thing.

Arb. Doe not sweare.

Bef. By this light but I will any thing whatsoeuer.

Arb. But I shall na ne the thing

Thy conscience will not suffer thee to doe.

Bef. I would faine heare that thing.

Arb. Why I would haue thee get my sister for me :
Thou vnderstand't me, in a wicked manner.

Bef. O you would haue a bout with her?

He do't, He do't, I faith.

Arb. Wit thou, lo'st thou make no more en't?

Bef. More? no, why is there any thing else? if there be me, it shall be done too.

Arb. Hast thou no greater sence of such a sinne?

Thou art too wicked for my company,

Though I haue hell within me, and may't yet

Corrupt me further : pray thee answere me,

How doe I shew to thee after this motion :

Bef. Why your Maiesty lookes as well in my opinion, as euer you did since you were borne,

Arb. But thou appear'st to mee after thy grant,

The ugliest, lo theed, detestable thing

That I haue euer met with. Thou hast eyes

Like the flames of sulphur which my thinkes doe dart

Infection on me, and thou hast a mouth

Enough to take me in where there doe stand

Four rows of Iron teeth,

Bef. I feele no such thing, but'tis no matter how I looke,
He doe your business as well as they that looke better, and when this is dispatch'd, if you haue a mind to your Mother,
tell me, and you shall see He see it hard.

Arb. My Mother, heauen forgive me to heare this,
I am inspir'd with horreur : now I hate thee
Worse then my sinne, which if I could come by,
Should suffer death eternall nere to rise
In any breast againe. Know I will dye
Languishing madde, as I resolue I shall,
Ere I will deale by such an instrument :

Thou

Thou art too sinfull to imploy in this;
Out of the world, away.

Bes. What doe you meane Sir?

Ab. Hung round with curses take thy fearefull flight
Into the deserts, where'mongst all the monsters
If thou find'st one so beastly as thy selfe,
Thou shalt be held as innocent.

Bes. Good Sir.

Ab. If there were no such instruments as thou,
We Kings could neuer act such wicked deedes:
Seeke out a man that mockes Diuinity,
That breaks each precept both of Gods and mans,
And natures too, and does it without lust,
Meerely because it is a law, and good,
And liue with him: for him thou canst not spoyle.
Away I say, I will not doe this sinne.
He presse it here, till it doe breake my breast,
It heau's to get out, but thou art a sinne,
And spight of torture I will keepe thee in.

Exit Bessie.

The end of the third Act.

Actus Quartus.

Enter Gobrias, Panthesa, Spaconia.

Gob. HAue you written Madaine,
Pan. Yes good Gobrias.

Gob. And with a kindnesse, and such winning words
As may prouoke him at one instant feele
His double fault, your wrong, and his owne rashnesse?

Pan. I haue sent words enough if words may winne him
From his displeasure; and such words I hope
As shall game much vpon his goodnesse, Gobrias,
Yet tearing since they are many, and a woemens,
A poore belife may follow, I haue wouen
As many truths within'em to speake for me,
That if he be but gracious and receiue'em.

Gob. Good I haue beene fearefull, though hee should not
Giue you your present end in this; beleeue it,

You shall feele, if your vertue can induce you
 To labour on't, this tempest vvhich I know
 Is but a poore prooffe gainst your patience:
 All those contents, your spirit vwill arine at,
 Nevver and svveter to you; your Royall Brother,
 When he shall once collect himselfe, and see
 How far he haz bin asunder from himselfe;
 What a meere stranger to his golden temper:
 Must from those rootes of vertue, nevver dying
 Though somevvhat stopt vvith humor, shoot againe
 Into a thousand glories, bearing his faire branches
 High as our hopes can looke at straight as iustice,
 Loaden vvith ripe contents, he loues you decreely,
 I know it and I hope I need not farther
 Winne you to vnderstand it.

Pan. I bekeue it.

But howvsoeuer, I am sure I loue him dearly;
 So dearly, that if any thing I write
 For my enlarging should beget his anger,
 Heauen be a witnessse with me and my faith,
 I had rather lye into r'bd here.

Gob. You shall not feele a worse stroake then your grieffe,
 I am sorry tis so tharp: I kisse your hand,
 And this night will deliuer this true story,
 With this hand to your brother.

Pan. Peace goe with you, you are a good man. Ex. Go.
 My paconia why are you euer sad thus?

Spa. O d are Lady!

Pan. Pr thee discover not a way to sadnesse,
 Neerer then I have in me, our two sorrowes
 Worke like two eager Hawkes, who shall get highest:
 How shall I lessen thine, for mine I feare
 Is easier knowne then car'd,

Spa. Heauen comfort both,
 And giue you happy ends, how euer I
 Fall in my stubborne fortunes.

Pan. This but teaches
 How to be more familiar with our sorrowes,

That are too much our Masters : good Spaconia
How shall I doe you seruice ?

Spa. Noblest Lady,
You make me more a slave still to your goodnesse,
And only liue to purchase thanks to pay you,
For that is all the businesse, of my life now
I will be bold, since you will haue it so,
To aske a noble fauour of you.

Pan. Speake it, 'tis yours, for from so sweet a vertue,
No ill demand haz issue.

Spa. Then euer vertuous, let me begge your will
In helping me to see the Prince Tigranes,
With whom I am equall prisoner, if not more.

Pan. Reserue me to a greater end Spaconia;
Bacurins cannot want so much good manners
As to deny your gentle visitation,
Though you came only with your owne command.

Spa. I know they will deny me gracious Madam,
Being a stranger, and so little fam'd
So vtter empty of these excellencies,
That tame authority ; but in you sweet Lady,
All these are naturall ; beside, a power
Deriu'd immediate from your Reyall Brother,
Whose least word in you, may command the kingdome.

Pan. More then my word Spaconia, you shall carry,
For feare it faile you.

Spa. Dare you trust a token ?
Madame, I feare I am growne too bold a begger.

Pan. You are a pretty one, and trust me Lady
It ioyes me, I shall doe a good to you,
Though to my selfe I neuer shall be happie :
Here take this Ring, and from me as a token
Deliuier it ; I thinke they will not stay you :
So all your owne desires goe with you Lady.

Spa. And sweet peace to your Grace.

Pan. Pray Heauen I find it.

Exeunt.

Enter Tigranes in prison.

Tigr. Foole that I am, I haue vndone my selfe,

And with my owne hand turn'd my Fortune round,
 That was a faire one: I haue childishly
 Playde with my hope so long, till I haue broke it,
 And now too late I mourne for't: O Spaconia
 Thou hast found an euen way to thy reuenge now,
 Why didst thou follow me like a faint shadow,
 To wither my desires? but wretched foole,
 Why did I plant thee 'twixt the Sunne and me,
 To make me freeze thus? Why did I preferre her
 To the faire Princess? O thou foole, thou foole, Thou family of fooles, liue like a slaue still,
 And in thee beare thine owne hell and thy torment;
 Thou hast deseru'd: Couldst thou find no Lady
 But she that haz thy hopes to put her to,
 And hazard all thy peace? None to abuse
 But shee that lou'd thee euer? poore Spaconia,
 And so much lou'd thee, that in honesty
 And honour thou art bound to meet her vertues:
 She that so got the greatnesse of her griefe
 And miseries, that must follow such mad passions,
 Endlesse and wild as women: Shee that for thee
 And with thee left her libertie, her name,
 And countrey, you haue payde me equall, Heauens,
 And sent my owne rod to correct me with;
 A woman: for inconstancy ile suffer,
 Lay it on Iustice till my soule melt in me
 For my vnmanly, beastly, sodaine doting
 Vpon a new face: after all my oathes
 Many and strange ones,
 I feele my old fire flame againe and burne
 So strong and violent that should I see her
 Againe, the griefe and that would kill me.

Enter Bacurim and Spaconia

Bac. Lady,
 Your token I acknowledge, you may passe;
 There is the King.

Spa. I thanke your Lordship for it

Exit Bac.

Zigr. She comes, she comes, shame hide me euer from her,
 Would

Would I were buried, or so farre remou'd
Light might not find me out : I dare not see her.

Spa. Nay, neuer hide your selfe; or were you hid
Where earth hides all her riches, neere her center;
My wrongs without more day would light me to you:
I must speake ere I dye, were all your greatnesse
Doubled vpon you, y'are a periar'd man
And onely mighty in your wickednesse
Of wronging women, Thou art false, false Prince;
I liue to see it, poore Spaconia liues
To tell thee thou art false; and then no more;
She liues to tell thee thou art more vnconstant,
Then all ill women euer were together;
Thy faith is firme as raging ouerflowes,
That no banke can command; as lasting
As boyes gay bubbles blowne in th'ayre and broken:
The wind is fixt to thee, and sooner shall
The beaten Marriner with his shrill whistle,
Calme the loud murmure of the troubled maine
And strike it smooth againe; then thy soule fall
To haue peace in loue with any: Thou art all
That all good men must hate, and if thy story
Shall tell succeeding ages what thou wert,
O let it spare me in it, lest True Louers
In pittie of my wrongs, burne thy blacke legend,
And with their curses shake thy sleeping ashes.

Tyr. Oh! oh!

Spa. The destinies I hope haue pointed out
Our ends alike, that thou maist dy for loue
Though not for me: for this assure thy selfe,
The Princesse hates thee deadly, and will sooner
Be wonne to marry with a Bull, and safer
Then such a beast as thou art: I haue strooke
I feare too deep; be shrew me for't Sir,
This sorrow worke me like a cunning frendship
Into the same piece with it; 'tis asham'd
Alas, I haue beene too rugged: Deare my Lord,
I am sorry I haue spoken any thing,

Indeed I am, that may adde more restraint
 To that too much you haue : Good sir be pleas'd
 To thinke it was a fault of loue, not malice ;
 And doe as I will doe, forgine it Prince,
 I doe, and can forgine the greatest finnes
 To me you can repent of ; pray beleue.

Tigr. O my Spaconia ! O thou vertuous woman.

Spa. Nay more, the King Sir,

Enter Arbaces, Bacurius, Mardonius.

Arb. Haue you beene carefull of our noble prisoner
 That he want nothing fitting for his greatnesse ?

Bac. I hope his Grace will quite me for my care Sir.

Arb. 'Tis well: Royall Tigranes health.

Tigr. More then the strictnesse of this place can giue Sir,
 I offer backe againe to great Arbaces.

Arb. We thanke you worthy Prince, and pray excuse vs,
 We haue not seene you since your being here,
 I hope your noble vsage haz beene equall
 With your owne person : your imprisonment
 If it be any, I dare say is easie,
 And shall not out-last two dayes.

Tigr. I thanke you :
 My vsage here haz bene the same it was,
 Worthy a Royall Conquerour. For my restraint
 It came vnkindly, because much vnlook't for ;
 But I must beare it.

Arb. What Ladie's that Bacurius.

Bac. One of th: Princes women Sir.

Arb. I fear'd it, why comes she hither ?

Bac. To speake with the Prince Tigranes.

Arb. From whom Bacurius ?

Bac. From the Princeesse Sir.

Arb. I knew I had seene her.

Mar. His fit begins to take him now againe,
 'Tis a strange Feauer; and'twill shake vs all anone, I feare ;
 Would he were well cur'de of this raging folly ;
 Giue me the warres, where men are madde, and may talke
 what they list, and held the brauest Fellowes ; This pelting prating

prating peace is good for nothing : drinking's a vertue to't.

Arb. I see that's truth in no man, nor obedience,
But for his owne ends, why did you let her in?

Bac. It was your owne command to barre none from him
Beside the Princeffe sent her Ring Sir, for my warrant.

Arb. A token to Tigranes, did she not?
Sir, tell truth.

Bac. I doe not vse to lye Sir,
'Tis no way I eate or live by, and I thinke,
This is no token Sir.

Mar. This combat haz yndone him : If he had been well beaten, hee had beenc temperate. I shall neuer see him handsome againe, till he haue a Horse-mans staffe yoakt through his shoulders, or an arme broke with a bullet.

Arb. I am trifled with.

Bac. Sir.

Arb. I know it, as I know thee to be false.

Mar. Now the clap comes.

Bac. You neuer knew me so Sir, I dare speake it,
And durst a worse man tell me though my better——

Mar. 'Tis well sed by my Soule.

Arb. Sirra you answere, as you had no life.

Bac. That I feare Sir to lose Nobly.

Arb. I say Sir once againe.

Bac. You may say what you please Sir,
Would I might doe so.

Arb. I wil Sir, and say openly this woman carries letters,
By my life I know she carries letters, this woman does it.

Mar. Would Bessus were here to take her aside and search her, he would quickly tell you what she carried Sir.

Arb. I haue found it out; this woman carries letters.

Mar. If this hold, 'twill bee an ill world for Bawdes, Chamber-maids, and Post-boyes, I thank heaven I haue none
but his letters patents, things of his owne indighting.

Arb. Prince, this cunning cannot do't.

Tigr. Doe, what Sir? I reach you not.

Arb. It shall not serue your turne Prince,

Tigr. Serue my turne Sir?

Arb. I Sir; it shal not serue your turne.

Tigr. Be plainer good Sir.

Arb. This woman shall carry no more letters backe to your loue Panshea, by heauen she shall not, I say she shall not.

Mar. This would make a Saint sweare like a souldier.

Tigr. This beates me more King then the blowes you gaue me.

Arb. Take'em away both, and together let them prisoners bee, strictly and closely kept, or Sirra your life shall answer it, and let no body speake with'em hereafter.

Tigr. Well, I am subiect to you,
And must endure these passions:
This is the imprisonment I haue look't for alwayes,
And the deare place I would chuse, Exeunt Tigr. Spa. Bas.

Mar. Sir haue you done well now?

Arb. Dare you reprove it?

Mar. No.

Arb. You must be crossing me.

Mar. I haue no letters Sir, to anger you,
But a dry Sonnet of my Corporals
To an old Sutlers wife, and that Ile burne Sir:
'Tis like to proue a fine age for the Ignorant.

Arb. How dar'st thou so often forsaiete thy life?
Thou know'st 'tis in my power to take it.

Mar. Yes, and I know you won-not, or if you doe you'll misse it quickly.

Arb. Why?

Mar. Who shall tell you of these childish follies
When I am dead? who shall put to his power
To draw those vertues out of a flood of humors,
When they are down'd, and make'em shine againe?
No, cut my head off:
Then you may talke, and be beleeued and grow worse,
And haue your too selte-glorious temper rot
Into a dead sleepe, and the kingdome with you,
Till forraine swords be in your threats, and slaughter
Be euery where about you like your flatterers.
Doe, kill me.

Arb. Prethee be rather good Mardonius,
 Thou know'st I loue thee, nay I honour thee,
 Beleue it good old Souldiour, I am thine,
 But I am rackt cleane from my selfe, beare with me,
 Wouldest thou beare with me my Mardonius? Enter Gobrias.

Mar. There comes a good man, loue him too,
 Hee's temperate,
 You may lue to haue need of such a vertue,
 Rage is not still in fashion.

Arb. Welcome good Gobrias.

Gob. My seruice and this letter to your grace.

Arb. From whom?

Gob. From the rich Mine of vertue, and beauty.
 Your mournfull Sister.

Arb. Shee is in prison Gobrias, is she not?

Gob. She is Sir, till your pleasure to enlarge her,
 Which on my knees I begge O'tis not fit
 That all the sweetnesse of the world in one,
 The youth, and vertue that would tame wilde Tygers
 And wilder people, that haue knowne no manners,
 Should liue thus cloystered vp; for your loues sake,
 If there be any in that Noble heart
 To her a wretched Lady, and forlorne,
 Or for her loue to you, which is as much
 As nature and obedience euer gaue,
 Haue pittie on her beauties.

Arb. Pray thee stand vp; 'Tis true she is too faire,
 And all these commendations but her owne,
 Would thou had'st neuer so commended her,
 Or I nere 'tu'd to haue heard it Gobrias;
 If thou but knew'st the wrong her beauty does her
 Thou wouldest in pity of her be a lyer.
 Thy ignorance haz'raine me wretched man
 Whether my selfe nor thou canst well tell: O my fate!
 I thinke she loues mee, but I feare another
 Is deeper in her hart: How think'st thou Gobrias.

Gob. I doe beseech your Grace beleue it not,
 For let me perill if it be not false,

Good Sir read her Letter.

Mar. This Loue, or what a diuell it is I know not, begets more mischief then a Wake. I had rather be well beaten, staru'd, or low sic, then liue within the ayre on't. He that had seene this braue fellow charge through a groue of pikes but tother day, and looke vpon him now, will nere belecue his eyes againe: If he continue thus but two dayes more, a Taylor may beat him with one hand tied behind him.

Arb. Alas she would be at liberty.

And there be thousand reatous Gobrias,
Thousands that will deny't:

Which if she knew she would contentedly
Be where she is, and blesse her vertues for it
And me, though she were closer, she would Gobrias,
Good man indeed she would.

Gob. Then good Sir, for her satisfaction,
Send for her, and with reason make her know
Why she must liue thus from you.

Arb. I will, goe bring her to me.

Exeunt all.

Enter Bessus, and two Sword-men, and a boy.

Bes. You are very welcome both, some stooles there boy,
And reach a Table; Gentlemen oth'Sword,
Pray sit without more complement: be gone child,
I haue bin curious in the searching of you,
Because I vnderstand you wise, and valiant persons.

1 We vnderstand our selues Sir.

Bes. Nay Gentlemen, and deare friends oth'Sword,
No complement I pray, but to'th cause
I hang vpon, which in fevv, is my honour.

2 You cannot hang too much Sir for your honour,
But to your cause.

Bes. Be wise, and speake trueth, my first doubt is, my beating by my Prince.

1 Stay there a little Sir, doe you doubt a beating?
Or haue you had a beating by your Prince?

Bes. Gentlemen oth'Sword, my Prince haz beaten me.

2 Bro' her, what thinke you of this case?

1 If he haz beaten him, the case is cleere.

2 If a haue beaten him, I grant the case ;
But how ? Wee cannot be too subtrill in this businesse
I say; but how ?

Bef. Euen with his roy-all hand.

1 Was it a blow of loue or indignation.

Bef. 'Twas twenty blowes of indignation Gentlemen,
Besides two blowes oth'face.

2 Those blowes oth'face haue made a new cause on't,
The rest were but an horrible rudenesse.

1 Two blowes oth'face, and giuen by a worse man, I must confesse as the Sword-men say, had turn'd the businesse:
Marke me brother, by a worse man ; but being by his Prince, had they beene ten, and those ten drawn teeth, beside the hazard of his nose for euer ; all this had beene but fauours ;
This is my flat opinion, which Ile die in.

2 The King may doe much Captaine, belecue it, for had a crackt your scull through like a bottle, or broke a ribbe or two with tossing of you, yet you had lost no honour: This is strange you may imagine, but this is truth now Captaine.

Bef. I will be glad to embrace it Gentlemen ;
But how farre may he strike me.

1 There's another :

A new cause rising from the time and distance,
In which I will deliuer my opinion :

He may strike, beate, or cause to be beaten ; for these are naturall to man : Your Prince, I say may beate you, so farre foorth as his dominion reacheth ; that's for the distance ; the time, ten mile a day, I take it.

2 Brother, you erre, 'tis fifteene mile a day,
His stage is ten, his beatings are fifteene.

Bef. 'Tis a the longest, but wee subiects must.

1 Be subiect to it : you are wise and vertuous.

Bef. Obedience euer makes that noble vse on't,
To which I dedicate my beaten body ;

I must trouble you a little further Gentlemen oth'Svord.

2 No trouble at all to vs Sir, if we may Profit your vnderstanding ; we are bound
By vertue of our calling, to vtter our opinions.

shortly, and discreetly.

Bef. My forest businesse is, I haue bin kickt.

2 How farre Sir?

Bef. Not to flatter my selfe in it, all ouer, my sword forst, but not lost, for discreetly I renderd it to saue that imputation;

1 It shew'd discretion, the best part of valour.

2 Brother, this is a pretty case, pray ponder on't. Our friend here haz beene kickt.

1 He haz so brother.

2 Soerly he saies: Now had he fet downe here vpon the meere kicke, t'had bin cowardly.

1 I thinke it had beene cowardly indeed.

2 But our friend haz redeem'd it in deliuering His sword without compulsion; and that man That tooke it of him, I pronounce a weake one, And his kic's hallities.

A should haue kickt him after the deliury, Which is the confirmation of a coward.

1 Brother, I take it, you mistake the question: For say that I were kickt.

2 I must not say so.

Nor I must not heare it spoke by the tongue of man, You kickt deere brother? you'r merry.

1 But put the case I were kickt?

2 Let them put it that are things weary of their lines, and know not honour: put the case you were kickt?

1 I doe not say, I was kickt.

2 Not no sily creature, that weares his head without a case, his soule in a skinn: coate: You kickt deere brother?

Bef. Nay Gentle men, let vs doe what we shall doe, Truly and honestly: Good Sirs to the question.

1 Why then I say, suppose your boy kickt, Captaine.

2 The boy may be supposed is lyable.

1 A foolish forward zeale Sir, in my friend; But to the boy, suppose the boy were kickt;

Bef. I doe suppose it.

2 Haz your boy a sword?

Des. Surely no : I pray suppose a sword too.

1 I doe suppose it : you grant your boy was kicke then.

2 By no meanes Captaine, let it bee supposed Bill, the word grant, makes not for vs,

1 I say this must be granted

2 This must be granted Brother?

1 I, This must be granted.

2 Still this must?

1 I say this must be granted.

2 Giue me the must againe, brother you palter.

1 I will not heare you waspe,

2 Brother, I say you palter, the must threentimes together;

I weare as sharpe Steele as another man,

And my foxe bites as deepe, musted my deere brother?

But to the cause againe.

Des. Nay, looke you Gentlemen.

2 In a word, I ha done.

1 A tall man but vntemperate, 'tis great pity.

Once more suppose the boy kicke.

2 Forward.

1 And being throughly kicke, laughs at the kicker.

2 So much for vs; proceede,

1 And in this beaten scorne, as I may call it,

Deliuers vp his weapon : where lies the errour.

Des. It lies i'th beating Sir,

I found it foure dayes since.

2 The errour and a fere one, as I take it,

Lies in the thing kickeing.

Des. I vnderstand that well, 'tis sore indeed Sir.

1 That is according to the man that did it.

2 There springs a new branch, whose was the foote?

Des. A Lords.

1 The cause is mighty, but had it bene two Lords,

And both had kicke you, if you laugh, 'tis cleere.

Des. I did laugh.

But how will that helpe me Gentlemen?

2 Yes it shal helpe you, if you laugh aloud.

Des. As loud as a kicke man could laugh, I laugh Sir :

1 My reason now, the valiant man is knowne
By suffering and contemning; you haue
Enough o' both, and you are valiant.

2 If he be sure he l'az bin kicke enough:
For that braue sufferance you speake of brother,
Consists not in a beating and away,
But in a cudgell'd body, from eighteene
To eight and thirty: in a head rebuk't
With pots of all size, daggers, stooles, and bedstaues,
This shoves a valiant man.

Bef. Then I am valiant, as valiant as the proudest,
For these are all familiar things to me:
Familiar as my sleepe, or want of money,
All my whole bodie's but one bruise with beating,
I thinke I haue beene cudgell'd with all nations,
And almost all religions.

2 Imbrace him brother, this man is valiant,
I know it by my selfe, hee's valiant.

2 Capraine, thou art a valiant Gentleman:
To bide vpon, a very valiant man

Bef. My equall friends oth'sword, I must request your hands to this.

2 'Tis fit it should be.

Bef. Boy, get some wine, and pen and Inke within:
Am I cleere gentlemen?

1 Sir, the world haz taken notice what we haue done,
Make much of your body, for Ile pawne my steele,
Men will be coyer of their legs hereafter.

Bef. I must request you goe along and testifie to the Lord Bacurins, whose foote haz strucke mee, how you find my cause.

2 We will, and teil that Lord, he must be rul'd,
Or there be those abroad, will rule his Lordship. Exeunt.

Enter Arbaces at one doore, and Gob, and Ponthea at another,

Gob. Sir heer's the Princeffe.

Arb. Leau' vs then alone,

For the maine cause of her imprisonment
Must not be heard by any but her selfe.

Exit Gob.
You'r

You'r welcome Sister, and I would to heauen
 I could so bid you by another name :
 If you aboue loue not such sinnes as these,
 Circle my heart with thoughts as cold as snow
 To quench these rising flames that harbour here.

Pan. Sir, does it please you, I shall speake?

Arb. Please me?

I more then all the art of Musicke can ;
 Thy speech doth please me, for it euer sounds
 As thou brought'st ioyfull v unexpected newes :
 And yet it is not fit thou should'st be heard,
 I pray thee thinke so.

Pan. Be it so, I will,

Am I the first that euer had a wrong
 So farre from being fit to haue redresse
 That'twas vnfit to heare it ; I will backe
 To prison, rather then disquiet you,
 And waite till it be fit,

Arb. No, doe not goe ;

For I will heare thee with a serious thought :
 I haue collected all that's man about me
 Together strongly, and I am resolu'd
 To heare thee largely, but I doe beseech thee
 Doe not come neerer to me, for there is Something in that, that will vndoe vs both.

Pan. Alas Sir, am I venome?

Arb. Yes to me ;

Though of thy selfe I thinke thee to bee
 In equall a degree of heate, or cold,
 As nature can make : yet as vnfound men
 Conuert the sweetest and the nourishing'st meates
 Into diseases, so shall I distemper'd,
 Doe thee, I pray thee draw no neerer to me.

Pan. Sir, this is that I would : I am of late Shut from the world, and why it should be thus
 Is all I wish to know.

Arb. Why credit me Panthea,
 Credit me that am thy brother,

Thy louing brother, and there is a cause
Sufficient, yet vnfit for thee to know,
That might vndo thee euerlastingly,
Only to heare, wilt thou but credit this;
By heauen'tis true beleeeve it if thou canst.

Pan. Children and fooles are euer credulous,
And I am both I thinke, for I beleene:
If you dissemble; be it on your head;
Hee backe vnto my prison: yet me thinkes
I might be kept in some place where you are;
For in my selfe, I finde I know not what
To call it, but it is a great desire
To see you often.

Arb. Fye, you come in a step, what doe you meane?
Deare Sister, doe not so; Alas Panthea,
Where I am would you be? Why that's the cause
You are imprison'd, that you may not be Where I am.

Pan. Then I must indure it Sir, Heauen keeps you.

Arb. Nay, you shall heare the cause in short Panthea,
And when thou hear't it, thou wilt blush for mee,
And hang thy head downe like a Violet
Full of the mornings dew: There is a way
To gainethy freedome, but 'tis such a one
As puts thee in worse bondage, and I know
Thou would'st encounter fire, and make a prooue
Whether the gods haue care of innocence,
Rather then follow it: Know that I haue lost,
The onely difference betwixt man and beast,
My reason.

Pan. Heauen forbid.

Arb. Nay, 'tis gone;
And I am left as farre without a bound,
As the wilde Ocean, that obeyes the windes;
Each sodaine passion throwes me where it lists,
And ouerwhelmes all that oppose my will:
I haue beheld thee with a lustful eye;
My heart is set on wickednesse to act,

Such finnes with thee, as I haue boene afraid
 To thinke of, if thou dar'st content to this,
 Which I beseech thee doe not, thou maist gaine
 Thy liberty, and yeeld me a content:
 If not thy dwelling must be darke, and close,
 Where I may neuer see thee; For heauen knowes
 That layd this punishment vpon my pride,
 Thy sight at soueraine will enforce my madnesse
 To make a start eene to thy rauihing:
 Now spit vpon me, and call all reproaches
 Thon canst deuise together, and at once
 Hurle'em against me: for I am a sicknesse
 As killing as the plague, ready to seize thee.

Pan. Farre be it from me to reuile the King:
 But it is true, that I shall rather chuse
 To search out death, that else would search out me,
 And in a graue sleepe with my innocence,
 Then welcome such a siane: It is my fate,
 To these crosse accidents I was ordain'd,
 And must haue patience; and but that my eyes
 Haue more of woman in'em then my heart,
 I would not weepe: Peace enter you againe.

Arb. Farewell, and good Panthes pray for me,
 Thy prayers are pure, that I may find a death
 How euer soone, before my passions grow
 That they forget what I desire is siane;
 For thither they are tending: if that happen,
 Then I shall force thee though thou wert a Virgin
 By vow to heauen, and shall pull a heape
 Of strange yet vniuanted siane vpon me.

Pan. Sir, I will pray for you, yet you shall know
 It is a fullen fate that governs vs,
 For I could wish as heartily as you
 I were no Sister to you. I should then Embrace your lawfull loue, sooner then health.

Arb. Could'st thou affect me then?

Pan. So perfectly,
 That as it is, I nere shall sway my heart,

To like another.

Arb. Then I curse my birth,
Must this be added to my miseries
That thou art willing too? Is there no stop
To our full happineffe, but these meere sounds -
Brother and Sister?

Pan. There is nothing else,
But these alas will separate vs more
Then twenty worlds betwixt vs.

Arb. I haue liu'd
To conquer men, and now am euerthrowne
Only by words, Brother and Sister: where Haue those words, dwelling? I will find 'em out
And vtterly destroy 'em; but they are
Not to be grasp'd: let 'em be men or beasts,
And I will cut 'em from the earth; or townes,
And I will gaze 'em, and then blow 'em vp:
Let 'em be Seas, and I will drinke 'em off,
And yet haue vnquencht fire left in my breast:
Let 'em be any thing but meerely voice.

Pan. But 'tis not in the power of any force
Or pollicy to conquer them.

Arb. Panthea, What shall we doe?
Shall we stand firmly here, and gaze our eyes out?

Pan. Would I could doe so.
But I shall weepe out mine.

Arb. Accursed man,
Thou bought'st thy reason at too deare a rate,
For thou hast all thy actions bounded in
With curious rules, when euery beast is free:
What is there that acknowledges a kinred
But wretched Man? Who euer saw the Bull
Fearefully leaue the Heifer that he lik'd
Because th y had one Damme?

Pan. Sir, I disturbe you, and my selfe too;
'Twere better I were gone.

Arb. I will not be so foolish as I was,
Stay, we will loue iust as becomes our births,

No otherwise: Brothers and Sisters may Walke hand in hand together: so will we,
Come nearer: Is there any hurt in this?

Pan. I hope not.

Arb. Faith there is none at all:
And tell me truly now, is there not one
You loue aboue me?

Pan. No by heauen.

Arb. Why yet you sent vnto Tigranes, Sister.

Pan. True, but for another: for the truth.

Arb. No more,

Ile credit thee, thou canst not lye,
Thou art all Truth.

Pan. But is there nothing else,
That we may doe, but onely walke; me thinks
Brothers and Sisters lawfully may kisse.

Arb. And so they may Panthea, so will wee,
And kisse againe too; we were too scrupulous;
And foolish, but wee will be so no more.

Pan. If you haue any mercy, let me goe
To prison, to my death, to any thing:
I feele a sinne growing vpon my bloud,
Worse then all these, hotter then yours.

Arb. That is impossible, what should we doe?

Pan. Fly Sir, for heauens sake

Arb. So wee must away,
Sin grows vpon vs more by this delay. Exeunt several ways.

The end of the Fourth Act.

ACTUS Quintus.

Enter Mardonius and Lygones.

Mar. SIR, the King haz seene your Commission, and beleeues it, & freely by this warrant gius you power to visite Prince Tigranes, your Noble Master.

Lyg. I thanke his Grace, and kisse his hand,

Mar. But is the maine of all your businesse Ended in this?

Lig. I haue another, but a worse, I am asham'd, it is a businesse——

Mar. You serue a worthy person, and a stranger I am sure you are; you may employ mee if you please without your purse, such offices should euer be their owne rewards.

Lig. I am bound to your Noblenesse.

Mar. I may haue need of you; and then this courtesie, If it be any, is not ill bestow'd:

But may I crailly desire the rest?

I shall not be a hurte, if no helper.

Lig. Sir you shall know, I haue lost a foolish daughter and with her all my patience pilfer'd away By a meane Captaine of your Kings.

Mar. Stay there Sir;

If he haue reacht the noble worth of Captaine,

He may well claime a worthy Gentlewoman,

Though she were yours, an Noble.

Lig. I grant all that too: but this wretched fellow

Reaches no further then the empty name,

That serues to feede him; were a valiant,

Or had but in him any noble nature

That might hereafter promise him a good man,

My cares were so much lighter, and my graue

A part yet from me.

Mar. I confesse such fellowes

Be in all Royall camps and haue, and must be,

To make the sinne of coward more detested

In the meane souldier that with such a foyle

Sets off much valour By description

I should now guesse him to you, it was Bessus,

I dare almost with confidence pronounce it.

Lig. Is such a scuruy name as Bessus, and now I thinke tis he.

Mar. Cap'taine, doe you call him?

Beleeue me Sir, you haue a misery

Too mighty for your age: A poxe vpon him.

For that must be the end of all his seruice :
Your daughter was not mad Sir ?

Lyg. No, would she had beene,
The fault had had more credit : I would doe something.

Mar. I would faine counsel you, but to what I know not Hee's to below a beating, that the women
Find him not worthy of their distaues, and to hang him,
Were to ca't away a rope ;

Hee's such an ayrie, thinne, vn bodied coward,
That no reuenge can catch him :

Ile tell you Sir, and tell you truth ; this rascal
Feares neither God nor man, haz bin so beaten :

Sufferance haz made him wan scoate : he haz had Since a was first a slaue, at least three hundred daggers
Set in's head, as little boyes doe new knives in hot meate,
Ther's not a rib in's body a my conscience

That haz not bin thrice broken with dry beating ;
And now his sides looke like two wicker Targets,

Euery way bended,

Children will shortly take him for a wall.

And set their stone-bowes in his forehead, He is of so'base a sense, I cannot in a weeke imagine what shalbe done to him.

Lyg. Sure I haue committed some great sinne
That this fellow should be made my rod,
I would see him but I shall haue no patience.

Mar. 'Tis no great matter if you haue not ; if a laming of him, or such a toy may do you pleasure Sir, he haz it for you, and Ile helpe you to him : 'tis no newes to him to haue a leg broke, or a shoulder out, with being turn'd ath' stones like a Tanzie : Draw not your sword, if you loue it ; for on my conscience his head will breake it : we vse him i'th warres like a Ramme to shake a wall withall ; here comes the very person of him, doe as you shall find your temper, I must leaue you :
but if you doe not breake him like a Bisket, you are much to blame Sir. Exit Mar.

Enter Bessus and the Sword men.

Lyg. Is your name Bessus ?

Bes. Men call me Captaine Bessus.

Lyg. Then Captaine Bessus, you are a ranke rascal, without more exordiums, a darty frozen slave; and with the fauour of your friends here, I will beate you.

2 Sword. Pray vse your pleasure Sir, you seeme to bee a Gentleman.

Lyg. Thus Captaine Bessus, thus; thus twinge your nose, thus kicke, thus tread you.

Bes. I doe beseech you yeeld your cause Sir quickly.

Lyg. Indeed I should haue told you that first.

Bes. I take it so.

1. Sword. Captaine, a should indeed, he is mistaken.

Lyg. Sir, you shall haue it quickly, and more beating, You haue stolne away a Lady, Captaine coward, And incha one. Beates him.

Bes. Hold, I beseech you, hold Sir, I neuer yet stole any liuing thing that had a tooth about it.

Lyg. I know you dare lye.

Bes. With none but Summer Whores vpon my life sir, My meanes and manners neuer could attempt Above a hedge or heu-cocke.

Lyg. Sirra, that quies not me, where is this Lady? Doe that you doe not vse no: to doe; tel truth, Or by my hand, Ile beate your Captaines braines out, Wash'em and put 'em in againe, that will I.

Bes. There was a Lady Sir, I must confesse, Once in my charge: the Prince Tigrans gaue her To my guard for her safety, how I vi'd her, She may her selfe report, shee's with the Prince now: I did but waite vpon her like a Groome, Which shee will testifie I am sure: If not, My braines are at your seruice when you please Sir, And g'ad I haue 'em for you.

Lyg. This is most likely, Sir, I aske you pardon, And am sorry I was so intemperate.

Bes. Well, I can aske no more, you will thinke it strange Now to haue me beate you at first sight.

Lyg. Indeed I would, but I know your goodnes can forgive Twenty beatings, You must forgieue me,

Bes. Yes, ther's my hand, goe where you will, I shall thinke you a valiant fellow for all this.

Lig. My daughter is a Whore,
I feele it now too sensible; yet I will see her,
Discharge my selfe from being Farther to her,
And then backe to my countrey, and there dye,
Farewell Captaine,

Exit Lygo.

Bes. Farewell Sir, farewell, commend mee to the Gentlewoman I pray.

1. Sword. How now Captaine? beare vp man.

Bes. Gentlemen oth'sword, your hands once on ore, I haue Bin kickt agen, but the foolish fellow is penitent,
He askt me mercy, and my honours safe.

2. Sword. Wee knew that, or the foolish fellow had better haue kickt his Grandfire.

Bes. Confirme, confirme I pray.

1. Sword. There be our hands agen,
Now let him come and say a was not sorry,
And a sleeper for it.

Bes. Alas good ignorant old man, let him goe,
Let him goe, these courses will vndoe him. Exeunt cleare.

Enter Lygones and Bacchus.

Bac. My Lord, your authority is good, and I am glad it is so, for my consent would neuer hinder you, from seeing your owne King, I am a Minister, but not a gouernour of this state, yonder is your King; he leane you. Exit.

Enter Tigranes and Spacenia.

Lig. There he is indeed,
And with him my disloyall childe.

Tigr. I do perceiue my fault so much, that yet Methinks thou shouldst not haue forgiuen me.

Lig. Health to your Maiestie.

Tigr. What? good Lygones, welcome, vwhat buisine he brought thee hither?

Ligo. Seuerall Businesses.

My publike businesse will appeare by this:
I haue a message to deliuer, which
If it please you so to authorise, is

An embassage from the Armeniān state,
Vnto Arbaces for your liberty :

The offer's there set downe, please you to reade it.

Tigr. There is no alteration happened
Since I came thence?

Lig. None Sir, all is as it was.

Tigr. And all our friends are well.

Lig. All very well.

Spa. Though I haue done nothing but what was good,
I dare not see my Father, it was fault
Enough not to acquaint him with that good.

Lig. Madame, I should haue seene you.

Spa. O good Sir forgive me.

Lig. Forgive you, why? I am no kin to you, am I?

Spa. Should it be measur'd by my meane deserts,
Indeed you are not.

Lig. Thou could'st prate vnhappily
Ere thou couldst goe, would thou couldst doe as well,
And how does your custome hold out here?

Spa. Sir?

Lig. Are you in priuate still, or how?

Spa. What doe you meane?

Lig. Doe you take money? are you come to sell sin yet?
perhaps I can helpe you to liberall Clients: or haz not the King cast you off yet? O thou vilde creature, whose best commendations is, that thou art a young Whore, I would thy Mother had li'd to see this: or rather that I had died ere
I had seen it: why di'st not make me acquainted when thou wert first resolu'd to be a Whore?

I would haue seene thy hot lust satisfied
More priuately: I would haue kept a Dancer,
And a whole consort of Musicians
In my owne house, onely to fiddle thee.

Spa. Sir, I was neuer Whore.

Lig. If thou couldst not say so much for thy selfe, thou shouldest be Carted,

Tigr. Lygones, I haue read it, and I like it,
You shall deliuer it.

Lyg. Well Sir, I wil: but I haue priuate busines with you

Tigr. Speake, what ist?

Lyg. How haz my age deser'd so ill of you,
That you can pick no strumpets i'the Land,
but out of my breed?

Tigr. Strumpets good Lygones,

Lyg. Yes, and I wish to haue you know, I scorne
to get a Whore for any P rince aliuē,
And yet (corne will not helpe me thinkes: My daughter
Might haue beene spar'd, there were enow besides.

Tigr. May I not prosper, but shee's innocent
As morning light for me, and I dare sweare,
For all the world

Lyg. Why is she with you then?
Can shee waite on you berter then your man,
Haz she a gift in plucking ff your stockings,
Can she make Cawdle: well or cut your cornes,
Why do you keepe her with you? For a Queene
I know you doe c onterme her, so shoald I,
And euery subiect elte thinke much at it.

Tigr. Let'em thinke much, but tis more firme then earth
Thou see'st thy Queene there.

Lyg. Then haue I made a faire hand, I cal'd her Whore,
If I shall speake now as her father, I cannot chuse
But greatly reioyce that shee shall be a Queene: but if I shall speake to you as a Statel-man, the were more fit
To be your Whore.

Tigr. Get you about your businesse to Arbaces,
Now you talke idlic.

Lyg. Yes Sir, I will goe,
And shall she be a Queene? shee had more wit
Then her old Father when shee ran away:
Shall she be Queene? now by my troth 'tis fine,
He dance out of all measure at her wedding:
Shall I not sir?

Tigr. Yes marry shalt thou.

Lyg. He make these withered kexes beare my body
Two houres together aboue ground.

Tigr. Nay goe, my businesse requires hast.

Lyg. Good heauen preserue you, you are an excellent king.

Spa. Farewell good Father,

Lyg. Farewell sweete vertuous Daughter,
I neuer was so ioyfull in all my life,

That I remember: shall she be a Queene?

Now I perceiue a man may weepe for ioy,

I had thought they had lyed that said so.

Exit Lygo.

Tigr. Come my deare loue.

Spa. But you may see another
May alter that againe.

Tigr. Vrge it no more,
I haue made vp a new strong constancy,
Not to be shooke with eyes: I know I haue
The passions of a man, but if I meete
With any subiect that should hold my eyes
More fir nely then is fit; Ile thinke of thee,
And runne away from it: let that suffice.

Exeunt all.

Enter Bacurinus and his seruants.

Bac. Three gentlemen without to speake with me?

Ser. Yes Sir.

Bac. Let them come in.

Enter Bassus with the two Sword-men.

Ser. They are entred Sir already.

Bac. Now fellows, your businesse are these the gentlemen?

Bes. My Lord I haue made bold to bring these gentlemen
my Friends at sword along with me.

Bac. I am a fraid youle fight then.

Bes. My good Lord, I will not, your Lorthip is mistaken,
Feare not Lord:

Bac. Sir I am sorry for't.

Bes. I aske no more in honour, Gentlemen you heare my Lord is sorry.

Bac. Not that I haue beaten you, but beaten one that will be beaten: one whose dull body will require a laming:
As surfeits doe the diet, spring and fall.

Now to your Sword-men,

What come they for good Captaine Stock-fish?

Bes.

Bes. It seemes your Lordship haz forgot my name.

Bac. No, nor your nature neither, though they are things fitter I must confesse for any thing, then my remembrance, or any honest mans? what shall these billets doe; be pilde vp in y Wood-yard?

Bes. Your Lordship holds your mirth still, heauen continue it: but for these Gentlemen they come.

Bac. To sweare you are a coward, spare your booke, I doe beleue it.

Bes. Your Lordship still drawes wide, they come to vouch vnder their valiant handes, I am no coward.

Bac. That would bee a show indeed worth seeing: firra bee wise, and take money for this motion, trauaile with it, and wher e the name of Bessus haz beene knowne, or a good Coward stirring, 'twill yeeld more then a tilting. This will proue more beneficiall to you, if you be thriftie, then your Captaine ship, and more naturall; Men of most valiant hands is this true?

2 Sword. It is so most renowned.

Bac. 'Tis somewhat strange.

1 Sword. Lord, it is strange, yet true; wee haue examined from your Lordships foote there, to this mans head, the nature of the beatings; and we doe find his honour is come off cleane and sufficient: This as our swords shall helpe vs.

Bac. You are much bound to your bil-bow men, I am glad you are straight againe Captaine; 'twere good you would thinke some way to gratific them, they haue vnder-gone a labour for you Bessus, would haue puzzled Hercules with all his vallour.

2 Sword. Your Lorchip must vnderstand wee are no men ath'Law, that take pay for our opinions: it is sufficient we haue cleer'd our friend.

Bac. Yet there is something due which I as toucht in conscience will discharge Captaine; He pay this rent for you.

Bes. Spare your selfe my good Lord; my braue friendes ayme at nothing but the vertue.

Bac. That's but a cold discharge Sir for the paines.

2. Sword. O Lord, my good Lord.

Bac. Be not so modest, I will giue you something.

Bef. They shall dine with your Lordship, that's sufficient

Bac. Something in hand the while; you rogues, you apple-squires: doe you come hither with your botled vallour, your windie froth, to limmit out my beatings?

1. Sword. I doe beseech your Lordship.

2. Sword. O good Lord.

Bac. Sfoote what a beaury of beaten slaues are here? get me a cudgell firra, and a tough one.

2 Swor. More of your foot, I doe beseech your Lordship.

Bac. You shall, you shall dog, and your fellow Beagle.

1 Sword. A this side good my Lord.

Bac. Off with your swords, for if you hurt my foote, Ile haue you sleade you rascals.

1 Sword. Mine's off my Lord.

2 Sword. I beseech your Lordship stay a little, my strap's tide to my cod-piece poynt: now when you please.

Bac. Captaine, these are your valiant friends, you long for a little too?

Bef. I am very well I humbly thanke your Lordship.

Bac. What's that in your pocket, hurts my toe you mungrell? thy buttockes cannot be so hard, out with it quickly,

2 Swor. Here'tis Sir, a small piece of Artillery, that a gentleman a deare friend of your Lordships sent me with; to get it mended Sir; for if you marke the nose is somewhat loose.

Bac. A friend of mine you rascall, I was neuer wearier of doing nothing, then kicking these two foot-bals.

Enter seruann.

Ser. Here's a good cudgell Sir.

Bac. It comes too late, I'm weary, pray thee doe thou beate them.

2 Swor. My Lord this is foule play ifaith, to put a fresh man vpon vs, Men are but men Sir.

Bac. That icast shall saue your bones; Captaine, rally vp your rotten regiment, and be gone; I had rather thrash, then be bound to kicke these rascals, till they cryde ho: Bessus you may put your hand to them now, and then you are quit,

Farewell,

Farewell, as you like this, pray visit me againe, 'twill keepe me in good health.

Exit Bas.

2 Swor. Haz a deuellish hard foote, I neuer felt the like,

1 Swor. Nor I, and yet I am sure I haue felt a hundred.

2 Swor. If a kicke thus ith dog-dayes, a will be dry foundred: what cure now Captaine; beside oyle of baies?

Bes. Why well enough I warrant you, you can goe?

2 Swor. Yes heauen be thanked; but I feele a shrewd ach, sure haz sprang my huckle-bone.

1 Swor. I ha lost a hanch.

Bes. A little butter, friend a little butter; butter and parsoley is a soueraigne matter: probatum est.

2 Sword. Captaine wee must request your hand now to our honours.

Bes. Yes marry shall ye, and then let all the world come, we are valiant to our selues, and there's an end.

1 Swo. Nay then we must be valiant; O my ribs.

2 Swor. O my small guts, a plague vpon these sharpe-toed shoes, they are murtherers.

Exeunt cleere.

Enter Arbaces with his sword drawne.

Arb. It is resolu'd, I bore it whilst I could,
I can no more,
I must beginne
With murder of my friend, and so goe on
To that incestuous rauishing and end
My life and sinnes with a forbidden blow,
Vpon my selfe.

Enter Mardonius

Mar. What Tragedy is neere
That hand was neuer wont to draw a sword,
But it cride dead to something.

Arb. Mardonius haue you bid Gobrias come?

Mar. How doe you Sir?

Arb. Well, is a comming.

Mar. Why sir are you thus?
Why does your hand proclaime a lawlesse warre
Against your selfe?

Arb. Thou answerest me one question with another,
Is Gobrias coming?

Mar. Sir, he is.

Arb. 'Tis well; I can forbear your questions then; bee gone.

Mar. Sir, I haue mark't.

Arb. Marke lesse, it troubles you and me.

Mar. You are more variable then you were.

Arb. It may be so.

Mar. To day no Hermit could be humbler
Then you were to vs all.

Arb. And what of this?

Mar. And how you take new rage into your eyes,
As you would looke vs all out of the Land.

Arb. I doe confesse it, will that satisfie?
I prethee get thee gone.

Mar. Sir, I will speake,

Arb. Will ye?

Mag. It is my duty,
I feare you will kill your selfe: I am a subiect,
And you shall doe me wrong in't: 'tis my cause,
And I may speake,

Arb. Thou art not train'd in sinne,
It seemes Mardonius: kill my selfe, by heauen
I will not doe it yet; and when I will,
He tell thee then: I shall be such a creature,
That thou wilt giue me leaue without a word.
There is a method in mans wickednesse,
It growes vp by degrees; I am not come
So high as killing of my selfe, there are
A hundred thousand sinnes'twixt me and it,
Which I must doe, and I shall come to't at last;
But take my oath not now, be latified,

And get thee hence.

Mar. I am sorry 'tis so ill.

Arb. Be sorry then,

True sorrow is alone, grieue by thy selfe.

Mar. I pray you let me see your sword put vp

Before I goe: Ile leaue you then.

Arb. Why so?

What folly is this in thee, is it not

As apt to mischief as it was before?

Can I not reach it think'st thou? these are toies

For children to be pleas'd with, and not men,

Now I am safe you thinke: I would the booke

Of fate were here, my sword is not so sure,

But I should get it out, and mangle that

That all the destinies should quite forget

Their fixt decrees, and hast to make vs new,

For other fortunes mine could not be worse,

Wilt thou now leaue me?

Myr. Heauen put into your bosome temperate thoughts,

Ile leaue you though I feare

Arb. Goe, thou art honest.

Why should the hastie errors of my youth

Be so vn pardonable to draw a sinne

Helpelesse vpon me?

Enter Gobrias.

Gob. There is the King, now it is ripe.

Arb. Draw nere thou guilty man,

That art the authour of the loathedst crime

Five ages haue brought tooth, and heare me speake;

Curses more incurable, and all the euils

Mans bod, or his spirit can receiue

Be with thee.

Gob. Why Sir doe you curse me thus?

Arb. Why doe I curse thee, if there be a min

Subtill in curses, that exceeds the rest,

His worst wish on thee. Thou hast broke my heart.

Gob. How sir haue I preferu'd you from a child,
From all the arrowes, malice, or ambition
Could shoot at you, and haue I this for pay?

Arb. 'Tis true, thou didst preferue me, and in that
Wert crueller then hardened murderers
Of infants and their mothers; thou didst saue mee
Only till thou hadst studied out a way
How to destrey me cunningly thy selfe:
This was a curious way of torturing.

Gob. What doe you meane?

Arb. Thou know'st the euils thou hast done to mee;
Dost thou remember all those witching letters
Thou sentst vnto me to Armenia,
Fild with the praise of my beloued Sister,
Where thou extolst her beauty, what had I
To doe with that: what could her beauty be
To me? & thou didst write how wel she lou'd me,
Dost thou remember this, so that I doated?
Something before I saw her.

Gob. This is true

Arb. Is it, and when I was return'd thou know'st
Thou didst pursue it, till thou woundst me in
To such a strange and vnbelleu'd affection.
As good men cannot thinke on.

Gob. This I grant, I thinke I was the cause.

Arb. Wert thou? Nay more, I thinke thou meantst it.

Gob. Sir, I hate a lye,

As I loue heauen and honesty, I did:
It was my meaning,

Arb. Be thine owne sad Iudge,
A further condemnation will not need,
Prepare thy selfe to dye.

Gob. Why sir to die?

Arb. Why shouldst thou liue? was euer yet offender
So impudent, that had a thought of mercy

After confession of a crime like this?

Get out I cannot where thou hurl'st me in,
But I can take reuenge, that's all the sweetnesse

Gob. Now is the time, heare me but speake,

Arb. No, yet I will be farre more mercifull,
Thenthou wert to me; thou didst steale into me
And neuer gau'st me warning: so much time
As I giue thee now, had preuented thee
For ever. Notwithstanding all thy sinnes,
If thou hast hope; that there is yet a prayer
To saue thee, turne and speake it to thy selfe.

Gob. Sir, you shall know your sinnes before you doe'em,
If you kill me.

Arb. I will not stay then.

Gob. Know you kill your Father.

Arb. How?

Gob. You kill your Father.

Arb. My Father? though I know't for a lie,
Made out of feare to saue thy stained life:
The very reuerence of the word comes crosse me,
And tyes mine arme downe.

Gob. I will tell you that shall heighten you again, I am thy Father, I charge thee heare me

Arb. If it should be so,
As'tis most false, and that I should be found
A bastard issue, the despised fruit
Of lawlesse lust, I should no more admire
All my wild passions: but another trueth
Shall be wrung from thee: if I could come by
The spirit of pain, it should be powr'd on thee,
Till thou allowest thy selfe more full of lyes
Then he that teaches thee.

Enter Arans.

Arans. Turne thee about.

I come to speake to thee thou wicked man,
Heare me thou tyrant.

Arb. I will turne to thee.

Heare me thou Strumpet : I haue blotted out
The name of Mother, as thou halt thy shame.

Ara. My shame, thou hast lesse shame then any thing ;
Why doest thou keepe my daughter in a prison ?
Why doest thou call her Sister, and doe this ?

Arb. Cease thou strange impudence,
And answere quickly, if thou contemnest me,
This will aske an answere,
And haue it.

Ara. Helpe me gentle Gobrias.

Arb. Guilt dare not help guilt though they grow together
In doing ill, yet at the punishment
They feuer, and each flies the noise of other,
Thinke not of helpe, answere.

Ara. I will, to what ?

Arb. To such a thing, as if it be a trueth
Thinke what a creature thou hast made thy selfe,
That didst not shame to doe, what I must blush
Onely to aske thee : tell me who I am,
Whose sonne I am, without all circumstance
Be thou as hasty as my sword will be
If thou refusest.

Ara. Why you are his sonne.

Arb. His for ne ?

Swear, I sweare, thou worse then woman damn'd.

Ara. By all that's good you are.

Arb. Then art thou all

That euer was knowne bad, now is the cause
Of all my strange misfortunes come to light :
What reuerence expects thou from a child
To bring forth which thou hast offended Heauen,
Thy husband and the Land : Adultrous witch
I know now why thou wouldst haue poison'd me.

I was thy lust which thou wouldst haue forgot :
 Then wicked mother of my finnes, and me,
 Show me the way to the inheritance
 I haue by thee : which is a spacious world
 Of impious acts, that I may soone possesse it :
 Plagues rot thee, as thou liu'st, and such diseases,
 As vse to pay lust, recompence thy deed,

Gob. You doe not know why you curse thus.

Arb. Too well ;

You are a paire of Vipers; and behold
 The serpent you haue got ; there is no beast
 But if he knew it, has a pettegree
 As braue as mine, for they haue more discents,
 And I am euery way as bea<sup>u</sup>tly got,
 As farre without the compasse of a law
 As they.

Ara. You spend your rage and words in vaine,
 And raile vpon a guesse : heare vs a little.

Arb. No I will neuer heare, but talke away
 My breath, and die,

Gob. Why but you are no Bastard, |

Arb. How's that ?

Ara. Nor child of mine.

Arb. Still you goe on in wonders to me.

Gob. Pray you be more patient, I may bring comfort to You.

Ara. I will kneele,
 And here with the obedience of a child ;
 Good Father (speake, I doe acknowledge you,
 So you bring comfort,

Gob. First know, our last King, your supposed Father
 Was old and feeble when he married her,
 And almost all the Land as she past hope
 Of issue from him.

Arb. Therefore shee tooke leaue
 To play the whore, because the King was old :

Is this the comfort ?

Ara. What will you find out
To giue me satisfaction when you find
How you haue iniur'd me ? let fire consume me,
If euer I were whore.

Gob. Forbeare these starts,
Or I will leaue you wedded to despaire.
As you are now : if you can find a temper,
My breath shall be a pleasant westerne wind,
That cooles and blaites not :

Arb. Bring it our good Father,
He lie, and listen here as reuerently
As to an Angel : If I breath too loud,
Tell me ; for I would be as still as night.

Gob. Our King I say was old, and this our Queene
D. iur'd to bring an heire, but yet her husband
She thought was past it, and to be dishonest
I thinke she would not : if she would haue beene,
The truth this, she was watcht so narrowly,
And had so slender opportunities,
She hardly could haue beene : but yet her cunning
Found out this way : she fain'd her selfe with child,
And posts were sent in hast throughout the Land,
And humble thankes was giuen in euery Church,
And prayers were made

For her safe going and deliery :
She faind now to grow bigger, and perceiu'd
This hope of issue made her fear'd, and brought
A farre more large respect from euery man,
And saw her power increase, and was resolu'd,
Since she beleu'd, she could not han't indeed ;
At least she would be thought to haue a child.

Arb. Doe I not heare it well : nay I will make
No noyse at all ; but pray you to the poynt, Quicke as you can.

Gob. Now when the time was full,

She should be brought to bed, I had a sonne Borne, which was you, This the Queene hearing of Mou'd me to let her haue you; and such reasons
She shewed me, as she knew would tie
My secreiv, she swore you should be King,
And to be short, I did deliuer you
Vnto her, and pretended you were dead,
And in mine owne house kept a funerall,
And had an empty coffin put in earth,
That night this Queene fain'd hastily to labour
And by a paire of women of her owne,
Which she had charm'd, she made the world beleue
She was deliuered of you. You grew vp
As the Kings sonne, till you were sixe yeare old;
Then did the King dye, and did leaue to me
Protction of the Realme; and contrary
To his owne expectation, left this Queene
Truely with child indeed, of the faire Princessse
Panthea; then she could haue torne her haire,
And did alone to me, yet durst not speake
In publike, for she knew she should be found
A traytor; and her tale would haue bin thought
Madn sse, or any thing rather then trueth.
This was the onely cause why shee did seeke
To poyson you, and I to keepe you safe;
And this the reason, why I sought to kinde
Some sparkes of loue in you to faire Panthea,
That she might get part of her right againe.

Arb. And haue you made an end now? is this all?
If not, I will be still till I be aged,
Till all my haire be siluer.

Gob. This is all.

Arb. And is it true say you too Madame?

Ara. Yes heauen knowes, it is moit true,

Arb. Panthea then is not my sister.

Gob. No.

Arb. But can you prooue this ?

Gob. If you will giue consent, else who dares goe about it ?

Arb. Giue consent ?

Why I will haue 'em all that know it rackt,
To get this from 'em, all that waits without,
Come in what e e you be come in and be
Partakers of my toy ; O you are welcome.

Enter Bassus Gentlemen, Mardonius, and other Attendants.

Arb. The best newes may draw no neerer,
They all shall heare it, I am found no King.

Mar. Is that so good newes ?

Arb. Yes, the happiest newes that ere was heard.

Mar. Indeed 'twere well for you
If you might be a little lesse obaide.

Arb. One call the Queene.

Mar. Why, she is there.

Arb. The Queene Mardonius ? Panthea is the Queene, Hnd I am plaine Arbaces goe some one,
She is in Gobrius house. since I saw you
There are a thousand things deuiered to me,
You little dreame of. Exit a Gent.

Mar. So it should seeme my Lord, what furie's this ?

- Gob. Beleeue me 'tis no furie, all that he saies is truth.

Mar. 'Tis very strange.

Arb. Why doe you keepe your hats off Gentlemen ?
Is it to me ? I sweare it must not be :

Nay, trust me, in good faith it must not be ;
I cannot now command you, but I pray you
For the respect you heare me, when you took Mee for your King, each man clap on his hat
At my desire.

Mar. We will, you are not found
So meanè a man, but that you may be couer'd
As well as we, may you not.

Arb. O not here,
You may, but not I, for here is my father
In presence.

Mar Where?

Arb. Why there : O the whole story
Would be a wilderness to loose thy selfe
For euer : O pardon me deare Father
For all the idle and vnreuerent words
That I haue spoke in idle moods to you :
I am Arbaces, we all fellow-subiects,
Nor is the Queene Panthea now my Sister.

Bes Why, if you remember fellow-subiect Arbaces; I told you once shee was not your Sister : I, and shee lookt nothing like you.

Arb. I thinke you did good Captaine Bessus.

Bes. Here will arise another question now amongst the Sword-men, whether I be to call him to account for beating me, now he is proued no King.

Enter Lygones.

Mar. Sir, here's Lygones, the agent for the Armenian state:

Arb. Where is he? I know your businesse good Lygones.

Lyg. We must haue our King againe, and wil.

Arb. I knew that was your businesse : you shall haue
Your King againe, and haue him so againe ;
As neuer King was had : goe one of you
And bid Bacurus bring Tigranes hither ;
And bring the Lady with him, that Panthea?
The Queene Panthea sent me word this morning,
Was braue Tigranes Mistresse.

Exit two Gent.

Lyg. 'Tis Spicouia.

Arb. I, I, Spicouia.

Lyg. She is my daughter.

Arb. She is so : I could now tell any thing
I neuer heard : your King shall goe so home,
As neuer man went.

Mar. Shall he goe on's head?

Arb. He shall haue chariots easier then ayre,
That I will haue inuented, and nere thinke
An shall pay any ransome, and thy selfe
That art the messenger, shall ride before him
On a horse cut out of an intire Diamond,
That shall be made to goe with golden wheelcs,
I know not how yet.

Lyg. Why I shall be made for euer?
They beli'd this King with vs,
And sayd he was vnkind.

Arb. And then thy daughter,
She shall haue some strange thing, weel'e haue the kingdome
Sold vtterly, and put into a toy,
Which she shall weare about her carelesly
Some where or other. See the vertuous Queene;
Behold the humblest subiect that you haue
Kneele heere before you.

Enter Panthea, and 1. Gent.

Pan. Why kneele you to me that am your Vassaile?

Arb. Grant me one request.

Pan. Alas, what can I grant you? what I can, I will,

Arb. That you will please to marry me
If I can proue it lawfull.

Pan. Is that all?

More willingly then I would draw this ayre.

Arb. Ile kisse this hand in earnest.

2 Gent. Sir, Tigranes is coming though he made it strange
At first, to see the Princeesse any more.

Enter Tigranes and Spaconia

Arb. The Queene
Thou meanest. O my Tigranes pardon mee,
Tread on my necke; I freely offer it,
And if thou be'st so giuen, take reuenge,

For I haue iniur'd thee.

Tigr. No, I forgiue,
And reioyce more that you haue found repentance,
Then I my liberty.

Ab. Mayest thou be happy
In thy faire choise, for thou art temperate,
You owe no ranfome to the state, know that
I haue a thousand ioues to tell you of,
Which yet I dare not vtter till I pay
My thanks to heauen for 'em: Will you goe
With me and helpe me? pray you doe.

Tigr. I wil.

Arb. Take then your faire one with you, and your Queene
Of goodnesse and of vs, O giue me leaue
To take your arme in mine: Come euery one
That takes delight in goodnesse, helpe to sing
Lovvd thanks, for me that I am prou'd no King,
