SUGGESTS AN AREA FOR NATIONAL PARK

R. H. Chapman Recommends Creation of One in Co-Operation

The creation by the province in the southeast corner of British Columbia of a national park, in conjunction with the Dominion government, which has set an area apart in Alberta, and the United States government, which has established one in the neighboring state of Montana, was suggested to the members of the timber and forestry commission this morning by R. H. Chapman, of the Geological Survey, who is in charge of the topographical survey of Vancouver Island.

The area which Mr. Chapman suggested might be profitably utilized for this purpose runs from the intersection of the summit of the Rocky Mountains and the international boundary northward to the North Kootenay Pass, thence westerly approximately to the Flat Head river and down the river to the boundary. In this there would be about two hundred square miles. Mr. Chapman dwelt on the value such a reserve would be in the preservation of game. He reminded the commissioners that game knows no boundary, and that with such an immense—though comparatively small—area in which the animals would be protected in winter as well as summer, as the varying lands in adjoining provinces and states of Montana, Alberta and Montana, the results would be well worth the province's while.

The petition of the loggers for the privilege of exporting their log trucks cedar logs and for a modification in the British Columbia tax scale, was reviewed by a deputation consisting of Mr. J. M. Arthur, Jean O'Brien, Theodore Magnusson, J. M. Dempsey, H. H. McQuiggin,

PLEADED GUILTY BUT DISCHARGED

Automobile and Other Minor Cases Heard in the Police Court This Morning

A youth pleaded guilty in the police court this morning to driving an automobile without having a light properly displayed on the rear of the machine. His father informed the court that the machine was a new one, and that the light had not been working properly, so his son had obtained a new lamp. On the night in question the lad had lit it for the first time. The defendant was allowed to go.

Manuel Adams, who pleaded not guilty to vagrancy, and Clement Phillips and Samuel Duffy, who pleaded not guilty to assaulting the bartender of the Strand hotel early this morning, were remanded until to-morrow.

Over 200,000 marriages were performed in England and Wales last year.

FINES RAISED IN SPEED VIOLATIONS

Increased by Vancouver Magistrate From $5 to $15—Nine Automobilsts Convicted

Vancouver, May 29.—Chief Chamberlain's auto has been equipped with a speedometer, and one consequence of this was that nine well-known local automobilists were up in the police court charged with exceeding the ten-mile an hour speed limit, at any rate from twenty-two to forty-two miles an hour. All pleaded guilty though some offered excuses. Officer Cole was in charge of the police car, and had measured the gasoline spurts with the speedometer, so that there could be little mistake about the evidence. He found the fastest driver of all was Harry Hooper, who had been travelling along at a rate of forty-two miles an hour over the Granville street bridge. "Was it not as safe for me to travel at that rate of speed as for Mr. Cole to follow me?" was Harry's ingenious excuse.

Magistrate Bull reminded him that it was necessary for police officers to do as others did in order to get convictions, as for example they would go into gambling houses and gamble for that purpose. He asked Mr. Hooper what he considered a safe rate to travel at.

Hooper said that he considered that for an expert man twenty miles an hour was a perfectly safe rate to travel at on an ordinary crowded street. He believed the police would say that he had never knocked anyone over yet.

The magistrate said the offence was getting too common and he would increase the fines and adjust them to the

CLERK CONFESSED HE' ROBBED MAILS

Secured Hundreds of Dollars—Waives Preliminary Examination

Portland, Ore., May 29.—Bishop B. McCarter, a railroad clerk, who worked on the Portland-Spokane mail train, confessed to Deputy United States Attorney Evans and Inspector E. C. Clement that he robbed the United States registered mails of hundreds of dollars. Officers who arrested the man here secured his grip which contained his last loot.

McCarter waived preliminary examination and said he would plead guilty. His system of robbery, he said, was to deliver mail at the Portland office, get a receipt and then substitute a valueless package for the one containing the money.

McCarter was first suspected seven months ago when a valuable package went astray. A detective learned that other packages which had been lost were handled by McCarter. McCarter first declared he was innocent but finally he made a signed confession. The total sum stolen has not been given by the postal inspectors.

GOVERNMENT MUST NOT SELL POWER RIGHTS

Beds of Rivers in Quebec Belong to Proprietors Along the Banks

Ottawa, May 29.—In the case of Marshall and others against Hanson Bros., Montreal, with the attorney-general of the province intervening, Justice Campbell, in the Superior court at Hull, to-day, decided in favor of the plaintiffs. The judgment in effect means that the bed of the Gatineau river and of all similar rivers in the province of Quebec belongs to the proprietors along the river banks and the provincial government is abolished from selling innavigable water powers along such rivers to companies and others endeavoring to secure possession thereof for immediate development or for speculative purposes.

FOR UNIVERSAL MILITARY SERVICE

London Liberal Newspapers Denounce Movement Under Way in the Old Country

London, May 29.—Intense resentment has been caused in Liberal circles by the revelation that a movement is on foot to exploit the mood of the nation resulting from the death of King Edward in the interests of conscription. The proposal is that a national memorial to Edward VII. shall take the form of a voluntary demand on the part of the people for universal military service. It is argued by the promoters of the scheme that universal military service is not conscription and that it would strengthen and consolidate the Empire as nothing else can, and thus make for righteousness and peace.

The fact is disclosed that before the King died a petition was in circulation praying His Majesty to take a stand in favor of universal military service. Liberal papers hotly denounce this petition, declaring that if militarists think the quiet mood now prevailing can be utilized to ally the political crisis by forcing the pace in the direction of conscription, they will speedily be disillusioned. The matter seems likely, unless the petition is at once dropped, to provoke a national uproar.

RAILWAY CARS FALL OVER EMBANKMENT

Two Passengers Are Killed and Ten Injured in Wreck on Lehigh Valley Road

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 29.—Two passengers were killed and ten injured when an accommodation train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad was wrecked Saturday at Stull, Pa., twenty-five miles from this city. The dead are John Pollock, aged 25 years, and Jacob E. Pley, 4 years old. Both were residents of this part of the state. The most seriously injured are Mrs. Mary Mott, of Stull, hip broken; Mrs. Nobel, side crushed; Mrs. Warren Anderson, intervertebral spaces between the vertebrae of a combination baggage and smoking car and two coaches, was running 25 miles an hour when the rear car jumped a switch while crossing a siding. The derailed car caused the car ahead to leave the track, turning turtle as it went down a six foot embankment.

THE SHOOTING SEASON.

It may be that the preservation of the wild game of the province of British Columbia for present and succeeding generations does not appear a matter of much importance to the average person. There was a time when the people of the older provinces of Canada and of the various states of the American union maintained an attitude—or rather a lack of attitude—very similar to that which prevails here to-day.

game which ought to be sufficient to satiate the appetite for slaughter of true sportsmen in this country where the woods and the hills are free to every man who cares to shoulder his gun. A half dozen, or even a dozen, blue or willow grouse in a day will not do it. It must kill thirty or forty or even more, after the manner of the gentlemen in the Old Land who exhibit their skill upon driven game.

ROYAL CLEMENCY.

While it is true that King George on ascending the throne exercised the Royal Prerogative usual on such occasions and opened jail doors to a number of offenders against the laws of the land, there should be no misapprehension about the matter. We may be sure that no persons accused of heinous offenses were liberated to resume their practice of abhorring society.

CONSCRIPTION IN BRITAIN.

The leaders of Tory thought in Britain seem to have a very poor conception of the fitness of things. They propose that the memory of Edward the Peacemaker shall be permanently established in the minds of the people by the adoption of conscription—which is to say that every male subject of the King shall be compelled to serve a term in the army.

YAKIMA BEATEN IN SECOND GAME

EIGHT TO ONE IN A SIX INNINGS MATCH

Rain Prevented Crowd of Rooters From Seeing Surphills Pitch Good Ball

On Saturday Vancouver let go its hold on the rain, and allowed a few welcome dust laying showers to come across to Victoria. The rain, however, did not interfere with the ball game but as a consequence there were a large number of fans who were under the notion that we did not play ball in the rain in Victoria. While they were grousing down town and over home fires, the ball game was proceeding as usual, for they play safe or downpour here. It went to six innings, by which time the fans were cold and the players wet through, and the score was 8 to 1, in favor of the Victoria Peewees Performers, so the game was called by Umpire George Burns.

Surphills was in the box and disproved that old theory day theory. He almost got a shut out, for after the first innings Yakima could do nothing against him, and only got three hits all the game.

On the other hand Surphills, against McDonald's pitching got two hits and one run, and the team secured six hits and eight runs for the five innings batted by the home team.

It was not perfect ball weather, and the ground was slippery. Anything in the nature of a slide was a long slide, but the players often took them unintentionally. Despite the field conditions, however, Victoria nine only had two errors recorded, against it. Yakima, however, had six.

Brown was back at shortstop and played the six innings without an error. Bob Whyte was not on the diamond. For a wonder Moore did not get home on this run-getting afternoon, but he did some useful work in bringing in the others. McDonald did not score, but the other seven did and Wat-tel scored twice. The game opened with a run each in the first innings.

RIFLE MATCHES AT RICHMOND JULY 21

B. C. R. A. Meeting Held at Vancouver Saturday—Annual Set for July 23

A meeting of the executive of the British Columbia Rifle Association was held in the drill hall, Vancouver, on Saturday night. Lt.-Col. Currie, the president, was in the chair, and the following representatives were present: C. S. M. Cavin and Sergt. H. Collings from Victoria; Major Fitz, Major Duff Sturt, Capt. Hart McGarg, J. D. Quinn and W. Miller from Vancouver; Mr. Vidal from New Westminster; and the secretary, Capt. C. A. Bout, Vancouver.

The most important matter to be dealt with was the arranging of the programme for the matches, which it was decided would be held on Richmond range on July 21st, 22nd and 23rd.

The annual meeting, which has usually been held on the second day of the most important range, will this year be held in Vancouver on the Saturday night, when it is proposed to present the principal prizes and finish with a smoking concert.

The All Comers' and Bislely Aggregates will consist of all the matches with the exception of the Lieutenant-Governor's match, which is ten shots at 1,000 yards. The Tyro Aggregate will include these matches: Nursery, Helmsken (300 yards), Westminster and Vancouver Bankers, and Tyro teams the same.

The Ross Cup Aggregate will consist of Vancouver Corporation (300 yards), Nanaimo, Victoria and Lieut.-Governor's matches.

Regiments or associations entering teams must this year affiliate with the B. C. R. A. A silver and bronze medal will be given with each affiliation, the fees for which will be seven and a half dollars. Considerable discussion ensued over the question of ammunition, and it was finally decided that all competitors must provide their own ammunition, which must be of Canadian government manufacture. No ammunition will be for sale on the range.

The difference of the pull-off of the Ross and Lee-Enfield rifles was discussed. Some who use the Enfield think that rifle is handicapped with a pull of five pounds against a four-pound pull on the Ross. As this is a matter which is regulated by the government, the five were not in a position to recommend any alteration.

- The following is the list of matches: First Day. 8.30 a.m.—Extra Series, 7 shots, 200 yards. 9.00—Council meeting. 10.00—Nursery, 7 shots, 200 yards.

ALBIONS WIN ONE AND DRAW ANOTHER. Beat Strawberry Vale by 11 Runs—Match Against Garrison Unfinished.

The Albions defeated the Strawberry Vale eleven at Beacon Hill by 11 runs. The highest scorers on each side were not disposed of. Barracough for the Albions scored 21, and McNamara for the Strawberry Vale team 20 not out. The full scores were:

Strawberry Vale. Sinclair, c. Taylor E. Barracough, 36. Thomas, c. and b. White, 20. McNamara, not out, 31.

Albions. R. White, b. McNamara, 4. B. Lefevre, c. and b. Thomas, 2. A. Richardson, b. Thomas, 3.

The match played on Saturday afternoon between the Albion C. C. and the Garrison XI resulted in a drawn game, as, owing to the heavy rain, the match had to be called off before the Albions had completed their innings.

Capt. Scott was lucky in winning the toss and immediately decided to send his men in to bat, and the soldiers, unfortunately for them, had to take to the wet field.

Owing to the rain coming down harder than ever it was decided to draw stumps, when the score was 106 for 7 wickets down. Scott and Trimen both being out for 32 and 31 respectively. Roberson was the most successful bowler, obtaining 4 wickets.

The score is appended: W. Grogan, b. Roberson, 10. R. Gardiner, b. Roberson, 6.

FERRO Launch Engines

The year 1910 demonstrated two things in the marine engine business. 1st—The perfect two-cycle type of marine engine is a perfect design for all motors of small horse power. 2nd—The Ferro Engine is easily the first in the two-cycle class.

The absence of many parts brings simplicity, which greatly reduces the opportunity for trouble of any sort and which enables the inexperienced operator to run a motor boat with safety.

These facts are not open to argument. The man who questions them does not know.

What People Say of Stewart

D. D. MANN, Vice-President Canadian Northern:

H. E. KNOBELL, M. E., Gen. Mgr. for D. D. Mann's Mining Interests:
There is no shadow of doubt about Stewart, it could not help being an important city of the future if it tried. It is one of those places which has had fame thrust upon them.

COL. E. S. TOPPING, formerly of Roseland:
There will be a stir here equal if not superior to that of Roseland in its halcyon days.

JOHN SAVAGE:
The Portland Canal Mining District is destined to be one of the greatest mineral producers in the Dominion.

DR. M. OSELEY:
Stewart will be the most substantial mining camp ever known in North America.

A. D. TENNANT:
No one can have any conception of the richness of the country without seeing it.

D. J. RAINEY:
There is only one place in the north at the present time and that place is Stewart.

W. T. WILLIAMS:
Stewart will be a city and a big city. Outside the great mining development it is the natural outlet for golden Cassiar, with 30 square miles of the finest agricultural land. Holdings at Stewart must before long become quite valuable.

COAL FOUND AT PORT ALBERNI

STRUCK THIRTY FEET BELOW THE SURFACE

Well Being Sunk at New Town 4 Feet Through Vein and Still in Coal

A new source of wealth has been found at Alberni which is likely to prove more important than anything they have heretofore discovered. This latest find is a vein of coal close to the surface, right in the townsite of Port Alberni.

Mr. Hanna, the owner of lots 21 and 22, in block 125, was on Saturday last sinking a well on one of his lots. At 30 feet below the surface he struck coal and continued working in it to a depth of four feet, when he knocked off for the week.

Samples of the coal have been sent to Victoria to Herbert Carmichael, who will test it and obtain expert opinion as to its quality.

Needless to say the discovery of this vein has caused intense excitement in the town, as well as among holders of Alberni property in this city. When the thickness of the vein has been determined, and the quality of the coal, it will be possible to tell better what it may mean. Should it prove to be what is expected, Alberni may become one of the great centres of industry on this coast, and many fortunes will be quickly made.

VILLIERS TO ADDRESS CANADIAN CLUB

War Correspondent Will Be Guest of Honor on Thursday Next at 1 p.m.

Arrangements have been made for Frederick Villiers, the veteran war correspondent, to address the Canadian Club at a luncheon which is to take place in the Broad street hall on Thursday, June 2nd, at 1 p.m. The subject of the address, it is announced, will be entirely different from his evening lectures.

It is probable that there will be a large turnout at this meeting of the club. It is some time since there has been a club luncheon; several men who have been invited having found it impossible to attend.

A concert will be given at Duncan on Wednesday evening by Mrs. Harry Briggs, Mrs. Pooley and A. T. Goward, of this city, assisted by Mr. Hale, of Duncan, and local musicians.

We Would Give $500.00 in Cash

If the people of Victoria could in some way be made to realize that the greatest offer that has been made in Victoria real estate or probably ever will be made is embodied in our proposition to sell a lot in Victoria City one mile from the City Hall, with all city conveniences, electric light, sewers, car service, and surrounded by neat homes for $300, because if the situation was known by every person in the city, there would not be a lot left by 6 o'clock Tuesday night.

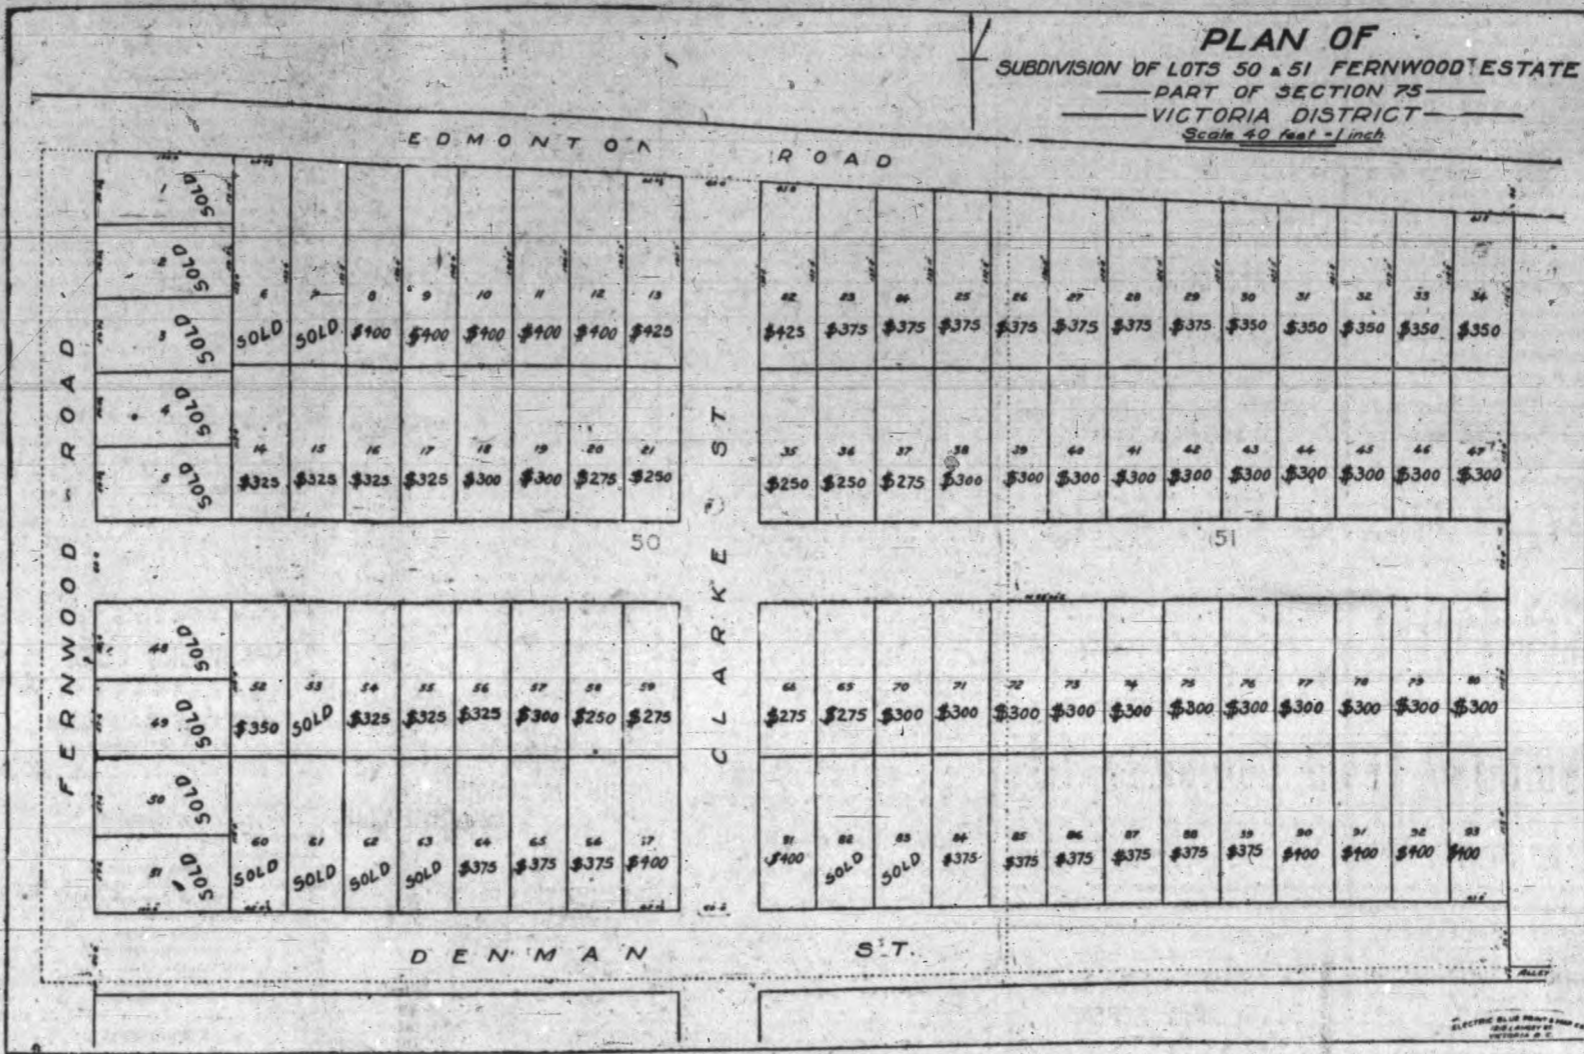

We are actually selling lots 43x115, all cleared and cultivated for $300, that are really worth $500 and $600 each, and if you take into consideration the three elements that go to make up real estate values, distance from centre, transportation and growth, they are worth a good deal more.

The cut as illustrated will show the lots and their sizes with the prices plainly marked on each lot, the lots marked sold are already built on, and the South side of Denman street is also all built up; the car line is just two blocks from the lots with a ten minute service to any part of the city. The property was bought years ago at a very low price, and the owners now wish to make a quick sale, and that is the reason the lots are selling at these prices when surrounding lots are selling at much higher prices.

Price of Lots From $250 to $425 Each

Terms quarter cash, balance 6, 12, 18, 24 months, or monthly if more convenient to you.

Our Young Folks' Corner

A Queer Baseball Game

BY LYNDEN DURKE.

The Stringing Kids had a swimming hole. During the summer they went in swimming as regularly as they played baseball. Every town ought to have a river or a creek adjacent so the "kids" can "go swimming." "Taking a bath" is not to be compared to "going swimming." The average boy will grow wan and sinewed with baths in summer, but thrive on "going in swimming" even in stagnant water, where mosquitoes pay respects to their bare backs.

Skippy Cowles developed into an expert diver; he could bring mud from the bottom every time; while Dumphy Richardson claimed he could tread water. It was while the kids were departing themselves in the old swimming-hole that they had the adventure of the baseball game. Skippy and Clarence Scholes were bawling water over each other in a contest patiently while they talked, and now sung out again: "Well, are you ready for the game?" "Where's your team?" asked Clarence. "Here." "I don't see anyone but yourself." "I'll have my team when you get yours together." "Come on fellows, let's play him," urged Dumphy wading out and beginning to dress. Boys do not like to "back out" from a challenge, and the crowd followed suit. Their shirts dragged on their dripping bodies, and in spite of all they could do sand and mud clung to their feet, but they did quicker work in donning their clothes than they were wont to do of mornings. Then they crossed the footlog to the bank on which the stranger stood. He had a bat and ball, but no team was visible. Dumphy asked the man, cautiously: "Where's your team?"

"But you are out," remonstrated Skippy. "Our team is allowed three outs, isn't it?" Skippy laughed and assented. He sent a straight, swift ball, which the stranger fouled. Dumphy, the catcher, ran under it and easily caught it. "Two outs on us," muttered the stranger and again faced the pitcher. Skippy first sent an in-shoot, which puzzled the batter, causing him to fan the air. A slow drop was equally deceptive, and an out-drop was the third strike and the third out. "Now my team is 'in bats,'" yelled Skippy, and the boys advanced to the plate. "Oh, not yet. I've got another strike coming," replied the lone batter. "But there were three strikes on you," insisted Pete Clemmons.

"I'll play the whole bunch of you myself, but you must give me first at bat." "I'll play the whole bunch of you myself; but you must give me first at bat." The boys laughed at this, and were quite willing to take their first "outs." Finding some rocks, they quickly made bases and formed a diamond, and Skippy, giving his men their positions, took his place in the pitcher's box. At the home plate the stranger waved his bat ludicrously, missing the first ball thrown by a wide margin. The next ball he hit to right field and started round the bases. "Blick" Duncan fielded the ball well and sent it to Clarence Scholes, who played third base. Clarence caught it and awaiting the furious rush of the stranger, stepped aside and easily tagged the runner out. Instead of stopping, the fellow increased his pace till he reached the home plate, sliding in until a cloud of dust was raised. Then calmly picking up the bat, he faced Skippy.

The Land of Picture Books

In the Land of Picture Books, And open roads and shady nooks, And sandy places by the sea, And fairy rings 'neath spreading trees. There is a world of girls and boys, There are many tools and toys; Something new whenever one looks In the Land of Picture Books.

Curious children gather there From over seas and everywhere, And dress so queer, and strangely play— But I know everything they say. Beasts and birds one never sees Upon our lawns or in our trees, Through the night, whenever one looks In the Land of Picture Books.

The stranger got hold of Dumphy's throat and was choking him. Then a heavy hand was laid on his shoulder and he turned around to see a man in white uniform. "Here, Hans, what are you doing?" said the newcomer. "Oh, it's you, is it? I have been having a game with these fellows and they tried to cheat me." "Cheated you, did they?" "Yes. They only let me have three strikes to an out." "Well, now, that's real mean. By the way, Hans, I've signed for a game for you with the Chicago Cubs. Will you go and play them a game?" "Sure. Come on, let's hurry. Will they let us have a hundred strikes?" "Certainly. Get in and we'll go immediately." While they were cranking the machine for the return trip the keeper said to Skippy: "He thinks he's Hans Wagner, the great baseball player. I'm actually here to catch him for me. Here's a dollar. Buy the crowd something to eat. So long." And he jumped into the auto, which whizzed away. "Gee, I'm glad they came when they did," said Dumphy, rubbing his neck. "I'd have been a dead one in two minutes." "Here comes an auto," cried Clarence Scholes. "Maybe they will help us, nips!" "Hain't!" he screamed.

Willie Boy and the Dream People

BY CHARLES LINCOLN PHIFER.

"O, pah! I don't want to go to school," whined Willie Boy. "What ails the child?" asked his father in apprehension. "He hates to start, that's all," replied his mother. "After he has gone a few days you couldn't tie him away." "Perhaps strap oil would be good for him," suggested his father. Willie Boy understood what they meant and felt aggrieved. He was a much-abused boy, anyhow, he thought, and he wished to die so that his parents might feel bad and understand how he had not been appreciated. He went off to himself to think it over and to enjoy the agony

The Talking Cow was made of wire. Her legs were coils and her body was a netting through which her internal organs showed, and they, too, were made of wire. When she wanted to talk she touched a button on the side of her face with her wire tongue, and her speech sounded just like a phonograph. There was no question but that she could talk, but it was not long before Willie Boy discovered that she spoke from records the same things over and over. "You see, I didn't get to go to school when I was a calf, and these are all the records I have," explained the Cow, apologetically after she had talked them all through. "Can't you sing?" asked Willie.

Willie Boy's stomach just like they thought it a dancing floor, grinning widely all the time; and how heavy they were! They seemed to weigh a ton. Willie Boy had heard of heavy studies, but never before did he realize what the expression meant. Now he knew, because all those books dancing on his stomach hurt him. He tried to shake and brush them off, but in vain. Then he became alarmed and screamed aloud: "Mamma!" "What is it darling?" asked his mother from the next room. "There are books dancing all over my stomach," replied Willie Boy. "Bless his dear little heart!" exclaimed mamma. Come here to mamma's bed. Willie Boy got up and went to his mamma, and as he snuggled up close to her he noticed that the Blue People were all gone. But as he thought over his dream he was glad it was not really true. It came to him that perhaps it was well for little boys to go to school after all, and, raising his head and kissing his mamma on the cheek, he whispered to her: "Mamma, believe I do want to go to school."

Then she snuggled him close, and he went to sleep again, but he did not dream.

"Which and Tother" "You, sir, are perhaps reading about a ball game?" he queried of the man beside him with a newspaper in his hands. "Why, yes, I happen to be," was the reply. "And, sir, has it not struck you that the game of baseball is gradually undermining the integrity of the young men of this country?" "No, it hasn't thus far. In what way do you mean?" "Sir, I just came from a courtroom where a young man was sentenced to three years in prison for embezzlement. He is the son of a widow. He was an honest young man 'till baseball turned his head. He embezzled money to bet on the game. Sir, what can you say to that?" "Why, I also have a case to relate," replied the other. "For a year or two past I have known a splendid young man, also the son of a widow. Also interested in baseball. I took him into my employ about three months ago, and this-morning I—"

"You discovered that he was an embezzler, of course?" "No, not that." "Then that he had robbed the safe of its all?" "And not that either. I discovered that he hadn't any aptitude for the real estate business." "He tried and found wanting?" "Yes, sir, and so I got him signed on as a ballplayer at a salary of $3,500 a year. Sir, what can you say to that?" "The other said nothing, but a minute later when he left the car he kicked a dog as if he had some spite to gratify. When lashing cold most and a little chopped parsley. It will improve both the taste and appearance."

FIGHT WITH PIRATES. Vancouver, May 28.—Captain Ludgate, owner of the power yacht Ibo, which has been lying at Coal Harbor, was awakened from his slumbers early Thursday morning by the disturbance created by two men who were removing part of his cargo of gasoline from the cockpit of his boat. They had already taken one five-gallon can off, and were removing the second one, when the owner interfered. One of the men jumped overboard, swimming ashore, which resulted in the pirate falling overboard and making good his escape. Pirates have been busy in Coal Harbor this spring, and pretty nearly every craft there has been visited by them and articles of value stolen.

HOUSE OF LORDS A TORY SWORD

IS DRAWN ONLY WHEN LIBERALS ARE IN OFFICE

Sir E. Grey Makes Important Speech—Says Conservatives Have No Logic

Speaking at the annual dinner of the Russell and Eighty Clubs at Oxford, Sir Edward Grey, the foreign secretary, gave a very plain statement of the intentions of the Liberal party. The London Times reports the speech as follows:

Replying to the toast of the Liberal party, Sir E. Grey said they were met at a time of crisis, but also at a time when the Liberal party might pause and regard itself with considerable satisfaction. The portion of the session which had just closed had had a distinct achievement: the budget had been passed. The budget was one of the great matters of contention at the last election, and it was made so by the opposition, who attacked it up hill and down dale. It was a great budget. It was true that the budget would not by itself produce the millennium. Nothing was more extraordinary at the last election than the question so frequently put by their opponents: 'What will the budget do to remedy unemployment?' Nothing was more remarkable than the stupidity of the question. It was not the business of the budget to remedy unemployment, although, as a matter of fact, the budget contained provisions which would alleviate the effect of unemployment. The other side were very cross because the budget had passed and they knew what happened to people when they were, he would not say mentally, but temperamentally deranged—(laughter)—they were so upset that they lost their sense of logic.

Sense of Logic Lost. The Conservatives had so lost their sense of logic that they had deliriously untruthfulness. They seemed to think that the budget was not a British but an Irish budget. What was the majority of the budget? The Conservatives said there was a British majority of forty. It was more than that; it was about sixty; because if the Irish votes were not to be counted on the Liberal side the Tory Irish votes should not be counted. Then it was said that the budget had been carried by a bargain. Even if there had been a bargain—which there was not—it would not have altered the fact that the original majority for the budget was sixty British votes. As to the question of bargain, he could not believe that anybody who heard the speech of the Lord Chancellor in the House of Lords the other day would say there was anything in the method of carrying the budget, but what was perfectly clean and open politics. What did the Conservatives mean by stating that the Liberals had made a bargain? They meant to insinuate that the government, in order to get Irish votes for the budget, had agreed to do something which it did not like and which it would not on its own initiative have done. There was no truth in any such thing. In the first place the government had not altered the budget; there was no alternative with regard to the land taxes; there was no alteration in the whisky duty. The budget had gone through perfectly clean and as originally introduced, the only changes being those necessitated by change of dates through the bill being thrown out.

Premier Consistent. Then it was suggested that the prime minister had altered his attitude with regard to giving advice to the Sovereign. The prime minister's declaration with regard to the Sovereign had been perfectly consistent. They had all felt from the beginning that they could not treat the House of Lords question as they did the rejection of the education bill in 1906. When that bill was thrown out they continued to carry on the government, and he thought rightly, because they did much good work and they let education rest. But they could not take that course with regard to the House of Lords. If their proposals could not be carried into effect they felt they must bring the thing to an issue—that they could not be responsible for the government of the country without bringing it to an issue. In other words, they could not accept the rejection or suspension of their proposals and continue the ordinary business of the country as if nothing had happened. That was their attitude still. As to giving advice to the Sovereign, they had said nothing as to what that advice should be, but they had said they would bring the thing to an issue one way or the other. He held that it would be improper to say what advice the prime minister would or would not give to the Sovereign before he actually approached the Sovereign himself. And that was their attitude to-day. There had been no statement as to the actual advice which the government would give to the Crown in certain circumstances.

Responsibility Upon the Ministers. With regard to the royal prerogative to create peers, they could not have the whole situation put better than it was put by Lord Crew. But it was rather interesting to go back to what was said in 1882, when the advice to the Sovereign to use the prerogative was actually given by the then prime minister, Lord Grey. One of his opponents, Lord Carnarvon, said it was one of the most atrocious propositions with which a subject had ever attempted to insult the ears of his Sovereign. How history repeated itself, with this exception, that in those days the Tories were not so impulsive as they were to-day. Then they waited until the advice had been given before they used strong language; to-day they used the strong language not only before advice was given, but before the announcement that he intended to give that advice. As to the relations between the Sovereign and his ministers, the King acted always on the advice of his ministers, and theirs was the responsibility; it was their part to advise; and if their advice was accepted the responsibility rested with them. The Sovereign chose his own advisers; he could accept the resignation of one set, he might even dismiss one set and choose another, but in every case the responsibility was upon his ministers.

Safeguarding the Sovereign. It followed that ministers could not consistently with their duty go to the Sovereign and ask him to do something and then, if he was not pleased to do it, go on as if nothing had happened. They must give advice, and if the Sovereign did not accept it they could do one of two things—they could either tender other advice which might be preferred by the Sovereign, or they might resign. In no way whatever had the government departed from what ought to be the proper attitude of ministers towards the Sovereign. When the proper time came when it was necessary to tender advice to the throne, the advice would be tendered, but under no circumstances would they do anything to put the Sovereign in a position of responsibility which it was not constitutional that he should occupy. It was said that the government had dragged the Sovereign's name into the political strife. It was not the government who had done that, but the Conservative party. Mr. Hailfour the other day quoted Mr. Keir Hardie. He (Sir Edward) had no idea what Mr. Keir Hardie's speech was about, and so he did not know the context, but it seemed to imply a menace against the King. Whatever Mr. Keir Hardie said had nothing to do with the actions or the intentions of the Liberal government, who so far as they were concerned, would in no way depart either from that proper regard to the constitutional position or proper respect for the person of the Sovereign which had been accorded to the Sovereign by successive ministers for generations, at no time more willingly or more loyally than at present.

A Tory Instrument. As to the House of Lords, Sir Edward contended that that body was an instrument of the Tory party, a sword which they could sheath at will when they were in office, and draw it will when the Liberals were in office. By rejecting the budget, the House of Lords had claimed the power to force a dissolution. That was not claiming equal powers with the House of Commons, it was claiming superior powers. They could not compromise on the question of the House of Lords. The compromise which had been suggested was to withdraw the House of Lords from the prerogative of the Crown. He was in favour of two-chamber system. He had expressed himself so strongly in its favour that he had shocked the leader of the opposition. He hesitated about repeating such language before the Lords, but the substantive which he used, not the verb. When he spoke of a two-chamber system under which the House of Commons should be the superior authority, and he meant a second chamber which, though it should be equipped with adequate powers, should not be equipped with such powers as to enable it to withstand the decided and deliberate expression of the will of the people and he meant a second chamber which would have some chance, owing to its nature and composition, of affording protection, when it was needed, to Liberals as well as Conservatives. They stood for the abolition of the Lords as a politically-privileged class.

INTERIOR MINING. Nelson, May 30.—Good reports continue to come in from the Sheep Creek camp, but no deals were made public during the week. The Queen Victoria mine, west of Nelson, rejoined the shipping list last week after a lengthy close. The B. C. Copper Company's mines are expected to resume shipments this week which ceased a month ago owing to labor troubles. Total shipments—week, 36,812 tons; for year, 293,266 tons. Smelter receipts—week, 31,830 tons; for year, $1,822 tons.

MAINTAINING ITALIAN SHIPPING. Maritime Conventions Providing Subsidy of $8,000,000, Approved By Chamber of Deputies.

Rome, May 30.—The maritime conventions, providing for $8,000,000 subsidy in aid of Italian shipping and a twenty-five-year subscription to the Italian Lloyd's Steamship Company for the transportation of mails, were approved Saturday in the chamber of deputies, with certain limitations, with a majority of 282.

This greatly strengthens the position of the Luzzati cabinet. The fall of the Giolitti and Sonnini cabinets are directly due to the opposition which developed against these conventions. One lesson, and only one, history may be said to repeat with distinctness; that the world is built somehow on moral foundations; that, in the long run, it is ill with the wicked—Fraude.
