Information for the Inquiring Stranger and Others—Where and What It Is—A Bit of Its History and a Hint of Its Future

LOCATION.

Tropico joins the northern boundary of the City of Los Angeles, distant about five miles in a direct line from the court house in that city. Glendale adjoins Tropico on the north (the city limits six miles distant in an air line from the Los Angeles court house), while Casa Verdugo lies at the base of the mountains, at the end of the Pacific Electric car line north of and adjoining Glendale—with West and North Glendale practically a part of the same settlement, lying west of the Pacific Electric road.

The elevation of Glendale above sea level is six hundred feet, while Tropico is about 100 feet lower. Casa Verdugo is situated at the base of the mountain and from that point a trail runs to the summit, where the elevation is about 3800 feet.

Car Service.

The car service is excellent. On the west side of the city is the Pacific Electric line, cars running on half-hourly schedules between the depot at Sixth and Main streets, Los Angeles, and Glendale. The service on this line is unexcelled on any of the suburban lines connecting with Los Angeles, the actual running time is twenty-five minutes. Single fare 15 cents, round trips 25 cents; ten rides for one dollar; commutation rate 77-10 cents. On the east side of the city an electric car line has recently been completed connecting Glendale with Eagle Rock (two miles distant), and at that point connecting with the cars of the Los Angeles Electric railroad company to Los Angeles. Round trip fare between Glendale and Los Angeles by this route is 25 cents with transfer privileges in Los Angeles. The main line of the Southern Pacific company between Los Angeles and San Francisco passes through Tropico, which is the first station on the road north of Los Angeles. The San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railway company owns a steam road running through Tropico and Glendale to Verdugo Canon, two miles above Glendale. At present only freight traffic is handled on this line, but that is considerable, as Glendale has four packing houses where oranges and lemons are being handled all the year round and a great many car loads of these and of deciduous fruits leave the valley yearly by the Salt Lake company's line. That this line will soon be converted into an electric road is confidently expected.

Mail Service and Streets.

Free delivery of mail matter went into effect in Glendale and portions of Tropico on February 1st, when Glendale, for postal purposes, passed under control of the Los Angeles postoffice. This service is gradually being extended so as to take in every portion of the city and considerable of the contiguous territory.

Beginning at First street, which is near the city's north boundary, the numbered streets run east and west, the city limits on the south being halfway between Ninth and Tenth streets. Beginning at Adams street, the streets running north and south on the west are named in alphabetical order, the next west of Adams being Belmont, the next Cedar, etc., the last street so named being Orange street; next beyond which is Central avenue, the western boundary of the city.

The original townsite of Glendale (laid out in 1887), comprised the territory between Adams street and Mary street and between First and Seventh streets, and the most of the recent development of the city has been west of Adams street. (A street map is to be found in the back part of the book).

Schools.

Glendale has within the city limits two well equipped grammar schools, employing ten teachers, and just west of the city is the West Glendale school with three teachers. A new $60,000 Union High School is now being erected, the first High School building, having been outgrown. The faculty comprises six teachers. Tropicó has a new grammar school building with six teachers.

Churches.

Glendale is well supplied with churches. The following denominations have places of worship here: Adventist, Baptist, Catholic, Christian, Episcopal, Methodist and Presbyterian.

Organizations.

Social and Fraternal organizations are well represented. Among the ladies clubs are the Tuesday Afternoon Club, the Maids and Matrons and the P. E. O.'s. The lodges meeting in Glendale are the Masons, Odd Fellows, K. of P., Foresters, Fraternal Brotherhood, Fraternal Union and Good Templars. The W. C. T. U. and various church societies are all growing in numbers and influence. The Glendale Country Club has a $12,000 club house, over a hundred members, and is an important factor in the social life of the city.

The City of Glendale has voted $60,000 bonds to install an electric light plant which will be completed in a few months, covering the entire city.

Population.

The population of Glendale City is about twenty-five hundred, while that of Tropicó, West and North Glendale and Casa Verdugo combined is about the same, making a total of 5000 people within a radius of two and a half miles. This is increasing very rapidly, the number of new houses being erected all over this section indicating a doubling of this population within the next three years.

Historical.

Originally, under a grant from the crown of Spain given about the time of the revolutionary war, the Rancho San Rafael, comprising about three square leagues, became the property of the Verdugo family. Between 1868 and 1870 several large portions of it passed into the possession of Glassell, Childs, Hellman, Beaudry, Ross, Thom, Hunter and others. Not much development of this section occurred until 1883 when Wright, Wicks, Watts, Hodgkins and others bought one or two large tracts and subdivided, bringing in settlers who rapidly made improvements, planting out large acreage to orchards and vineyards. In 1883, Messrs. Byram, Patterson and Phelon bought 126 acres of the Childs tract, lying along the east side of what is now Glendale avenue, between First and Ninth streets. The price paid by them was $135 per acre and the land was nearly all in sage brush, with patches here and there that had been cleared and sowed to barley. They improved their holdings, selling several small tracts to others who came in and formed with them the nucleus of the Glendale of today. In 1886, while the great land "boom" prevailed in Southern California, the three men named and a few others, H. J. Crow for one (then owner of Lomita Park), brought into being the town of Glendale, a map of which was published in January, 1887. During the last named year the Terminal Railroad company (now the Salt Lake) built its road through Glendale to Verdugo Park. About the same time the Glendale Hotel (now Sanitarium) was built, a weekly paper was started and for a few months Glendale grew rapidly. Then came the collapse of the boom—the speculators lost their money very generally, but the real home builders held on to their realty, planted orchards, raised fruit and poultry and lived in hopes. In 1903 Messrs. Thom and Ross sold a large tract of land on the west side to L. C. Brand and H. E. Huntington and to develop that property the electric road, now a part of the Pacific Electric system, was built in 1904, being completed in July of that year, the occasion being celebrated by a grand barbecue of a half dozen beeves and exercises in the porch of the Glendale hotel building. The effect of the building of this road putting this section in close contact with Los Angeles, was immediate and from that time to this there has been a constant influx of home builders into this portion of the great San Fernando valley. The great growth of the City of Glendale, however, dates from the time of its incorporation, February 7th, 1906. Since that time twenty miles of streets have been improved by the petrolithic process, costing approximately $140,000, most of which has been paid for, there being only about $25,000 of bonds for this work outstanding. The city voted a bond issue of $5000 for a fire department (the bonds selling for about $6000) and has a brick fire building and complete apparatus for extinguishing fires. On Brand boulevard there is almost a solid street block of brick business structures, nearly all two stories, while on Glendale avenue and Fourth street three two-story brick blocks have been erected within the past six months.

Two of the roads to be built by the Los Angeles highway commission out of the bond issue of $3,500,000, pass through Glendale and when completed will put Glendale and Tropic on the route to be followed by the grand system of highways that is to lead from the mountains of San Bernardino county to the sea. The Owens river water system will be led through the San Fernando valley to Los Angeles, passing through this immediate section.

Advantages Claimed.

This portion of the San Fernando valley claims as its first asset, its close proximity to Los Angeles. It appeals to the home builder particularly on this account, as it affords him all the advantages of both city and country—only a little more than half an hour of time spans the distance between the city and the mountains. This fact appeals not only to the person of leisure but also to the tiller of the soil or the person who in any avenue of usefulness produces that which he needs to find a market for—and who realizes the immense advantages of finding that market near at hand. Another feature of this section which is not generally found, is its infinite variety. Within a limited radius there exists notable gradations of soil, climate, scenery. A portion is entirely frostless while the soil may be adapted to the cultivation of the citrus fruits, while another part not far removed may be subject to more or less frost with a soil where certain trees and crops will do well without irrigation. One portion of the valley may be protected from the ocean breezes while another is subject to it whenever it blows. But over all is the warmth of the southern sunshine and around it all the invigorating atmosphere of the semi-tropics—not the Italy of our dreams with a glorious past, but the California of today with a present of wonderful attainment and a future that is gilded with all the brightness that the optimist can mix in his colors.

A System Of Health Training

One great secret of the success of this Sanitarium is the ideal way in which a thoroughly scientific health regime is combined with wholesome entertainment and personal attention to the needs of each individual. Health, and not disease, is contagious at this institution. Visitors to this Health University learn how to live in harmony with Nature's laws,—how to get well and keep well,—how to live an efficient, healthful life. Lessons are absorbed rather than studied, and the general atmosphere and fascinating environment make health education a constant delight.

At the Sanitarium, there is abundant opportunity to rest or to be entertained. Its facilities for caring for the sick or for toning up the tired body are unequalled—baths of all kinds, electricity in every form, skilled attendants, trained nurses, appetizing foods, gymnasium exercises, out-of-door entertainment, massage, vibration and Swedish exercises. Illustrated souvenir catalog containing full information free on application.
