Laughlin Army Air Field
DEL RIO, TEXAS

To the Personnel of Laughlin Army Air Field:

Through the portals of Laughlin Field have passed many young student officers destined to play important roles in the struggle of the United Nations to bring peace again to the world.

Our primary job has been that of teaching these student officers how to fly the B-26, or Martin Marauder, airplane under any kind of condition. That we have succeeded is attested to by reports from the Theaters of War which laud the battle prowess of the B-26 and the bravery and dexterity of the pilots and crews.

When the history of this war is written, it is likely that the exploits of the B-26 will form an interesting chapter. Every member of this command can then feel that he has had a definite part in the achievement, for it has been the combination of hundreds of jobs, well-accomplished, that has made possible the turning out of finished B-26 pilots.

To all those who have given of their best toward this end, I extend my commendations.

The final victory—although it is in sight—is not yet won. Therefore, it is necessary for all members of this command to stretch their abilities to the utmost in the months to come, to give freely of their time and talents toward the achievement of our ultimate goals: victory and peace.

GEORGE W. MUNDY

COLONEL

Commanding

Colonel George W. Mundy graduated from West Point in 1928 and was first assigned to the Field Artillery. In October of that year, however, he entered the Air Corps, and won his wings at Kelly Field, Texas, the following year.

His first duty assignment was at Fort Crockett in Galveston, Texas, with the Third Attack Group. He and fellow pilots received medals from the Cuban government after piloting 27 planes on a goodwill flight from Galveston to Cuba.

In the summer of 1930, Colonel Mundy attended the Air Corps Tactical School at Maxwell Field, Alabama, and in 1931, the Armament School at Chanute Field, Illinois.

When the Army took over flying the mail in February of 1934, Colonel Mundy, then a First Lieutenant, was one of the pilots chosen for this assignment.

In January, 1935, he reported to the Philippine Islands, where he was stationed at Nichols Field, Rizal, for two years. Returning to the United States, he reported to Barksdale Field, Louisiana, and received his captaincy in 1938.

For the next three years Colonel Mundy gained much tactical flying experience, first as a member of the 23rd Composite Group at Maxwell Field, and later at Orlando, Florida. In February, 1941, he was promoted to Major. That same year, while stationed at Eglin Field, Florida, he was ordered to London as a military observer, serving in this capacity until October. On his return to Eglin Field he assumed command of the post.

When the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor, Colonel Mundy and the pilots of his command began 24-hour patrol duty along the Florida coast. In January, 1942, he became a Lieutenant Colonel.

Four months later, he was named Project Officer at a new training school in Vincennes, Indiana, and later assumed command of George Field, named in memory of General Harold George, General MacArthur's air chief in Australia.

On May 9, 1942, he became a full Colonel, and assumed command of Laughlin Field in December of 1942.

HISTORY OF THE LAUGHLIN ARMY AIR FIELD

What was once a portion of one of Southwest Texas' largest ranches is now the site of the Army Air Forces' first pilot school for B-26 Marauders—the world's fastest medium bomber and one of the deadliest planes in combat.

Construction of the field started in mid-1942 and the first men moved into barracks in late December of that year.

Originally intended to be a school for bombardiers, the field was activated on October 29, 1942, as the Army Air Forces Bombardier School, Del Rio, Texas, with Lieutenant Colonel E. W. Suarez commanding.

Headquarters were first set up in offices at the United States Federal Building in Del Rio during October with a small number of officers, enlisted men and civilian employes assigned.

Movement to the field was effected late in December.

On December 26, 1942, command of the post was assumed by Colonel George W. Mundy, the present commanding officer.

Already selected as the first Marauder pilot school to be established in the world—on February 2, 1943, the field was re-designated the Army Air Forces Transition Flying School, Medium Bombardment, later to be changed to Army Air Forces Pilot School (Specialized Two-Engine), its designation today.

Flying training started early in February, 1942, shortly after the arrival of Lieutenant Colonel James E. Roberts, first Director of Training.

Early in March, 1943, through the efforts largely of Colonel Mundy, the Commanding Officer, the pilot school was named Laughlin Army Air Field by the War Department.

It was so named in honor of the late Lieutenant Jack Thomas Laughlin, of Del Rio, who was killed in action in the Far East on January 29, 1942.

Lieutenant Jack T. Laughlin

On March 28, 1943, impressive dedicatory ceremonies were held at which Major General Gerald C. Brant, Commanding General of the Army Air Forces Gulf Coast Training Center, was principal speaker. The late Lieutenant Laughlin's widow, parents and daughter were honor guests.

The field is now turning out large classes of expert Marauder pilots every nine weeks. Students at Laughlin Field are commissioned officers who have already earned their wings at advanced flying schools throughout the country.

Their training at Laughlin Field consists of both flying and ground school.
