

PROSPECTS IN MEXICO

J. P. STEELE OF GLENDALE WRITES OF CONDITIONS IN THAT COUNTRY

Writing from Torreon, Mexico, to one of his relatives in this city Mr. J. P. Steele of 935 Chestnut street says:

"Things are improving here as fast as you could expect them to, business houses are all open, lots of building going on, and as soon as the mines start a working everybody will be at work, and I think there will be a shortage of men, but quiet save. I am afraid that Mexico will never be the same as it was before the revolution.

"I suppose that you have read in the newspapers about the scare that we had here last week. The situation looked a whole lot more serious than it turned out to be, but as it was, it certainly gave the people here and especially the foreigners the biggest scare they ever had. You see it came so suddenly and at a time when no one suspected that there would be any attempt made by any outside forces to attack Torreon that every one was unprepared, and I believe that had there been time and a train ready that every one would have left.

"I stayed around El Paso about a week, and everyone that I met tried to talk me out of going to Torreon, said it was too dangerous, and that Villa would attack and take Torreon in a few days, and that he would kill all foreigners and confiscate their property. Well, those reports were also circulated around Torreon, but as Villa had already quit, no one seemed to think that there was even the remotest possibility of any Villa forces attacking Torreon.

"So you can imagine my surprise, not to say disgust, when I got down town about 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the 6th and found that the forces under Contreras, Canuto Reyes and Argumedo, had attacked the Carranza forces at Pasaje and routed them completely, drove them out of Asarco and Velardena and were now in San Carlos, ready to attack Torreon, and that was not the worst of it, but the Carranza forces in Torreon were ready to evacuate. I went over to the station and found two trains loaded with troops. They had got all the wounded away from the hospital, and the officers were loading all their traps and household goods on the trains and were ready to leave.

"In the meantime the store keepers were busy trying to hide most of their goods and at 6 o'clock all the stores were closed. I went home and sent my mozo out to see if he could buy anything to eat. He said that everything had been taken away from the mercado and that there was nothing left, but he found a small place where he got a couple of pesos worth of bread, which ordinarily would have cost 25 cents, oranges at 75c and eggs at $1.00.

"Well, this time there was no display of American flags, no one seemed to be very anxious to advertise the fact that he was American. We knew that the Villistas had us all spotted, so most everybody went home and tried to hide what few things of value they had.

"That night at 2:30 a. m. two troop trains pulled out, going south. I saw them myself and I was told that one pulled out going north earlier in the night. Next morning everything was quiet, no disturbance of any kind, but people struggling in from the outside to be ready for the saqueo. But at about 10 o'clock that morning one of the troop trains returned, but did not disembark all day, and the Villistas could have taken the town any time they wanted to.

"In the meantime the Villistas were too busy looting in Lerdo and Gomez Palacio, and they overlooked one of their best opportunities. At about 7 o'clock that evening a long troop train pulled into Torreon and reinforcements commenced to arrive from every direction, and the situation was saved. Everything is now normal again. The railroad is running in all directions. Obregon has sent his Yaques after the Villistas, and one thing is certain, the Villistas are surely afraid of the Yaquis and when they hear that drum they do not stop for anything.

"I believe this will be the last attempt of the Villistas to attack any place of importance, and as those (about 4000 in all) were practically all that are left of the Villa forces in the states of Chihuahua, Durango and Coahuila. I think it will be their last attempt at any organized movement, but of course the country will be overrun with small bands of bandits for long time to come.

WORK IN THE HILLS

CIVIC PARTY SEES VALUE OF CONSERVATION IN HAINES CANYON

On the invitation of M. V. Hartman, of the Little Landers colony, a party of the Glendale city officials visited Haines canyon, Saturday, to observe the effect of the conservation work done there. Those who constituted the party were: T. W. Watson, city manager; J. C. Sherer, city clerk; W. E. Evans, city attorney, and H. B. Lynch, public service manager.

The party was met at the Little Landers' settlement by Mr. M. V. Hartman, the founder of that and other settlements. Leaving Little Lands the party motored to the mouth of Haines canyon. There in one of the side canyons they examined the dams put in by Mr. Hartman two years ago. Nine dams had held back the water effectually and the soil had absorbed it all. It was quite observable at the mouth of this side canyon that heavy floods had frequently devastated the hillside in years gone by. Trees that had been uprooted some years ago and huge boulders that had been washed down by the floods of former years gave evidence of what would have occurred this year in the time of the recent excessive rain.

"I visited this canyon last year," said Mr. T. W. Watson, "and I could see this year that the dams had exercised a most beneficial effect on the whole situation. Last summer in the height of the hot season the canyon had a small stream of water running through it and keeping everything green and fresh. This year one could see how the conservation of the water in the canyons had increased the growth of the underbrush and the trees and thus had increased the retarding control of the waters there.

"Los Angeles County last year put in 400 dams in Haines canyon and the adjoining smaller canyons and it is a tribute to the efficient work that was done that only one of them was washed out during the recent storm. It was evident to all of those who were in the party on Saturday that the dams had effectually controlled the floods. They act by lowering the grade along which the water has to flow. They slow up the current of the flood and give it time to settle. They force it to flow along a series of levels and drop it over short falls. This effectually slows it up and gives time for the water to soak into the soil. There was no flood from Haines canyon this year; while the other unprotected canyons poured forth their destructive waters as usual.

"The county spent $10,000 in this work last year. More than a square mile of territory was treated. The upper end of the canyon was treated and this permitted the waters in the lower end to flow off first. There was little doubt in the minds of the party from Glendale, on Saturday, that the remedy for the excessive floods lies in this conservation work among the hills. Precautions must be taken below; but unless both works go hand in hand there will be much waste and much damage done in seasons of excessive rainfall. The proposed county bond issue is intended to handle this work. The sum of $1,600,000 would be applied directly to it. I am convinced that in this work part of the solution of the flood difficulty lies."

ENTERTAINED AT 500

At their attractive Kenneth Road home, Mrs. Chas. H. Toll, assisted by Mrs. W. P. Thompson, entertained members of the Foothill club on Friday afternoon. Small tables for the afternoon's pleasant diversion were surrounded by a wealth of gorgeous poinsettias and ferns. The guests for the afternoon included the old club members and four new members recently received, namely, Mrs. A. M. Hunt, Mrs. Chas. Sanders, Mrs. Wm. E. Hewitt and Miss Bardill. Following cards, the disposition of the quilts made by the club before the holidays was voted upon.

Prizes for highest scores fell to Mrs. W. W. Stone, first, claiming the beautiful Dresden honey dish; second went to Mrs. Wm. E. Hewitt, which was a beautiful basket filled with cut flowers.

Mrs. Andrew Robertson will preside as hostess for February.

LOCAL MUSICIAN HONORED

Among the prominent musicians who were requested to play at the annual meeting of the directors of the Kaspare Cohn hospital, Los Angeles, Saturday, was Mr. Julius Kranz, the rising Glendale violinist. Mr. Kranz played two numbers: "Cannonetta" by Tschaiowsky, and a "Minuet and Trio" by Mozart.

SLAVS DRIVE BACK TEUTONS ON THE BESSARABIAN AND STRYPA FRONTS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

PETROGRAD, Jan. 24.—The Russian army is pursuing its offensive in Bessarabia, where the Austrians are slowly giving way before the furious onslaughts of the Muscovite soldiers. On the Strypa front also the fighting is beginning to develop in favor of the czar's men. The Russians are bending the enemy's front round Czernowitz.

THINK TURKISH SUBMARINE DID THE WORK

UNITED STATES INTENDS TO INSTITUTE FURTHER INQUIRIES INTO SINKING OF THE LINER PERSIA

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 24.—Secretary Lansing today announced that the State department intended to make a searching inquiry into the report that it was a Turkish submarine that sank the liner Persia. It is not understood that Turkey has any submarines and any submarine under the Turkish flag is probably of German origin.

TEUTON SUBMARINE DISABLES LINER

STEAMSHIP POMERANIA OF THE ALLEN LINE TORPEDOED OFF FASTNET

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

QUEENSTOWN, Jan. 24.—The Allen line steamship Pomerania, which left this port yesterday, bound for Canada, is reported today disabled off the Fastnet point. It is supposed that she was hit by a torpedo from a German submarine. It is believed that the Germans have recently supplied the gaps in the submarine fleet made by the many recent captures of the undersea boats by the British and French. Submarine activity may be expected for a time.

TWO KILLED AT CHICAGO GRADE CROSSING

ST. PAUL FREIGHT TRAIN RUNS INTO STREET CAR WITH DEADLY EFFECT

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—Two were killed and many injured today in this city when a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul freight train ran into a street car at a grade crossing. It is stated that the street car disregarded the crossing signal and endeavored to cross in front of the approaching freight. The car was practically demolished.

INCOME TAX DECLARED CONSTITUTIONAL

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES UPHOLDS GOVERNMENT'S REVENUE MEASURE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 24.—There is great rejoicing in government circles here today over the decision of the United States Supreme Court just announced in the income tax case. The court ruled that the income tax law was constitutional.

FRENCH AIR RAID ON MONASTIR

AVIATORS BOMBARD TEUTON HEADQUARTERS IN SERVIA AND DO GREAT DAMAGE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

SALONIKI, Jan. 24.—Forty-five French aviators made a sensational raid on Teuton headquarters at Monastir today. They circled the German quarters in rapid succession and evidently knew where the stores and magazines were situated. Several bombs caused damaging explosions and a vast quantity of munitions was destroyed. The aviators made their escape without injury.

ALLIED AVIATORS BOMBARD METZ

TWO CIVILIANS KILLED AND MANY WOUNDED IN ATTACK ON FRONTIER FORTRESS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—Allied aviators bombarded Metz this morning. A large number of machines took part in the attack. The bombardment was conducted with great determination. A number of bombs fell in the grounds of the bishop's residence. Two civilians were killed and a large number wounded. Our aeroplanes finally succeeded in driving off the enemy.

MISSOURI RIVER IS ABOVE FLOOD STAGE

NATCHEZ, Jan. 24.—With the Missouri river above the flood stage the people who live on the low lands here are fleeing to the higher ground today.

GLENDALE IN MOVIES

MAGAZINE DEVOTED TO MOVIE ART MENTIONS TOWN AND RESIDENTS MANY TIMES

Glendale and its talented motion picture actor residents are the recipients of much publicity in the February issue of "Photoplay" magazine, the leading publication in its field and published in Chicago. The advertising which this city and Southern California receives is of immense value. Here are a few of the well-known stars in filmdom who are "home people" to Glendale that are mentioned or pictured:

Carlyle Blackwell, another former Glendale Kalem star, also appears both in picture and mention in the book. Mr. Blackwell has recently joined the forces of the World Film corporation.

Willard Mack, author, actor, and husband of Marjorie Rameau, is most interestingly told of by Henry Christeen Warnack. Mr. and Mrs. Mack spent several months at their Glendale home the past season, while Mr. Mack was being filmed at Inceville.

Alice Joyce, formerly Carlyle Blackwell's Kalem partner, is reported as again returning to the screen under Gaumont direction.

Lloyd V. Hamilton, who has not acted since receiving a fractured leg, while playing in a comedy scene, June 25, returned to his work recently.

And then, as a final climax to the Glendale reader's expectancy, comes a right snappy piece, entitled "James Horne's Own Story," "Jimmie" Horne, director of the Glendale Kalem (himself) tells of his work here and his theories of the game. In the article, he mentions the fact that his camera man, Howard Oswald, has not had a retake in two years! A most remarkable record, surely. These pictures were not always taken on sunny days, either. The article is illustrated with several "sets" in which appear numerous Glendale people, both actors and supers. In the conclusion of the article Mr. Horne relates how he landed in Glendale, how he rose from "super" to director and that he is now engaged in taking the "Stingaree" series of twelve stories.

In all, Glendale is mentioned a score of times, and Glendale people a hundred, in this nationally circulated magazine. The "Photoplay" is not, however, the only publication advertising Glendale through the medium of the movies. The pictures, too, advertise the town for its scenery, which is unexcelled for camera work.

ANNUAL COLLEGE BANQUET

Hillsdale College, one of the long-established educational institutions of this section, held its annual banquet Saturday afternoon, at Christopher's, Los Angeles. President J. W. Mauck presided and made the speech of the day, in which he referred to the marvelous growth of Los Angeles and the gratifying manner in which the college had grown along with it. Those present from Glendale were: Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Russell, the Rev. Dr. E. H. Willisford and Mrs. Willisford, Mr. J. D. Ashbaugh, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Kenrick, Mrs. George Dunn, Mrs. D. F. Mills, Mr. W. J. Button. One hundred and thirteen sat down to the banquet, which was rendered most enjoyable by songs and music.

FAREWELL COURTESY

Attractive arrangement of blossoms graced the dinner board last evening, when Mr. Joseph Mauck, president of Hillsdale College, at Hillsdale, Michigan, with Mrs. Mauck and daughter Miss Doris Mauck, were guests of their cousin, Mrs. R. G. Payne and Miss Bingham of 404 South Brand boulevard. Miss Margaret Eaton of Chicago was included among the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Mauck and daughter are sailing Wednesday on the Great Northern for Honolulu, where they will spend the remainder of the winter, returning to Southern California in May.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

This is an age of newspaper advertising. Whatever change may take place in the future we can not tell, but it is a positive fact that wide awake business of the world seeks publicity through the columns of the newspaper. Other forms of advertising may have a degree of value, but for positive result getting the newspaper stands far above all other forms of advertising.

SEASE OF THE EYE

DR. T. C. YOUNG SAYS CALIFORNIA HAS RELATIVELY FEW CASES OF TRACHOMA

"California," said Dr. T. C. Young, 570 W. Broadway, "has had comparatively few cases of trachoma up to this time. We have in this State a splendid climate, plenty of food, air and opportunity for every one. This disease about which so much has recently been said finds its breeding places where there is filthy housing or personal uncleanness. It is not incubated in this country as a rule; it comes from abroad.

"Wherever emigrants from southeastern Europe or Asia about trachoma will be found. The legal and administrative control of trachoma has hitherto been a matter more of federal than of State initiative. Surgeons of the United States Public Health Service, stationed at points of embarkation, have done invaluable work in preventing an influx of trachomatous patients. The federal health service has made a survey of trachoma in most of the southern States and among the Indians.

"At present in the States the control of trachoma is one of the most important of the health problems of that section of the country. In California the Indians have been peculiarly susceptible to trachoma and there are many blind from this disease among them. It has been estimated that 20 per cent of the Indians have trachoma, but inspection finds this proportion exaggerated. Cases of trachoma have been reported from Central California among foreign laborers and more recently in San Francisco the number of cases has increased; one clinic noting fifteen cases and another eight. Some of these cases were among native-born people.

"How dangerous it is to allow this disease to develop unchecked may be seen in the fact that a few years ago there were as few cases in the South as there are at present in California; whereas now in certain sections of the southern states 40 per cent of the population are suffering from its effects. The development of a similar condition in California can be prevented by the practical cooperation of doctors, nurses and health authorities.

"Trachoma is reportable in sixteen States. California is one of them. It is well to remember that a case that has been reported will be safeguarded and the community protected from infection. Trachomatous patients should be excluded from schools, factories and meeting places. They should be isolated and not allowed to use personal or toilet articles accessible to others. Trachoma is a dangerous disease. It is communicable and spreads from one member of a family to others, and among people who associate closely and use the same utensils, books or clothing. The watery discharge from trachomatous eyes is easily transferred to infect other eyes.

"Let us therefore take warning from the present condition in the southern states and check the spread of the disease in California while as yet it is easily controllable. Damaged vision in a large percentage of a population means lowered efficiency in the State. There is little danger that trachoma will be bred here at first hand; but there is great danger that it may be brought in and vigilance in that respect is imperative."

J. E. PETERS WILL BUILD

James C. May, First National Bank Bldg., Glendale, is preparing plans for a 2-story brick store, office and apartment building to be erected on Brand boulevard, between Third and Fourth streets, Glendale, for Mr. Peters. The building will contain three store rooms, offices and two 4-room apartments, each with private bath. Dimensions, 53x60 feet; concrete foundation, cement ground floor, pressed brick facing, composition roof, plate and prism glass store fronts, tile vestibules, galvanized iron skylights, steel beams, hardwood and pine floors in offices and rooms, composition sink drain-boards, gas heaters, door beds. Bids will be taken from a selected list of contractors.—Southwest Contractor.

Mr. Peters, mentioned above, is J. E. Peters of the firm of Kilborn and Peters of 1601 Vine street. He informs a representative of The News that the three business rooms on the first floor have already been leased, to be occupied immediately on completion of the building, and that the office rooms on the second floor have also been leased.

WEATHER FORECAST—Cloudy tonight and Tuesday; probably showers; west winds.

VALUE OF VARIETY IN FOOD

Of late years the United States Public Health service has been investigating the curious disease called "pellagra," which is so prevalent in prisons, hospitals and orphanages throughout the southern States. It is remarkable that in 1915 there were no fewer than 75,000 cases of the disease in the United States. It is just as remarkable that in the penal and charitable institutions of California there should have been only a few cases of this insidious disease.

For a long time the cause of the disease was unknown; but of late careful investigation has shown that it is caused by sameness of diet, with the failure to include in the diet such foods as meat, milk, eggs, peas or beans. The disease has not developed in California public institutions simply because all State wards in California prisons and hospitals are plentifully supplied with a variety of food.

It has been discovered that the disease develops only in persons who do not eat protein foods. The United States Public Health Service has demonstrated beyond the possibility of doubt that the disease is due to the use of a faulty dietary.

It is interesting to families as well as to the State to know that variety of foods is necessary for the welfare of the body. The disease has many symptoms that are common to other diseases and may thus be allowed to persist to a dangerous stage simply because it is not recognized. Skin discolorations, nervous disturbances, extreme weakness and insanity are some of the progressive symptoms of this disease.

In California during the year 1912 there were only 9 cases. This increased to eighteen in 1913. In 1914 there were 27 cases and medical supervision became more strict. This slight increase was due to cases imported from elsewhere and by care the number was reduced to 20 in 1915. It is believed that there will be a further reduction of the disease in the year on which the State has entered. When it is reflected that there were 75,000 cases, if not more, in the United States during 1915, California may be congratulated because there have been so few cases. This State has an enviable record for health.

FOOD VALUE OF RIPE OLIVES

In a State like California, where the cultivation of the olive tree and the marketing of its fruit is one of the most important industries, anything pertaining to the culture, preparation or sale of the olive must have a profound interest to many. In years gone by in the United States the olive was considered merely a kind of relish for food. It was scarcely esteemed as a food itself. In Italy, on the other hand, the olive has always been considered as a valuable food and used for food purposes. Children in Italy and Spain are exceedingly fond of the olive as a food and are delighted when it is set forth.

As is well known now, the olive is exceedingly palatable and is an easily digested food and should never be considered a mere condiment or relish. It has at least as much as nine times greater caloric value per pound as pickles or similar relishes.

Ripe olives are far more desirable than green olives. They contain nearly twice as much fat. By purchasing ripe olives the customer is receiving far more nutriment for his money than when he purchases the non-mature product.

Prof. M. E. Jaffa, consulting nutrition expert of the California State Board of Health, says that when the olive is compared with other foods, such as bread, rice or such staples, while rice ranks far ahead in total food value, the ripe olive, so far as food value is concerned, compares very favorably with many of the ordinary foods.

Pound for pound ripe olives contain, so far as total value of heat unit is concerned, almost as much food value as bread. In the case of very large olives, the value may be increased to approximately the same as that of bread. This is highly satisfactory to the olive grower of California and shows of how much use the State Board of Health may be to an industry of this kind. It is among the native Californians and the native Americans of other States, however, that this propaganda in favor of the olive is likely to do most good. The Mexican, the Spaniard and the Italian have long known and valued the nutritive properties of this excellent natural product.

SACRIFICES ON GALLIPOLI

There is much serious talk these days among Australians and New Zealanders concerning the awful sacrifices of life on the Gallipoli peninsula. Never was there a finer body of men than those who marched and countermarched among the barbed-wire fortified gullies of the "Anzac" region. The hope of breaking through to Constantinople was lost after the British unaccountably delayed a whole month in attempting to force the Straits and march troops across the land. The Turks under German leadership made every little ravine a fort and there the dead of the Australian and New Zealanders lay thick every night.

There was no water on the peninsula and sometimes the troops were days without it. The scenes when the water was conveyed ashore in hose were indescribable. The heat was intense a great part of the time and the men sickened by the thousand. Such are some of the features of the "romance of war." Those who are not prepared to face these or other dangers may know that they would speedily succumb before them. The men who faced these conditions and too often were overcome by them were no weaklings. They were the pick of the Australian and New Zealand colonies—men who bore the dangers without murmuring and whose only regret now is that so many of their number were needlessly sacrificed on that inferno of a peninsula.

In recent accounts that have come from the seats of war it is told that the Turk was far more kindly and decent in his dealings with his foe than were his Christian instructors. It gradually came to be agreed that there should be an evening armistice at certain intervals and also that there should be kind of neutral zone where the different armies might, unscathed and without fear of being made prisoners, carry the dead of both armies. The Turks thus collected the British dead and brought them there while the British did a similar service for the Turks. There was no hate between the Turks and the British. It is the knowledge of such incidents that lets the world see that there is still a chance for the reconstruction of Europe on sane and brotherly lines.

MASTER OF VIOLIN

EMINENT VIOLIN AND 'CELLO VIRTUOSI FROM HOLLAND TO PLAY TUESDAY

Glendale has every reason to feel flattered by the advent of Mr. and Mrs. Christiaan Timmer, the eminent violin and cello virtuosi from Amsterdam, Holland, who have taken up their residence in this city, opening a studio and intending to make this their home. Mr. and Mrs. Timmer stand at the very top of their profession. They have frequently appeared before the most distinguished audiences of Europe.

Glendale will have an opportunity to hear these wonderful artists Tuesday, when they will appear in a splendid program before the Tuesday Afternoon club, in the Masonic Temple. Mr. Timmer had the foundation of his musical education laid in Amsterdam and afterward went to Rotterdam and Brussels, where he studied in the conservatories. Thence he went to Berlin and perfected his technique under the eminent masters Wieniawski and Joachim. He was appointed concert master and assistant conductor of the Amsterdam Concertgebouw orchestra and had Ysaye as a co-artist, in the rendition of the Bach Double Concerto. His pupils are in all the noted orchestras of Europe. Mr. Timmer played the violin part of Richard Strauss' "Heldenleben" and was highly complimented by the composer on his interpretation of that complicated and difficult music. He has also played before Queen Wilhelmina of Holland and other crowned heads of Europe.

Mrs. Christiaan Timmer also holds a high position among the artists of Europe. She was for a number of years violoncello virtuosa of the Amsterdam Concertgebouw Symphony orchestra. Mr. Timmer was director of the Cleveland Municipal Symphony orchestra, an organization which he practically created and which achieved a reputation that was almost world-wide, when under his direction.

Mr. and Mrs. Timmer will both be heard on Tuesday. Along with them will appear Mrs. Catherine H. Shank, soprano soloist, and Mrs. Blanche Hermion Robertson, accompanist. On February 4, Mr. Timmer will appear in his introductory concert at the Trinity Auditorium, in Los Angeles.

Dr. D. F. Fox will speak on "What Constitutes a Masterpiece." He has traveled and studied in both the old and new worlds and has a thorough and comprehensive knowledge of his subject. He is a favorite on the lecture platform as well as in his own pulpit at Pasadena.

Mrs. Catherine Shank also studied abroad and is well and favorably known in concert work in Los Angeles. She has a lyric soprano voice of unusually sweet quality and purity of tone.

In every way this will be one of the great musical events of the year in Glendale. Mrs. Kinney, the active curator of the Musical section of the Tuesday Afternoon club, is to be congratulated on her enterprise and success in having arranged a program of such supreme quality and interest.

FAMOUS WALKERS

Many famous men have been great pedestrians, says the St. Nicholas Magazine. "Twelve, fifteen, or even twenty miles a day were none too much for Dickens. . . . Swinging his blackthorn stick, his little figure sprang forward over the ground, and it took a practical pair of legs to keep alongside his voice." Once Charles Dickens left his bed at 2 o'clock in the morning and walked 30 miles into the country for breakfast.

Sir Walter Scott walked twenty or thirty miles with ease, Browning was a famous walker, and Wordsworth enjoyed twenty miles a day. Lamb "could walk during all the day" and De Quincey made fourteen miles a day his rule. Brahms and Beethoven always took daily walks, and Turner walked twenty miles a day, sketchbook in hand. Herbert Spencer once walked forty-eight miles one day, and forty-seven the day following. Genius and walking would almost seem to have some connection.

A GIANT LOBSTER

Alexander MacDougall recently caught a giant lobster off the Scotch Island of Mull. The lobster is 31 inches long, the circumference of its greater claw is 12 inches, the distance between the claws when they are extended is 29 inches. The largest specimen previously caught was only 25 inches long.

THE "NUREMBERG OF AMERICA"

Winchendon, Mass., has been called the "Nuremberg of America" because it manufactures so many toys. Opposite the railway station is a huge hobby horse, placed just where everyone must see it and be reminded of Winchendon's fame.

RECIPROCITY DAY

The Woman's Twentieth Century club of Eagle Rock invites the members of the Tuesday Afternoon club to attend a Reciprocity Day entertainment, Thursday afternoon, Jan. 27, in their clubhouse. One of the features of the affair will be an exhibition of art pottery.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION TO MEET

A meeting of the Glendale-Tropico Poultry and Pet Stock association, Tuesday evening, Jan. 25, at 7:30 o'clock, in the city hall, Glendale. Mr. Cromwell Galpin of Eagle Rock will give an address on the subject: "'A Bas' the Dunghill Chicken." All are invited.

COTTAGE PRAYER MEETINGS

The Glendale Presbyterian Church prayer groups will meet in the following homes on Tuesday at 2:30 p. m.:

Mrs. W. H. Ginn, 128 So. Orange street.

Mrs. N. W. Bunting, 138 Cedar street.

Miss Sherer, 106 W. Broadway.

Mrs. Avary, 418 W. Eighth street.

Mrs. J. S. Sankey, 115 So. Jackson.

Mrs. E. D. Stafford, 361 Orange Grove avenue.

WHEN DID PRAYER BECOME "MEDICINE?"

(Contributed)

A man named Murray has been arrested in New York upon a charge of practicing medicine without a license. The facts are these:

Murray is pastor of a group of persons calling themselves the Church of the Healing Christ.

He prays for the sick. He takes fees for praying.

This is the testimony upon which Murray has been arrested and will be tried.

We hold no brief for Murray. He may be an honest man or he may be a confidence operator. We do not know anything about him. But we do know that to arrest any man upon such testimony is a ridiculous and an unconstitutional proceeding.

The information is ridiculous because it charges the man with practicing medicine by means of prayer.

It would be interesting to learn when prayer became a drug or a lotion or a plaster. What pharmacies keep it in stock? Is it a decoction, an infusion or a distillation? Is it compounded in liquid or dry form? Does the druggist sell this "medicine" in a bottle or neatly done up as a tablet or a pill?

If prayer is not a "medicine" how can a man practice medicine by praying?

And since freedom of faith is one of the fundamental guaranties of the Constitution itself, what power is there in a statute to forbid the exercise of religious faith, so long as there is no infringement upon private rights or public security in that exercise?

Does the offense consist in taking pay for praying?

Well, then, every clergyman is an offender—twice an offender, in fact, because they both preach and pray for pay. And to go further, they not only pray for the living, but for the dead—and take pay for the prayers. The man Murray is nothing to us. But he becomes of interest because he happens to be the victim of an assault, under forms of law, upon all that makes laws desirable and respectable, which is the guaranty of orderly personal, political and religious liberty.—From editorial in Chicago Examiner.

FLOWER SHOW HINTS

The president of the Glendale Garden society has received another valuable horticultural article from a well-known Los Angeles expert, H. R. Richards. This article headed "For An April Display," has been specially written for the Garden society, and will be found in tomorrow's issue. Mrs. Nanno Woods purposes giving the Glendale public the best of gardening information, collected from all sources. Two articles by Fred Burlew have already been published.

In the near future hints from local experts will appear. Mrs. Woods suggests that those interested in gardening should cut out and paste in a scrap book the valuable hints and suggestions appearing so constantly in The Glendale Evening News.

Anybody joining the Glendale Garden society this week will be presented with one chayote, growth already started, in perfect condition for planting out of doors. These chayotes were started by Mrs. Charles Toll, of Kenneth Road, and have been sent by her to headquarters. The Garden society greatly appreciates this courteous and helpful act. Call at headquarters to become a member, 1111 W. Broadway, phone Glendale 1357. Annual dues, 25 cents per annum; privileges too numerous to narrate.

PERSONAL

Mrs. H. E. Bartlett and Mrs. E. H. Willisford went to Long Beach Monday to represent the Tuesday Afternoon club at a Reciprocity meeting.

Mr. Carl Gould of Boyle Heights was a visitor Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rockhold, 1430 Burchett street. Mr. Rockhold and Mr. Gould were old companions at Leland Stanford university and had much to interest them in their reminiscences of old days.

STEPHEN C. PACKER CLUB

A meeting of the Stephen C. Packer club was held in the Chamber of Commerce, Saturday evening. There was a large attendance and much enthusiasm prevailed. Mr. G. B. Woodberry, chairman, presided and made apt reference to the principles that guided Mr. Packer and would guide him in the work of the supervisor's office. Mr. Packer, candidate for supervisor in the Fifth Supervisorial district, stated that he had visited a large section of that district and had met with a very encouraging reception wherever he went. He explained that his slogan in this campaign, "Progress With Economy," did not mean that he would be niggardly with the public money; but that he would be careful of expenditures. He believed in spending money when it was needed for the public benefit; but he did not believe in spending public money carelessly.

Various committees gave in reports which gave evidence that the ladies of the district are giving Mr. Packer's candidature favorable consideration. It is probable that a number of ladies' clubs will be organized in the near future.

JOLLY CLASS PARTY

On Friday evening at the Intermediate school, members of the winter graduating class held a most delightful party. Numerous games afforded an evening's pleasure to Margaret Armstrong, Frank Balthis, Jr., Verne Beckman, Steven Beebe, Irene Blanchard, Walter Bott, Elizabeth Bullard, Alan Campbell, Daniel Campbell, Francis Collings, James Current, Olin Doyle, Ronald Elrod, Martha Figueroa, Verne Freeman, Eleanor Gregg, Helen Hesse, Edna Holman, Sadie Holman, John Jenkins, Margaret La Com, Madeline Love, Frank Merriken, George R. Mitchell, Derrick Paine, Herman Paine, Jr., Francis Pauly, Lillian Pumphrey, Clarence Radley, Isaiah Sinclair, Doris Smith, Donald Snow, Ruth Sprows, William Strong, Ernest Thede, Gerald Toll, Emily Van Osdoll, Louis Verdugo, Theodore Verdugo, Cornish Wells, Robert Wilcox, Jr., and Richard Wheeler, all class members.

Instructors and chaperones included Richardson D. White, superintendent of grammar school and principal of the Intermediate; Miss Noble, Miss White, Miss Woolridge, Miss Thayer, Miss Mallory, Miss Midcalf, Miss Hunter, Mr. Clark; Mrs. F. S. Balthis, Mrs. Frank Grosvenor, Mrs. E. G. Snow, also Mr. and Mrs. Herman Paine. Assisting at serving the repast were Harriet Barnes, Edna Farmer, Virginia Brewster and Elizabeth Motter, members of the June graduating class.

VIOLET "SPICE" LUNCHEON

Shades of violet prevailed in the dainty color scheme used at luncheon on Saturday in the home at 127 North Maryland avenue of Mrs. E. D. Yard, when this delightful hostess extended the last of the many pre-nuptial courtesies to Miss Alice Patterson, who on the 25th instant will become the bride of Mr. George Lyons, at a pretty home wedding.

The menu was carried out as completely as possible in the chosen shade, a low arrangement of sweet violets resting in the table center. Covers were laid for the bride-elect, her sister Miss Irma Patterson, Miss Augusta Otto, Miss Elsie Tyler, Mrs. Bryant, Miss Hazel Tyler and the hostess. Each place card was a clever conceit—tied in white paper with violet ribbon, were small oblong packages bearing the name of each guest and an appropriate verse—these were read in turn and handed to Miss Patterson. Upon opening, they were found to contain boxes of various spices for the culinary department about to be established in the new home.

Music sped the remaining afternoon hours, and it is learned with delight that this gracious young woman will continue her residence in Glendale.

Miss Patterson has been a most competent assistant to Mrs. Yard for the past two years in the primary department of the First Congregational Sunday School.

"I did not intend to go into such a long description of this little incident in the political situation, but these are the facts, and you can compare them with whatever the newspapers published about the fight, and I suppose that they had quite a lot about it.

"Now that Villa has quit the field I do not think that Carranza will have very much difficulty in handling the situation, that is, as far as subduing what few revolutionary forces that are still in the fields are concerned. Of course there are other matters that may require a little more intelligence than the present head of this government has got; in fact, the better class (and I am sorry to say that there are very few of them here at present) do not have very much confidence in his ability to handle the graver problems of government, but they do think that he can be eliminated when the time comes.

"The Pelados appear to be willing to get back to work, they are very tired of the revolution, but they do not like the paper money or "bonos" as they call them, that are now in use on account of its low purchasing value, and unless there is something done soon to regulate the money question, there will probably be trouble later."

SPLENDID PROGRAM

Friday afternoon, January 28th, at 2:30 o'clock, the second program illustrating Scandinavian music, and especially that of Grieg as the best exponent of the music of Norway, will be given at the residence of Mrs. E. W. Kinney, curator of the Music section of the Tuesday Afternoon club. On this occasion Miss Abbie C. Terry of the Oral Expression Department of the Glendale High School, will read selections from Ibsen's "Peer Gynt" and Grieg's "Peer Gynt" Suites Nos. I and II will be produced by means of the Victrola.

The first of this series of programs was given January 14th, at which time a paper was read setting forth the causes underlying the development of folk music, and its evolution into the modern, national schools of composition, followed by a discussion of the characteristics of the folk music of Finland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden.

Mrs. Dora L. Gibson led the discussion and Miss Ina Whittaker illustrated with piano compositions.

The third program of the series will be given on February 11th, by Miss Millicent Virden, pianist, Mrs. Brahm van den Berg, vocalist and Mr. Julius Kranz, violinist. At this time the larger works of Grieg and Svendsen, also characteristic songs of the northland will be given.

Miss Virden will tell of her travels and experiences in Norway and visit to the home of Grieg.

FIRE DOES DAMAGE

By a fire which broke out in the residence of M. M. Betz, 1505 Hawthorne street, Saturday, damage was done to the extent of $300 on the building and $100 on the furniture. The flames started from the kitchen stove, where some oil caught fire. The fire department, under charge of Chief Lankford assisted by E. Schroeder, was on the spot in good time and managed to extinguish the flames. The fire burned fiercely for a time and but for the promptitude of the department would have destroyed the whole building.

TROPICO

Final arrangements have been completed for the benefit card party to be given in Knights of Pythias hall, Wednesday evening, Jan. 26. Mrs. Charles A. Barker, chairman, has announced that Mrs. Charles Wallace Kimberly, Miss Cora Hickman, Miss Planche Shea and Mrs. Charles Bruck will be in charge of five hundred; Mrs. O. Earl Clements and Mrs. William Harvey, Jr., auction bridge; Mrs. Earl V. Coleman and Mrs. John Seaman, whist. Pedro will also be played.

Mrs. Charles A. Barker, Mrs. Ella W. Richardson, Mrs. Dwight Griswold, Mrs. Hal H. Davenport, Mrs. Wayland Chapman, Mrs. Robert Daner, Mrs. E. V. Bacon, Mrs. Chauncey Lake, Mrs. Edward Henry Weston, Mrs. Richard Todd, Miss Emma Saxton, Mrs. H. L. Crane and Mrs. Geo. Peck will serve the refreshments, following the card games and awarding the prizes, for over eighteen prizes have been donated to be given those who score highest; then several booby prizes will fall to the lot of those who have lowest score. Mrs. Earl V. Coleman and Mrs. John Seaman, with their committees, have disposed of two hundred tickets. Those who fail to secure tickets and desire to attend the party and thus assist a worthy cause, can pay at the door, Wednesday evening, and receive a score card.

There is promised a most interesting meeting of the Tropico Parent-Teacher association of the Cerritos school, Thursday afternoon, and all patrons and friends of the school are urged to attend. Meeting is called for 2:30 o'clock.

A dainty, low cut bowl, filled with fragrant white hyacinths and graceful ferns centered an exquisitely appointed table, at which Mrs. David H. Imler presided last evening when she entertained with a dinner party complimenting Mrs. Edward L. Tuck of Santa Rita, New Mexico, who is the house guest of her sister, Mrs. Roy V. Hogue, of Orange street, Glendale. Seated with Mrs. Imler and the guest of honor were Dr. and Mrs. Roy V. Hogue, Mr. J. B. Hickman, Miss Cora Hickman, Miss Marjorie Imler and Master Benjy Hogue. A long and interesting motor trip, covering many of the principal points of interest throughout the valley and Pasadena, with Dr. Hogue as host, preceded the dinner.

CASA VERDUGO LADIES' AID

Keen interest is being taken by the ladies of the Casa Verdugo Methodist Episcopal church in the competition instituted by the Associated Manufacturers. The ladies have been so successful in the collection of labels that the society now stands fourth on the list. A meeting was held last week for the purpose of furthering the work and the society meets again Monday night, at the home of Mrs. J. E. Rockhold, 1430 Burchett street, when other plans will be considered. A lady from headquarters is expected to address the meeting.

INTERESTING LECTURE

Under the auspices of the Tuesday Afternoon club, another number of their series of lectures and entertainments will take place in the auditorium of the High School tomorrow, Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock. The interesting speaker for the evening is Mr. C. K. Judy of Throop Polytechnic, Pasadena. Mr. Judy has chosen for his topic the "Irish National Theatre." He will speak on Lady Gregory, and read one of her plays.

Absolutely no admission charge to be paid and members of the Tuesday Afternoon club extend a cordial invitation to the general public to attend this interesting and instructive lecture.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Notwithstanding the inclement weather Sunday morning the usual large congregation heard the minister discourse upon the subject of "The Master Passion." The text was from Luke 15:2, "This man receiveth sinners and eateth with them." The speaker first called attention to the fact that this particular text had passed through all the English translations without a change by any of them. It stands exactly as it came to us from the first translators. It means just what the language implies that Jesus came to call not the righteous but sinners to repentance, and when upon earth he sought them out and associated with them.

One goes to the gospel of John for messages of tender love and spiritual comfort especially, but Luke, being a physician, paid more attention to practical affairs concerning the body and our daily life. This has been called the "Lost Chapter," because it contains so many stories of things lost, the lost money, the lost sheep, etc. It was to recover those who were lost that Jesus came to earth, "those who are whole need not a physician but those who are sick." Jesus came to the world and there came to him Zaccheus, the Woman of Samaria, the thief on the Cross and a host of others who were sinners.

One naturally associates the word passion with the feeling of anger and similar human impulses but it has a far different meaning in this case, it means the divine compassion and the latter word is closely allied to the former. Every one should be possessed by the "Master Passion" and that is the love for Jesus which is manifested by one's love for his fellows. Jesus did not and does not drive people into his kingdom. There is no salvation for anyone without repentance, just as David stood repentant in the presence of God, so all must stand before Him. Heaven is not made up of good people but of those who have been sinners. . . . Jesus while on earth had no fellowship with the Scribes and Pharisees, he was accused by them with consorting "with publicans and sinners." "Good" people do not need Heaven, they are satisfied with the present.

The only way to have fellowship with Jesus is to take the sinner's place and He will come unto us. There was a missionary who could not sleep for thinking of the sinners to be saved, but there are a far greater number of people who cannot think of the people to be saved because they are themselves asleep. The streets are full of those who are lost. Are there any who do not know Jesus as a personal savior. If so let them acknowledge that they are sinners and repent and Jesus will come and abide with them.

THE ORIGINAL HAND-ORGAN
 The hurdy-gurdy originated in Germany during the ninth century, says the New York Tribune. Its name was the bauren-leyer, or peasant's lyre, and in its first form it was popular in Europe for several centuries. Even today some similar types may be seen in the smaller towns.
 The instrument consisted of a violin-like frame and sounding board, provided with from three to six strings. The music was produced by a small crank-actuated wooden wheel, whose rosined edge bore against the strings. The two outer strings were keyed in unison, and the wheel when revolved gave forth a bass note which served as a musical background. The remaining strings were attached to keys, by means of their tension and their tone might be varied. This adjustment was the only control possessed by the player.
 Needless to say, the hurdy-gurdy was suited only to the most elementary of selections. While originally much used at fetes and celebrations, it later was used only by street musicians, a position now occupied by its successor—the hand-organ.

VISITING AN IRISH NATIONAL SCHOOL
 It was a bare, white-washed little building, high on the brow of a hill overlooking the tiny village of Leenane, with its smoky blue mountains and narrow Killery bay. The school probably has few visitors except the inspector, who is held in much awe, so the schoolmaster was very prompt in answering the knock. He had no chairs to offer but he was quite willing that the strangers should come in, walk about and watch the proceedings. With difficulty he persuaded the children to go on with their recitation.
 The room was small, having white-washed walls hung with three large maps, one of Europe, another of Palestine, and a third of the British isles; there were also several paste-board advertisements recommending favorite brands of cocoa, soap and biscuits, and a white chart called the "General Lesson," bearing a number of rules for good conduct. In a corner of the room was a small grate. The master's desk was at one end of the room, the desks (or "forms") of the pupils facing him; the girls sat with their backs toward the boys, learning sewing and knitting from a young woman.

Presently two little girls stood in front of the master and began to recite from memory Henry W. Longfellow's "Village Blacksmith," perhaps as a compliment to the visitors, who were Americans. Later some boys read from Grimm's "Fairy Tales," and the second class was reading a strange selection called "The Beds and Sleep of Animals." The master was patient and his discipline excellent. The children read very well and seemed to enjoy themselves.
 The costumes of the children were odd. Only one boy in the school wore shoes and stockings; when they moved about the children's bare feet made a soft thud on the board floor. They wore pinafores over coarse, much-worn dresses, and some of the boys were hardly to be distinguished from the girls as far as one might tell from clothes. But these children live on farms, far up in the hills, and their mothers have to make all their clothes. Some of the pupils come five or six miles each day, over dusty roads, to attend school; they usually arrive there about 9:30 o'clock and school is out at 3:30; but the master remembers that they have farm duties to perform before they leave home and he does not mark them late if they arrive before 10:30. They are obliged to go to school between the ages of 6 and 14. The only vacation is about six weeks, beginning in August and allowing the children to help in the fields during harvest.

SIAMESE PEOPLE FOND OF PETS
 The Siamese people are very fond of all animals, but especially of dogs and cats, which are great household pets, says a writer in Our Dumb Animals. The native cats are gentle and beautiful, with large pink eyes and tufted tails something like the tails of Angoras. They are given soft, warm corners in which to sleep and are fed on milk and boiled rice. Some Siamese cats have pretty mauve-colored furs.

In Bangkok, Siam, there used to be great numbers of dogs with neither owners nor homes; they were fed and treated kindly by the people, however. A few years ago the king provided kennels for these dogs, outside the city limits, and from his own purse paid for their food and care. Now most of the dogs seen on the streets are accompanied by their owners.

GIVING PRESENTS TO CHILDREN
 A lady who has occasion often to give presents to children believes it is a mistake to choose too childish things. Just as children object to being talked or written down to, they dislike being given things that either they have or would like to have outgrown. Children understand and appreciate much more and much better than their elders imagine.
 Children of all time have loved dressing themselves up in grownups' clothes and parading about in them; the day when he dons long trousers is anticipated by the boy, just as his sister is impatient to turn up her hair. Children want to feel themselves "grown up."

A 7-year-old boy was once presented with an attache case, which is very popular with grown persons. The cases have little pockets for carrying writing paper, pens, pencils and other belongings, and are most convenient to use while shopping or in traveling to and from an office. The boy was delighted and honored; he could not express his thanks, but he has illustrated it by making that attache case his inseparable companion year in and year out. It has also been discovered that little girls like grown-up presents, too—bows or ribbons, an article for desk or dressing table, a notebook with addresses to be filed in, a book or a picture. Probably children would be better pleased with their presents if their older friends gave them more what they would like to have themselves.

SOME BARGAINS AT BAGDAD
 A writer in the Travel Magazine gives some interesting pictures of the bazaars at Bagdad. He says: "We had entered the bazaars of Bagdad, the market place of the city. The narrow, unpaved street was roofed with brick vaults that terminated at the corners in squinch arches. On either side was a row of booths with high arched entrances, so small that the dealer, sitting in the middle, could reach to every position of his shop. The only light came from tiny windows in the roof, from which sunbeams, full of eddying dust, did not dispel the half darkness in which the scene was plunged. It was the saddler's bazaar and every booth was filled with goods that appeal to the traveler by desert ways. Uncomfortable looking, high peaked saddles, covered with embroidered cloths or leopard skins, were piled up in front of the dealer, and hanging from the arch were stirrups, bits, saddle bags, leathers, horsehair ropes and other details of horse furnishing. In other parts of the shops were pads, pack cloths and other paraphernalia of the baggage caravan. In short, this was the bazaar of the wanderers."
 Turning to the left through an arched passage we encountered a different scene. It was the clothier's bazaar, a decorous place, where the merchants, clean, well-dressed men, sat calmly in their stalls, while the purchasers, with eyes cast down and quiet, dignified step, walked calmly by or paused to discuss some business matter in soft, measured tones with a merchant. Instead of rough, dust-colored sackcloth, these men wore rich brown cloaks embroidered in gold with abas, the sleeveless cloaks of the Arabs. A touch of color was lent by piles of silks, the silk kerchiefs used as head coverings. There were shops where men were making long tunics or embroidering gold and silver patterns on brilliantly colored abas worn by the women. Opposite was a fez presser, a slim man, standing behind a gleaming array of brass implements of his trade."

Board of Trade
 President P. J. Blake presided at the session of the Board of Trade Tuesday evening, which convened immediately after the town meeting. The secretary, Mr. F. M. Ashley, proceeded to call the roll and read the minutes of the previous meeting. A number of new names were presented and elected to membership. It was stated that at an adjourned meeting of the Los Angeles Flood Control convention, the commercial bodies of Monte Vista valley met and reported on the various phases of the work employed here for the control of superfluous water.

It has been ascertained that the system of retaining dams built in Haines and other canyons by our men under the supervision of C. C. Buck, has withstood the strain of the excessive rain of the past few weeks and it seems certain that this is the solution for the control of flood waters in the valley. Mr. C. N. Clark talked at some length on this subject and thinks this valley has established a precedent for flood water control which may be the means of solving great engineering problems. By this system the soil of the different valleys may be conserved and millions of dollars saved to the people.
 The treasurer reported a substantial balance on the right side of the ledger. The subject of a valley cemetery was again brought up and on motion of Rev. Wieman it was decided to take up the subject in conjunction with the Sunland Chamber of Commerce.

Talk on Birds
 Talking with John S. McGroarty, the poet, he said that he wanted to be called a hunter and a trapper because he wanted to trap the birds in some way so as not to hurt them and then to keep them by hunting for something for them to eat so that they would stay with him and be companions for him in his home in the Monte Vista vale.
 Those of us who came from the east used to like to hear the robin red breasts sing in the morning so that if we could have them with us it would be a pleasure. The other day a flock of these delightful little singers said to contain at least one hundred birds was seen in Littlelands by Mr. Shoemaker and Mr. Frost. Let us hope that they will make their home here with us.
 Some time ago Mr. Walton G. Paul sent a consignment of homer pigeons to Parsons, Kansas. While transferring the birds from the car to the home some of them escaped and before the end of the sixth day from the escape of the birds, three of them, made their appearance at Mr. Paul's pigeon pens. They had traveled 1500 miles in less than six days and found their old home. It was a wonderful exhibition of the homing instinct and especially so because the birds had never been trained for flights in any way whatever. Two of the birds were so exhausted that they will probably die, but the lesson of courage and endurance made by these little feathered fellow creatures may well be learned by us.

MOON, SO ROUND AND YELLOW
 Moon, so round and yellow,
 Looking from on high,
 How I love to see you
 Shining in the sky.
 Oft and oft I wonder,
 When I see you there,
 How they get to light you,
 Hanging in the air.
 Where you go at morning,
 When the night is past,
 And the sun comes peeping
 O'er the hills at last.
 Sometime I will watch you
 Slyly overhead,
 When you think I'm sleeping
 Snuggly in my bed.
 —Matthias Barr.

AN OWL IN CENTER OF LONDON
 In a recent London paper is the story of a large tawny owl which has aroused much comment by the inhabitants and much indignation among the birds of Gordon square, in the Bloomsbury district of London.
 Some one's attention was first called to the bird by the noise among the other birds; the owl was sitting near the top of a tall tree and the smaller birds, thinking that they owned that locality, greatly resented the appearance of the stranger. The blackbirds especially were loud in their indignation, but after a time all the small birds seemed to accustom themselves to the owl's presence. For eight days the owl came regularly to the same tree about 7:30 o'clock every morning, flying away each day at 5:30 o'clock. Then for several days it was absent, but at last accounts it had returned and was again occupying the same branch of the tree.
DINNER TIME IN TURKEY
 No tables or chairs are used in the ordinary Turkish household, says the Mail and Empire, Toronto, Canada. When the family sit down to the meal, they occupy cushions placed on a bench about eighteen inches high.
 A large tray of wood, plate, or silver is set amongst them. On this tray is placed a big bowl, from which everybody helps himself. Next comes a dish containing mutton, game and poultry cooked together. It is considered a great honor for the host to reach out this compound a dainty bit and present it to a guest.
