Australian Defence

Premier Barton Explains the Objects of Proposed Standing Army.

To Guard Depots and Act as Instructors If Levies Are Out.

(Associated Press.)
Melbourne, Victoria, Aug. 9.—The House of Representatives to-day passed the second reading of the Australian defence bill.
Edmund Barton, the premier, made a speech, during the course of which he said the standing army contemplated was only a sufficient force to garrison the depots and to serve as military instructors for the levies to be called out in case the first line of defence, the navy, was broken. The clause providing for calling out men from 18 to 60 years of age was simply inserted to demonstrate to the world what Australia would do in time of emergency. The cost of the navy would be about £1,000,000 annually.

THE GOLD ROBBERY.

Detectives Are of Opinion That It Was the Work of One Man.

(Associated Press.)
San Francisco, Aug. 9.—The theory upon which the detectives are now working is that the recent smelter robbery was executed by one man only. It is thought that the two bars of gold found on the water's edge were placed there designedly for the purpose of creating the impression that the gold had been carried away in a boat. On this hypothesis a strict search has been made near the scene of the robbery for the stolen gold.

Think Winters Is the Man.

San Francisco, Aug. 9.—John Winters, alias "Buck" Taylor, now in custody, is claimed by the police to have been the man who planned and executed the robbery of the Selby smelter at Vallejo, which netted $283,000. The stolen bullion, the police believe, is buried near Winters's cabin, not far from the smelting works, or sunk in the shallow waters of the bay, nearby. Winters is a man of some education, but from the day he landed in America from Prussia he has led a roving life, seldom staying more than a few months in any city. Since he arrived in Crockett, several years ago, he has lived a hermit's life.

THE MURDER OF ITALY'S KING.

Italian Detective Says Bricci Was Not the Man Who Killed King Humbert.

(Associated Press.)
New York, Aug. 9.—Alexander Segura, a detective in the employ of the Italian government, is credited by the Journal and Advertiser with the statement that Bricci was not the man who killed King Humbert of Italy. The man who killed Humbert is, according to Segura, one Lagie Granotti, a former comrade of Bricci in Paterson, who stood at Bricci's side when the latter fired on the King. Granotti is said to have fired the fatal shot after Bricci had three discharged his revolver without effect. This discovery was made by Segura, he maintains, while he was working in the guise of a silk mill hand among the Anarchists of Paterson.

O'BRIEN MUST HANG.

(Special to the Times.)

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

Passengers of Southern Pacific Passenger Train Rescued From Perilous Position.

(Associated Press.)
Chicago, Aug. 9.—Advices received at Galveston, Texas, from Sabine, says the correspondent of the Record-Herald, states that the south-bound Southern Pacific passenger train from Beaumont to Sabine Pass fell through the bridge over Keith Lake bayou, seven miles north of that place yesterday. The entire train was precipitated in the bayou, almost sinking out of sight.
Thirty passengers were aboard, and had it not been for the tug Ernest being anchored near-by with a fishing party aboard, they would have perished in the water. The members of the fishing party and the crew of the tug hastened to the rescue of those on the train and succeeded in getting all the passengers out. Holes were cut through the roofs of the cars.

THE LATE VON KETTELER.

Remains of the Murdered German Minister Landed at Bremerhaven.

(Associated Press.)
Bremerhaven, Aug. 9.—The German steamer Palatia, which sailed from Tsing Tau on June 11th with the remains of Baron von Ketteler, the German minister at Peking, who was murdered in the early days of the Chinese trouble, on board, arrived here this morning and Baron von Ketteler's body was brought ashore.

Population Of Canada

Census Returns Will Show It to Be in Round Numbers
5,400,000

This Is an Increase of About 600,000 Over the Previous Figures.

It Is Hinted That Returns From Ontario in 1891 Were Padded.

(Special to the Times.)

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—The census returns will show the population of Canada to be, in round figures, 5,400,000. This will be an increase of about 600,000 over the figures of 1891, which were 5,080,000 over those of 1881. The returns of 1881 gave an increase of 653,000 over the figures for 1871.

No far no official returns are obtainable, but when they are given out it will be seen that the above is approximately correct.

It is needless to deny that the increase is disappointing. Everyone predicted a larger growth in population. There were evidences on all sides, during the past few years at any rate, that the country was going ahead faster than the increase in the population shows.

It is hinted in official circles that an explanation of this is that returns for 1891, and especially for the province of Ontario, were stuffed. Considerable information has been obtained to establish this. For instance, it is said that in that province 24 of the constituencies, including part of the city of Toronto, show a decrease of about 8,000 in population, yet the families are increased by about 15,000. This, it is said, is proof that the figures of 1891 were padded. In one district there is a decrease in the population, while the families and the dwellings show a considerable increase.

WILL BE BANISHED FROM SOUTH AFRICA

Proclamation Which Has Been Issued By
Lord Kitchener, Acting On Instructions
From Imperial Government.

BOER LEADERS HAVE UNTIL SEPTEMBER 15 TO SURRENDER

Cost of Maintaining Families of Burghers Still in Field Will Be a Charge Upon Their Property—Another
Canadian Reported Dead.

(Associated Press.)
London, Aug. 9.—A parliamentary paper has been issued containing a proclamation issued by Lord Kitchener on August 7th in accordance with instructions from the Imperial government, the governments of Cape Colony and Natal concurring. The proclamation says:
"All commandants, field-cornets and leaders of armed bands, being burghers of the late republics and still engaged in resisting His Majesty's forces, whether in the Orange Colony or the Transvaal portion of His Majesty's South African dominions, and all members of the governments of the late Orange Free States and Transvaal, shall, unless they surrender before September 15th, be permanently banished from South Africa."
"The cost of the maintenance of the families of all burghers in the field, who have not surrendered by September 15th, shall be recoverable from such burghers and shall be a charge upon their property, removable or immovable, in the two colonies."
The preliminary correspondence shows that the proclamation is based upon suggestions which the government of Natal forwarded to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain on July 24th, and that the date, September 15th, was recommended by Lord Milner.

The reasons of the government for the proclamation of Lord Kitchener of August 7th, as contained in parliamentary papers just issued, are set forth in a preamble to the proclamation as follows:
"Whereas the late Orange Free State and South African Republic have been annexed to His Majesty's dominions, and
"Whereas His Majesty's forces are and have been, for some considerable time in complete possession of the seat of government of both the aforesaid territories, with their public offices and the whole machinery of administration, as well as of all the principal towns and the whole of the railway, and
"Whereas a great majority of the burghers of the aforesaid republics, to the number of 35,000, exclusive of those who have fallen in the war, are now either prisoners of war or have submitted to His Majesty's government and are living peacefully in towns and camps under control of His Majesty's forces; and
"Whereas the burghers of the late republics still in arms are not only few in number but have lost almost all their guns and munitions of war, and are devoid of regular military organization, and are therefore unable to carry on regular warfare or to offer any organized resistance to His Majesty's forces in any part of the country, and

"Whereas those burghers who are still in arms, though unable to carry on regular warfare, continue to make isolated attacks upon small posts and detachments of His Majesty's forces, to plunder or destroy property and to damage railway and telegraph lines, and
"Whereas the country is thus kept in a state of disturbance, checking the resumption of agricultural and industrial pursuits, and
"Whereas His Majesty's government is determined to put an end to a state of things which is almost wholly bloodshed and destruction and inflicting ruin upon a great majority of the inhabitants who are anxious to live in peace and earn a livelihood for themselves and their families, and
"Whereas it is just to proceed against those still resisting, and especially against those persons who, being in a position of authority are responsible for the continuance of the present state of lawlessness and are investigating their fellow burghers to continue their hopeless resistance to His Majesty's government—

"Therefore, Lord Kitchener issues this proclamation." (Here follows the proclamation.)
The afternoon papers comment approvingly upon the proclamation of Lord Kitchener. Even the Westminster Gazette says there is no fault to find with it, nor is there any objection to make in the score of justice. It thinks, however, that it is extremely doubtful if it will have any effect in shortening the war. Most of the fighting Boers are already completely ruined and so long as they are in arms, on account of the devastation of the country.

The Globe says the proclamation is as judicious as it is drastic, and that the only question is whether it is strong enough. "Not even the wildest pro-Boer can find fault with it on the score of inhumanity. It has long been imperative in order to avert ruin upon the inhabitants deserts of peace."

Another Canadian Dead.
Ottawa, Aug. 9.—The following cable has been received at the militia department:
"Johannesburg, Aug. 7.—Regret to report that A. 1828, Trooper Nelson Hill, South African Constabulary, died of enteric fever at Krugersdorp on August 3rd. Next of kin is Thomas Hill, father, Viridien, Manitoba."

New C. P. R. Steamer

Tenders Have Been Called For Construction of a Fast
Pacific Liner.

Will Be Larger Than Empresses
—Britannia Mine Sale Reported Complete.

(Special to the Times.)
Vancouver, Aug. 9.—The Britannia mine sale was completed to-day, when Mr. Robinson, representing A. Heinze, secured $100,000 worth of stock, giving the Montana people a controlling interest. A smelter will be erected and the mine rapidly developed.

W. H. Armstrong is obtaining fore-shore privileges for the old smelter site in the East End for the establishment of a large industry there. The exact nature of the works proposed are not yet announced.

Tenders have been called for in the old country for the construction of a new fast Pacific steamer for an addition to the Empress fleet. The contract has not yet been awarded. The vessel will be sixty feet longer than the present Empresses, and nine feet greater beam. She must make twenty knots on the trial trip and eighteen regular running at sea.

PLANT TO BE REMOVED.
(Associated Press.)
Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 9.—The United States Steel Corporation issued an order to-day stating that the Dewees wood plant at McKeesport would be dismantled and removed to the Kiskiminetus valley. The decision is ascribed to the hostility of the people of that city.

Boating Fatality. Peterboro, Aug. 8.—A drowning accident happened in Chemung lake this morning. Miss Bessie Dixon, 21 years of age, daughter of John Dixon, of Maple Creek, Alberta, with her sister, arrived yesterday as the guest of her uncle, A. E. Dixon, barrister, of Chemung park. She went out with the latter fishing, and having hooked a fish, while attempting to land it, fell into the water capsizing the canoe, and in spite of the efforts of the physicians she never recovered.

Proposed Woodmen's Colony. The Woodmen of the World propose to form a colony in Northern Ontario, and a deputation visited on Hon. E. J. Mr. Davis promised consideration of the request.

CASUALTIES IN PHILIPPINES.

United States Losses From May, 1890 to June, 1901.—A Perplexing Problem.

Washington, Aug. 8.—The annual report of Major-General MacArthur, dated July 4th, 1901, the day he relinquished command of the division of the Philippines, has been received at the war department. The period covered by the report is from October 1st, 1900, when the last report from Gen. MacArthur was dated. He reviews the policy of the Philippines who were hostile to the United States, saying that their action since the practical collapse of the insurrection has been a perplexing problem.

Gen. MacArthur gives the following statistics from May 5th, 1900, to June 30th, 1901, during which time there were 10,231 contacts between United States troops and insurgents, which show the casualties on both sides: United States—Killed, 245, wounded, 490, captured 118, missing 20, Insurgents—Killed, 2,818, wounded 1,193, captured 6,572, surrendered 23,095.

During the same period the following material was captured and surrendered from the insurgents: Rifles 15,683, rifle ammunition 236,335 rounds, revolvers 888, bolos 3,516, cannons 122, cannon ammunition 10,270 rounds.

Gen. MacArthur states in a brief recapitulation of the conditions in the different provinces, that the present molding force in the islands must be a well organized army and navy. He says the capture of Aguinaldo must be regarded as the most momentous single event of the year.

Will Be Hanged. Washington, Aug. 8.—For the first time since the outbreak of the Spanish war, President McKinley has approved the death sentence in the case of an enlisted man. The case is that of Private Phineas Foutz, Company K, 19th Infantry. This soldier was convicted by a general court martial at Cebu, P. I., of the murder of Genesio A. Torres, a native Filipino girl, by stabbing her to death with a sword cane, at Mandanao, Cebu, on November 15th, 1900. The court sentenced the accused to be hanged.

Another Fight. Manila, Aug. 8.—Capt. Brown, of the First United States cavalry, with troops L and M of that regiment, and a company of the 21st Infantry, had a five-hour fight in Batangas province yesterday with an insurgent force commanded by Malvar. Two cavalry men were killed and the insurgents escaped.

Funeral Services Were Held at Friedrichshof Yesterday. Cronberg, Aug. 8.—Funeral services of the late Dowager Empress, held at Friedrichshof late today, were simple, but highly impressive. It was performed, at the request of the late Dowager Empress, by the Bishop of Ripon, her own chaplain, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Teignmouth Shore, Canon of Worcester. The coffin stood in the death chamber covered with one large black pall, and strewn with white roses. At the foot with bowed head, and slightly in advance of the other mourners, stood Emperor William in the uniform of the late Dowager Empress. Just behind him were all the other members of the royal family except Prince Henry of Prussia.

The service was conducted without music. It consisted of a portion of the burial service of the Church of England, the ninth Psalm, a reading from the First Epistle to the Corinthians, and the Benediction. The congregation rendered the responses. Immediately after its conclusion, Emperor William and Empress drove back to Homburg.

Funeral Honors. Ottawa, Aug. 8.—The militia authorities have issued orders that salutes of sixty guns shall be fired on Tuesday at all artillery headquarters in Canada, except Halifax and Victoria, where funeral honors to the late Empress Frederick will be paid by the Imperial forces.

CONGRESS OF BOTANISTS. Geneva, Aug. 8.—The International Association of Botanists completed its work today. The articles of association were agreed upon in principle and were handed over to a committee to be drafted. The next congress will meet in Vienna during the year 1905.

Re-Opening The Mills

Steel Corporation Has Succeeded in Re Starting Several of Their Plants.

Presidents Shaffer and Gompers Meet at Pittsburg—First Act of Violence.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 8.—President Shaffer, of the Amalgamated Association, devoted today to a conference with President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, who came here for a personal study of the situation before committing himself or his immense organization in any manner.

The conference reached no conclusion and, unless there is an alteration of plans, will be resumed at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. President Gompers declined to state the result of their deliberations, and would say nothing other than that he would say here to look over the situation and consult with President Shaffer.

The steel corporation succeeded today in getting the Farm mill at Lindsay and the McCutcheon plant and another mill at the Clark works in operation. They also received reports at Hyde Park last night that four mills worked, and an announcement from Wellsville that the strike was virtually over. They met with no opposition at any of the four points where they have re-opened mills, and expressed their satisfaction at the progress made. The strikers insist that there are not enough men at the Lindsay and McCutcheon mills to operate the one mill started, and predicted that it would close during the day. It was kept going, however, until night.

It is planned to open another mill at Lindsay and McCutcheon's, also to start the Paint mill and the Charter's plant at Carnegie, but just when they will be started remains to be seen. The steel corporation is evidently putting forward great efforts at Pittsburg, the headquarters of the strike, for the moral effect.

The first act of violence in this neighborhood occurred at Nativity last night, when a foreigner, whose name could not be learned, was shot, presumably by strikers. He was employed in the copper extraction department of the Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Company, and was struck by shot in three places, but not seriously wounded. There were six or eight shots fired from the hill, but the company has succeeded in filling the striking firemen's places and the strikers were trying to frighten the new men by throwing rocks and shooting at them. A heavy guard of special officers has been put on for the protection of the workmen.

EMPLOYEE IN CUSTODY. John Winters Suspected of Complicity in the Gold Robbery. San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 8.—Capt. Seymour has disclosed the identity of the man whom the police department has in custody on suspicion of being an accomplice in the Selby smelter robbery at Vallejo Junction. The suspect is John Winters, 37 years old, an employee of the smelting company.

Capt. Seymour's outline of the evidence is: "The cover of the tunnel excavated by the thieves was constructed of laths, upon which some cloth was fastened with tacks of peculiar pattern, and tacks similar were found in Winters's cabin; portions of lath, similar to those composing the frame work of his cabin, were also found in his cabin, and covered with mud, which corresponds with earth taken from the tunnel. Winters had been seen late at night in the vicinity of the railroad several times by persons who had occasion to pass that way." He, however, stoutly maintains that he knows nothing whatever of the robbery.

ALL-NIGHT SITTING. Irish Members Adopt Obstructive Tactics in the Commons. London, Aug. 9.—At 10 o'clock last night in a crowded and exciting session of the House of Commons, Mr. Balfour's new rule, of voting estimates by wholesale closure, came into operation. Lumped in classes more than 607,000,000 were, by this scheme, voted in a series of divisions before 1 o'clock this morning. The government majority always exceeding one hundred. The House was still in session at 5 a. m.

The Irish members engaged in obstructive tactics with reference to various resolutions incidental to the final stages of the estimates and Mr. Chamberlain frequently moved the closure. The House adjourned at 9 a. m. after numerous divisions under the closure. The Irish members kept up a continual opposition, but without disorderly scenes.

THE DUKE'S VISIT. Victoria is Among Cities Where Addresses May Be Presented. Ottawa, Aug. 8.—Addresses to His Royal Highness the Duke of Cornwall and York may be presented at the following centres: Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Regina, Vancouver, Victoria, Toronto, London, Kingston, St. John and Halifax.

Addresses from other cities or towns of a province should be presented at the capital or centre. Addresses should be short and worded as concisely as possible. Drafts of the addresses for presentation to Their Royal Highnesses should reach the Governor-General's secretary at the Citadel, Quebec, by the 1st of September next for approval. It should be stated at which centre it is proposed to present them.

President Ralston, of the Selby Smelting Works, stated yesterday that a reward of $5,000 had been offered for the capture of the gold robbers.

CAUSE OF ACCIDENT. M. Santos Dumont Says His Balloon Was Insufficiently Filled.

Paris, Aug. 8.—M. Santos Dumont gave the following account of his balloon trip to-day: "This time it is not the fault of the motor, which worked admirably; it was the balloon which caused the accident. I rounded the Eiffel tower with admirable speed, as I had a favorable wind, and was already returning over the Bois de Boulogne, when the wind freshened and the fragments fell, completely covering me. The rest you know. I am unharmed; I have not a scratch, and will recommence."

"The motor is uninjured. I will have worked it for ten minutes. I will now send it to St. Cloud and set to work repairing the balloon. It is simply a matter of sewing the pieces together. The cause of the accident was that the balloon was insufficiently filled. I know this. The ventilator also worked badly."

M. Deistliche, who was present at the start, shed tears when he saw the balloon falling. In an interview, after highly praising the courage and skill of M. Santos Dumont, he said: "I am afraid the experiments will not be continued, as his balloon will always be at the mercy of the wind, which is not the kind of airship we have dreamed of."

The aeronaut attributes his escape to a medal of St. Bernard pressed to him by the occasion of the other day, on the occasion of one of his ascents. This medal he wears attached to a bracelet on his wrist. When M. Santos Dumont referred to this belief he kissed the medal.

"I was troubled with malarial fever of and three years standing and was under doctors care for quite time. I writes Mr. J. E. Pierce, of Farmville, Wayne Co., Ky. "They had almost given me up and my suffering was very great. My weight was very weak, breath short and I had severe pains in the back, head and legs. Had palpitation of heart, and from June 1st, 1898, to May 1st, 1899, I was able to do a day's work. I purchased five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and before I had taken the first two bottles I was very much better. I continued taking the medicine and by the time the fifth bottle was gone I was able to do a day's work."

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cleanses the blood of the poisons which feed disease, cures diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition, and enables the proper assimilation of food. It is a flesh forming, muscle making medicine, making sound flesh and not flabby fat. It contains no whisky nor alcohol in any form.

Two Women Lynched

Mother, Son and Daughter Put to Death By a Mississippi Mob.

The Three Negroes Were Taken From the Jail and Hanged.

A Carrollton, Miss., dispatch, dated Aug. 1st, to the New York Times, says: "The murder of Mr. and Mrs. Tallaferra, at their home here on the night of July 20th, culminated to-night in the lynching of Betsey McCray, her son Belford McCray, and her daughter Ida McCray, all negroes."

"The lynching mob was composed of about 500 white citizens of Carroll County, who marched to the jail in order, demanding the keys from Jailer Duke, proceeded to the cells of the unfortunate negroes, bound them by the necks and hands, and carried them to the corporate limits of the town, where they hanged them to a tree by the road and riddled their bodies with bullets."

"Ida McCray confessed to the knowledge of the murder and stated that her mother, Betsey, and brother, Belford, helped commit the murder. She further implicated three other negroes, Betsey McCray refused to make any statement. The McCrays had been remanded to jail by the coroner's jury."

"Early this morning the streets were crowded with citizens of the county, who were in town to hear the investigation of the Tallaferra killing. The sheriff of LeFlore County had come on the morning train and brought with him Bill Davis and Belford McCray, who were suspected of having murdered Mr. and Mrs. Tallaferra. They were lodged in jail with the other suspects."

"At the suggestion of Judge W. F. Stevens, a committee went to the jail to examine witnesses and investigate the killing in report to the citizens in the court house, before the jury of inquest should proceed with its work. This they were doing in a quiet and successful manner, when it was learned that about seventy-five men, growing impatient at the delay, were ready to come to the jail and take the suspects and hang them."

"The committee immediately went to the court house and called the people together. They seemed satisfied when assured that the negroes would not be spirited away and that the final investigations would be held in public in the court house. They added to the committee four of Carrollton's best citizens, who were neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Tallaferra."

"The committee then proceeded to the jail to complete its work. The mob continued impatient and restless. In the meantime Gov. Longino had telephoned Judge Stevens that he would have Jackson for Carrollton on the 2 o'clock train and come over from Winona on a special. The committee being apprised of this, did their best to kill time so that the Governor might arrive before the mob arrived. However, they deemed it necessary at about 4 o'clock to make another report to the people."

"Mr. Hill reported that the committee had concluded after a faithful and thorough examination that while Belford and Betsey McCray knew that the Tallaferras were to be killed and had absented themselves from home so that they might prove an alibi, the ones who had actually committed the crime had not yet been caught, but that they believed that these would bring divines the whole plot. Mr. Hill left to the crowd as to whether the committee should proceed with the investigation or drop it, and have the jury of inquest proceed. The crowd was unanimous in instructing the committee to proceed with the investigation at the jail. However, as the crowd was dispersing from the court house they met about fifty men, armed with shotguns and rifles, who had not been in the court house to hear the last report."

"These men proceeded to the jail, where the deputy sheriff promptly opened the door and the mob went up stairs. They brought out Belford, Betsey and Ida McCray. Judge Stevens, Messrs. Hill and George and other citizens begged and pleaded with them, as did Lynn Tallaferra, the son of the murdered couple, not to kill these negroes, as they would thereby thwart the efforts of justice. It was to no purpose; the mob was determined to hang the prisoners. They took the three negroes under the hill, about a quarter of a mile from town, and hanged them. They then fired at least 500 shots into their bodies."

"The Governor arrived just as the mob was returning."

BOER LEADER SURRENDERS. London, Aug. 8.—Lord Kitchener reports the surrender at Warmbaths of Commandant Revilliers, who was second in command to Beyers.

At today's session of the South Africa compensation commission, Newton Crane, representing the United States, announced that he had thirteen claims to bring forward. He explained that all of them would be "paper claims," as it was impossible to bring claimants such a distance to testify. The president replied that the commission was prepared to act generously wherever just claims were substantiated.

DISPUTE OVER RESULT.

Fitzmorris, the Globe Trotter, is Accused of Having Faked.

With the arrival of the globe trotters from racing around the world the question of supremacy in the matter of speed does not seem to have been settled.

Fitzmorris, the Chicago boy, claims the credit of having beaten all his rivals with a record of 60 days, 13 hours and 20 minutes.

The sensation of the day is the return to Paris of Gaston Steigler, after having encircled the globe for the first time in 63 days.

He is deserving of first honors, and Crittenden, of San Francisco, well he says nothing; he wasn't in it.

There was some excitement when Crittenden reached home on Market street in front of the Examiner building.

San Francisco. A long array of empty backs had assembled before that building, and Examiner reporters were stopping persons in the streets and requesting them to get into the carriage and ride in the escort.

"For William Clarke Crittenden," replied the reporters. "Crittenden, who is Crittenden?"

"Well, I am too busy to ride in the parade," said every citizen accented.

In huge lights formed of incandescent lights the wondering public were informed that "Crittenden, the Boy Globe Trotter," was returning home.

Crittenden was bundled into a hack at the head of a line of six hacks. Four of the hacks were occupied by Examiner reporters and one by School Director Mark and Commissioner of Public Works A. B. Maguire.

At the head of the procession marched a brass band. A group of high school boys had met him at the ferry, and they followed him up Market street.

was not a line drive, nor a hard grounder. That was the best game ever pitched anywhere, I'll venture to say.

To-morrow's Game. The Nanaimos and Victorias cross bats at Oak Bay to-morrow, this game being the last championship game of the season.

This match will doubtless be one of the best of the season, both teams being in fine form and very evenly matched.

Hon. W. C. Wells, who returned a day or two ago to the capital from a trip through his constituency, expressed himself as delighted with the outlook there for the year.

One of the principal objects of Mr. Wells's visit was to inspect the condition of the mines in the town of Peterboro to the Red Line mine.

THE FINAL STAGE. It cannot be said that the measures which have been finally decided upon by the British government to end the war in South Africa are unduly severe. When the republics declared war and invaded annexed British territory they invited the fate that has befallen them. Their chief rulers knew, or should have known, the consequences of their actions. It is possible they hoped that if the worst came to the worst and the power they defied should prove too strong for them there would be either European intervention or a return to the status quo with the consent of the government which had hitherto proved so good-natured. None of the things they hoped for have come to pass. The God of Battles whom the ignorant and fanatical looked to fall them, their forces were not so invincible as they were deemed, the spectacle of a united Britain convinced Europe that it would not be judicious to interfere, and the British government has wisely determined that there shall be no more war in South Africa if it is possible by human safeguards to prevent it. The plough is near the end of the furrow. Those who do not care to accept of the new conditions have no course but to go elsewhere. If they are caught in arms after the day of grace has expired they will be expelled from the country. Their property will be confiscated and its value applied to the cost of the maintenance of those who have a right to look to them for support. Such a determination is the logical result of conditions for which the Boer leaders are alone responsible. The war is over. The policy of the British government is inflexible. The British flag is now flying over all the territory in which the disturbances have occurred. The Boers staked all and they have lost all. The few irreconcilables who are still in the field are stinging against humanity now even more than they did when they provoked hostilities. On the demand of the men at the head of what they choose to call a government they hold out for independence. To achieve this they cast the burden of supporting their wives and families upon the British, who in the name of humanity and civilization cannot refuse the task, while the cravers for liberty rove around in small bands and lie in wait for straggling squads of British soldiers. Belligerents are in the habit of making some very fine distinctions and war, even when by common consent it is recognized as legal, is a murderous business. What the Boers now call war is simply assassination. They know there is no hope of intervention, no chance of the British giving up the game because of weariness or exhaustion. Therefore the quickest way of ending the present condition of affairs is the most merciful way. The great majority of the Boer people desire to be allowed to go home and attend to the affairs of life. Their will is held in subjection to that of a few desperadvers who love fighting from the lust of blood engendered by the slaughter of natives and a few office holders who will not admit that their occupations are gone forever. The measures of the government will be subjected to the usual criticism, but there is no doubt they are the result of the deliberations of men whose aim is the welfare of South Africa as a whole.

SOMEBODY BEING FOOLED. The Nelson Tribune has seemingly taken a solemn vow that it will know no rest until it lands R. F. Green, M. P., in the Provincial cabinet. It says he is now on the coast, and "it is presumed that when he returns he will be Minister of Mines and an election will be on." Our contemporary also issues a warning to all and sundry who may be nourishing political ambitions that it will be a waste of time and money to oppose Mr. Green after he becomes an honorable. Certain circumstances in connection with this agitation of our able interior contemporary tend to encourage the belief that it is one of the bluffs for which the member for Nelson is celebrated. Mr. Dunsinuir has been warned to cut away the useless cabinet timber lest a worse thing befall him—which would probably be the opposition of the member for Nelson and of his "personal following." The admission of the representative of the Shocan would satisfy the demands of friendship and be taken as an earnest desire of the Premier to do the right thing—for the present. Possibly the new Minister of Mines is intended merely to clear the way and make smooth the path for a greater man in the inner circles. But that is doubtful. Mr. Houston is no doubt ambitious, but he has the deepest contempt for the politicians, and it is probably his private opinion that they are a small lot. Let him shape the destinies of the province and run his newspaper in the capital of the interior and he will be satisfied. But like all dead game sports who delight in playing for high stakes he does not relish being "thrown down." Mr. Green is on the coast in search of his portfolio, and the Premier, who is the only man that can give it to him, is on his way north on his private ship. This is a rather singular coincidence. Unless the would-be cabinet minister be content to remain for a considerable season on the coast he must return home with his ambitions still unsatisfied. It is a most unsatisfactory situation. Perhaps the agitation was merely worked up by the Tribune to relieve the monotony of the holiday season.

THE CENSUS RETURNS. Census returns are not necessary to prove that Canada is prosperous, and in the west have the evidence of the growth of population before our eyes daily. Everybody knows that at the time of the last census the Conservatives were most anxious that the returns should show a large increase in order that their National Policy should be given the credit for the same. When Conservatives are in power and desire that a certain thing shall be, the obstacles must be very great indeed to prevent its accomplishment. Proof has been furnished that some of the returns were padded for the credit of the party and its policy. If they were guilty in one direction there is nothing unreasonable about supposing they offended in another. They magnified every cottage in which an old lady sat with her knitting into a factory—why should they not also multiply the population for the same purpose? The proof of the smartness of the manipulators was given in Parliament after the publication of the returns. People in villages and towns cannot be deceived in regard to the matter of the state of the population as compared with ten years ago. If the population has decreased they cannot but know it. If it is stationary they must be aware of it. If it has grown the evidence of it is before their eyes. If there are all the outward indications of a considerable increase and the returns show a decrease as compared with the former census, one of two things is evident; the enumerators on this occasion have not done their duty properly, or their predecessors, or the supervisors who followed them, did theirs solely with an eye to the wishes of the government of that day. It should be easy to verify the work of the enumerators for the past decade and place the responsibility in the right quarter. There will be a great to-do among our Tory friends over the census returns in any case. They will prove by them that the country made a big mistake in turning them out. Whether they will decide to stick to the statement that the National Policy is still in force or resolve to regard it as abolished and Canada ruined, as the returns reveal, remains to be seen. The growing time has merely commenced. The effects of the Conservative policy were felt for eight years of the decade. The next census will furnish a true test.

COLONIAL NAVIES. The Commonwealth of Australia has entered upon its promising career by making reasonable provision for its own defence. One branch of the service, as becomes a democratic nation, will consist of citizen soldiers or militia. But the southern continent will some day become a great maritime power and the nucleus of a navy has been formed. Some of the colonies in their separate days had ships of war of their own. These, we suppose, will form the first vessels of a great fleet, although to those who have been in the habit of regarding the vast expenditure upon the British navy £1,000,000 seems an insignificant sum. But an example has been set which Canada cannot afford to ignore. An important subject has been opened up for discussion. Australia has apparently determined to maintain war vessels of her own instead of contributing to the Imperial funds and helping to establish a great Imperial fleet for the defence of the interests of the Empire as a whole. This is not unnatural. When people take themselves to determine the manner in which their money shall be spent, the South African war has imposed great burdens upon the people of the British Isles. They are not grumbling much yet, because the vast majority of them believe the war to be a just one. When they investigate the situation, however, and find that the colonies are relying entirely upon a fleet which is maintained with their money they will inquire whether such a state of affairs is worthy of self-governing communities. Canada must follow the example of her younger sister and anticipate such a contingency. There has been considerable talk of late upon this subject. No doubt it will take some practical form before long, as we are sure there is no true Canadian who will not support the government in doing its duty in this matter.

Preparations for provincial elections are being made in Ontario and Nova Scotia. The Liberals are confident in both provinces. In Nova Scotia the Conservative party is demoralized. In Ontario there is a great expression of confidence among the Conservative leaders, but it is noticeable that the rallying cries are of the picaresque character that have brought the party into contempt in the past. Mr. Whitney is a man of the type of the policy he represents; he has driven over to the Liberal side his one lieutenant who was highly respected, Mr. Marter; and it may be truly said that his organization is in about the same condition as that of his leader at Ottawa. The people of Ontario may think the present government has been long enough in power and that it is time for a change, but they are not likely to turn out a man like Ross to put in one like Whitney. The present Premier of Ontario is one of the greatest men Canada has yet produced. A ripe scholar, a polished speaker, of rare and brilliant intellect, he stands next to the Premier of the Dominion in the ranks of our public men.

Mr. Houston exclaims: "Premier Dunsinuir, do your duty to the people of British Columbia. You do not owe the politicians anything, for if they had their way you would not be Premier?" What are Messrs. Eberhart and McLeitch if they are not politicians? The latter is certainly not a minor, and even the Tribune, his chief apologist, admits that he is not an administrator by calling for the substitution of Mr. Green in his department. As for Mr. Eberhart, the culminating point of his brilliant record has been reached. The Westminster goal revelations should finish his career. Politics, and nothing but politics, is at the bottom of the Green agitation, and if Mr. Dunsinuir owes nothing to the politicians he owes something to the province and should not allow himself to be made a tool for the advancement of the projects of the lowest of the political leaders.

Providence is kind to children and school teachers. If kept the weather hot long enough to impress the authorities with the necessity of an extension of the holiday term and then let the mercury drop again. Yet there are grumblers in both classes.

GOLD-BULLION. To the Editor:—I notice in to-night's Times it is stated that the gold purchased by the provincial government "will be sold whenever the market is most favorable," and you also state in the same issue that the market for gold bullion fluctuates as much as with other commodities. As the government does not buy the gold until it has been assayed and melted into gold bars, upon which the value is stamped, I am at a loss to understand how the government proposes to hold gold bars "until the market is most favorable," and I cannot imagine how "the market for gold bullion fluctuates as much as with other commodities." These expressions used in the Times must be entirely erroneous, as the ounce of gold bullion of a certain fineness can always be exchanged for the same quantity of the same fineness. The price can never fluctuate the same as between gold and other commodities. It is a well known fact to all those who have studied such subjects, that any quantity of metal in the form of bullion must be of exactly the same value as the same quantity of metal in the form of coin. In the British Isles any person may take bullion of the standard fineness to the Bank of England, and the bank shall be obliged to give him bank notes to the amount of £3 17s. 10d. for every ounce of such standard bullion. The holder of bank notes may demand legal coin for such notes, and such legal coin are issued from the mint at the rate of £3 17s. 10d. per ounce of gold bullion of the standard fineness. It is practically a difference of one and a halfpence per ounce between gold bullion and gold coin. The mint price of gold is fixed at £3 17s. 10d. per ounce, and as long as the coins are ordered to be coined of the same weight and fineness, the mint price cannot vary. It is therefore manifest to anyone that the statement in the Times "that the market for gold bullion fluctuates as much as with other commodities" is entirely misleading and erroneous, and I am very much amused that the government intends to hold this gold bullion till it reaches the highest price, and then to sell it at a price less than its equivalent in coin, and their equivalent cannot vary. The only difference will be the matter of freight, insurance and exchange (if any) if the bullion has to be shipped to the mint by the government.

IN HIS DEAR NAME! Montreal Star. Of all the weird and uncanny announcements offered in aid of a church object that recently given in Atchison, Kansas, must be given the palm. It was a representation of the trial of Jesse Morrison, on a charge of murdering Mrs. Olla Castle. All the characters of the real trial were impersonated, the evidence of the real trial was used and the case left in the hands of the jury of four men and two women. The trial lasted until midnight and the jury disagreed, the women standing out for conviction and the men for acquittal. Some other sort of dramatic entertainment would be more serious.

WOES OF TORONTO TELEGRAM. Toronto Star. It is a hard world for our contemporary. Every time it sets up a golden calf Fate comes along and swats it off the pedestal. How, Joe Martin was first to go. Mr. W. B. McKinnon came next, and being a young buck as he would last, but he went also, and now Mr. Richardson was topped over. It might be well for our contemporary to worship a member of the Senate hereafter, yet Fate would probably come along and abolish the Senate.

value of gold may vary with respect to other things. It may purchase more of less bread, or meat, or clothes, or anything else at one time than at another time, but it is absolutely impossible that its value in bullion can differ from its value in coin, because the number of coins into which a given quantity of bullion is divided is called the mint price of that quantity of bullion, and to alter the mint price of gold bullion would simply mean to alter the standard weight of the gold coinage. ACTRESS IN A CONVENT. Miss Maud Adams Tells of Her Experience With the Nuns at Tours. Miss Maud Adams, who for the past few weeks has been taking the "rest cure" in a Catholic convent at Tours, France, finally tired of the silence and monotony of the old monastery, bade adieu to the nuns, with whom she had become a great favorite, and returned to Paris. Describing her convent experience, Miss Adams said: "My life there was most soothing. None of the concern which fevers humanity outside penetrates those old provincial monasteries, where the time is passed in easy manual work, study and prayer. My friends who had arranged for my admission for the rest cure concealed from the Mother Superior the fact that I was an actress, as the dear nuns entertain many strong, though innocent prejudices, among which is a rooted belief that the stage is directly connected with the satanic realm. "When I arrived I found that I was supposed to be a 43 American heiress seeking heartease, probably after some terrible love affair. But a few days later I confessed my calling. The nuns screamed in holy horror, but meanwhile I had grown to be a great pet with them all, and there was no thought of my expulsion, though the sisters sadly deplored the fact that such a sweet creature as myself should be addicted to such awful work, and tried to convert me, but I think I went rather the other way. However, I got them to view stage life more sensibly finally, and after a few days they begged me, with mingled feelings of fear and curiosity, to recite for them. "Having to use French, I was not at my best, but the nuns thought it was all very fine. These impromptu efforts under the venerable chestrnuts on the lawn of the convent garden were certainly my most pleasurable success. "I lived exactly as the sisters lived. I arose at 4 o'clock, attended chapel till 6, worked in the dairy till 7:30, and then took a breakfast of milk, bread and strawberries. I missed the coffee terribly, but I asked no favor. After breakfast I was sent to 'tidy' the lovely bare, whitewashed narrow cell which I occupied, making my bed myself, shaking my little rug and sweeping the floor. "At 9 o'clock I reported with the others to the Mother Superior, and was assigned sometimes to the kitchen, where I canned more strawberries and cherries than I will ever eat; sometimes to the dairy, where I learned to skim milk and wash wool; sometimes to the flower garden, where I picked fruit, or flowers for the altar. "At noon we gathered to the chapel for a short prayer, after which we had dinner. Perfect silence is compulsory in the refectory; nothing is heard in the room except the voice of a nun reading history aloud. "After that we walked silently around the cloister till 1 o'clock, when each retired to her own cell for study and meditation. "At 4 o'clock chapel again, then household duties, the needle and garden work. At 6 we had supper, frugal, meatless and silent, like the noon meal. From dinner till bedtime—9 o'clock—was devoted to recreation. This was the only time during which the nuns were allowed to converse. "What lovely, innocent twilights I enjoyed there, under the big chestnut trees, surrounded by sixty saintly women, some young and some old, but all so wholesome and so kind! "At midnight the silver bell which directs everything in the convent summoned us out of bed for an hour and a half for the 'night office.' At first I found it an awful struggle to rise thus after my first sleep and dress and go through the long, weird corridors, peopled by silently gliding figures going to chapel; but loved the beautiful night office, with only the dim light of the altar candles playing among the columns under the fifty gothic arches, and the darkly out-bullied nuns in their interminable monotonously plaintive chant, begging God to forgive the wickedness of earth. "A few weeks spent thus, the absolute quiet, regularity and the simple food effected a complete change in me physically. My nervousness was gone and my mind untroubled. "Our parting was tearful. We had grown mutually attached. But I promised to return next summer. "While there I wrote the novice costume. But I was slightly different from the sisters who had pronounced eternal vows, and I deemed it useless to horrify my sweet friends the nuns by revealing the fact I had discovered myself publicly all last season in tight breeches as the Duke of Reichstadt."

With her lap full of daisies, her arms full of daisies, Her heart full of daisies, she sits there and cries. Of sweet flower tributes it beats all the praises. That ever were rendered by tender ones wise. To come up to supper 'twas hard work to get her. She wanted to stay with her flowers, she petted them all. And we all bent to kiss her and tenderly pet her. And wore a white crown for her dear curly head. When the two weeks were up, and the good day was over. We started to pack in her small, shabby bag. Her freshly-washed garments; but daisies and clover. She had packed to exclude every poor little rag.

A BLUE OUTLOOK. Sandon Post-Express. John Houston and other heavy losers in the journalistic stock hole are exerting themselves to promulgate the fact that newspapers in Kootenay do not pay. This truth is so self-evident that it is a waste of time to advertise it. Any man with sufficient observation to realize that the newspaper industry in this glorious climate is a frost. British Columbia has more literary productions to the population than any other region on the entire coast of this continent. These papers do not pay, not now and never can they do so, for the simple reason that the population of the mine camps will never be sufficiently dense to give them a field.

It may seem curious to folks on the outside that newspapermen do not quit such a thankless profession, but that is not so easy to do. Take a man like John Houston for instance, who has worked at the trade all his life (and John has been living since he was twelve years old); what is he to do if he quits the profession? He is too old and stiff to get into any other restoration but he is not likely that he could get a job printing or handling in a mine camp anyway. If John quit the business tomorrow he would be back at it again within thirty days, for the simple reason that he couldn't do anything else.

There are no two ways to it, there are far too many papers in B. C., and unless some of them get pushed off the earth, or their editors follow the example of Eberhart and leave by the side the press of this province will degenerate until it becomes as soulless and servile as the paper-tidlers, corporate-poisoned journalists of Ontario, whose the editors live on sterilized fog and thanks and pay their printers in turnips, scrap iron, church school tickets, or any odd thing that the delinquent subscriber happens to have in his possession when the editor overtakes him.

Among the inhabitants of Gambia (West Coast of Africa) there is but one recognized remedy for disease. This consists in calling in a man who is supposed to be a doctor, and who, after looking at the patient, sits down at his bedside and writes in Arabic characters on a wooden slate a long rigmorale, generally consisting of extracts from the Koran. The slate is then washed, and the dirty infusion drunk by the patient.

Birds differ very much in the heights to which they commonly ascend—the condor, largest of vultures and of all flying birds, has been observed soaring over 25,000 feet, or about five miles and a half above the level of the sea.

FOX'S A GREAT ELEPHANT SHOT. Remarkable Exploits of Gen. Michael in India. Writing of the veteran officer, Gen. J. Michael, C. S. I., of the Madras Staff Corps, who was in his time a noted elephant shot, a correspondent of the Madras Mail states that one of Michael's earliest exploits inspired his native attendants with a wonderful amount of confidence in him, as well it might. He got among a herd of elephants in very long grass, and for some time could not get a shot. At last he got up to one, and dropping it dead, jumped on to the body, and with a second gun dropped two more elephants before they had time to make off. I had heard it said of Michael that he was in the habit of going out with three double-barrelled guns, and had frequently got five elephants in five shots, but could never get a sixth. He was always made it a rule to keep one in reserve. I had an opportunity of asking him if this was true, but I can't recollect what he said about having performed this feat more than once, but he told me how he just missed getting a sixth elephant out of a herd through a mistake. He got up to a herd in a jungle and commenced operating his native attendant that was standing by a clump of bamboo. The smoke hung and he could not see what happened, but on the other side of the clump of bamboo he saw a tusker, which he presumed was the one he had just fired at, so promptly dropped it. He had got three elephants, and was reduced to his last bar, but he had time to fire when he flushed through his brain that the second would escape him—'greedy man! He accordingly dropped the hindmost elephant first, and as he anticipated, the leader wheeled round, and gave Michael time to lay him out beside him—the two fell with their tusks together. General Michael shot the majority of his hundred and odd elephants with a 14-bore, which in the days of muzzle-loaders was the ordinary gun, just a 12-bore is now. The maximum charge in the gauge of his powder flask was five drachms but when he was loading for elephants he used to add a little more. Compare this with the metal and charges used for big game now! His success in this particular form of sport was due quite as much to a perfect knowledge of the game as to splendid shooting. His directions for finding the way to the brain of an elephant were as follows: "Imagine a ramrod (there were ramrods in those days), passed from earhole to earhole through the elephant's head, and bisecting it vertically; in whatever position you may be, aim for this point of bisection." I have heard it said of Michael that he used to concentrate his thought on this one imaginary point that he in a sort of way lost sight of everything else. I presume that it goes without saying that if you find yourself in such a position that your gun cannot penetrate to the desired point, you must not fire at all. In the old days wild elephants were looked upon as things to be got rid of, and the government gave rewards for shooting them—I think it was 50 rupees for a cow, and 50 rupees for a tusker—and the tusks were the property of the shooter."

He was always made it a rule to keep one in reserve. I had an opportunity of asking him if this was true, but I can't recollect what he said about having performed this feat more than once, but he told me how he just missed getting a sixth elephant out of a herd through a mistake. He got up to a herd in a jungle and commenced operating his native attendant that was standing by a clump of bamboo. The smoke hung and he could not see what happened, but on the other side of the clump of bamboo he saw a tusker, which he presumed was the one he had just fired at, so promptly dropped it. He had got three elephants, and was reduced to his last bar, but he had time to fire when he flushed through his brain that the second would escape him—'greedy man! He accordingly dropped the hindmost elephant first, and as he anticipated, the leader wheeled round, and gave Michael time to lay him out beside him—the two fell with their tusks together. General Michael shot the majority of his hundred and odd elephants with a 14-bore, which in the days of muzzle-loaders was the ordinary gun, just a 12-bore is now. The maximum charge in the gauge of his powder flask was five drachms but when he was loading for elephants he used to add a little more. Compare this with the metal and charges used for big game now! His success in this particular form of sport was due quite as much to a perfect knowledge of the game as to splendid shooting. His directions for finding the way to the brain of an elephant were as follows: "Imagine a ramrod (there were ramrods in those days), passed from earhole to earhole through the elephant's head, and bisecting it vertically; in whatever position you may be, aim for this point of bisection." I have heard it said of Michael that he used to concentrate his thought on this one imaginary point that he in a sort of way lost sight of everything else. I presume that it goes without saying that if you find yourself in such a position that your gun cannot penetrate to the desired point, you must not fire at all. In the old days wild elephants were looked upon as things to be got rid of, and the government gave rewards for shooting them—I think it was 50 rupees for a cow, and 50 rupees for a tusker—and the tusks were the property of the shooter."

The committee having in charge the erection of arches in connection with the Royal visit, asked some time ago for suggestions and designs from architects and others. Up to the present none have been received, and as the committee are very anxious to have some plans before them, the suggestion is again thrown out with the hope that it will be acted upon.
The Daughters of Rebekah had an enjoyable outing yesterday. They started early on the train for Malaspina Point, where they visited the camp of Mr. and Mrs. Grant. There were 60 or 70 present, and with games and other diversions the party spent a very pleasant day. The weather was perfect, and all present were convinced that the outing was well worthy of repetition.
R. F. Green, M. P. P., has been in the city for several days and the papers of the Interior have been industriously circulating the statement that he will be returned it would be with the portfolio of mines in his pocket. Mr. Green came down on business with the department of lands and works, but was summoned home by telegram before he could have it transacted. If he came down to negotiate for a portfolio it would seem to have been with little success, for all the cabinet ministers are still doing business at the old stand.

The funeral of the late Mabel E. Lyons took place from the family residence, corner of Edmonton and Cedar Hill road, at 2:30 this afternoon. Rev. Mr. Hastings conducted the service both at the house and graves. The room in which the casket laid was liberally covered with beautiful flowers, showing the esteem in which the deceased was held. Among the floral designs presented was a pillow from the Province Cigar Co.'s employees, where the deceased worked, and wreaths from the Albion Iron Works, where her father was liberally employed. The funeral was largely attended. The pallbearers were: D. T. Barnhardt, J. H. Peuketh, J. Roberts, N. Shepherd, C. Steers and H. Geake.

The whole makes a most interesting and striking souvenir of the city, which will be especially prized by tourists.

Mr. Helmecken has received a telegram from Secretary Burgess of the Fraser River Cannery Association, stating that the steamer will leave the terminus City wharf immediately upon their arrival at Vancouver. Intimation has also been received from the Lieut.-Governor regretting his inability to accompany the party.
-In the latest edition of the Stenographers' Journal appears a reproduction of a monument erected by the stenographers and employers of this city in memory of the late Andrew G. Hay, who died on January 24th. The design is marble and the granite enclosure is filled with white marble spalls. Speaking of Mr. Hay, the Journal says: "His many virtues made him respected by all he came in contact with, employers as well as men. He was intelligent, straightforward, and honorable in all his dealings, and a first-class stenographer. He filled many positions of trust in the local union, being in office continually. He was one of the first men to suggest the establishment of a branch of the C. U. in Victoria, and helped to get their charter."

Nothing has appeared in the press concerning the pleasant little excursion enjoyed by a special committee of the city council several days ago. They were appointed to deal with the tenders for material for the James Bay causeway and decided to inspect some of the quarries they had heard so much about in so many of the tenders. The committee consisted of Aldermen Kinsman, Stewart and Cooley, the practical men of the council, augmented by W. Engineer Topp and Messrs. Mortimer and Mason. They toured among the islands of the gulf on the steamer "Proquo" and inspected several properties which, with development, would become excellent quarries. Stern business was combined with pleasure, but there is no doubt that the rosier accounts of the officials made the fellow councillors take on just the faintest suspicion of the tinge of envy.

DELIGHTFUL SAIL.
Excursion of City of Nanaimo to Anacortes on Sunday.
A more pleasant day's outing can scarcely be imagined than that offered for next Sunday, when the steamer City of Nanaimo will make a trip to Anacortes. Starting from the C. P. N. Co.'s wharf at 9 a. m., a quick passage will be made to Anacortes, passing the numerous fish traps which this route affords. At Anacortes ample time will be given excursionists to visit local points of interest, and the largest carny, owned by the Alaska Packing Company. Excursionists will also have an opportunity of viewing the United States battleship Iowa, which is now at Anacortes. The Iowa has one of the finest bands in the United States navy. Leaving Anacortes, the alternate route will be taken, which affords a picturesque sail through Thatcher pass, thence along the middle channel and among the chain of islands.
The Fifth Regiment band will render an excellent programme of music en route.
Tickets may be obtained at Frank Campbell's, the Army and Navy Cigar Store, and the E. & N. Ry. station.

LOOKING FOR SUPPLIES.
Purchasing Agent of White Pass & Yukon Railway May Buy Extensively in Victoria.

Within the next eight or ten days there will be purchased in this city or in Vancouver from two hundred to three hundred tons of supplies for the White Pass & Yukon railway.
This is the statement of E. B. Hussey, general purchasing agent of the road, who arrived from Seattle, his headquarters, on the Rosalia this morning. Mr. Hussey will only remain in the city until this evening, when he returns to the Sound. The supplies will consist principally of feed for the horses and dogs which will be in the service of the railway company next winter. There will be more of these animals in use when the snow flies again than ever before, for the company intends improving the service heretofore provided, and are looking forward to acquiring at least fifty more horses for the purpose. These will be required chiefly for the stage run. They will be bought either in British Columbia or on the Sound, wherever Mr. Hussey states they can be found the cheapest and best.

The strongest point in favor of them being purchased in this province is the fact, if obtained here, that there will not need to be added to the cost price the duty chargeable on all animals coming into the Canadian territory from the American side.
The posts en route to Dawson are also to be increased, while the Atlin district is to receive more attention than in the past. Dogs will be largely in demand for this route early in the season, and a number equal to the demand will be acquired.
The main advantage to be derived in securing of the above mentioned supplies in this city is that no duty has to be paid on them. The matter of buying has been left in the hands of Carl Glyn, of Seattle, who accompanies Mr. Hussey on his present visit to this city.

Asked as to the reported reduction in the rates of the White Pass & Yukon railway, Mr. Hussey said he was not in a position to know more about the tariff of the road than the regular agents.
-A meeting of the Victoria stonemasons was held last evening, when a committee was appointed to prepare a representative float for the coming labor day celebration parade. The committee started preparations to-day, and will soon be busily engaged in supervising the construction of what they anticipate will be one of the most attractive features of the parade. Already the work of preparing floats for several establishments and organizations has commenced. The promoters believe in having time by the forelock, so that when the day arrives every detail will have received attention. Prizes are coming in quite frequently. Messrs. R. Hall and A. E. McPhillips, M.P.P.'s, have offered handsome trophies to be placed at the disposal of the committee, who will designate the particular competition for which they will be awarded.

A horse which had been driven, supposedly by a farmer, into town, was caught on the outer end of Douglas street this morning in the act of running away. The animal, when captured, had no vehicle attached, and had freed itself by pulling out of a harness, with a number of cuts and sores being the only explanation in evidence of the runaway.
-On display at Frank Campbell's cigar store are four large horns of mountain sheep which were brought down from Glenora by Frank Richards. The horns are perhaps the largest seen in Victoria, and, according to Mr. Richards, the Telegraph Creek country abounds with sheep.

Tied Up At Bay City
Pacific Coast Steamship Fleet Detained, But the Colliers Are Running.
Well Known Oriental Liner Has Been Sold-The Briggs Has Sailed.

From indications it would appear as though there would be no steamer sailing for San Francisco on Tuesday next, the day on which the Unatilla is scheduled to leave. The ship, with all the other vessels of the Pacific Coast Steamship line, was tied up at San Francisco because of the strike, and when all are likely to resume service the most hopeful of the company can do little more than speculate on. There has not been an arrival from the Golden Gate for a week, Edwin Goodall, one of the directors of the company, in speaking of the strike of firemen on the steamers is reported as having said: "We had hoped that the men would remain true to their contracts and not follow the example of the sailors, who broke their agreement. All our firemen in port went on strike to-day. There are sixty in all. Men were on the steamer City of Puebla, Unatilla, Corona, State of California, Coos Bay, Bonita and Curacoa. There were twenty-one each on the Puebla and Unatilla. This action of the marine firemen shows conclusively that contract with a labor union is of no avail."

The coal fleet running to British Columbia from the Bay City has been more fortunate than the mail and passenger steamers. Although greatly interrupted in their movements they continue to run. Two of the Dunsuir fleet, being now at San Francisco discharging, while a third is on her way south. Of course the work of unloading these ships goes on slowly. But 400 tons of coal a day is being landed to the 1,200 tons which would be placed ashore under normal conditions. The vessels discharging are the Tullus and Bristol, while the Wellington is the southward bound collier.

VICTORY FOR NON-UNIONISTS.
The trials and tribulations of the American ship John A. Belgs, coal loader, Tacoma for San Francisco, came to an end to-night by her securing the services of a crew of non-union men at this place to take her down, says the Port Townsend dispatch of Wednesday. The crew is composed of business men and retired sea captains of this city, most of whom are well-to-do, and are making the trip more as an outing than anything else.
The tug Tacoma came over from Victoria, under orders, yesterday afternoon, and on account of the objection raised by the Sailors' Union the matter was very quiet. The union got wind of it, however, and tonight the threat that the havers would be cut if the tug attempted to take the ship out. Capt. Morrison, of the tug Tacoma, kept his searchlight on the havers during the time it was being attached and threatened to shoot any one making an attempt to cut it. Two boat loads of union men have been around the ship all night and at this hour, 2 a. m., it looks as though no trouble of a serious nature would occur, the ship being just ready to depart, all hands having gotten aboard thirty minutes ago.

Most of the crew are well known seafaring and business men of this city and is composed as follows:
A. C. Tweedie, manager for the J. T. Steeb Shipping company.
A. M. Swall, captain and owner of the American ship Benjamin Sewall.
Capt. William Gove, captain of the Puget Sound Tug Boat company's tug Tye.
Capt. E. B. Hickman formerly chief of police of this city, but now engaged in mining.
Frank S. Sheehan, of the Sheehan Hardware company.
B. C. Pilcher, Chris Steinhoff, W. W. Barrett, the latter three being prominent young men of this city.
Capt. Morrison kept his boat in the stream and would allow no communication.
At ten minutes past 2 they put to sea, all hands cheering so that it could be plainly heard over the city, and the union men are returning after a vain struggle to prevent her sailing.

UMATILLA HAS SAILED.
Advises received from San Francisco this afternoon announce the sailing of the "Umatilla" from that port yesterday. This is the first intimation of her having left for Victoria. Along the waterfront this morning it was supposed that she would not likely sail until some adjustment of the difficulties upon which the strike rests had been reached. The ship is manned with a non-union crew, and in five days late.
THE MONMOUTHSHIRE SOLD.
The British steamer Monmouthshire, for a long time on the Portland and Oriental route, and which previously ran to Victoria from China and Japan, has been sold to the Quebec Steamship company, and will be used in the Windward island trade in the Atlantic. The Monmouthshire recently arrived at Antwerp from this coast with a cargo of wheat. The vessel was said to be the fastest freight steamer plying between the Pacific coast and the Orient.

MARINE NOTES.
Expectations did not materialize in respect to the steamship Queen stopping over in port to-day. The ship arrived from the Sound early this morning, took on board her Victoria passengers and proceeded north at 6 o'clock. She was crowded to her capacity with excursionists, who, however, because of the unfavorable hour of arrival and their early departure, got little opportunity of seeing this city.
Among the passengers leaving for the north on the steamer Tees last evening were C. W. D. Clifford, M. P. P., who has gone north to join the party which left here on the Joan G. W. and J. Braden, who are bound for the new sulphur mines off the Skeena; Mr. Hall and wife, J. H. Raymond and wife, V. La Ford, J. Thompson, H. Jenkinson, tax collector, C. Raven and Miss Thompson.
Steamer Islander sails for Skagway to-morrow morning at her usual hour of 8 o'clock.
D. G. S. Quadra leaves on Monday for Discovery Island.

The Kentucky Mountaineer

Their Blood Feuds—How They Originate and Are Fought Out.

Patch on a Pair of Trousers Led to a Thirty-Year War.

Elsewhere the Southern mountaineer holds human life as cheap; elsewhere he is ready to let death settle a personal dispute; elsewhere he is more ignorant and has as little regard for law; elsewhere he was divided against himself by the war and was left in subsequent divisions just as lawless; elsewhere he has similar clanishness of feeling; and elsewhere an occasional feud which is confined to family and close kindred. But nowhere is the feud so common, so old, so persistent, so deadly, as in the Kentucky mountains. Nowhere else is there such organization, such division of enmity to the limit of kinship.

About thirty-five years ago two boys were playing marbles in the road along the Cumberland river—down in the Kentucky mountains. One had a patch on the seat of his trousers. The other boy made fun of it, and the boy with the patch went home and told his father. Thirty years of local war was the result. The factions fought on after they had forgotten why they had fought at all. While organized warfare is now over, an occasional fight yet comes over the patch on those trousers.

Patch on Those Trousers
As a man or two killed. A county as big as Rhode Island is still heretofore divided on the subject. In a race for the legislature not long ago, the feud was the sole issue. And, without knowing it, perhaps, a mountaineer carried that patch like a flag to victory, and sat under it at the capital-making laws for the rest of the state.

That is the feud that has stained the highland border of the state with blood and, abroad, has engulfed the reputation of the lowland bluegrass, where there are, of course, no mountains. In fact, that sometimes seems to require emphasis, I am sorry to say. Almost every mountain county has, or has had, its feud.

On one side a leader whose authority is rarely questioned. Each leader has his band of retainers. Always he arms them; usually he feeds them; sometimes he houses and clothes them, and sometimes, even, he hires them. In one local war, remember, four dollars per day were the wages of the fighting man, and the leader on one occasion while besieging his enemies in the county court house—tried to purchase a cannon, and from no other place than the state arsenal, and from no other personage than the governor himself.

It is the feud that most sharply differentiates the Kentucky mountaineer from his fellows, and it is extreme isolation that makes it possible in this age such a relic of medieval barbarism. For the feud means, of course, ignorance, and, therefore, incredible lawlessness, a frightful estimate of the value of human life; the horrible custom of ambush, a class of specially trained men can be hired to do murder for a gun, a mule, or a gallon of moonshine.

Now these are the blackest shadows in the only picture of Kentucky mountain life that has reached the light of print through the press. There is another side and it is only fair to show it.

The feud is an inheritance. There were feuds before the war, even on the edge of the bluegrass; there were Fierce Family Fights in the backwoods before and during the Revolution—when the war between Whig and Tory served as a pretext for satisfying personal animosities already existing, and it is not a wild fancy that the Kentucky mountain feud takes root in Scotland. For while it is hardly possible that the enemies of the Revolution were transmitted to the hills, it is quite sure that whatever race instinct, old-world trait of character, or moral code the mountaineer may have taken with him into the mountains—it is quite sure that that instinct, that trait of character, that moral code are living forces in him to-day. The late war was, however, the chief cause of feuds. When the river bottoms were populated, the clans were formed. There were more slave-holders among them than among other Southern mountaineers. For the reason the war divided them more evenly against themselves, and set them fighting. When the war stopped elsewhere, it simply kept on with them.

Evenly divided; because they were a fiercer race, and because the issue had become personal. The little that is going on now goes for the same reason, for while civilization pressed close enough in 1860 and '61 to put an end to organized fighting, it is a consistent fact that after the failure of Bayou Fouquier, and the stoppage of the flow of English capital into the mountains, and the check to roads and civilization, these feuds slowly started up again.

For the same reason, companies of state militia were on their way to the mountains to put down a feud. On the day of the Las Guzman's fight these companies fought, and they lost precisely as many men killed as the Rough Riders—eight.

Again, while the feud may involve the sympathies of a county, the number of men actually engaged in it are comparatively few. Moreover, the feud is strictly of themselves and is based primarily on a privilege that the mountaineer, the world over, has most grandly surrendered to the law the privilege of avenging his private wrongs. The non-partisan and the traveler are never molested. Property of the beaten faction is never touched. The Women Are Safe From Harm, and I have never heard of one who was subject to insult. Attend to your own business, side with neither faction in act or word, and you are much safer among the Kentucky mountaineers than a feud is going on that you are crossing Broadway at Twenty-third street. As you ride along, a bullet may plough through the road ten yards in front of you. That means for you to halt. A mountaineer will come out of the bushes and ask you who you are and where you are going, and what your business is. If your answers are satisfactory, you go on unmolested. Asking for a place to stay all night, you will be told "Go to So and So's house; he'll protect you; and he will, too, at the risk of his own life when you are past the line of suspicion and under his roof.

There are other facts that soften a too-harsh judgment of the mountaineer and his feud-harsh as their judgment should be. Personal fealty is the cornerstone of the feud. The mountaineer admits no higher law; he understands no conscience that will violate that tie. You are my friend or my kinsman; your quarrel is my quarrel; whoever strikes you, strikes me. If you are in trouble, I must not testify against you. If you are an officer, you must not arrest me, you must send me word to come into court. If I'm innocent, why, maybe I'll come.

Moreover, the worst have the list of rude virtues already mentioned; and, besides, the mountaineer is never a thief nor a robber, and he will lie about one thing and one thing only, and that is land. He has cleared it, built his cabin from the trees he lived on, and he feels that any means necessary to hold it are justifiable. Lastly, religion is as honestly used to cloak devilry as it ever was in any age.

A feud leader, who had about exterminated the opposing faction and had Made a Good Fortune for a mountaineer while doing it, for he kept his men busy getting out timber when they weren't fighting, said to me, in an announcement of the feud, "I have triumphed again my enemies time and time again. The Lord's on my side and I get a better and better Christian."

Even the ambush, the hideous feature of the feud, takes root in the days of the Revolution, and was borrowed, maybe, from the Indians. Milford, the Frenchman, who hated the backwoods, and Mr. Roosevelt, describes with horror their extreme malevolence, and their audacious disposition toward one another. He says that when a wrong had been done to a man personally or to his family, he would, if necessary, travel a hundred miles and lurk around the forest, intending to get a chance to shoot his enemy.

But the Civil War was the chief cause of bloodshed; for there is evidence, indeed, that the feeling between families was strong, bloodshed was rare and the English sense of fairness prevailed. In certain communities at least. Often they will tell an old mountaineer says: "Folks used to talk about how they could kill a deer. Now hit's how fer they can kill a man. Why, I have known the time when a man would hev been dray outen the county fer a knife or a pistol, an' if a man was ever killed hit was kinder accidental by a Barlow. I recollect folks got used to 'breesh an' 'killin' an' shootin' from the 'breesh endurin' the war. But hits been gettin' wuss ever since, and now hits hit an' Winchester all the time. Even for the ambush there is an explanation. "Oh, I know all the excuses folks make. Hit's fair for one as 'is fer ferther. You can't fight a man far an' square, he'll shoot you in the back. A pore man can't fight money in the courts. That hain't no witnesses in the lotter but leaves an' dead men don't hev much to say, they know they got use to the idea; that's so much of it goin' on and that's so much talk about shootin' from the 'breesh, I do reckon hit's wuss'n 'stealin' to take a feller critter's life that way."

It is also a fact that most of the men who have been engaged in these fights were born, or were children, during the war; and were, in consequence, Accustomed to Bloodshed and bushwhacking from infancy. Still, even among the fighters there is often a strong prejudice against the ambush, and in most feuds, one or the other side disdains it, and this is the reason it is usually defeated. I know of one family that was one by one exterminated because they refused to take to the "breesh." The last one killed was a good-looking, generous young fellow, eighteen years of age. He was urged to either leave the country or take to the bush for his enemy, who had taken to the bush for him. He would rather live in the mountains for a year and die, was the boy's answer, than live to be an old man anywhere else; and he would rather die than shoot a man in the back, less than a year, he was shot while drinking from a spring.

Again, the secret of the feud is isolation. In the mountains the war kept on for him. He would rather live in the mountains for a year and die, was the boy's answer, than live to be an old man anywhere else; and he would rather die than shoot a man in the back, less than a year, he was shot while drinking from a spring.

Thus the influence that has helped most to break up the feud is trial in the bluegrass, for there is no ordeal the mountaineer more hates than trial by a jury of bigoted "farmers." From an article by John Fox, in Scribner.

A LINCOLN ANECDOTE.

The following anecdote is vouched for by the editor of Leslie's Monthly, who has known the late Mrs. W. A. Baldwin, now living in Los Angeles, Cal., who was a close neighbor of the Lincoln family when they resided in Springfield.

"I can remember clearly a little incident which occurred one very hot Sunday morning in summer. It was just about the time Mr. Lincoln had received the nomination for senator. My father had gone to church alone that morning, as I was not feeling well. I was sitting at the window looking out only a few minutes when I noticed 'Tad' Lincoln trotting down the walk past our house as fast as his little legs could carry him. He was between two men, who were carrying him. He was the sharpest little chap imaginable. His father had nicknamed him 'Tadpole,' soon shortened to 'Tad,' as all the neighbors knew.

"Mrs. Lincoln had gone to church, leaving the children at home in charge of Mr. Lincoln, and the little fellow had escaped from the parlor in some way or other. As I watched 'Tad' trotting past, I heard some one calling him from the street. Glancing up, I saw Mr. Lincoln coming as fast as his long legs could carry him. As I have said, it was an exceedingly warm day, and people were wearing their thinnest clothes. As long as I live I shall never forget Mr. Lincoln's appearance. He was cool, vestless, bareheaded and barefooted! Think of it! The man who was later to be president of the United States, actually striding down the street, barefooted after his runaway child! It was the most comical sight I have ever witnessed. 'Tad' was soon overtaken, and Mr. Lincoln, grasping his rebellious son around the waist, tucked him under his long arm like a sack of meal, with his head to the rear, and started for home again. Unfortunately church services had just closed, and the streets were crowded with people, fashionably dressed, who stared in astonishment and with merriment upon the comical sight. Little 'Tad' was screaming, kicking and squirming in a vain attempt to escape. His little arms and legs were revolving in all directions and the sight of Mr. Lincoln, barefooted and half-dressed with that boy under his arm, would have sent his wife into spasms had she witnessed it. He, however, was not embarrassed in the least, but ducked and bowed right and left to acquaintances, responding cheerily to their 'Why, good morning, Mr. Lincoln,' with 'How do you do, So-and-So.' 'Fine day, Mr. So-and-So,' all the time wearing a pleasant smile, while the spectators were nearly convulsed at the sight."

Personal.

H. Grestock, who arrived from London, England, the other day, is among those registered at the Dominion hotel. He was a member of Stratheona's and served throughout a campaign with that force in South Africa. Mr. Grestock left London for this city on May 10th, and states that he had a most pleasant trip out. He received a communication recently from his brother, who has a commission in one of the regiments now acting in South Africa. The letter was dated from Pretoria, and states that he expects it to be a good twelve months yet before the country is quite cleared of the Boers, sufficiently subdued at least to allow people to travel without fear of losing their lives. While serving in South Africa, Mr. Grestock experienced the usual adventures and narrow escapes which fall to the lot of a soldier engaged in active warfare. At one time his horse was shot from under him, and at others he could hear the bullets whistling in such close proximity to his head that he wished himself anywhere but where he was. He was well acquainted with all the Victoria boys. Dick Fall, he said, was a lieutenant the last word he received, while his brother was major. Several other Victorians, he states, have also been fortunate enough to obtain commissions. Mr. Grestock is much pleased with Victoria, and, if obtaining a position, will make his residence here. He expects some relatives to arrive in a day or so from Ceylon, by way of London, England.

Chas. Fraser, accompanied by a party of mining men, arrived down from the North a few days ago and registered at the Queen's. Mr. Fraser is the possessor of some very productive claims both on the Colorado and the Bonanza. He brought down with him the result of some months' operations on these properties, namely $30,000. This was not brought down in gold, however, that being disposed of at Dawson in exchange for a draft to the amount mentioned. Speaking of the new method of handling gold in Victoria, Mr. Fraser said that it was what this city has felt the need of for some time. He stated, however, that the greater amount of gold from Dawson would be disposed of at that city, as miners would not take the risk, not to mention the trouble of bringing it along with them on the trip to bank. Mr. Fraser is enthusiastic over the prospects of the strikes recently made on the islands in the vicinity of Ketchikan. When going up North some time ago, he spent a few days there, and now regrets that he did not strike some claims there.

The Rev. Wm. Chalk, a prominent Episcopal minister of London, Eng., arrived from the East yesterday in company with his wife, and is registered at the Dominion hotel. Mr. Chalk is on a six months' vacation, which he is spending by making a tour of interesting points on the American continent and throughout Japan and India. A few days ago, he made a strike of copper ore in that vicinity, and for the last few weeks has been opening up his new property. As yet he has made no assays, and is not positive as to the value of the ore. He has, however, brought down with him some samples which he will assay. Mr. Little says that some Nanaimo people have opened up a property on Mount Brenton which they intend to develop on an extensive scale. "BESTING" CLERGYMEN.

One morning a man came to me with a letter written on stamped paper and signed with the name of a clergyman of my church in a town in Massachusetts. His story, told in a readable manner, was that he had run away from home.

According to the letter, his good mother was dying with grief, and the appeal of his reactor was to the man to come back at once. The minister's check for $8, drawn on a bank in this same town, was enclosed with which was a note that he was distressed and was anxious to go, but the difficulty was he had been in New York only five days, knew no one, and could not be identified at any bank.

Would I cash the check? I told him to send back to me a couple of hours, and meantime I telegraphed inquiries to the Rev. Mr. ... The answer came back, "Do not know any such man." When the fellow returned he was arrested, and in his pocket a neatly kept memorandum book was found containing the names of nearly every clergyman in Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. This had been his route. On each page of the book were four columns, headed, "Name, Date, Amount, and Remarks," and in these were such entries as: "The Rev. R., $4. Got after an hour's work." "The Rev. S., No good. Can't work." "The Rev. T., $6. An easy mark." The dates ran back through three years. When he had completed his tour he would probably either have sold his book to some one else to use, or he would have changed his appearance, invented a new story, and approached a second time the people who were worth it.—The Ladies' Home Journal.

RHEUMATISM.

For this painful trouble, Griffiths' Liniment is an absolute pain destroyer—penetrates and lubricates the joints, takes away all the stiffness and gives relief in a few minutes—works wonders in chronic cases.

Mr. H. E. West, of Water street, Vancouver, B. C., was a great sufferer from painful attacks of rheumatism in his shoulders. So severe were the attacks that he could not raise his arms. He applied Griffiths' Menthol Liniment, the great pain reliever, and in less than four hours the pain had entirely left him. He says: "It certainly is a great pain reliever."

A meeting of the streets, bridges and sewers committee will be held this evening, when a number of matters referred to their consideration will come up.

Anyone troubled with boils, pimples, rashes, freckling, sores, or any chronic or malignant skin disease, should use Budeck's Blood Bitters externally and take internally. It will cure where others fail.

SPECIAL LADIES' DAY

ON SATURDAY.

WOMEN OF TO-DAY.

They Indulge in Athletic Exercise and Cultivate Music.

Woman has entered the field of sport to stay. She is not always the new woman; in fact, she is more often the delightfully feminine girl who, a generation ago, was content to recline under the awning of a yacht or read a novel in some shady spot, while her brother or sweetheart enjoyed the special sport alone.

The time has now almost passed when it is possible to hear from the lips of our most ancient female relations of the manner in which the girls of olden times spent the average day. The "old school," both men and women, are rapidly disappearing, and it is from a few only that we can hear of woman's amusements of sixty or seventy years ago. To begin with, at that time neither men nor women had so many forms of recreation open to them as at present. Men went hunting, shooting, fishing, played baseball, and, to a limited extent only, football; they skated and occasionally went abroad to kill big game. A few owned yachts, men raced and steeplechased and played billiards; but when the number of sports and pastimes was more limited than at present and when the dinner hour was earlier, there was more drinking and gambling.

Dinner Hour is Late.

The lateness of the present dinner hour has materially reduced the amount of wine consumed, and the days of the three-bottle men are now only known to the descendants through the twinges of gout which our ancestors have transmitted to subsequent generations. Just this, however, and other amusements have come to believe what were occasionally the monotonous lives of men, so have various forms of recreation come to diminish the somewhat dreary hours of woman's life. Those who are scarcely more than middle-aged can remember when the girls of a family were summoned after breakfast, and were asked to spend their time in reading some kind of needlework, and even those who were emancipated from the school did not begin the recreative part of the day till after the midday meal, and then a drive, a country ride on horseback or a constitutional made up the afternoon's program.

We know, of course, that ladies occasionally hunted and fished, and, on rare occasions, played croquet. With the progress of time, however, came not only new amusements, but a greater latitude for women. Archery was of course, always a permissible amusement, and in due time a woman's means of exercise, out-of-door, was not considered out-of-place in the household. Formerly, when ladies' saddles were of the most clumsy contrivance and build, and habits were long and heavy, there was some reason for women keeping aloof from the hunting field; whereas to-day not only do ladies take hunting hawks, but even the riding of the sexes is sometimes almost equally divided. In olden times in "Merrie England" the daughters of Squire Draper, who had the Redworth country, were noted horsewomen; the Misses Heathcote were often seen in the Midlands; Lady Salisbury was master of her own hounds; and many other ladies rode to hounds; but they were in the main regarded as having somewhat outraged propriety.

Women Ride Races.

Today we find sunny ladies taking a leaf out of the book of Lady Salisbury, and both owning and hunting their own packs of harriers with a zeal which is not surpassed by a man. It is on record that the so-called Mrs. Thornton rode a couple of fat races; but it is only the other day that some ladies rode a steeplechase near London, a feat which would have made our grandmothers open wide their eyes; and this is not the first time that ladies have competed in cross-country riders on Long Island, of which Ralph N. Ellis is master of hounds, never has run without half a dozen or more well known society women, while the same may be said of the Ocean County Hunt club, of Lakewood, of which Mrs. George Gould is the stellar patroness.

The exhibition in tradesman's window of a pair of ladies' shooting boots is a reminder that ladies now shoot, even if we did not know it as a fact, while fishing has long been reckoned within the category of feminine amusements. There are instances of a lady who has participated in field sports; but the prejudice is gradually dying out, and the girl and woman of to-day have an amount of freedom which would simply have astonished her grandmother. Many years ago, if the modern girl or woman was afterward appointed secretary of a well known London club, created no small sensation by rowing in a four-oared boat in the neighborhood of Chiswick; it was voted "fast," but at that time a self-respecting woman scarcely dared ride alone in a horse-drawn cab. Now we see almost as many women at rowing, and many are experts with the our blades. There are prizes for boats steered by women in sailing matches, and women drive tandem and four-in-hand, though, it must be confessed, with friends.

They Follow the Hounds.

The prevailing fashion is for women to systematically attend other hound fixtures and cross country fox hunts, whereas other hunting was formerly a sport which no woman ever saw. The hounds met early in the morning, and were followed by a few enthusiasts only. Today, however, fixtures are set for a later hour, and women who have kept themselves in condition by hunting with fox or stag hounds, playing at lawn tennis, or walking, turn out in great numbers and tramp a surprising number of miles. Beagle packs, too, have greatly increased in numbers, and women form an inconsiderable proportion of the field in almost every country. Though other hunting in districts on which it is practicable affords a fine field for exercise, the invention of croquet, lawn tennis, and badminton, went far to relieve the tedium of the summer, when people had to stay in the country during the greater part of the time.

The old game of croquet, or lawn billiards, was not productive of much excitement, nor did it necessitate any great amount of exercise though it was better than nothing; but croquet, now experiencing a revival, and tennis, are just to the taste of those who like to be on the move; and the women of the younger generation may perhaps wonder how their grandmothers and great grandmothers managed to exist in the days when the present long list of amusements did not exist, and to those already enumerated, we may add racing; for, although in olden days the ladies alighted the local meeting of which their husbands or fathers were doubtless patrons, the racing woman (not perhaps a very inviting specimen) was unknown.

The institution of enclosed courses, the foundation of clubs, the reservation of members' enclosures, and the running of members' trials, have, however, rendered it easy for a woman to attend races in comfort, and we know how freely the opportunity has been taken, advantage of.

They Are Fine Golfers.

Golf has, of course, found amusement for an enormous number of women, many of whom have made themselves most proficient at the game—if it be a game a question which was seriously asked some time ago. Women are enthusiastic about it, as are men. It is the bicycle, however, which has wrought a complete revolution in a woman's means of exercise. It has enlarged the visiting list; for, whereas any one who cannot ride a bicycle must either hire a carriage or walk to pay calls some distance off, the bicycle can make short miles of it; and for all practical purposes in point of time and miles on a bicycle, a woman can represent from two miles and a half to three miles on foot, with possibly a trifle less exertion than is involved in walking.

Hockey grounds, archery clubs, and lawn tennis grounds which would otherwise be out of range are easily accessible by bicycle, and the ease with which one appears to carry with it the right to go away on expeditions which would hardly be permissible by train; in fact, the bicycle may be said to have to some extent deposed the chaperone. The net result, however, of our female relations taking so many hours in the open air, is an immense improvement in physique.

Exercise, too, has dealt a heavy blow at tight lacing and pointed toes, boots for no girl of athletic tastes could endure either. In some cases, women and girls, like men and boys, overdo exercise and lead a by no means unpleasing life, and enjoy an amount of freedom which could never have been anticipated by an earlier generation. In another direction, too, in the way of indoor amusements, ladies have plenty of facilities for passing the time when neither taste nor opportunity lend themselves to outdoor occupations. Art schools are springing up in a number of places, and sturdy new forms of art have been introduced, so that, in one way or another, even those of somewhat limited means can thoroughly enjoy themselves.—San Francisco Bulletin.

The heavy rain and wind storm that passed over sections of Cordland county, N. Y., on Wednesday night did heavy damage to the crops, particularly to corn. In many places whole fields were leveled to the ground, and the damage will amount to thousands of dollars.

Fondness for cigarette smoking has led to the death of a hard-named Walter Jarvis, of Tipton, Staffordshire. So that his parents should not know that he was given to the habit Jarvis used to smoke in outhouses. One day he accidentally set fire to his clothing, and was so badly burned that he died. At the inquest the jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death." Jarvis was only eleven years of age.

THE ACT OF DYING.

The popular idea that the act of dying is a painful process often causes a fear of death. But death from even the most painful natural disease, is usually accompanied by a period of unconsciousness, suffering and partial or complete insensibility, resembling falling asleep, or the pleasant gradual unconsciousness caused by an anesthetic. The common phrase "death agony" is not warranted by what occurs in natural death, which is a complete relief from all pain. When death is owing to heart failure or syncope, it is sudden and painless—perhaps pleasant. Death by decapitation or electricity is only a momentary shock, hardly felt. Death by poisoning, as in the case of opium and other narcotics probably gives a painless, perhaps a pleasant, dreamful death. Hemlock, as we know from the account of death of Socrates, causes gradual insensibility, from below upward. On the other hand, arsenic, strychnine, carbolic and mineral acids, corrosive sublimate, tartar emetic, and other metallic poisons inflict slow and torturing death. Prussic acid and cyanide of potassium cause quick and painful death.—The Humanitarian.
