A collection of scarce and curious pieces, many of which were never printed before, containing, John Peden's Elegy—Churches of Paisley—Population of Europe—The learned Spaniel—Princess Ali Chan's petition to Governor Hastings—Trick of a French Quack—Anecdote of Dr. Goldsmith—Speech of George M'Kenzie—Successful bravery—Beware of National Reflections—Petrarch's Idea of Books—Granger's Sophism—Lee the Poet—Author of Douglas, a Tragedy—Swearers justly punished—Presence of mind, &c. &c. Rescued from oblivion, “The Packman's Pater Noster.” A fragment of a satyrical poem against Popery, containing 342 lines. Written by Sir James Sempill of Beltrees, and his Son Robert, about A. D. 1609. Sir James Sempill was Ambassador to King James VI. and was contemporary with Knox, the Scots Reformer; Buchanan, the Scots Historian; and Shakespeare, the Prince of Poets. Robert Sempill, his Son, was author of the Epitaph of Habbie Simpson.—Discovered by the Editor, and fully explained in this Pamphlet. A new method of Addition, which may be used either for expedition in business, or as a check, or proof to the common way of Addition. It consists in summing up three columns of Pounds, Shillings, and Pence, all at once, as if they were only one column—Upwards of 100 curious, Arithmetical and Mathematical Questions, original and selected—Three Arithmetical Games, very good for learning Addition by way of sport.—Biographical Notes of the Sempills of Beltrees, from the Reign of King James V. to the present time.—Collection of curious Epitaphs.—Genealogical Paradoxes.—Comical Signs.—Receipts, &c. &c. containing 100 pages. Price, 6d. coarse copy, 1s. fine.

II. The PAISLEY REPOSITORY; a well known periodical publication, containing a collection of excellent pieces, in prose and verse, original and selected, printed on writing paper.

III. HARDYKNUTE; or, the Battles of the Largs and Driffen, fought in August 1263, price 5d.

IV. The Life and Death of the famous Piper of Kilbarchan; or,

The Epitaph of Habbie Simpson,

Quha on his drone bore bonny flags,

He made his cheiks as reid as crimson,

And bobbit quhan he blew his bags.

Illustrated with Notes; price 2d.

V. Accurate account of the dreadful Catastrophe which happened at the Canal Basin, Paisley, on the 10th November 1810, price 1d.

VI. No. 6th of the Songster, 1d.

VII. Picture of a Country school, &c. 1d.

VIII. From Authentic Documents, A complete History of Maggy Lang, and the other Witches of Renfrewshire, who were burned on the Gallowgreen of Paisley, in the 17th century, containing an account of their trials, &c. 200 pages, Price 2s. Persons purchasing this volume, will be gratified with a sight of some of the old manuscripts from which it was printed.
